An army order announces that the King has approved of a new medal being struck to commemorate local military operations against native tribes or rebels in East, Central, and West Africa. It will be known as the "Africa General Service Medal." The same order notifies that the new medal, with clasp "Shimber Berris, 1914-15," has been granted to officers and men under the command of Colonel T. A. Cubitt, D. S. O., who took part in operations against dervishes at Shimber Berris in November, 1914, and February, 1915, with the clasp "Nyasaland, 1915." The medal is granted to the forces engaged in operations against rebels in the Shire Highlands of Nyasaland in January and February, 1915.

THE BEST THING FOR DYSPEPSIA

WHY PEPSIN, PANCREATIN, Etc., SO FREQUENTLY FAIL.

An international specialist whose articles on stomach trouble have been printed in nearly every language, recently stated that to treat the average case of stomach trouble, indigestion, dyspepsia, etc., by doctoring the stomach, killing the pain with opiates or by the use of artificial aids to digestion, such as pepsin and pancreatin, was just as foolish and useless as to attempt to put out a fire by throwing water on the smoke, instead of the fire. He claims and facts seem to justify his claim, that nearly nine-tenths of all stomach trouble is due to acidity and food fermentation; and that the only way in which to secure permanent relief is to get rid of the cause, i.e., to neutralise the acid and stop the fermentation. For this purpose he strongly recommends the plan now generally adopted throughout Europe of taking a teaspoonful of ordinary bicarbonated magnesia in a little water immediately after eating or whenever pain is felt. This immediately neutralises the acid, stops the fermentation and permits the stomach to do its work in a normal manner, and thus by removing the cause, enables nature to quickly restore the inflamed stomach lining to a perfectly healthy natural condition. For the convenience of travellers it may be noted that most druggists are now able to supply bicarbonated magnesia in 5 grain tablets, 2 or 3 of which will almost instantly relieve the most violent attacks of indigestion.

Cream of Beet Soup.

Materials: One cupful of beets well cooked, one pint of mutton stock, two teaspoonfuls of flour, two teaspoonfuls of butter, one pint of milk, salt and pepper.

Utensils: Two saucepans, fine sieve, spoon and cup.

Directions: Cut the beets fine and simmer in the mutton stock fifteen minutes. Rub through sieve. Mix the butter and flour and add to the mutton stock and beet puree. Heat thoroughly, stirring constantly, and add to a pint of hot milk; season with salt and pepper.

Cinnamon Apples.

Core and wash six good sized tart apples. Mix together three rounding tablespoonfuls of sugar with one teaspoonful of cinnamon. Place the apples in a baking pan with three tablespoonfuls of water. Sprinkle over the prepared sugar and bake in a hot oven until tender. Serve hot or cold with thick, sweet cream.

Dad's Portion.

"I notice an eastern paper runs an attractive mothers' department headed 'Frocks and Frills.'"

"Some of these papers," growled the old man, "ought to run a fathers' department headed 'Shocks and Rills.'"

CRUISING ON GREAT LAKES & AMONG 30,000 ISLANDS of GEORGIAN BAY

THE "Great Lakes"—about these potential words is a halo of mysterious charm—they bring to these who travel on them memories of beautiful sights. They conjure up thoughts of their far-reaching economic value—of their bustling, ever-growing cities—their industry—their endless delights.

You love the lakes when you get to know them. You will learn that they are the cheapest travel routes in the world—that they have the greatest fleet of freighters on the seas, that they boast the two greatest metal industries on earth. In fact—now that ocean travel is curtailed and European trips are foreborn—the "Lakes" are coming into their own—they are getting the attention that they merit. The six-day cruises of the "Noronic," "Harmonic," and Huronic, the palatial steamers of the Northern Navigation Company, which leave Sarnia, Ont., weekly on the northern trips, afford the passengers opportunities to see the finest bits of scenery in the Great Lakes region, the largest elevators in the world and the great canal locks on the American and Canadian sides of the Soo, as well as the beautiful Kakabeka Falls and the delightful scenes about Port Arthur, Fort William and Duluth.

Travelling westward you leave Sarnia in the sunset glow of a summer evening, one of the great liners of the Lake Superior fleet bearing you around Point Edward and out upon Lake Huron. You awaken in the morning to find that the liner has made its way to the upper end of Lake Huron and is skirting Detour Light. The lake narrows down rapidly and the steamer enters the St. Mary's River. Sugar Island and Hay Lake are reached and passed and, as the ship's bells sound the hour of noon, you pull up at the New Ontario dock at Saute Ste. Marie or the Soo, as it is known by Northerners. Here are the great locks, the wonderful engineering feats that have established Canadian and American engineers the world over as men who stop at nothing. There is a "water bridge" 900 feet in length and the longest on fresh water anywhere. You catch a glimpse of the rapids and then take a peek at the twin cities nestling there on either side of the gateway.

On the steamer goes, westward now through Upper St. Mary's River and then gliding out upon the waters of Whitefish Bay. Off to the left, Whitefish Point gradually rises out of the blue distance and, in the late afternoon, the liner swings its way out into Lake Superior—the greatest of them all. It makes your heart beat fast, this wide expanse of undulating green, and though you have taken the trip a hundred times you, too, gaze in awe at this seemingly illimitable stretch of tumbling water.

Far off to the west, the fire of the sun is quenched in the sea and you go in to dinner as darkness throws its mantle about the ship. And how good everything tastes! A promenade around the upper deck in the whipping breeze, for there on the big Superior the wind can get a sweep, then to the ball room for an hour's gaiety and off to bed.

All through the night the great ship has been breasting its way and morning enables you, if you happen to be an early riser, to shout "Land, land!" for off there to the westward it is plainly visible. Thunder cape lifts its head high above and gives you an impressive and rocky welcome. And all along the shore is rough and bounlder-strewn, for here the elements have held their sway for centuries. The liner slips into the quiet waters of Thunder Bay and, there before you, rises the smoke of Port Arthur and Fort William. You are at the Canadian gateways of the Great Northwest. Duluth is reached the following noon, a city of 90,000 perched upon a hill.

HE COULD PLAY CHESS.

And He Proved That Fact In a Most Emphatic Manner.

In Austria-Hungary some years ago there was a marvelous chess player, whose name and residence were unknown, but who every now and then displayed his remarkable skill in the game. The last story of him was told by James H. Hyatt of Philadelphia, who had then just returned from Budapest.

"I was playing chess with a friend in a cafe," said Mr. Hyatt, "and plainly saw my defeat, when a little bit of a shriveled Pole with a tray of cheap jewelry stood in front of us and offered his wares in most persuasive tones.

"'Go away,' I said.

"'You can beat him,' answered the peddler, whose attention was on the game.

"'What do you know about it?' I asked.

"'May I tell him?' he inquired, looking at my opponent.

"'Certainly. Crack away,' came the reply in a tone of assurance.

"'Take his knight,' said my self appointed instructor. I did so to humor him, though I lost my queen by the operation. But, much to my surprise, I found that the very next move gave me the game.

"'Let me play with you?' asked the peddler. 'I mate you in the moves you say and where you say.'

"'If you do I will give you 10 florins,' I answered. 'Take the white men. Mate me on my queen's fourth square in twenty-two moves if you can.'

"We started in, my friend keeping account of the moves, and moved rapidly. After about a dozen moves I had the advantage of a bishop and a pawn and was assured I would defeat my aggressive little opponent. When he let a castle go by an apparently careless play I was sure of victory. Then came a sudden change in the situation, and I had to move my king out of check. I was on the defensive and in rapid retreat.

"'Twenty-one moves,' said my friend as the little peddler put me again in check with his knight.

"'Mate!' cried my opponent as he swung his queen across the board.

"My king was on the queen's fourth square.

"I gave him 10 florins, and he winked away shaking his head and hands with infinite satisfaction."

Novelty Potatoes.

Chop very fine a quart of cold boiled potatoes; put them into a saucepan with a cupful of cream, two tablespoonfuls of butter, salt and pepper; set on fire, stir until hot, then turn into a baking dish. Cover with bread or cracker crumbs and bake brown in a brick oven.

Nations That Left No Sign.

There are two great nations of antiquity whose inscriptions cannot yet be read—the Etruscans and the Hittite. The Etruscans occupied a part of Italy, corresponding roughly to what is now known as Tuscany. The Hittites at one time occupied a part of Palestine and united with the Canaanites to resist the invasion by the Israelites under Joshua. The Etruscan and Hittite inscriptions have thus far resisted the attempts of scholars to decipher them, though no one knows when some one may stumble on a bilingual inscription which will serve as a key, just as the Rosetta stone, discovered in Egypt in 1799, served as a key to the Egyptian hieroglyphics. In the new world the so called Maya inscriptions, found on the ruins in Yucatan, are also a puzzle to scientists.

Not An Epicure.

One afternoon a sad eyed hobo rambled up the garden walk of a suburban home and meekfully tapped on the back door.

"Lady," said he in a tearful voice to the woman who answered his knock, "I hain't had a thing to eat since last week. If you would only give me some bread or"—

"Mary," suddenly interjected the woman, addressing some invisible person, "bring Towser out here at once."

"All right, dear lady," said the hobo in a resigned voice; "even dog meat is better than starvin' to death."

Laughter.

Laughter begins either with the mouth or the eyes. Then come the other muscular groups, and then come the vocal expressions of laughter, such as brays, cackles, sniggers, simpers, giggles, snorts, grunts, foghorn rumbles, yells, shrieks, guffaws, trills, chuckles, sniffles and all sorts of peculiar bird notes and musical sounds.

When making oatmeal porridge place the oatmeal in cold water and bring slowly to the boil. This gives a better flavour than when made with boiling water.

Ques.: "How much walking-time" do you lose?"

Ans.: "Come again, Joe, I don't see it."

Ques.: "How often do your employees take a walk at your expense?"

Ans.: "Say—it's lunch time, don't keep me."

Ques.: "Wait a minute, this means hundreds of dollars to you. Answer me this one—where is the time recorded in your plant?"

Ans.: "At the factory door, of course."

Ques.: "Then they do take exercise at your expense? Your employees, I mean. They can take a quite a promenade couldn't they, from factory door to department door?"

Ques.: "Why not put a Time Recorder at Each Department door? Then your employees can take all the time they need in the halls or the lavatories or cloak rooms. But they can't get into the bench until they are all ready for work and just then they "punch the clock." How about it?"

Ans.: "Sounds good. Put me next."

Ques.: "Will you write a letter TODAY? Address it to the International Time Recording Co., corner McGill and Notre Dame Street, Montreal, or to their Head Office, Anderson street, Toronto, for latest folders and prices. Remember your strongest competitor may be able to under quote you because he buys the biggest of all raw products, WORKING TIME, closer than you do. Shouldn't delay, should you?"

TALES FROM FRANCE

A SOLDIER'S TRIBUTE TO FRANCE

The following tribute to the patriotism and self-sacrifice of the French is from an English officer who has served in France:

"You ask what we think of the French army and its methods, and how we get on with the French soldiers and the people of the villages behind the firing line.

It is quite unnecessary for me to attempt to pay any sort of tribute to what you might call the business management of the French Army, or to the extraordinary efficiency and valour of the French troops. I imagine the whole world has been recognizing the one and paying homage to the other for some time past. I am not sure whether the world at large is equally aware of the true greatness, the grandeur of the sacrifices the French have made. I never want to hear the word "frivolous" used again in connection with our French friends; or if I do, it will always have a meaning for me such as was never before associated with it. Do you remember a poem of Browning's—I forget the title? It describes how a young officer, a mere boy, brings to Napoleon news of the capture of Ratisbon. He was wounded, you know:

"You looked twice' ere you saw his breast;
'Twas all but shot in two."

Well, Napoleon was mighty pleased, you must know. The news was a big relief to him. His face showed his pride and gladness. And then he looked down at his messenger, and the flash went out of his eye. I hope I have the words right:

"You're wounded?" "Nay," his soldier's pride
Touched to the quick, he said;
"I'm killed, Sire!" and his chief beside,
Smiling, the boy fell dead.

That was the way of it, as I remember; and the frivolity of that boy's answer and smile is the only kind of frivolity I shall associate with the name of France after this war. I give you my word: There is nobody French in all this countryside who is not consciously, gladly, steadily, and all the time making his or her sacrifice. They cannot offermore.

"It is for France!"

"Madame, Monsieur, my child—it is for France." With these words, upon my honour, you might take not only all that belongs to them, all they have not yet been asked to give, but you could take life itself from these people, and it would be "Smiling, the boy fell 'dead," once again. The thought of question or discussion of sacrifice, the avoidance of this or that deprivation, it simply does not occur to these people. "It is the war." "It is for France." "France has need of this." "It will help France." That is all.

Further discussion is not only looked on as unnecessary; it would be indecent.

I have in my mind at this moment a dear old man and his wife, refugees from —. They had been what you call warm people, retired farmers. They saw the home of their old age and carefully built-up independence—all they possessed—utterly destroyed by German shells. Their relatives were all killed, or in the fighting line. On a broken wheel-barrow they carried away a survivor, in the shape of an old, blind, and lame sheep-dog, a book or two and one or two small documents. In the village of —, 13 miles behind the line, the Mayor was, of course, appealed to, small house, which stood empty; its owner away in the fighting line. There the white-haired dame contrived to make a home of some sort for her fragile, old husband and the veteran sheep dog. God knows what they lived on, with their kindly, deep-lined, parchment-coloured faces.

In that village, it seemed, no place could be found to serve as a mess for my friend, Captain —, and his Company officers when they arrived. The Mayor was, of course, apepaled to. He always is. He thought a minute. He has so many problems to solve in these war days. Ah, yes; he thought he could manage. An hour later, Captain — and his brother officers were comfortably established in a convenient tiny house. They found a white-haired old lady sweeping out the already perfectly clean, paved main room, in which they were to eat. All unasked, the same gently smiling old lady helped their batman to prepare a meal. Outside, a tottering old man with almost transparent skin, was raking together odd bits of wood to serve them as fuel.

Late that night Captain — paused in passing to flash his torch into an open-sided shed without a door. There he saw the kindly old lady lying asleep. Some rough sweepings served her for a pillow; her husband's coat was about her shoulders, and across that was his thin right arm. There was no straw for him and he was awake still.

Hardly bears talking about, does it? Well, thank goodness, Captain —— is the true sort of Englishman. He soon had the old couple in the little house and his batman out of his warm kitchen into the shed, and a comfortable bed, of which his Wolseley valise formed the foundation, made up for the old couple on the kitchen floor. But, mark you, they had never said a word about ever having occupied the home, let alone suggested that our officers had turned them out of it. Captain —— only learned that next day from the Mayor, who said, in effect: "But that is nothing; nothing at all. Madame and Monsieur are French, you understand. It is for France; n'est ce pas? What would you. No apology is needed."

He was right, too. The thing was nothing as things go, in France, today. It was just carrying on, so to say, part of the everyday routine of French life in war. But is it not fine? I have no time, even if I were able, to attempt to do justice to the almost religious fervour of the patriotic devotion which is being shown, but not this man, or the other, but by every single man, woman, and child in the country.

POILU AND TOMMY.

Some one asked young —— the same question you asked me, but his reply was concerned only with the French sildier, the inimitable "Poilu," who, with the famous '75's' of the French artillery, has won such glory. And do you know what he said was the most wonderful of all the achievements of the 'Poilu'? You would never guess. He said it was their achievement of really understanding appreciation of, and friendship with, our 'Tommy'.

And, mind you, it is wonderful. You know what we are. Who was it said we were incomprehensible but indispensible? Who ever it was understood us more than most. I won't attempt to explain our fellows to you, but to anyone not possessed of the key—and who has it outside of England? Not everyone by any manner of means, even in England—they are assuredly apt to prove very incomprehensible. To the Frenchman this rough-cast cynicism; their generally sardonic humour which so effectually disguises from foreign eyes the fact that they have any humour at all; their reticence; the void in them which occupies the place of a dramatic sense; their attitude of good-humoured scorn and contempt for any and everything they do not wholly understand—and a fairly wide field you know—their incorrigible, apparent harshness, and their consistent abstinence from all the minor graces and politeness, which is more than mere abstinence, because, based on real hatred and fear of anything of the kind; conceive what an impervious shell these things would represent to the average French man.

But the 'Poilu' has pierced that shell by the sheer adroitness and artistry of his unimitable tact; and, having pierced it, he has analyzed and appraised by the light of his French humour the sterling stuff it hides, taken that to his big heart, rejected the shell, and become the true and loyal comrade of Tommy Atkins. Sounds simple; but, believe me, the difficulties in the way were prodigious. Only real genius could have overcome them. The 'Poilu' provided the genius; and Britain can be trusted to go on providing the stirling stuff.

What do I think of the French? I salute them as I salute the memory of Nelson and Wellington; of Roberts and Kitchener, as I salute our own beloved England, with its waiting, watching, working women of to-day, from my heart."—Jean E. Harstone. (Canadian Overseas).

NARROW ESCAPE FROM DROWNING AT STURGEON POINT

LINDSAY, July 26.—What might have proved a double drowning was narrowly averted at Sturgeon Point, when two girls, while in bathing, got beyond their depth.

It appears that the two young girls went in for a swim in the vicinity of the lower wharf, where the river basis dips suddenly, and in a short time they were beyond their depth and struggling in 12 feet of water.

Capt. Gray of the Steamer Lintonia, and his men were engaged at the time in cleaning the boat, but when he heard the cries of the young ladies he jumped in to their rescue and succeeded in getting a hold on one of the girls as she came to the surface. As he was rescuing her the other young lady came to the surface again and grabbed him around the waist, which handicapped his movements. Fortunately, he succeeded in shaking her off and securing a better hold on both of the victims he started for land. Another employee on the boat came to the rescue and they managed to get both girls to shore in safety.

674 DEATHS FROM PLAGUE

Infantile Parlysis Claimed 38 More Victims in New York Monday.

NEW YORK, July 26.—Infantile paralysis showed another sharp increase. The records showed 38 deaths and 180 new cases, as compared with 31 deaths and 80 cases Monday.

The plague has now stricken a total of 3,096 persons in the present epidemic. Of these cases 674 have proved fatal.

Commission Is Dealing With Power Situation in Peterboro'

Disposition of Gas and Street Railway Interests Will Be Known at An Early Date—Mayor Duffus Was Present at Important Meeting of the Executive Committee of the Ontario Electrical Association

His Worship Mayor Duffus has returned from Toronto, where he attended a meeting of the Executive committee of the Ontario Electrical Association. The meeting was attended by Sir Adam Beck, chairman of the Ontario Power Commission. Sir Adam assured Mayor Duffus that every effort was being made to deal with the Peterborough end of the power situation and that the Commission is working on the matter. The gas and street railway interests of Peterborough are also being dealt with.

Mayor Church of Toronto, said that the meeting was for the purpose of having a "heart-to-heart talk with Sir Adam on the power situation. They looked to Sir Adam as the protector of the municipalities. They could no longer continue under the present state of affairs, and so he had decided to call the conference.

"I would like to let him know where we are at in this important enterprise," said the Mayor. "The city of Toronto has invested $6,000,000, and the people are behind it."

In reply to one of fifteen questions asked by Mayor Church as to "what assurance have we that the export of power will be stopped entirely?" Sir Adam replied: "I have every confidence that no Government from now on will allow any export of other than surplus power."

In this connection Sir Adam stated that he hoped to be able to sell much of the $12 power to large users, keeping down the price for the municipalities, and that when the Chippawa scheme was completed and the power in use, about 1920, they would have power at a price no company could compete with.

Subsidies For Radials.

In regard to the subsidies for the radials, Sir Adam stated that he had made the statement that the Dominion Government had offered a subsidy with some authority. Sir Robert Borden and three of his Ministers had assured him that they would pass an act to subsidize the radials at $3,-309 a mile, providing that the Provinces would bonus them to a similar amount.

Sir Adam reviewed the power situation briefly, mentioning that some years ago, although the Commission had only 100,000 horsepower under contract, it knew that it had protection under the act of 1907 to provide for the limitation or prohibition of export if necessary. In 1913 he had written Sir George, then Hon. Mr. Perley, acting Minister of Inland Revenue, asking him to reduce the export. Sir Adam had also pointed out the possibility of international complications, but Mr. Perley thought the United States had been given sufficient warning.

Advance Hydro.

Major Church interjected the remark that if there ever was a time the Hydro should go forward it was now. What had become of the memorial to the Government? In the opinion of his Worship, a private company should not have to wait for a subsidy. The Mayor added that he would never be satisfied until the exportation of Hydro was stopped.

Hydro Not In Politics.

Taking up the interview given by the Secretary of the Ontario Power Union during the bye-election in North Perth, Mayor Church said:

"I don't think any official of the union should be allowed to give any statement on either side. The union is not in politics, and Hydro is not in politics."

CITY HALL PARAGRAPHS

The Board of Works Committee of the City Council will meet this evening for regular business.

Street Oiling.

Alderman McIntyre is authority for the statement that fifteen miles of roadway have been oiled this season. Only seventeen miles are authorized.

The Weed Nuisance.

"If the citizens want the weeds cut they will have to sanction the necessary expenditure," said Alderman McIntyre, Chairman of the Board of Works. "It takes money to cut weeds," he added.

Sewer Construction.

Martin Neary's sewer construction gang is now engaged in constructing a sewer on Smith street, from Reid street east. He has completed a short stretch on Dublin street, off Downie.

AMERICAN FLYER DESTROYS HIS THIRD GERMAN AEROPLANE

PARIS, July 26.—Sergeant Kiffin Rockwell downed his third German aeroplane over the German lines north of Verdun on Friday afternoon. Scouting with Bert Hall, another American aviator, in Nieuport machines, Rockwell, who was leading saw a two-seated aviatik, which he attacked from above, with the result that the German machine fell headlong. Swooping to make sure that the German aviator had crashed to the ground, Rockwell was attacked from above by two Fokkers, and Hall coming to the rescue, by two more. Badly placed for an offensive, Rockwell plunged into a cloud and succeeded in escaping. Hall speedily rejoined him. Both returned safely, although their machines were riddled with bullets.

Both Rockwell and Hall are members of the Franco-American Flying Corps, which has greatly distinguished itself at Verdun. Victor Chapman, another member of the squadron, was killed only recently in a fight with German machines. Rockwell, who comes from Atlanta, Ga., was made a sergeant and decorated with the Military Medal for his daring work at the front.

SEWERAGE SYSTEM WANTED FOR THE ARSENAL PLANT

LINDSAY, July 26.—Mr. Dallyn, a representative of the Provincial Board of Health, addressed the Council on the necessity of giving adequate sewerage to the arsenal plant, south of the town. The speaker did not seem able to convey his views in as clear a manner as would be expected, and much cross-firing was the result between the aldermen and the speaker. The majority of the members considered that the plant which was outside the town limits should not receive any assistance towards the disposing of the sewage.

At a previous meeting a resolution was brought up asking that companies who built outside the town limits should not be accorded town privileges in regard to light, water, and sewerage.

This argument was brought up in opposition to granting assistance in building the proposed sewer. As the works is a Government institution it was considered that the country was better able to take care of the sewage than the town of Lindsay.

CHEMONG PARK IS PRIVATE PROPERTY

Trespass Notices Are Being Posted as Warning to Visitors

Notices have been posted at Chemong Park prohibiting excursionists or picnic parties from trespassing on the property which is a private park and not a public one, as the general public evidently thinks is the case.

The cottagers complain that picnic parties have been using the park, leaving their refuse from lunches, such as papers, cans, left-over eatables etc., so that the cottagers are unable to keep pace with the nuisance in keeping the park clean and tidy. Horses are brought in and, in some cases, allowed to roam about the park. All this has been so common that the owners and residents of the park have made up their minds that it is going to be stopped, consequently the trespass notices that have been posted up.

UNDERWRITERS' INSPECTOR IN LINDSAY YESTERDAY

LINDSAY, July 26. — Inspector Wilson, of the Underwriters' Insurance Company, visited Lindsay yesterday morning and tested the efficiency of the local fire brigade, as well as the fire-fighting apparatus and water pressure. He struck town on a bad day for such a test, the hot weather handicapping the service because of the large and extra amount of water being used for domestic purposes.

However, a splendid test was made. First the fire truck was called out, and afterwards the fire team with an extra supply of hose. The nearby hydrants were tested and other outlying hyrants will be tested this afternoon. At the lower end of Kent street the brigade had seven streams of hose playing at one time, the pressure being good.

MAY KEEP BARS GOING ALL NIGHT

Regulations governing the "standard hotels" as they will be administered by the Ontario License Board following September 16th are to be issued next week, according to the announcement of Vice-Chairman Digman of the Board to-day.

Stress will be laid upon cleanliness, comfort and convenience, according to Mr. Dingman, but the new regulations will not impose any hardship upon proprietors. They will be similar, in fact, to those of the present Liquor License Act excepting that the "bars" will not have any time restrictions. It will be possible to buy a drink (of soda water) any time the proprietor likes to sell it.

The license fee of $1, it is understood, will relieve a proprietor from payment of whatever municipal fees for tobaccos or restaurant business may be levied in his locality.

TO-DAY'S POLICE COURT CALENDAR

A well known local carter, who has seen years of service on Peterborough's driveways, appeared this morning on a charge of having liquor in his possession, whilst at the same time he was on the prohibited list. He claimed to be carrying it to someone else and did not intend it for his own use. He was remanded till to-morrow.

An eighty-two year old resident of the city appeared, charged with supplying liquor to the blacklister. He too, was remanded till to-morrow when the particulars of the mysterious transfer will be investigated.

A charge of speeding was laid against a Brantford man, but as he was unable to appear to-day the case was left over until to-morrow.

Rear lights on motor cars must be kept burning is the way part of the automobile act reads and for not keeping the said law a local autoist was fined five dollars.

PLACE NAMES IN CANADA.

The changing of names of places in Canada because they are duplicates of communities similarly named in Germany, may cause some confusion. There is a good deal of feeling in Berlin Ontario, where a strong number want the name changed to Kitchener. While things that have happened in this war would make some almost feel like not even allowing Germany a language here after, common sense will probably prevail. Many old German names prevail in Canada. Lunenburg, N. S., has given the best practical evidence of the loyalty of a community of Prussian origin by the splendid way in which she has sent her sons to war—in some instances practically every fit man of military age. The province named New Brunswick has nobly responded to duty's call. No suggestion of changing their names has been made. Many of those who gave their all to building up Canada were of German origin. One of the Fathers of Confederation—the late Sir Charles Tupper—was of Hessian ancestry. Whatever may be the fate of Berlin, Ont., there will not be any widespread desire to change Canadian names. There is something in the very climate of this country which makes people remember that they are Canadians, and that true Canadians are British subjects, with all the responsibilities as well as all the advantages that this implies.—Montreal Herald.

MYSTERY IN KILLING OF ARMY MAN WITH WOMAN IS UNSOLVED

Slayer of Lieutenant-Colonel Butler Refuses to Talk

ALPINE, Texas, July 26.—Mystery surrounds the killing of Lieut.-Col. Mathew C. Butler, of the Sixth United States cavalry, and Mrs. Crystal Holand Spannell, by Harry J. Spannell, husband of the woman, near here. Spannell, locked up in the county jail here, has refused to make any statement. There is no indication that he was insane at the time of the killing.

The relations between Colonel Butler and Spannell apparently were of the most cordial character. Colonel Butler during the two months that he had been in command of the troops at Alpine became popular with every one. He was deeply devoted to his wife, who was Miss Margaret Howell, of Nashville, Tenn., and his son Mathew, Jr. The Spannells, too, apparently were happy.

Spannell is he owner of the Holland Hotel here. Colonel Butler had stayed at the hotel since he came to the border from Harlingen, Texas, and he and the Spannells apparently became close friends. If there ever was a quarrel between the two men or between Spannell and his wife no one knew anything of it.

Invited to Take Ride.

Spannell showed no undue excitement, going through his daily tasks as usual. It has long been his custom to take Mrs. Spannell and their daughter riding in the evening, and it was about seven o'clock when he drove his automobile from the garage to the hotel and sent in for his wife and child. The three rode for about an hour and then returned to the hotel.

Colonel Butler, who had spent most of the day on an inspection trip, was on the hotel veranda when the three returned. Spannell called to him and asked him to take a ride. Colonel Butler climbed into the automobile alongside of Mrs. Spannell, who was seated in the tonneau.

About two miles out on the road in the desert country Spannell suddenly stopped the automobile, took out his revolver and, turning to the couple in the back, began firing at them. Colonel Butler was killed first, a bullet penetrating his heart and another going through his brain. Another bullet lodged in his stomach and one went through his arm. Spannell fired six shots at his wife and all took effect.

Spannell then jumped out of the automobile, cranked the motor and drove back to town. He stopped at the Sheriff's Office, and notified that official what he had done in these words: "I have killed my wife and Colonel Butler: you will find them in the automobile. I have come to give myself up."

That, so far as is known, is all of the explanation that the slayer has made. No one but the county officials has been allowed to see him since he was locked up, and they say he has not yet given them any motive for the crime.

Child's Story Sought.

What words, if any, passed between Spannel and his victims before the fatal shots were fired have not been revealed. Little Holland Spannell, who was in the automobile at the time, is so prostrated from the tragedy, that no one has been allowed to talk to her.

Alpine is in a rough country and there was great excitement when the news of the killings became known. There was talk among the cattlemen of lynching Spannell, and it was put down with difficulty, the officials quieting several groups of men gathered near the jail.

Spannell was an accomplished musician, having been educated in Germany. He became instructor of music in Baylor College, Waco, Texas, and at the same time was leader of the choir of the Episcopal Church at Waco. His wife was a student at Baylor and there the two met and fell into love.

Colonel Butler was fifty-two years old and had just received his promoway to Alpine when the killings occurred.

A YEAR INDOORS.

"For thirteen months I was so bad with chronic indigestion that I could not go out of doors. Nerves were unstrung, the heart bad, and smothering feelings came on till I thought that I would choke. Doctors' treatment failed me so I began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which I thank for my present good health. I am now doing my housework and have a family of ten.

WIRELESS IN IRELAND. . . .

An Irishman and a Scot were arguing as to the merits of their respective countries. "Ah, weel," said Sandy, "they took doon an auld castle in Scotland and found wires under it, which showe that the telegraph was there hundreds of years ago."

"Well," said Pat, "they took down an ould castle in Oireland, and begorra there was no wires found undher it, which shows that they knew all about wireless telegraphy in Oireland hundreds av years ago."

There are 10 sheep classes exhibited at the Canadian National Exhibition, divided up into 140 sections.

ANNUAL MEETING OF LIBRARY INSTITUTE OF LINDSAY DISTRICT

Meeting Closed Last Evening in Public Library Lecture Hall ---Several Fine Addresses

The meeting of the Library Institute for the Lindsay district took place in the Public Library Lecture Hall, yesterday, and everything connected with the annual meeting of the Institute was run off without a hitch. The programme began at 10.30 a.m., and the whole affair was concluded late last night with several fine addresses.

The election of officers for the ensuing year of 1916-19177 was held in the afternoon and the following officers were elected:

President — Mr. McLean, Port Perry.

Vice President—Mr. Deering, of Huntsville.

Secretary—Miss Flavelle, Lindsay.

At 2.30 began the open conference on "Book Selection for Small Libraries." Demonstrations of selection were given by the various delegates present, and a lively, interesting discussion resulted, in which all took part, and related their various experiences.

The remainder of the afternoon was spent by the visitors in seeing the city and several kind local friends of the Library Institute loaned their cars for the benefit of the visiting librarians.

The evening session opened by the reading of the reports of the various Nominating and Resolutions Committee. The speakers of the evening, Dr. E. A. Hardy, Secretary of the Ontario Library Association, Toronto, and Mr. W. O. Carson, Inspector of Public Libraries, Toronto, were then called upon by the acting president, Mr. Deering.

Dr. Hardy, whose long experience in library circles has given him such a wide knowledge of his subject, opened his address by saying that the people of to-day lived in a spiritual world, a world of ideas, an that everything else in the world was only secondary. "Into every man's thoughts at some time comes the question: 'What is the meaning of life?'" said Dr. Hardy, who then went on to show how the public library fitted into the trend of a man's life and how it tended for the betterment of the race. The speaker also emphasized the intellectual, moral, and recreative value of a good book, even of a good story of fiction.

Mr. W. O. Carson, Inspector of Public Libraries, Toronto, was the last speaker, and made an eloquent appeal to the delegates present to continue the good work which the public library was carrying on in Canadian homes. "What we need is a real vision of what our work really is," exclaimed the energetic Inspector. Mr. Carson then briefly outlined existing conditions in the various libraries around the Province and complimented the librarians and trustees of the various libraries in the Lindsay district, which also includes the Peterborough library.

The meeting then closed with a complimentary address and a few words of congratulation from the Acting President of the Institute, Mr. Deering.

NEW MASCOT AT POLICE STATION

A new mascot has arrived at the Police Station in the person of a pretty little white kitten which arrived last evening via the jaws of a big dog which walked into the station and deposited his playful burden at the feet of one of Chief Thompson's staff. The curious part of the incident is that the owner of the dog was in the station purchasing a tag at the time of the dog's entrance.

Philosophers who postulate instinct for intellect in the mental make-up of brutes must admit that this dog knew where to bring a homeless fellow animal.

THE WEATHER

A little more moderate, but still very warm. At noon the official figures were 90 degrees in the shade. Lowest last night 66 degrees. The present hot wave does not extend west of the Great Lakes, and in the prairie provinces it is comparatively cool. A good thunderstorm (which is likely to arrive soon) would make a great difference in the temperature.

BILLION DOLLAR CROP EXPECTED

After a thorough canvas of various points throughout Western Canada, Dr. McGill, of the Dominion Grain Commission, is quoted in Calgary as saying that Alberta would have a crop as good as last year, that the Dominion would have a billion dollar grain crop and that the grain crop of the three prairie provinces would be little if any behind that of last year.

The country as a whole never looked better than it does at present," said Dr. McGill. "The weather was made to order as you might say, and I am of the opinion that this year's harvest will be another wonderful one."

Those who contemplate going west will do well to remember that the most fertile districts in Western Canada are served by the lines of the C.N.R. and that this season they can travel from their home districts to destination, Canadian Northern all the way.

Arrangements have been made whereby passengers may travel in comfort, Colonist and lunch counter cars being a feature.

The first of these excursions will be run in August, the date will be announced later.

Dummer Boy Lost His Life While In Bathing

Body Was Recovered and Funeral Took Place Yesterday—Fourteen Out of Seventeen Pupils Were Successful in the Junior High School Entrance Examinations—Norwood Items of Interest.

Norwood, July 26.—A sad accident took place on Saturday afternoon when Arthur, the 16 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Murphy, of Dummer, was drowned in Koshabogamog Lake, while bathing.

The funeral took place on Tuesday afternoon to the Norwood cemetery, the services being conducted by the Rev. Mr. Waddell, pastor of the Baptist church.

DEATH OF F. L. BURKELL.

The death occurred on Saturday evening of Florence L. Burkell, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thoma Burkell.

Deceased was in her 22nd year and had been confined to her bed for nearly three years. During her long illness she never complained but bore her suffering with patience and Christian fortitude. Funeral took place to the Norwood cemetery, the last sad rites being performed by the Rev. Mansel Irwin, B.A., B.D., pastor of the Methodist church.

Every third garage in Canada is a Ford sales and service station

Service is only important to you when you need it—then it is very important.

Even the best of motor cars, sometimes require attention. If you are a Ford owner, a third of Canada's garages assure you this attention when you need it—without inconvenience and at a minimum of expense.

Every one of the five hundred and fifty Ford Dealers in Canada carries a complete stock of Ford spare parts and is competent to make repairs and adjustments when occasion demands.

No matter where you go, Ford Service is never out of reach if you drive a Ford.

Like the Ford car itself—Ford Service is universal.

SALVAGE WORK ON S. S. PRICE STOPPED

PORT HURON, Mich., July 26. — Salvage work on the sunken steamer Charles S. Price, known as the mystery ship," was abandoned to-day by the Great Lakes Towing & Wrecking Company, and Captain Cunning, wrecking master in charge, left tonight for Cleveland, where he will make a detailed report to the underwriters. It is now probable that unless some wrecker cares to take chances on blowing up the Price for the junk that is in her the boat is on the bottom for all time to come.

In a statement made just before leaving this afternoon, Capt. Cunning said: "We have abandoned work entirely on the Price. There is nothing but a scrap heap there, and during the two working days that divers have explored the hull we have become convinced that it would be impossible to float the hull without spending a fortune, and there would be nothing to show for the work but a pile of junk.

Explosion Did Damage.

"The interior of the steamer, in the boiler and engine rooms, indicates that the boiler exploded. I do not say this is true, but it is probable, as the aft bulkhead is shoved forward and the machinery is wrecked and pushed towards the stern, indicating that an explosion or some other powerful agency tore everything to pieces. The aft section of the steamer is so badly damaged that repairs cannot be made under water.

"Our idea was to float the boat by compressed air, but with bulkheads broken and aft section damaged beyond repair, the air could not be controlled, and there was no chance. The aft and forward cabin sections are flat and part of the machinery is resting on the lake bottom. No bodies were found anywhere inside the hull, and if there are any in the vicinity they are so tangled up in the wreckage they never will be found."

ADDRESSES AT PLAYGROUNDS TO-MORROW

The management of the local Playgrounds wish to announce that both the Playgrounds (King Edward and Central) will be open to-morrow evening, and addresses will be given by Mr. W. G. Morrow and other local citizens interested in the Playground scheme. Parents and children are cordially invited to spend to-morrow evening as the guests of either one or the other Playgrounds.

FIVE POLICEMEN ARE INDICTED ON SERIOUS CHARGES

Sergeants W. J. Enright and David Foley Are Accused Anew

New York, July 25.—Indictments charging extortion of money from proprietors of disreputable establishments by five policemen were returned by the Grand Jury Sergeants William J. Enright and David Foley, who had been indicted on charges of perjury in this connection, again were accused in the indictments. They were released on the bail of $6,000 each given when they were arrested two weeks ago. Policeman Robert A. Goldman, Arthur B Dallas and Thomas A. O'Brien are the others accused in the developments of the investigation, which involves several other policemen, according to James E Smith, Assistant District Attorney, who has been in charge of the inquiry.

On the testimony of a woman, a social worker, a further investigation, probably through a John Doe inquiry, will be made of the alleged gift to several young women of tickets of admission to the Enright ball, in Arlington Hall, April 10, 1915. The testimony in the graft cases goes to show that tickets to the ball were bought by gamblers, who each paid $25, and exploiters of women, who each paid $10. When these sales had been made men were sent to the department stores to give away tickets to young saleswomen. Many of the latter went to the ball. The social worker whose identity is concealed, reported that one-fourth of the young women who attended the ball were led into disreputable lives.

While the indictments are confined by law to one specific offence, Mr. Smith said there were eighteen separate charges against Enright and Foley of taking money from law breakers and several charges against each of the others indicted. Goldman is accused of taking $10 and Dallas and O'Brien of taking $20 on account of $50, the alleged monthly police protection tax levied upon proprietors of disreputable houses. The graft tax was made, Mr. Smith said, on the basis of $25 a month protection for each woman in the houses assessed.

Foley and Enright are charged with taking $50 from Sigmund Mosner, proprietor of an alleged disreputable resort in East Twenty-seventh street, the money having been paid in a saloon opposite the Criminal Courts Building. Also they are accused of taking $20 from Annie Deutsch, proprietress of an establishment in East Thirty-fourth street.

Enright and Foley appear as directors of the Arlington Boat Club, whose ball in the Arlington Hall, in April, 1915, Mr. Smith said was the gathering place of professional gamblers, proprietors of vice resorts, pickpockets, gunmen and other criminals. "Sam" Paul, who figured in the Becker case, is on the list as a member of the club. Harry Sussman, chairman of the arrangements committee of the ball, is a witness for the State and has given to the District Attorney a list of the purchasers of blocks of tickets. "Al" Levy, under indictment for gambling, was another light of the ball.

Lieut. Daniel Costigan, who conducted the investigation resulting in the charges against the policemen, took the warrants issued by Judge Mulqueen yesterday and arrested the accused policemen. They were on the staff of Inspector Morris, in the east side, at the time of the alleged offences.

ONLY BEGINNING SAYS GEN. ALEXIEFF

Allies Have Barely Made a Start, He Says.

LONDON, July 26.—The Times correspondent at Russian headquarters quotes General Michael V. Alexieff, chief of the Russian staff, as saying that the Entente Allies are still at the beginning of their successes. "What has already been done on the Anglo-French and Russian fronts," said General Alexieff, "is merely the beginning. This is the 38th day of the Russian offensive, and there is another considerable period of tolerable weather before us. The most interesting and profitable part of our work is still ahead.

"My confidence is based on a two-fold foundation. First, the Allies are advancing simultaneously, and the enemy is no longer able to fight us piecemeal as last year. Second, the Germans have used up their reserves. Moreover, the internal situation in Germany is decidedly critical. All sources of information concur that disorders have broken out in every quarter of the German Empire."

Aerial Ambulances Are Now in Use

This war has taxed man's greatest ingenuity in every conceivable direction in which a war can. First was the great question of raising enormous armies, then the equally difficult question of equipment, then ordinance and smallest guns, then limitless ammunition, and so on to the end of the list. Items were to be dealt with in the hundred thousand and million instead of by the thousand or ten thousand as in the past. And with it all was the even greater question for the allies, of bottling up the German fleet. Had not the British fleet been able to hold the German fleet in hand it is probable that Germany would have had her way before this.

As the war progressed the wounded were to be counted by the thousands. The numbers and the character of the country made it necessary to resort to new devices to expeditiously handle the injured men. In the less difficult sections the regular hand carried stretcher cooperated with a miniature railway which was arranged as a net work right back of the trenches and communicating with all field and base hospitals. In the Alps and similar difficult country the old familiar aerial cable way has been used as a basis of transport. Specially constructed carriers are made for them and so devised that they automatically keep in their horizontal position as they glide down the steepest of their inclines. The wounded, with an attendant, are placed in these carriers and started on their short, quick air-line trip to the nearest field hospital in the valley, several miles below. Except for the specially constructed carrier the process is very much like the cable way transport of ore from the mine to the mill.

CITY'S PUMPING PLANT PERFORMED FOR VISITORS

AN EXAMPLE OF OPERATION.

From the above capacities of the respective pumps it may be of interest to point out that on Monday evening the first two pumps with a combined capacity of 5,000,000 would not meet the demand. Hence, for example, when the afternoon demand would gradually increase from the rate of approximately 4,000,000 gallons, No. 3 pump would have to be set to work to pick up the additional load. Or the four regular pumps might be all working during the afternoon and as the demand increased they would supply it by automatically speeding up and responding to the city's thirst.

NO. 1 A "HORSE" FOR WORK.

As a further example of how the load may be distributed among the pumps, a demonstration was made of all four working together when the venturi meter registered a delivery to the city at the rate of 4,000,000 gallons. The pumps dividing the work as two teams, loafed along at an easy pace. The first three pumps were then shut off by closing the sluice gates to their turbines, and number four which works easily beyond its capacity, took up the entire pumping load, whirring along through sheer necessity, at a greatly increased speed, and delivering the entire demand of water.

A FLEXIBLE PLANT.

These examples are mentioned to illustrate the flexibility of the plant, and the facility of its control. Its compactness is self-evident, as is the comparative absence of noise. Number four labored a bit when it was called upon to carry the whole load, but this was apparently an extreme case, and was provided merely as a demonstration of some of the special capabilities of the works.

SYSTEM OF REGISTERING.

The venturi meter registers the quantity of water flowing from the pumps to the distribution mains. Another meter records the pressure in the outlet main at the station throughout the entire day. Should a disturbance such as a serious break occur in the down town system, it would not only be recorded at the station, but the pumps would automatically speed up to maintain the supply and pressure. But these and other contingencies are rather dangerous technicalities.

The venturi meter registering the efluence of the water reflects its usage by the citizens. For instance, yesterday's sheet showed that at 12 p.m. the rate was at 2 3-4 million gallons a day; it remained at about that figure until between three and four o'clock in the morning, when it had jumped to three millions; at 5.30 a.m. it had passed the three million mark, and at 6.15, when the early risers opened their taps, the demand was at the four million rate. From 7 a.m. until 9 a.m. it registered five million, and at that hour most of the lawn taps were closed, and the rate dropped back to four million gallons, where it hovered until four o'clock in the afternoon, when the lawn taps were reopened and the day's peak load or maximum consumption of water, began. At 5.30 o'clock during the inspection, the visitors read the meter at practically a six million gallon rate.

THE CHLORINATION PROCESS.

Everybody was eager to see the chlorination plant the Utilities Commission recently installed. The chlorine is sprayed into the water in the proportion of one pound of chlorine to one million gallons of water.

Its operation costs sixty cents a day, and since one gallon of water weighs ten pounds, no one can surely say he tastes chlorine when it is mixed with water in the proportion of one pound to ten million pounds. The chlorine is delivered under pressure in tanks, and by use of the controlling machine, it mixes in the water at a constant proportion, as stated above. Thus, as the pumpage of water increases or decreases the flow of chlorine automatically increases or decreases to maintain the mixture.

The boiler room for the emergency pump was built last year. The boilers were supplied by the Wm. Hamilton Company. This building, regarded as a unit in itself, adds form to the entire works, and was necessitated by the decision of the Commissioners to put in the steam emergency pump.

The meticulous neatness of the plant (there is even a door mat at the entrance on which you involuntarily wipe the cinders of the approach from your boots) its thorough lighting and ventilating systems, in fact, regard it from every angle, and you return to the impression, rather the conclusion, that the Commissioners have provided a perfect plant.

PROPERTY BEAUTIFIED.

Have you ever realized that the river frontage at the water works is one of the rare riparian stretches the city controls. All the rest has slipped through its fingers as the water would. And to the credit of the Utilities Commission who apparently have the aesthetic sense in addition to the instinct of business they have given the water works a really beautiful environment. The west side of the forebay is margined by a wide, closely-cropped, grassy bank, extending to the old power house, and a new fence, painted white, extends along the entire road front of the property. The cinder roadway and paths leading from the road to the plant, the stone retaining wall along the river on the city side, in fact even to the minute details of this property and plant there's not an oversight. True, the Commissioners haven't put in a cooling plant for the summer's water supply, but this might have been added had the prohibition measure been less precipitously presented. It takes time to prepare for these little extras. The thoughtfulness of the Commissioners was further evidenced yesterday by the provision of light refreshments with Hooper catering. They touched the spot a warm afternoon had aggravated.

THE COMMISSIONERS.

The first Water Commission, in 1902, was composed of Mr. T. F. Matthews, chairman; Mr. T. H. G. Denne, Mayor; Mr. W. H. Hill. When Mr. Denne resigned he was succeeded by Mr. W. H. Moore. Now it is known as the Peterborough Utilities Commission, with Mr. Robert Hicks the successor to Mr. W. H. Hill. Thus, for fifteen years the Water Works has been continuously under the supervision of Mr. Matthews and Mr. Moore, with the former gentleman as chairman of the Commission. It is unnecessary to add that they have had the assistance of capable business men in Mr. Denne and Mr. Hill, the latter of whom served during a long term of years, and Mr. Hicks, at the present time, completes this efficient triumvirate. The splendid plant built up the Commissioners is a substantial monument to their vision, adaptability and general business and executive ability without further comment. Much might be said of the economy practiced by the Commission, but it will have to be "taken as read."

THE MEN OF THE WORKS.

The following is a complete list of the Commissioners and department heads, etc.:

T. F. Matthews—Chairman.
W. H. Moore—Commissioner.
Robert Hicks—Commissioner.
H. O. Fisk—Manager.
Ross L. Dobbin — Superintendent Water Depatment.
S. R. Armstrong—Secretary-Treas.
J. C. Anderson—Accountant
Wm. Hunt—Chief Operator at the Pumping Station.
Mark Wainwright—Assistant Operator.
C. A. G. Spence—Analyst.

CHANGED IRON TO COPPER.

Curious Transformation Wrought by Nature's Alchemy.

Not so very long ago a curious find was made in one of the copper mines at El Cobre, Cuba. These mines, once among the richest in the world, were abandoned for a long time on account of the insurrections in Cuba against the Spanish rule. In 1868 the coal supply was cut off by the insurgents, and consequently pumping became impossible, and the mines became filled with water.

After the Spanish war an American company bought the mines and proceeded to pump out the water. In one of the shafts thus made accessible was found what once represented an iron pickax as well as some crowbars. The metal in these implements had, it is said, turned to copper. Extraordinary as this may appear, it can be scientifically explained.

The water, filtering through the rock and the copper ore veins dissolved some of the copper, the solution containing sulphate of copper. As soon as the sulphuric acid in this solution touched the iron it at once dissolved that metal and deposited copper in its place, for sulphuric acid has a greater affinity for iron than for copper. In the process certain impurities which had existed in the iron were left behind undisturbed. The wooden handle of the ax was in good condition. The metal was porous and irregular in shape, but in the general outline preserved the form of the ax, somewhat enlarged in size.

A Japanese Custom.

On the anniversary of a Japanese boy's birthday his parents present him with a huge paper fish made of a gayly painted bag, with a hoop of proper dimensions forming the mouth. A string is tied to the hoop, and the fish is hoisted to a pole on the roof of the house. Then the wind rushing through causes the fish to swell out to the proper size and shape and gives it the appearance of swimming in the air. A Japanese boy carefully preserves every fish thus given to him. One can tell by the number of them that swim from the same pole how many birthdays the little fellow has celebrated.—London Telegraph.

Walking.

Every inch of every foot is meant for use. When a man walks in the right way, speaking literally, the back of the heel strikes the ground first. Then the rest of the heel comes down, after which the outer edge of the foot takes the bulk of the burden until the forward movement shifts the weight to the ball of the foot and finally to the toes. The ideal step is a slightly rocking motion. At no time should the entire foot be pressed against the ground. Heel to toe is the movement. Try it and see how much farther and more easily you can walk. It's the Indian's way, and what poor Lo doesn't know about footwork can go into the discard.

Heads of Cerberus.

The most famous of dogs is Cerberus, who watches the entrance to Tartarus. He has three heads, but Hercules dragged him to earth, and Orpheus put him to sleep with his lyre. The original dog cakes were given to Cerberus by the sibyl who led Aeneas through hell. They were made of flour and seasoned with poppies and honey. He must have been an opium fiend, as the celestial drug is made from poppies. A "sop to Cerberus" was one of these cakes given to the monster by Greeks and Romans as a bribe to let them in without molestation.

Call the Roll.

What has become of the women who used to settle their quarrels by cutting each other's clothes lines on wash day?

Where is the boy who stretched a line after dark across the path of the man whom he hated because the man told his father he caught him playing hookey?

When He Concentrated.

"Did the speaker impress you as being in deadly earnest?"

"Only once or twice."

"And what were those occasions?"

"When he lost his place and began to paw his notes wildly in an effort to find it again."

Her Political Views.

"Jane, I have discovered that our new cook has decided views about the policy in the east."

"John, what do you mean?"

True to Life.

"First really realistic novel I ever read."

"What's so realistic about it?"

"Didn't you notice? The heroine does about six times as much talking as the hero."—Exchange.

CHEERFULNESS.

Age without cheerfulness is a Lapland winter without sun, and the spirit of cheerfulness should be encouraged in our youth if we would wish to have the benefit of it in our old age. Time will make a generous wine mellow, but it will turn that which is early on the fret to vinegar.—Colton.

tically apply here, prove that since Dominion Day Old Sol has set up a new endurance record by maintaining the hot spell at a temperature that has showed little or no variation.

Not in 48 years has the maximum daily temperature been so continuously high as it has been for the first 25 days of this month. There were only four days on which the thermometer did not rise above 80. These occurred on the 3rd, 76.4 degrees; 8th, 79.6 degrees; 9th, 75.9 degrees; and the 14th, when the mercury reached 78.2 degrees. For the past eleven days, including to-day, the temperature has been over 80 without a break.

Last year there were 11 days in the first 25 of July when the maximum temperature did not reach 80 degrees, and in 1913 13 days. Other years as far back at 1901 had the following number of days when the maximum did not reach 80 in the first 25 days of this month:

1911	13 days
1910	6 days
1909	18 days
1908	13 days
1907	19 days
1906	18 days
1905	15 days
1904	18 days
1903	14 days
1902	17 days

Hark Back to 1868.

It is not till we hark back to 1868 that there are more days over the 80 mark than we have had this month. In that ear there were only three days in the whole month that did not reach 80 degrees. The average of the maximum temperatures which is hotter than that of the present month—85.2 degrees. Strange to say, just one year later, in the year 1869, the weather was extremely cool again, and the thermometer rose above 80 degrees only on three days out of the whole month, while the average of the daily maximum temperatures was 73.07 degrees, or over 12 degrees less than the year previous.

OBITUARY

MR. WM. G. GALLEY.

A well known and highly respected resident of Peterborough passed away last night, of Mr. William G. Galley, son of the late Wm. Galley of Peterborough. The deceased was widely known in Peterborough and district, while all over Ontario lacrosse fans will remember his exploits on the lacrosse field. In the palmy days of lacrosse in Peterborough the deceased was a star, who shone in many a hard-fought battle. He not only played for Peterborough, but was prominent on Western Ontario teams as well. His name was a household one in those days. For many years the deceased was employed by Mr. Dan. Bellegham. He was prominent in the activities of Knox Church, and was deservedly popular with all who knew him.

He is survived by his mother, his wife and two brothers, Howard and Garnet, the latter being the Boys' Secretary of the Y.M.C.A.

The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at 2.30 o'clock to Little Lake Cemetery. Service at the house at two o'clock. Rev. Mr. McKenzie of Knox Presbyterian Church will officiate.

IN MEMORIAM.

In memory of our loved mother, Mrs. Cook, who died July 19th, 1916
A precious one from us is gone,
A voice we loved is stilled,
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.

Another fond tie severed,
Another heart at rest,
Two waxen hands now folded
Upon that icy breast.

Another journey ended,
A weary conflict won,
In faith and love and duty
A mortal race is run.

In the earth she is sleeping calmly,
In the grave so chill and deep,
Our dear mother there is lying,
Not dead, but just asleep.
Dear mother has gone before us
To her home in Heaven above,
Yes, dear mother is with Jesus
In that home where all is love.
—J. C.

PARK STREET IS REALLY INSIDE CITY BOUNDARY

Mr. R. C. Braund stated to-day that he endorsed the report in yesterday's paper referring to the lack of oil on Park street in the South Ward. It seems so patent that if the disposition of road oil were left to the average citizen he would unhesitatingly turn the cart into the main street in the factory district. And yet, Waterford street, and other obscure lanes like Dickson street, only have to look hard at the officials once or twice, and that ends the dust nuisance in those parts, although it is a question whether the dust on those streets was disturbed enough to get a place in the nuisance class. The Park street roadway is not built on the generally recognized lines. Instead of the sidewalk looking down on the road, the positions are reversed, and the road looks down on the sidewalk. In winter the water rushes over it, and in summer it's the worst dust hole in the city. In fact this particular section with hundreds of citizens passing and repassing every day, seems to have been so neglected and botched, one way or another, that the absence of oil is not an irregular condition. It fits nicely into the Park street scheme. However, it's going to rain one of these days, and there'll likely be a fall of snow during the coming winter, all of which will afford some respite

FRENZIED COW GORES WOMAN ATTENDANT

Heat and Flies Madden Animal and Mrs. Walker of Guelph is Injured.

GUELPH, July 26.—Frenzied with the heat and flies, a cow tossed and gored Mrs. William Walker, Birmingham street, this city, while she was endeavouring to drive the animal through the gate of a pasture field near Gow's Bridge. Had two young men not hastened to her rescue it is altogether likely that Mrs. Walker would have been killed. She is an elderly woman and is suffering severely from shock. A physician's examination shows that three ribs have been broken. Her injuries necessitated her removal to the General Hospital. There are hopes for her recovery.

PARTICLE OF RED HOT STEEL IN SMITH'S EYE

Isaac Pammett, blacksmith at Coldsprings, Otonabee, about two miles below the locks, on the River Road, was painfully injured while at work yesterday afternoon, when a minute piece of red-hot steel flew into his left eye. Mr. Pammet was hammering a steel bar which he had taken from the forge. He came into Peterborough and was attended by Dr. Buchanan at the Nicholls Hospital. It was reported that the sight of the ey might be lost.

James Brooks Was Re-Arrested

ROCHESTER, N.Y., July 26.—Immediately after James Brooks, aged 24, of Lindsay, Ont., Canada, was released from Monroe County Penitentiary here Saturday afternoon after completing a brief term he was rearrested by Acting Detective Ingall on a charge of being illegally in the United States. At the time of his first arrest Brooks told the local police that he had served four years in the penitentiary at Kingston, Ont. He will likely be deported to Canada.

Brooks was sent to Central Prison from Lindsay for a term of six months for vagrancy in Nov., 1914. His wife has been living in Chicago.

DR. HARRIS IS DEAD.

BOSTON, July 26.—Dr. Wilfred E. Harris, President of the Massachusetts College of Osteopathy, who was shot by Dr. Eldridge D. Atwood a week ago at the Hotel Westminster, died yesterday at the City Hospital. At the bedside of the dying man were his wife and other relatives.

For a week Dr. Harris lingered between life and death. At one time his condition was such that much encouragement was given by the attending physicians. But he suddenly took a change for the worse, and a few hours later the victim in the so-called "triangle" tragedy passed away.

The police have announced that the death of Dr. Harris will change the charge against Dr. Atwood to murder.

MARRIED.

ENSWORTH — DEVLIN—On Thursday, July 20, 1916, by Monsignor Whalen, of "Our Lady of Lourdes" Church, Sherbourne St., Toronto Angela Madalene, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Wm. J. HOLD FAST YOUR DREAMS.

Hold fast your dreams!
Pain waits for you,
And care and fear are near—
There is death, too—
Death comes to every dream and death
Will come to you.

Within your heart
Keep one still, secret spot
Where dreams may go,
And sheltered so,
May thrive and grow—
Where doubt and fear are not.
Oh, keep a place apart
Within your heart
For dreams to go!

Think still of lovely things that are not true,
Let wish and magic work at will in you,
Be sometimes blind to sorrow—make believe!
Forget the calm that lies
In disillusioned eyes.
Though we all know that we must die,
Yet you and I
May walk like gods and be
Even now at home in immortality.

We know so many ugly things—
Deceits and wrongs and quarrelings.
We know, alas! We know
How swiftly go
The colour in the west,
The bloom upon the flower,
The bloom upon the breast
And youth's blind hour.
Oh, keep within your heart
A place apart
Where little dreams may go,
May thrive and grow.
Hold fast your dreams!

PETRIFEID RATS FOUND IN HOUSE

While workmen were engaged in remodelling the old Ball homestead in Broad Street, Bloomfield, N. J., now owned by Policeman John Marshall, they unearthed an old tin flute, a small brass lock, two petrified rats and several 'grenbacks.'

The money was so worn from age that Marshall and others who examined it wer unable to discern the denomination and will send it to the United States Treasury Department in the hope that its value, if any, may be learned.

Then there was an old newspaper, which fell to pieces when picked up. The tin flute, according to Marshall, was the kind used in revolutionary war days.

The homestead is more than a century old.

They were discussing certain acquaintances when Flint inquired—"Saunders and Harris are close friends, aren't they?" "Yes; neither can borrow a penny from the other," came the reply.

WHAT ABOUT THE PIGS.

Mrs. Higgins was an incurable grumbler. The vicar thought he had found something about which she could not complain; the old lady's crop of potatoes was certainly the finest for miles around. "Ah, you must be well pleased," he said, beaming as he met her. "Everyone's saying how splendid your potatoes are this year." The old lady glowered at him as she answered: "They are not so poor. But where's the bad ones for the pigs?"

WOULD HAVE SAID WINKLES.

Stanton was once, perhaps, rather naughty in the pulpit. He arrived very late, and the unfortunate vicar had already given out, and the choir had sung several hymns. "I am so sorry," said Stanton, "the thruth is, I went out to tea and they had shrimps!" In he vestry afterwards the vicar remonstrated, but Stanton, not at all abashed, said: "My dear fellow, if I had thought you minded I would have made it winkles!"

The Russians Are Now Only Twelve Miles From Lemberg

Berlin Admits That Roumania Is About To Enter The War

Russian Troops Make Further Headway On The Way To Lemberg

Slav Forces Are Only Twelve Miles From the Outskirts of Important Town--Germans Plan For a Final Effort on the Western Front--British Retain Possession of Captured Territory.

BRITISH ARTILLERY SUPERIOR

PETROGRAD, July 27.—Russians make further progress on the way to Lemberg. They are now only twelve miles from the outskirts.

BRITISH HOLD ALL VILLAGES.

LONDON, July 27.—Germans plan for final effort. Great masses of troops are being hurried to the western front. The British now hold all villages to which the German staff attached great importance.

WILL MAKE A DASH.

BALTIMORE, July 27.—The German submarine Deutschland, having secured clearance papers, will make a dash for the open sea within the next forty-eight hours.

BRITISH ARTILLERY IS SUPERIOR.

LONDON, July 27.—German officers who brought reinforcements from Verdun to the British front, and are now prisoners, say the British artillery is superior to anything they ever witnessed.

ROUMANIA WILL ENTER FIELD.

ROTTERDAM, July 27.—Both Berlin and Vienna despatches admit that Roumania is about to enter the field on the side of the Allies.

BRITAIN NOT TIRING OF WAR

LONDON, July 27.—"Great Britain is not tiring of the war. On the contrary the country has never been more hopeful and united," said Lord Derby, former director of recruiting and now Under-Secretary for War, in an inteview to-day.

The supreme confidence that begets victory was the most conspicuous thing about the British army in France observed by Lord Derby, who has just returned from the front. In giving his impressions of the work being done by the British troops, Lord Derby said:

"I never saw such absolute confidence, not only among the officers, but in all grades from the generals down. The spirit is absolutely magnificent. Men who fifteen months ago were in counting houses are today the finest kind of soldiers imaginable. After all, you cannot beat a voluntary army, where such a spirit of confidence exists; for, remember, I should say at least 93 per cent. of the present army were volunteers, while the remainder really wanted their minds made up for them."

Well Worth the Price.

Asked if the ground gained in the recent British advance was worth the losses, Lord Derby replied:

"There is no question about it."

The Prussians, he said, are fighting like "tigers." However, the spirit of the Germans is incomparable with that of the British, the Under War Secretary added.

Asked regarding the length of the war, Lord Derby said that anyone who named a specific time could only be described as a fool, but that the next few weeks ought to see great things accomplished.

"What will you do with the Kaiser if you get him?" Lord Derby was asked.

"I cannot say, but I can promise you he won't be able to do any more harm."

On to Berlin.

"When the British get to Bapaume will they rest there before beginning a new offensive?"

"We will not rest until we get to Berlin."

"Lord Derby made an earnest plea for American help in ending what he termed "German Kultur." In this connection he said:

"We want America with us, not necessarily in the war itself, but after it is over to help put an end to this thing called 'German Kultur.' I realize, and always have done, that the United States is overwhelmingly pro-ally. I also can understand that there must be a certain amount of friction between two countries during such a war as this, but our aims are the same."

Lord Derby looks forward to the United States joining with England and her allies, at all events after the war, in order to prevent a repetition of such wars as the present one.

BATTALIONS WILL BE BROKEN UP IN DRAFTS

OTTAWA, July 26.—There is little hope that battalions now in Canada or in process of formation will preserve that identity when they reach the front. They will almost certainly be broken up into drafts and sent over for the purpose of supplying the continuous wastage in the four divisions now in France. With 48 regiments in France, and with an annual wastage computed at 150 per cent., it is evident that at the present rate of recruiting, new regiments as such can scarcely hope to be added to the fighting forces across the channel.

Recently arrived battalions in England have already been broken up. One of the chief difficulties to be encountered will be the disposal of officers, especially those of the higher ranks. The greatest need at the front is for subalterns, among whom the wastage has been particularly heavy.

There are 23 classes for field vegetables in the Canadian National Exhibition prize list this year, and no less than 79 for garden vegetables.

This is the thirty-eighth year of the Canadian National Exhibition. It came into existence in 1879, and has been run continuously ever since.

93rd Battalion Arrives Safely

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, July 27.—It is officially announced that the 118th, 98th, 93rd, 105th and 106th have arrived safely in England.

CANADA'S HUGE WAR EXPENDITURE

Special to the Examiner:

OTTAWA, July 27.—For war purposes Canada is now spending seven hundred thousand dollars per day, and the cost is increasing. This equals twenty million dollars per month.

The amount given in prizes the first year of the Canadian National Exhibition was $17,000. This year over $60,000 will be distributed.

Artillery Duels Reported On The Western Front

French Fire Shattered the Enemy Near Sainte Fine---German Munition Depot Bombarded---No Important Incidents to Report---Washington Hears That the Present Allied Drive May End Soon.

LATE WAR DESPATCHES

LONDON, July 27.—British official statement last night says artillery duels with sharp local encounters occurred yesterday. No important incidents to report.

The French official statement says that the French fire shattered the enemy near Sainte Fine. German munition depot bombarded at Dun.

NOT THE BIG DRIVE.

WASHINGTON, July 27.—The present British offensive in France is not the "big drive" long forecasted and may come to an end soon, according to word received in British circles here. It is only a preliminary movement, preceding a real super-offensive next year, it is declared.

This information, coming from British authorities, includes the statement that the movement has been carried on for the most part with new troops, receiving their baptism of fire and never intended to be the blow by which England hoped to crush the German lines.

TURKISH TROOPS IN ACTION.

LONDON, July 27.—As evidence of the weakness of the Austro-German lines, Turkish troops have been put in action in Galicia against the Russians.

DEUTSCHLAND WAS CLEARED.

BALTIMORE, July 27.—German merchant submarine Deutschland was cleared at the Custom House yesterday for Bremen. She was expected to leave last night.

A BERLIN CLAIM.

BERLIN, July 27. — German submarine registered two torpedoes against a British warship off the Orkneys on July 20th.

PUPILS WERE GRANTED ENTRANCE CERTIFICATES

Hastings Items of Interest—Crops Are Looking Fine—Business Changes

HASTINGS, July 26.—The following candidates secured certificates for entrance in High school: Lionel Anderson, Catharine Barrie, Teresa Cleary, Lexa Fife, Everett Greenley, Alice Hill, James Hormel, Bennett Lamef, Jean Murray, Maragret Orr, Irene O'Reilly, Edwin Parsons, Marie Walsh, Blanche Williams.

Miss Gladys Stevenson has passed her exams at the Toronto Conservatory of Music on Theory Rudiments. She is a pupil of Miss Lilian Tate.

Peterborough Excursion.

The excursion from Peterborough per steamer Stoney Lake, which passed through here during the past week, was well patronized, there being a large and apparently jovial crowd on board. Those who passed through to the Falls for the first time were well pleased with the sail and the scenery.

Obituary.

The death is recorded of an aged resident of Percy in the person of Mr. Steve West, who had been ailing for some time. His death occurred on Tuesday of last week and the funeral was held from his late residence on Thursday. Place of interment, Merrill's cemetery.

Business Changes.

The central office of the Bell Telephone Co. has been moved into the building recently made vacant by the removal of the Union Bank, and which has been remodelled and repainted.

Mr. T. Coughlan, local manager, is also moving all his drugs, jewellery and stationery into the same building. Some new phones are being installed on the rural lines, which will be a decided convenience to the owners.

Hay Crop Heavy.

The hay crop, which is now being harvested, is reported unusually heavy and the progress is slow owing to the scarcity of farm help. Fall wheat and rye are also being cut and it is expected that the yield will be very favourable.

The excursions to Peterborough on Saturday last, under the auspices of the lacrosse boys, was not very largely patronized, owing no doubt to the busy season.

However, those who attended report a most enjoyable day. The commodious steamer Stoney Lake was very much appreciated and the sail was delightful.

Regaining Health.

Mrs. Wm. Tate's many friends will be pleased to learn that she is rapidly regaining strength and hopes soon to be able to be around.

Several car loads motored to Bethel on Tuesday evening, and enjoyed themselves at the lawn social given by the congregation of the church there.

Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Carter, town, announce the marriage of their eldest daughter Lillian to Mr. Thomas Albert Tucker of Rosepeath.

WEAK, NERVOUS CHILDREN QUICKLY GAIN STRENGTH UNDER FOLLOWING PLAN

Nervousness, just like weakness, is a family predisposition. We inherit tendencies to disease just as we inherit physical resemblances. The strain of study, social duties, work at home — these all tend to make nervous troubles among children. No wonder that St. Vitus Dance, Epilepsy, and constant headaches have become alarmingly common. Pale, nervous, listless young people are met everywhere.

It is nothing short of criminal for parents to neglect signs of weakness in their children. By ignoring the slightest symptom of nervous or mental strain, you may condemn your child to life-long invalidism. If any member of your family complains of headaches, fear of going into dark places, give them that wonderful tonic, "Ferrozone." Strength of body and mind, hardy nerves, ability to study with comfort, all the attributes of health quickly follow the use of Ferrozone. It establishes strength, colour, endurance, vim — does this by filling the whole system with nourishment and tissue-forming materials.

It's because we know the enormous good that Ferrozone will do, because we are sure every child and even grown folks, will be permanently benefitted, that we urge you to give it a trial. All dealers sell Ferrozone -in 50c. boxes, six for $2.50, or direct by mail from The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

A Hygiene Note.

When a child begins with a cold isolate it from the other children in the house and do not let it attend school until it is better. Not only is a cold contagious in itself, but in children a cold is often the beginning of a contagious disease, and it is not fair to other children to let them come in contact with a cold until it is proved to be nothing serious.

There is no better gargle or nose douche for a beginning inflammation than salt and water. Of course the solution must be weaker for the nose. Nose douches should be taken only on a doctor's advice, as the membrane of the nose is very delicate and the treatment must necessarily vary with the child. Never let the child go out of doors after spraying nose and throat.

Roxbury Cakes.

One-fourth cupful of butter, one-half cupful sour milk, one teaspoonful cinnamon, two eggs, one-half cupful of raisins, one-half cupful brown sugar, one-half cupful corn sirup, one and one-half cupfuls flour, one teaspoonful of soda, one-half cupful English walnuts.

Cream butter, add sugar and beaten egg yolks. Mix and sift dry ingredients and add to first mixture alternately with the corn sirup and the sour milk. Add egg whites beaten dry, chopped raisins and nuts. Bake in small pans. This will make eighteen to twenty little cakes.

WHOOPING COUGH.

Mrs. Charles Lovell, Agassiz, B.C., writes: "Seven of our nine children had whooping cough the same winter, and we attribute their cure to Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. We always have it in the house, and recommend it as the king of all medicines. I was formerly entirely cured of protruding piles by using Dr. Chase's Ointment."

BURMA'S COLOSSAL BUDDHA

This Statue Is Said to Be the Largest In the World.

The largest monument of the human form existing in the east today, if not in the world, is the great reclining statue of Buddha near Pegu, in Burma, around which the government erected a building with lattice steel pillars to protect it from the elements. This colossus was brought to light during the construction of the railway that runs northeast from Rangoon to Mandalay.

While the permanent way was being banked up to protect the lines from occasional floods the engineer in charge required for the purpose of his work a harder ballast than the alluvial deposit over which the line was running could give him. Less than a mile away was a tree clad mound, and here, it was thought, suitable material might be found. The task of clearing away some of the trees took but an hour or so, and then shafts were sunk to find the needed stone. Before the diggers had gone down more than a yard they struck an enormous and fairly preserved figure of Gautama.

In actual length the statue is 180 feet and fifty feet high at the shoulder. The figure and its pedestal are of brick, covered with plaster. Since its discovery the plaster has been removed and painted over, the box at the head and the finger nails gilded and the headdress decorated with glass jewels. The statue is thought to be about 500 years old, but no one knows its history, no reference whatever being made to it in Burmese legends or traditions.—Wide World Magazine.

One Way Out.

Despite his illiteracy Mose Belt has gathered quite a competency from his whitewashing and kalsomining trade.

"Sign your name here, Mose."

"Look heah," said Mose, with offended dignity, "I doesn't sign mah name, suh. I's a business man, suh an' has no time for dem trifling details. I always dictates mah name, suh."

Equality.

"No such thing as stuckuppishness about her," says the loyal servitor, defending his mistress against the criticisms of the acquaintance who is inveighing against class discrimination and the attitude of the wealthy toward the working element.

"Well, but don't she order you around?"

"Sure she does! She bawls me out just the same as what she does her husband. She don't make no difference between me an' him even."

THE DRESSY FROCK.

How Fussiness May Be Subdued to Good Silhouette After All.

PICTURESQUE MODEL.

Fashioned of white net ruffles and a scant piece of figured crepe de chine, cornflower blue and white, this pretty spring gown may be easily copied. The seven ruffles are edged with narrow lace, and the peplum of the waist folds into an elongated drape forming a front panel. A bertha collar finishes the surplice, which takes a crushed girdle of cornflower blue taffeta.

TABLE LINEN.

Hints About the Keeping of Your Favorite Fad.

"Table linen must be properly handled in the laundry if you would have it retain its freshness," says Marie. Strong bleaches must never be used on fine table linens. Of course the linen is often badly spotted and needs to be cleaned in some way, but boiling water removes coffee spots, cold water removes cocoa stains and sunshine removes many more spots. When stronger agents must be used they should be applied and removed by intelligent hands.

They should be allowed to remain on the spots just long enough to eradicate them and then rinsed thoroughly out with clear water, for if they remain on too long they remove not only spots, but pieces of the linen.

For fruit stains pour boiling water through them while the stains are damp, if possible. If they dry on rub them with lard and put through the usual washing process. Some old fashioned housewives have their table linen dipped in buttermilk to whiten it. The linen is allowed to remain in the buttermilk for a day or two, if necessary, and is then thoroughly rinsed in cool, clear water and later in warm water.

Always dry linen out of doors in the sunshine. If possible have a little bleaching green of grass. Table linen must be quite damp when it is ironed, and it must be ironed until it is perfectly dry. Napkins should be ironed on both sides and a tablecloth, too, to give it the best appearance.

Physical Fitness Woman's Big Asset.

No woman nowadays can afford not to be well.

Ill health—even mere "delicacy," with no positive manifestation of disease—costs too much. There is the obvious, direct expense of doctors' bills and medicines. But indirectly you pay a much higher price for not being well. If you are a wage earner your lost time and energy, due to a lack of physical strength, must also be computed in lost dollars.

Poor health will interfere constantly with your social good times. It will mar whatever beauty you may possess sooner than any other cause. If you are a wife and mother illness and weakness will interfere with your duties and the comfort of those dear to you. Whatever your station in life you will find that the role of invalid and weakling is no longer fashionable or popular. For awhile you will have the sympathy of your friends, but the best of them will be bored with you sooner or later. They can't help it. A worship of physical fitness is in the air, and instead of whining and pitying yourself you must bend all your energies to the task of becoming well.

Cinnamon Rolls.

When it is desired to mold bread for baking take one loaf on a molding board, roll out to nearly a quarter of an inch thick, spread quickly with butter, brown sugar, white sugar and cinnamon. Roll up and cut off one and a half inch pieces. Have considerable melted fat in a dripping pan and dip the top of each piece into the fat. Allow them to rise until after the rest of the bread is baked, so that the rolls may be very light. They should be baked from twenty minutes to half an hour.

The grounds of the Canadian National Exhibition are owned by the City of Toronto, but the Exhibition is carried on by a board of 25 directors, 5 of whom represent the city.

COLD STORAGE EGGS MUST BE MARKED.

State Food Department Issues Warning to Dealers.

ALBANY, July 25.—Commissioner John J. Dillon, of the State Department of Foods and Markets, has sent out instructions and rules to dealers holding that after September 1 all eggs that come from cold storage must be so marked on their shells. In his warning Commissioner Dillion says:

"Every person or persons, corporation or corporations, engaged in the business of jobbing, wholesaling or retailing eggs, shall, before offering or exposing for sale any eggs which have at any time been stored in a cold storage warehouse . . . brand, stamp or mark on the shell of each, the words 'cold storage' or their equivalent, in plain letters at least one-eighth inch high; provided such eggs do not already bear such brand, stamp or mark; and provided further that eggs may be sold in the original unbroken packages in which they have been received from such cold storage without being so branded, stamped or marked."

To extiguish flames from gasoline or petroleum pour milk over them, and they will be put out immediately, for the milk forms an emulsion with the oil, and so prevents the fire from spreading.

We can hardly hate anyone that we know.—Hazlitt.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Shrewd Ruse

By EVERETT P. CLARKE

I am a railroad conductor. We conductors see so many rackets worked by passengers to avoid paying fare that we become pretty sharp. I thought no one could put up a job on me of any kind that I wouldn't see through.

One day a man wearing a sheriff's badge got aboard my train with a handcuffed prisoner. Don't conclude from what I have said that I was beaten out of a fare. The sheriff paid for both himself and his prisoner. They sat in the same seat, and the prisoner was handcuffed, though the sheriff did not keep a hold on the bracelet.

After awhile on going through the train for tickets I noticed that the sheriff was nodding. The next time I went through he was sound asleep. It did not seem to me, however, that his prisoner could get away from him, for the sheriff was sitting on the outside seat, and the man couldn't very well get away from him without awakening him.

But when I went through the train a third time I noticed that the back of the next seat in front of these two men had been turned, so that if any one sat in it he would ride backward. No one sat there, for a seat facing a man in handcuffs was not desirable.

It struck me that the prisoner was preparing for an escape. Should I waken the sheriff and caution him? I saw no reason why I should do so. He, not I, was responsible for his prisoner. Besides, I defy any person to avoid sympathizing with another in an attempt to recover his liberty.

The men were sitting in a very convenient place for the prisoner to get away. They were in the last car of the train not far from the rear door. There were not half a dozen persons in the car. The train was a local, stopping at every station.

When we reached Falkland I was in the baggage car. I got out on to the platform, according to the rule for conductors, took account of what passengers boarded the train, signaled the conductor to pull out, got aboard at the front door of the first passenger car and went through taking tickets. When I came to the last car there was the sheriff, snoring; the seat beside him was vacant, and the rear door was wide open. The prisoner had gone.

I now thought it time to awaken the sheriff and inform him of his loss. He roused himself, looked wildly about him and seeing what had happened gave me a cursing for not having awakened him before. We conductors are used to being blamed and don't mind it. At any rate, we are expected to keep our tempers when abused. The man insisted on my backing the train to Falkland, which, of course, I refused to do, though I offered to stop so that he might get off. He concluded, however, to go on to the next station.

When he left me he gave me another cursing, declaring that he would bring an action against me for favoring the escape of his prisoner by not having awakened him while he slept and not returning him to the station where his man had lit out. But I knew that this was bluff; he was not likely to bring out my testimony as to how his prisoner had escaped through his own negligence.

At the same time I regretted that I had not wakened him when I saw him slumbering. The man he had in charge was doubtless one who preyed on society, and it was my duty as a citizen if not as a railroad official to do anything in my power to prevent his future depredations. My conscience is not overtough, and it seemed to me that by aiding a criminal to escape I had abetted his crimes.

On the return trip on reaching Falkland I learned that the prisoner had got off on the side of the car opposite the station, which accounts for my not having seen him. When the train had moved on he appealed to several men loitering on the platform to help him off with his bracelets, which they did. The last seen of him he was departing with one of the men who had assisted him.

Some months after this while taking tickets on my train I stopped before a well dressed man whose face was familiar to me.

"You don't remember me, conductor, do you?" he said.

"No, I don't."

"I'm the man from whom a prisoner escaped on your train some time ago." I recognized him.

"That business," he went on, "was a game we put up on you. I was no sheriff, and he was no prisoner. We were detectives bent on getting in with a gang of train robbers who were hiding near Falkland and concocted that scheme to gain their confidence. My colleague succeeded in becoming one of them long enough to arrange for their arrest, and on his information we bagged them all," he concluded. "It was one of the biggest hauls we ever made, both of men and swag. They had with them $20,000 in currency that they were planning to get away with."

"But how did your man get in with them?" I asked.

"They were keeping watch on the passing trains, expecting one of their number who was to take away the funds. Several of them were at the station when my confederate escaped me. A man handcuffed was an object of interest to them. He told them of his good luck, and they took him in at once."

Ques.: "What does your pay-roll amount to?"

Ans.: "Oh, say $10,000 a month."

Ques.: "Quite a wad. Of course you insure it?"

Ans.: "Insure it? What's the idea Frank?"

Ques.: "Well—you see, you're paying out $120,000 a year. Now, you insure your building, equipment, stock, etc., why not insure your pay-roll, against loss—to you."

Ans.: "Ask me something easy. What's the point and what's the cost?"

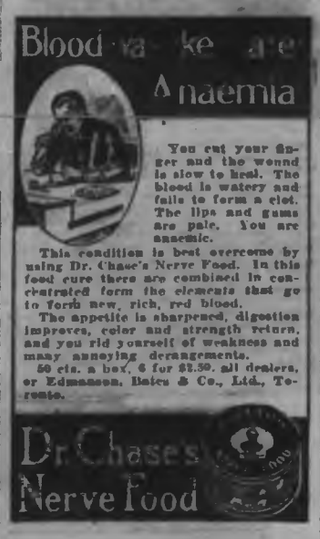
Ques.: "The point is that your pay-roll represents your purchase of the greatest of all raw materials—WORKING TIME. Its subject to loss every day—four times a day—or every time your employees come in and go out of your plant."

Ans.: "Yes, but I employ a time-keeper."

Ques.: "Of course you do. But he's human. Who checks your time-keeper? And who checks the man who checks him? You need a cold-blooded machine for that job—so there will be no favorites or no mistakes."

Ans.: "There isn't any such machine."

Ques.: "Isn't there? Probably your keenest competitor to-day is using it and is just that much ahead of you. And it will cost you perhaps $3 a month to use it. I mean the International Time Recorder. It's the cheapest and best pay-roll insurance you can buy. Gives you printed, unchangeable records, made under lock and key, that become your weekly pay-sheets. If you want real, inside facts and figures on the system exactly suited to your business write International Time Recording Co., corner McGill and Notre Dame streets, Montreal, or to their Head Office, Anderson Street, Toronto, for latest folders and prices."



You cut your finger and the wound is slow to heal. The blood is watery and fails to form a clot. The lips and gums are pale. You are anaemic.

This condition is best overcome by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. In this food cure there are combined in concentrated form the elements that go to form new, rich, red blood.

The appetite is sharpened, digestion improves, color and strength return, and you rid yourself of weakness and many annoying derangements.

A WEATHER MYTH

The Idea That the Old Fashioned Winter Was a Fury.

FAMOUS FROSTS WERE RARE.

Records Show That Remarkable Snowstorms and Long Seasons of Hard Freezing Were Not All the Rule. Testimony of Pepys and Evelyn.

Perhaps the greatest of weather myths is the legend of the "old fashioned winter"—that prolonged season of ice and snow which is supposed to have held the land in its grip every year. So firmly has this idea been held for many years that it came as a shock when meteorologists first began to delve into the records of the past and prove its inaccuracy.

There can be no doubt that Charles Dickens, Washington Irving, artists who depicted winter scenes, and, in a later era, the Christmas number and the Christmas card are mainly responsible for the belief that up to about half a century ago the British winters were always extremely severe.

Such records as we possess prove the fallacy of the idea. No records of the weather were kept up to about fifty or sixty years ago, so that we have to rely on the statements of private diaries and old family records, and therefore it takes a lot of research to obtain any data at all.

In olden times no one troubled to make note of average weather, for writing was an art possessed only by few, and writing materials were hard to obtain; hence it is that mention is made only of something unusual, some abnormally mild winter or heavy fall of snow or prolonged frosts.

And when all is said there are comparatively few of the latter, although they were likely to be recorded, while the milder ones would be passed over. A few years ago there were published in France some notes concerning very mild winters in early times. Gregory of Tours tells us that 584 was exceptionally mild, as were the winters of 908, 934, 944 and 1007, when influenza was rife.

Another mild season occurred in 1229, when the birds are said to have hatched their young by February, while the weather journal of the Rev. William Merle, which is in the Bodleian library at Oxford, shows us that during the middle of the fourteenth century the weather was very much as it is now and that mild winters were not uncommon.

There were one or two mild winters during the next hundred years, the most notable one being that of 1495, when barley and corn were in the ear at the end of January. Writings of the sixteenth century have similar testimony to offer, the one or two exceptions only going to prove the rule because they aroused so much comment.

Pepys and Evelyn come to our aid from the middle to the end of the seventeenth century and prove conclusively that the old fashioned winter is a myth. The dairies of these famous writers have been analyzed, and as a result it is found that falls of snow are mentioned only thirteen times over nearly sixty years, while exceptionally heavy storms are referred to only three times.

In the same period there were but six prolonged frosts, and apparently only the famous one of 1683-4 and another a few years later were so severe as the modern ones of 1890-1 and 1895. In January, 1661, Pepys comments on the mild winter, and in December of the following year he notes that he awoke to find the roofs covered with snow, which he had not seen for three years.

Evelyn has the same story to tell—a few hard winters and many mild ones. Such years were 1686-7, Dec. 29, "Little appearance of winter as yet," and 1692-3, Feb. 4, "Hitherto an exceedingly mild winter—an extraordinarily dry and warm season, without frost and like a new spring, such as has not been known for many years."

Here and there we come across references to the weather which are just like the letters written to modern newspapers informing readers that "roses and primroses were in bloom in my garden on Christmas day." Gilbert White's record of the weather between 1768 and 1798 helps to end the myth, for the same number of years at the present day would show pretty much the same sort of weather, as thirteen of the Decembers were mild and wet.

There were mild winters in the beginning of the nineteenth century, as well as one or two severe ones, so that we may rest assured that the "old fashioned winter" was just like the new fashioned ones.—Ernest C. Pulbrook in London Family Herald.

Copper Dishcloth.

Among the cleaning agents there are two recent additions to the list that are well worth while. One is the copper wire dishcloth, which comes in three sizes, for the cleaning of pots and pans and is much more effective than the chain cloths, as it does not chip or crack the enamel. The other is steel wool; this comes in a roll, and a little bit pulled off, which has the feeling of a bunch of horsehair and looks not unlike it, will clean enamel ware perfectly simply by rubbing it over the surface. It may also be used for brasses and glassware. Use with it a non-alkali soap, if any, and always rinse the article and polish with a dry cloth after it is cleaned.

His Profession.

She (pointing to a noted blood specialist)—Who is that distinguished looking man? He—Oh, that's only a circulation manager.

8 BOXES CURED PSORIASIS

Mrs. Nettie Massey, Comscon, Ont., writes: "Three doctors described my trouble as psoriasis, and one said could never be cured. The disease spread all over me, even on my face and head, and the itching and burning was hard to bear. I used eight boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment and am entirely cured—not a sore to be seen. I can hardly praise this Ointment enough."

CURE YOUR BAD COUGH BY BREATHING "CATARRHOZONE"

You may dislike taking medicine, but coughs are best cured without medicine. The modern treatment is "Catarrhozone" — it isn't a drug—it's a healing vapor full of pine essences and healing balsams. It spreads over the surfaces that are weak and sore from coughing. Every spot that is congested is healed—irritation is soothed away, phlegm and secretions are cleaned out, and all symptoms of cold and Catarrh are cured. Nothing so quick, so sure, so pleasant, as Catarrhozone. Beware of dangerous substitutes meant to deceive you for genuine Catarrhozone. All dealers sell Catarrhozone, large size which lasts two months, price, $1.00; small size, 50c; sample size, 25c.

MINSTRELS OF TRIPOLI.

Mysterious Musicians Who Flit From Place to Place at All Hours.

The strange music and mysterious musicians heard and seen in Tripoli are described by Mrs. Mabel L. Todd in her book, "Tripoli the Mysterious:"

"The children are possessed of wonderful mental quickness. They acquire languages without effort, and the street urchins use easily French, Italian and all the languages that are current in their narrow streets. The strange music of the city, too—the weird chants, the cymbals, flageolets and queer stringed instruments—deeply impresses the American visitor.

"Sometimes at dawn, when roofs and minarets were dazzlingly white against the sapphire sky, while yet the labyrinthine streets at the bottoms of stucco canyons lay in twilight gray, strange men from the desert would stalk by, making uncanny music.

"One of them, very tall and blacker than most, was dressed in a low necked, short sleeved garment, greatly abbreviated as to skirts, playing melodies in a minor mode unknown to the west, and his stride was full of a dignity well nigh appalling.

"The instrument slightly resembled a Scotch bagpipe decorated with barbaric strings of shells and beads, an inflated skin with a primitive mouthpiece and at the opposite end two pointed projections like horns. His companion beat upon a curious little tomtom and now and then sang a bloodcurdling chant.

"Black boys followed, jumped, shouted, danced like wild creatures, excited beyond all bounds by this oddly compelling music as the rhythm penetrated and seized their imagination. Although these men of mystery generally passed about sunrise, they sometimes went by in the night. Once or twice the weird performance took place about 2 o'clock in the morning. The minstrels always walked with peculiar swiftness, intent upon the serious business in hand."

Chinese Typewriters.

A Chinese typewriter is a wonderful contrivance. It has 4,200 characters. It has only three keys. It can make 50,000 letters or characters by combinations of the basic 4,200. To write a letter you turn a cylinder upon which are the 4,200 characters until the right one comes opposite the keyboard of the guide on another cylinder. After striking the printing key, just as on an American machine, you begin a still hunt for the next character which you are to print, and so on while reason lasts.—Christian Herald.

Pleasing Superiority.

"Why are there so many old jokes on the stage?"

"Oh, they go good. That is due to the feeling of superiority produced by the fact that you know the answer, while the actor gink who is being told the joke apparently does not."

Strategy.

Hub—I told Bobsum that we might drop in on them tonight. Wife—Oh, fudge! You know I don't want to visit those people, and I can't see why you do. Hub—I don't. I told him that, so that we can stay at home tonight without fear of having them drop in on us.

Fully Covered.

As he crawled out of the wreck of his auto a solicitous friend asked, "Are you covered?"

"Yes," he said sadly, "with mud, blood, chagrin and insurance. Is that enough?"

LAYING A SPECTER.

A Filmy Blue Light and Some Daring Japanese Police.

In the village of Hase, near Kanzaki, at the end of the Rokosan range, says the Kobe Yushin, rumors were set afloat not long ago that in the small hours of the morning a phantom could be seen at the Miyama pass, where some time ago a murder was committed by robbers. The ghost, whenever he caught sight of a lonely traveler, would attempt to stop him, as if he had something important to say. People reported having seen a filmy blue light hovering in their path. In the whole village no one dared thereafter to walk that way after dark.

The rumor was laughed at by the skeptical police, but late one night a number of officers were instructed to patrol the haunted pass in the hope of bringing relief to the tortured minds of the timid by proving that there was no ghost or, should he be met, putting him under arrest. Every half hour after midnight a different policeman was to traverse the pass. Up to half past 2 nothing happened. Then one of them saw the blue light in front of him. He blew his whistle and ran—back to the police station. The others also ran—in the same direction.

When morning came the whole countryside joined the police in making search for the ghost. What they found near the scene of the blue light was a human skeleton in a long disused lime kiln. The local scientist declared that the light was a phosphorescence from the poor neglected bones, which were thereupon interred with full Buddhist ceremony at Kase, and the people as far as Kanzaki breathe easier.

Stuck to His Rule.

He had just been discharged from the service, owing to wounds, and thought to raise a few pounds by writing his reminiscences of twelve months' fighting. Having completed the manuscript while in hospital, he offered it to a publisher for £100. It was a very small volume, and such a price made the publisher raise his eyes in surprise and inquire the reasons for such a demand. "My dear sir," replied the author, "it has been a point of honor with me, as a soldier, always to sell my life as dearly as possible."—London Chronicle.

It is his whole life, not a few incidents of it, that proves the man.—Bovee.

Hopes Women Will Adopt This Habit As Well As Men

Glass of hot water each morning helps us look and feel clean, sweet, fresh.

Happy, bright, alert—vigorous and vivacious—a good clear skin; a natural, rosy complexion and freedom from illness are assured only by clean, healthy blood. If only every woman and likewise every man could realize the wonders of the morning inside bath, what a gratifying change would take place.

Instead of the thousands of sickly, anaemic-looking men, women and girls with pasty or muddy complexions; instead of the multitudes of "nerve wrecks," "rundowns," "brain fags" and pessimists we should see a virile, optimistic throng of rosy-cheeked people everywhere.

An inside bath is had by drinking each morning before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of lime stone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste sour fermentations and poisons, thus cleansing sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Those subject to sick headache, biliousness, nasty breath, rheumatism, colds, and particularly those who have a pallid, sallow complexion and who are constipated very often, are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store which will cost but a trifle but is sufficient to demonstrate the quick and remarkable change in both health and appearance awaiting those who practice internal sanitation. We must remember that inside cleanliness is more important than outside, because the skin does not absorb impurities to contaminate the blood, while the pores in the thirty feet of bowels do.

THIS PLANT IS A THIEF.

Dodder Steals All the Digested Food of Its Clover Neighbors.

Possibly he's too lazy to feed himself, or it may be that he came from a family of criminals and can't overcome his heredity. At any rate, he's a robber, a thief and a plunderer. None of these names is too severe, and if you doubt it ask the farmer, who knows him for the damage he does every year to the clover and alfalfa crops. The plant is the dodder.

Perhaps we can forgive the dodder for not preparing his own food, for he has nothing to prepare it with. Nearly all plants have chlorophyll, the substance which makes plants green and digests the food which they take from the ground and the air. The dodder has no chlorophyll.

So it has to turn robber to live. After the seed springs from the ground the dodder vine reaches out until it touches some other plant, clover, for example. It attaches itself to the clover stem by its tiny rootlets and begins to eat the food which the clover has taken and digested.

After awhile the root withers and dies, and the vine keeps reaching out for more victims, binding them together with its tiny threads. You probably have seen the small, pale, bell shaped flowers climbing over a field of clover.

Once dodder gets a hold in a clover field the farmer's only escape is to cut clover and dodder alike and burn the crop. And the farmer believes this death none too horrible for the little robber vine.

Tavern Heroes.

The Marquis of Granby bears a title that swings from many a tavern signboard all England over. London alone has some half a dozen. Yet this popular soldier, who commanded England's troops in Germany during the Seven Years' war, was the target of some of "Junius'" most bitter invective. The secret of his popularity lay in the fact that Granby was always a soldier's general who not only led them well in the fight, but also cared for their comfort in the camp. The first inn to bear the marquis' head as a sign is said to have been opened by one of his own guardsmen at Hounslow. Apart from Wellington and Nelson, the marquis comes easily first among England's tavern heroes.—London Chronicle.

The Spanish Moors.

When the people of the rest of Europe were little better than barbarians the Spanish Moors were in the midst of a splendid culture. As early as the tenth century this country was the source of learning for all Europe. Their libraries, schools, arts, sciences, luxurious refinements and all round material and intellectual advancement differentiated them from the rest of Europe as clearly as ancient Greece was from the peoples that surrounded it.

King Alfred's Bugle.

The most interesting of all bugles is the famous "blowing stone," first used by Alfred the Great to signal his troops on the field of Ashdown. It is in the historic Vale of the White Horse, in Berkshire, England, and is a mass of sandstone so curiously pierced with holes that when blown it emits a loud, clear call. The sound travels over the green meadows, through the woods of the river Ock, echoing among the White Horse hills and down to King Alfred's camp on the southern slope and back to Wayland Smith's cave, where the smith lived, whom no one ever saw, who shod the travelers' horses left at his door.—London Spectator.

Guaranteed.

"Oh, yes, sir," replied the attentive but inexperienced waiter reassuringly. "They were taken out of the incubator this very morning."

ROLL OF HONOR

Several thousand officers and employees of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company enlisted for active military duty with the Canadian Expeditionary Forces, and the majority of them are now in Europe, bravely battling for Canada and the Empire.

As particulars of Army Reservists are not available, these lists of those who have given up their lives for their country or been wounded in action are necessarily incomplete, and do not therefore indicate fully the extent to which the Company's officers and employees have participated in the great struggle.

VICTORIA FARMERS' MOTOR OUTING PROVED MOST SUCCESSFUL EVENT

LINDSAY, July 27.—The second annual farmers' motor excursion from Victoria County held on July 13, 14, and 15, was a very enjoyable and profitable event. Five car loads of farmers, some of whom were accompanied by their wives, made up the party. Cars entered were owned respectively by the following parties: Messrs. Geo. Bagshaw, D. W. Terrill, Leslie Webster, Geo. Murphy, and the Department of Agriculture.

The trip was taken through the Counties of Peterborough, Hastings, Prince Edward, Northumberland and Durham. These counties are given over for the most part to dairying, and fruit growing as the chief lines of farming, beef cattle and sheep being conspicuous only by their absence. Holstein cattle seem to be the favourite dairy breed, though in a few localities the Ayrshire is popular. Calls were made during the three days at Jos. O'Reilly's, Peterborough; G. A. Brethen's, Norwood; B. E. Hagerman's, Harold; Mr. Foster and Sons, Wellington, F. R. Mallory's, Frankford, and D. B. Tracey's, Cobourg. Most of these men have country-wide reputations as breeders of Holstein cattle. At A. D. Foster's the party was given a demonstration in mechanical milking. Mr. Foster possesses a three unit Hinman machine, which is run by a one and one-half horse power gasoline engine. A cream separator is also operated by the same power. With this outfit one man can milk from ten to twenty cows an hour, and do the separating at the same time.

The night of the first day was spent in Belleville, and the whole of the following day in Prince Edward County. This county boasts that it produces a larger return per capita than any other county in the province. Among its products are one half of Canada's canned goods, and an immense quantity of fruit, cheese, etc. Another thing that the county is noted for is its splendid roads. These are built and maintained under what is known as the county road system, which has been in operation for about eight years. Most of the main roads are in excellent shape, and even the side roads are better than are usually seen.

Natural sights seen in the country were the "Lake on the mountain," 180 feet above the Bay of Quinte, and so near to it that a stone could almost be thrown from one into the other. It has no known source of supply, and has never been fathomed. Its bottom is supposed to be deeper than the Bay of Quinte. A run was also made to the sand banks near Bloomfield. These cover an area of several hundred acres, and are gradually moving inland, covering everything in their path to a depth in some places of fifty or sixty feet.

During the whole day in Prince Edward County the party was honored by the presence of County Warden Purtelle, and District Representative A. P. MacVannel of the Department of Agriculture.

The return journey was made via the Kingston Road, much of which is still operated by private companies under the old-fashioned toll-gate system. A relic of barbarism, one of the party called it. Three of these gates were passed between Brighton and Port Hope. It was well on into the night before the party returned to Lindsay, tired out, but having enjoyed the trip immensely.

The object of these trips is to provide an outing for farmers and their wives; to visit successful farmers, see their stock, and learn as much as possible of their methods; and to compare home conditions with those found in other localities. Several of the party were heard to remark that they had not seen any district that they liked better than their home locality. After all, distant pastures are not always as green as they look.

The trip was planned by A. A. Knight of the Department of Agriculture, Lindsay, and W. G. Orvis of the Farm and Dairy staff, Peterborough.

McCLURE KEPT ON SHIP

United States Publisher Not Allowed to Land in England.

LONDON, July 26.—S. S. McClure, the American publisher, has been held up by the British authorities at Liverpool. He arrived there on board the American liner Philadelphia, but was informed by the officials that for the present he would not be allowed to land.

Mr. McClure remains on board the liner pending the result of official enquiries now under way, but it was reported yesterday that he would be allowed to come ashore within a few hours.

NEW YORK, July 26.—Friends of S. S. McClure expressed no surprise yesterday when informed of the news that the American had been held up at Liverpool. He was recently in Germany and subsequently wrote a number of articles of a pro-German nature.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S THREE GORED SKIRT.

By Anabel Worthington.

According to the reputation that sport clothes have made this season, no woman will want to risk here—in fashion circles—by not having in her wardrobe one garment that can be correctly classed as a sports model.

The most serviceable, perhaps, is the sport skirt. It is being worn by the woman who takes no part in active games or graceful athletics; she may be merely a spectator, or wear the skirt for walking, or on other occasions—not formal—just because it is stylish and looks well on her. Of course, it is to be rich in color. A pretty one in an exclusive shop, in blue and white is Jers, gave an idea as to the direction in which one may go for material for this garment. Poongee is also used for such model.

In the illustration No. 7,826 we show a skirt that is fascinating in the awning stripes of which we hear so much. It is in three gores, built on a slightly raised waist line. The outside separate belt is attractive and the pocket in each front gore is deserving of all the enthusiasm one can show in the direction of pockets.

The pattern of skirt No. 7,826 is cut in sizes 24-32 inches waist measure. To make in size 24 will require 3¾ yards of 36 inch material, with ½ yard contrasting goods.

You may obtain the pattern by sending to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

popular. This is cut loose, belted, short sleeved, while shapely in lines. A bit of embroidery finishes the buttoned front, the collar edge and the cuffs.

For Spring Brides.

A dainty and acceptable gift to tuck into the bride's traveling bag as a little surprise to her when her destination is reached is a boudoir set of cap and ribbon slippers. The whole output may be folded very small in its tissue paper wrapping and will take up scarcely any room at all in the bag—not as much as the handful of rice which is sometimes slipped in by a mischievous bridesmaid. The cap is an ordinary boudoir cap of white point d'esprit, filled with fine white lace and trimmed with the best quality satin ribbon in pale blue or pink shade. A bow of the ribbon is caught against the cap with a tiny rhinestone buckle.

The slippers have very flexible soles, cut from pale blue or pink goldenrod satin; two layers of satin for each sole, and a thin layer of cotton batting may be slipped between if one fancies a little thicker sole. Two inch blue or pink satin ribbon is sewed around the edge of the sole and fastened together at the back. About two inches of the ribbon are gathered along the upper edge over cord elastic to hold the slipper on the heel.

Ragged Sailors.

Materials.—Two cupfuls flour, two teaspoonfuls baking powder, one-half cupful sugar, an egg, one-half teaspoonful salt, three tablespoonfuls butter, one-half cupful chopped nuts, two-thirds cupful milk.

Directions.—Sift the flour, salt and baking powder, rub the butter in; then add sugar and nuts. Mix to a soft dough with the egg and milk, roll out thin and sprinkle with sugar. Roll up with the sugar inside, cut in slices three-quarters of an inch thick, place on a greased baking tin, brush over with beaten egg and bake about fifteen minutes.

Attractive Suits.

Every woman who can possibly afford it will invest in one of the attractive suits of pongee, poplin or silk homespun. They are a delightful combination of style and utility and, though rather high priced, are well worth the cost. They are to be had in white, cream and oyster white, tan, brown and biscuit Dutch, navy and gray blue, besides different tones of green and gray.

New It's a Book Wagon.

Now we have little wagons to use in the library. Their rubber tired wheels move noiselessly over even hardwood floors, and their top is edged by a framework high enough to hold books, while two lower shelves contain the two different sizes of the magazines of the moment. These book wagons do not take up much space in the library.

Satin For Blouses.

A new blouse of white satin shows a delightful touch of color in the lining of primrose yellow taffeta that appears in turnover points of the high collar and the jabot-like frill on the front and in the lower side of the frills that finish the long sleeves.

There will be 21 sections for field grain this year at the Canadian National Exhibition, 5 for grain in sheaves and a similar number for grain in sacks.

LINDSAY STREETS WILL BE MARKED

The following important motion was passed at a meeting of the Lindsay Town Council:

On motion of Alderman Baker and Babcock, the chairman of the police committee was instructed to have white cycles painted on the pavement at the corner of Kent and Lindsay, Kent and William, and Kent and Cambridge to assist in the regulating of traffic.

Ald. Baker gave good reasons why such should be done and the motion was carried unanimously.

SUPPLY FISH TO GERMANS

Britain Acts to Stop Practice of Dutch Fishing Fleet.

LONDON, July 26.—The Foreign Office in a statement says:

"The extent to which the Dutch fishing fleet has been engaged in furnishing supplies to Germany has for some time past been engaging the serious attention of the British Government. It is well known that about 90 per cent. of the herring and a considerable part of other fish caught by Dutch fishing vessels have been sold direct to German buyers.

"The British Government accordingly found it necessary to place a number of Dutch fishing vessels in the prize court. They also detained a further number for fishing in the prohibited area, a practice which Dutch fishermen persistently adopted notwithstanding warnings issued by their Government. The British Government has expressed a readiness to confer with a representative of the Dutch fishing interests with the object of devising means for alleviating the situation."

Summer Complaint Was So Bad He Could Not Work

DR. FOWLER'S Extract of Wild Strawberry Cured Him

Mr. Stephen H. Shaw, Fairmount, Sask., writes: "I have used Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, and must say it is a fine medicine for Summer complaint. We have so much alkali water here in the west that last harvest time I had summer complaint, and became so weak I could not work. I was advised to try "Dr. Fowler's," so got a bottle, and in a few days I was as well as ever."

"Dr. Fowler's" is the original "Wild Strawberry." It has been on the market for the past 70 years.

German Counter Attacks Expected on Somme Front

GERMANS TRANSFER FORCES FROM THE VERDUN FRONT

British Anticipate Heavy Counter Attacks on Their Advanced Positions on Somme Front--"No Events of Importance to Announce To-day" Reports General Haig ---British Are Consolidating Newly Won Positions in Preparation.

RUSSIANS CONTINUE TO ADVANCE

LONDON, July 27.—Within the next few days the British advanced lines must withstand Germany's most powerful counter-attacks since the start of the Allied offensive. The newly won positions at Pozieres from which the Teutons were forced out, will be the point of attack. This was the opinion of military observers here to-day. They pointed out the Germans have admittedly transferred large reserve forces to this salient from Verdun. Knowledge of that fact made the British success reported yesterday by General Haig all the more satisfactory, but it likewise gave notice to military experts here that the Germans feeling the menace in the British encircling movement from Pozieres westward and eastward from Hill 141, south of Thiepval, would attempt its checking with every resource of men and guns at their command. Apparently there was a lull in the infantry attacks along the British front to-day. Feverish activity in throwing up entrenchments and consolidating their gains will be necessary so that the British can successfully withstand the German counter-attacks, and until this digging in is accomplished, it is not expected that there will be another forward drive.

Tramp Steamer To Watch Deutschland

Special to The Examiner:

BALTIMORE, Md., July 27.—When the German sub-sea freighter Deutschland skims down the Patapsco for the Sapes en route home, a big British tramp steamer, the "Ardgryfe,' is due to follow her as a spy ship. A watcher on the tramp boat admitted to-day that "we plan to go out when our friend over yonder goes." He was reticent about his purposes, though he admitted that he and his Japanese crew are keeping a lookout. "Look up our record in port," he said. That record showed only that she came in light. It didn't tell where she goes from here, or whether she will dog the submarine farther than the Capes. The "Ardgryfe" carries a swarm of little brown men. They watch well. And the "Ardgryfe" wireless can tell tales if she wishes to take a chance with the American neutrality rules and the radio inspector. Such things have happened. The Deutschland was still screened to-day behind her barge protectors. The tug Timmins was ready to tow her.

Russians Gain In Spite of Elements

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PETROGRAD, July 27.—Heavy rains are impeding the progress of the Russian drive into Northern Galicia. The Styr, Stockhod and Lipa rivers are swollen over their banks, and the sticky marshes hedging the Stockhod in particular, have been rendered even more impassible. The Russian forces are battling against the elements as well as against the Teutons, but notwithstanding, are steadily forcing onward. Brody is harassed on two sides by the Russian battering ram, which is gradually crushing the resistance of General Bothm's forces. On the extreme north General Kuropatkin's forces are successfully repulsing furious assaults by General Von Hindenburg, inflicting heavy losses on the Teutonic columns.

No Event of Importance Announces Gen. Haig

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, July 27.—Hand-to-hand encounters with the Germans are reported to-day by General Sir Douglas Haig. "No event of importance" was reported by the British Commander-in-Chief. "Throughout the night," he said, "our artillery was active. We continued to press the enemy in hand-to-hand encounters at various points. Elsewhere the enemy was using gas and tear-producing shells. There was no event of importance."

Turkish Retreat is Becoming a Stampede

Special to The Examiner.

LONDON, July 27.—A despatch from Petrograd says: On the Caucasus front the Turkish retreat in in the way of becoming a stampede. Erzingan is burning. With this city in Russian hands the occupation of all Armenia, which was delayed after the capture of Hrebizond by a sudden renewal of the Turkish resistance will be accomplished in fact.

The Turks are retreating west and also southwest, apparently with the object of protecting the Bagdad railway and guarding the connections with Syria.

Will Be Stripped Of British Honours

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, July 27.—The Dukes of Albany and Cumberland, and Prince Albert of Schleswig-Holstein, will probably be stripped of all British honours and rank. Premier Asquith, speaking in the Commons to-day, said the Government proposes to advise King George to take this action against these members of the German royal families.

FIFTY ALARMS IN SIX MONTHS

Fire Loss For First Half of the Year Was Only $8,326

Fire Chief Howard's half yearly estiamte is at hand and shows that during the first half of this year there were fifty alarms sent in to, and answered by the local Fire Department. The total loss from fire during the first six months of this year is set at $8,236. This is truly a very low figure for such a large centre as this, and speaks well for the local Fire Department. In other words the damage done during the first half of the year 1916 does not equal the loss which would arise from one real fire. The report must be a source of satisfaction to the local Chief and speaks well for the activities and work of Peterborough's Fire Department.

A GREAT BILL AT THE EMPIRE

Anna Held in Madame La Presidente and a Good Comedy

The Story.—Ejected from the Hotel Boulonge after a gay party, Anna Held calmly establishes herself for the night in the home of Augustin Galipaux ,the judge issuing the order. As Mme. Galipaux has just left for Paris, this makes extremely amusing complications.

The flabbergasted magistrate's surrender to both Ann Held's threats and charms would be a story in itself, were not the true sest of "Madame La Presidente" enacted shortly afterwards in no less a place than the respected old Ministry of Justice in Paris, when the august Minister himself takes up the task of the gay soubrette's cavalier.

"Madame La Presidente" presents the world famous Anna Held in pictures for the first time.

PETERBORO' SOLDIERS ARRIVE SAFELY IN THE OLD COUNTRY

Ottawa Announces Safe Arrival at an English Port of the 93rd Peterboro' Battalion--Left Barriefield Camp Two Weeks Ago Last Night---Lt.-Col. Young's New Position ---To-day's Military News.

The official announcement from Ottawa this morning that the 93rd Peterborough Battalion, C.E.F., had arrived safely in England, brought joy to thousands of Peterborough citizens. The movements of the battalion during the past few weeks have been completely shrouded in mystery for very obvious reasons, and as usual there has been a heavy trop of rumours in regard to the 93rd. Stories of spies and submarines, of being chased back into port, of having been held there indefinitely, have all been circulated by those people who seem to have nothing to do but exercise a vivid imagination. The official announcement that the unit in which Peterborough people take so much pride has safely arrived in an English port, will set at rest all these wild stories.

Naturally The Examiner has been unable to say anything about the departure of the 93rd. Now, however, that they are on English soil, a few details may be given.

It was on July 12th, when Peterborough people were watching the huge Orange parade, that the citizen soldiers of this county made their final preparations for their journey. That evening after being addressed by Colonel (now Brigadier-General) Hemming, commandant of the camp, the gallant 93rd left Barriefield with the splendid brass band playing "Keep the Home Fires Burning." With their full equipment on the Peterborough lads looked trim and businesslike as they marched into Kingston to entrain. A huge crowd had gathered opposite the Tete du Pont Barracks to watch the departure of the 93rd. Brigadier-General Hemming was among those present while there were a few Peterborough people on hand, including His Worship Mayor Duffus, who briefly addressed the battalion, the boys of the 93rd replying to the civic speech by hearty cheers.

ON TWO TRAINS.

The 93rd travelled to the Atlantic coast on two special trains. Major Watt and Lieut. Armstrong, the assistant adjutant, with the first, and Lieut.-Col. Johnston and Captain Munro, the adjutant, with the second. The trains at times were sixty miles apart. Travelling with them were the 105th Battalion, which has also safely arrived. The 105th first train was ahead of the 93rd ,while their second train was behind the two 93rd trains. The route was through Montreal, through St. Charles and St. Lambert and then on to Chaudiere, the men getting a glimpse of the Quebec bridge in the distance. From there the route led to Riviere du Loup, where the band and battalion disentrained for a fifteen-minute route march. At Trois Pistoles, Quebec, another short stop was made, and here the boys were sorry to learn in conversation with some of the citizens, that the village had not sent any men to the front and did not intend to send any. The 93rd got their first smell of salt water at Rimouske, where they had to wait until the Ocean Limited Express passed. Later the 93rd passed the large wireless station at Newcastle, and found a more pleasant reception than at some Quebec points, being greeted with cheers and flags.

The 93rd reached their eastern destination without mishap. The commissiariat department did good service en route. Porrdge, bacon, beans and coffee for breakfast, light lunch in the middle of the day, with hot stew and pudding for supper, was the menu for all ranks during the journey to the coast. At Moncton, N.B., the battalion held another route march to the delight of the citizens of the New Brunswick town. Everything went smoothly at the point of embarkation, and the 93rd sailed on scheduled time, and as announced to-day are now safe in England.

FAREWELL MESSAGE.

At the time of the departure The Examiner received a number of farewell messages which it was deemed unsafe to publish just then. There is no harm, however, in giving them now. One was from Major Davidson, chaplain of the 93rd, giving farewell greetings to The Examiner and to the citizens generally.

A few lines of farewell from the men of the 93rd Band. We are on our way to ———. Everything O.K. We had our first route march at Riviere du Loup, were we disentrained for fifteen minutes. Good luck and best wishes from all. 93rd BAND.

We really must thank you and The Examiner staff, who have treated us so kindly and looked after our interests. We will always eagerly wait to hear from you and appreciate the news very much.

In saying good-bye, just one word—get after the slackers and make them come along with the next battalion which we believe is forming. After the fun and sight-seeing we have seen only this far, they must be sorry that they did not take the chance to come with us.

Best wishes from all the Orderly Room Staff.

200 "Y" Men in Canadian Camps.

While forty men have been sent overseas already by the Y.M.C.A. to serve Canadian soldiers in Flanders and in England the heavy demands of the camps in Canada are being met. At Borden Camp, while the equipment is not yet complete, fifty men are on hand looking after the welfare of the 30,000 men in camp. There are two canteen tents, each 50 by 100 feet; a big meeting tent for entertainments and services, 50 by 150 feet; four correspondence tents, 40

A VERITABLE FOR RESS

LONDON, July 26.—The British have now won complete control of Pozieres, the last houses which the Germans had succeeded in retaining in the ruined village carried in night-fighting.

The capture of Pozieres is one of the most important successes yet won in the British offensive. The village stands on high ground, dominating a great sweep of the plateau, over which the battle of the last three weeks has been fought. It gives General Haig artillery command of the new German positions to the eastward.

A VERITABLE FORTRESS.

The village has been converted into a veritable fortress. Each house bristled with machine guns and each road was filled with barricades from which a terrific fire was directed on the British and Australian troops. Every house and barn presented a separate obstacle and each was won after a battle at close qurters, in which the grenade and bayonet fighting played the principal part. The losses on both sides were heavy.

The German General Staff regarded the possession of Pozieres of such importance that they even brought reinforcements from troops which had been fighting in the Verdun sector, and there held tenaciously to part of the village until driven out or captured in the hand-to-hand fighting.

PRESS THIEPVAL SALIENT.

Pressure is now being brought to bear against the Thiepval salient of the Germans. Some of the strongest fire of the day was directed against this wedge, which the Teutons have succeeded in retaining, and its early withdrawal is expected. The French, south of the Somme, have further straightened their front by the capture of groups of fortified houses in the Estress sector. A number of cannon have been taken, according to the report of the War Office at Paris.

On the main battle front in Picardy to-day unfavorable weather hindered operations to such an extent that only local actions were fought. There were sharp artillery exchanges at many points, however.

FOE RUSHES REINFORCEMENTS.

Germany has sealed the Belgian frontier, according to despatches to-night from Amsterdam. She is pouring great masses of troops into the west, and the frontier has been closed as a precaution against any of their movements becoming known.

"The German army is excited, realizing that the crucial stage of the war has arrived," says a Central News telegram from Holland. "Belgians are not allowed to leave their homes while the great troop movements are in progress."

This news received here as indicating that the Kaiser plans a counter-stroke against the French and British. It is expected to be launched either on the Somme, across the ground, where the allies are carrying on their great offensive, or perhaps farther to the west. That Germany is preparing for her final and most desperate effort in an attempt to wrest the offensive from the allies is the general belief in London.

The opinion of the military critics in London is that no positions so strong as the British are now successfully attacking will be found between Pozieres and Baupaume; otherwise, they argue, the Germans would not have risked bringing troops and guns from the Verdun sector to defend Pozieres and it is inferred from indications in the official despatches that the British are already beginning to establish themselves on both sides of the roads from Pozieres and Baupaume.

BOARD OF WORKS DECLINE TO RECOMMEND INCREASE IN WAGES

Will Close Down Work on the Outfall Sewer Rather Than Submit to Demands—Increase Was Granted a Little Over a Month Ago

THE DISCUSSION

A petition signed by the workmen on the outfall sewer asking for an increase in wages found little favour with the Board of Works committee of the City Council at a meeting held last evening. The majority of the men employed on the work are getting two dollars and fifty cents a day. Less capable men are getting two dollars and twenty-five cents. The men are asked for an increase of two and a half cents an hour. On motion of His Worship Mayor Duffus and Ald. Duncan it was decided to notify the men that the increase asked for would be the means of exceeding the appropriation for the work and if the men insist on having their wages raised the work will be shut down until such time as it can be completed within the limits of the appropriation. Similar action will taken in the case of John Thirnbeck, foreman of the work, who is seeking an increase of fifty cents a day. His present remuneration is three dollars and fifty cents a day.

Fair Treatment.

Ald. Duncan—"I think we treated these men fair about one month ago when we raised their wages. They should be content and try to help us out. I don't like the idea of them coming here and holding us up."

Ald. Saunders was of the opinion that two dollars and twenty cents a day was a pretty "skimp wage." I would rather go back twenty years and work for a dollar and a quarter a day than take two dollars and fifty cents a day. Rents are higher and it costs more to live, he added.

Ald. Weir—"The average man lives in twice as good a house now."

"You can rent a house with all modern conveniences for ten or twelve dollars a month. I am the last man to lower wages, but I think those men should be satisfied," interposed Ald. Duncan.

Will Remove Trees.

Nineteen trees in all will be removed from the grounds surrounding St. Peter's Cathedral. This will give the remaining trees a chance to develop. The removal of the trees originated with a request of the authorities at the Cathedral supplemented by the recommendation of City Engineer Parsons.

William J. Hillman, 47 Dennistoun avenue, wants two pine trees removed in front of his premises. City Engineer Parsons favoured the removal of one tree. The Engineer's recommendation was endorsed by the committee.

Mrs. Walker, 27 Aylmer street, asked for the removal of several trees in front of her property. On the recommendation of the City Engineer one tree will be removed and several others will be trimmed up.

A maple that is in the last stages of decline will be removed from in front of the residence at 623 Rubidge street. The forestry department of the city have on hand a number of minor cases that will be dealt with within the course of the next few weeks. They concern chiefly the removal of trees that are partly dead or are an obstruction to other trees or to the surrounding property.

CANADA'S CONTRIBUTIONS.

Not alone in the achievements of her soldiers on the battle lines; not alone in the fact that we have sent more than a quarter of a million of men to the war zone, with another hundred thousand on the way, Canada's share of contribution to the defence of the Empire and the promotion of the cause of human progress, consists. We have contributed much larger quantities of the materials essential to the prosecution of the war, both directly and indirectly. Canada's exports to the United Kingdom for the fiscal year ending March 31st last amounted to 463 millions of dollars, a gain of nearly a quarter of a million over the corresponding month of last year, and the exports of Canada to all parts of the Empire for the same period amounted to 494 millions, about double the amount of the previous year. Our services to the allies in this regard increased in greater ratio than to the mother country. The exports to France were ten times greater than before the war and to Italy fifteen times greater. Canada so far has no reason to be ashamed of the share she has contributed to the great struggle whose triumph is rapidly ripening on the bloody battlefields of the western front.

HOT WEATHER THOUHTFULNESS.

The tendency of our afflictions is to make us selfish—if in no other way, in our eagerness to seek relief. The hot weather creates intense and exasperating discomfort, and we all fly to the adoption of refrigerating ameliorations. The hot weather drives us to drink—cooling liquids, and to suckling ourselves with ice creams under the delusion that what cools the palate for the moment will cool the blood, in spite of the fact that the nitrogenous concomitants and chief substance of ice "cream" develops animal heat.

But we must have ice cream, and we buy most when the day is over. It is too hot to go to bed till 11 or 12 o'clock, and we go to the rooms and gossip ices, and then go home refreshed. When we drop in at, say, eleven o'clock, and while we are drinking in coolness and refreshment, do we reflect that the patient girls who serve us with a smile, have been on their hot feet since 8 o'clock in the morning, and have still to endure another hour of the hot down-town stuffiness, and then walk home through the silent but not unfrequented streets, liable to be insultingly accosted. We should be as sparing as possible of the trouble we give such overworked girls and employers should be as considerate as possible. In other employment we have short hours. Iine hours in any occupation is enough these sweltering days, and young girls who are afoot these hot days from 15 to 18 hours are certainly worthy of having their grievances authoritatively considered.

MUNICIPAL COOPERATION.

The annual convention of the Union of Canadian Municipalities will be held in the City Hall, Montreal, in August next, 21-23. The importance of this gathering cannot well be overdrawn. Such a convention provides means of exchange of ideas, founded upon the varying experience of the municipalities represented. It also provides the opportunity of the delegates learning at first hand the if the figures were tabulated, be ourmodern methods developed by practical men in actual practice.

Such a convention is of the utmost importance if its deliberations will have a beneficial bearing upon the crude fact that for some reason, there nicipalities of Canada; and one would is a lamentable amount of civic misgovernment in Canada; a lamentable waste of civic means, and waste of effort, that is not wisely and coordinately expended every year in the munprised at the enormous sums that are spent without even approximately adequate returns, in civic improvements and advantages. There must be reasons for such conditions and these reasons can best be discovered by comparisons of the lessons of experienec learned in actual administrative practice by representatives and officials of municipalities.

Limited observation is only needed to prove that among the prime reasons for civic inefficiency is lack of system, and the practice of haphazard methods. One knows that such methods cannot give the best results in any sense. If the deliberations of the convention would include a consideration of the adoption of some sort of system in civic administration, that would be easily and generally applicable, it is safe to assert that the problems of civic administration would be well on the way to satisfatcory solution.

In any event it is certain that much good must result from a conference of representatives of municipalities. The municipality that is not represented at such a conference gives evidence that it is content to struggle on in the rut of old, worn-out, discredited methods, and is content to add to the long catalogue of waste of civic effort and civic means.

Not only are the problems of routine administration urgent for consideration and solution, but there is necessity of facing the new problems that will be presented when the war is over—the problems of finding employment for returned soldiers and others and of industrial preparedness. To meet these new conditions municipalities cannot too soon and too thoroughly, and too intelligently, learn the extent of their responsibility and the best means of meeting it. Discussion and exchange of opinion will do much to strengthen municipalities to meet the responsibility that the end of the war will impose.

A SIGNIFICANT ANNIVERSARY.

Appeal is being made for some special form or forms of observation of August 4th next, the second anniversary of Britain's entering into the war. There are various ways in which this anniversary may be "celebrated." Foremost in all right-thinking minds will come the idea of gratitude to Divine Providence for the fact that at this sanguinary end of the second year if war, come the assurances of ultimate victory—whose movements are in progress to-day. It is a part of true recognition of the Divine leadership of our cause, that we should mark the day with intercessory services in our churches. There is, perhaps, a tendency, individual, national and imperial, to rely upon our own strength, to put all trust in our preparedness, and to forget our dependence for success upon Almighty God, the ruler and disposer of human affairs, whose aid is indispensable, as expressed in identical words in two Psalms—LX:11 and CVIII:12, "Give us help from trouble: for vain is the help of man."

If we believe what we believe, we shall not fail to recognize that with all our mighty vessels of war, with all our forests of big guns, with all our mountains of munitions, with all our hosts of trained soldiers, with all our strength in money, one great Power alone gives the victory—that "there is no restraint to the Lord to save by many or by few."

With all our trust in the Divine however, there is a duty to do, and we might well mark the second anniversary of the war by devoting ourselves —all of us in our individual ways—to renewing our determination to do all that in us lies—to do the plain duty before us, to do our best. We need perhaps, the stimulus of reminder. The war has lasted so long, the work has been so hard, that we may have got into "jog-trot" ways, and need to awaken ourselves. The same needs of our soldiers that stirred us to feverish activity at the beginning of the war are as acute and persistent to-day as at any time within the past two years. And more so, especially in the matter of Red Cross work—the number of Canadians engaged is greater, the fighting fiercer, and the casualties more numerous. It would be well in this work, as in all works of mercy, to make August 4th the point of a new departure in zeal and energy.

In any event, whatever form observance of the day may take, we can all regard it as the beginning of the closing stage of the war in which we shall reap the harvest of two years of strenuous preparation, and see the fruits of victory within our reach. We can regard the anniversary with encouragement. We may best appreciate our reason for encouragement by, in fancy, reversing the conditions. If Canada and the Empire and our gallant allies were in the same cornered, beset, harrassed, hemmed-in and surrounded condition, in the same exhausted condition as our enemies, we should regard the second anniversary day of the war as the day of doom. But we feel that our cause is righteous, the cause of human freedom and justice and right, and all the principles of God's Christianity, and we know that that cause is marching on triumphing and to triumph.

Conservative Journal Plays The Role of The Candid Friend

Major Gen. Sir Sam Hughes has reached the turning point in his career. His friend Allison has been condemned by the royal commission for preying upon the empire in her hour of direct need; the Ross rifle has been condemned by the British Government and virtually blacklisted as a service arm: recruits home on furlough have inflamed the public mind against Camp Borden and the militia department. Yet this is the time when the minister of militia sails over sea and a new-fangled official called the parliamentary secretary for the militia department, reigns in his stead. Surely Sir Sam is not running away, for he never turns his back on a friend or a foe. But his silence may be misinterpreted. Sir Sam should speak up.

And should not Sir Robert Borden also speak up? His government is bound to speak for the minister of militia in the latter's absence. Under the British parliamentary system, there can be no such thing as a divided executive. The government of the day is one, and all the members of the cabinet, so long as they remain members, are responsible one for the other to an unlimited extent. The cabinet is a partnership, not a limited liability corporation.

Hence the cabinet through its prime minister must speak for Hon. Mr. Cochrane; compelled, we regret to note, through indisposition to remain away indefinitely from the national capital. Does the minister of railways enjoy the confidence of his chief? And does the Borden government propose to follow the Cochrane policy of freely permitting the export of Canadian nickel? Mr. Cochrane was either quite right or he was terribly wrong. The issue is one that cannot be straddled. The government must either be for the Cochrane policy or publicly denounce and repudiate it. Time to speak up!

Then we have Conservative members of parliament, fearless defenders of public rights, who should be heard from. Do they endorse the Ross rifle, J. Wesley Allison and the export of Canadian nickel to Germany? We are almost tempted to call the roll and perhaps we should begin with Ontario, but some western papers refer to Mr. R. B. Bennett, M.P. for Calgary, as defending the Cochrane policy and to some extent condoning the unspeakable record of the nickel trust.

Mr. Bennett has been called the "Calgary Calliope," but we prefer like Cir Wilfrid Laurier to think of him as one whose eloquence compares with the crystal torrent of the Bow Ricer as it dashes from the snow capped peaks of the Rocky Mountains to the city for which he sits in parliament. Mr. Bennett should not appear too often in the role of an apologist. If he has ever visited Copper Cliff he knows how the fumes of the nickel company's furnaces destroy all vegetation for miles around and rob earth, stream and sky of their liveliness.

Let him take note that the fumes of the nickel trust in like manner will destroy the reputations of public men who might otherwise render great service to the commonwealth. He cannot afford to be hypnotized by Wallace Nesbitt, K.C., or remain longer on the brief of Solicitor General Meighen. He must get out into the open; disentangle himself from the nickel trust and get in line with the public opinion of Ontario. Upon the commanding issues now before the people, every public man must declare himself. Mr. Bennett should speak up.—Toronto World.

Hit and Miss Hot-Spell Forecasts of Weather Man

The weather predictions to-day promise us some "scattered thunderstorms, but generally fair." The thunderstorms may come or they may not. For those who are inclined to look askance at all weather predictions it may be said that under the influence of summer heat the atmosphere becomes more or less unstable. As a rule, those who watch weather records will have observed that the temperature record moves with average regularity from the west to the east. What they have in Winnipeg to-day is usually due us to-morrow. According to this general rule, yesterday should have been a comparatively cool day in Montreal, whereas it was the record hot day for three years. From the Pacific Coast to Parry Sound there has been nothing but cool weather in Canada for several days, 80 being the maximum and 36 to 42 the minimum. From Parry Sound to Quebec the mercury has soared ove 90 in the same period.

The truth is, no way has been discovered to predict ju[illegible] where summer showers will occu[illegible] Under certain conditions they are likely to occur almost anywhere at almost any time, and they are just as likely not to occur at all. Currents are apt to get started here and there and shoot up or down in the most unaccountable way. Rain comes when there is a strong rising current, for that cools the air and squeezes out the moisture in drops heavy enough to fall to the earth.

It should be remembered that the air at the earth's surface is considerably heavier than it is at, say, a mile above. This means that it is packed together at the surface, and that it is expanded in the upper atmosphere. When you pack air together, as in pumping up a rubber tube, it gets heated. When it expands it cools. Air expanding and rising loses about one degree of heat for every 180 feet, that it rises. Those who have aviated will tell you that they may leave a heated atmosphere at the earth's surface and soon reach absolute cold as they ascend. Cold air cannot carry as much moisture as warm air. As the air ascends the moisture in it begins to condense into clouds. Let the rising continue and the drops that compose the mist we call clouds may become large enough to fall as rain. Sometimes the air rises so rapidly that it carries the drops up with it so that they do not reach the earth but are broken up and taken into the atmosphere again as water vapor. Occasionally a rising current is checked and the drops it was carrying upward suddenly fall in a deluge which is popularly called a cloudburst.

At times the atmospheric movements are so strongly marked that those who essay the forecasting of weather may predict with fair confidence that they will bring rain. In the long summer stretches, however, no strong movements develop, although conditions make it probable that there will be, here and there, upshoots of air that will cause rain. As the popular saying is, "all signs fail in dry time," so the weather prophet wisely "goes easy" and tells us "generally fair and warm," and adds "perhaps local thunder showers." One old-established and well-known Canadian "farmer's almanac," year after year, placed opposite the dates from July 1 to August 1, this prediction: "About this time fair and warm but with occasional showers." That prophet never missed. — Montreal Herald.

READING, Pa., July 25.—Once "dead" at sixty years of age, and alive and well at seventy is the remarkable experience of Margaret Cunnius, formerly a resident of Reading, who lives in Sacramento, Cal. The sending of two checks from this city to Sacramento recalled the story and reminded lawyers here of the fact that Mrs. Cunnius had just rounded out a full decade of life after being legally dead for seven years.

Those checks recalled a legal fight that represented little money, but an important principle, and went to the United States Supreme Court. In this last and highest tribunal it was decided that a man or woman alive in the flesh is alive in the eyes and intent of the law, no matter what legal proceedings had been in progress prior to the "resurrection."

Margaret Cunnius, now white haired but in fair health, living in Sacramento at this time, was born and raised in Reading. In 1888 she left Reading and was reported to have married a Reading man, settling with him in the far West. He died in 1899, when for the first time in years this woman, who had gotten completely out of touch with her relatives and friends here and was supposed to be dead, was heard of again.

In the meantime her son, John, of this city, had started court proceedings under a Pennsylvania law of 1885 to have his mother legally declared dead. The proceeding was finished and the son eventually was granted the death decree and took possession of the estate.

She reappeared two years after her son had been granted letters of administration on her estate. On her behalf action was brought to recover her dower interest for the time she had been missing, and for seven years, from 1899 to 1906, the case involving its novel issue, moved upward from court to court. The Federal Supreme court finally decided that she was very much alive and the bondsmen of the administrator and the latter, himself, yielded the point. The money due from 1897 was paid her, and since 1906, a full decade, Margaret Cunnius, now seventy years old, has received her annual payments just as if she had not been dead in the eyes of the law for years.

WHY RETIRE ON NIGHTS LIKE THESE?

These are grand nights for remaining out on the friendly verandah and porch, and the family circle generally remains intact longer than the usual evening span. If there happens to be a welcome lonely breeze stealing up the street, you have to sit outside to get it within your breathing apparatus and then you don't get it all by any means.

An observant eye cast along Peterborough streets these sultry, suffocating evenings makes this fact quite evident to any one. If one of our "early to bed, early to rise" forefathers strolled along our streets close to the midnight hour, these evenings, he would indeed be shocked at the wise methods used by his 20th century children to dodge the heat and to utilize the cool hours when Old Sol has removed his rays.

Inexhorable fathers permit the "kiddies" to inhale the evening air some time longer than usual, while 'Tom' and 'Fanny' get a little longer to whisper good-bye over the house hold gate. Of course, if you have your car or gasoline craft you can dodge the inconveniences of the city's heat, but such modern toys were not made for all of us, or rather, cruel Destiny has not made them for some of us.

Kitty—"Jack told me last night that I was the prettiest girl that he had ever seen." Ethel—"Oh, that's nothing! He said the same thing to me a year ago." Kitty—"I know that; but as one grows older one's taste improves, you know."

TWO HORSES DROWNED IN THE RACEWAY OF THE LONDON STREET DAM

Mr. Robert Byers, Owner and Driver, Had a Narrow Escape From Drowning in Sixteen Feet of Water--Horses Took Fright at Locomotive and Backed in Deep Water With Disastrous Results—Wagon Recovered.

Two valuable horses were drowned in the Cereal raceway at ten o'clock this morning, while Mr. Robt. Byers of Byersville, owner of the team, came within an inch of losing his life in sixteen feet of water.

Mr. Byers and his team were proceeding north along the Cereal driveway and were passing along a strip of road which runs between the raceway and the railway track, when a big C.P.R. engine hove in sight. The two horses became suddenly terrified, and despite the efforts of the driver, Mr. Byers, they proceeded in their fright to back up with their heavy load, which immediately slid over the steep bank, dragging with it horses and driver.

Driver Escaped.

Mr. Byers was fortunate and quick enough to leap from his seat and to escape from his dangerous position, but horses and waggon disappeared in the depths of the deep raceway.

The roadway upon which Mr. Byers was proceeding, viz., the narrow strip between the bank of the raceway and the track, is a dangerous byway, but circumstances made it necessary for the driver to pass along this. Mr. Buyers was working for the Quaker Oats at the time and was drawing away the heavy debris taken from the old roof of the Quaker Oats building. The heavy nature of the load which Mr. Byers was carrying at the time made the accident all the more certain and unavoidable.

Water is Deep.

Owing to the depth of the water at the point where the accident occurred it required some time to draw the waggon and dead horses back to "terra firma." Some workmen managed to attach a chain to the tongue of the sunken waggon, and horses and load were pulled back up the bank.

In the drowning of the two horses Mr. Buyers suffers a heavy loss, but his many friends are congratulating him upon his escape from what would in all probability been a watery grave.

LEWIS STREET MAY BE PAVED

The Board of Works will not recommend the use of Tarvia on Homewood Avenue. According to the report of City Engineer Parsons, presented at last night's meeting, the cost would be prohibitive under present conditions, especially as the street is not in shape to be treated with this form of road surface. City Engineer Parsons reports that the road is too wide. Considerable grading would have to be done and a surface coat of road metal applied. It was at first proposed to use this street on which to experiment with Tarvia. Instead, the Board will recommend that the street be levelled up, and treated with a coat of good road oil.

LEWIS STREET.

The Chamberlen Estate will be asked to sanction the paving of Lewis street with concrete. It is a short street, running from Charlotte to King street. The total cost of the work would be in the neighbourhood of fifteen hundred dollars. If the Chamberlen Estate decline to participate in this form of improvement the Board may recommend that the street be paved for a distance of one hundred and ninety-two feet south of Charlotte street, at a total cost of three hundred and seventy dollars. The Chamberlen Estate will be notified of the Board's decision regarding the matter.

SUBMARINE COULD USE NEW LONG ISLAND PIER

SAG HARBOUR, L.I., July 26. — News was pretty scare here Sunday, so somebody, who won't ever do it again, started a report that a German submarine merchant vessel had entered Gardiner's Bay.

At Fort Pond Bay, an open roadsted of the sea and an arm of Block Island Sound, a new pier has been built and is about completed. That is the sole basis of the report. The pier is designed for use of the Long Island Fishing Corporation, a company having no Long Island directors or stockholders, so far as known. Every preparation has been made for handling fish or other submarine affairs in quantity, and Captain Taber, of Orient, is in charge of the Montauk part of the business. He will not talk about the company or the pier. The new pier, it was found, could easily be approached by a submersible.

Ford Pond Bay is very deep. The water is bold close to the shore. Railroad tracks, terminals of the Long Island company, run close to the pier and a spur could be laid in a few hours. There are buildings near the pier suitable for stowing freight. Quantities of oil and gasoline and other supplies are easily obtained. At Fort Pond Bay some of the largest steamships acting as transports moored close to shore and landed soldiers and their equipment in 1898.

At Sag Harbour, on the south shore of Shelter Island Sound, a new pier has been constructed by E. W. Bliss Company, of Brooklyn. The company has maintained a torpedo experimental station here since 1891. It has been very active for two years and has doubled the capacity of its proving apparatus. A large tank has been constructed for supplying crude oil to the gunboat Emblane. This is the same kind of fuel used by German submarines.

LANDING GERMAN TRADE

How Allies Are Conducting It In Captured Colonies.

OTTAWA, July 26.—How the Allies are landing German colonial trade in the newly conquered territory is indicated in a report to the Trade and Commerce Department from the High Commissioner's office in London.

In Samoa, now in occupation by New Zealand, trade is free except in so far as enemy firms are being liquidated. Trade has been re-opened in Southwest Africa, and goods may be shipped subject to duties and tariffs there. In West Africa the Cameroon has been provisionally divided between the British and French for administrative purposes. There will be a final settlement at the conclusion of peace.

A Letter of Condolence

Mrs. Elizabeth Henry, 1013 Water street, has received the following letter of condolence from Sir Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia and Defence. The letter follows:

Dear Mrs. Henry—"Will you kindly accept my sincere sympathy and condolence in the decease of that worthy citizen and heroic soldier, your son, Private Harold Henry.

While one cannot too deeply mourn the loss of such a brave comrade, there is a consolation in knowing that he did his duty fearlessly and well, and gave his life for the cause of liberty and the upbuilding of the Empire.

Again extending to you my heartfelt sympathy.

Faithfully,
SAM HUGHES,

Major General, Minister of Militia and Defence.

The following message of condolence was also received: "The Prime Minister and members of the Government of Canada send their deepest sympathy in the bereavement which you have sustained."

JACK JOHNSON IS BROKE AGAIN

MADRID, July 1 (By Mail).—Only the diamonds that his little white wife is wearing stand between Jack Johnson and poverty. This is the general impression of Americans who have observed the former world's champion in his desperate efforts to make money in Spain.

Some months ago Johnson turned up in Spain with his wife, an English boxing trainer and a coloured boxer, and took a suite of rooms at a palatial hotel. He attmpted to book passage for Brazil, but learned that he was not permitted to leave Spain without a passport. The American Embassy refused to issue him a passport under instruction from Washington, because he fled from Chicago during his prosecution for white slavery.

The negro's white wife has an American passport of her own, and can return to the United States when she pleases, but she says she has elected to "stick to Jack."

NEW WARSHIP JOINS ALLIES OF THE CAPES

NORFOLK, July 26.—Appearance of a Strange allied warship off Cape Henry Monday led to rumours that a British and French fleet of considerable size was in the vicinity of the Southern Drill Grounds. It is awaiting the departure of the German submarine Deutschland or the arrival of her sister ship, the Bremen.

The new warship, carrying three funnels, is believed to be one of the nw British battl cruisrs. Simulk.. new British battle cruisers. Simultaneous with her appearance the fonr-funneled warship, thought to be French, which has been patrolling just outside the three-mile limit for several days, disappeared to the east.

Ottawa, July 26.—It is officially announced through the Chief Press Censor's office that the following troops have arrived safely in England: The 11th Canadian Mounted Rifles, British Columbia; 98th Battalion, Ontario; 93rd Battalion, Ontario; 105th Battalion, Prince Edward Island; 108th Battalion, Nova Scotia; cavalry, artillery and infantry drafts and details.

Private Frederick Peace, of the 8th Canadian Mounted Rifles, who some time ago was reported missing, is now officially reported a prisoner of war. Prior to enlisting Private Peace resided on Stewart street.

Mrs. C. Drummond has received the following letter from her son, Pte. C. M. Drummond, of the Mounted Rifles, now a prisoner in Germany:

June 20th, 1916.

Dear Mother,—This time, instead of Belgium, I write from Germany, and I'm lucky we're here to write at all. I am slightly wounded and a couple of months will fix me up. I have a bullet in the thigh and shrapnel in the side of my head. I am getting very good call, but of course I could do with a few extras such as sardines, salmon, cocoa, chocolate, loaf sugar and bread and cakes and jam, but last but not least a pipe and tobacco and cigarettes. The hospital where I am are mostly all French, with a few Russians and about 30 Canadians. Well, I have very little to say, but don't forget to write often and send lots of parcels. I do not know much of the other Peterborough boys. I don't think many of them come through. I don't know where George Hitchman is. The last [illegible] I would Parrington he was wounded and waiting to be taken out. I will close now with lots of love to all.

Your loving son,
CHARLTON.

COL. YOUNG'S APPOINTMENT

His many local friends will be interested in learning that Lt. Col. T. W. H. Young of Peterboro, who went overseas as medical officer of the 2nd Canadian Divisional Engineers, has been appointed commanding officer of No. 1 Canadian Casualty Clearing Station in France. This is a very large hospital with accomodation for between 600 and 1000 men, and the appointment is a tribute to Lt.-Colonel Young's ability.

Cobourg, July 26.—Another minister from this district has donned the khaki. Rev. Gordon S. Jury, Bowmanville, who a short time ago resigned the pastorate of the Cobourg Baptist Church, has enlisted with Queen's University Ambulance Corps.

Lt. Robert A. Neilson, son of Mr and Mrs. Allan Neilson, Cobourg, is one of 25 officers chosen from Petawawa Camp for service overseas.

Jos. H. Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. I. Smith, who has been training with the Royal Flying Corps, has received his papers as a first class aviator.

Pay For The Soldier Who Takes Training

Ottawa, July 25.—The Military Hospitals and Convalescent Homes Commission with Sir James Lougheed at its head, has taken the necessary steps to organize vocational training for the returned soldier.

The Commission was not able, however, to put into operation a general scheme of vocational training until a scale of maintenance could be arranged for the men undergoing the training and for their dependents. The Commission has therefore prepared a scale under which a small sum for personal expenses will be granted to the men undergoing training while provision on a sliding scale is made for the married men and their dependents, and for those married men who may have persons legally dependent upon them.

Here is the scale which the Commission has now been empowered to establish. It will be understood throughout that "maximum age" will be sixteen for a son and seventeen for a daughter:

(1) A single man, with pension, living in, receives free maintenance; that is, board, lodging and washing.

(3) A married man, with pension, living in—free maintenance and $8 a month, with the following additions:

For wife and one child, if child is under five, $38; from five to ten years, $39.50; from ten to maximum age, $42.50; less in every case, the amount of husband's pension and children's allowances under the pension regulations.

For wife and two children, from $41 to $47 a month (less pension and allowances), according to age of children.

For wife and three children—$44 to $50 (less pension and allowances), according to ages.

For wife and four children—$47 to $53 (less pension and allowances), according to ages.

For wife and five children—$50 to $55 (less pension and allowances), according to ages.

A wife with seven or more children under the maximum age, may be given the maximum allowance of $55, less pension and allowances.

All these allowances for wife and children will be paid direct to the wife unless otherwise thought fit by the Commission.

(4) A married man living at home will receive sixty cents a day. (This of course is in addition to the allowances for wife and children.)

(5) A widowed mother, if dependent entirely upon the unmarried son who is receiving training, and if the son made an assignment of his pay to his mother and also arranged for her to receive separation allowance while he was on service, may be paid at the same rate as the wife of a married man with no children.

(6) The parents of a man undergoing training, if both are old and past work, and entirely or partially dependent upon him, may also be paid at that rate.

(7) The guardian of a widower's children (under the maximum age) will be paid monthly: for one child, $10; for two, $17.50; for three, $22; and three for each child in excess of three, with a maximum of $35.

Payments under these regulations will be continued for one month after the completional of vocational training whether the man has secured employment or not.

It is clear that this system of allowances will enable many men to take advantage of the training offered, by providing for their families while the training is being given.

If a cloth, such as is used for dusting and cleaning, is dampened and laid over the registers when the furnace is being shaken the annoyance of dust flying over the room will be obviated.

METHODIST CHURCH WAS DESTROYED AT COBOCONK

Coboconk, July 27.—The village lost its largest and best church building in a fire which for a time threatened the buildings of half the population. The fire originated in a stable belonging to Mr. Foster. From here it spread to the adjoining buildings on both sides. A storehouse owned by William Bain was a complete loss, while Mr. Foster's dwelling was badly damaged.

The Methodist church across the street from the first fire caught on the roof and burned before help could do anything to stay the fiery demon.

Mr. William Wellwood lost a stable which was back of the church. The losses are partly covered by insurance. The origin of the fire is not known.

John A. Smith fell from a verandah roof during the fire and was badly shaken up. M. A. Cooke, who worked very hard, was prostrated, and had to be driven home.

Several men remained on the job all night after the fire, keeping the smouldering blaze under subjection.

To the mean eye all things are trivial, as certainly to the jaundiced they are yellow.—Carlyle.

The Keene Patriotic Society's Entertainment

Successful Supper Held in the Keene Rink Last Night—Conservatory Orchestra Rendered a Choice Programme.

MR. HALL, CHAIRMAN

The Keene Patriotic Society held a highly successful supper in the Keene rink last evening, which was well patronized by the village and surrounding district.

A very interesting programme was also provided to which the Peterborough Conservatory Orchestra, under the direction of Mr. R. Gliddon, contributed several fine selections. Mr. Joseph McCarthy also rendered a vocal solo, and Miss Bryce and Mrs. Sharpe a vocal duet.

Mr. R. R. Hall presided as chairman. He congratulated the ladies of the Keene Patriotic Society on the splendid success that had attended their efforts. He said that the ladies of Keene, in common with the ladies of Canada, have made noble sacrifices and have done splendid work in the great war in which we are engaged. This great war has been remarkable not only on account of the enormous number of the human race that are engaged in it, the vast unprecedented armies that are fighting in the field throughout the different parts of the continent of Europe, the enormous cost of the war, and the unrecorded and enormous quantity of ammunition and artillery that is being used, but notably on account of the highly advanced and scientific way in which disease has been combated and the wounded soldiers have been cared for.

In former wars it is safe to say that more soldiers died of disease and their undressed wounds than were killed in battle and who were wounded in the field of battle. It was not until the Crimean War that the people of England were stirred up by Florence Nightingale to organize the resources of the nation so as to relieve the sick and wounded. By virtue of her influence and the influence of nurses and women throughout Great Britain a great movement was started to combat disease and to bind up the wounds of the soldiers who were fighting on the field of battle for the protection and liberty and freedom of their country. Since that time the great services of the medical profession and the self-sacrificing assistance of women has gradually and effectively combined to irradicate disease among our soldiers and to contribute to their comfort and to relieve their distress.

It certainly is pleasing to note that the women of Canada have taken a devoted and self-sacrificing part in this war and among them, Mr. Hall said he was proud to say that the ladies of Keene have played a noble part.

Flour Mill Closed When Gov't Got It

With the purchase of the Seymour Power Company's various interests by the Hydro-Electric Commission, the Smith flour mill in Campbellford passed into Government control. This valuable plant is now lying idle and we believe that a request from the Council to the Government would result in some action being taken to make use of the plant. There would be no call for a loan or bonus, and with the plant working at full capacity the weekly wage would be no small amount. Start a movement to turn the idle wheels!—Campbellford News.

THIRD GERMAN AERO BAGGED BY ROCKWELL

PARIS, July 24.—Kiffin Rockwell, the daring young American aviator from Atlanta, Ga., has bagged his third German war plane. The sky combat took place on Friday, 10,000 feet above the ground.

Rockwell was reconnoitering with Bert Hall above the German lines when he sighted a German machine ahead and gave chase. Meanwhile two other German aeroplanes above Rockwell, which he had not seen, swooped downward.

Hall joined the fight, but in the meantime Rockwell had got the range of one of the hostile machines and soon shot it down.

Bullets Riddle Machines.

The two Americans then returned to their own lines. Both machines were riddled with machine gun bullets, but neither aviator was hit.

A French army aviator has accomplished the remarkable feat of flying across Germany, dropping proclamations on the city of Berlin.

The airman, Sub-Lieutenant A. Marchal, was compelled to land within sixty miles of the Russian lines, near Coldin, in Poland, where he was made a prisoner by the Austrians.

In the course of his long flight, the official announcement says, Marchal covered approximately 780 miles in a straight line. This was the first time the eastern and western fronts have been linked by air. The real object of the flight, however, was to show the Germans that the allies were able to bombard Berlin, but restrained from doing so from humanitarian reasons.

The official report of the flight says:

"On June 20, at 9.30 o'clock in the evening, Sub-Lieutenant A. Marchal left Nancy, France, in a Nieuport monoplane of special type, taking with him provisions and oil to last fourteen hours. His mission was to traverse all of Germany at a moderate altitude and to drop proclamations on Berlin, afterward continuing on to Russia. This audacious raid was accomplished point by point.

Made Prisoner in Poland.

"His mission accomplished, unfortunately the French airman, after having flown all night, was forced to land at 8.30 on the morning of June 2, less than sixty miles from the Russian lines. He was made a prisoner.

"The proclamations which the sub-lieutenant threw down on Berlin commenced with the words:

"We might have bombarded the open city of Berlin, killing women as well as innocent children, but we content ourselves with throwing down the following."

"Aviator Marchal, who is interned at Salzerbach, sent a postal card which gives us the following details:

"'I was made prisoner at 8.30 a.m. on June 21 at Cholm. The Austrian officers would not believe me when I told them what I had done, but my arrival proved it. They were forced to yield before the reality.

"'It was a defective sparkplug that stopped me. I had descended and replaced the sparkplug and again set my motor running. Unfortunately it was necessary to change two others. I was captured at that moment. Imagine my chagrin!'"

INFANTILE PARALYSIS AT DOORS OF TORONTO

Three Cases Have Been Discovered at Todmorden and One at Newmarket, Making Dozen in Ontario

TORONTO, July 26.—The dread disease of infantile paralysis, which has caused such consternation in New York, has come close to the doors of Toronto. It was reported yesterday that three cases had been discovered in Todmorden, two on Westwood avenue and one on Gowan avenue. There was also a case from Newmarket. Taking into account reports from Windsor, Ford City, and Walkerville, there are now eleven or twelve victims in the Province.

Three at Todmorden.

It appears that the first of the Todmorden cases, that of two-year-old William Thompson, 18 Gowan avenue, was diagnosed on Friday at the Hospital for Sick Children, College street. The child's mother noticed the boy was not feeling well, and was feverish for a week. Then it was noticed he was not using his arm and could not use his fingers. The second case was that of Dorothy Puppon, 16 Westwood avenue, and it is stated that the lower limbs of the sufferer were so affected that the child could not stand unsupported, although she could still use her arms. The third case is Edna Vail, 56 Westwood avenue. The attacks are said to be mild, but quarantine measures have been taken.

Diagnosed at Hospital.

It appears that after the first Todmorden case was diagnosed at the Hospital for Sick Children, Dr. Hastings, Medical Officer of Health, Toronto, informed the Provincial Board of Health, who, in turn acquainted Dr. Eby, St. Clair avenue, who is acting as Medical Officer for York township. The second case was reported on Saturday and the third yesterday morning.

The patient at Newmarket is the six-months-old daughter of Pte. and Mrs. Culley, who recently came to Newmarket from Hamilton. Pte. Culley is now at Camp Borden. The Provincial Health Department was immediately notified and steps taken to prevent the spread of the disease.

Province Acts.

Dr. J. W. S. McCullough, Chief Officer of the Provincial Board of Health, is anxious that the utmost precautionary measures are taken. He declared yesterday that it had been brought to the attention of the board that some doctors in the Province were not reporting cases of infantile paralysis to the medical health officers as the law required. The Board of Health is not going to countenance any such remissness and doctors neglecting this matter in future will be prosecuted in the Police Court.

Some of the Symptoms.

Dr. McCullough, in his recent warning, stated the ordinary quarantine measures that must be taken by medical officers of health, and suggested in addition that wherever an outbreak occurs children should be prohibited from attending large gatherings of any kind, such as Sunday school picnics, moving picture shows, and the like.

He also pointed out, that there are many people who develop the disease without suffering anything worse than slight muscular weakness, vomiting, high temperature and headaches, and advised that particular attention should be paid to such symptoms. These cases, while they may not be serious to the ailing one, may be considerably more serious to the public at large, as frequently the disease is not recognized, and the patient acts as a disease carrier, spreading the infection among those with whom he is allowed to come in contact.

TUBERCULOSIS RAGES IN THE FRENCH ARMY

116,000 Soldiers Were Discharged on April 1, Wm. P. Hollingsworth Says

New York, July 26.—William P. Hollingworth, vice president of the American War Relief Clearing House for France and her Allies, returned yesterday from Paris.

Mr. Hollingworth said the work of relieving the hundreds of thousands of refugees and the distribution of hospital supplies undertaken by the organization has reached enormous proportions. About 40,000 cases of clothing and supplies have been shipped to France and distributed through the Clearing House in Paris, besides many thousands of dollars in money.

Mr. Hollingworth said the Clearing House had penetrated to every nook and corner of France, not only to places removed from the war zone, but also to the trenches themselves. According to figures supplied by the government there were known to be 116,000 soldiers who had been discharged from the French Army on April 1st, of this year, suffering from tuberculosis, it is said.

"Many of these men return to their homes unable to work, a burden to themselves, a menace to their families and the communities in which they live," he continued. "Prompt action on the part of Americans would save many of these men by restoring their health, and above all by providing hospitals in properly chosen localities which would prevent them from being a menace to others and where they would be properly cared for. There is much need of medicine, hospital supplies, and clothing.

"There is an urgent need for more hospital and ambulance groups for the French Army manned by American volunteer drivers. The French Government has shown high appreciation of what has already been done in this direction.

"Schools for the re-education of the soldiers wounded in battle in such a way that they can go back to their homes and earn a living at their former vocations, have been established in Paris and other cities in France, as well as schools for teaching the blind. All of these useful charities can be assisted by wealthy Americans."

LEADS ALL REST OF CANADA.

Ontario Has Given More in Both Men and Money.

Ontario has furnished 42.5 per cent. of the total enlistments in Canada up to June 30 last, according to a statement issued by the Provincial organization of resources committee. Ontario had provided up to that date 147,158 of the total of $345,880 men who were recruited for the Canadian expeditionary forces. Enlistments in Ontario were 5.8 per cent. of the total population, 1911 census. For the rest of Canada the percentage was 4.2 of total census population. Enlistments in Ontario were 28 per cent. of Canadian and British-born between the ages of 18 and 45; for the rest of Canada the percentage was 22.

In the raising of special funds Ontario's efforts so far exceeded the rest of Canada as to be noteworthy. For the British Red Cross, Trafalgar Day, Ontario contributed $1,514,000, and rest of Canada $370,000; Canadian Red Cross, cash only, September 1, 1914 to May 31, 1916, Ontario provided $964,965, as compared with $625,786 for the rest of the Dominion. Of the $7,000,000 raised in Canada for the Canadian Patriotic Fund, up to June last Ontario contributed $3,000,000. In addition to the special funds, a sum aggregating $1,000,000 was raised in Ontario to aid overseas battalions, finance recruiting campaigns, and for the purchase of equipment not supplied by the Dominion Government.

COMMITTEE PREPARES FOR CHURCH UNION

Important Meeting Held in Toronto Co operation With Methodist and Congregational Churches is Planned.

The first practical step in the direction of Church union was made at the meeting of the Presbyterian Committee on Church Union, held in the Board of Trade rooms yesterday. This committee was appointed by the General Assembly at Winnipeg in June last, and has now met for business for the first time. Its assigned business was to consider how best to carry out the policy of the Assembly in regard to union, and more particularly to organize for co-operation with the Methodist and Congregational Churches.

President R. A. Falconer of the University of Toronto presided.

The whole question of further and closer co-operation with the negotiating Churches in mission work and the status of union Churches was considered. Advantage was taken of the presence of Rev. Dr. Chown, Superintendent of the Methodist Church of Canada, and Rev. Dr. T. Albert Moore, who paid an informal visit to the committee. The new situation arising out of action of the Assembly was discussed by the Methodist representatives, and practical suggestions were made for the furtherance of a working basis of cooperation.

SPECIAL COMMITTEE APPOINTED.

A special committee was appointed to confer with similar committees of the other Churches for the purpose of determining policies. Provision was also made for the appointment of cooperative synodical committees. To these committees were referred matters relating to union Churches. The following is the special committee Rev. Dr. Baird, Convener; Rev. Dr. M. A. McKinnon, Regina; Rev. Dr. R. J. Wilson, Vancouver; Principal Dyde, Edmonton; President Murray, Saskatchewan; Rev. Dr. Wallace, Toronto.

NO LEGISLATION POLICY.

The committee agreed that no policy in regard to legislation should be adopted until after full consultation with the other Churches.

FROM ALL PARTS OF CANADA.

The members present were from every part of the Dominion: President Falconer, Convener; Rev. Dr. Baird, Moderator; Rev. Dr. Herridge, Ottawa; Rev. Dr. Clarke, Montreal; Rev. R. Douglas Fraser; Professor Matheson, Kingston; Rev. R. Martin, Stratford; Principal Gandier; Rev. A. H. Foster, Picton; Rev. Dr. Murdoch McKinnon, Regina; President Murray, Saskatchewan; Rev. R. J. Wilson, Vancouver; Rev. R. W. Ross, Halifax; Rev. G. A. Sutherland, of Prince Edward Island; Rev. J. Macartney-Wilson, New Glasgow; Dr. Hamilton Cassels, Toronto; Justice Stuart, Alberta; Rev. J. H. Turnbull, Ottawa; Rev. J. A. McKeigan; Rev. Dr. Jack, Sydney.

Letters of regret for absence were received from Rev. Dr. Hanson, Montreal; Judge Forbes, New Brunswick; Rev. Dr. Drummond, Hamilton; Rev. D. C. McGregor, London; Mr. J. K. Macdonald, Toronto.

Ladies' Day At Police Court

To-day was ladies' day at the police court, and woman's wrongs and women's ways occupied the attention of the court all morning.

Two soldiers' wives opened the morning's proceedings by one laying a charge of assault against the other. Defendant pleaded not guilty and the evidence, which consisted simply of the stories of the two participants, was then heard. The plaintiff claimed she had gone to the boarding house of the defendant and had asked her for $9.75, which was owing to her since last winter. Defendant had then replied by making a sudden assault upon her, grabbing her by the throat and slapping her on the face. The defendant, in turn, claimed that her friend in asking for the money had insulted her. His Worship could find no germ of insult hidden in the words used, so a fine of five dollars was imposed upon she of the fighting mood and talents.

The second case consisted in a charge of using grossly insulting and abusive language and was laid by a female citizen of this city against a neighbour. A long string of witnesses appeared for each side and the case was hotly contested by Messrs. G. N. Gordon and F. D. Kerr. As the incident occurred within the sacred confines of a local backyard with no great material damage on either side, the case was discharged and both parties told "to go home and be wise."

MORE

The carter, who was remanded from yesterday, appeared again this morning on the charge of having liquor in his possession, but was discharged as no evidence was on hand to show that he intended to use the liquor for his own use.

His mysterious 82 year old friend who gave him the liquor, or rather placed it in his charge, was also given his liberty.

Two local men were charged with being drunk and disorderly. One was fined the usual two dollars and the other remanded one week for trial.

MUNITIONS AND BRAINS WILL "SNATCH VICTORY"

LONDON, July 25.—After a speech by Winston Churchill in the House of Commons, criticising Premier Asquith for not reviewing the war situation, David Lloyd George, Secretary for War, replied, saying that it would be premature to survey a military situation and the prospects in the middle of a battle.

"The prospects are good," the War Secretary said; "our Generals are more than satisfied and proud of the valour of our men they are leading. Great as British infantry were in Wellington and Napoleon's day, they never have been greater than now.

"One thrills with pride when one thinks one belongs to the same race. They are pressing back the formidable foe, who devoted his best brains to the study of war for generations. I feel confident that victory is assured to us." Continuing, Mr. Lloyd George said:

LEARN GREAT LESSON.

"Numbers and all other resources are on our side. There was only one fear—that years of training and thought on the part of a great military power might be something that might be insuperable. Our men have demonstrated that it is not so, and that British resourcefulness and intelligence are, as in fields of commerce in the past, when they have been able to snatch victory out of what appeared to be complete commercial disaster, going to snatch victory again in a few months from what appeared at one moment to be something that was invincible.

"There is no doubt at all that the lesson of this battle is that we have simply to press on with all our resources and with the material at our command, and victory will be ours."

WANT AMENDED CONTRACT

Ross Rifle Company Planning to Manufacture Lee-Enfield.

OTTAWA, July 26.—The Ross Rifle Company is negotiating with the Government for an amended contract looking to the manufacture of the Enfield rifle now that the Ross type of arm has been abandoned as the Canadian service rifle. Sir Charles Ross and Walace Nesbitt, K.C., counsel for the company, have been in Ottawa in connection with the matter.

The plant at Quebec will have to undergo extensive reinstallation to adapt it to making the new rifle, but this can be done. An arrangement has yet to be concluded finally, but the company plans to go ahead and manufacture the arm which replaces the one abandoned by the British authorities as unsuitable to service conditions. What to do with the thousands of Ross rifles which have been discarded is still an open question.

VALUABLE $300 HORSE DIES FROM THE EFFECTS OF HEAT

One of the Imperial Oil Company's Big Team Prostrated From Heat Last Night.

One of the Imperial Oil Company's team of heavy draught horses died last night of heat prostration and a gas formation as the result of the hot weather. The animal was worth about $300 at least, for the team was bought from Jopling Bros. at $600, and was considered one of the finest teams in the county. After yesterday's work it was turned into the stables at Mr. J. J. Clancy's, 714 Water street, and shortly after was taken ill and died a few minutes after Dr. Johnston arrived.

Regarding the treatment of horses during warm weather, Dr. Johnston advised that they be given moderate drinks every two hours instead of merely at noon and six o'clock. The constant heat on their backs during the afternoon causes a paralysis of the bowels, and when the horses are stabled for the evening feed, the food is liable to ferment, forming gases. Dr. Johnston also stated that the regular feed might be reduced somewhat during the very warm weather.

Auto Smash At Simcoe St. Corner On George Street Provided a Diversion

Mr. A. W. Paskins, grocer, at the corner of Aylmer and Hunter streets, with his Ford delivery waggon, and S. Staples of R. R. No. 3, Ida, in a McLaughlin touring car, provided a momentary flurry at the noon to-day at the corner of Simcoe and George streets. Paskins was driving south, and the Staples car was coming north and turned west on Simcoe street. Mr. Paskins stated that the latter car cut sharply across the street, and Mr. Staples stated that he was making an ordinary turn. At any rate, the delivery car struck the touring car on a rear mudguard denting it slightly. Paskin's car, however, crumpled up considerably around the hood, smashing the front axle, a lamp, mud guard, and tire. Constable Deannard accompanied the men to the police station to obtain a report for the purpose of deciding whether the traffic by-law had been broken.

STREET OILING PRESENTS MANY DIFFICULTIES TO BOARD OF WORKS

The Need For Road Oil is Considerably in Excess of the Appropriation—Only Streets Already Authorized Will Be Oiled—If Time and Money Will Permit a Few Extras Will Be Taken On

YARDS TO BE OILED

Street oiling and its many problems formed the topic for a somewhat lengthy discussion at last night's meeting of the Board of Works Committee of the City Council.

Ald. McIntyre, chairman of the Committee, wanted to know how much of the road surface remained to be oiled. City Engineer Parsons informed the committee that out of a little over seventeen miles that had been authorized, something like fifteen miles had been oiled, leaving a balance of a little over two miles to be completed. The delay in completing this work was due to the difficulty in securing the necessary supplies of oil. One tank was ordered several days ago and had not yet arrived. Not one of the members of the committee but wanted some particular street oiled Ald. Saunders wanted the lane separating the William Hamilton machine shop from the office treated with an application of road oil. It was pointed out that there was not sufficient funds to meet the needs. The present appropriation would barely be sufficient to cover the work authorized at the beginning of the season without assuming any additional responsibilities. Some of the main streets of the city will require a second application

INFORMATION WANTED.

Ald. Weir wanted to know why it would not be better to first remove the dust from the city's streets before oiling them. Both the City Engineer and the committee agreed that the best results would be obtained by first removing the dust from the thoroughfares. The reason this had not been done in all cases was because of lack of proper equipment and time. Street Commissioner Evans, who was present at the meeting, gave a somewhat vague conception of his idea of cleaning a street. He contended that only a good hard road would lend itself to street cleaning, whereas the majority of the aldermen were of the opinion that the dust could be removed from any form of highway such as might be found within the city's limits. Ald. Weir recalled a case in East City where a lot of water was first slopped on a road after which an attempt was made to remove the dust with the aid of a revolving broom Only the coarser material found its way to the side of the road while the remainder went into the holes where it remained until the roadway dried off.

WANT YARD OILED.

The Canadian General Electric Co. wants the roadway in front of their factory oiled, likewise Mr. R. C Braund, who conducts a grocery business at the corner of Park and Albert streets. Sherbrooke street and a number if lesser known streets, are also in need of oil. The matter was left in the hands of Ald. McIntyre and City Engineer Parsons, with explicit instructions not to exceed the appropriation.

An application to have the yard of the Canadian General Electric Company oiled at the company's expense was received, and will be acted upon if time and materials will permit. A move will be made to have the yards of the Canadian Pacific and the Grand Trunk Railways oiled. It is understoodstood that the companies named have agreed to bear the cost of the work. None of this additional work will be done until all public thoroughfares that have been listed for at least one application of oil, have been treated.

Careless Cupid Kills Cow Driving Elopement Car

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y., July 26.—Society in New York City and Stamford, N.Y., will be surprised to learn that Miss Vivia Elizabeth Hunter, one of the beautiful daughters of Dr. and Mrs. Linnaeus Jones Hunter, of No. 840 Lexington avenue, Manhattan, and Stamford, and Mr. Electus Taylor Backus, son of Mrs. Annie Taylor Backus, of No. 697 West End avenue, Manhattan, and the late Rev. Dr. Brady E. Backus, were married here.

The killing of a cow on the overnight flight by automobile from the bride's summer home in Stamford, the arousing of the marriage license clerk from his slumber and other exciting features just antedating the marriage gave to it all the flavour of an elopement.

The facts are, according to the couple, that Miss Hunter had been engaged to Mr Backus for some time and their marriage had been arranged for next November, in New York, in the bride's home, but the delicate health of Mrs. Hunter and her dread of losing her daughter's companionship by marriage, led them to terminate her suspense by the unannounced wedding.

Mr. Backus went to Stamford last Thursday and was a guest in the Hunter home until last night, when he telephoned here to the Rev. Ralph Birdsell, rector of Christ Church, of which his father formerly was rector, making arrangements for the marriage. Then he and Miss Hunter started for Cooperstown in his automobile. It was a dark night, and on the way the headlights were poor or the driver did not have his eyes straight ahead, for the automobile hit a cow such a blow that she was killed, the vehicle damaged and the young couple unseated.

But the injuries were not severe enough to delay the journey long and they arrived at Oneonta so early that the town jeweller was sound asleep when they roused him from his bed to sell the needed wedding ring. Mr. Backus hurried with the jeweller as a third passenger in his automobile to his store to sell the ring.

Proceeding to Cooperstown they were directed to the residence of the Town Clerk, and they roused him from bed to issue a marriage license. Then Mr. Backus and Miss Hunter went to Christ Church rectory, where they became the guests of the Rev. Mr. Birdsell and Mrs. Birdsell.

At the ceremony in the rectory Mrs. Birdsell and Miss Mary Graham Bonner, a friend of the Backus family, were the witnesses. Following the ceremony Mrs. Birdsall was hostess at an informal supper. Late to-night the bridal couple started back to Stamford in the damaged automobile intending to surprise Mrs. Hunter and their friends. They will return here next week as a part of their honeymoon trip.

Dr. Linnaeus Jones Hunter, at his home, No. 849 Lexington avenue, was much surprised last night when informed that his daughter, Miss Vivian, had become the bride of Mr. Electus Taylor Backus at Cooperstown.

"My daughter was engaged to Mr. Backus and the wedding was to have been in this house next November," he said. "I had not heard that her mother was ill or dreaded the approaching marriage. I spoke with her on the telephone last Thursday, and she did not complain of any illness.

"I cannot understand why they eloped. There was no objection to the match, and so far as I know everything was running along nicely. Apparently the couple did not consult their friends or their families, but I am sure that they will be none the less welcome in our home."

The bride was well known in the activities of the younger set in society in New York. As an amateur dancer she apeared publicly at the Plaza Hotel last March for charity, and was interested in the work of the Bethany and Neighborhood missions. She attended her sister, who was married on April 15 last, to Mr. Bay Newhall Spooner.

Mr. Backus is in the real esate business with an office at No. 150 West Ninety-fifth street.

CITY HALL PARAGRAPHS

The sewer gang, operating under the supervision of Martin Neary, in the north end of the city, will be augmented by several more men. The Board of Works made it plain at last night's meeting that they would not tolerate the employment of men employed with other gangs.

CUTTING OF WEEDS.

"We are doing the best we can," said Ald. McIntyre when asked as to the prospects of extending the weed cutting campaign. An appropriation of $200 for this work will have been expended by Friday night next. The worst of the weeds have been destroyed.

STREET REPAIRS.

Ald. McIntyre wants repairs made on Antrim street, McDonnell street, Hilliard street and a number of others. Also an entrance to Trinity Church, all of which has been sanctioned by the Board of Works.

WOULD PROTECT THE TREES.

Hughson Johnston, painter, 416 Water street, favoured the Board of Works with an ambitious scheme for protecting a tree in front of his premises and at the same time advertise his business. He would box in the tree for a distance of several feet, and paint his name on the outside. It was pointed out that this was contrary to law. If Mr. Johnston wants to protect the tree by building a box around it he will be permitted to do so.

Life In a Mine Sweeper

This work requires sense of duty, courage and efficiency. It is a work hazardous and daring. This sweeping the seas of the mines laid by the enemy under cover of darkness.

The boats leave their stations regularly and return with their report of so many mines destroyed, or perhaps some do not return. Then there is mourning in some English homes which is softened slightly by the knowledge that the dear ones died in the service of their country. One should talk with these brave men who are keeping the seas open and free from the menace of mines and submarines to fully appreciate what the British navy stands for. They have most thrilling tales to tell, and each sailor considers the other fellows part most dangerous.

It is amazing to find the detailed knowledge these men have of the German activities. They seem to know when and where the deadly explosives are to be found, and the bravery and optimism of these men are truly impressive. It is startling to learn how many men and boats are engaged in sweeping the seas or in "fishing" sea-mines, as they call it.

Early in the dim light of the morning the vessels start out, in two, for the British sweep in pairs. For some time the boats travel together, and as they near the area where they are sure they shall find mines the officers in command signal the other boat, and all prepare for sweeping. Pneumatic life-bells are placed on everyone on board; the second boat draws alongside and the end of a long cable is fastened to it. She makes off, and several hundred yards away resumes her course, while the cable sags far down beneath the surface of the water. That is all. They are sweeping. The Captain knows just where to find them; he has the spots marked on his chart where the Germans have laid these mines with the mooring cables fixed so that they will just be under water at low tide, and a ship cannot possibly have a warning.

The sweepers go along slowly, keeping abreast with nothing but a few feet of cable on the side of each vessel to show that they are connected. Sometimes it becomes quite monotonous and a bit dreary, just crawling along over the North Sea, with nothing happening. Suddenly the cable tightens as though it had hit an obstruction. A slight tremour runs through the boats, and everyone steps to the rails, gazing at the water, confident that they have found one. Almost immediately the Boche mine breaks the surface of the water and floats free of her moorings, rolling lazily in the swell, very much like a great black turtle with spikes on its back.

Then the fun commences. The boat manoeuvres until the mine is about eighty yards to starboard. Four of the men line up at the rail with rifles and if luck is with them they penetrate the air chamber of the mine, and slowly the ugly thing sinks out of sight. An astounding fact has been brought to light about these mines. Under the Hague regulations, to which Germany was a subscriber, all mines are fitted with a device which renders them harmless when they have broken from their mooring cables, so that innocent or neutral vessels may find some degree of safety on the high seas away from the war zone. But by some technical manoeuvring on the part of the Germans, these safety attachments, although to be found on the mines, fail to work.

That is one way of destroying a mine—by sinking it; the other is by exploding it. This takes longer to do, as the tiny horns, phingers or triggers, as they are called, have to be hit, and this is quite a trick at a distance of a hundred yards or more. Leaden bullets are used, as these will not penetrate through the steel into the air chamber. When the bullet finds one of these horns there is a terrific explosion, belching upwards into the air a huge volume of black smoke and a shining column of water right through the black cloud to a height of 50 or 60 feet. It is a remarkable sight. About the smoke-cloud the water glistens in the sun. Below all is dull and grey, and both parts of this perpendicular jet are visible at the same time, just for a second. Then the water pours back through the smoke, and the grim cloud drifts off over the waste of the sea. . . . And they continue sweeping.

How fine is the devotion of these men to their duty! They go out day by day wearing their life-belts continuously, taking their tea on the decks while they peer about for the death that lurks in the soinbre waters. They go out all alone where no trumpets sound forth their deeds and where they give to their work the same quality of bravery as is required of the man in the trenches.

SAW CONTALMAISON STORMED BY BRITISH

Frederick H. Allen, Here From Front, Watched Battle Raging For 12 Hours

New York, July 26.—Frederick H. Allen, a retired New York lawyer, who returned from France on the liner Lafayette with his wife and three daughters, is the first eyewitness to reach this country of the big offensive movement of the Allies along the western front which commenced on July 1st.

Through his long friendship with President Poincare and Premier Briand, Mr. Allen said that he had a special permit to go to the battle front and stood on a trench from 2 in the morning until 2 o'clock in the afternoon, watching the British bombardment, followed by the infantry attack on the town of Contalmaison, on July 6. Two months previously Mr Allen was an eyewitness of the fighting at Verdun which he described as not being so interesting because it was all on the defensive, while the fighting on the Anglo-French front was of fensive on the part of the Allies.

"At 2 a.m. on July 6," Mr. Allen went on to say, "I took up a position on top of a trench in front of the British lines, and about a mile and a half from the town of Contalmaison which was held by the Germans. Besides Frederick Palmer, the war correspondent, and Colonel Reppington of the London Times, there was an observation officer holding a telephone in his hand connected with the battery of artillery to tell where the shells fell on the German side.

"A few minutes later the guns began to boom and the artillery poured a continuous shell fire on Contalmaison, which did not slacken for one instant until eight o'clock, and made the earth tremble with its violence. I shall never forget the sight of the dark sky illuminated by the bursting shells, red lights, flares and searchlights used by the engineers to locate the position of the enemy's batteries. British aeroplanes were flitting overhead but were invisible to the eye except when the aviator dropped a light bomb as a guide to the gunners below. As daylight broke the lights began to vanish and the battle front was seen in all its grim array along the ten mile front between Thiepval and Montauban.

"About this time the Germans began to take an interest in our little group and started to fire shells at the trench on which we stood. Eight big shells came one after the other, getting gradually nearer until the last one fell below us within about fifty yards.

"Personally, I began to feel very uneasy as to what would happen next, and neither Mr. Palmer nor Colonel Reppington looked exactly comfortable. The observation officer appeared to grasp what was passing in our minds and told us calmly to roll down the other side of the trench if we saw another shell coming as it might drop too near our position to be pleasant. He was a nice young officer and seemed to know the shells and where they would go just as if they were regulated by mechanism under his control.

"At 8.30 the British infantry charged up the hill to capture Contalmaison while their artillery fired over their heads and the German gunners turned on a curtain fire to prevent the second and third lines advancing. The whole panorama of the battle was spread out before our eyes and was a most spectacular sight, full of movement on every side—horses dashing up at full gallop with fresh field pieces ready for action, carts filled with ammunition, and in the distance the motor ambulances waiting to carry away the wounded.

"As the smoke lifted we could see the lines of soldiers like waves crossing the open ground and note them falling under the fire of the German machine guns. At one point of the attack the right and left flanks of the British could be seen advancing on the town, while the centre had disappeared from view. This was due to the German curtain of fire, and when the smoke cleared men could be seen falling back on the hill as if the British centre had been repulsed and was in retreat. It proved later that the men that we saw running down hill were German prisoners, who had been passed through the lines to the rear.

"I spoke to one of them afterwards an officer of the Prussian Guard, who asked me what troops they had been fighting against. When I told him it was Kitchener's army he expressed great surprise and said he thought it was the Old Guard by the way the men fought.

"It was curious to watch the waves on the battle line as they would charge and be repulsed, charge and be repulsed again, until the attack ceased for the day on Contalmaison.

"Afterwards the fighting continued in Mametz Woods, where tree after tree was mowed down by the artillery fire from the British guns, until 2 p. m., when it ceased. Next morning, the Germans were driven out of Contalmaison and the town was captured by the British.

"On July 8 I visited Thiepval and saw the trenches which had been captured from the Germans. Many of them were very strongly constructed but they had been torn to pieces by the heavy shells of the Allies. The odor from some of the lower trenches, where the bodies had not been removed, made it very unpleasant but the soldiers were at work clearing them out very rapidly. I was informed that when the British infantry stormed Thiepval they rushed the trenches so rapidly that they did not stop to clear out the other ones where a number of German soldiers were hiding. As a result the Germans came out of the lower trenches with their machine guns and attacked the British troops from the rear until they (the Germans) were either killed or disabled and the remnant of the survivors surrendered.

"The British aerial service was very good at Thiepval, where I saw dozens of their machines in the air in addition to twelve captive balloons. Near Montaupan I saw one of the aeroplanes brought down by German shrapnel, which hit the machine in several places. First the planes kept it steady for a few minutes, then the gasoline tank caught fire and the aeroplane shot to the ground one blazing mass with the aviator incinerated among its debris.

Mr. Allen said his 15-year-old son Julian, was the youngest driver in the American Ambulance Corps and had served three months at Verdun.

Dr. J. Howard Munro of Ottawa, who returned on the Lafayette, said he spent two months at Verdun, where he witnessed the attack by the Germans on Hill 221, which lasted a whole day and a night without cessation. He said the Germans lost twice as many troops as the French because the latter fought a defensive action all the time. As the Germans came on in massed formation the French field guns mowed them down.

THE CHECK AT OTTAWA.

Will Be Placed to the Credit of the War Office.

OTTAWA, Ont., July 26.—The report that F. W. Baillie, manager of the Canadian Cartridge Company, has returned $750,000 of war profits, is confirmed here. The check is now in the hands of J. W. Flavelle, chairman of the Imperial Munitions Board, and will at once be placed to the credit of the War Office. It will doubtless be used for the purchase of additional munitions.

The story in connection with the check is that when the Canadian Cartridge Company got an order for two million shell cases, they stated that they would take their profits on the first million, but not on the second. The $750,000 represents the difference between the actual cost of manufacture and the price paid by the Munitions Board.

SIX BELGIANS EXECUTED.

Nearly Ten Thousand Forced to Work in Germany.

LONDON, July 26.—Six civilians have been executed by the Germans at Ghent, charged with "war treason," according to a Reuter's Amsterdam despatch quoting the Telegraaf. The despatch also says that the Germans have removed 7,000 men, 2,000 women and 150 pupils of the Turgot Institute from Roubaix, presumably for agricultural work in Germany.

Ottawa, July 26.—For war purposes Canada is now spending at the rate of more than $20,000,000 a month, or about $700,000 a day, or $30,000 an hour, or $500 a minute, or nearly $100 a second. And the cost continues to rise with the increase of the Dominion's legions.

An official statement issued this afternoon says:

The war expenditure of the Dominion Government in Canada alone now exceeds $20,000,000 a month, or about $700,000 a day. The largest item in this huge expenditure is for pay and allowances, subsistence and assigned pay and separation allowances of the troops. This item is running at the rate of about $12,000,000 a month.

This is of course, much more than is paid to the troops at present in Canada, who number less than half the total of Canadian forces recruited for the war, over 200,000 having gone overseas. The pay of the overseas forces assigned to their families and dependants here and their separation allowances, also paid here, constitute a very large portion of the monthly war expenditure. The sterling exchange situation has had much to do with bringing about the payment in Canada of so large a portion of the pay of the overseas forces.

As nearly as can be estimated Canada's present war expenditure in Canada and in Britain, including the maintenance of the troops actually at the front, is at the rate of about $30,000,000 a month, or $350,000,000 a year. This averages about $1,000,000 a day and is equivalent to about $1,000 per annum per head, as the total elistment is about 350,000 men. Of these there are now in Canada about 140,000.

Out of the revenues of the Government for the year it now seems probable that a large amount of the principal of the war expenditures will be paid as the budgets of 1915 and 1916 are both working out most satisfactorily. The balance of Canada's war expedditure this year will be defrayed partly from the funds of the domestic war loan issued in November last and from the future war borrowings

SCIENTIST TELLS WHY GIRLS KISS SOLDIERS

Cambridge, Mass., July 26. — Dr. Max Baff, psychologist, of Clark College, Worcester, has discovered why girls kiss soldiers. He says:

"It is the uniform the girls admire and not the soldier. The wholesale kissing is not premeditated. Girls do not go out to see the soldiers with this idea in mind; but once they gaze upon the good-looking, strong, young Americans, they are moved by an uncontrollable impulse."

Does Not Injure Home Rule Cause

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, July 27.—The breakdown of the Irish settlement does not in any way injure the cause of Home Rule, nor indicate any change in the attitude of the Government toward the Irish question, said Sir Horace Plunkett to-day.

NO TRUTH IN SUB. STORY

In an interview this morning with respect to the statement in the Montreal Gazette that a submarine waited for the S. S. Scandinavian and in order to escape the submersible, the vessel returned to port, remaining there for the day, Mr. G. M. Bosworth, chairman of the Canadian Pacific Ocean Services Limited gave an emphatic denial to the story. He said that there was absolutely no truth in it.

A Complaint From Wolfe Street

A complaint is being heard from the travelling public at the C.P.R. station about the dust on Wolfe street. It is being backed up by the residents on this street, who declare that they have not had either water or oil on the street all summer. If such is the case it gives visitors to the city a bad impression, which could be easily remedied, and would also be a great source of satisfaction to those living on the street.

FIRE DESTROYS A NEW BARN

FENELON FALLS, July 26.—A disastrous fire occurred at the farm of Mr. John Wallace, on the Pleasant Point Road Tuesday afternoon, when his barn was completely destroyed, along with 13 loads of new hay, several bushels of oats and other fodder.

It appears that Mr. Wallace and his man were engaged in drawing in hay and had just entered the barn with another load when they noticed the fire. Every effort was made to extinguish the blaze, but to no avail. The pump happened to be dry and the farmer was compelled to stand by and see his big barn go up in smoke. It was erected some five years ago and was one of the best in the locality.

The house was saved, although it was in danger of being consumed at one time. Fire is supposed to have started from combustion. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

Special Services At Park Street Church

Next Sunday morning at 11 a.m. (D.V.) there will be a special service, interesting and impressive. The above church, like all others, has answered the call of Empire in the world war to the number of 45 members of the church and congregation, and it is proposed to unveil a "roll" to their honour. The honour roll has been executed by Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons in their usual artistic manner.

Included in the ceremony will be a special address by the pastor, Rev. Dougald Brown, the unveiling by the young twin daughters of one of the soldiers, who has been at the front from the early days of the war; the reading of the names on the roll and a musical programme suitable to the occasion; details of which will be published on Saturday next.

Flying Load of Hay Caused Hydro Break-down

HAMILTON, July 27.—It was learned that the interruption in Hydro current Tuesday was due to a load of hay being carried from a rack across the wires by a high wind, thus short-circuiting the current and causing a big fire. A team of horses belonging to T. H. Pearson ran away, Mr. Pearson's son was thrown to the ground and slightly injured.

Women Don Bathing Suits At Home, And Men Seek Cover of Bushes Under Local Conditions

There are and there are not swimming places upon and down the Smiabee's shores. While there are no public supervised places, quite a large number of citizens enjoy a plunge at Inverlea Park, at the end of Dublin street, at the end of Dalhousie street, at McDonald's point, at Burnham's point, the Ashburnham wharf, the Vermont Marble Company's bank, at the G.T.R. railway bridge near the locks, and at the Belmont Club house.

At all these places, and at other, there might be included, there are difficulties that prevent adults from a complete enjoyment of the water.

Along the boat houses at Dalhousie street the small boy practically has the locality to himself, creating a decided nuisance for the owners of the boat houses who rent the land from the city. But for the rather rapid current at this point and the absence of wading facilities, this might provide a suitable site for a public swimming place. All morning and afternoon you find little "shavers" out in the water so small you wonder if they were born amphibious. The conditions here practically demand that those who venture in the water must be able to swim. The boys dress and undress on the boat house floats, and there is considerable justification for the police if they run the boys from this place.

At the end of Dublin street the community spirit abounds. Men and women, boys and girls, they make the best of the conditions, observing convention as far as possible. The women and girls parade to the river from their homes with raincoats over their bathing suits. Variety is the spice of the practice at Dublin street. Some of the women favour one-piece suits of the pattern that were barred at Belle Isle, Detroit, the other day, and others cling to the less assertive skirt and blouse effects. As for the men, well the bushes are supposed to provide a condition of low visibility while they are hustling into their bathing suits. If there is any transparency in that direction it's the fault of the bushes. However, there has been no complaint on this score, and conditions at Dublin street, though decidedly primitive, are fairly satisfactory.

Along the water front at Inverlea Park the waders are in their glory. The river bed slopes gradually. It is sandy and is really a delightful place for swimming, and especially for beginners and children. There is no privacy except what nature has provided in the formation of the bank, a few trees and that kind of thing.

The Ashburnham swimming places offer no better advantages, and considering the whole swimming question in and around Peterborough it is a wonder that the complaints to the police are so few.

Many citizens are advocating public action, and one of these days the Council is likely to go off at half cock and provide a makeshift swimming place here and there that will foster conditions even worse than those extant. When the people realize that bathing is a physical advantage that should be universally enjoyed, when they appreciate the fact that swimming is a sure way to physical fitness and that physical fitness is a prime factor, almost the basic factor in many of our affairs, then will there be proper swimming facilities, and not until then.

Patience Park Street- It's A Long Way To Winter

In advocating oil for Park street, where the streams of factory workers converge and pass it was mainly their interests that have been considered. Incidentally it was mentioned that some consideration should be given Mr. R. C. Braund, with a large store at an extremely dusty place. He has expressed his approval of the agitation, but made no comparisons with other sections of the city. These come from observation and report, and if some reports are not precisely correct they are but little different from most hearsay evidence.

There is every confidence in the south end district that Alderman McIntyre and his Board of Works does not intend to entirely overlook them. That not only Park street, but other neighbouring street will receive attention. Sherbrooke, Wolfe to the C.P.R. Stewart street and many others look better under oil. But the main request concerns Park street. If the oil spreader ever gets down there full, it will surely go back empty. Hence like it to Park, and there is a possibility that it will meander over adjoining streets.

QUEBEC LOSES A BABY EVERY SIXTY MINUTES

QUEBEC, July 26.—The toll of infantile mortality is still progressing in Quebec as the weather is becoming warmer. In addition to the alarming figures published yesterday, it was learned last night that 25 more babies have passed away and if this heat spell continues for some time the province and civic health authorities will have to take a hand to save the babies. Twenty-five more funerals will take place to-day, that being the number of children who passed away since Sunday night.

Twelve Lines of Hose Open at Hunter Street Corner This Morning

Chief Howard and his staff of firefighters are having a busy session of it to-day, and the Fire Headquarters on Aylmer street have echoed practically all day with the clanging of the fire bell, the tramping of fiery steeds, and the peremptory commands of Peterborough's energetic and live Fire Chief.

The reason for to-day's busy session is that Mr. R. Norman Wilson, Inspector of the Canadian Fire Underwriter's Association of Toronto, is in the city and is making his annual inspection of the local fire apparatus and its management.

This morning the squad made a quick run to George street and connected a line of hose to the hydrants along George street for a block or so in order to test the downtown pressure, and to give the visiting inspector an idea of the local water pressure in case of an emergency.

The afternoon was spent in inspecting the fire engine and other equipment of Chief Howard's establishment. To-morrow the inspector will make his rounds of all the hydrants in the city, and will put them all to the official test.

In this morning's pressure tests twelve lines of hose were laid at one time. A pressure of 120 pounds was maintained at the Pumping Station, and with twelve lines of hose working the pressure at the corner of Hunter and George streets was 50 pounds. When only one was open the pressure was 102 pounds. During the test the pumpage increased to a six-million-gallon rate. It was generally expressed that the test was quite a satisfactory one. The Water Commissioners and Superintendent R. L. Dobbin were present with Mr. Wilson and Fire Chief Howard.

BERLIN INCREASES CAB FARE.

It Now Costs 42 Cents or More for Trip from Railway Station.

In line with the general advance in the cost of living in Berlin the police authorities have issued an order allowing an increase in cab fares. Reports in the London press say that the minimum fare, both for taxicabs and horse drawn vehicles has been raised from 19 and 17 cents, respectively, to 24 cents. And instead of the customary additional charge of 6 cents when a cab is hired at a railway station the additional charge will hence forth be 18 cents. Thus the shortest drive from a railway station without baggage will cost 42 cents.

REDUCE CONTRACTS IN U. S.

Britain Building More Factories for Production of Munitions.

LONDON, July 26.—During a discursive debate on the questions of the war in the House of Commons last night, Dr. Christopher Addison, Parliamentary Secretary of Munitions, in replying to a question, said that the Department of Munitions was endeavourig to reduce the contracts for munitions in the United States by increasing the output here. In one particular class of explosives, he said the department had undertaken the construction and equipment of factories to provide these explosives on an unheard of scale.

WEALTHY YOUTH IS HELD IN "MURDER BY AIR" MYSTERY

OLNEY, Ill., July 28.—The "Murder by air" of Miss Elizabeth Ratcliff, 17-year-old farmer's daughter, promised to-day to be noteworthy in the criminal annals of the county.

Wealthy relatives of Roy Hinterliter, the young farmer boy held to the grand jury yesterday without bond for the alleged murder of the girl, are making strenuous efforts to secure his release on bail.

The relatives propose to secure a hearing of the evidence with a view to having the bail fixed by the circuit court.

AIR IN ARTERIES.

The manner of death is declared by Dr. Frank H. Weber, of the Olny institution, to be remarkable. He said to-day he knew of no other case under similar circumstances. The autopsy disclosed the presence of air in the arteries, collected about the brain and heart.

According to Dr. Weber, the girl died of embolism. When the post-mortem was held there was apparently nothing to indicate the cause of death—no marks of violence, no symptoms of disease ad no sign of organic afflictions. The barest chance revealed the cause of of death. In making the autopsy one of the surgeons accidentally cut an artery, and noted that air bubbles came from the wound, although the girl had been dead for hours.

The doctors then concluded that a bubble of air had reached her heart and death had been instantaneous. The theory of the state is that Hinterliter did not himself know what had killed the girl and was as puzzled at the cause of death as were the doctors. It is not even hinted by the prosecution that Hinterliter had any intention of killing Miss Ratcliffe.

British Troops Fight Behind Impenetrable Screen of Shell Fire

Offensive Near Ridge Which Looks Down on Country Toward Bapaume---Leipzig Redoubt Is Menaced in Rear and Its Gradual Evacuation by the Garrison is Expected to Be Development of the Next Few Days.

WITHDRAWAL TO NEW LINE

LONDON, July 28.—With the full occupation of Pozieres in the west and the news of the Russian capture of Erzingan in the east, yesterday was one of encouragement and enthusiasm for the Allies. Add to these important events the continuation of the Russian advance in Volhynia and the sum of the day's developments has not been surpassed for the Entente since the war began.

General Haig's success in winning Pozieres gives a great strategic advantage to the Allies on the battle front north of the Somme, a fact which explains the tenacity with which the Germans maintained their grip on the ruins of the village. The village lies on the Albert-Bapaume road, four miles from the former and eight miles from the latter town.

LEIPZIG REDOUBT MENACED IN REAR.

The highway from Thiepval to Contalmaison and thence to Tricourt also runs through the village almost at right angles to the Albert-Bapaume road. This junction now is in British hands. The result is that the Leipzig redoubt, now the sole remaining field work of importance in this sector, which was labouriously and ingenuously built just south of Thiepval, is menaced not only from the north, west and south, but also from its rear, since the Thiepval-Pozieres road, now open to a British advance, runs directly behind it.

The reports from the front Wednesday do not indicate that the British have reached the primary objective of the assault on Pozieres — the 160 metre ridge just beyond the village on the northeast—but the carrying of the village and the works built in it, which the Germans seemed to have right to regard ase impregnable, would seem to make the attainment of the ridge a matter of hours only. This ridge takes a northwesterly-southeasterly course a quarter of a mile from the centre of the village, with its highest point—160 metres—left of the Bapaume road. It drops to 153 metres northeast of Thiepval and then disappears in the Ancre Valley. Once on the crest of the ridge the British are facing down grade to Bapaume, a condition which makes for a comparatively easy offensive and a difficult defence. In other words, heretofore the British have been fighting their way up hill. From the Pozieres ridge they will be fighting down hill. The terrain between the hidge and Bapaume is rolling, but the altitude is the less than eight miles drops from 160 metres to below ninety metres.

WITHDRAWAL TO NEW LINE PROBABLE.

The capture of Pozieres makes the situation in the Leipzig redoubt a desperate one. The garrison is bearing the burden of supporting the whole German front, from the Ancre to Longueval. The redoubt is the apex of a ninety degree triangle, which is withstanding tremendous pressure on both its sides. Observers here expect to learn at any time that its resistance is weakening, an indication that the German command recognizes the futility of farther sacrifice and that the units holding it gradually are being drawn berk to the line Grandiourt-Courcelette-Martinpuich, where the next serious fighting may occur. Only unimportant trench works are to be encountered between this new line and the Pozieres front, but once this ground is covered the British are expected to find field fortifications of great strength, especially in Martinpuich.

The struggle in Longueval continues without an hour's cessation. The importance the Germans attach to this whole sector, from Thiepval to Longueval is revealed in a divisional order issued in Contalmaison on July 11, found on prisoners, and made public by Lloyd George, the War Minister. The order reads:—

"Furthermore, the conversion of villages into strong points is of the greatest importance. Such villages as Pozieres, Contalmaison, the two Bazentins and Longueval."

72,000 CATS KILLED IN PARALYSIS FEAR

S.P.C.A. Reports 8000 Dogs Also Destroyed in Society's Lethal Chamber Since July 1

Rats and Mice Said to Carry Disease Germs, but Not Cats—Wang and His Pirate Band Sought.

NEW YORK, July 28.—Thomas F. Freed, Superintendent of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty of Animals at Twentysixth street and Madison avenue, said that the inspectors were working over time and had collected 80,000 dogs and cats, of which 10 per cent. were dogs, since July 1. All of these animals were disposed of in the lethal chamber.

"Since the beginning of the alarm over infantile paralysis," the Superintendent said, "we have been receiving on an average 800 requests a day for our men to call for unwanted domestic pets, mostly cats, in spite of the statement issued by Health Commissioner Emerson that cats do not carry the germs of the disease. Our men go out with their motor ambulance at 7 in the morning and work until 1 o'clock the following morning and pick up a total of 3,700 animals a day.

"As an example of the amount of ground covered by the ambulances in one day. I can tell you that one of our men stated in West Twenty-seventh street this morning to make sixty-four calls, and will end his trip tonight some time at 204th street.

"Many persons who became alarmed at the spread of infantile paralysis turned their cats out of doors immediately, and some who had dogs did the same, which is probably the reason why there are so many adrift in the streets this summer.

"Our total figures of animals gathered in 1915 was 276,683, while this summer we have collected 80,000 in the first twenty-four days in July. In the same month last year the men brought in 29,236 cats and 4,105 dogs, a total of 3,341.

"The 'pirate cats,' which are said to annoy the residents of West Eightieth street and other parts of the west side, are doubtless domestic pets which have been turned loose by their owners for various reasons. When people have to economize the first thing they decide to do without is the cat and out she goes.

"Our men are all working as hard as they can and there is no doubt that Wang and his band of cats will be rounded up in due course with the others nocturnal nomads in the city."

Mr. Freed said that rats and mice carry the germs of infantile paralysis, but that there was no evidence to show that cats had ever been germ bearers. The employes of the society had Sunday July 2 and 23, off and July 4, but they worked on Sunday, July 9 and 16, the Superintendent said, on account of the unusual number of unwanted animals offered, and the fear of pets appears to be increasing rather than diminishing.

Hun Prize Court Decides Appam Is a Good Prize

BERLIN, July 27.—The prize court has decided that the Elder-Dempster liner Appam, which was captured by the German raider Moewe in the early part of the year and taken by a prize crew into Hampton Roads, is a good prize, and that accordingly the gold on board the steamer, amounting to 789,000 marks, shall be turned over to the Reichstag.

There have been varions estimates of the amount of gold on board the Appam when she was captured, but no official statement concerning it has been made. The estimates range from less than $300,000 to as high as $2,500,000. The Appam is still in Newport News.

Nearly 2,000 of Sinn Fein Rebels May Be Released

LONDON, July 27.—The committee which has been sitting as a tribunal to hear the appeals of the Sinn Fein prisoners will conclude its inquiry within a few days, and present its report to the home office with recommendations as to the manner of dealing with the prisoners.

The proceedings have been private, but according to the London morning papers, the tribunal will advise the release of a majority of the 2,000 prisoners.

The announcement that Roger Casement will be executed August 3 has caused no surprise, as it was certain that a date for the execution would be set. The question of a reprieve is still in abeyance, as strong influences are being exerted in behalf of the leader of the Irish rebellion.

Which of these men uses the AutoStrop Safety Razor?

Take a look along the line and pick him out.
Judging from appearances they all use the AutoStrop.
It's smooth shaving comfort brings a smile to every man's face.

In Camp, on Transport, in the Trenches a man is far from the corner store, and he needs a dependable razor, one which sharpens its own blades and doesn't go dead on his hands. The AutoStrop is more than a razor, more than a safety device. It strops, it shaves, and is cleaned without taking anything apart, without even removing the blade. And like a perfectly stropped ordinary razor, the blade improves with use.

Would you go the Front with a rifle which would play out after firing ten shots, or a pipe which would be no good after filling it a few times? Then what about your razor? Will you be forced to grow a beard because it hurts to shave, or will you take an AutoStrop with you and be perfectly independent of new blades, (because you can strop them) and thus be equipped for the entire campaign.

An Ingenuous Nephew.

The soldier-nephew was just off to the front, and his rich aunt wrote to him to know if he required anything for his kit. She got the reply—"The quartermaster has a down on anyone who has too much equipment. I have already got to the limit of the allowance weight. If you send anything, please let it be something very light, that I could put in a letter-case or pocket-book." After maturely considering this letter, the aunt, who had humour, sent by post a small photo of herself. But having also a kind heart, the next day she forwarded a few Treasury notes to line the pocket-book.

AUTHORITY SPEAKS

Frances Evelyn, Countess of Warwick, Writes For Papers.

IS AN ETIQUETTE EXPERT.

One of England's Most Popular Hostesses Will Give a Series of Articles on the Charm and Dignity of Good Manners in Social Life.

It is announced that Frances Evelyn, countess of Warwick, will write a series of articles on etiquette for newspapers. In her introduction the countess states:

"If parents were more with their children familiarity with all the details of etiquette would be inherited rather than acquired. While mothers are content to leave their little ones to others, boys will tend to become rough and self conscious and girls will regard instructions as a lesson and resent it accordingly. I have made it a rule to have my children round me on every possible occasion.

COUNTESS OF WARWICK.

"The tendency toward carelessness must be repressed by all of us, and etiquette has done much to add to the charm and dignity of life. We need more study of demeanor than do the French, Italians and Spaniards, for the Latin races have a natural grace that is only seldom found among us. The Italian peasant of the Maremma, the Spanish shepherd of the Asturias, will astonish you by his perfect courtesy, his instinctive knowledge of the right word, the appropriate action.

"We are rougher and more rude until we have been polished on the grindstone of polite custom or until we have traveled and lost our insularity.

"After all, our behavior is the reflection of our personality, and while, if that personality be gracious, knowledge of etiquette will set it off to complete advantage, an aggressive personality cannot be made tolerable by any amount of perfectly correct action.

"Yet knowledge is power. I think it was Francis Bacon who said that the man who goes to a foreign country without a knowledge of its language goes to school and not to travel, and in the same way the men or women who seek the pleasures of social life without knowing either how to entertain or to be entertained miss the fundamental pleasures of intercourse."

Filipino Embroidery.

Long have we praised and bought the hand made French lingerie, and long have the women of fashion depended on French hand work. It is only recently that the Madeira eyelet and solid embroidery have made inroads on the very secure position which the French work so long monopolized. Now all this is to be changed, for the Filipino work is as wonderful in execution as either of the other two ever pretended to be. Besides, the material is finer and the prices lower. The labor is cheaper, whether Chinese, Japanese or Filipinos do the embroidery, and, best of all, there is no duty on these garments. There is hardly a doubt but that there will be a great demand for the Filipino embroidery.

Spring Lounging Robes.

The new tea gowns, negligees and lounging robes are very pretty and made of fine fabrics. Fancy or corded cottons are much used for these garments. Cotton crapes with heavy cotton embroidery are largely used, especially in blue, lavender, rose or tan, with the embroidery in white. Instead of embroidery, they may be trimmed with ribbon or lace. The voluminous effects in dresses are also used in negligees. Sheer and light weight fabrics are most favored.

Cottage Pudding.

One cupful of sugar, one cupful of sweet milk, two egg yolks, two tablespoonfuls of butter, two cupfuls of flour and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Cream sugar and egg yolks. Add milk and melted butter, flour and baking powder sifted together. Bake in square tin. Use white of eggs for meringue.

Baked Potato, Surprise.

Take a medium sized baked potato, scoop it out and mash the contents with a celery cream sauce; fill the potato, sprinkle with cheese and bread crumbs and put back in the oven to brown.

Lines.

Lines sometimes have a president and a board of directors, and presidents and boards of directors usually have lines. The care of lines produces lines of care.

Poets formerly were much given to inditing certain lines to young ladies, but the modern lady who desires certain lines usually goes to a modiste.

Ruddy Mars.

There seems to have been no reason other than its suggestive color for the selection of the planet Mars as the celestial symbol of the war god. Yet it was universally so regarded in ancient times.

If we could tell why Mars is red we might hit upon the whole secret of that strange planet. Its color is probably due to some peculiar quality of its soil. It may be principally composed of material resembling our red sandstone, or it may be stained red by an abundance of iron in its rocks.

Suits to a T.

The clause "It suits to a T," meaning it fits exactly, is as old as the familiar instrument, the T square or T rule (so called from its resemblance to the letter T), used by mechanics and draftsmen for making angles true and for obtaining perpendiculars. The expression was in common use in the time of Dr. Johnson, who is quoted by Boswell as saying of Warburton, "You see they have fitted him to a T."

Condescension.

"Isn't the style of music you have been playing rather lacking in classic quality?"

"Oh, yes," replied the highly accomplished girl. "But one must show some consideration for the tastes of one's parents."

and leave no heartache when smashed. Four of those, with pretty shades, will adorn your dinner table. A pair on your writing desk will give it quite a colonial tone, and two more on your dressing table will protect your beauty from the harsh facts of electric lighting.

The New Fichu.

The revival of Louis Seize fashions has renewed the interest in the fichu type of neckwear, and the demand therefor has been met by a clever manufacturer, who has designed a fichu that may be bought by the yard.

The fabric is georgette crepe or net edged with plaited ruffles of its own material or with tiny flounces of lace. Some of the fichus show embroidered designs. Then there is another style where the fichu has one side dated and the other finished with a picot edge.

No matter which way is preferred fichus are all ready to be cut the desired length and draped on the shoulders. They go a long way toward freshening up a frock which is not absolutely new, but which is too good to be cast aside thus early in the season.

Curfew at 6.15 p.m.

The precautions against air raids have necessitated the alteration at Chester of a centuries-old custom. Since the distant days of the Norman Conquest the curfew at Chester has been rung, without, it is believed, a break, from 8.50 p.m. to 9 p.m. each night. For the next month, however, it will be rung at 6.15 p.m., and then, as the days lengthen, the time will be advanced until the traditional hour is reached.

FOR THE CHILDREN

A Sleepy Time Story That Will Amuse the Little Folks.

THE DISCONTENTED BUNNY.

What Happened on a Lovely Easter Morning—Many Things of Interest to Small People—A Good Game. Gathering Nuts in Florida.

Polly Ann and Little Ned were all ears when Uncle Ben began to tell a sleepy time story. He told about

BUNNY RABBIT'S WORKSHOP.

There was a great deal of bustle and stir in the Bunny Rabbit's workshop.

Just then a lively little rabbit with inquisitive ears came in carrying a basket of eggs dyed beautiful bright colors. "Everything is going along finely," he said briskly. "My eggs are really gorgeous this year, speckled and spotted and brilliant as well. How goes it with you, old pal? Is the chocolate right? Really, chocolate eggs are so popular these days that they must be made especially fine to please all the little ones!"

"Oh, right enough, right enough!" answered the Bunny Rabbit wearily as he dipped the creamy cocoanut eggs into the shiny chocolate and laid them out to dry. "I can't complain of my work, but I do complain of the grass!"

"What's wrong with the grass?" replied the inquisitive rabbit as he deftly decorated the eggs with white sugar.

"Oh, there's nothing the matter with the grass, nothing at all, except that a week ago there wasn't any to be seen."

"Now, now, Bunny Rabbit, don't you borrow trouble," said his little friend as he flourished his sugar cone. "I'm sure the grass is doing bravely. Just you have a little faith in it. If we all love the children, as we do, then each one of us is working just as hard as we can to please them Easter morning. Be sure of this, and be sure that the sun and rain and balmy wind are helping the grass to grow, just as I am helping you to make bushels and bushels of eggs, just to please the little ones. When we work with love nothing can really go wrong, you know."

Now, when Bunny Rabbit heard this he stopped getting angry and began to work harder than ever. "I suppose you are right, little friend. I'll just live up to my part of the bargain and leave the grass to do the same. At least I can hide the eggs in straw nests if the worst comes to the worst."

So love and peace reigned in the workshop all the rest of that Easter Saturday. That night when Bunny Rabbit and his little pal stole quietly about the earth, laden with lovely eggs and gifts for the children, they saw that what seemed a miracle had happened. There in the light of the Easter moon the grass was waving, long and green and sparkling with dew, as though with happy tears.

The Camel's Coat.

Did you ever see a two bump camel at the zoo or at a circus? In winter it has a long, shaggy coat, and in summer the shaggy hair comes off the back, just as if he threw off his heavy coat as father does when warm weather comes.

the chestnut, walnut and hickories of the northern woods, but in southern Florida the cocoanut may be had at any time of year, for the nut ripens at all seasons. This nut is the fruit of a species of palm that grows from sixty to 100 feet tall. The nut is protected by a coarse husk, about two inches in thickness. The young gentleman who has been so successful as a nut gatherer is Master Leveritt S. Shaw, son of Mrs. Quincy Adams Shaw 2d of Boston.

FROZEN ORANGE SOUFFLE.

Strain one and a half cups of orange juice into one and a half cups of sugar, and stir well with the beaten yolks of five eggs. Cook over hot water, stirring all the time, until like custard sauce. Then stir in one and a half teaspoons gelatine softened in a little cold water and dissolved with three tablespoons boiling water. As soon as the gelatine dissolves, remove at once from the fire and cool. Then partly freeze, add the dry whip from two and a half cups double cream, and freeze to a finely grained firm texture. Mould, and serve with strips of candied orange peel and glaced nut meats.

Harrows, disks and cultivators should all be looked over very carefully. Dull harrows are very inefficient tools to use.

It is well to remember when digging post holes in dry soil that a pailful of water to the hole helps immensely in the digging.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Letter From the Sky

By SARAH BAXTER

Mme. Benkard, the wife of Major Benkard of the ——th regiment of the line of the French army, was in the habit of appropriating any good looking second lieutenant whom she could induce to be attentive to her.

One day a young lieutenant, Louis Detaille, reported at the garrison for duty, and the moment Mme. Benkard saw him she determined to appropriate him. He was a rosy cheeked boy scarcely out of his teens and before his departure to join his regiment had proposed to and been accepted by his cousin, Delphine Dumont. Mme. Benkard was double his age and had lost whatever beauty she had possessed. The lieutenant desired to give all his spare time to writing love letters to his sweetheart and had no inclination to devote himself to the major's wife. Unfortunately for him, he was too young, too unsophisticated to know the danger of refusing advances from such a woman and frankly told the lady that he was engaged to a girl he dearly loved and had neither time nor inclination to devote himself to her.

Mme. Benkard's eye flashed, but Detaille's eyes were modestly cast down at the time, and when he ventured to raise them he saw a sympathetic smile.

"You dear boy!" she exclaimed. "Tell me all about her. Is she dark? Is she fair? Is she very young and does she love you as you love her?"

Disarmed, Detaille became garrulous about the girl he loved, and before the end of the interview madame had got her name and address.

Detaille had not been in garrison a month before Germany declared war upon France and French troops were rushed northward into Belgium. Before his departure, while there was yet peace, Mlle. Dumont received an anonymous letter warning her against her lover, who was devoting himself to the wife of one of the officers.

Mme. Benkard, after listening to Detaille's rhapsodies concerning his fiancee, did not relinquish her grip upon him, and so marked were her attentions to him that he fancied her husband was becoming jealous of her. Besides, he had become suspicious of her. As soon as he came to a halt on his way to Belgium he wrote her a letter which was designed to set himself right in the matter, putting in writing what he had told her—that he had a sweetheart to whom he was devotedly attached and had no interest whatever in any one else. This lettter he copied and inclosed the duplicate in a letter to his sweetheart, explaining why he sent it to her.

The epistle to Mme. Benkard he sent first, and it reached her in due time. By the time he dispatched the one to Mlle. Dumont the Germans were pushing the French back upon Paris. The courier who carried the mail was captured by the Germans and was sent to the headquarters of the German army.

Meanwhile the anonymous letter which was written by Mme. Benkard to Mlle. Dumont had reached the latter and nearly broke her heart. She was too young and innocent to know the difference between the work of a friend and a fiend and supposed the warning had come from one who did not wish to see her injured. She kept her secret locked in her breast, where it burned and burned until it seemed to her that she could endure it no longer, but she did not write to her lover reproaching him for having so soon forgotten her. At first Detaille thought nothing of this, for every day there was a battle, and as for mails, if one came through from Paris it was not likely to be distributed.

For a time after the war opened Paris was attacked by dirigibles, which sailing over the city, dropped bombs upon it. One day when considerable damage had been done by one of these air craft, a street gamin who was gaping at it with more curiosity than fear, saw slowly circling down toward him through the air a bit of paper. It fell near him, and he picked it up. It was a letter. The gamin, not being able to read the superscription, showed it to a gendarme, who read, "Mlle. Delphine Dumont, No. —— Rue ——, Paris," and handed it back to the gamin.

Now, the boy was not bright enough to make a guess as to where the letter came from; but, thinking to make a few sous, he took it to its address.

When Mlle. Dumont heard that a boy wished to see her with a letter she went to him and on seeing it and reading the superscription asked him where he got it.

"From the sky, mademoiselle," was the reply.

The girl had never seen the writing before. Tearing open the envelope, she found a letter addressed to her in German and bearing the signature of a lieutenant in the German aviation corps and an inclosure addressed to her in her lover's handwriting. The latter she opened feverishly. It was the duplicate of the one Detaille had sent to Mme. Benkard and which had been captured by the Germans. The letter inclosing it read as follows:

Dear Mademoiselle—I send bombs down on your city in the line of my duty. It gives me pleasure to send also to you personally a letter the nonreceipt of which may have been troubling you.

Delphine ran upstairs to a glove box where she kept her pin money and, selecting a gold piece, gave it to the boy, who looked at it in wonder.

A few days later Delphine received word that her lover had been brought to Paris wounded, and she nursed him back to health.

HER HOME NO LONGER CHILDLESS

Operation not Necessary after Taking the Great Medicine for Women.

Miller's Falls, Mass.—"Doctors said I had displacement very badly and I would have to have an operation. I had a soreness in both sides and a pulling sensation in my right side. I could not do much work the pain was so bad. I was also troubled with irregularity and other weaknesses. My blood was poor. We had been married four years and had no children.

After using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier I became well and strong and was saved from the operation. We are now the parents of a big baby girl and I praise your remedies to others and give you permission to publish my letter."—Mrs. JOSEPH GUILBAULT, JR., Bridge Street, Miller's Falls, Mass.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is famous for restoring women to normal health and strength. When this is done wives no longer despair of having children.

A woman should be reluctant to submit to a surgical operation until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial. If you have a case that needs special advice, write the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass. It is free and always helpful.

A Post Office Romance.

A little known but perfectly true story came to light when the Paris Post Office was overhauled for repairs, and a letter discovered between the box and the wall. Early in the century a pair of young lovers quarreled over some trifle, and the man, in a fit of temper, swore he would go abroad and never return unless the girl asked him to do so. They parted in anger; but the woman, sure of his love, was confident that he would come back to her.

She never saw or heard of him again, but, faithful to his memory, never wedded another.

At the age of seventy, she received one day a letter, stained and shabby, with the address faint and discolored. The writing was familiar, despite the lapse of time, and she opened the envelope with trembling hands.

"Send me one word to say you forgive me. I cannot live without you."

That was all, except the date,—four days after the quarrel, fifty years before. The man, mistaking silence, had never returned.

"Willie's Party.

"You can have a party," Willie's mother said, "but don't disgrace the family by doing something that you ought not to do. Remember, you will have to wait at table and in every way play the part of host, and it would be a terrible thing if you should set a bad example." Nine boys came to Willie's party, and they sat four on each side of the table and one at one end and Willie at the other.

They were all nice little boys, who had good manners, and ate with their mouths closed, and never used their knives except to cut with, and held them in the proper way. They used their forks to eat with for meat course, vegetables, and also for the dessert, for Willie's mother let him have a real dinner, and she and his big sister waited at table. It was quite a success, and mother said that she thought it was just as necessary for boys to play host once in awhile as for girls to play hostess, and she was glad Willie had a dinner party, which, by the way, was at 1 o'clock instead of in the evening, as grown-ups' dinners are.

A shipwrecked man having been cast upon a certain shore, slept after his buffetings with the deep. After awhile waking up, when he looked upon the sea, he loaded it with reproaches that, enticing men with the calmness of its looks, when it had induced them to plow its waters, it grew rough and destroyed them utterly. The sea, assuming the form of a woman, replied to him: "Blame not me, my good sir, but the winds, for I am by my own nature as calm and firm even as this earth, but the winds falling on me on a sudden, create these waves and lash me into fury."

Washing Woolen Goods.

To wash woolen goods successfully the water should be soft and warm, not hot, and of uniform temperature throughout the operation. Never put soap directly on the fabric, and use only the milder kinds. Make a nice suds before putting the garment in the water. Scrub gently and wring through loosely set wringers. Once washed, the goods should be immediately hung up to dry and never allowed to lie about wet. It is best to dry woolens out of doors if the air is dry and the temperature above freezing.

Cream of Carrot Soup.

Wash the carrots and scrape them, cut in thin slices until you have two cupfuls, using only the red part. Put in a stewpan with a tablespoonful of butter, one tablespoonful of sugar, and salt to taste. Cover with water and cook until tender; then rub through a sieve. Thicken with a thickening made of one quart of milk, one and one-half tablespoonfuls flour and one tablespoonful of butter. Season with salt and a dash of paprika. Serve with a sprinkling of chopped parsley.

Cranberry Pudding.

Three-fourths cupful of sugar, one cupful of milk, one teaspoonful of butter, two and one-half cupfuls of flour, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one cupful cranberries, and one egg. Cream the butter and sugar, add beaten egg, milk and flour sifted with baking powder. Then add the cranberries, which have been picked over, washed, dried, and rolled in flour. Pour into a buttered mold and steam for two hours.

Orange Marmalade.

Select thick skinned oranges. Use six oranges and two lemons. Slice about an eighth of an inch thick and cover with water. Let stand twenty-four hours. Set on stove and boil twenty minutes, then let stand another twenty-four hours. Measure and use an equal amount of sugar. Drain juice from fruit. Put sugar in juice, boil and skim; add fruit and cook slowly until clear and jellied.

Violet Underbodice.

Some of the new lace blouses show underbodices of pale violet crepe or silk. These are especially attractive for wear with a suit in some shade of purple or plum.

DUMBEST OF ALL ANIMALS.

This Creature Sits on Its Mouth During Its Entire Lifetime.

What would you think of an animal who sat on his mouth? You would guess he didn't know very much, wouldn't you? Neither does he. You could call him the dumbest of dumb animals. In fact, he's so very dumb that most people don't know he's an animal at all. He's the sponge.

No, not the sponge you are acquainted with—not the bathroom kind. That's just his skeleton. The sponge we're talking about is the one that lives in the bottom of the sea, where he sits all day on his mouth.

In the beginning he's an egg, which splits all up in many cells and then swims around for a day or two. Then there comes a dent in one side—that's his mouth. Soon the sponge stops swimming and sinks to the bottom, mouth downward. There he eats and eats until sometimes he gets to be three feet tall and as thick as he is tall.

He's covered with a jellylike flesh. When sponge fishermen hunt him to sell they go out in boats and pull sponges from the bottom of the sea with long handled forks. Then they put them on the shore to dry. After days the jellylike flesh drops off and the fishermen tramp the sponges with their feet. Then they are considered clean enough to sell. We really get the bones of the sponge, that's all.—Exchange.

Rescuing Napoleon by Submarine.

In his book on submarines Frederick A. Talbot tells us that the submarine is "practically as old as the sailing ship," though he passes the fact over with the statement that the majority of these efforts were fantastic in conception and crude in design.

The most daring expedition ever suggested in the early days of the submarine was that proposed for kidnaping Napoleon from St. Helena. It was suggested to a British mariner, Captain Johnson, who was to get £40,000. The construction of the boat was begun, but on the day when the work on the outer shell of copper was to be started Napoleon died.

Jealousy.

Jealousy is a consumption bred within the structured house of love when all its windows are sealed. When we are jealous we try to shut ourselves up in a shadowed privacy or timid miserliness. We want some one all to ourselves. We fear that if we open the doors and let in the current of others' affection or the winds of impersonal interest our own share of love may be swept away. A woman may be jealous not only of her husband's friends, but of his work and even of his religion. This means she has kept her windows closed and shuttered, so that she looks always at the walls of her house of love, never through and beyond them.—Dr. R. C. Cabot.

Surpliced Bodice.

The old time surplice bodice promises to be much in evidence as the season advances. It has been modified to meet the demands of the present, but is full of quaint grace and charm. Sometimes the fronts are extended about the waist to form a girdle, which ties in a bow with long sash ends at the back. The sleeves of these bodices are usually long and close fitting, with flared cuffs that half cover the hands.

The Ruling Passion.

It is related of a certain German savant, to show how strong the ruling passion is in death, that as he was dying he exclaimed in French, in which language he was deeply learned, "Je meurs" (I die). Pretty soon he opened his eyes before passing away and added, "Man kann auch sagen, Je me meurs!" (One can also in French use the reflexive form of the verb "to die.") His last flicker of interest was in the word more than in the fact of death.

Method in Her Breakage.

"Augusta is an awfully bright girl, isn't she?"

"Yes, indeed! When she is reading a novel on the front porch her mother never thinks of asking her to wash the dishes."

"Why not?"

"She's sure to break so many of them."

Honey Vinegar.

Vinegar made from honey has an exceptionally fine flavor and is not expensive. A small amount of honey furnishes a large amount of vinegar. Follow these directions: Dissolve thoroughly in two gallons of warm, soft water one quart jar of extracted honey. Give it air and keep it in a warm place, where it will ferment and make excellent vinegar.

Coroners in England.

In early times the coroner in England was a revenue officer of the crown, and his business was to find out the criminals, extort their confessions and confiscate their goods to the crown. From records it appeared that King Alfred had a predilection for hanging his coroners because they did what was unjust.

Hard on the Proofreader.

Getting typographical errors out of dictionaries is a task beside which that little Augean stable affair of Hercules was an afternoon snap.

When the Oxford edition of the Bible was published the proofs were read and reread ten times. Then a reward of $250 was offered to any one who should find a typographical blunder.

One was found in the first chapter of Genesis. Dictionary proofreading is even more difficult than Bible proofreading.

There is a tradition that a man who read proofs of the Lord's Prayer for that Oxford edition went insane out of fear lest he made a blunder in it.—

MOTHERCRAFT.

The Wisdom of Treating a Child as if He Had Feelings.

Don't consider it necessary to systematically underrate your child. Your adult friends will know you do not mean it, but the child will not, and probably more characters are weakened by the lack of self confidence engendered by such a process than by the vanity which follows the silly bragging of overfond parents.

Don't think that the moment you are alone with your boy or girl you must find fault or endeavor to improve the occasion by a little moralizing, no matter in how loving a spirit. This is the hardest don't of all, for no one is so anxious to help a child toward perfection as is the parent, yet it surely leads to an avoidance of the moments alone together, which should be times of happy confidences.

Don't correct the child before others. Never mind if a well meaning relative does say, "My dear, I am surprised that you do not show more force of character; your children are suffering from a lack of discipline." Pass the matter over until you and the small offender can have it out alone. If the circumstances are such that it cannot be passed over take him out of the room.

Lastly, laugh often, with, but never at, your child. This takes self denial, but it pays. Make up your mind that whatever others may say, he can depend upon you for a quick, sure understanding, without quibble or joke at his expense. This does not mean that he must not take his share of harmless fun. It is wholesome, and too much sheltering would make him oversensitive; but the mother who lets her child know that she never makes fun of him will be surprised at the confidence with which he relies upon it.—Mother's Magazine.

Economy in Curtains.

The best cheap material for the window curtains of a little summer cottage may be found in the common five cent cheesecloth. This has a texture which is more attractive than many handsomer materials, and it has the added charm of washing well, though extra length should be allowed in the hems and casings for shrinking.

Larded Sweetbreads.

Put them in cold water, remove the pipes and membranes; cook them in boiling salted water with one tablespoonful of lemon juice twenty minutes and plunge into cold water to harden; dry, lard them with strips of salt pork and bake until brown, basting with brown stock. Serve with peas.

Potato Drum.

Press three cupfuls of mashed potatoes through a sieve, add three tablespoonfuls of butter, half a teaspoonful of salt and the beaten yolks of three eggs. Shape with the fingers into the form of a drum, brown in the oven and serve with parsley stuck in the top.

Why He Knew.

"Are you sure that your wife is coming in on this train?"

"No doubt about it. They just told me it was three-quarters of an hour behind time."

The White of an Egg.

The white of an egg is made up of little cells filled with albumen. By beating the white these cells are ruptured and oxygen from the air is inclosed, which gives the white and light appearance to beaten eggs. The white of a stale egg will not inclose as much oxygen, will not be as light and as easily digested as that of the fresh egg and, of course, less valuable. The importance of beating the egg in cold, pure air is readily seen.

A Mystery.

How is it that a manacled convict can escape unhurt by leaping from a train running at the rate of thirty miles an hour when every time the average citizen slips in alighting from a car he injures himself so severely that the railway company must pay him big damages?

Mixed the Streets.

The dovetailing of the new city plan of 1907-11 on the old line of New York streets resulted in a curious confusion whereby Fourth street crossed both Tenth and Eleventh streets. A fourth dimensional achievement, which ought to stagger the brainiest of mathematicians.—Exchange.

The Criterion.

"I dined at my fiancee's home yesterday."

"No doubt they regard you as one of the family by now, don't they?"

"Not yet. They haven't quite reached the point where they bawl me out if I make a spot on the tablecloth."

Dreams As Omens.

From the earliest times recorded in history men have believed in the prophetic character of dreams. So far as we know, the first to deliberately, and systematically attempt the interpretations of dreams was Amphyctyon of Athens, who lived about the year 1490 B. C. The Bible mentions dreams in many places, and we are entitled to conclude from the Biblical references that there were professional interpreters of dreams who were not infrequently resorted to by the dreamers.—Exchange.

"The Man who Keeps Cool" may not be a good politician, but he has solved the problem of comfort and contentment. He starts the day right by eating Shredded Wheat Biscuit with milk or cream. He eats it for luncheon with berries, sliced bananas or other fruits. He makes Shredded Wheat his "meat" in the hot days. It is ready-cooked, ready-to-eat.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S SHIRT WAIST.

By Anabel Worthington.

There are women who do not care for the sports model in a shirt waist in the striped effects that are so popular, yet who want a comfortable, carefree style that will be not too far removed from the class of waist that has such great favor; for them we suggest the model shown in the illustration No. 7,843.

There is a characteristic quality to it that will readily win a woman to making it in the combination effect in her own size during an afternoon—it will take less time and less energy than would be required in looking for one in the shops and there will be ever so much more satisfaction in having a blouse with unusual features that really conforms to one's own figure.

Not just because it slips on over the head does it resemble a "middy," but there is further relationship suggested by the treatment of the fronts, giving revers that roll for a low neck, and the cloth covered buttons in double row in the fashion that a middy blouse laces in front. The shoulder fronts are gathered and the back fulness is gathered under a stay belt at the waistline. The sleeves are quite full, with a wide cuff in contrasting goods to match the collar and other "trim" of the waist.

The pattern of this waist, No. 7,843, is cut in sizes 36 to 42 inches bust measure. To make in size 36 will require 2⅛ yards of 36 inch material and ⅝ yard of 30 inch contrasting goods.

You may obtain the pattern by sending to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

Address—The Examiner Pattern Service, The Examiner, Peterborough.

PRUDENCE IN EATING.

Healthful Diet For a Person of Indoor Occupation.

In the American Magazine Dr. E. F. Bowers gives a diet suited to the average wealthy person of indoor occupation.

"An ordinary domestic egg equals about eight grams of protein. This is approximately the amount contained in a cubic inch of steak or in a half pint glass of milk. A generous slice of bread contains about four grams of protein. The quantity of potatoes ordinarily dispensed at a meal equals two and a half grams.

"Allowing for our inability completely to extract all the protein from any given amount of food and convert it into assimilable pabulum, a liberal modicum of albumen would be twice Hindhede's protein formula, or fifty grams—this, remember, for an entire day.

"Therefore a regular egg, five ounces of beefsteak and a glass of milk should supply for twenty-four hours all the protein the system requires. The balance of the diet should consist of starches, sugars, fats and plenty of cellulose or hay. This can best be found in vegetables, such as tomatoes, carrots, celery, turnips, beets, lettuce, squash and all that grand group of horse foods containing much fiber and little nutriment.

"Try this regimen for awhile and see if fermentation, headache, insomnia, rheumatism, nervousness and "that tired feeling" do not disappear like snow upon the desert's dusty face. And, when they do, remember that the chances of later developing Bright's disease, hardening of the arteries and heart failure have been reduced to the irreducible minimum.

"The eating game is the most important in life."

CHIMNEYS ON LAMPS.

Why They Prevent the Lighted Wicks From Smoking.

When a lamp is burning without a chimney it generally smokes. That is because the oil which is coming up through the wick is being only partially burned. The carbon, which is about one-half of what the oil contains, is not being burned at all and goes off into the air in little black specks with the gases which are thrown off. The reason the carbon is not burned when the chimney is off is that there is not sufficient oxygen from the air combining with it as it is separated from the oil in the partial combustion that is going on.

To make the carbon in the oil burn you must mix it with plenty of oxygen at a certain temperature, and this can only be done by forcing sufficient oxygen through the flame to bring the heat of the flame to the point where the carbon will combine with it and burn.

When you put the chimney on the lamp you create a draft which forces more oxygen through the flame, brings the heat up to the proper temperature and enables the carbon to combine with it and burn. When you take the chimney off again the heat goes down when the draft is shut off and the lamp smokes again.

The chimney also protects the flame of the lamp from drafts from the sides and above and helps to make a brighter light, because a steady light is brighter than a flickering one.

The draft created by the chimney also forces the gases produced by the burning oil up and away from the flame. Some of these gases have a tendency to put out a light or a fire.

The Septuagint.

Septuagint means seventy. The septuagint version of the Old Testament originated, according to Aristeas, as follows: Ptolemy Philadelphus (284-247 B. C.) when engaged in making a collection of the laws of all nations for the great Alexandrine library was advised by his librarian to have the Jewish Scripture translated into Greek, and the king had the work done by seventy (or seventy-two) learned Jews from Jerusalem. The letter of Aristeas is probably mythical, but the substance of the story it tells is probably quite true.

The Term "Bully."

The term bully in the days of Shakespeare had quite a different meaning from that which it has at present, being an expression of endearment and good fellowship. Some suppose that the word, when it is used in approval, is derived from the Dutch boel or German buhle, which stands for the English lover. The harsher use of the word is, however, to be traced to bellow, the root of bull, with a significance of noisy blustering.

Paying For the Bait.

Husband—Here's an enormous bill for a ball dress. What does it mean? Wife—Ah, you remember that green robe I wore at the ball at which I was introduced to you last year. Husband—S-o! Do you mean to say, then, that I am to pay for the trap in which I was caught?—London Telegraph.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON QUESTIONS

The Word of the Cross. I Cor. 1:1, 2:5.

Golden Text: Far be it from me to glory, save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, Gal. 6:14.

1. Verses 1-8. If a true Christian is a labourer, or a lawyer, a minister, or a miner, or of any other calling or occupation, can he truthfully say, or not, and why, that he is in his present position by "the will of God?"

2. Who are the "sanctified in Jesus Christ?" Are you one of them?

3. Do all true Christians speak as affectionately to others as Paul did, and if not, why not?

4. How many Christians live a "blameless" life?

5. Verses 9-11. How much may a true Christian business man actually bank upon the faithfulness of God in connection with his business?

6. How much may any Christian trust to the faithfulness of God, for success in time and eternity, for him self and all who are his?

7. To what extent does God expect all true Christians to be of the same opinion in politics, philisophy, theology and other matters?

8. Verses 9-11. Show how it is possible to hold the same opinions and still be divided in heart, and to hold different opinions and be one in heart.

9. If two men are contentious, that is, bitter toward each other, can you say or not, and why, that neither of them is a Christian?

10. Verses 12-16. When a church is contentious, as here described by Paul, by what kind of argument can you show that it is a Christian Church?

11. If two men actually quarrel over the proper subjects, or the mode of Christian baptism, why are they not followers of Satan?

12. Verses 17-25. What is the origin of baptism, and what is its object?

13. If a preacher shows profound scholarship, and masterly eloquence in the pulpit, would that or not, and why, be contrary to Paul's idea of preaching the Gospel, and would it be apt to make converts there and then?

14. Paul seems to argue that a display of human wisdom in preaching the Gospel, would obscure the simple story of the cross; is he right, or wrong, and why?

15. Verses 17-25. Why is salvation through Jesus' death on the cross foolishness to worldly-wise men?

16. What is the "power of God" which the 'saved' experience, and through which the wisdom and love of God are seen in the cross of Christ?

17. Why is it that the wisdom of the ages has been so important to save men from their sins, while belief in a crucified Saviour has been all powerful to do this?

1. Verses 26-31. Why is it that wealth and wisdom are generally a hindrance to salvation through the cross, nd that the lowly in heart only can be saved?

19. Chap. 2:1-5. From your observatio of the average preacher, would you say or not, and why, that he trusts more in supernatural power, for the success of his message than he does in the force of his sermons?

2. In educating young men for the ministry which should be emphasized—intellectual development or dependence upon the power of the Holy Spirit, and why?

TRY MAGNESIA FOR STOMACH TROUBLE

It Neutralizes Stomach Acidity—Prevents Food Fermentation.

Doubtless if you are a sufferer from indigestion, you have already tried pepsin, bismuth, soda, charcoal, drugs and various digestive aids and you know these things will not cure your trouble—in some cases do not even give relief.

But before giving up hope and deciding you are a chronic dyspeptic, just try the effect of a little magnesia—not the ordinary carbonate, citrate, oxide or milk but the pure bisurated magnesia which you can obtain from practically any druggist in either powdered or tablet form. Take a teaspoonful of the powder or two compressed tablets with a little water after your next meal, and see what a difference this makes. It will instantly neutralise the dangerous, harmful acid in your stomach which now causes your food to ferment and sour, making gas, wind, flatulence, heartburn and the bloated or heavy hampy feeling that seems to follow most everything you eat.

You will find that, provided you take a little bisurated magnesia immediately after a meal you can eat almost anything, and enjoy it without any danger of pain or discomfort to follow and moreover the continued use of the bisurated magnesia cannot injure the stomach in any way so long as there are any symptoms of acid indigestion.

SECONDHAND GLASS.

The salvage glass industry is of such importance and extent that many dealers in secondhand glass specialise in one branch or another. Some, for instance, handle only plate glass that comes to them by reason of the demolition of old buildings, razed to make place for new structures. Salvage glass of this sort brings prices not far below those of new glass.

A considerable quantity of the salvage glass dealer's stock emanates from the plate glass insurance companies. The methods of these companies in taking over glass vary. One concern may keep no stock on hand, simply buying whatever is required to replace a broken pane, disposing of the broken glass, if enough remains to be sold, to the salvage dealer. Sometimes a company will have a warehouse of its own, to which it will remove broken glass that may still be in condition to use. Frequently it will happen that only one corner has been broken from a large pane and that this may be cut down to fit a smaller window.

Most plate glass is insured, but there is much that is not. In the case of an uninsured plate that is broken the owner must, of course, go to a dealer for a new plate. He will sell the broken plate to the salvage dealer. It follows therefore that from insurance companies, from building wreckers and from owners of uninsured glass the salvage glass dealers accumulate great quantities of secondhand plate glass. Much of this is in such a condition that it may be reset anywhere. Should the injury consist, for instance, of simply a deep scratch in the center it is easy to make that plate salable. The secondhand dealer cuts out a strip containing the scratch and thus have left two smaller plates, quite suitable for smaller windows.

When injured plate glass is too much scratched to be available for windows it is sometimes made into ground or frosted glass for office partitions or doors. Salvage plate glass too small for use in windows is employed for the glass doors of refrigerators, and larger pieces are utilized in the making of glass table tops. Small fragments go to the making of hand mirrors, although only clear pieces may be so employed. Other pieces, too small for other purposes, enter into the manufacture of glass signs.

Eventually, when the last piece of merchantable glass has been cut from the damaged piece, there remain the scraps and fragments accumulated in the cutting. Even these have their uses, although they do not bring much. They are melted and used in the manufacture of bottles.

Men Who Fear Opportunity.

In the American Magazine Hugh S. Fullerton says:

"Thousands of us who are making fairly comfortable livings for families pass plain turning points, refusing to turn or to attack the opening, through sheer timidity. There is no class so timid as the man with a family, who refuses to change because he fears he will risk the small sum he has accumulated to educate the children and provide for the family in case of his death. Ninety-nine out of a hundred men in this class keep straight ahead when they see a turning point clearly."

Not Easy to Explain.

"That boy of mine is always asking questions."

"Oh, well, perhaps he wants to learn something."

"Maybe so, but his inquisitiveness is rather distressing to me at times."

"Yes?"

"He insists on being told what his mother means when she calls me a 'jelly fish,' a 'matrimonial misfit' and a 'human tank.'"

Keep In Harness Until You Drop.

Getting His Orders.

"So you're summoned as a witness, hey? Now you be keerful."

"Keerful about what?"

"I see a judge rebuked a man fer not coming into court with clean hands. Look out fer that, and also be keerful to wipe your feet."

"You are getting very bald, sir," said the barber. "You, yourself," reported the customer, "are not free from a number of defects that I could mention if I cared to become personal."

To Put On Flesh and Increase Weight

Most people eat from four to six pounds of good solid fat-making food every day and still do not increase in weight one ounce, while on the other hand many of the plump, chunky folks eat very lightly and keep on gaining all the time. It's all bosh to say that this is the nature of the individual. It isn't Nature's way at all.

Most thin people stay thin because their powers of assimilation are defective. They absorb just enough of the food they eat to maintain life and a semblance of health and strength. Stuffing won't help them. A dozen meals a day won't make them gain a single "stay there" pound. All the fat-producing elements of their food just stay there in the intestines until they pass from the body as waste. What such people need is something that will prepare these fatty food elements so that their blood can absorb and deposit them all about the body—something too that will multiply their red blood corpuscles and increase their blood's carrying power.

For such a condition it is well to recommend eating a Sargol Tablet with every meal. Sargol is not, as some believe, a patented drug, but is simply a careful combination of six of the most effective and powerful assimilative and flesh-building elements known to chemistry. It is absolutely harmless yet has been wonderfully effective and a single tablet eaten with each meal often, according to reports of users, has the effect of increasing the weight of a thin man or woman from three to five pounds a week. Sargol is sold by all good druggists everywhere on a positive guarantee of weight increase or money back.

If you find a druggist who is unable to supply you, send $1.00 money order or registered letter to the National Laboratories, 74 St. Antoine St., Montreal, and a complete ten days' treatment will be sent you postpaid, in plain wrapper.

Q.'s Story.

Sir A. T. Quiller Couch, the famous novelist, whose strenuous efforts to obtain recruits has earned him so much praise tells a funny story about an old Cornish fisherman. BRITISH HOLD ALL OF DELVILLE WOOD

More Gains Are Reported For The Russians

British Drive Brandenburgers Out of The Delville Wood

More Progress Reported by General Haig---163 Prisoners Captured and Two German Counter Attacks Beaten Off With Heavy Losses to the Enemy---British Now Have the Advantage of Attacking From Higher Ground on Enemy Below Them.

RUSSIAN ADVANCE GOES ON WELL

LONDON, July 28.—British troops have driven the German Brandenburgers out of the Delville Wood, according to General Haig's report to the War Office to-day.

The British Commander-in-Chief said the Fifth Branderburgers were the Teutonic troops thus ejected from the little forested area northwest of Longueval, which has been the scene of hand-to-hand fighting for the past week.

"One hundred and sixty-three prisoners were captured in Delville Wood, the whole of which is now ours," General Haig reported. "Two German counter-attacks were beaten off with heavy losses to enemy."

Further progress at Longueval was also announced, and gains near Posieres. Near Neuve Chapelle he reported small parties of Germans entered our front trenches at two points, but were immediately driven out by a counter-attack, leaving their wounded.

British Now Have The Advantage in Position

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, July 28.—Until to-day the British troops fighting to push through in the Posieres sector have been thrusting uphill. To-day they have the advantage of fighting from above on an enemy below on lower ground. They have added the advantage of attacking an enemy unaided by natural cover and now ousted from permanent steel and concrete constructed trenches perfected in long months of the deadlock in the line. Foremost among the disadvantages of General Haig's position was the fact that the Kaiser is making super-human efforts to stem any further break in his lines. Reserves have been stripped from all along the remainder of the German front to be massed against the British, or used in desperate counter-attacks. Despatches from Verdun say the German attack there has waned into a mere ordinary assault. Experts here agree that the Kaiser will make desperate attempts in concerted counter-attacks to win back the ground wrung inch by inch almost from his soldiers by the British.

MILLBROOK PEOPLE ARE INJURED IN MOTOR CAR MISHAP

Miss Lottie Vance and Mr. J. C. Kells Hurt When Brakes Refused to Work and the Car Backed Down the Embankment

A NARROW ESCAPE

An automobile accident, in which two Millbrook people were injured, occurred yesterday on the road between Harwood and Gore's Landing, Miss Lottie Vance, of Millbrook, suffering an injury to her knee, while Mr. J. Kells, owner of the car, received an injury to one of his ribs.

A number of the car owners of St. Thomas' Anglican Church were bringing a crowd from Millbrook to Gore's Landing to spend the day beside the lake.

Mr. J. C. Kells, accompanied by Mr. Alf. Needler, Miss Lottie Vance and Miss Vance, daughters of Judge Vance, of Barrie, motored on to Harwood to meet the Peterborough crowd taking in the business men's excursion, which ran to Harwood yesterday afternoon.

On their return to the Landing, while ascending one of the steep hills along the Lake road, the brakes of the car refused to work, with the result that the car backed down the road to an embankment and upset with the party.

All the party received a severe shaking up, but Miss Lottie Vance and Mr. Kells were the only injured members of the party. Miss Vance was taken back home to Millbrook, but Mr. Kells remained in Gore's Landing to receive medical attention.

COOLER WEATHER IS ON THE WAY

To day's Temperature Did Not Exceed Eighty-seven Degrees

Eighty-seven degrees is the maximum temperature for to-day. This is a drop of eight degrees from the high water mark for the week. Two days ago the extremely high temperature of ninety-five degrees was reached. The rest of the week the thermometer hovered around ninety-three degrees. There is every reason to believe that the hot spell is at an end for a time at least. Cooler weather, accompanied by rain, is looked for for the remainder of the month.

It is hard to fail, but it is worse never to have tried to succeed.—Theodore Roosevelt.

PTES. PARRINGTON AND CROFTS UNOFFICIALLY REPORTED PRISONERS

Names of Local Men Appear in List From Ottawa---93rd Battalion Are Now in Camp in England---Special Service Battalion at Barriefield a Good Opportunity For Men Slightly Unfit---To-day's Military News.

To-day's official casualty list contains the announcement that two more Peterboro members of the 8th C.M.R. are unofficially reported prisoners of war in Germany. The two are Pte. Ernest H. Crofts of Burnham St., East City, and Pte. Arnold Parrington, of Aylmer Street.

Lt. A. B. Mills of the 235th Batt., Bowmanville, was a visitor at his home in this city to-day for a short time

That the 93rd Batt. have arrived at Opperboll Camp, in England, is the announcement received by the Bonner-Worth Company in a cable from Lt. Worth, of the 93rd Batt., who is a member of the firm.

Barriefield, July 27.—The "Special Service Battalion" organised at Barriefield camp, is proving to be one of the best institutions of its kind ever organised. The lines of the 109th Battalion have been taken over, and all the men who were not able to pass the final medical examinations have been taken on its strength. They will be given drill until experts in guard work, and will take over these duties, thus relieving soldiers training for the front.

This Special Service Battalion is in the nature of a base unit that has a varying strength. At present there are about 90 men on its rolls, but a few of these are being discharged.

With such strenuous recruiting campaigns being carried on through the country during the past fall and winter, hundreds of men were taken on and afterwards had to be rejected through slight physical defects. In cases where the men are over age they have to be either discharged or used in home service work in Canada. The S. S. Battalion at the camp has some five or six men on its rolls that have sacrificed two, three and four sons to the service of the empire. Their true British hearts will not let them sit idle, and they have offered themselves for the defence of the front line trenches. Some have been taken on, even though far past the age limit, and the secret of their ages having now got out they have been rejected for overseas. Still persistent in helping the cause they have volunteered to do anything that was possible for them to do, and allow others to go forward. Men of this class have been taken on the strength of the S. S. Battalion, when discharged from other units about to go overseas.

The thousands of cases where boys under 18 years of age have enlisted for overseas, are taken care of by an organization of this kind. Instead of sending them home they are kept on. They are valuable for guard duty and if not too young may still have a chance at the Huns.

The medically unfit men who have been the cause of such an amount of unpleasant publicity since the war broke out, are in this unit. Through no fault of theirs they are unable to go overseas. Having once passed the doctor's examination they have been drilling honestly and faithfully, confidently hoping that they would go to the front with their unit. A final and more strict medical examination unearthed their unfitness, and instead of being discharged they have been put on the rolls of this unit. In many cases an operation and hospital treatment will fit them again, and this matter will be attended to, so that they can go overseas at some future time.

The officers of this unique battalion are: Capt. W. J. Thorne, in command; Lieuts. A. M. Scott, D. R. Bissonett (paymaster); J. C. McQuarrie and G. . Potts. All were with the 109th.

SOLDIER DIED ON TRAIN.

Ottawa, July 27.—Private Sullivan of No. 1 Construction Battalion, a Toronto soldier, died while asleep on board a troop train en route from Toronto to Valcartier, this morning. The body was taken off the train here. It is thought death was due to heart failure.

RECRUITING NEAR JAMES BAY.

Cobourg, July 27.—Lieut. E. Mason McCarthy, formerly of Elk Lake, who is well-known here, has left with two Indian guides for James Bay, where he hopes to recruit a company of Indians. Lieut. McCarthy has been engaged in recruiting since April last with much success for the 228th overseas Battalion.

TERM FOR DESERTERS.

Kingston, July 27.—Andrew Bishop and John A. Courtney, members of the 130th Battalion, who were committed some time ago on the charges of deserting and of theft from the golf house at Perth, appeared before Judge Lavell, yesterday, charged with being absent without leave from their battalion, the theft charge not being pressed. Both pleaded guilty. They both stated that they had given themselves up at Arnprior to an officer of their battalion, although they were brought to Barriefield Camp under an armed escort. They stoutly denied that they were guilty of theft. Their past records, however, told against them, and they were given three months in jail with hard labour. They have already been almost six weeks in jail on remand.

London, July 27.—Lord Tennyson, writing to the Times, encloses a letter of an English staff officer in France, which says: "The Canadians have done wonderfully well. We are proud of fighting with them, and of the way they fought to recover lost trenches. It was a lesson to every one of us which we shall never forget. They are a most hospitable, self-denying lot and will share the last crust or drop of water with any of us who need it. I have the greatest admiration for them after the recent fighting."

The Kingston Standard says: — Complaint has been made that commanding officers in camp are not allowing their men to take part in the harvest, which is scarcely true. It is not the duty of the commanding officer to go around among his men and urge them to leave camp and take "farm furlough." ..or is it the place of a commanding officer to compel any man asked for by a farmer, to go. In each case a soldier must ask for the privilege, and the farmer must assume certain responsibilities connected with the furlough of the man required. Officers in camp have complied with regulations in this matter, and have insisted that the soldier ask for hay harvest privilege, and have also insisted, according to their instructions from headquarters, that the farmer shall sign an agreement as to the treatment and return, of the farm hand secured. In all cases commanding officers have protected the interests of their men by insisting that a fair wage be paid. Farmers have offered as low as ten dollars a month, while others have been willing to pay $50 a month for help. In many cases, men who have been discharged from the service because of slight physical defects have been refused by farmers seeking help. This is also true of men who have been discharged because they were over the age limit for overseas service. Farmers have been insisting on the pick of the battalions in most cases.

To such an extent have the officers of Barriefield camp complied with the request for farm help, that one battalion has nearly 400 men on "farm furlough," and another battalion has over 200. With so many men on "farm furlough" and special details, one battalion turned out on parade yesterday with only six platoons instead of sixteen platoons. Farm help has been conceded to such an extent in Barriefield camp, that it is seriously interfering with training, and commanding officers scarcely know what to do.

Czar's Forces Are Nearing Brody With Heavy Fighting Twelve Miles to the North and Six Miles to the North-east.

TEUTONS OUTNUMBERED

LONDON, July 27.—The Russian forces in Volhynia are closing in on Brody, the key position to Lemberg. Heavy fighting is now in progress south of Leszniow, 12 miles north of Brody, and in the vicinity of Radsiviloff, six miles to the northeast of the stronghold.

Brody lies in Northeastern Galicia, and is regarded as one of the strongest points on the line guarding Lemberg. Its fall would force a general retirement of the Teutonic forces in Galicia.

Austria admits officially that the Teutons have withdrawn before the heavy attacks around Brody by superior Russian forces, but asserts that heavy losses have been inflicted on the foe.

Meantime the Austrians have launched an offensive north of the Prislip ridge in Southern Bukowina. They have forced a passage of the Czarny Czermosh River, capturing the heights beyond. Counter-attacks by the Russians have bene repulsed in this sector.

Field Marshal Von Hindenburg is pressing a violent counter-attack in the north, while another important battle is being waged around the railway town of Baranovitchi, farther to the south.

Petrograd to-night reports that between July 16 and 26 the troops of Gen. Sakharog captured 34,000 Austrian-Germans, 45 cannon and 71 machine guns. The prisoners taken in Tuesday's battle alone, numbered 128 officers and 6,250 men.

Teutons Outnumbered.

A despatch from Lausanne, Switzerland, says:

Carefully sifted information to-day shows that the Germans had on the eastern front about 900,000 and the Austrians 900,000, of whom they are said already to have lost some 800,000.

The total of the Russian forces under the orders of General Kuropatkin and General Brussiloff equals 187 divisions of infantry and thirty-six divisions of cavalry, or 2,740,0000 bayonets and 162,000 sabres, or a total of 2,902,000 men. General Brussiloff's army alone equals 1,175,000 men.

CLEVER RESCUE AT CHEMONG PARK 25 YARDS OFF SHORE

Mr. Russell Copping of the Brinton Carpet Co. Overcome by Heat While Swimming—Mr. Joseph Wearing Reached Him

BOTH WERE COLLECTED

While swimming at Chemong Park yesterday afternoon, Mr. Russell Copping, of the Brinton Carpet Co., was suddenly overcome with a weak spell, which rendered him helpless, and might have been attended with serious results but for the assistance of Mr. Joseph Wearing, of this city. Mr. Copping, it is understood, is a good swimmer, but was apparently affected by the heat. He was out about thirty yards when his call for help attracted Mr. Wearing swimming further out a considerable distance. Using a racing stroke, Mr. Wearing reached Mr. Copping when the latter was going down a third time, shouted encouragingly to him, and, grasping him under the arms, swam to shore. Eye-witnesses, relating the incident, praised the efforts of Mr. Wearing in covering the distance to Mr. Copping and of swimming backward with him to safety. Dr. Morgan, who is summering at the park, rendered first aid.

The incident caused considerable commotion among the Chemong colony for a time, but it quickly turned to one of relief that both the young men had come safely through an experience that is not a rarity with the best of swimmers.

Both Mr. Copping and Mr. Wearing are two prominent young men, both are good swimmers, and both displayed a highly commendable self-possession.

MOTHERS CLUB SPEND DAY AT JACKSON'S

The Soldier's Wives' and Mothers' Club held their picnic to Jackson Park this afternoon and a large number of members of this popular club spent the day in the cool, shady haunts of Peterborough's cool west end resort. The 'kiddies' were on hand in great numbers and will enjoy a day running around and playing tag in the tall grass.

THE WEATHER

There has been an agreeable change in weather conditions since yesterday. Last night the thermometer went down to 55 degrees (the lowest figures for several weeks). To-day is also cool as compared with the conditions prevailing lately. Noon temperature 84 degrees. Much warmer weather now covers the west, and we are likely to have it warmer again shortly.

Annual Picnic of Murray Street Choir

Affair Was Held Yesterday Under Auspicious Circumstances

The annual picnic of the Murray Street Baptist Church Choir was held yesterday afternoon and evening. Between thirty and forty were in attendance. In the afternoon canoeing and swimming was engaged in near the camp "Irresistible," where the party were the guests of Mr. Asa Huycke and Mr. B. Quinn, after which the choir made its way by launch to the T. A. S. park, where tea was served by the ladies. A number of invited friends went down by auto in time for tea at 7 o'clock in the evening. The stalwart craft, with Dr. Lacey at the helm, brought the party home in good time.

The choir were loud in their praise of the officers of the Total Abstinence Society who most willingly granted the use of their beautiful park and who made various arrangements for the comfort and pleasure of their guests.

Lawn Social For S. A. Boys' Band

A garden party was held last night on the lawn of Mr. R. C. Braund's residence, corner of Park and Albert streets, in aid of the Salvation Army Junior Band. There was a good attendance, and the band provided a musical programme during the evening.

HOT WEATHER FANATICS.

One of the favourite healing expedients of by-gone medical and surgical practice was the seton. It was a string passed under the skin to create a running sore to act as a counter irritant in the case of some local affection. In these days, in Canada, political extremists are employing the political seton to create, and maintain, a running sore in the body politic of the community and country. Agitators on both sides continue hammering away at the bilingual and other irritating topics, even when the mercury is hammering away at the top of the thermometer to go higher. One might hope, even with the essential depravity of human nature reckoned upon, that these industrious mischief-makers would dissolve partnership with the devil of discord, at least while the weather is otherwise dissolving melting humanity. Firebrands are bad enough at any time, but in hot weather, such as we are passing through, a firebrand is a crime. Particular reference may be permitted to Henri Bourassa and the Toronto News.

MORE GOOD MATERIAL.

With the red-hot summer air filled with idle rumours of mishaps to the transport carrying the 93rd battalion, we were all delighted with the official assurance that our Peterborough boys with their sister battalions had landed safely in England. We are not only delighted with that fact, but are proud of the feeling that the 93rd will take its place in the front rank of the splendid Canadian troops that have gone overseas. We read in to-day's despatches that decorations for brave Canadians are gazetted in London. This is to be expected. When a Canadian decorates himself with the king's uniform, he is in line for decoration for bravely bearing it and doing gallant deeds. With the arrival of the 93rd more good material for royal decorations has virtually reached the firing line. We have an added interest in the story of battle when we have in the fighting our very own—our husbands, brothers, chums, friends and acquaintances. We know that they will do their duty bravely and bring credit to the colours of the king, to their country and to themselves.

THE BLACKLIST.

The United States has been kept in hot water, and is likely to continue to be so kept by the activity of pro-German elements of its citizenship. This element has kept Uncle Sam in a state of friction, on various pretexts, wih Great Britain ever since the war began; and is now getting the United States to pull its chestnuts out of the fire in the matter of British blacklisting of certain enemy commercial and industrial firms in the United States. The element, however, wont accomplish much, because Britain and her allies are acting within their rights, and in conformity with international law, which makes trading with the enemy in war time always illegal. The United States should know this, when it is voicing by diplomatic remonstrance to Britain the complaints of the pro-Kaiser business firms of the country and should tell them that they must make a choice between friendship to Germany and injury to Britain and loss of trade by their attitude. This can be rationally done when it is recalled that in the Civil war, the United States forbade British trade with the States in rebellion, and the prohibition wrought far more suffering to the operatives of Lancashire mills, through deprival of cotton supply, than the British blacklist of to-day can do in the United States. That country can afford to accept the blacklist without wincing. It may curtail a little hardship to some hyphenated United States citizens, but the United States hasn't sacrificed much in the great struggle for human liberty and political freedom which is being waged, at the cost of much blood and treasure, as really for the United States as the lesser countries of Europe. The war is waged in the highest interests of humanity the world over. The United States is sacrificing nothing except perhaps her self respect in maintaining, in the face of the gigantic struggle, a financially profitable neutrality.

TEACHERS AND SALARIES.

Even the long drawn-out school holidays will come to an end, and school authorities are preparing for teachers for the coming year or—few months. One of the most regrettable and discouraging features of our school practice and conditions is the numerous advertisements for teachers we see every autumn in the newspapers.

Of course one can't expect the best or even good, results, from frequent change of teachers. Such changes keep the schools affected, in a constant state of reorganization and virtual disorganization. A teacher gets his or her school in smooth-running order, gets acquainted with the pupils, and their peculiarities of temperament and capability; and with a change all the work is wasted, and a new teacher has to begin all over again to adopt, perhaps, a new system which, though it may be better than its predecessor, still means disorganization and waste of time, and, consequently, waste of money, and waste of educational efforts.

Changing membership of municipal councils is one fruitful cause of unsatisfactory administrative results. And change of teachers obviously impairs the effectiveness of educational work. The anxiety of trustees to keep down salaries naturally results in getting poor teachers. A good teacher will not work for low salary. The trustees who think they are serving the interests of ratepayers by getting a teacher at low salary, are, in effect, generally doing their school and its supporters and pupils a wrong. Taking one case with another a teacher is worth the salary given. If offer of liberal salary secures a teacher it is easily possible to be assured that the teacher is worth the price.

Permanency of teachers is one of the indispensible elements of good teaching and good results. The Peterborough Board of Education has adopted the right policy in retaining teachers and, as a result, we have as far as the educational system will permit, as good schools as there are in the province.

Permanency in teaching depends upon good salaries, and good salaries will produce good teachers. Only will our teachers be of the best quality when we give salaries sufficient to make teaching a profession, and this would be helped by the adoption of the plan advocated by the Toronto News, and already adopted in many places in the United States, of providing in connection with schools a permanent residence for teachers—in the same way that a parsonage is provided for parsons in connection with their churches. Then we can expect that teachers will be encouraged to properly fit themselves and adopt teaching as a profession, and not make it a stepping stone to some profession that will yield a decent living and continuous employment. No one would employ a lawyer or a doctor who only adopted his profession as a stepping stone to something better. We should expect poor service, as we must expect from employing teachers at such beggarly salaries that they get out of the business as soon as they better themselves financially.

FUNERAL OF LATE WM. G. GALLEY

The funeral took place yesterday of the late William G. Galley from his late residence, 221 George Street. The funeral was largely attended, a large number of citizens turning out to pay their last respects to one of Peterborough's best known citizens, and one of her greatest athletes. Services at the house began at two o'clock, and were conducted by Rev. Mr. McKenzie, of the Knox Presbyterian Church.

Interment took place at Little Lake Cemetery.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. Cecil Williamson, Robert Buggs, Burnham Morphett, Hubert McCann, William English and Mr. Kenyon.

New York Stock Market

Summary of To-day's Activities on the New York Stock Exchange

Examiner Special:

NEW YORK, July 28.—The Stock Market opened with summer dullness to-day. Munitions showing some gains and Rails registering slight signs of strength. Steel was down a fraction.

Trading was light in late forenoon and early afternoon. Rails were weak following reports of even demand by beat. Canadian Pacific sold down 1 1-2.

THE REASONABLENESS OF UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE

The proposals made by the Liberals for justice to the workers of Canada are slightingly described by a partizan journal as "sob copy." Yet when tariffs are discussed, they are frequently described as the foundations of great industries and tall chimneys. Surely the condition of the workers in these industries is worthy of something more than a sneer.

Mere expressions of sympathy with the toiler would of course be worthless. But the men who met at Ottawa did not pass sympathetic resolutions. They made definite proposals, they outlined a programme which means hard work, the careful framing of legislation, and the overcoming of obstacles. Anyone who will examine the history of the legislation placed on the statute book by Lloyd George and his colleagues will realize how much labour was given to this task, and what fierce and bitter opposition was encountered.

Unemployment insurance is one of the proposals of the Ottawa conference. An instructive statement of the reasons underlying the legislation will be found in a pamphlet published in England while the struggle was impending. The essence of the problem, it is said, is the inevitable fluctuation and irregularity of work. Man cannot control the forces of nature, cannot prevent bad seasons or shortages of material. The tastes of mankind vary, so that regularity of demand can never be assured.

The only solution which will prevent distress is to bear in mind that irregularity of work need not mean irregularity of maintenance. The first duties of civilization is to pool its resources, making the fat years pay for the lean. There is a known risk of unemployment. That should be recognized and provided for, just as we insure against death or against fire. And the loss should not fall on any one class of men and women, least of all on those whose labour is the foundation of the industry, and who have no adequate means of guarding against the risk.

In the English law the risk is pooled, and the expense is divided among (1) the employer, (2) the workman, (3) the State. A law for Canada might not be precisely the same in detail as the English law, but the same great principles, the same justice and foresight could be its foundation. — Toronto Star.

How Woman Will Have Her Way, Even In The Game of Spying

The extraordinary ingenuity shown by spies in securing the plans of other nations' fortifications has been amply illustrated in the present war, although of course we know but a little part of what the spies have accomplished.

A despatch the other day said that a woman had been caught at the French frontier seeking to enter Switzerland and presumably intending to return to Germany or Austria. She was thoroughly searched by a matron, as is customary in such cases, but nothing was found.

Certain actions of hers, however, had given rise to serious suspicions and one of the cleverest officers of the French secret service was detailed to examine her. He applied several tests to her. To cut a long story short he finally obtained what he wanted by seating her undraped, tied to a chair, before a warm fire.

"Brutes, you are going to burn me alive!" she shrieked as she was forced into a chair.

"Be calm, madam," said the officer. "We only wish to admire your beautiful back."

There appeared on the lovely back of this fair haired lad an elaborate design. To the experienced eye of the officer it represented a plan of one of the most important French fortresses.

The number of guns, their sizes and positions were shown. The angles, sallies and extent of the fortifications were clearly indicated. The weak spots in the defences were made clear.

This fortress had been entirely reconstructed since the outbreak of the war and it was of vital importance to the Germans to know its present arrangements.

A German spy in France, evidently a man with military knowledge, had obtained access to the fortress. There was but slight chance of his getting home with his knowledge. He had, therefore used the young woman as an innocent looking agent.

The master spy had traced the plans on her back with a copper preparation —this liquid leaves no mark on the skin under normal conditions, but when exposed to considerable heat it shows up dark blue.

For further secrecy, it is stated, the plan of the furtress was concealed within another design in the manner described by General Sir Robert Baden-Powell in his intensely interesting book, "My Adventures as a Spy"—a work by the way that must be read by all desiring an adequate knowledge of this side of warfare.

For instance, the plan of a fortress may be concealed within the drawing of a butterfly. General Baden-Powell carried with him an illustrated book on butterflies, and from this he made what would appear to be specimens of butterflies seen in the surrounding country. Then when he had obtained the details of a fortress he drew them in among the complicated markings on the wings of a butterfly. There they would escape notice by any but the most expert "spy troppers."

The method of concealing plans of fortifications on the skin of a spy already referred to has been employed with many variations. In times of war or when suspicion of spies is very keen it is likely to be very useful. Then again women are usually called upon to carry this kind of information because they are less subject to suspicion and watchfulness.

Business Men Enjoyed The Scenery Including The Toiling Farmers

The business men, on their annual outing yesterday afternoon, lounged in the "rockers" of the Stoney Lake watching the farmers toiling in the sun reaping fall wheat, rye and barley. And to that extent was the outing the more enjoyable. It was a grand trip, and travellers who have covered the country from Victoria to St. John declared that nothing they had seen surpasses the scenery and natural beauty of the Otonabee's tortuous route, and the far spread glories of Rice Lake. This year's excursion was well attended, and at Harwood they enjoyed a fine supper. Messrs. Frank Whitehouse, J. M. Brooks, and J. E. Firth were busy with the arrangements, and the Stoney Lake's crew were all that could be desired. "Joe" Picard made a launch trip to Curtis' Point, about six miles below Idyl Wild, to visit a "drummer" friend, Mr. Billy Field, who is spending a holiday there, and just got back as the boat was about to cast off for the return trip.

PROVINCIAL HEALTH OFFICER TO OBSERVE NEW YORK PRECAUTIONS

TORONTO, July 28.—The Provincial Board of Health is sending an officer of the department to New York and Boston to observe measures that are being taken there to cope with the infantile paralysis epidemic. The disease has made its appearance in several parts of Ontario, and Major J. W. S. McCullough, Secretary of the Provincial Board of Health, and Capt. J. G. Fitzgerald left last night for Windsor in connection with the outbreak in that city.

There were no new cases of the disease in the Toronto district yesterday. Wire apparatus was introduced on all the houses in the Todmorden streets affected. This is to keep out the flies. Children coming into contact while playing and flies are said to be the chief dangers.

Nine Cases in Windsor,

Nine of the nineteen cases so far reported to the Provincial Board of Health as existing within the Province are located in the Windsor district. The three latest cases reported by Dr. G. R. Cruikshank, Medical Health Officer of Windsor, are the two children of Dr. A. J. Menard of Windsor, one of whom, two years old, was taken ill on Saturday last while the family was at the summer residence in Sandwich East. When Dr. Menard recognized the symptoms as those of the dread disease he isolated the other child, six months old. The other Windsor case just reported is the six-year-old daughter of James Robinson. The family has been placed under surveillance and strict quarantine. It is understood that these are three other suspected cases in Windsor. Another case has developed in St. Catharines, from which city a fatality from the disease was reported last Monday. The new case is that of the twelve-year-old daughter of Samuel Preston. The child was in the best of health on Monday. On Tuesday she became ill and yesterday was removed to the Isolation Hospital. The family were placed under quarantine.

An instance has been reported of a doctor refusing to attend a child after its disease was diagnosed as infantile paralysis. It is stated that there is nothing to compel a medical practitioner to give medical service unless he desires to do so.

Too Many Families Going to England

London, July 28.—At the Canadian Red Cross yesterday Lady Drummond said there were too many Canadian soldiers' families coming to England. A man wounded or invalided out is sent direct to Canada while the family remain in England for lack of funds to return and are practically stranded.

Pergolas add much to the beauty of the house grounds.

A small hand forge is often very handy on the farm. In many cases it will pay for itself the first year.

The Deutschland Has In Hold $4,000,000 In Gold

BALTIMORE, Md., July 26.—Besides a cargo of nickel and rubber the German undersea merchantman, the Deutschland will carry to Germany $4,000,000 in gold, possibly a large part of the treasure of the interned North German Lloyd steamship Kronprinzessin Cecile, now at Boston. This gold, in many small sacks, is aboard the Deutschland, having been stowed away on Thursday by the stevedores. At the time it was announced that the canvas sacks contained nickel. The stevedores believed this while handling it. Because of this treasure and the apparently impossibility of the Eastern Forwarding Company obtaining insurance at a reasonable rate, the Deutschland is yet at her slip on the Patapsco side of Locust Point.

Coincident with this it will be recalled that it was on Thursday that extra precautions in guarding the submarine were taken by the officials of the Eastern Forwarding Company. The special police guard was increased in the vicinity of the warehouse and pier, and the tug Thomas F. Timmins, which awaited and conveyed the submarine from the Capes to Baltimore, towed around the submersible four large, closed barges, thus cutting of all view of the vessel and the work being done on the pier.

The gold was brought to Baltimore by rail and stored on the pier of the Eastern Forwarding Company under armed guard. Later, the sacks of gold were taken from the car in which they were brought to the pier and wheeled on trucks to the submarine, to be stowed away in secret compartments.

The negotiations for underwriting the insurance on this treasure have not been abandoned by the officials of the Easter Forwarding Company. They are et hoping that marine underwriters will consent to a premium much under that asked.

Waiting For the Bremen.

Captain Koenig has told his officers and some close friends that he will not leave until the Bremen, sister ship of the Deutschland, is safe in American waters. This vessel was expected to-day but did not arrive.

Not only are the officials of the Eastern Forwarding Company maintaining a close watch on the submarine, but agents of the Allied Powers are also watchful. A short distance from the submarine are a corps of Secret Service agents representing England France and Russia. It is their duty to keep the Deutschland under close surveillance day and night.

How it was possible for the Deutschland to cross the Atlantic and keep in touch with her home ports by means of wireless without detection has also been discovered. The Deutschland is equipped with a new kind of wireless, a German invention, that is part of the equipment of all German submersible's apparatus. So fine can these instruments be tuned that other stations cannot pick up the messages. Not even the powerful stations at Sayville or Tuckerton can tune with the submersible except at the will of the commander of the submarine. However, the operator of the Deutschland can pick up all messages sent by other stations and vessels. It is also said that the apparatus on the Deutschland can drown out any station sending.

Water Line No Test of Load.

Since the Deutschland has been at her slip it has been impossible to tell how far she was loaded. When she came in she was drawing seventeen feet of water, according to the figures on her bow. As her cargo was taken off by the stevedores, instead of rising, as any other vessel would, she remained at the same mark. She is still drawing seventeen feet of water. In explanation of this one of the officers of the submersible told a friend of the strategy that is being employed to prevent outsiders from knowing how the work of loading is progressing. For every ton of cargo that was taken from the vessel a ton of water was taken aboard by means of the submerging apparatus, thus keeping the boat at a permanent level. When all of the cargo was removed the vessel was drawning seventeen feet, as when fully laden.

When the submarine was loaded for the trip to America, and when loaded for the return trip, particular pains were taken to overload the bow compartments. By reason of this the craft can be submerged in record time. The water rushing into the submerging tanks weighs down the bow and the vessel plunges under the surface within less than two minutes.

Captain Koenig's statement that he will not leave until he hears from the Bremen is taken as most significant. With the patrol of allied war ships that are on duty off the three mile limit every precaution is taken. Should anything befall the Beremen and result in her not making her port on this side of the Atlantic the Deutschland will remain here until after the war. Capt. Koenig is not going to take any chances of losing his vessel and possibly causing the death of himself and crew.

PARALYZED LIMBS.

To-day it is sleeplessness, headaches, digestive trouble, and irritability. Next thing you know some form of paralysis has developed. Mr. Alex. Honsberger, 19 Moore Street, St. Catharines, Ont., writes: "Nervous trouble developed into paralysis of the limbs so that I became helpless. Doctors failed me, but after using ten boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I resumed work and now feel better than I did for twenty years."

Prepared for the Hint.—A witty young doctor, being called to attend a very pretty lady, ad finding little the matter with her, humorously suggested marriage as the only cure. "You are single, are you not?" she asked. "Yes, Madam; but doctors only prescribe remedies, they do not take them," was the reply.

PUZZLED THE POET

The Societies Formed to Study Browning's Works.

HE DIDN'T FEEL FLATTERED.

Thought it Peculiar That it Required Organized Effort to Understand His Genius—An Afternoon Tea and a Story About Tennyson.

In her book "Pleasures and Palaces" Princess Lazarovich-Hrebellanovich, formerly Eleanor Calhoun of California, who as a young woman won fame as an actress abroad, gives this story of her meeting with the poet Browning:

The revealing charm of London lay not alone in making acquaintance with those who "dwell in marble halls" (in England, be it said, they are not marble, but sculptured wood or sculptured stone and ancient tapestry), but in that vast universe of houses, big and small, whose lights glimmer softly through hazy atmosphere or blink morosely in the fog, where the aristocrats of genius also rove. On certain days, from gray and dull, the place suddenly brightened into a new enchantment, as into my picture there came along some poet or painter, some writer of novels or other great one whose name since childhood had made my heart flutter like the yellow poppies on the California hills.

In response to the invitation, "Won't you come in for a cup of tea with us on Wednesday afternoon?" I had gone to the house of a new acquaintance, finding in reality a crush of fashionables in her drawing room. She put me into a seat and introduced me to an old lady on my right and an old gentleman on my left, both of whom looked very bright and alive.

At the names my heart thumped. I was wedged in between them.

"I surely have a lucky star," I said, "to think of my good fortune in being placed just here!"

Browning said:

"I am always glad to meet Americans; they are so appreciative, only in one way they're worse even than our people here. I think I may say that the thing that puzzles me most in the world is the Browning society, and America seems full of Browning societies."

"That shows how much you mean to America," I ventured.

"H-m, yes," he answered dryly. "It isn't very flattering to think you can't be understood without the aid of organized effort." He was very sweet and laughed at himself.

I mentioned Tennyson. Old Mrs. Procter said: "Look sharp. He does not love Americans. I simply adore Lowell, and Tennyson is one of my dearest. I've tried in a hundred ways to have him meet Lowell, but he answers like a brute. I'll not give up, though. Lowell wrote me a poem on my birthday. I thought that would fetch Alfred, so I took it down to Haziemere, flirted it before his face.

"'You shan't read it,' I said. He grunted. I folded it up and stuffed it into my pocket and said, 'I'm back to town.' He pouted like a naughty child, seized my hand and growled:

"'You may read it.'

"'Oh, no, never,' I said. He finally insisted. 'Well, since you beg me to, it begins like this: "I know a girl, they say she is eighty"'—I paused. '—familiar!' snorted Alfred, never cracking a smile." The old lady chuckled. "But he's an angel all the same, they're both angels."

In the midst of our talk somebody began to play a long classical piece on the piano. Everybody said, "'Sh!" Browning, who was in great vein, whispered, "I abominate piano players—murderers of conversation." It was cruel; the piano ran the whole gamut of its possibilities for half an hour. Mrs. Procter and Browning rolled their eyes at each other and at me as if in agony. At last it stopped. Browning applauded frantically, holding out his hands and looking back over his shoulder at us, while he began to say, "Thank God, it's over! I must tell you about the strangest experience I ever had. It was in France"—Just then the pianist began an encore. Browning almost groaned: "What's she doing? You don't think she is going to"—

"Yes," I said, "you applauded so hard she had to begin again."

"God forgive me!" he wailed. "Never again will I commit that error."

Girls in Guatemala.

None of the maidens in Guatemala are allowed to go abroad from their homes without the company of a chaperon, and a lover is only allowed to come and court his sweetheart through the heavily barred windows of her father's home. After they are married they pass along the streets in Indian file, the woman marching ahead, so that the husband can be in a position to prevent any flirtations.

A Fizzle.

"My speech fell flat."

"You told me you had rehearsed it until you could say it either backward or forward."

"I had. But I started in backward and couldn't switch."

GIRLS FIND TRIPLE DEATH MYSTERY IN GOLF CLUB

CHICAGO, Ill., July 25—Miss Marjorie C. McIntosh, of Lake Forest, and Miss Isabella Burrill, of Geneva, N.Y., who is stopping with her, discovered a triple death mystery on the grounds of the Onwentsia Country Club. They found the bodies of an unidentified man, a woman and a baby. A lake county coroner's jury later said that the man had shot his child, his wife and himself.

The two young women went for a canter over the Skokie Valley. They were on the Onweentsia Club's bridle path when Miss McIntosh's horse shied. She saw a man and woman sprawled on the grassy bank of the roadway, covered by the underbrush.

"At first," said Miss McIntosh, at the home of Franklin P. Smith, "I thought they were asleep. Then we saw what had happened and rode right up to the Onwentsia Club and told the watchman.

Neither the police nor the undertaker were able to establish the identity of the man, woman and child. The nearest they could come to it was to get the initials of the dead man from his hat, which was sold by Baldwin, in Flint, Michigan. These initials are "L. A. C." They were stamped in the band. Chief of Police McGure telegraphed to Flint for information.

According to Miss Hannah Jensen, keeper of a boarding house at Lake Forest, who was one of the more important witnesses called at the inquest in the afternoon, the "L." in "L. A. C." must have stood for Lloyd, because that was the name by which the woman called the man during the few days that they stayed at her house, at No. 88 Western Avenue.

"They came to my house last Thursday," said Miss Jensen, "and I never did know what their last names were. They did not seem to tell much about themselves.

"The man was called Lloyd. I would say that he was about twenty-five years old. The woman was called Norma, and she was about twenty. She wore a wedding a ring. The baby was named Arthur, and he was six months old, she said.

"They treated him just terrible, especially the man. The baby was nice and did not cry any more than a baby should, but the other morning at breakfast the man quarrelled with the woman about it and gave it an awful spanking.

Quarrelled All the Time.

"The man and women were quarrelling all the time, but it seemed to be chiefly about the baby.

"When they came to my house they had only a brown suitcase, and I found out that there was not anything in it except clothes for the baby. The men told me he was a bookkeper in the Buick automobile factory at Flint and that he and his wife and child were on a short vacation."

The Coroner's jury did not summon Miss McIntosh or her friend to testify and their names were not mentioned by the witnesses at the inquest.

Ques.: "Have you any competitors?"

Ans.: "Of course."

Ques.: "Do you buy as carefully as they do?"

Ans.: "I guess so."

Ques.: "How about working time—do you buy that as cheaply as your competitors do?"

Ans.: "I don't know but I'd like to know very much."

Ques.: "Why not investigate? Ten to one you'll find your biggest, keenest competitor is using International Time Recorders. That's the way to get every cent of every minute of time you pay for. Huns Starving French In Town They Occupy Meat $2.65 Per Pound

A vivid touch of conditions in the French occupied towns is given in a letter which Messrs. Robson and Foster, of Montreal, have received from F. Sartorius, a correspondent in Wimille, France.

"At Roubaix" (one of the French occupied towns), Mr. Sartorius writes, "the Germans are simply starving the people, who eat horse and dog flesh." He gives the following prices of food in Roubaix:

Meat, per lb.	$2.65
Potatoes, per lb.	15
Butter	1.70
Eggs, each	12
Sugar, per lb.	72
Milk (small tin)	76
Chocolate	1.50
Flour	33

"Nearly ten thousand girls," the letter continues, "were taken away one night to Germany — 5,700 from Lille, 2,000 from Roubaix and 2,000 from Tourcoing. Twenty-eight thousand boys and young men have also been taken away.

"Note we cannot correspond with anyone at home and you will realize our anxiety.

"Kindly give above a wide publication, for these poor people asked to be looked after.

"The Hispano-American Relief Fund does its best, but it is not sufficient.

"These people (among them my own mother) suffer, as even with money, with empty shops they cannot buy any stuff.

"Let the civilised world know this.

"You shall render enormous service to 2,500,000 of people."

Home Rule Is Certain In The End

Present Delay Does Not Injure Her Chances For Future

Better Discover Feeling Now Than After in Force.

LONDON, July 28.—The breakdown of the Irish settlement does not in any way injure the cause of Home Rule nor indicate any change in the attitude of the Government toward the Irish question, Sir Horace Plunkett told the press yesterday. Sir Horace, who for many years has been occupied with Irish agricultural and congestion problems, probably possesses as broad a knowledge of Irish affairs as does any man. He has always maintained an aloofness from party politics and enjoys general popularity in all sections. He continued:

"The Government was anxious to seize the opportunity for an agreement between Sir Edward Carson and John Redmond to put the Home Rule Act into immediate effect, but before doing so it felt bound to ascertain the real sentiment of the Irish people which proved more unfriendly toward the scheme than either the Government or its Irish advisers had expected.

"Mr. Redmond had the greatest difficulty in securing the support of those of his followers whom he had time to consult, and it soon became clear that he could not carry with him the general assent of Nationalist Ireland.

"Sir Edward Carson also severely strained his authority in securing the limited approval of the Ulster Unionists.

The Government was naturally unwilling to impose on the Irish people a settlement unacceptable to them, and it was found that the scheme tentatively offered to the two Irish leaders would meet with strong opposition both in England and Ireland. Hence considerable delay took place, but in the result a great blunder has been avoided. Opinion in Ireland is obviously relieved by the withdrawal of the too-hastily constructed scheme.

"Home Rule at the end of the war is perfectly secure, and the large measure of agreeemnt reached between Sir Edward Carson and Mr Redmond will doubtless be utilized to improve the terms of the ultimate settlement.

"All this talk about 'dashing the cup of freedom from the lips of Erin' is sheer nonsense. It is, however, true that some of the contents of the cup were not to her taste and she very sensibly prefers to wait." Sir Horace concluded.

When two glass tumblers or dishes stick together so that there is danger of breaking in getting them apart put cold water into the inner one and hold the outer one in warm water and then they will separate at once.

$81,126,048 in 91 Days' Profit Of Steel Trust

The United States Steel Corporation, declaring an extra dividend of 1 per cent. on the common stock, announced net earnings for the quarter ending June 30 of $81,126,048.

Before charging interest on subsidiary bonds the earnings, above all maintenance, repair and depreciation charges, were $83,501,065.

There were ninety-one days in the quarter covered, which makes the steel corporation's earning for that period:

Per day	$917,594
Per hour	38,232
Per minute	637

Shortly after the publication of the statement Henry C. Frick said to J. P. Morgan:

"I wish your father might have lived to see this statement."

"So do I," replied Morgan. "It would have pleased him."

CURIOUS EXPLANATION OF BRUSSELS FINE

LONDON, July 27.—Germany's notification that a fine of 5,000 marks had been imposed on Brussels as punishment for the demonstration held on the Belgian national anniversary last Friday was contained in a letter addressed by Lieutenant-General Hut, Governor of Brussels, to the Mayor of that city, according to The Daily Telegraph's Rotterdam correspondent. The letter says: "The German police did not interfere on seeing the people wearing green ribbons, as public order was not disturbed. But in the evening when Cardinal Mercier rode through the town in an automobile demonstrations occurred which were directly contrary to the commands of the German authorities and which had the character of exciting the people to rebellion or foolish deeds. No occupying power would bear a similar challenge. I, therefore proposed to the Governor-General to fine the community. The Governor accepted the proposal and imposed a fine of 5,000,000 marks. The Governor remarked: 'It is only in consideration of the loyal co-operation of the municipal authorities in preserving order that the fine laid is so moderate.'"

Barn Lifted Off Foundation; Piled In Smashed Heap

BLENHEIM, July 28.—One of the fiercest electrical and wind storms which has visited Harwich Township for years passed over the northern portion on Tuesday afternoon between Kent Centre and Northwood. It was particularly severe along the fourth concession, where on Lot 11 a large barn belonging to Lawrence Doyle was lifted from its foundation and piled in a smashing heap in the barnyard. Luckily no stock or person was in the barn at the time.

John Scoyne, a contractor of Blenheim, and his men were at the farm at the time, and had been busy making cement blocks for a new foundation for it. The barn was raised on blocking ready for the new foundation. Fearing trouble they removed their valuable blockmaking machine from under the building when the storm was approaching, and it was thus saved. Their democrat wagon and harness, however, were caught and the wagon was smashed to bits. Had the storm not made such a threatening appearance, some of the men might have remained underneath the barn and been caught.

A large gang of neighbours is busy clearing away the broken material. He will now have to build a new barn. Though the storm gave promise at one time of coming to town, it passed east. Many trees were uprooted in the neighbourhood, and crops levelled and scattered; the rain fell in torrents. The last three days have been exceedingly hot here.

SLAVS' CENTRAL COMMITTEE ASKS ONLY TO SERVE

Marvellous Democratic Organization Works For Russia Without Pay —People Supply Government All It Needs to Prosecute War

PETROGRAD, July 28.—City men and farmers, the landed gentry and villagers are to-day a solid block in Russia and, under the name of "The Central Committee" are working might and main to support the army and the country generally.

The organization composed of landed gentry, peasants and village property-owners is called the All-Russian Zemstvo Union.

But the towns and cities of Russia have also organized themselves into a volunteer, salaryless citizens' group to assist the Government to wage war, their name being the All-Russian Municipality Union. And it is this group which, with the All-Russian Zemstvo Union, completes the Central Committee.

The Central Committee, whose members serve absolutely without pay, sits Sundays and week-days in Petrograd, acting as a co-ordinating body, centralizing the work of the citizens of the whole Empire.

So far as I can find out this Committee and these two great All-Russian Unions combined in it, have no counterpart anywhere in Europe or in the world.

In France the people are heart and soul with the Government in their determ nation to fight the war to victory, cost what it may. In that country all sorts of organizations abound providing hospitals, ambulances, refugee homes, feeding stations, and the like. There is no end to their labours. But the Government feeds, clothes and equips its army through Commissions which deal with industrial corporations principally, if not entirely.

BRITAIN MOBILIZES INDUSTRY.

In Britain it is the same. Lord George, upon assuming the post of Minister of Munitions, chose as his battle-cry the Mobilization of Industry, which meant that the industrial plants of the land should be organized to produce munitions and other needfuls for the British Army.

In Russia the difference is vast: Russia is an agricultural nation. Manufacturing corporations are few compared to Britain's vast enterprises, or to those of France or Germany. Russia is eighty per cent. peasant.

So the peasants got together with land owners and villagers, forming the All-Russian Zemstvo Union. And the townspeople and city dwellers got together in the All-Russian Municipality Union, the two getting together in a Central Committee—a volunteer citizen organization, not of maufacturers, not of commercial kings, but of rich people, poor people, gentry and peasants—offering their services gratis to the land.

There is, however, in Russia, an organization resembling Lloyd George's mustering of English industry. It is called the War Industry Committee and is of considerable importance.

Prior to six years ago there was no industrial group in Russia. Manufacturers worked separately, every man for himself. But with the coming of the Duma, the Russian Congress, they felt the need of an organization which would look out for their joint interests in possible legislation to come. Also a new commercial treaty with Germany was to be negotiated in 1914, and here again Russian industry wished to make itself heard.

TOOK TIP FROM LLOYD-GEORGE

So about 1910 a "Congress of Representatives of Trade and Commerce" met and organized themselves into what corresponds to American merchants' and manufacturers' associations, the object of which was to look out for the mutual interests of its members.

Last year this group of men, taking the tip from Lloyd George in England, and seeing the necessity of giving aid to the army, particularly as regarded munitions and kindred military needs, formed the War Industry Committee. This boy of men to-day is giving great help to the Russian Government.

This is the organization similar to those in England and France. But the Zemstvo and Municipality Unions with their central committee, are in themselves unique—as is the cooperative movement of Russia with its near 100,000,000 adherents scattered from the Baltic across the frozen steppes of Siberia to the Pacific, from the White Sea to the Black.

The city of Moscow began the Municipality Union after the Big Russian retreat. Mayor Chelnokov, the tremendously alive head of the Municipal Council of Russia's second capital, issued invitations to the other cities and large towns of the Empire to join in a city dwellers' organization similar to the Zemstvos or rural one, and they all responded.

Like the Zemstvo, the Municipality Union said to the Russian Government: "Here we are! Use us!"

It was soon seen that as the two unions were doing practically the same work, much overlapping might be obviated and more effective work accomplished if a merger could be effected.

CENTRAL COMMITTEE FORMED IN 1915.

So the Central Committee of the All-Russian Zemstvo and Municipal Unions was formed about the first of July, 1915.

The Committee's work has been phenomenal. It has supplied the army, at the army's request, daggers, spades, bags, hatchets, snippers to cut barbed-wire, stoves, axles, wearing apparel, barbed wire, hospital supplies, baths, and scores of other things.

In Britain and France and Russia the War Industry organizations work for profit as well as for patriotic motives. In Russia the most important organization by far are the purely citizen ones and these work without profit to themselves.

They demand but one thing and that is to serve. Nor do they ever offer excuses by saying this or that is not their kind of work. On one occasion they lent the army 300,000 labourers to dig trenches and fed these workers while they dug. On another they mobilized civilians to build military bridges.

If the Army Commissary asked the Committee for supplies, the Commissary got them, whatever their nature. In January of this year it put in a demand for 24,000,000 articles of clothing and the Committee, after consulting the Zemstvo and Municipality Unions, said all right, the Commissary should have them.

The work of the Citizen Committee is not confined to the army. It has opened innumerable creches, taking care of tens of thousands of children, fed 1,000,000 to 8,000,000 refugees, housed the homeless, clothed the naked.

And all for Russia.

THE BURDEN OF AGE.

The kidneys seem to be about the first organs to wear out and fail to properly perform their work. The result is weak, lame, aching back, rheumatic pains and failing eyesight. Many people of advanced years have recovered health and comfort by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. They ensure the healthful action of liver, kidneys and bowels.

Lindsay Man and German Agents

Chief Short, of Lindsay, is in receipt of a communication from Chief of Police Baillie of Kingston, concerning statements re German agents alleged to have been made by a Lindsay man.

According to the communication, the Lindsay man, who has been discharged from the Foresters' Battalion, is supposed to have made the statement that German agents at Amherst, N.B., are supplying Canadian deserters with clothes and railway tickets to the United States at $2.50 per head.

Chief Short intends interviewing the party alleged to have made this statement.

The running track at the Canadian National Exhibition is one of the few on the continent giving a 220 yards course straight-away. Many records have been equalled or broken on Athletic Day in past years.

EVENING SESSIONS AT THE PLAYGROUNDS WERE WELL ATTENDED

The first evening session of Central school supervised playground was held Thursday evening with an attendance of more than 150 persons, 35 of whom were adults. An hour was spent in playing games under the supervision of Miss Littlefield and Mr. Gilbert, after which an informal reception was held with Mr. and Mrs. C. N. McServe and Chief Howard representing the Playgrounds Association, as hosts.

Chief Howard was down for the speech of the evening, but was called away before the games were finished. However, it is well known that the Chief has a deeper interest in the young people of the city than he can express in words.

To Mr. Meserve fell the honour of representing the Playgrounds Association in a short address of welcome, and he took the occasion to commend the work of the supervision during the past month. He stated the fact that communities like Peterborough were giving larger consideration to the training of youth than ever before. The war has raised the value of the coming generation so we welcome every effort that seeks to train and conserve the manhood and womanhood of the future.

Lemonade was dispensed under the directions of Mrs. Meserve, after which a boy in the crowd proposed three cheers for Central school and the playgrounds, which were given, and the crowd dispersed.

If the attndance warrants it the playgrounds of both the Central and King Edward schools will be open every Thursday evening during August.

King Edward.

At the King Edward school about 300 children and adults foregathered ed under the supervision of the instructors. The children participated in the various events that were run off, including a boxing bout which created considerable amusement. The parents were given every opportunity of ascertaining the many advantages that accrue to the children as a result of organized play. Lemonade was served during the evening.

MAJOR DES BRISAY TO VISIT PETERBORO'

Major Des Brisay, who has lately been appointed to take charge of the women's side of the New Training College for Canada will visit Peterborough this Saturday and Sunday.

The Major has just visited the hub of affairs for Field Training in London, England, and is now looking for candidates for the new session to be opened Sept. 15th, and will make special appeals on Saturday and Sunday.

PETERBOROUGH STUDENTS PASS EXAMINATIONS

The following list contains the names of the Peterborough candidates who have passed on one or more parts of the Upper School examination for entrance into the faculties of education at the University of Toronto and Queen's University, Kingston. The examination passed is indicated after each name. The certificates of those who passed and the statements of marks of those who failed will be mailed to the principals and inspectors in due course.

The appeal examiners have already re-read the papers of each candidate whose marks might have justified an appeal. Where such candidate has still failed his statement of marks will be stamped as re-read, and no further appeal will be allowed. In all other cases of failure appeals will not be refused if made before September 1st.

Successful candidates who desire to attend the coming session of either faculty of education must make application to the Dean at the University concerned, from whom may be obtained the forms of application and all other necessary information. The session of the faculty opens on October 1st, when all candidates must be present. Applicants are required to be at least 19 years of age before October 1st.

CITY HALL PARAGRAPHS

Tax Collector Green is working overtime these days in an effort to garner in the first instalment of this year's taxes. People who have taxes to pay would do well to call at the office between the hours of eight and ten o'clock in the morning.

Bonnacord Street.

The Board of Works department has been asked to take some action regarding the condition of Bonnacord street. At present the thoroughfare is said to be littered with tin cans and other refuse which is hauled there for the purpose of bringing the street up to grade.

Sewer Wanted.

The Bonner-Worth Company has been granted permission to connect with the sewer on Cross street. The work, which will be done at the company's expense, will serve their new factory on McDonnel street.

Labour Scarce.

The city is experiencing considerable difficulty in securing sufficient help to carry on the construction work authorized for this year. This despite the increase in wages that was made some time ago.

Investigation Will Be Resumed This Evening

Mysterious Death of Infant Near Westwood Forms the Subject of An Investigation By the Provincial Police Department

THE JURY

The investigation concerning the death of an infant child near Westwood on or about July 5th, will be resumed this evening in the police court chamber. The hearing will commence at eight o'clock. A number of witnesses have been summoned to appear and give evidence before Coroner Dr. Greer and the following jurymen: John Anderson (foreman); Duncan Drummond, T. J. Moore, Thos. Detcher, F. Snelgrove, Bruce Patterson, J. Hooligan, Carl Schmuck, W. J. Routley, T. H. Glover.

It is understood that the Provincial Police Department will be represented by Detective Miller. The latter has been working on the case at intervals and has succeeded in accumulating considerable evidence.

The child in question was born on July 4th, under proper medical supervision, and attendance, and when a little over a day old died under circumstances that caused an investigation by the Provincial Police Department, which resulted in the exhuming of the body. It was brought to Peterborough.

Concealment of Birth.

An attempt at concealment of the birth of a child is also reported from Hastings.

Reeve Fowlds of Hastings made a complaint to the Attorney General's Department about a baby being deserted and left on the doorstep of a Hastings residence and asked that an investigation be made. Inspector Miller was detailed to look the matter up.

Buried in a Henhouse.

Inquiries led to a series of investigations and as a result the body of a healthy infant was unearthed in a hen house on a farm adjoining the village and an inquest was held at Hastings on Monday in which the jury viewed the body of the baby. The doctors who had made an examination of the body stated that the baby had been three days old at the time of its death. The man who admitted burying the body stated that the child was still-born. A woman connected with the case made a similar statement.

The jury found that they could not come to any conclusion as to the cause of death and brought in an open verdict.

The concealment of birth and the secret burial may result in both parties being prosecuted.

The baby that was deserted has since been made a ward of the Children's Aid Society.

The biggest list of starters on record for a bicycle race, 76 in all, were sent away over the Canadian National Exhibition course on one of its Athletic Days.

Havelock Wants Streets Oiled

HAVELOCK, July 28.—Tweed has followed Marmora's example and has oiled its streets and is extremely well satisfied with the result. Here in Havelock we suffer abominably from the awful dust on the streets in the business section. Passing vehicles stir up a small cloud, but all automobiles, and they are very numerous, seem to vie with one another as to the biggest dust they can raise. Surely our progressive Town Council could do something to relieve this intolerable condition of affairs, and not have everyone pointing the finger of scorn at us for our "backwoods methods." If the members of the Council had to sit inside an office on George street these days and forced to swallow the germ laden dust that people on this street are forced to do, you would soon see them settle the dust instead of raising it.

CUTTING GRAIN.

Market reports show a quietness consequent upon farm activity. Farmers are completing the harvest of their hay and have begun to cut fall wheat and rye. These grains have ripened quickly during the past ten days.

Russians Defeat Enemy With Hand Grenades

Examiner Special:

PARIS, July 28.—Russians reconnoitring at Auberive in Champagne penetrated German trenches and cleared them with hand grenades. The Russians took some prisoners. A German attempt to attack near Lizons, north of Chaulnes, was arrested by French infantry fire. On the right bank of the Meuse, in the Verdun region, German preparations to attack the Thiaumont work were stopped by artillery fire. Two German aeroplanes were shot down in the Somme region.

CONDITIONS IN ENGLAND

SIMPLE PLEASURES

Simple Pleasures.

The visitor to London, looking at the mere surface of things, still thinks that there is little outward evidence that half the world is at war; although the true Londoner is aware of many changes.

But London, being the headquarters of organised pleasure, is necessarily also the centre of the feverish unrest that is the inevitable result of war ;and being the centre also to which the millions who are in service of various kinds return for their brief snatch of concentrated holiday, the actual business and machinery of pleasure in some degree responds to the general stimuleus. But if we go to the country and study the country life, for after all the country is more England than any city life could be, we realise the changes that are being brought into the life of the people. Externally there appears to be no change in rural England except for the absence of young men from the villages. And in the people's working lives, the changes, though many, are not obvious; here and there a munition factory roars day and night, in what was, before the war, some queer and peaceful solitude; here and there you notice the unfamiliar figures of women at tasks that have been exclusively associated with men. But it is not in their working hours so much as in their spare hours, that people feel and see the change; and most of all it is visible in the character of the pleasures and recreations.

Like so many other things since the dawn of machinery a century ago, pleasure has been becoming more and more complicated. The people to whom motor cars were toys ten or 15 years ago, have long since ceased to regard them as anything but part of the machinery of their lives; but within the last five years, with the advent of the cheap and efficient car, there has been created an enormous middle class population to whom the possession of a car has been a kind of definite and final goal, which they have set themselves to attain, and having attained it, they have surrendered themselves to it almost to the exclusionof all other kinds of amusement.

Now the motor car has gone or is going out of the lives of thousands. Its surrender has been in innumerable cases an act of very real self-denial and patriotism ;but it has left the bereaved ones face to face with the problem how they are to amuse themselves— pleasure and amusement of some kind being as essential to man as his daily bread. And people are being forced down the ladder of pleasure and many of them are not a little surprised to find on the lower steps of pleasure which they did not realize in their hasty pursuit for the motor car.

Here the motor bicycle has been substituted for the motor car; the push bicycle has been taken out of its shed and rubbed up and oiled; everywhere the pony trap is being raised from its low state as a parcel carrier to be a serious vehicle of pleasure. Here and there people have even discovered that they have legs and can walk, and that, primitive and clumsy as that form of locomotion seems, there are many advantages associated with it. The whole process of outdoor pleasure which had been greatly accelerated is being slowed down.

At first this is not agreeable. We have been drowned in a vortex of movements; many senses and habitudes have in consequence become numb through disease, and their recovery is apt to be painful. The motorist sees hills and valleys, roads and rivers, crowds, herds of cattle, villages and houses; he cannot really see much more. A pedestrian may only see one valley or road, one house or village in the course of his short walks, yet he can see a great deal He can see men and women and read their faces; he can see birds and beasts of the field in some other attitude than that of disturbance at his passage and he can see trees and flowers, and insects engaged upon life's task on a square yard of ground. Of course it does not matter what one sees, but how one sees. The question is, will this check and retardation of pace in amusement really convince people of the true joy and value to be found in simple things. One is inclined to think it will, for a time at any rate; for there are already thousands of people in England walking or jogging along the June hedgeways of this garden country, who had forgotten that there was a pleasure to be found in such a thing, and who are rediscovering in it many true joys and delights which they had deemed as irrevocable to them as childhood.

NO SURPLUS OF OFFICERS

Those Returning Are to Act as Instructors in Camps.

OTTAWA, July 28. — Batches of Canadian officers returning from the front do not indicate a surplus in England. At the Militia Department it is stated that the number of officers overseas is not excessive. It is pointed out, however, that in this war conditions and methods of warfare are changing constantly, and it is desirable to bring back at regular intervals experienced officers to be detailed to the different training camps and instruct the men on up-to-date tactics. The officers now returning or who will return from time to time are designed to carry out this work.

Russian Girls Fighting In Armies of the Czar Win St. George's Cross

One, Recently Was Decorated by the Czar For Doing Some Dangerous Reconnoitering Near German Trenches—Another, Under Rain of Grenades, Carried Wounded Captain Across Line of Fire

The Czar of all the Russians has finally acknowledged his women fighters. Ever since the war began, and in spite of the efforts of the Russian censors stories have come to the western world about the women of Russia who have gloriously offered themselves as sacrifices to "holy Russia" in repelling the invader.

But official Russia, until recently, has refused to acknowledge its heroines. Just the other day the Czar of all the Russians made known in an imperial communication that he had decorated with the Cross of St. George the soldier Glouschenko because he had performed the dangerous and important military service of penetrating the enemy's barbed wire entanglements, and, approaching almost to the trenches of the Germans, had returned to the Russian lines with valuable military secrets with a wounded head and shattered bones.

On investigation it was discovered that the soldier Glouschonko was none other than the girl Tcherniavika, who had cut her long tresses, and had assumed military uniform that she might actively serve her country on the firing line.

Other Women Soldiers.

With the news about the feminine soldier Tcherniavika the censor permitted to go through other stories about the women who have been serving Russia in the trenches. Pictures of Russian girls have been given out showing them in military costumes, but it has been definitely established that many of these were moving picture actresses who posed especially for the occasion and who took no actual part in the fighting. So to counteract the misconception about these women and to give the world definite knowledge about the Russian women who have really been serving in the trenches, the Russian authorities have permitted the publication of stories about the real heroines of the war.

The special correspondent of the Paris Journal in Russia, Mr. Ludovic Naudeau, recently undertook an investigation of this disputed question of women in the European armies with a view of sifting out the facts from the great mass of fiction.

He found that in Russia only those cases of girls who have performed some feat of special valor or whose enlistment was attended with dramatic features of a special kind have come to the attention of the military authorities in Petrograd.

Their case, however, is probably typical of that of a great many girls in the Russian army and he cites the conditions under which several of the girls entered the ranks and their experiences with the armies.

"Twelve Girl Friends."

The most extraordinary of all his narrations is that regarding the "twelve girl friends," a band of young women still in their teens who went out together to fight for their Russia. The account which he gives of this remarkable band has been passed by the Russian censor, and therefore has at least semi-official sanction.

One of the twelve friends, Zoe Smirnowa, had returned to headquarters in Petrograd, straight from one of the most dangerous outpost positions in the Russian army, where she had passed fourteen months in military uniform fighting among the soldiers.

She is only sixteen years old. Her hair she had clipped like that of a boy. The only way her sex was revealed was by her clear and sharp voice. When she returned to Petrograd she was wearing the Cross of St. George, which she had won for distinguished military service.

With eleven other girls, students at a Russian university, Zoe decided to leave home for the front during the first week of mobilization. In the beginning of August the twelve girls succeeded in realizing their purpose. They were all about the same age and all of the same college. They are pure Muscovites belonging to different classes in the social world, but closely united by the bonds of college comradeship.

"We could not leave from Moscow itself," says Zoe. "We would have been stopped at the station. Consequently we took a carriage and went to the station of a little neighbouring town through which the trains carrying the soldiers were passing. At daybreak, without saying a word to our parents, we started. It was rather terrifying, as each of us was lamenting our father and, mother. But the desire to arrive at the front and fight the Germans was stronger than our regrets."

Received by Soldiers.

At the small station they slipped in among the soldiers and were received by the latter in a purely paternal and entirely correct fashion. The good fellows made places for them in the cars and did not oppose their purpose. They provided them with uniforms and thus enabled them to arrive without serious obstacles at the Austrian frontier.

There they had to leave the train and march for Lemberg. It was at this time that the major learned their peculiar history. They were scolded and their expulsion ordered, but finally the patriotic young girls received permission to follow the soldiers.

"Only we had to cut our tresses," said Zoe with a sad smile. "That is what I regretted most of all. Mine were very long, and I cried. From that day I have always carried them in my knapsack."

The regiment to which they were attached traversed Galacia and passed into the Carpathian mountains fighting battle after battle. The girls did not take a step backward.

They shared all the privations and the horrors of the campaign along with the other soldiers. They did active service as fighters at the front and learned to shoot well soon after rifles were given to them.

Days and weeks passed and the young girls in the turmoil of war had almost forgotten their past. They no longer had a girl's name but each was known as a man and they completely became accustomed to military life. The Russian soldiers in their presence were courteous and did nothing to offend them.

In Bloody Battles.

The battles in which they continued to take part were sanguinary, especially when in the late spring the Germans, having brought up their heavy artillery toward the Carpathians began to attack the Russian army with their famous phalanxes. The fighting was a veritable hell, a hell out of which the girls could hardly hope to come forth unharmed.

"It must have been dreadful," said an officer who was listening to their narrative. "Were you afraid?"

"Yes," replied Zoe simply, "how could one not be afraid? When the Germans began to send their great shells in our direction several others of us could not control ourselves and we shouted out."

"What did you shout?"

"We shouted 'mother!' Choura did first and then Lydia. They are the youngest of us and at that time were only a little over fourteen years of age, and they were constantly thinking of their mother. I must say that I myself, I believe, shouted out the same thing. In fact, we all cried out. The men also were afraid."

During a battle in the Carpathians one night Zena Morozova one of the twelve, who was only fifteen years old, was killed by a shell. Her little body was torn to pieces, almost nothing of it being left.

"Still we were able to gather up part of her remains," said Zoe with great tenderness in her tones. "On the following morning, when the bombardment ended, we all gathered around the place where Zena had been killed and we searched for her bones and placed them in a tomb hurriedly made.

"We wrote on the cross: 'Zena Morozova, volunteer of regiment X, fifteen years old, killed during the battle of X.'

"On the following day we were already far away and I do not exactly remember the spot where the tomb of Zena is. It was down in the great mountains of the Carpathians.

Others Wounded.

After the death of Zena others of the friends were wounded one after the other, Nadia, Jenia and Choura. Zoe herself was wounded twice in the leg and once in the side. The wounds were so serious that each time she was left unconscious on the field of battle and was found later only by accident by the ambulane department.

After the second wound she had to pass a month in the hospital. Then she started again for the front to look for her regiment and her friends. But when she arrived at the trenches she found other Russian soldiers whom she did not know.

In her embarrassment the young girl for the first time since the beginning of the war lost control of herself and burst into tears, thus unexpectedly revealing her sex. The soldiers looked with distrust upon this strange young woman wearing the chevrons of a sergeant and decorated with the Cross of St. George who was shedding tears without apparent motive. But the girl showed her papers and established her right to wear the cross and the suspicious and anxious looks with which she was first received were exchanged for kindness and deference.

One of the officers later on urged Zoe to leave the trenches at least for a time and devote herself to hospital work. After some hesitation she consented and now she is working at a lazaretto behind the Russian lines.

No News of Friends.

The sad part of it is that she has had no news from her friends. What has become of them, whither has fortune brought them, toward the tomb or to glory, and what has the blind law which guides shrapnel and explosive shells and bullets done to them? These are questions which Zoe anxiously asks but she receives no answer.

The Russian women who enlist in the army do not seek publicity and above all avoid any attitude of the professional heroine. Their aim is to pass into the ranks as men and very often the sex of the girl fighter, is discovered only when she has been seriously wounded or killed.

Before the fall of Warsaw the Russian military authorities sent back to her family a young girl of Tchito who had followed the Serbian troops all the way from the Trans-Baikal. This young girl of nineteen, Maria Milakeva, had passed six months in the trenches under fire.

Another case was that of Rima, who lived with her father in an obscure country town. After eighteen months in the army she became a sergeant in a cavalry regiment and fought brilliantly in Galicia until she fell mortally wounded while leading an assault on the enemy trenches by the survivers of the Ovenburg regiment after all the other officers had been killed.

They carried her off the field and she died in an ambulance, an authentic heroine, one of the may who are the marvellous flowering of the new and almost unknown woman's movement in Russia.

FOUGHT WITH HER FATHER.

Appollovma Iscitseva, in order not to be separated from her father, who was colonel of a regiment, enlisted as a volunteer in his regiment. She went through the campaign and was in eight battles and won a sergeant's chevrons. She finally had the sad duty of removing the body of her own father from the field when he had been struck by a bullet in the breast.

Maria Bielowerskaia, another volunteer soldier, also won the Cross of St. George for having carried across the line of fire under a rain of grenades the captain of her own company who had been wounded.

Miss Kokoviseva, a sergeant in a regiment of the cossacks of the Don, a horsewoman and an expert with the lance, was wounded four times. She always returned to the fire and she has received three decoratios.

Olga Serguieevna Schidlowkaia, belonging to a family of soldiers—four brothers and her father in this war—cut her hair and under the name of Oleg Schidlowsky, succeeded in enlisting in the Fourth Hussars. This girl, twenty-four years old, a veritable Amazon in appearance, successively won the rank and to-day wears the epaulettes of a sub-lieutenant, and has been cited in the regimental order of the day.

SEPARATE TRIAL FOR EX-PREMIER ROBLIN IS ASKED BY CROWN

Court to Give Decision on the Question.

WINNIPEG, July 27.—An attempt by the crown to-day to procure from Mr. Justice Prendergast permission to arraign George H. Coldwell and James H. Howden together, this trial to be followed presumably by a separate trial for Sir Rodmond Roblin, was vigorously opposed by the defence His Lordship considered the matter in private for some time, and then announced that he would give his decision later. He stated that if the crown had a right to ask for a severance of the charges against the three accused he must grant the motion, but he indicated plainly his preference that all the former cabinet ministers shall be tried at the one time.

Motion for Separation.

R. A. Bonnar, K.C., for the crown, moved that Messrs. Howden and Cold well be arraigned, stating that the crown desired to try them first. Defense counsel objected that they had no notice of this action. The judge stated that since the parties were joined in the indictment the natural thing was that the three accused should be proceeded against jointly. Mr. Bonnar claimed that it was the right of the crown to ask for a severance of the charges.

The jury panel of 90 men was on hand at the afternoon session and their names were called.

One Charge Dismissed.

At the opening of the session his lordship ruled on the motion by the defence for the quashing of the indictment and the discharge of the accused. He held that the accused could not be tried on charges of attempting to dissuade William Salt from giving evidence, and for the completed offence of having dissuaded Salt, and he gave to the crown their choice of the charge on which they should proceed. Mr. Bonnar chose the counts charging conspiracy in regard to the charging conspircacy in regard to the of the defence was dismissed.

DR. WAITE CUTS HIMSELF WHILE IN DEATH CELL

SING SING PRISON, N. Y., July 27. —Dr. Arthur Warren Waite, awaiting electrocution here for the murder of his father-in-law, John E. Peck, of Grand Rapids, Mich., was found in his cell in the "death house" bleeding from a wound in his chest made in the shape of a cross. The prisoner had cut himself with a piece of broken glass.

How Waite got possession of the glass could not be explained. It is presumed that when he was taken out for exercise in the court yard he picked it up when the vigilance of his guard was relaxed, and concealed it until he returned to his cell.

White was removed to the prison hospital, but he steadafatly declined to answer questoins. The prison authorities believe if he had intended to kill himself he would have inflicted the wound elsewhere than on his chest. The injury is not serious. A strict watch will be kept on Waite when he returns to the death house.

MOTHER OF MURDERED GIRL HEARS OF TRAGEDY

Mrs. Tisdale of Port Dover Told of Double Slaying in Illinois.

SIMCOE, July 27.—The first word of the triple tragedy at Lake Forest, Ill., in which Lloyd A. Crandall, late of Brantford, is said to have slain his young wife, formerly Nora Tisdale of this place, and their daughter, was conveyed to the mother of the dead girl by telephone Tuesday morning. Mrs. Tisdale works in the Penman mills at Port Dover, and was informed by Mrs. Crandall of Brantford, mother of the alleged murderer, of the tragedy.

Mrs. Crandall, after informing Mrs. Tisdale of the circumstances, left for Chicago.

Some years ago the Tisdales lived in this town, and Nora was then a pretty girl in her late 'teens. She left her two years ago to go to Flint, Mich., where she married Crandall, who came from Brantford.

After the girl's departure her father and mother returned to Port Dover.

BIG SHARK CAUGHT OFF NEW JERSEY

HOLMESVILLE, N. J., July 27.—When Captain Jack Benson's crew of pound-net men came into the station of the Ship Bottom Fishery on Long Beach, five miles above Beach Haven, yesterday morning, they towed behind their motor boat a 600-pound shark, 10 feet 8 inches in length, the largest captured since the man-eaters from southern waters began their raids on the New Jersey coast. In the boat were four other sharks, two of them five-footers and two four-footers. All of them had been taken in the morning draw of the nets.

The Ship Bottom fishermen had an exciting battle wiith their ferocious game. The big shark tore around at a great rate when drawn to the side of the boat. Capt. BBenson pounded it on the head with a heavy iron bar, finally dazing it enough to allow one of the hands to lasso its tail. Then the line was made fast and the shark was towed to shore tail first.

All of the five sharks were of one variety, blue with large spots, entirely strange to the Jersey coast. They have four rows of large teeth. The big fellow had an 18-inch spread of mouth, and was 30 inches in diabody. He was shipped to Asbury meter at the thickest part of his Park for exhibition.

Clothes horses make excellent screens. First paint the top and lower part of the legs with enamel to match the wall paper. Then cover the remaining part with some pretty muslin or silk, and secure to the horse by dainty ribbons.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

MEN WHOSE BATTING EYES HAVE MADE THEM FAMOUS

Great Batters Last Long in the Diamond Game—When Legs Give Out and They Can Only Amble Around the Bases They Still Have the "Batting Eye," and the Big Clout That Wins in a Pinch

From big Dan Brouthers, who used to knock 'em over the right field fence of the old Baltimore Club, to Wee Willie Keeler, batting heroes have always held the greatest place in the affection of the baseball fan. The careers of the great hitters have been long, for the batting eye isn't subject to the dreaded enemy of the ball player—"charley horse." This page could be filled with the names of batters, who have made themselves famous by pounding the unresisting horse-hide. And they were men of all sorts, kinds and conditions, except in one way. Always they have been in prime physical condition, for a good batter is like a sharpshooter—he needs a cool head a quick eye and a pair of broad shoulders to put behind the swing of the willow bat.

You have to go back a long way to "Pop" Anson, Dan Brouthers and the rest of the historic hard hitters who made baseball America's greatest sport. But their names are never forgotten by the real fans, and their exploits will live in story.

DAN BROUTHERS A SUPER-MAN.

It was back in 1879 Dan Brouthers began his major league baseball career. Dan was a super-man. A friend of mine, Dr. J. M. Breen, a dentist, tells me that he once looked over the famous batter's teeth, and found that he had two complete rows on both the upper and lower jaws. "Double rows of teeth, like a shark," said Dr. Breen, "and every tooth as perfect as a piece of china. My, what a bite, big Dan had!"

Dan was a two-ply man in many other ways, but especially when he had a good old telegraph pole in his two fists. For fifteen years, from 1879 to 1894, he batted over .300, and in 1887 he batted .419. Something of a record. As a sample of what he could do when he wanted to, let me mention that little incident down in Baltimore, more in detail. Harry Von der Horst owner of the club, was a great baseball enthusiast. One day he offered a prize of $100 to the first player who succeeded in batting the ball over the right field fence—which was considered an impossible feat.

The other players smiled, but big Dan, biting his double rows of teeth together in grim determination, went out in his next turn at bat and swung at the first ball offered. They say that the ball went straight toward the right field fence, about twenty feet from the ground. The players calmly discussed its flight and guessed it would drop about twenty feet short. But as it approached the boundary the ball began to rise.

It soared high over the fence and disappeared in the distance. Mr. Von der Horst sent twenty men to find it and next day had it gilded and placed on his mantelpiece. Dan Brouthers strolled around the bases, walked over to the owner, collected his $100, and meandered back to the bench without a word. That was the kind of a ball player he was. Why, in one game Dan knocked out three home runs and never cracked a smile.

KEELER A 'PEACH-BASKET' HITTER.

Contrast Dan's style with that of Wee Willie, who was the most scientific hitter we ever had. Keeler used to grasp his bat near the middle and chop at the ball. His teammates boasted that you could put a peach basket down anywhere on the field and Willie would drop the ball into the basket. At hunting he was a marvel. He had the eye of a hawk. In 1897 Willie led the big league in batting. He batted .432. Which was pretty good for a fellow who didn't care to be a "fence-buster."

—"Pop" Anson, the most famous of old-timers, led the league in batting four times between 1879 and 1888. And it was something to lead the league during these years.

One of the greatest batsmen that ever lived was Ed. Delahanty, one of "the Delahantys," who played with the Philadelphia Nationals, and succeeded Willie Keeler as leading batter in 1899. Ed was a powerful big fellow and a tremendous hitter.

Delahanty is credited with the greatest batting feat on record. It came off in 1896 in one of the games with Chicago. Will Terry was pitching for the Chicago team, and was going along in great style until Delehanty came to bat.

The second time he drove a liner over short to, Dahlen. The ball was travelling so fast that it tore through Dahlen's grip and went on into left field. Ed went to third base.

The fourth time up he knocked the ball to the club house back of centre field for a third home run.

In the ninth inning Delahanty came to back again. The fielders retreated to the fences. Lange played back between the club houses. Delehanty cracked the ball over centre field to the roof of one club house. It bounced to the roof of another and then rolled down. Ed scored his fourth home run. Five times at bat, four home runs and a three bagger. And to show that Terry was pitching in form, the Philadelphia team scored only three other hits.

But for his unfortunate death not long afterwards Delehanty might have been cracking them out of bounds still. He was one of five brothers, all of whom were famous ball players.

DONLIN ALWAYS HAD "BATTING EYE."

Leaving the old timers, who have dropped out of the game entirely, we will glance at a few of more modern days. There was Mike Donlin, a mighty slugger, who had a varied career on many teams and behind the footlights. Mike was a natural ball player. He went to California when a boy to run foot-races, and began to play professional ball in Santa Cruz. He was soon yanked back to the big league in the East and before long was taken in charge by John McGraw then of the Baltimore Americans. Donlin did his great batting for McGraw. He saved many games with timely ninth-inning clouts. Mike left the Giants to go on the stage and was out of the game for years. On his return he found that his old speed had left him. But he still had the batting eye, as he proved when traded to Boston, where he hammered the ball as well as when in his prime.

CONNIE MACK ANSWERS SOME OF HIS CRITICS

Manager Connie Mack of the Athletics refuses to be a pessimist, although others are worrying about his ball team. He is optimistic as far as the meaning of the word goes, and says that in time he will have moulded together a club that will more than repay the fans for the patience with the team that is in its early stages of development. Mack listened to all comment and criticism with deaf ears until recently, when he consented to inform the fans concerning his plans.

CLUB OWNERS SATISFIED.

"I am part owner of the Athletics and am perfectly satisfied with conditions and so are the Shibes. We are willing to lose money while we are developing a new team. We do not expect the fans to patronize a losing team. All we ask is patronage when we show them a real ball team, and we will do that," said Manager Mack.

"I have everything I own tied up in this ball team, and am doing what I know is best. I believe I know the baseball business and am staking my reputation on my ability to come back, and I am coming back with a greater team than ever before. I don't believe in building up a ball team as other managers do, and therefore I care nothing about the charges made by critics throughout the country."

WILL HAVE ANOTHER CAMPAIGN.

"Seven other American league owners are perfectly satisfied with the way we run our ball team," continued Connie, "and also have confidence in my ability to construct another championship team. I have built two separate and distinct machines, which have been powerful pennant-winning combinations, and will have another within two years. American league magnates believe in me, and I will not disappoint them.

"I have been managing ball teams for more than 20 years and have tried out every method. I managed in minor leagues and learned my lesson there.

"While in the minor field I tried developing ball players from the raw material and discovered that after I had sent them up to the major leagues they had to be started all over again, because they played a different style than their new manager used. It required two or three years for the youngsters to get going, and then they were not playing their natural game.

HARD TO DEVELOP MINORS.

"I made up my mind then that I would build from the ground up if ever I got a chance and it came shortly after. I seldom go after a minor league star, not because of the ridiculous price asked for his release, but because I find that he is harder to develop to my style of play than the inexperienced youth.

"Does it not stand to reason that if a youngster with natural ability can be developed into a minor league sensation in two years and then come into the major league a star, that the same player could also be developed into a star in the same length of time playing right under my eyes?

"I have tried my hand at handling these high-priced league stars and find that they are too set in their ways and invariably cannot be broken of faults which I will not tolerate in a ball player. Therefore I made up my mind that in the future I would do my own developing at any cost.

"Nobody knows better than I do that the fans will not patronize a losing ball team. I don't ask them. All I want is a fair chance. I promised a powerful team in 1917 and I will have it.

ROOKIES WILL DEVELOP FAST

"It was three years before Collins, Barry, McInnis, Strunk, Baker and others of my old team, found their stride, but this new bunch will come along faster unless I miss my guess. They have a better chance because they are getting more opportunities to play in regular games.

"When I built the old team I foolishly tried to keep it in the race with a combination of my new and old players, and the result was that I got nowhere until I cleaned house, and put it entirely up to my youngsters and started from the bottom.

"I have the foundation for a great club right now. I admit that I am disappointed at the showing of several of my recruits, and a few of the veterans who were left over, but I want to say that we have others coming on who will fill the bill if these youngsters fail to come through.

ELMER MYERS PROMISING.

"Too much cannot be expected of a youngster. They are slow striking their stride, but when they have the natural ability they come fast once they get the confidence. Elmer Myers was three years in a minor league under my direction before he came through. He was a lad who naturally was slow in developing, but he is on his way now and next season will be the best pitcher in the country."

THE DESIRE OF SIR PERTAB SINGH'S

Lieut.-General Sir Pertab Singh, now in his 70th year, who is in the fighting line in France, said to me:

"I hope the time is soon coming when, at the head of my men, I shall die fighting. That is how every Rajput wants to die. If I die fighting I go straight to God. If I die in bed with a doctor looking on I take a long time to get to God. I have not yet had my chance, but soon I hope to charge the Germans at the head of my Lancers and die for the King-Emperor."

When asked what were the feelings of the ruling princes in India towards the war, the Indian General said:

"Every chief in India would serve as a private soldier, without pay and without rank. All his subjects look to their chief as second God, and all chiefs look to the King-Emperor as second God, not first God, second God; and if his Majesty needs their services they would serve him even in the ranks if necessary. And they would send not only themselves but their sons."

Sir Pertab Singh's two sons, Sagat Singh, 14, and Hanont Singh, 15 years of age, came into the room during the conversation, and when the press representative observed that they were very young to be fighting, their father replied:

"The Prince of Wales is fighting. He is not so very much older: why should not my sons fight as the son of the King-Emperor and my future King-Emperor fights?"

The speaker concluded:

"The Indian troops have done well. Unused to trench warfare, nevertheless they have proved their worth in infantry fighting, and over a hundred of my own clan in the Poona Horse of the Regular Army, of which I am honorary colonel, have given their lives. But we are all looking for the great day when we Rajputs can charge and that I may have my wish of going to my God as a Rajput fighting at the head of my men. Let it be soon."

HAD NO MORE SUBMARINES

British Navy the Reason Why Germans Ceased U-Boat Activty.

LONDON, July 28.—The Morning Post says: "The Germans some time ago pretended to desist from their submarine policy. The truth is they had no more submarines to carry on the blockade, because our navy had sunk nearly all. When the Germans build more submarines they will try again, but we have faith in the British navy to account for anything the Germans put on the water or under the water."

BARONESS SAYS IS NOT A GERMAN

LONDON, July 27.—Baroness Bettina von Hutten has been arrested as an enemy alien travelling more than five miles from her address without a permit. At the police court hearing the Baroness protested that she had been divorced from her German husband eight years ago, and had lived in England ever since and that she believed she would regain all her rights of American citizenship whenever she returned to America. Scotland Yard detectives said there had been previous complaints against the Baroness travelling about the country.

The presiding judge said it was doubtful whether the Baroness could be considered an alien enemy. The case was adjourned in order to enable her to obtain counsel.

The Baroness von Hutten was formerly Miss Betsy Riddle of Pennsylvania. After her divorce from her husband she appeared on the stage in London.

Mathewson Would Like To Land Shocker For Reds

The Cincinnati National League Club, would like to secure Urban Shocker, the former Ottawa pitcher, now with the Toronto International League Club. The Reds played in Rochester on Monday and Christy Mathewson, the new leader of the Cincinnati team, made extensive enquiries of Charley Dooin and other Rochester players about Shock, who had pitched an eleven innings no-run-no-hit game in that city on Saturday. Dooin said that Shock was one of the best young heavers he had ever seen and that he should be up in the big show right now. Tommy Leach on the same team backed Dooin up in his statement. Matty expressed the opinion that he would like to land Shocker for his team and would see when he got to New York if he could not pry the heaver away from the Yankee owners to whom Shocker belongs.

Never Get Anywhere With $10,000 Arm and Ten Cent Head

So Ray Keating has hit the toboggan slide. The big fellow showed all the earmarks of making a place for himself in the twirlers' hall of fame, but a ten thousand dollar arm and a ten cent head has been the cause of more than one man's downfall. Good critics claim that Keating was the best man that ever heaved 'em over in the Canadian league, not even excepting Urban Shocker, who is doing such great work for Toronto. But if able to show his best, a man has got to walk the narrow paths as laid down by nature and the trainers, and Keating had not sense enough to do that. He has pitched a couple of good games for the Yankees this season, but only after Bill Donovan put him in irons for some days before. Keating made many friends while on the Canadian league circuit, but now that he has shown himself to be inidfferent, he will get little sympathy.

Keating was never the property of the Hamilton club. He was loaned to Knotty Lee by the Lawrence club of the New England League, but after getting a peek at his work, Knotty Lee tried very hard to buy him. He was unable to do so, however, and the next season he was purchased by the New York Americans from Lawrence at a price said to be $7,000. He has been in the big show ever since, although Donovan has threatened to send him to the minors several times. Markle, who was the pitching sensation of the Yankees earlier in the season, has also wandered from the paths that lead to true form, and was released with Keating.

An Old Peterborough Lacrosse Player

A recent account of a lacrosse match staged in the heart of Chicago referred to the playing ability of Percy Rubidge. The latter it will be remembered is an old Peterborough boy and a former member of the local lacrosse fraternity which existed when the fame of the Peterborough Lacrosse Club was in the making.

WIFE WAS BEATEN IN DEATH RACE TO HUSBAND'S BEDSIDE

RAILWAYMEN LOOKING AFTER ARRANGEMENTS FOR WRECK VICTIMS' FUNERALS.

LONDON, July 28.—Mrs. Stone, wife of Brakeman C. Stone of Bridgeburg, who died in Victoria Hospital Wednesday from injuries received in the wreck on the G.T.R. in the morning, arrived just too late to see her husband alive. He passed away about twenty minutes before she reached the hospital.

From the first there was no hope of his recovery, as he had his neck broken, the back of his head badly smashed and was so badly crushed internally that he suffered repeated hemorrhages.

Brakeman Stone was 35 years old, and went to Bridgeburg from Mimico about three months ago. He had been in Mimico for several years.

Mrs. Stone is being looked after by the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, and is staying with Mrs. Niven of Ottaway avenue. A relative of Mrs. Niven, coming on the train, asked her what was the matter when he saw she was in trouble, and as soon as she arrived here rushed her right to the hospital, and later took her to Mrs. Niven's home to be cared for. The Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen is looking after all the funeral arrangements, and the remains will be sent to Mimico from Smith, Son & Clarke's undertaking rooms on Friday.

Conductor Garnet Cuttin, who was instantly killed in the crash, was one of the youngest men on the road, being only 20. His home is in Newmarket, and he is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Cuttin of that place. Besides his parents he leaves four brothers and four sisters, Elmer of this city, William, Herbert and George of Newmarket, Mrs. Mancarrow of Newmarket, Ethel of Toronto, and Geraldine and Lenora at home.

The B. of R. T. is also looking after the arrangements in this case, and the remains will be sent from Smith, Son & Clarke's on Friday, to Newmarket.

UNREST IN GERMANY

Appeal to Working Classes to Refrain From Strikes.

BERLIN, via London, July 28. — The Socialist Executive Committee and the General Commission of Labour Unions in Germany have united in a joint appeal to the working classes not to participate in strikes and demonstrations which the Radical leaders of the Liebknecht group of Socialists are endeavouring to organize.

The people are warned against giving ear to what is termed the shady propaganda of "the apostles of protest and the general strike," it being declared that such efforts are doomed in advance to failure and can only injure the participants and discourage their brothers fighting at the front.

BOTTLE OF LIQUOR COST SIXTY DOLLARS

Heavy Fine Imposed at Police Court This Morning

Sixty dollars was paid into the Police Court coffers this morning as the result of the consumption of one bottle of "booze," the millwright of a local mill, who happens to be on the black list, paying ten dollars for his share of the pleasure of it, and a young youth contributing fifty dollars for supplying the liquor to the blacklister.

In the stand the millwright denied that anyone had procured the liquor for him. He admitted loaning money to certain individuals around the mill, but denied that it was to buy liquor. Witness claimed that a black bottle was sitting on a table in one of the rooms of the mill. When asked as to who was in the room at the time, witness stated that he hadn't paid any attention.

"You fellows generally don't, on occasions of that kind," grimly remarked the Chief.

Despite his bad memory and the contention that he wasn't "very" drunk, he was assessed ten dollars.

The foreman of the mill then took the stand and stated his workmen were being hindered by certain individuals bringing in liquor, and causing a few of the weaker ones becoming intoxicated. He wanted to see it stopped, and wished to see an example made of the young man present, who was charged with supplying liquor to his millwright. The accused admitted having liquor in his possession on the day of the charge, but claimed he had taken it home and consumed it himself. The evidence did not look that way, however, and he was assessed fifty dollars, which was paid.

For driving a horse and rig faster than what is allowed by the law, a driver was fined two dollars and costs.

The same fine was imposed upon a local resident for being found in a drunken condition.

WEDDING BELLS

TREW—GAMBLE.

A quiet wedding was solemnized at Moose Jaw on Wednesday, July 12th, 1916, when Miss Rosie E. Gamble, of Castlereigh, Nova Scotia, and Levern T. Trew, of Trewdale, Sask, formerly of Peterborough, were united in marriage by Rev. Mr. Reid, of the Presbyterian Church.

OBITUARY

WALTER ROBSON.

Word has been received in this city of the death of Mr. Walter Robson at Limerick, Sask. The late Mr. Robson was a former resident of this city, and left here some eight years ago, being employed with the B. F. Ackerman Co. A sister, Mrs. Clifford Hancock, resides on the second line of Smith.

The body will not arrive until Tuesday and the funeral will take place under Masonic auspices.

MRS. HANORA HARRINGTON.

The death occurred to-day of one of Ennismore's best known and most highly respected residents, Mrs. Hanora Harrington, at the age of 82 years. The deceased lady had been born in the township of Ennismore and was a lifelong resident of that county.

She leaves to mourn her loss three daughters, Mrs. Ducie, Mrs. Maurice O'Connor of Toronto and Miss Katie at home, and three sons, Messrs. Stephen, John and James, all of Ennismore. The deceased was widow of the late James Harrington, who predeceased her by some years.

The funeral takes place on Sunday to St. Martin's church, thence to St. Martin's cemetery.

MARY J. VILA.

The death occurred at St. Margaret's Home, Montreal, on the 26th inst. of Mary J. Vila, widow of the late Raymond Vila, and a sister of Mr. W. T. Cumming, 267 Oliver Avenue, Westmount, Montreal. The deceased lady was a daughter of the late Wm. Cummings and had a host of friends in this city, having been born and raised here. Early in life the late Mrs. Vila had removed to New York, where she resided for thirty years.

The body arrived in this city from Montreal, and was interred yesterday in Little Lake cemetery.

ISABELLA SIGSWORTH.

The death occurred in Brantford, Ontario, on Tuesday midnight last, of Mrs. Isabella Sigsworth, a former resident of this city, and one who has a wide circle of friends here who will be grieved to hear of her death. The deceased lady was widow of the late Christopher Sigsworth, who predeceased her by over one year. Mrs. Sigsworth died at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Walter Bell, Brantford, with whom she had been residing previous to her death. The late Mrs. Sigsworth is survived by four daughters and three sons.

The remains arrived in the city at noon yesterday and were escorted by Mrs. Walter Bell from Brantford.

The funeral will take place this afternoon at three o'clock from the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. David Law, 240 Munroe avenue. Service at the house at 2.30 o'clock. Adjutant McElhiney will officiate.

THE WORST OF IT WAS THAT DICKSON ST. WAS NOT OILED

Community pride and self-respect has been touched to the quick along Dickson Street by a recent inadvertent inclusion of it in the lane species of highways. The article endeavoured to labour the necessity of oil on Park Street, and it was affirmed that back lanes like Dickson Street had long since been oiled. Probably this is turning the knife in a double sense in the fresh wound, for neither is Dickson Street a lane, nor has it been oiled. Far from it on both counts. On the one hand, the tax roll reveals the fact that Dickson Street citizens contribute in the aggregate comparatively more revenue to the municipality than any other street in the city. That the civic spirit flourishes in the Dickson Street community is best illustrated by the fine boulevard that Mr. Wm. Davidson has built along the entire length of one side of the street. The street has been kept free of poles to a large extent by citizens giving rights-of-way over their property, instead of cluttering up the front lawns with them. On the other hand, there has been neither water nor oil on this, a condition that makes the objectionable reference the tinued neglect of the oil board, but the oil wagon given it a treatment the innocent expression might have been overlooked. And on second thought it probably wouldn't. For the Dickson Street people possess a civic pride that would tolerate the conmore keenly resented. Probably had would challenge any and every aspersion on the street to which they have given so much personal attention in an effort to provide something of the beauty the Council failed to appreciate.

But there was no intent to disparage Dickson Street. Douro or Donegal or Homewood, or any street on which traffic is comparatively light, might have been singled out. But Dickson Street was mentioned on the strength of a statement of a North Ward citizen, who left the impression that any old lane in the North Ward could get oil before a regular street in the South Ward. However, if this offended, it at least provided an opportunity to mention the civic interest that prevails along both sides of Dickson Street, a public spirit that probably was not fully realized before. Besides, it gives another chance to remind the Board of Works that Park Street has not yet been oiled.

SLIGHT BLAZE AT REAR OF GEORGE ST.

A slight blaze occurred in an old shed at the rear of George street and back of Gordons meat store this morning. The fire department were called to the scene and soon had the flames under control. No damage was done, and the use of a few chemicals ended the slight conflagration.

FRYATT KILLING RIVALS IN HORROR CAVELL MURDER

All of British Isles Indignant at German Execution of British Skipper

GREAT BRITAIN MAY RETALIATE

LONDON, July 29.—Newspapers here last evening received word of the execution by the Germans at Bruges, of Captain Fryatt, of the passenger ship Brussels, for an alleged attempt to ram a submarine with a general chorus of indignation and horror.

"This appalling deed of frightfulness rivals in savagery the Cavell murder," said the Evening News. "The spirit manifested even parallels that of the Lusitania case."

Captain Fryatt was a young Harwich skipper described as a British seaman of the finest type.

Violete International Law.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—Germany's execution of Captain Charles Fryatt, master of the British steamer Brussels, is regarded in allied quarters here as a brutal violation of International law, likely to result in prompt retaliatory measures by Great Britain. They contend that if a hostile submarine approached the Brussels, it was in effect an attack and Captain Fryatt, in making a counter-attack by attempting to ram, subjected himself only to treatment as a prisoner of war in event of capture.

AT 16 SHE ELOPES WITH BOY HERO, 14

NEW YORK, July 29.—When Roger Day, fourteen years old, appeared in the streets of Ashbury Park, N.J., in a cow boy suit and displaying a large revolver in a holster which swung recklessly from a cartridge belt, the public soon learned that he and Marie Towne, sixteen, had "eloped" a week ago and that they had returned only because all her money had given out in "dolling up" her young hero.

Marie followed Roger to court when he was arrested on a charge of carrying a weapon, and after their parents had been called the children told a remarkable story of their travels. Both live in Wanamassa, a suburb of Ashbury Park. The boy's father, Joseph Day, is employed in a New York bank, and the girl's father, John Towne, is a real estate broker.

Considering herself an heiress in possession of $40, which she found in her mother's dressing table, and believing Roger Day to be the handsomest hero she had ever seen, Marie proposed that they go away to some high mountain crest, build their castle and live happily ever after. That was according to their testimony yesterday.

Roger said that would suit him all right, and last Thursday they started. Marie purhasing two railroad tickets to Wilkesbarre, Pa. She had been there once on a picnic. She remembered Wilkesbarre, and her mind pictured a royal castle on the highest hill crest.

"At Wilkesbarre we bought a tent and started up the Columbia Hills," said the girl. "On the way we met a farmer, and he told us there were bears up there, so we went back to town and bought the pistol and cartridges and the cowboy suit, as Roger said he wasn't afraid of bears, but would have to have the right thing to fight them. He isn't afraid of anything.

"Then we went away up in the hills and when we got tired we made our camp. As there were bears around we took turns in being on guard and in sleeping, three hours on and three hours off. Every day we went in to town and bought things until we had no more money and had to come back."

Both children insisted that they had stopped off on the way to Wilkesbarre and had been married and then had destroyed the marriage certificate, but they could not remember where they were married.

The charge against Roger was dismissed, and the children were turned over to their parents.

2,000 Girls Reply To Loeb's "Ad" For a Wife

NEW YORK, July 29.—Arthur M. Loeb, the engineering contractor who surprised his friends by advertising for a wife, received more than a thousand letters from girls anxious to become Mrs. Loeb. An equal number called him on the telephone at the Broadway Central, where he lives.

"I have found," he said, "that girls are much more frank over the telephone than in letters."

Hamilton Contractors Say They Will Not Give Back War Profits.

HAMILTON, July 29.—Several Hamilton firms which have had large munition orders were asked if they would follow the example of F. W. Baillie, President of the Canadian Cartridge Company, and return profits to the Imperial Munitions Board, but all interviewed intimated that they had no such intention. The union men point out that Mr. Bailey's firm was one of the few concerns that adopted the finding of the Government Commission, recommending a nine-hour day and increases in wages.

Breaks Man's Skull In Street Attack

NEW YORK, July 29.—August Anderson, thirty-five, of No. 2081 Southern Boulevard, the Bronx, was locked up. The police declare he walked up to a man at Eighty1fifth street and Third avenue and, either with his fist or some instrument, struck him in the face.

After a chase through Eighty-fifth street Anderson was caught. His victim, with what was believed to be a compound fracture of the skull, was removed to Reception Hospital. It was said he might die.

TO CHECK A COLD.

It is easy to check a cold if you begin in time. Frequent doses of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine keep the cough loose, allay the inflammation, and so prevent it spreading to the bronchial tubes and lungs. Mrs. A. M. Moore, Shortreed, B.C., writes: "I wish to state my gratitude for Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, for it cured a cold which a friend said would soon put me in the grave."

R. G. Murphy Accused Of $1,540 Frauds

NEW YORK, July 29.—Richard G. Murphy, said to be a son of the late Richard Gibbs Murphy, Stock Exchange member, is named in warrants issued in Newark. He is charged with obtaining $1,100 under false pretenses from Robert N. Shoemaker, a lawyer, and $440 from Joseph E. Dorn, a clerk.

It is charged Murphy promoted a company to secure the names of persons east of Chicago who were to receive $1,000 or more by inheritance or on mortgages. These names were to be sold to a Chicago security company for forty cents each.

FRECKLE-FACE

Sun and Wind Bring Out Ugly Spots. How to Remove Easily.

Here's a chance, Miss Freckle-face, to try a remedy for freckles with the guarantee of a reliable dealer that it will not cost you a penny unless it removes the freckles; while if it does give you a clear complexion the expense is trifling.

Simply get an ounce of othine — double strength—from any druggist and a few applications should show you how easy it is to rid yourself of the homely freckles and get a beautiful complexion. Rarely is more than one ounce needed for the worst case.

Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength othine as this is the prescription sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

LINDSAY, July 29.—A real estate deal was made by Mr. P. J. The purchaser was His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, of Peterborough, who, anticipating an influx of people to this town, took time by the forelock to have property upon which to build a church and schoolhouse in the future if such becomes a necessity.

5000 AMERICANS A MONTH CROSS TO DOMINION

Ottawa sends out some information about immigration into Canada that is interesting as throwing light on the war's effect in this direction. It appears that in the two months of May and June last, the arrivals of foreigners were recorded to a number that would make the total immigration for a year about 75,000, and that of this total less than 10,000 would be British, while more than 60,000 would be from the United States.

The figures of the record year of 1913 must be compared with these to get at the present situation. In 1913 the total number of immigrants into Canada was 402,432, of whom 150,542 came from Great Britain and 139,009 from the United States. Evidently the tide of British migration has practically stopped, while the influx from our own country continues with nearly half its greatest flow.

It is not strange that inhabitants of the motherland should have abandoned their transatlantic movement. The war has accelerated industry to a marked degree in the British islands and employment is plentiful at home, while the call of adventure comes now from the battlefield and the voice of patriotism adds its echo as well. But why is American migration to Canada continuing with such a large proportion of its former dimensions? Times have not been good in the Dominion; they have been distinctly good in the United States. It is not easy to understand why Americans to the number of 5,000 a month are trekking north when the clamor for labour is loud in their own land and wages can be won here more attractive than in any period of recent history. Of course, it would be natural enough to see our people going elsewhere in search of opportunity after the war's stimulus of industry should have ceased, but their exodus at present is not a little remarkable. —Detroit Free Press.

City Boy Drowned In Cobourg Creek

George Bradley Was Visiting Grandparents With His Mother.

COBOURG, July 28.—A regrettable drowning accident occurred at the Factory Creek here, whereby George Alfred Bradley, son of Mrs. Bradley, Toronto, and grandson of Mrs. Daniels, of this town, lost his life. The young lad, who was nine years old, was visiting with his mother at her former home here. With some other boys he went in bathing at the Factory Creek, in which are some deep holes. He got beyond his depth and went down. The boys who were with him attempted his rescue, and a young boy named McKend brought him out, but resuscitation proved ineffectual.

Heat Reaches Crest 100 Degrees in Chicago

Chicago, July 28.—Ten dead and scores prostrated in Chicago alone was the toll yesterday when the terrific heat wave of the last 17 days reached its crest—100 degrees. This mark has been reached only four times before in the history of the local weather bureau.

It remained at 100 degrees for eight minutes.

The heat wave is general throughout the Middle West. Hundreds of prostrations and numerous deaths are reported in nearby cities.

Even as far north as Pierre, S.D., the mercury shot up to 102 degrees. Grand Rapids, Michigan, registered 102, and shattered every record in that city.

Take Iron For Your Blood

Makes You 100% Stronger in 10 Days

Phosphorous For Your Nerves

Doctors are now finding thousands of people who are going through life in misery with kidney trouble, liver complaint, nervous prostration, headache, nervous indigestion, rheumatism, constipation and numerous other complaints, all due to lack of Iron in the blood and Phosphorus in the nerves.

Just as soon as the blood becomes thin, and nerves weakened you are unable to digest the little food you eat and at once your system becomes poisoned, causing liver trouble, kidney pains, headaches, rheumatism, indigestion, heart trouble, and you soon are a living thin, run-down, nervous wreck, and life to you then is a burden. The first thing you should do is to go and get weighed; then go to the nearest drug store, and get some bonised phosphorus with iron tablets and take one or two after each good meal and you will find that in ten days you are 100 per cent. stronger. The Iron will give you good rich thick blood and the phosphorus will strengthen your nerves and the food you eat will give you 100 per cent. more nourishment than before; you will begin to get fat, your nerves will be stronger, and you will feel like you used to when you were 15 years old. You know as well as ever, doctor, that there is nothing like good old iron to give you strength and build you up, while phosphorus acts wonders on the nervous system.

The iron recommended here is an entirely new form of Iron which will not blacken the teeth or upset your stomach.

Life is short but you can lengthen it by 25 years if you take Bonised Phosphorus with Iron, which gives you digestive strength, and the food you eat will be nourishment to you instead of poisoning your system, causing so many complaints, which you know bring you to an early grave. Bonised Phosphorus with Iron does not contain an atom of arsenic, strychnine or any poison which has been proved so harmful in almost every tonic. It is easy to take and is taken up by the system almost immediately, making you feel 100 per cent. stronger in 10 days. It is dispensed in this city by P. C. Webber stores at 50c a box.

A PAGE OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO EVERY WOMAN

HOW TO KEEP WELL

BY JOHN W. S. McCULLOUGH, M.D., D.P.H., CHIEF OFFICER OF THE PROVINCIAL BOARD OF HEALTH.

THOSE OF US who attended a rural school thirty or more years ago will, in driving through the older parts of the Province, notice the great improvement made in the school buildings and surroundings, compared with those of our boyhood days. The writer calls to mind the schoolhouse of a prosperous community of the seventies. It was a low, log building, heated in winter by an immense stove of the "box" type situated near the front door, with a long double range of pipes badly jointed and subject to smoking until the fire was well established. The fire was usually lighted on a winter's morning by the first arrival. The floor was of rough boards unplaned and unjointed, many of the boards not being nailed to the joist which was made of logs resting upon the ground. Those were the days of slates and pencils, and an ill-fate befell the dropping of a pencil upon the floor as it promptly disappeared through one of the numerous large cracks between the boards. The noon-hour was the occasion for a diligent search under the easily-raised flooring. The desks were huge arrangements along the walls, and the seats were benches devoid of backs. The blackboard was made of planed boards painted black. The floors were usually given a scrub in the summer holidays. Their cleanliness during the balance of the year depended upon the industry of the larger school-girls. Dry sweeping was the rule, with a resulting layer of dust upon everything in the room. The out-houses, bad enough in the present day, were usually devoid of doors and without any semblance of privacy. The grounds were small, filled with stumps and rocks and without much facility for play.

THE COUNTRY SCHOOLHOUSE

How much better are present-day conditions! The school buildings are mostly of stone, wood, or brick, are well lighted, well heated, and equipped with modern seats and desks, slate or plaster blackboards, and have clean, smooth hardwood floors. The number of children in each school, because of a greater number of schools perhaps, are fewer and with better surroundings, they should be healthier and happier. In the present day the grounds are usually ample. Trees and flowers have been planted; in many places experimental beds of flowers and shrubs are found. The one condition which has not improved as rapidly as it should is the toilet convenience.

The Medical Officer of Health for the township should make it his duty to visit the schools at frequent intervals to examine the toilets, see that the well, the usual source of water-supply, is properly protected, that the heating and ventilation are satisfactory, and that communicable diseases are excluded as much as possible. Every teacher should be alert to notice signs of illness in the children, to see that the hearing, the sight, or other defects in the child do not prevent the proper development of any child or interfere with the advance of the more capable. With the insight of experience the good teacher should learn to note the presence of vermin, itch, the early signs of measles, whooping cough, diphtheria, mumps, etc., in the pupils, and, if the condition of any child is suspicious, the Medical Officer of Health should be notified and the child excluded from school until the question is settled.

MEDICAL INSPECTOR OF SCHOOLS

A properly qualified nurse should be assigned to a group of schools to follow up cases recognized by the teacher or Medical Officer of Health, the latter of whom, for rural schools at least, must in the course of time become the school medical inspector. The Medical Officer of Health in Ontario is the only officer common to the township who can rationally carry on the work of medical inspector of schools. With a nurse or two he can give most efficient service to his township. Now that he is made a permanent officer and with the prospect of an additional emolument for this service, he can afford to devote some attention to it, without the fear that any action he may take or the fact that he may tread on some one's toes may mean his dismissal. No other state or province has a better organization for public health work than Ontario, and no other single state or province in America has made greater strides in public health work during the last decade. The improvement in the municipal health officer is most apparent in the meetings of the Ontario Health Officers' Association. The latest meeting held in Toronto at the end of May last was in point of attendance, class of papers presented, and interest shown the best conference held in the last five years.

THE SCHOOL NURSE

NOT THE SAME IN ALL CASES.

At breakfast restless little Tommy began to play with the cruet-stand. His father told him not to do so. Tommy persisted, and at last upset it and spilled the pepper on the table cloth. "Now, Tommy," said his father, "you were disobedient and upset the pepper-caster, and I really ought to make the punishment fit the crime by putting some of the pepper on your tongue." Tommy looked up in a flash and said: "Should I be punished the same way, dad, if I upset the sugar bowl?"

Where Wind is of Value.—Donald M'Lanny, as behooved his reputation as the strong man and athlete of the district, entered his name for all the events in the village sports. Of course great things were expected of him, but expectations were hardly realised. The first event on the programme was the quartermile, and of eight runners Donald finished eighth. "Donald, Donald," said a fellow-Scot, "why did ye no' run faster?" "Run faster?" he said, contemptuously. "An' me reservin' ansel' for the bagpipe competition."

MISSES' AND JUNIORS' SUMMER FASHIONS

Sports Togs Favoured, and Even the Tiniest Tot Wears the Straight Lined Box-Pleated Frock

SIMPLE MILLINERY FOR SMALL MAIDS

NEW YORK, July 29.—As usual, misses', juniors' and tiny tots' frocks and outer garments follow the same general lines of grown-up designs. The shop windows are gay with flowered muslins, voiles and dainty party frocks of flouncings and embroidered batistes, and even nets and taffetas, for Fashion now decrees that taffeta and the flowered summer silks are not too grown-up for small people. One especially pretty little frock of taffeta and net shown in a shop devoted almost entirely to children's things, is trimmed with daisies, a band of them forming the girdle, a cluster here and there on the skirt, and one on either shoulder. Another Frenchy little party frock of taffeta and crepe is made sleeveless, with a smartly flaring ruffled skirt; this design, however, will hardly appeal to American mothers, although it is charming as a picture. An effective simple dress for summer is of plain white voile, trimmed with bands of old-time fagoting arranged to form a round yoke and banding the cuffs.

Children's and Juniors' Millinery Most Charming.

For the very small person there are charming little fitted caps of lace and net, and fetching little close-fitting bonnets of pale pink and blue Georgette trimmed with a cluster of tiny flowers or a rosette of ribbon. For the older girls the wide brimmed Bangkok and Wen-Chows are appropriate, trimmed with a touch of bright colour in wool or ribbon, or a simple band of velvet or elastic silk banding the crown. These sports bands with the stripes running around or up and down, are very becoming to the young girl and harmonize well with a plain wash frock or a dark serge or linen suit.

Pongee Popular for Girls.

Natural coloured pongee, trimmed with contrasting colours, blues, greens, and similar shades, is well liked for the shoe-top suits now so popular with girls of from six to sixteen. The blouses worn with these suits are usually fashioned of the sheer cottons, voiles, marquisettes and nets, or the tub silks and satins, crepe de Chine, China silk and pongee. The light coloured lawns, dimities and linens are also popular for girls being fashioned into simple frocks, middy dresses and like models. The wide stripes, so popular for grown-up sport skirts and suits, are also popular with the younger generation being fashioned into Norfolk suits, modified Russian and middy frocks and similar loose-lined models, becoming to the growing girl. The sports styles are popular, too, smart little coats of silk and wool jersey in the popular bright tones being worn over tub dresses of linen, duck, pique, and the softer cottons, voiles, crepes and like.

In the shoe-top suits also, the Poiret twills, novelty wool mixtures, shepherd checks, gabardines, and serges are equally as popular as the pongees and Shantungs.

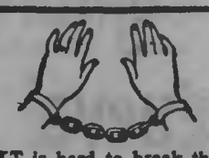
Net and Taffeta Dresses for Afternoons.

For party and summer afternoons there are simple net frocks for juniors and misses, trimmed very effectively with lace and the simplest of ribbon trimmings, tucks, smocking and ruches, narrow ruffles and shirrings.

The very tiny tot in her first short frock, wears lawn, batiste, dotted Swiss, crepe and fine linen. Most of these little dresses are fashioned into straight hanging, box-pleated dresses—as the merest toddlers are wearing these models nowadays.

Smocking and tucks are effective trimming and hand embroidery plays an important part. White is most favoured for the very small maid, although the pale pinks, blues, and other sofe shades are used considerably, too.

The separate coat to wear over the fluffy dress, is fashioned of taffeta, the novelty checks, serge, and Bedford cord. One of the prettiest coats of the season is developed in dark blue Bedford cord with collar and cuffs of white broadcloth, closed with large white bone buttons. The collar and cuffs may be made removable, thus doing away with the impractical side of the white.



IT is hard to break the chains of habit. It took one man six months to stop saying "Gee Whiz."

medical men. It is a difficulty, reflex in its character, that may be transmitted from a disturbance of the nerve centres elsewhere. It is often associated with a valvular disease of the heart and should always be regarded as a constitutional malady and not one confined to the respiratory organs alone.

Attacks may be caused by over-eating and over exertion, irritation at some point, as in the stomach or bladder, or upon the skin, or in the rectum, by constipation, indulgence in highly seasoned foods, liquors or indigestible foods. Sweets of all kinds may also provoke attacks in those subject to Asthma. Asthma is very rarely immediately fatal. A recovery may be gradual or it may terminate as suddenly as it commenced, especially if appropriate treatment is pursued.

Asthmatic persons must avoid excesses of all kinds and use plain but nourishing diet. Ordinarily it will not be found difficult to locate the disordered organ which is the actual seat of the disturbance and its proper treatment may lessen the severity of the attacks and perhaps entirely obliterate them. As a rule the kidneys must be carefully watched and the bowels never permitted to become constipated. The prognosis in cases of those who have seemingly inherited the condition is not very encouraging. In the case of your friend I would suggest that she employ some of the home methods described in the Book of Lectures, as well as in Vol. II. A special preparation of the tissue foods or cell salts would also be beneficial for the purpose of supplying strength to the weakened organs.

Dear Doctor: I thought perhaps you could help me. I have a nervous trouble which I have had for 15 years. Could you give me rules for Physical Culture? Medical treatment has never so far benefitted me. I am also troubled a good deal with Dyspepsia.
M. M.

Answer: While the information in your letter regarding yourself and the possible and probable cause of your nervousness is very meagre, I will say that your dyspepsia is the result of your indiscretion in diet and unwise selection of food. Your diet should be very light for a while; in fact I believe that an exclusive milk diet for about two weeks would be suited to your case. Colon flushings or enemas should be taken every other day during this time to further assist in cleansing the system. Your diet should then be so regulated as to exclude the use of pork, veal and all fried foods. Your breakfast should consist of some cereal with cream or milk, with some fruit or fruit sauce. Lunch at noon on whole wheat bread, milk, not more than two well cooked vegetables and some fruit. Dinner in the evening may consist of a little well cooked mutton, beef or poultry, whole wheat bread and some vegetables. Employ yourself during the day with some congenial work, keeping your mind off yourself. Night and morning practice the deep breathing exercises outlined in Vol. I of the Home Health Club books, closing the exercises at night by relaxing as outlined in Vol. II. In both Volumes I and II you will find in condensed form a complete library of instruction regarding foods, diet, exercises, physical culture and Dynamic Magnetism, all written in plain language.

Choice Recipes

RASPBERRY SHORTCAKE.

Bake sponge cake in 2 layers, or split one thick cake; put in between them a thick layer of berries, and on top put whipped cream and more berries.

WHITE LAYER CAKE.

One and a half cupfuls granulated sugar, 1-2 cupful butter, 1 cupful milk, 3 cupfuls pastry-flour, 4 teaspoonfuls baking-powder, 1 teaspoonful vanilla extract, 6 egg-whites.

Cream the butter, add sugar gradually, and cream till very light and fluffy. Sift flour and baking-powder together three times, add this alternately with the milk to the first mixture until all is used. Then fold in the egg-whites beaten stiff and the vanilla. Bake in three small or two large, well-oiled layer-cake pans for 40 minutes in a moderate oven, for the first 30 minutes, then at a lower heat. Put together with thick boiled icing.

SUGAR COOKIES.

Beat one cupful of butter and 2 of sugar to a cream. Beat the yolks of 4 eggs until light and add them to the butter and sugar, then add the beaten whites. Mix thoroughly and quickly and add just sufficient flour to make a stiff paste. Roll out as thin as possible without breaking. Cut and bake in a moderate oven. These are more tempting when baked a delicious brown than when white.

TOAD IN THE HOLE.

Make a smooth paste with half a pint of milk, a beaten egg and 1-4 pound of flour, with a pinch of salt. Grease a baking dish and put some scraps of left over meat or sausages at the bottom. Sprinkle with pepper and salt, pour the batter over all, and bake for one hour in a quick oven.

MEAT LOAF.

Here is a good rule that can't be improved on: One pound of the bottom of round, 2 slices of fresh pork (select two rather fat chops), grind twice, 1 slice of bread dried and ground, small piece of onion, salt and white pepper to taste, a very small piece of nutmeg, 1 teaspoon of sugar, small cup of milk. Work it a good while with your hand, form in a smooth loaf. Bake in a rather hot oven three-quarters of an hour. Baste often with a little butter and a cup of water. Will you please let me know if you like it? Chop all meat very fine. Put through chopper twice.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S DRESSING SACQUE.

By Anabel Worthington.

Every woman has a liking for a dressing sacque, more or less fancy, according to taste, and especially does such a garment appeal on warm, sultry days. It is not enough that it be just loose and comfortable, but the design must be one that is appropriate for the airy, summery fabric chosen—everything is done to add to the cool, comfortable, restful look of the garment.

The model illustrated invites you to take comfort and suggests that many times during a season you will find need of such sacque. The body and sleeves are in one section, making it the easiest possible to reproduce with the guidance of the pattern.

The collar, in contrasting goods, continues its line down either side of the front, with the edge scalloped, and the cuffs on the short length sleeves are similarly favored. You may if you like have the collar and cuffs plain.

The pattern, No. 7,842, is cut in sizes 36, 40 and 44 inches bust measure. To make like the illustration in size 36 will require 2¾ yards of 27 inch dark material and ⅞ yard of light goods in the same width. Or you may develop in all one material with 2¾ yards of 36 inch goods.

You may obtain the pattern by sending [illegible] to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

HOME HEALTH CLUB

By DR. DAVID H. REEDER

(Edited by Dr. David H. Reeder, Chicago, Ill.)

Infantile Paralysis:—As a matter of special news that called for large headlines the newspapers generally have told you of the terrible epidemic of Infantile Paralysis that has been crippling and slaying the helpless babies in some of the eastern cities. The score has spread over the country generally and I have no doubt that much needless damage has been done to anxious mothers who feared that their own precious babies might be the next victims.

The wrost feature of the trouble has heretofore been that the disease was so little understood and even now, apparently only the most up-to-date physicians are aware of the best means of preventing its spread. There appears to be human carriers of the disease the same as there are human carriers of typhoid fever. Filth is the thing that must be fought most strenuously. The children of the rich as well as of the poor seem to suffer alike, however. We must therefore realize that it is impossible to guard against the filth of people who will not take the most ordinary precautions for their own protection to say nothing of others. Their hands are seldom washed more than once daily, and they open and close the same doors, handle the same money, street car straps, seat arms, and numerous other things, including fruits, vegetables and bakery goods that are handled by your children and mine, if they are in the cities or even smaller towns.

How natural it is for a child to touch this or that in a street car or railway coach, and then the little thumb or fingers go into the mouth. It makes one sick just to think of it. About the only safe place for babies and small children during such an epidemic is the country and the country home should be amply protected against flies. Everything must be kept scrupulously clean, garbage and manure disposed of not less than twice each week, and the house must be well screened. All unnecessary street car or railway journey should be avoided. At present all coaches leaving New York city are first disinfected and suspected passengers are forbidden their use. The disease seems to be well under control at the present time.

Dear Doctor: A friend of mine is very much troubled with asthma. Has recently taken a cold and is quite sick at this time. What is the cause of asthma and can you tell me if there is any cure?—Mrs. D. D.

Answer: Authorities differ as to the true cause of asthma. If it is so-called Bronchial Asthma the trouble is mostly due to a certain congestion of the lower bronchial tubes, but this congestion on its part is due to an irritation of the nerves ending in these parts. That the nervous system is responsible for asthma is held by most

After taking 1000 ZUTOO TABLETS Says they are Harmless

Mrs. (Dr.) Shurtleff, of Coaticook, says "Zutoo Tablets must have cured 500 of my headaches, for I have taken 1000 tablets. After trying every remedy within reach, I discarded them all four years ago for ZUTOO, which I have taken ever since.

I find the tablets a harmless and efficient cure for all kinds of headache."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Miss Jinks, Domesteopath

By F. A. MITCHEL

One spring morning while touring in my car I passed a little house standing a short disance back from the road to which was nailed a sign, "Miss Jinks, Domesteopath."

Now, I had often heard of the allopath, hydropath, osteopath and other schools, but never before had I seen the word domesteopath. I drove on, wondering what it meant, my curiosity rising with every mile I receded from it till I could stand it no longer. Then I turned, rode back to the house, left my car in the road and went up to the door. There was no bell, but an old fashioned iron knocker, representing the face of a smiling girl. I rapped.

A lady came to the door who was in appearance as unintelligible as the sign. She might have been fifty, yet she was dressed like a girl of sixteen. While her face and figure smacked of youth, it at the same time smacked of age. I asked if she was Dr. Jinks. She said she was Miss Jinks and invited me into a cosy consulting room.

"What is your specialty?" I asked her.

"Squabbles," she said in a cracked voice as peculiar as her appearance.

"Squabbles? I never heard of that disease."

"It's universal. Every one suffers from it more or less."

"What are the symptoms?"

"It comes largely from overstrained nerves. Sometimes it is reasonable, though usually unreasonable. It is most common between husband and wife, for the reason that a man is a man, while a woman is half child."

"What! You, a woman, make that statement?"

"A man living with a woman," she went on, "is continually in the presence of a being made up entirely different from himself, and vice versa. Therefore they are subject at all times to the disease of which I make a specialty—squabbles."

"Oh, I see! Well, I don't know that my wife and I have any more of that disease than the average couple. At the same time"—

The last four words were enough for Miss Jinks. She told me of difficulties I had with my wife with as much exactness as if she had been a member of my family. They were not serious, but annoying, and sometimes bordered on what might be called quarrelsome.

"And you eradicate these difficulties, these squabbles, as you call them?"

"Wherever I can get my patients to take my medicine."

"What is your treatment?"

"That is my secret. If you desire me to treat you and your wife I shall charge you a fee to begin with"—

"You would need to call upon my wife," I interrupted, "and I don't see what reason could be offered for doing so."

"Not at all. Your wife will call on me."

"How do you make out that?"

"Give me your address and I will send her my card."

"How would that effect the purpose?"

"What led you to make this visit?"

"Curiosity."

"Will you deny that your wife has less curiosity than you?"

"On the contrary, she has ten times as much as I."

"She need not know you have been here. As I was about to say when you interrupted me, I shall charge you a consulting fee of $5 and will charge your wife a fee of $10."

"Why charge my wife more than me?"

"People only value what costs them something. A woman is always bound to get the full value of her money. If your wife pays a good sum for my advice she will be more apt to follow it. The man is more liable to act upon the value of what he receives as he sees it."

"You surely know your sex."

"We women all know one another."

Before I left Miss Jinks I handed her a five dollar bill and gave her my home address, asking her for the medicine. But she said a prescription would be sent in due time. Squabbles was a plural disease; no one could have it without inoculating some one else. The cure must therefore be plural. I saw the point and submitted to be guided by Miss Jinks' method. I left her trusting that her efforts to cure my wife would be successful. Since all our difficulties were her fault, the treatment would naturally pertain to her. Miss Jinks did not gainsay this; she only smiled a wizened smile.

A few days after this my wife informed me that she was going to make a tour in the car and would be gone all day. Since it was a day's ride to and from the domesteopath's I assumed that she was going there. She returned without saying where she had been, but I noticed that when I found fault with her for concealing her doings she refrained from answering back.

The next morning I received by mail a prescription from Miss Jinks: "Look for the fault within yourself."

To make a long story short, Miss Jinks had given me and my wife the same prescription. It struck us on consideration that the prescription was worth what we paid for it, and I observed the treatment on this account. Julia observed it because she didn't propose "to pay out $10 for nothing."

We have kept up Miss Jinks' treatment from that day to this, and no household is happier.

KEEP HUNS FROM EMPIRE

London Morning Post Endorses Lord Kitchener's Proposal.

LONDON, July 28.—The Morning Post in its leading editorial, urges the Government to take drastic steps immediately to prevent the Germans from gaining a foothold, commercial or otherwise, in the British Empire after the war.

The Post declares that Lord Kitchener, shortly before his death, devised a plan along these lines, which the paper now endorses.

"Lard Kitchener's proposal," says the Post, "was to pass a law that for 21 years no German should be allowed to naturalize himself or take up his domicile in the United Kingdom or the British Empire, or to enter into any partnership in any British business or become a shareholder in any British company."

NO FIGHTING IN BALKANS

Greek Military Authorities Doubt Early Resumption of Hostilities.

ATHENS, July 28. — Following lengthy conferences between Gen. Moschopoulos, commander of the Greek forces at Salonika, and King Constantine and the Greek general staff, the impression is general in military circles at Athens to-day that a resumption of hostilities in Macedonia between the Entente and the Central Powers is not imminent.

There are no indications that Salonika will be attacked. The Austro-Germans have less than a brigade of troops, and the Bulgars have only ten divisions on the Salonika front, and consequently, military observers point out, they are not in a position to undertake an assault on the formidable Macedonian stronghold.

Advises The Use Of "FRUIT-A-TIVES", The Famous Fruit Medicine.

MR. ROSENBURG

April 20th, 1915.

"In my opinion, no other medicine in the world is so curative for Constipation and Indigestion as "Fruit-a-tives". I was a sufferer from these complaints for five years, and my sedentary occupation, Music, brought about a kind of Intestinal Paralysis—with nasty Headaches, belching gas, drowsiness after eating, and Pain in the Back. I tried pills and medicines of physicians, but nothing helped me. Then I was induced to try "Fruit-a-tives", and now for six months I have been entirely well.

I advise any one who suffers from that horrible trouble—Chronic Constipation with the resultant indigestion, to try "Fruit-a-tives", and you will be agreeably surprised at the great benefit you will receive". A. ROSENBURG.

FEAR NEW BLAST IN CLEVELAND TUNNEL

CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 28. --The bodies of the eleven men entombed in the west side water works tunnel may not be recovered for a week, as a result of investigations which disclosed that gas continues to pour into the tunnel and that there is great danger of a second explosion wrecking the tunnel and the outer crib.

L. M. Jones, federal mine expert, and a party, made six trips into the tunnel this afternoon, and declared that the deadly gas is so thick in the tunnel that further rescue work should not be attempted until the flow is stipped. It is believed that the gas explosion on Monday night which trapped the tunnel workers and took a toll of twenty-one lives, opened a gas well in the bed of the lake.

The investigations, which were postponed today, because of inability to find the witnesses, will be begun to-morrow. The water works commissioner will be the first witness in the inquiry started by the city government. Fourteen witnesses have been subpoenaed.

IF SUBJECT TO COLDS HERE IS GOOD ADVICE

Don't load your stomach with cough syrups. Send healing medication through the nostrils—send it into the passages that are subject to colds and Catarrh. EXECUTION IN PRIVATE.

Public Will Not Be Admitted When Casement Is Hanged.

LONDON, July 28—The London News Agency says that a public execution of Roger Casement is highly improbable and that failing special instructions from the Government arrangements to hold it in privacy at the Pentonville prison, Aug 3, will be proceeded with.

In any case, the News Agency says, a public execution would probably mean that reporters only would be admitted as representing the general public. According to some authorities executions for crimes except those of murder must be public.

Looking For the Dog.—A visitor to a small country town lost his dog, an animal which he prized very much. Rushing to the office of the local newspaper he handed in an advertisement, offering fifty dollars reward for the return of the dog. Half an hour later he thought he would add to the advertisement the words: "No questions asked." So he hurried off to the office again. When he got there the place was empty save for a little boy who looked very sulky. "Where's the staff?" asked the tourist, glancing round the deserted room. "Out looking for your dog" was the aggrieved retort.

Tips For the Housekeeper.

When frying eggs place a cover over the frying pan. This cooks the egg evenly and without turning. Poached eggs should be done the same way.

Apple parings and cores should be stewed to a pulp and then strained. This will make a jelly which spread on apple tart will greatly improve it. It can also be used for flavoring tapioca pudding.

Orange peel and lemon peel may be used for flavoring sauces and stewed fruit. They can be dried and kept in a glass covered jar until used.

If potted cheese gets crumbly or dry in the pot mix into it a tablespoonful of boiling water and have the spoon hot before measuring the water. Mix thoroughly and the cheese will be freshened and improved.

Millinery Details.

More odd trimmings appear on the spring hats than one can keep track of. It should not be a hard matter to have a very individual hat this season. A buttonholed taffeta rose, flowers which are transparent, having the appearance of being candled; caterpillars clinging to foliage, pearl pins, plenty of lace, the single wide velvet streamer, braided ribbon and applique may each be made use of to great advantage. There is a trend toward high directoire hats with more or less of a scoop.

Fodder Grass Experiment.

An experiment of considerable interest is being made in the West Indies with the fodder grass known in the Transvaal as teff (Eragrostis Abyssinica), which was introduced there in 1908, and has proved a great success, its qualities being good palatability, high nutritive value, heavy yield, rapid growth, drought-resisting, and ability to smother weeds. The Commissioner of Agriculture for the West Indies has recently obtained a supply of seed of this grass, and small quantities have been distributed to the different islands, including Trinidad, where, it is learnt from Professor Carmody, the plant has already been tried. It seems rather difficult to establish in Trinidad. It is hoped, however, that enough plants may be raised to produce seed for future distribution. There is every reason to believe that if this new fodder can be successfully grown it will be a great boon to stock owners in the Lesser Antilles.

ST. CATHARINES POLICE STRIKE FOR MORE PAY

ST. CATHARINES, July 28.—This city is looking for an entire new police force, with the exception of the Chief. Trouble started with the desire of the men for an increase in pay, but the strike, it is claimed, came not over a question as to whether or not the claims of the men were valid, but over a point of insubordination, which the Commissioners say the entire force is guilty of, because of the manner in which the demand was made.

On Tuesday last, the day before the meeting of the Commissioners, the first intimation was given that the men were going to insist on an increase in pay. It came in the form of a demand containing a new schedule signed by all members, setting down August 1st as the date it should go into force. With this first suggestion also came the verbal intimation through the Detective Sergeant to the Chief that the men would go out on two hours' notice if the demands were not at once met.

The Board of Commissioners considered the mode of procedure decidedly arbitrary an passed a resolution at a special meeting, which was this afternoon read to the men.

It declared their act to be that of insubordination, and the Commissioners called upon the members of the force to state their intention, so that if it should appear necessary, the Board could take steps to furnish the required police protection.

The answer came this evening in a joint resignation, signed by all the members except the Chief. The resignations, nine in number, including Detective Sergeant McCarthy, two Sergeants and six constables, were all accepted to take effect July 31st. Lieut.-Col. Burleigh, commanding Welland Canal and frontier protective force, was called upon to furnish sufficient men when necessary, and until such time as a new permanent force can be engaged. The increase of pay demanded by the men averages twenty per cent. The Chief admits that the demand was laid on his desk nearly three weeks ago, but the Commissioners state that no word of the condition of affairs was made known to them until this week.

To Overcome Sunburn, Tan, Freckles, Wrinkles

If your skin is unduly reddened, freckled or tanned, dab a liberal amount of ordinary mercolised wax on the face and allow it to remain over night. When you wash off the wax in the morning, fine flaky, almost invisible particles of cuticle come with it. Repeating this daily, the entire outer skin is absorbed, but so gradually, there's not the slightest hurt or inconvenience. Even the stubbornest freckles are affected. The underlying skin which forms the new complexions is so fresh and youthful-looking, you'll marvel at the transformation. It's the only thing known to actually discard an aged, faded, muddy or blotchy complexion. One ounce of mercolised wax, procurable at any drugstore, is sufficient in most cases.

If sun and wind make you squint and frown, you're bound to cultivate wrinkles and crow's feet. To overcome these quickly, bathe the face in a solution made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel.

Lost $3 At Cards Killed Creditor

"BECAUSE HE WOKE UP AT NIGHT AND LOOKED UGLY AT ME."

Ottawa, July 28.—A Cabinet council yesterday decided to let the law take its course in the case of Peter Nimalovitch, of Battleford, found guilty of murder. He will hang today. Nimalovitch, after having played cards with two compatriots one evening and lost $3 to one of them, got up the next morning and shot his creditor through the head, and also attacked his companion. He claimed insanity at the trial but the alienists adjudged him sane. The fact that there was no apparent motive for the murder was not considered as establishing insanity as foreign murders often occur seemingly with absence of provocation. A case will shortly be decided by the Cabinet where one British Columbia Italian decapitated another because, he stated, "he woke up at night and looked ugly at me."

NEW ENEMY FOR GERMANY

Berlin Believes Roumania Has Decided to Join Allies.

GENEVA, July 28.—Advices from Berlin that passed the German censor and reached here yesterday contain a well-defined intimation that Roumania is seriously considering throwing in its lot with the Entente and that Germany realizes only decided military success for the Teutons in the near future in the eastern theatre will hold the Bucharest Government back.

Hitherto all reports from Berlin have expressed confidence that Roumania would be induced to maintain its policy of neutrality, but recent Russian successes have apparently raised fear in the German capital that the Entente allies will at last be successful in the pressure brought to bear on the Roumanians.

WARNS OF EXTRAVAGANCE

Canada Must Use Discretion in Disposal of Abnormal Profits.

LONDON, July 28.—The Pall Mall Gazette's financial editor says now that Canada has immense sums at her disposal, through the output of munitions, it behooves her to use great discretion in the disposal of such abnormal profits. The danger of extravagance lies with municipalities rather than individuals. Toronto is showing how the ratio of the annual debt charges may be increased in accordance with the annual total expenditure. If other municipalities now possessing ample funds will take steps to reduce debt charges the present prosperity is likely to prove of immense advantage.

THE FOE THROWN BACK ON WHOLE KOVEL FRONT

BRITISH REPULSE GERMAN COUNTER-ATTACKS

BRUSILOFF DRIVES THE ENEMY BACK ON THE KOVEL FRONT

Enemy Stronghold is Rapidly Being Enveloped From South as Russian Armies Advance Unceasingly Against the Austrians in Galicia---On the Somme Front the British Repulse Counter Attacks and Make Progress Despite Violent Opposition

MUCH BOOTY EXPECTED AT BRODY

PETROGRAD, July 29. — General Brusiloff has resumed his offensive and thrown back the Teutonic line on the whole Kovel front from the Roviech railway to Brody, the War Office announced to-day.

Make Progress in Spite of Opposition

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, July 29.—Two desperate German counter-attacks against the positions in the Delville Woods recently won by the British were repulsed, General Sir Douglas Haig reported to-day. The Teutons, he said, suffered heavy losses in the attacks which occurred during the night. Hand-to-hand struggles northwards and north-eastwards of Pozieres continue without intermission. We are making progress, despite violent opposition. Abundant evidence that the losses we inflicted during the last few days has been extremely severe, particularly around Delville Woods, where two or three regiments appear to have been annihilated.

Russians Rapidly Enveloping Kovel

Special to The Examiner:

PETROGRAD, July 29.—Kovel is rapidly being enveloped from the south as the Russian armies advance unceasingly against the Austrians in Galicia. The capture of Brody, military experts pointed out here to-day, gives the Czar's forces an opportunity to improve their thrust north-westward toward Kovel. An evidence of the precipitate character of the Austrian retirement before the heavy Russian offensive is given in the fact that on Thursday the Russians were twelve miles from Brody, and on Saturday the occupation of the town was announced.

Petrograd eagerly waited the full word to-day of details of Brody's investment. It was regarded as certain that a considerable quantity of booty fell into the hands of the city's conquerors, since Brody has been an Austrian field base. The Russian army of invasion into Galicia will have the advantage of the railway in their movement against Lemberg.

Kaiser Himself Confirmed Sentence

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, July 29.—That Kaiser Wilhelm himself confirmed the sentence of death found by a Court Martial trying Captain Fryatt, of the passenger liner Brussels, for his attempt to ram a submarine, was reported in a Maastricht despatch here to-day. It served further to inflame the British feeling against what the press and public alike branded as surpassing the execution of Miss Cavell, the British nurse, in cold blooded ferocity. The Maastricht despatch asserted that the Duke of Wurtemberg wired the sentence of death pronounced by the Naval Court Martial at Zeebrugge on Fryatt to Imperial headquarters, asking for confirmation. The War Council granted this confirmation at once, all its members, including the Kaiser and General Erich Von Falkenhayn, the former War Minister, agreeing on the justice of the death sentence.

A Message From Pope Benedict

Special to the Examiner.

NEW YORK, July 29.—The United Press to-day received the following message from Pope Benedict, through the agency of Cardinal Gasparri: "Rome—I have presented your telegram to the Holy Father. His Holiness is grateful for your respect and confidence in the Holy See. He prays that the Lord of Mercies, moved by the prayers of innocent children, imploring peace on this second anniversary of terrible conflict, shall deign to end speedily this awful carnage."—Cardinal Gasparri.

German Air Raid Did No Damage

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, July 29.—A German air raid in the early hours of to-day over Lincolnshire and Norfolk caused "no material damage," according to official statements to-day. "Three airships at 1.30 this morning dropped 32 bombs over Lincolnshire and Norfolk without material damage," the War Office asserted. "There were no casualties." "At one place anti-aircraft guns drove off the aircraft from their objective. Fog hampered the raiders."

THE IRISH PROBLEM AS VIEWED BY MR. T. P. O'CONNOR

From the Hour Lord Lansdowne Made His Speech Everybody Had Felt That the Settlement Was Doomed Says Tay Pay

REFERS TO THE DEBATE

By T. P. O'Connor

Copyright, 1916, Central News.
(By T. P. O'Connor.

LONDON, July 29.—My cables the last two weeks have prepared you for the final breakdown of the negotiations incident to the proposed Irish settlement. From the hour Lord Lansdowne delivered his unfortunate speech without public repudiation from Premier Asquith, everybody has felt the settlement was doomed; but few thought that Lord Lansdowne's audacity and the weakness of Premier Asquith would have gone to such lengths.

In the final hour of the negotiations John Redmond, leader of the Irish Nationalists, was present, with every sign of humiliation and grief, by Lloyd George and Herbert Samuel at the War Office, with two entirely new and vital departures from the agreement presented by Redmond, Dillon and Devlin, to the Irish people, namely, a variation of the terms about Ulster, suggesting a permanent instead of a temporary arrangement, and the refusal to allow full Irish representation at Westminster in the next Parliament until the Home Rule question was finally disposed of.

Strong Action.

The Irish leaders, without a second's hesitation rejected these suggestions and a party meeting held immediately afterwards, enthusiastically confirmed their attitude. Strong action was agreed upon which led to the rebate of last Monday. Up to the last minute the Ministry attempted to turn Redmond from his purpose of immediate debate and the rupture that would necessarily follow, but the Nationalist leader amid fervid cheers and some passionate interruptions from the Irish benches which showed how bitter was the feeling, sternly refused.

The debate went splendidly from the Irish side and Redmond's calm and dignified presentation of Ireland's case produced a profound impression. No speech afterwards from the other side succeeded in meeting his contention that the Ministry had broken its solemn contract. This exposure of the shabby transaction humiliated all Englishmen as well as exasperating the Irishmen, and the debate ended with a disastrous impression of weakness, vacillation and bad faith on the part of the Ministry. This following almost immediately upon the damaging debate over the Mesopotamia and Dardanelles campaigns, further weakened the already tottering Government.

Second Impression.

The second impression of the debate was the feverish eagerness apparent on all sides except among the Tory junkers, whose leader, Lord Lansdowne, wrecked the Settlement, that the question must not be left at this disastrous point. Nearly every newspaper accepted Redmond's view of the situation, and not one had a word of excuse for the Government.

Well meant attempts are being made behind the scenes to find some other formula for saving England and Ireland from another disastrous misunderstanding, and there is renewed talk of a joint executive body of all parties in Ireland to carry on the administration of government during the war. How these things will end, I cannot yet say, but I am not hopeful.

The upper smoke-room of the House of Commons, as it is called—in contradistinction to the strangers' smoke-room, which is in the basement—is one of the spots where you get more of the realities of Parliamentary life than in any other spot in the Parliament House. At half-past four to five every afternoon there is to be found in this room a considerable number of the most important members of the House. Ministers rarely go there; though now and then Mr. Lloyd George, who remains simple,

PTE. C. PRIMEAU OF THE 93rd BATTALION IS SERIOUSLY ILL

Peterborough Boy Has Been Admitted to the Military Hospital, Seaforth, Liverpool, Suffering From Pneumonia ---Taken Ill During Voyage---Last Chance to Join the Forestry Battalion---To-day's General Military News

KILLED IN ACTION.

Lieut. Ormsby Boyd, of Bobcaygeon, with the South Lancashire Regiment, in Mesopotamia.

Pte. Thomas Dee, of Millbrook, with the 2nd Canadian Division.

WOUNDED.

Pte. Adolphus Picard of Peterborough, formerly of the 39th Battalion.

SERIOUSLY ILL.

Pte. Chas. Primeau of Peterborough, with the 93rd Battalion.

PTE. PICARD WOUNDED.

Pte. Adolphus Picard, Jr., a well-known Peterborough boy, who left with the 39th Battalion early last year, has been wounded, his name appearing in to-day's casualty list. Pte. Picard, who is a son of Mr. Adolphus Picard of this city, enlisted here with the 57th detachment, in the 39th Battalion, and went overseas with that battalion, afterwards transferring with eleven other Peterborough boys to a Nova Scotia Battalion. Eight out of the twelve have appeared on the casualty list. Pte. Picard's wife is at present in Toronto, which accounts for the Toronto address in to-day's list.

LIEUT. BOYD KILLED.

Lieut. H. Ormsby Boyd, eldest son of Captain Boyd, of Bobcaygeon, who is medical officer of the 109th Battalion, has been killed in action in Mesopotamia while serving with the South Lancashire Regiment. He went overseas with the first contingent, but was give a commission in the British army and did not go to the front in Flanders. His regiment was sent to Mesopotamia, and he was made transport officer, having charge of a large number of boats on the Tigris River. While in charge of a working party he was struck and killed by a stray bullet. Lieut. Boyd was educated in Toronto, and was employed in a bank in London, Ont., when war broke out. He was a grandson of Major-General Boyd and a cousin of Col. G. T. Denison. His brother is with the 74th Battalion.

Ottawa, July 28. — All Canadian troops at the front are equipped with the improved rifle, which is to replace the Ross as the Canadian service arm. The same is not yet true of the troops in England.

The statement issued by the Government some weeks ago was to the effect that the first division had been furnished with the new arm. It is learned that it has since been supplied to the other two divisions as well. Enough of the new Lee-Enfields are also available to furnish 150 rifles per battalion to the troops which are now under training in England, and it is expected that it is expected that it will not be long before all have them.

A quantity of the Ross rifles which have been replaced will be returned to Canada and will be used for training purposes here, for which they will be very welcome.

His many friends will be sorry to learn that No. 19849 Pte. Charles Primeau, of the 93rd Battalion, is seriously ill. Official word has been received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Primeau, Cricket Place, East City, that Pte. Primeau is officially reported seriously ill and admitted to the Military Hospital, Seaforth, Liverpool, Eng., on July 26th, suffering from pneumonia. It is presumed that Pte. Primeau was taken ill during the voyage of the 93rd to England. Pte. Plimeau is one of the best known Peterborough boys with the 93rd. He was engaged in the optical business for himself on George street for some time, and before enlisting was in the employ of Mr. A. A. Fowler, the local optician. His brother Fred is overseas with the 33rd Battery, C.F.A., C.E.F. A host of friends will hope for Pte. Primeau's speedy recovery.

Sergt.-Major Geo. W. Allen, a Peterborough member of the 49th Battery, C.F.A., C.E.F., is home on leave from Petawawa camp. Sergt.-Major Allen is very anxious to secure the services of a saddler and a couple of shoeing smiths for this crack battery, which was organized in Toronto and which will go overseas shortly. Any local men with experience in the lines mentioned who wants to get a quick passage overseas, should communicate with Sergt.-Major Allen during the next couple of days at his home, 535 Chamberlen street. He returns to Petawawa camp on Tuesday.

Corporal Ernest Mein, a Peterborough boy with the 198th Battalion, Canadian Buffs, at Camp Borden, is visiting his home here for a few days on leave.

Another Peterborough boy who has signed on for overseas service outside of the city is Sergt. S. J. Grisdale, who is a member of the 119th Battalion, Alogma district. Sergt. Grisdale spent last Sunday in the city, the guest of his brother, Mr. John Grisdale of the local letter carriers' staff.

TORONTO, July 28.—The 238th Forestry Battalion is now out for a grand sweeping campaign to bring in a few hundred more recruits in the next few weeks, and then they will be off to sea. One of the surprising features of recruiting in Ontario to-day has been the remarkable growth of this non-fighting unit, so rapid, in fact, that Lieut. Col. W. R. Smyth, who recently returned from the west, reports that there are now over 650 men signed on the Forestry Battalion. It has been a noticeable fact in this city that while other recruiting units are caught in the middle of the mid-summer slump in enlistment the Foresters have been able to jump into the recruiting field energetically and lead all other units.

In the last few days special openings have been made on the 238th. Announcement comes from Ottawa that the Foresters will be a battalion of six small companies, rather than a regular battalion of four. This means that each company will have the regulation number of non-commissioned officers, in other words that there are now openings for about twenty more such men than at first anticipated. Lt. H. S. Price, who is in charge of the depot at 55 Queen street west, sends out the call for experienced lumbermen to fill these positions, rather than for military men, as military training is of far less importance to the Foresters than is experience in bush work.

Quite typical of the energy of the Foresters is the opening of a new recruiting depot at the Hamilton Armouries, in which city a special bid will be made to raise a Russian platoon. Some criticism of the 238th has been made on the grounds that foreigners are being admitted, but care is to be taken that the different nationalities be kept in platoons of their own. In this city a Polish platoon is to be raised, with a Polish sergeant in charge, and the organization is already well under way. Applicants for either the Russian or Polish platoons, from outside points, should be made to the Toronto depot, either by letter or in person.

Col. Smyth declares himself highly pleased with the results of the first month's recruiting, which brought 650 men to his unit, and he sends out a final warning to any man who wishes to get on this non-combatant unit that he must not delay much longer as the battalion will be up to strength in two or three weeks.

AN INTERESTING LETTER.

The Examiner is in receipt of the following most interesting letter which should be read by everyone:

Park House V.A.D. Hospital,
Southborough,
Tunbridge Wells, Kent.

Dear Sir,—I am taking this opportunity of writing you a few lines to let my many friends in the home town know that I am rapidly recovering from the wounds I received on June the 10th when taking part with our other brave lads in resisting the Hun attack in the Ypres salient. As you have learned from earlier reports we had a real hard proposition to contend with, as this salient is one of the hardest to hold in the whole British line, as we are exposed to the nearly all open ground. It would be nearly al lopen ground. It would be a very difficult matter to describe to you what the boys had to go through during those ever memorable first two weeks in June. The bombardment was something terrific and there never seemed to be an end to it. Even when darkness came it continued, and the heavens was lighted up by flares and star shells till there was no night, it was all day, but the boys were there for a purpose and they stuck to their posts, although the casualties were

THE JURY RETURNS AN OPEN VERDICT

Investigation Discloses Tragic Circumstances Surrounding Death of Westwood Infant—Child Was Buried in a Woodshed and Exhumed Seven Days Later at the Instance of Provincial Authorities

FURTHER ACTION PROMISED

After deliberating for upwards of two hours, the Coroner's Jury empanelled to enquire into the cause of the death of the infant child of Annie Douglas, of Westwood, last evening, came to the conclusion that the child came to its death under "unusual circumstances," and that the evidence was insufficient to determine the actual cause of death. The verdict will not preclude the possibility of further action on the part of the Crown. It is stated that the authorities will take further action in connection with the matter. This may result in the prosecution of Alice Douglas for concealment of birth. According to her own evidence given in the witness-box at the inquest last evening, the girl admitted burying the child in the woodshed, where it was recovered by Inspector Miller, of the Provincial Police Department. A more serious charge may be preferred against Annie Douglas, the twenty-one-year-old mother of the child.

Number of Cases.

The case represents one of a number that have been reported from the neighbourhood of Westwood and Hastings. On Monday last an inquest was concluded in Hastings, resulting in an open verdict being brought in by the jury which was empannelled to investigate the circumstances surrounding the death of a child that was found buried in a henhouse. Another child was left on the doorstep of a well known Hastings county man. It is the intention of the authorities to take further action in all three cases. The last two cases come under the jurisdiction of the authorities of Hastings county.

In the words of Inspector Miller, of the Provincial Police Department, the Douglas case of Westwood is a particularly sad one. About five years ago, death removed the mother of the home, leaving the father and three daughter. Annie, who is now about twenty-one years of age, and the mother of the dead child, was practically the mother of the family. She has no desire to seek redress from her betrayer, preferring to have nothing more to do with him. Her betrayal was said to have been effected under promise of marriage.

A Strange Burial

Alice, the seventeen-year-old sister, was quite frank in her evidence relating to the disposition of the body. It was buried in a cartridge box. The babe that was discovered in a henhouse in Hastings was buried in a circular roasting pan that had been crushed in at the sides so as to accomodate the body.

The inquest last evening was held in the Police Court Chamber, with Coroner Dr. Greer presiding. Crown Attorney Hatton appeared for the Crown and Mr. D. O'Connel had a 'watching brief," apparently in the interests of the Douglas family. Inspector John Miller, of the Provincial Police Department, was also present. The jury was made up as follows: John Anderson (foreman), Duncan Drummond, T. J. Moore, Thos. Detcher, F. Snelgrove, Bruce Patterson, S. Hooligan, Carl Schmuck, W. J. Routley, T. H. Glover.

The Evidence.

Dr. T. H. Huycke, of Hastings, was the first witness called. Witness made his first visit to the Douglas family

GRAMAPHONE IS APPRECIATED BY THE 52ND BATTERY

Capt. Shaw in Gratefully Acknowledging the Gift Says That Peterborough Has Every Reason to Feel Proud of Her Sons in the Battery

BATTERY STANDS HIGH

The following letters received from Capt. W. E. V. Shaw, officer commanding the 52nd Battery, C.F.A., C.E.F., are in reference to the gramaphone sent to that unit by the Peterborough organization:

Petawawa Camp, Ont., July 22, 1916.

Dear Mrs. Huycke,—On behalf of the officers and men of the 52nd Battery, I have the honour to convey to you, and through you, to the ladies of Otonabee Chapter, I.O.D.E., our most sincere thanks, for the part that you took towards getting the fine gramaphone for this Battery.

The instrument is, indeed, a fine one, and it's value, in our eyes, is greatly increased by the good wishes that we know came with it.

The officers and men have made much use of the gramaphone since the evening of its arrival, and I am sure that it will be a Godsend in the strenuous days to come.

Since coming to camp we have, by close application and hard work, done well, and the acid test has shown that we stand high among the batteries here.

You have every reason to be proud of your Peterborough boys, and when the time comes, I have every reason to say that the Peterborough boys of this Battery will not disgrace you.

Again thanking you and the ladies of your Chapter.

I am, yours very sincerely,

W. E. V. Shaw, Captain,

Petawawa Camp, Ont., July 22, 1916.

Dear Mrs. Stevenson,—If you, and the ladies who were instrumental in getting the gramaphone for this Battery, could have seen the stir that its arrival created, and the almost ceaseless use that has been made of it, since that time, you would be, perhaps, more able to appreciate how the officers and men of the 52nd Battery look upon the instrument, not only for the sake of the gift itself, but also on account of the good wishes that came with it.

The title plate, which arrived with your letter of good wishes, has been affixed to the lid.

On behalf of myself, my officers and men of this Battery, I have the honour to convey to you, and to Mrs. J. A. Aylmer, Mrs. P. Campbell, Mrs. A. E. Coulthard, Mrs. W. R. Morris, and to the others, who were responsible for the gift, our most sincere thanks for the fine gramaphone and for the kindly thoughts that prompted you.

The Battery is now getting into fine shape, and both in manoeuvres and in actual shooting, is showing a quality that is placing it well towards the head of the list, and this against batteries who have had much more experience, and who were formed, and at work, long before the 52nd Battery was ever thought of.

Again thanking you and assuring you that this Battery is doing its best to be a credit to the good name of Peterborough.

I am, yours very sincerely,

W. E. V. Shaw, Captain,
O.C. 52nd Battery, C.F.A., C.E.F.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

SATURDAY, JULY 29, 1916

THE BROAD WAY AND THE NARROW WAY.

In the seventh chapter of the Gospel record of St. Matthew are found these words:

Broad is the way that leadeth to destruction . . . narrow is the way that leadeth unto life (and few be the aldermen that find it).

This is a good, sound, sensible and self-evident Gospel truth; and all of the city aldermen believe it. But, like most of us, in regard to practical morality, they do not believe what they believe—only theoretically and academically, and intellectually, perhaps—with the mind, but not with the heart. Otherwise they would take some steps to narrow the broad driving surface of the residential streets—the broad road that leadeth to destruction—of money and waste of effort and unsatisfactory values, and results.

The importance of the question and the wisdom of narrowing street surfaces was brought out at a recent meeting of a council committee. Application for oil on streets that badly need oil, in the interests of residents who have a right to oil as much as the lucky residents on oiled streets, had to be refused.

And one of the chief reasons why the requests had to be refused was because the driving surface of the streets of the city are too wide.

It developed in the course of the aldermanic discussion that fifteen out of the seventeen miles authorized had been oiled. Now it is a fact that is recognized by the city engineer and some of the aldermen that most of the driving surfaces of our streets are at least one-third wider than necessary. Therefore one-third more oil was used than would have been required under proper conditions of street width, and the cost of oiling the superfluous one-third is practically absolute waste. Besides, with streets of proper width, the same quantity of oil needed to cover seventeen miles of our too wide street surfaces, would cover twenty-two and two-thirds miles. In that event, all the people who have vainly demanded oil on their dusty streets, and those on many other streets, could, at the same expense—less cost of application—have been given the right and benefit of dustless streets.

Another argument in favour of narrower street surfaces was brought out at the meeting when the trouble of preparing streets for oiling was mentioned. Of course the wider the street the greater the trouble of preparation. If it costs, say, thirty dollars, to prepare a mile of wide street for oiling, it would cost, of course, one-third less if the street were reduced in width, one-third.

Ten dollars saved in the cost of preparing one mile would mean a proportional saving on twenty miles. We don't know the cost of oiling per mile, but it is enough to make a 33 per cent. saving an object; something that ratepayers can appreciate about the time they are facing the heaviest tax bills in the history of the city.

Then there is the obvious argument that narrow road ways cost less to build—to put in good condition, and cost less to maintain.

With narrowed wheel surfaces it would be practicable to metal or gravel the whole face of the street between curbs, providing better drainage, and leaving less, or no expanse for weeds and mud.

Then the annual expense of street cleaning—removing mud—would be lessened; and that would be worth while, for the cost must be considerable. Then there would be fewer or no weeds to cut; for the whole driving surface of a narrow street bed would be gravelled and used, and no weeds could grow.

The weeds in our streets are one of the disgraceful features of our streets. Alderman McIntyre says that the $200 waste fund—for cutting weeds—would be exhausted last night. We must, therefore, conclude that the rest of the splendid harvest of street weeds, undeterred by drouth, will continue to grow, go to seed, and prepare for a bountiful crop and more street deformity another year.

On all counts the case for narrow driving surfaces for residential streets is proven. They cost less to build; cost less to maintain; are more cheaply oiled and kept in condition for their sole and only use—comfortable driving for horse-vehicle and self-driven vehicle use. We could have wider and more beautiful boulevards; we should have mudless streets and weedless streets; we could have at less cost, more oiled streets—more dustless street, more comfortable streets to live on, and altogether we could have infinitely better streets at less cost than we now incur for defective streets.

Progressive cities, noted for the beauty and perfection of their streets, have narrow driving surfaces. The Romans of old were the greatest road builders of their time, if not of all time. The roads they built in the countries they conquered in the time of Julius Caesar, are, some of them, in use to-day in Britain; and over the roads they built in Gaul, two thousand years ago, the French artillery is doubtless rumbling every day on the western front. These splendid roads were well built, because they were more cheaply built, because they were narrow—only about twenty feet in width.

We should like to see the present city council make a name for itself before its term is out, by adopting a policy of narrower driving surfaces for our residence streets.

They have ample warrant for adopting such a policy. The "narrow way" is Scriptural. It meets competent engineering approval. It provides better, smoother, cleaner, and more dustless streets at the same or less expense. The narrow way costs less for oil, less for weed cutting and mud scraping, permits of wider boulevards, more neat and tidy streets, and contributes most largely to the perfection of the street conditions of the city beautiful. The narrower way would more fully reconcile us to our tax bills, and make us more proud, even than we have occasion to be now, of progressive and beautiful Peterborough.

WAR CHRONOLOGY.

Yesterday marked the second anniversary of this brutally bad war. On July 28, 1914, Austria declared war on Serbia, thus lighting the blaze that has been raging ever since. On August 1st Germany, which was behind all the devilry of this war, declared war on Russia, and marched against Belgium; and on August 3rd declared war on France, because that country said it would respect and defend the neutrality of Belgium. On August 4th Great Britain asserted her intention to defend the neutrality of Belgium and declared war on Germany, which she is so victoriously waging today. On August 10th France declared war on Austria, and on August 12th Great Britain also declared war on Austria-Hungary. On August 23rd Japan, respecting her treaty with Great Britain, declared war on Germany. It wasn't till the end of October that Turkey joined the fray and began hostilities against Russia. This brought England into a declaration of war against Turkey and she at once annexed Egypt and the Soudan to the British Empire. The land of the Pharaohs having previously been a suzerainty of Turkey. Italy, which had been an ally of Germany and Austria, did not consider herself bound by the triple alliance to help in a war of aggression, and after holding off till May of last year, she declared war on Austria, followed by a declaration against Turkey. In October of last year Bulgaria joined the enemies of humanity. Portugal joined the Entente Allies about this time, Montenegro joined Serbia shortly after the declaration of war in July, 1914, and, San Marino, the little toy republic soon after the entrance of Italy into the war, threw the whole economic resources of her 32 square miles of territory and her 10,000 population, into the struggle.

With fourteen nations, great and small, at war, the fight is still raging. On the brink of the third year of the war we recall the forecast of Kitchener, that it would last three years; and it looks now, with the fortunes of the Entente Allies flourishing on every front, as if the great organizer's forecast would come literally true and that the third year would see the end of the greatest war of the world in signal triumph for the allied champions of civilization, humanity, justice and right.

THE BOY SCOUT AS AN ELEMENT IN NATIONAL AND IMPERIAL PREPAREDNESS

The preparation of the boy of today for the financial and commercial war of the future is a subject which presents itself to leaders of thought in every civilized country. The spoils of the economic war will go to those countries best equipped with health and physique, common sense, good morals, energy, ability and education. "Our energies," says Sir Robert Baden-Powell, "should be concentrated on training the rising generation to the fullest possible extent in individual character, technical efficiency and physical health. With this foundation they make efficient citizens and equally, if need be, the most efficient soldiers. "The Boy Scout movement is performing that service in a remarkably efficient way. The Boy Scout is taught to be a healthy man, a gentleman, and when right needs the assistance of might, the muscle is available too.

A Scout's duty and promise is to help other people at all times. Some Scouts, in fact most Scouts, will go out of their way to fulfill this promise. A very interesting story, which is to the point, is told of a Boy Scout at Southampton, England. An officer embarking for the front had no time to make purchases which he had meant to do in the town. He gave a considerable sum of money and a list of commissions to a Boy Scout serving under the embarkation officer, but the ship sailed before the Scout had returned. The officer thought that that meant "good-bye" to both money and purchases. The Scout, however, had the ship signalled to that it was to stop in Southampton water; he commandered the Port Officers launch and delivered the goods and the change; when offered a tip, said, "Sorry, sir, on duty."

A prominent statesman once remarked that whatever pessimists might say of our Empire, there is undoubtedly creeping into it a desire, to do, each of us, something that counts. And there is plenty of opportunity. In the Scout movement there are many openings for such service. Whatever his age or his infirmity, whatever his standing or his inability to find time, there is an opening for every man in scouting. It may be as a commissioner to administer a district, or as an instructor to those boys wishing to qualify for the many proficiency badges, or as an occasional evening visitor to a troop. "It is grand work and sporting work, by which you can leave your mark behind you in the shape of lives saved for the individual as well as for the nation," declared our statesman.

The character of the Boy Scouts movement will be best understood by a glance at the "promise" exacted of each boy as he becomes a member:

"I promise on my honour, first, to be loyal to God and to the King; second to try to do a good turn daily to other people, and third, to obey the Scout law."

He is accepted by the Scoutmaster who says:

"I trust you, on your honour, to keep this promise. You are now one of the great brotherhood of Scouts."

At the very outset the boy is placed upon his honour, the strongest sentiment in the heart of a healthy boy. His manliness is appealed to and properly approached, a boy's manliness seldom fails. He is treated as a man and the result almost invariably is that he acts as a man. This is one of the great lessons taught by the Boy Scout movement to both parents and teachers. The Boy Scouts in Great Britain are at present regarded as about as necessary a part of the war as are the regular soldiers. It has been demonstrated already in the history of this movement that Boy Scouts make the best soldiers as many of those who began as Scouts are now fighting the Empire's battles in Europe, and above all it has been demonstrated that in fulfillment of their initiatory promise they become good citizens, loyal to God and the King, and doing good to their fellow men.

Shackleton's Haven on Edge Of World's Way

Falkland Islands Rarely Visited Except by Monthly Mail Packets From England

The Falkland Islands, where Sir Ernest Shackleton recently found a haven after the hardships of a perilous antarctic expedition, have figured seldom in world news since 1833, when the British flag was firmly planted over the land which, together with South Georgia, constitutes the empire's "farthest south" insular possessions. The Falkland group is described in a bulletin issued to-day from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic society, which says:

"Except when some unfortunate skipper is compelled to cast anchor in the harbour of Port Stanley, where the damage wrought by the fierce storms off Cape Horn can be expensively repaired, the Falkland Islands are seldom visited, save by the monthly mailboats from England. It must have been a sensational news-event, therefore, when the 900 Port Stanley inhabitants and the 1,100 other people distributed over the more than 100 islands of the Falkland group, learned that on the last day of May the intrepid explorer, Sir Ernest Shackleton, had arrived at this town with five companions, after having lost his ship, the Endurance, in the antarctic ice last October.

"Not since the thrilling naval engagement off the Falklands in December, 1914, when the British squadron, under Vice-Admiral Sturdee, sank the German cruisers Scharnhorst, Gneisenau and Leipsic, and captured two colliers have these islands figured so prominently in the news of the day as now.

"The Falklands are among Great Britain's colonial possessions which cling to the very fringe of civilization. They comprise an area somewhat larger than the Bahama group and lie 250 miles east of the mainland of South America and more than 1200 miles south of Buenos Aires. Only two of the islands are of considerable size — East Falkland, which is about five-sixths as large as Porto Rico, and West Falkland, with an area somewhat less than that of the State of Delaware.

"While the climate of the Falkland group is comparatively mild, the rigors of its winters in no degree approaching the cold of the southeast coast of Labrador, which lies in the corresponding parallels of latitude in the northern hemisphere, yet the islands are not an agreeable place in which to live, as a penetrating drizzling rain is experienced here during 250 days of the year.

"Except for the palm-resembling tussockgrass, which furnishes excellent forage for the herds of cattle, flocks of sheep and droves of wild horses, on the islands, there is little vegetation. The commerce, which does not reach a million dollars a year, consists chiefly of the exportation of wool, hides, tallow and frozen mutton. Extensive peat bogs supply the Scotch shepherds with a satisfactory fuel.

"During the late quarter of the 18th century Spain laid claim to the islands and for a time threatened to go to war with England over their control. The territory belonged to the British empire by right of discovery, however, for just a hundred years after Columbus reached American shores John Davis, one of the most dauntless navigators of the Elizabethan era, sighted this land while on his return voyage from the Strait of Magellan, where his superior, Thomas Cavendish, had met with disaster. This is the Davis who is reputed to have been in command of the Back Dog during the memorable overthrow of the Spanish Armada, and who ranks with Baffin and Hudson as the great triumvirate of early Arctic explorers.

"Nearly a century and three-quarters after Davis' discovery the explorer De Bouzainville raised the standard of France over these islands, and the latter government ceded the territory to Spain in 1757. It was upon this occasion that Spain based her claims which she seemed ready to enforce with arms until 1771. The reassertion of British rights in 1833 marked the withdrawal of the colonial claims of the people of Buenos Aires."

BREMEN IN ENGLAND.

Captain of Cretic Says German Submarine Was Caught.

BOSTON, Mass., July 29.—Reports that the German submarine Bremen was captured were strengthened by Captain F. B. Haworth, commanding the Cretic, which arrived here. Asked if he had seen anything of the German submarine, he said that from information which he has received from an authoritative source he understood that a merchant submarine which preceded the Deutschland had been captured and taken to England, and that the Bremen was also at the same place.

RUSSIAN SCRIBES DESCRIBE VISIT TO GT. BRITAIN

A body of Russian journalists who have visited England, as special guests of the British government, express themselves as amazed at the tremendous effort Britain is putting forth in her factories. One of them said: "We are in a celebrated city. The dismalness of the city is indescribable. Miles of streets stretch without any windows—a sort of narrow corridor between dark brick walls behind which one hears the clash of steel, and above which hangs a black smoke. The city is intersected in certain parts by high black viaducts, over which trains run, which serve the numerous and widely scattered factories and works. Sometimes we drive miles and miles along brick walls, the top of which is made of ore slag.

"At last we come to the first and most amazing object of our attention, the main nest of the works of the British Krupp's. Along the front of the furnaces are constructed aerial rails on which moves an object similar to a locomotive, but not standing on, but hanging from, the rails. Behind is a mechanic and at his least touch the whole machine rises or lowers, approaches the fire box doors of each furnace, opens their deadly hell (into which we can only look with dark glasses), brings up a waggonette of coal, raises it by means of a lever, pushes it into the fire, turns, withdraws, and again closes the gates of hell; then the locomotive runs further, and feeds every monster in turn, one by one.

"Afterwards we were taken through the stages of manufacture of the giant 1-inch guns, which adorn the superdreadnought, the Queen Elisabeth. The weight of such a gun is 96 tons. The hydraulic press which has to squeeze the metal of such monsters develops a pressure of 3,500 tons, but there is another one in the works of 10,000 tons. We were shown combined steel trunks, containing potentially three 15-inch guns. The making of a big gun takes eleven months. Some idea of the importance and productive capacity of these works can be formed from the fact that they employ in the various departments scattered all over England 75,000 workers, and that they are engaged at this particular moment on the making of 1,000 guns."

"We were then taken to another establishment which produces 800 tons of munitions a week. Here we were shown a manufacture of fifteen inch shells. Enormous shops full of light and air, with iron and glass roofs, but partly finished. Still half of the benches are already at work, and fifteen inch shells are being turned out in red-hot condition by means of 2,000 tons pressure. We were shown mountains of these fifteen-inch shells in special depots. But shells are not the only things made here in all shapes and forms. It is said that this is the longest gallery in existence—about 12,000 feet.

BUILT OVERNIGHT.

—"Lastly, we were shown the 'National,' that is, popular workshops, of a firm which has works also in Russia. We were shown a gigantic agglomerate of buildings covering acres. They are all of one story, full of light, made of steel and glass, with light wooden partitions. About one-half of them is still unfinished, but work is going on at full speed.

"'In August, 1915,' said the engineer in charge, 'when our company began negotiations with the government it was all fields and empty spaces here.' Though not all the shops are ready they accommodate already 1,200 benches, and some shops already turn out over 21,000 shells a week. When everything is completed the staff will amount to 2,000 men. The male department turns out 8-inch and the female 6-inch shells. Hosts of girls are trained here like students, under the guidance of older women, dressed in bright blue uniforms. Much material is said to be wasted before the inexperienced hands learn their trade, but the number of women from all classes of society trained in this class of work is steadily growing."

PLANETS AND GRAVITY

The Vast Difference In Conditions Upon Mars and Jupiter.

In an article entitled "Is Mars Alive?" in the Popular Science Monthly Waldemar Kaempffert describes the possible appearance of a Martian. In speaking of the different conditions prevailing on the planets Mr. Kaempffert says:

"The bigger the planet on which you live, the harder it is for you to move about. If you were suddenly transported to Jupiter, the largest of the planets, and if you were able to live on its semi-molten surface, you would find it hard to lift your arm. A steam crane would be welcome assistance in moving your body about. This is due entirely to the enormous gravitational attraction which Jupiter would exert upon you. The bigger the planet the harder are you pulled down to its surface; the harder it is to put your foot forward.

"Mars is only one-ninth as massive as the earth. Hence you would weigh much less on Mars than you do on the earth. A Martian porter could easily carry as much as a terrestrial elephant. A Martian baseball player could hit a ball a mile. A very ordinary Martian athlete would leap with ease over a moderately sized house. Because his planet is not able to pull him down with the attractive force that the earth exerts upon us, the typical Martian has conceivably attained a stature that we would regard as gigantic. Three times as large as a human being, this creature has muscles twenty-seven times as effective. His trunk must be fashioned to inclose lungs capable of breathing the excessively attenuated Martian air in sufficiently large quantities to sustain life. As a canal digger—assuming that he had no machinery—he would be a great success, because he would excavate a canal with the speed and efficiency of a small Panama canal steam shovel.

"Beyond that we cannot go. Intelligence is not necessarily a human attribute. It has so happened on this earth that man has become the dominant race not because of his physical powers, but because of his brains. It may well be that the biological conditions of Mars are such that a creature very unhuman in appearance may have gained the ascendency in the struggle for existence on a planet that is fast drying up."

AN INGENIOUS SNARE.

Uncanny Insect Trap With Which the Pitcher Plant Is Armed.

No trapper ever invented a snare for his prey more ingenious or a trap that ever had a higher percentage of "catches" than the pitcher plant, for few insects ever escape from the clutches of this horticultural meat eater. He catches them, holds them, drowns them and finally eats them.

And while he's doing it he smiles so innocently and prettily that you would imagine him one of the quietest and most peaceable flowers of the woods.

His leaves are his insect traps. They are a greenish purple and fold together like a cornucopia, with a half closed lid covering the top. The inner walls of this "pitcher" are lined with hairs, which point downward and are covered with a sweet, sticky fluid.

This fluid is regular "candy" for the bees and flies. The insect enters the half closed door of the pitcher, tastes the honey and begins to explore the interior. As he crawls forward the hairs bend with him and give him free passage. But when he tries to return he finds that these hairs are veritable barbed wire entanglements to keep him a prisoner.

The insect tries to fly out, and the curve at the top of the pitcher bars his way. He dodges this way and that, bewildered, until he tumbles in a little well at the bottom of the pitcher, where he drowns.—Exchange.

Heron's Feet For Bait.

So great is the heron's repute as a fisher that it has long been thought that its feet, owing to some peculiar scent or oil which they were supposed to possess, attracted the fish, more especially eels, to within easy reach of its beak. In some places the rustic angler still believes that if a heron's foot is placed with his worms the latter are more eagerly taken by fish.—London Outlook.

Quite Friendly.

The women who called just because they couldn't get out of it were met at the door by the maid. "My mistress is taking her beauty sleep," she said.

"How long does it take her?" asked one of the women.

"Oh, less than half an hour."

"She looks it," said the other woman in a whisper to her friend. Then they left their cards and trotted along.—Argonaut.

CASUALTY LIST HEAVY.

Evidence of Recent Severe Fighting On Somme Front.

LONDON, July 28.—Severity of the fighting since the beginning of the present offensive on the western front is indicated by the list of casualties among officers issued by the War Office, showing, for the first three weeks of July, 1,108 killed, 2,894 wounded, and 491 missing, a total of 4,493.

This makes the aggregate loss since the beginning of the war 38,857, of which 10,105 were killed, 21,290 wounded, and 2,462 missing.

The proportion of killed to wounded is still about 2 to 1, although it was rather less than this during the first fortnight of July.

6 Months Old Baby CURED OF DIARRHOEA

During the hot weather young children are very much subject to diarrhoea, in fact, more so than adults, on account of the more delicate construction of their constitution. It behoves every mother to look after her children on the first sign of any looseness of the bowels, for if they do not some serious bowel trouble such as diarrhoea, dysentery, cholera infantum, cholera morbus, Summer complaint, etc., is liable to follow, and they will, perhaps, loose their little one by not taking the precaution to check this looseness of the bowels by using Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry.

Mrs. Chas. Monck, Marlbank, Ont., writes: "When my little girl was about six months old she took a severe attack of diarrhoea. I tried castor oil, daudanum and other treatments, but they were of no use. A neighbour told me about Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. I tried it, and after giving my baby two doses I could see a great change for the better. I have always praised "Dr. Fowler's" since then."

Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry is the original. See you get it when you ask for it.

UNWED WAR BRIDE PLEADS WITH JUDGE FOR HER BABY GIRL

CHICAGO, July 28.—The famous Matters baby, who was cooed, gurgled and played with her toes through two court trials already, was the central figure in another court proceeding before Federal Judge Landis here on Wednesday. "Margaret Bryan," who swore in court that the baby girl is hers because she was the unwed war bride of the village blacksmith of her Canadian hometown, appeared to plead with the judge to let her have the tiny mite. The rich Mrs. Annie Dollie Ledgerwood Matters also claims to be the mother of the baby.

Mrs. Matters, charged with foisting the baby on her husband's estate as a spurious heir, is to go to trial again July 31, this time charged with perjury in connection with probate court records in the case. She was acquitted several months ago of the direct charge of foisting the child on the Matters estate.

A Remarkable Story.

The Matters baby case, to date, has unfolded a story that would furnish a de Maupeussant with plots for a dozen novels. It began when December mated with June — when Frederick Matters, Arcola, Ill., moving picture magnate, a man nearing seventy, married Anna Dollie Ledgerwood, a woman of twenty.

And then Matters died, leaving a $200,000 estate. A few weeks after his death Mrs. Matters appeared with a baby. It was hers, she said, born to her at Misercordia Hospital, at Ottawa, Canada. Other heirs to the estate questioned her claim of a posthumous heir. In the first place they said, parenthood was a physical impossibility to Matters.

Physicians came from the hospital and testified for Mrs. Matters. It was her baby, they said. Then, months later, Dr. L. C. Emile Berrard, chief obstetrician of the hospital, came to Chicago and said his conscience had troubled him, and he wanted to change his story.

This time he said he was telling the truth. The baby was not Mrs. Matters' at all. It was born to Margaret Bryan, a young Canadian girl, who had surrendered to love when the village blacksmith in her town went away to war with the Canadian contingent. The baby was taken from Margaret at its birth, Dr. Bercard said, and taken to a room where Mrs. Matters lay. Margaret was told her baby had died at birth. She lay listlessly and sadly in her cot in the public ward, while Mrs. Matters known to the "poor ward" as the "millionaire lady," crooned over the child.

Detailed Precautions.

Dr. Bercard detailed the surgical precautions that had been taken to make it appear Mrs. Matters was the mother.

When the trial of Mrs. Matters on a criminal charge began, the State sprang a surprise. It brought Margaret Bryan to Chicago, and the pretty Canadian girl told the jury her story. But it did not convict Mrs. Matters.

Then Margaret went to Federal Judge Landis, and told him she wanted her baby. A federal statute prohibits "immigration" of a child without consent of its parents. If Margaret was the real mother, the law applied to the Matters baby. So Judge Landis ordered the child taken from Mrs. Matters, placed in a local institution, and visiting hours so arranged that Margaret could see it each morning and Mrs. Matters each afternoon. There the case rested when Mrs Matters went to trial again.

Both women have "mothered" the child since it was taken from Mrs. Matters. Both have sought to win its love. It is about a year old now—a girl baby—and seems to know each of its "mothers" equally well. If Margaret wins it, when Judge Landis gives his decision after the present trial, it will go to a little Canadian town and live in comparative poverty. If Mrs. Margaret wins, then the baby will have silks and satins and automobiles and debutante's dances.

So condemnatory of the claims of Mrs. Matters was the testimony of the morning that one witness asserted that she had been "coached" in the previous trial by attorneys for Mrs. Matters, Judge Landis ordered that subpoenas be issued for three attorneys and Charles T. Mellon, a detective employed by Mrs. Matters.

Says She Was Threatened.

The witness was Miss Marie Louise Des Rosiers, head nurse of the Misericordia Hospital, in Ottawa, Ont., where the alleged fraud is said to have taken place. She related how the baby had been taken from Margaret Ryan immediately after its birth and given to Mrs. Matters, and wept when she told how she had been approached by detectives representing the other heirs to the estate and threatened with imprisonment unless she testified concerning the false heir.

"After that," she continued, "Mrs. Matters came to the hospital and told me that if I didn't testify that the baby belonged to her she would blacken the reputation of the hospital and the sisters."

Promised Money.

"Were you paid any money?" asked the judge.

"No, sir, I was promised some, but I wouldn't accept it."

Miss Des Rosiers testified that fear prompted her to tell falsehods in the early stages of the case, and then made the charge that resulted in the summoning of Mrs. Matters' former attorneys.

POLICE 'PHONE TAPPER DYING BY OWN HAND

Facing Second Court Test on Phonograms To-day, Sergt. Kennel Shoots Himself in Spleen

In Hospital Protests He Recorded Conversations Truthfully — Says He Was Hounded for Spying.

NEW YORK, July 29.—Worried over his poor showing as a witness in the wiretapping inquiry, Detective Sergeant John Kennel attempted suicide by shooting. A bullet punctured his spleen. At the Volunteer Hospital it was said he would die.

Fear that he would fail a second time to record accurately conversations over the tapped wire, in a court test scheduled for to-day, preyed upon Kennel's mind. He was a member of Commissioner Wood's wire-tapping squad, operating in a room at No. 50 Church street. When he entered the "listening in" chamber, yesterday, his associates, Detectives Watson and De Gilio, noticed his agitation.

"Oh, the failure of this thing to go through!" he cried. "If it doesn't, it will drive me mad."

He stepped into an adjoining wash room. His companions heard a shot. They rushed in and found him stretched on the floor.

Beside him lay his service revolver.

At the hospital the last rites of the Roman Catholic church, of which the wounded man is a member, were given him.

Protests He Told the Truth.

In statements to Deputy Police Commissioner Frank Lord, Inspector Faurot and John F. Joyce, Assistant District Attorney, Kennel whispered protestation of the truth of the phonograms he recorded, and denounced persons who had snubbed himself and his family for his connection in the wiretapping case.

"Everything in these conversations is true," he said, "and nothing but the truth. Everything that was said and everything that was in my papers was the truth, and every man in there told the truth, too.

"My children were born in the Catholic faith," said Kennel. "I believe in the Catholic faith, and people snub you simply because you have done nothing against a priest or a head of the church. They don't look into it the right way. They don't take two sides of the story.

"Let them look at the conversations and read them, and then go down the line and find out how much of the truth they are telling when they are on the stand. I went there and told the truth, clear as any man could tell it. They admit to a certain point and then they will turn about and have something else for it."

Kennel was listening in on a wire yesterday morning to get information about a gang of thieves.

"My head is in a whirl," the wounded detective told Faurot in the hospital. "Dont blame me, my head and heart were in a whirl. What will my wife and children do? Did you tell my brother? Oh, I am in such terrible pain."

Brother of Mayor's Guard.

Lieutenant William Kennel, police bodyguard of Mayor Mitchel, is a brother of Sergeant Kennel. He hurried to the Volunteer Hospital, where he was told his brothers condition was so bad that probing for the bullet was impossible.

As head of the police eavesdroppers, Sergeant Kennel recorded the most important of the phonograms in the charities case, one purporting to be from Monsignor Dunn to Dr Potter offering $100 to the latter to leave New York, and one claimed to have been from ather Farrell to Dr. Potter offering $50 for the same purpose. News of his attempted suicide shocked everyone concerned.

"It is too shocking to talk about," said Father Farrell.

Justice Greenbaum on Tuesday said he didn't consider Kennel's first test a fair one, the policemen having been surrounded by lawyers. Police Commissioner Wood said it was simply a case of a capable policeman, trying to do his work honestly, becoming broken hearted over what he thought was a failure that might discredit him and his brother officers.

"They had to get after some one, so they got after my husband," said Mrs. Kennel, wife of the Sergeant, in her home at No. 51 Lott avenue, Forest Park, Queens. "If they had not been able to accuse him of making mistakes, they would have had to accuse some one higher up. That would have been much harder to do; so it had to be my husband. They worried him with this wire-tapping business until he did not know what he was doing.

"But his family is being hounded as if he had been a crook. He wasn't a crook. He was an honest man, and did his work honestly. He never harmed a soul in his life. He was the best man in the world." Mrs. Kennel said Kenel had not been a Catholic all his life. He was converted when he married her.

WOODEN SHOES ARE THE NEXT

CHICAGO, July 29.—"Unless the world develops a substitute for leather within two years America will be the next wooden shoe nation," was stated at the convention of the Illinois Shoe Retailers' Association. Speakers declared that the country is in the throes of a leather famine. R. W. Ranney, president of the Association, warned the delegates that Government action was necessary if leather boots and shoes were to remain within the reach of working men.

PARK ST. LADIES' AID HOLD TEA

The Ladies' Aid of Park Street Baptist Church held a most enjoyable talent tea on Thursday afternoon, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Graham, N. Monaghan. About fifty persons were present and after games and music were enjoyed by all present, a most delicious luncheon was served by the hostess. A hearty vote of thanks was given Mr. and Mrs. Graham by the President, Mrs. Nichol, and was responded to by all the ladies present. Mr. Spenceley took the visitors back and forth in his jitney and every one returned home having enjoyed the pleasant afternoon out of the city.

BUENOS AIRES, July 29.—Lieutenant Sir Ernest Shackleton, the British Antarctic explorer, according to a message received, has reached the ice fields in his effort to rescue twenty-two men left on Elephant Island last April, when his expedition returned from the South Polar zone.

The Chilean steamship Yelcho, which towed the schooner Emma of the Shackleton expedition 240 miles south of Cape Horn, has arrived at Ushuaia, Pantagonia, in a damaged condition.

Yatch Grounds; Rich Woman Near Death

ATLANTIC CITY, July 29.—Mrs. Clara Baldwin Stocker, daughter of "Lucky" Baldwin, narrowly escaped death here when her yacht California grounded and lost its anchor. Mrs. Stocker was thrown against the deck rail and injured. One of the crew saved her from going overboard, but she lost a diamond valued at $2,000.

Life guards and a volunteer crew from Atlantic City Government Life Saving Station went to the yacht's assistance. Mrs. Stocker was taken into a lifeboat and brought ashore.

A WONDER WORKER.

"It heals like magic!" is a favorite expression when Dr. Chase's Ointment is used. It works quick! stops all itching at once, often heals in a single night. For eczema, salt rheum, barber's itch, skin irritations or eruptions, it is a most satisfactory treatment. Being antiseptic, it prevents blood poisoning.

Newcomb (learning golf)—What do you call it when you strike at the ball and miss?" Badger—"Well, that depends largely on the quality of your vocabulary."

Mrs. Crabshaw—"You seem to have become resigned to Freddie's going in swimming." Mrs. Crabshaw—You see, dear it's about the only way I can get him to wash his face."

HE JURY RETURNS AN OPEN VERDICT

two weeks prior to the birth of the child. He knew the three girls, including Annie Douglas, mother of the child, and her sister Alice. Witness was very reticent and required a lot of leading on the part of Crown Attorney Hatton and Coroner Dr. Greer. Dr. Huycke said he was present at the time of birth. The child was normal in every respect. The morning after the child was born, witness was again called to the Douglas home. He noticed that the child was very dark in the face, and a strong odour of turpentine was apparent. He thought that the child's "death was rather peculiar." The child was healthy and in a normal condition when he left it the night before. Witness would not express an opinion as to the actual cause of death. The condition of the child prior to death was unusual and indicated that the circulation and respiration of the child were effected. He did not examine the child very closely. The child was fairly exuding with turpentine. The nurse made some remarks about it. Witness noticed an empty bottle that smelled of turpentine, when he was leaving the house. Witness could not say what effect a dose of turpentine would have upon an infant, as he had no experience in that particular regard. Text books which he consulted, stated that the administration of turpentine would produce paralysis of the centres of respiration. This would give the child a dark appearance such as was manifest when he visited the house the morning the child died.

Miss M. Drope.

Miss M. Drope, a professional nurse of Hastings, who graduated some four and a half months ago, was called in the day the child was born. This was on the fourth of July. The child was born between four and six o'clock that afternoon. The child seemed to be normal in every particular so far as the witness could ascertain. She left it in a basket in the mother's room. Witness returned to the house about nine o'clock next morning and noticed that the child appeared to be unwell. It was very black around the face and there was a strong odour of turpentine. She notified Dr. Huycke, but the child died that morning. She saw the empty bottle which smelled strongly of turpentine.

Buried the Child.

There was a touch of pathos connected with the evidence offered by Alice Douglas, the seventeen-year-old sister of Annie Douglas, mother of the child. Witness remembered the birth of the child which took place on July 4th. She was in the house at the time. The nurse took charge of the baby for a short time after birth, while the witness cared for it throughout the night. She fed it a little sugar and water. It died about eight-thirty o'clock next morning. Witness noticed the smell of turpentine and thought it came from the child's clothes. She declined to say whether or not she saw the bottle after some of the turpentine was taken out. Here Mr. D. O'Connell interposed with a plea for the protection of the court on behalf of the witness. He contended that it was proper for the witness to decline to answer questions that might incriminate her sister, and proceeded to cite the code to that effect.

Coroner Dr. Greer said that the witness could answer such questions as might serve the purpose of the jury, and that such evidence would not be used against her in event of subsequent proceedings.

"The witness may or may not give her evidence, and it is for this court to decide what action may be taken," said Mr. O'Connell in conclusion.

The Turpentine.

Continuing the examination, Crown Attorney Hatton asked Alice Douglas when she first saw the bottle of turpentine. Witness replied that it was about two weeks before the child was born. It was kept in the pantry. She took it into her sister's room on the morning of the child's death. There was about a teaspoonful or two in the bottle.

"I refuse to answer that question," replied witness.

Mr. Hatton—"I think you must answer."

"There is no charge against you," admonished Coroner Dr. Greer.

"Do you know how the turpentine came to be on the child's clothing?" asked Mr. Hatton.

Witness—"Not unless it was spilled on."

"Did your sister ask for the bottle?"

Witness—"Yes."

"What did she do with it when you gave it to her?"

"I refuse to answer," replied the witness.

"You must answer,' countered Mr. Hatton. "It would be no use holding an investigation unless we could get the evidence," he said.

"What did she do with it?" repeated Mr. Hatton.

"I don't know,' replied witness.

"Then you shouldn't have any objections to telling us if you don't know," observed Mr. Hatton.

"Do you know what she did with it?" persisted the Crown Attorney.

Witness—"Yes."

"What did she do with it?"

"I didn't see her do anything with it."

"How long was the baby with the mother on Wednesday morning?"

"Nearly an hour."

"What did your sister do with the contents of the bottle?" asked Mr. Hatton coming back to the original question.

"I think she gave the baby some," replied the girl.

"Do you know how much?"

"A little over half a teaspoonful."

"Did you take the baby downstairs?"

"Yes."

"Did you see the baby after it died?"

"Yes."

"What was done with it?"

"It was buried on Friday morning."

"Who buried it?"

"I did," replied the girl.

"Were you alone?"

"Yes."

"Nobody helped you?"

"No."

"Where was it buried?"

"In the woodshed."

"Did you tell anybody where it was buried?"

"Yes."

"Who?"

"Inspector Miller of the Provincial Police Department."

Doctor's Report.

Dr. J. H. Eastwood, who conducted the post mortem examination, assisted by Dr. Malcolm McCulloch, was the next witness called. He said that the child weighed about seven pounds. It was well nourished and showed every evidence of being a normal child. As the post mortem examination was not made until about seven days after death the condition of the remains were such as to preclude definite statements.

"Was there anything unusual about the child?" enquired Mr. Hatton.

Dr. Eastwood—"No."

"Any trace of turpentine?"

'Not discoverable by smell or any other way."

Dr. Eastwood's report was confirmed by Dr. McCulloch.

Inspector Miller.

Inspector John Miller, of the Provincial Police Department, was asked if he had heard the statement of the young girl.

"That was her statement to me," he replied.

"She showed you where the body was?"

"Yes."

"What did you do?"

"I brought it to Peterborough and gave it in charge of Comstock, a local undertaker."

Mr. William Comstock gave evidence pertaining to the identity of the child. The body was buried in Little Lake cemetery.

Mr. E. J. Lynch, of Hastings, a typical village constable, testified that he was with Inspector Miller when the body was exhumed and removed to Peterborough.

This was all the evidence that the Crown thought it necessary to offer.

KEEP CHILDREN WELL DURING HOT WEATHER

Every mother knows how fatal the hot summer months are to small children. Cholera infantum, diarrhoea, dysentry and stomach troubles are rife at this time and often a precious little life is lost after only a few hours illness. The mother who keeps Babys Own Tablets in the house feels safe. The occasional use of the Tablets prevents stomach and bowel troubles, or if trouble comes suddenly — as it generally does — the Tablets will bring the baby safely through. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

IMPROVEMENTS TO ORIENTAL HOTEL

New Management Immediately Altering Kitchen and Dining Room

Mr. J. E. Colson, who recently took charge of the Oriental Hotel, has had an extensive experience in hotel management. For five years he was at the head of Highland Inn, Algonquin Park, and latterly has managed the Hotel Renfrew, in Renfrew, Ont., bringing it to a flourishing and successful condition. Mr. Colson expects to repeat his previous work in the Oriental. Already he has begun complete alterations in the kitchen, where he has planned to spend $2,000 on a new steam table, dish-washing and drying apparatus and other modern conveniences necessary to hotel kitchens. The dining room will be overhauled and brightened, and wherever the rooms call for improvement they will be attended to.

Four Serious Ills Laid to Bad Teeth

LOUISVILLE, Ky., July 29.—The relation of mouth infections to general health and the importance of making certain that dental repairs are properly made and permanent, were the two ideas given session here of the convention of the National Dental Association.

The speakers were Dr. Thomas B. Hartzell, of Minneapolis; Dr. John R. Callahan, of Cincinnati, and Dr. Weston A. Price, of Cleveland.

Dr. Hartzell, in discussing the result of research work at the University of Minnesota, declared many diseases apparently unrelated to dental defects could be traced to such sources. Among these he placed rheumatism, certain forms of Brights disease, indigestion and heart trouble.

Dr. Callahan said that in a large percentage of cases where teeth are lost which have once been filled the loss can be traced to improperly filled and treated root canals, which, he declared, was frequently the result of a disinclination on the part of the patient to give the time necessary for proper treatment. He urged that it is the duty of dentists as a class to refuse to be influenced by the impatience of their patients, and to impress upon them the folly of doing work which would result in the ultimate loss of teeth or have to be replaced within a few years.

In the first few years of the Canadian National Exhibition the bulk of the crowds were carried to the grounds by ferries running into Dufferin Street slip.

MOONLIGHT EXCURSION

Does Your Milk Sour This Hot Weather?

If so, you can overcome this frequent household annoyance by using—

Pure Pasteurized Milk from The Peterborough Creamery

AND YOU ARE PROTECTED FROM MILK IMPURITIES

All Sediment and Dangerous Impurities are Removed. You are protected against contamination from infected cows, as well as from all other dangers liable to arise from Raw, Unpasteurized and Unclarified Milk.

No Milk is So Clean that it can not be Improved by Clarification.

The Clarifying and Pasteurizing of milk, properly executed, is an efficient and practical means for protecting the consuming public at all seasons of the year, but more especially in heated terms.

Milk keeps much longer when it is clarified and pasteurized.

Cleanliness and Clarification

The important compounds of milk, so essential to the growing child in stimulating growth, bone and muscular structure, are safeguarded from pollution by clarifying and pasteurizing, which also improves the milk for infant feeding as well as adult use.

IT IS NOT SO

Some objection is raised to the pasteurizing of milk because some think the heating of the milk destroys the healthful lactic acid so beneficial in all good milk. THIS IS NOT SO It has been proven over and over again, that pasteurizing milk at a temperature of 140 degrees F., improves the value of the milk. The important proteids of milk are not affected by the heating at this temperature; but on the contrary, remain entirely normal and unchanged.

When a very high temperature is used, near the boiling point, some destructive changes are known to occur in milk; but they do not occur in correct pasteurizing at 140 degrees F., which is the temperature used in the pasteurizing process at the Peterborough Creamery.

RICE LAKE REMINISCENCES

No. 1. HARWOOD---"A DESERTED VILLAGE"

Father Time lays his cruel ravaging hands not only upon poor human mortals but even extends it to thriving centres of population. This fact is true, not only of some of the older centres of population in the old world, but even in our own localities we see instances of where the space of a few scores of years works disastrous transformations on once fair and thriving hamlets.

To anyone familiar with Rice Lake and its shores, the little village of Harwood is not unknown, situated on the south side of the Lake. The excursionist, on rounding Tick Island, or approaching Harwood from the Landing, sees only the little red store house situated on the long dock and the big white house up on the hill. He sees nothing of the straggling little hamlet lying scattered in the valley behind.

The tourist, on getting off the boat and stepping upon the long jutting wharf, is struck by the absolute solitude and silence which everywhere reigns supreme in this once thriving lake shore town. You are met by no throng of curious tourists as you are wont to expect at a resort such as this.

Your first thought is that you are in a village which has never risen above the status of a sleeping little hamlet, but in forming this notion of Harwood, gentle reader, you are judging rashly. Harwood has a past, the glories of which are of course known only to its older residents, but which have long since disappeared.

Harwood was once a thriving centre of industry, and vestiges of this former commercial activity can be seen in its long lines of empty, cast down houses, and in the various stone foundations scattered at different intervals along the shore and around the village.

Strolling up the big hill, overlooking the Lake for miles around, you may be met by a few American tourists, who annually pick out Harwood as the most secluded spot to cure their industrial brain-fag and to breathe in the refreshing breezes stealing up the Lake.

On each side of the quiet old hostelry can be seen the ruins of two old mills, which in days gone by were the mecca for busy tugs and steamers drawing lumber from various parts of the Lake, to be cut and finished at the Harwood Mills. During the busy seasons, older residents of Harwood say that between two and three hundred men were employed in each of the mills.

On the brow of the hill overlooking what is known as Goose Pond, you will discern a long line of stone foundation work, upon which once rested a long line of fine houses, once one of Harwood's busiest streets. A stroll along the former thoroughfare will now reveal nothing but scattered debris and the tall grass.

After taking in these forlorn criterions of a better day, through curiosity you will no doubt wend your way "up-town" to see what Harwood boasts of in the way of a "sky-line." Going up the street you cannot fail to note the number of deserted habitations, and you will immediately see that the supply of Harwood real estate greatly exceeds the demand for the same.

Alongside the wooded narrow thoroughfare, your eye will not fail to catch the sight of a railway track, which has long since been smothered by the proverbial weed and inevitable tall grass. Harwood once had a railroad of its own, and was an important point along the old Cobourg-Peterborough Road. This line ran in from Cobourg, along the long street to the water dock and crossed over to Hiawatha over the three span of quivering spiles.

As a steam-boat centre, Harwood had no rivals in those days. By those days we mean a period dating back to and between 1860-90. The old Calcutt line of steamers made this hamlet their headquarters, and many a crowd of holidayers have spent the day feasting there.

Harwood has had her past, a past which will always live in the minds of old residents, and has attained her unfailing three score and ten and as a centre of population.

FINED FOR SELLING CIGARETTES TO MINORS

"You'll never catch me here again," emphatically declared a man from Glengarry at this morning's Police Court, when Mr. Henry Rush, J.P., asked him how long it would take to vacate this city. The man had just come out of the hospital—hence the Cadi's mercy upon him.

A lady at a local restaurant was charged with selling cigarettes to a minor, and was fined five dollars and costs, amounting to $7.50. The lad in the box stated that he had written a note signing a false name to it, and had procured the "dopes." Defendant in the box could not remember selling cigarettes to the young lad in question. She could not go so far as to deny selling cigarettes to the boy, and His Worship was compelled to impose the fine of five dollars.

A bronzed-faced youth was charged with being a deserter from the 136th Battalion. The prisoner admitted taking French leave in order to see his wife. He was remanded pending the arrival of the military escort.

A husky-looking stranger was charged with not having visible means of support, and with unlawfully wandering about. He was remanded for one week for the usual good reason, to wit, to enable him to sober up.

To Reduce Your Weight Easily and Quickly

If you are overstout the cause of your overstoutness is lack of oxygen-carrying power in the blood and faulty assimilation of food. Too little is being made into the harder tissue of muscle and too much into little globules of fat. Therefore you should correct the mal-assimilation and increase the oxygen-carrying power of the blood. To do this, go to any good druggist and get oil of orilene, only sold in original packages and in capsule form, and take one capsule after each meal, and one at bedtime till your weight is reduced to what it should be on all parts of the body. The effect of oil of orilene in capsule form is remarkable as a weight reducer and is perfectly safe.—E. J. T.

Any druggist can supply you or a large size box will be sent on receipt of $1.00. Address D. J. Little Drug Co., Box 1240, Montreal, Can.

THE WEATHER

After a couple of days of seasonable summer conditions, the thermometer has gone on its upward excursions again. Today at noon it stood at 90 degrees, with the prospects of doing a little better before the cool of the evening. Lowest figures last night 60 degrees.

TALES FROM FRANCE

MANKIND IN THE RE-MAKING

Surgery to-day seems less surgery than sarcery. At the Maison Blanche near Paris, there are men amputated of both legs high in the thigh, who will shortly walk, sit, even kneel with so little stiffness that they might pass for having but a slight touch of rheumatism.

The very stumps with which they are provided until the artificial limbs arrive are marvels of efficiency as compared with the butt-end of wood or cork. The limbs are combinations of fine but strong springs, set in a leather and aluminum mould, and so well made that a leg is guaranteed for life, for every part is easily renewable.

The Maison Blanche, formerly a large asylum for women, is now a military hospital, with four separate medical staffs for its different branches. The artificial limbs are its chief occupation, but it has a ward for mad men and those called "confused."

The hospital is provided with a workshop, where the patients, when fit, can have a preliminary training, from cobbling to accountancy, or one after the other if they choose.

It is the same story at the Grand Palais, which was taken over by the sanitary service as a hospital. For twenty months it has been lighted, warmed and cosy, and contains over a thousand beds. It has a complete installation of radioscopy, radiography, scientific gymnastics, and such an array of machinery for teaching hands to hold, feet to walk, arms to lift, heads to turn, that it all seems like an Arabian night of wonders.

Some of these machines on the Zandier principle are extremely complicated; a terrific array of levers and wheels is necessary to mould fingers the right way; others are clever makeshifts, not very durable, but welcome as makeshifts. All the machines can be worked by the men, unless they are helpless, and some have a whole programme to go through every day. Casts of the human body and paintings of especially interesting wounds are kept. For from these it is possible to teach anatomy to the blind.

To those who have their sight, the blind probably arouse the most sympathy, yet they are positively gay. They can very soon distinguish a distant voice and follow it. At the convalescent home at Renilly there is special attention given to the blind. Here they can tryewrite, work in the garden and the workshops, and all the time a gay intercourse going on. At first these blind men walk slowly, sometimes on the arms of nurses, or holding each other. Later they walk freely with sure step, and stopping or turning a reasonable distance before they reach a wall or an obstacle. To walk is the first thing they are taught. All over France this work is going on. The more the soldier suffers, the cheerier they seem. If one sees a long face it is a civilian's, mourning, perhaps, for the very soldier who forgets all his suffering and is glad that it isn't worse.

WAS KILLED IN MESOPOTAMIA

Lieut. H. O. Boyd of Bobcaygeon Got Commission in British Regiment

Lieut. H. Ormsby Boyd, eldest son of Captain Boyd, of Bobcaygeon, medical officer to the 109th Battalion, has been killed in action in Mesopotamia while serving with the South Lancashire Regiment. He went overseas with the first contingent and received a commission in the British regiment before it left for Flanders.

He was made transport officer and was in charge of a large number of boats on the Tigris river. He was struck by a stray bullet while in charge of a party of men digging a new work. He has a brother serving in the 74th Battalion, and who is now at Bramshott camp. He was educated in Toronto and was in a bank at London, Ont., when the war broke out. He was a grandson of Major-General Boyd and a cousin of Col. G. T. Denison.

THE PETERBOROUGH RED CROSS SOCIETY COLUMN

70 sheets,
418 towels,
1 quilt,
400 many-tailed bandages,
48 jaw bandages,
24 triangular bandages,
80 rolled bandages,
132 pairs socks,
79 hospital nightshirts,
37 surgical nightshirts,
40 day shirts,
2538 handkerchiefs,
1 case of old linen,
8 pairs slippers,
17 hot-water bag covers,
61 personal property bags.

Owing to the difficulty in obtaining sufficient transportation for supplies we have bee notified that the Red Cross Society will not accept for shipment to England or to France, pads filled with ravellings, cheesecloth, handkerchiefs, face or wash cloths, bandages, or articles of poor quality or bad shape. The available space on the ships must be reserved for stores which are really valuable in the war zone. No article seems to be more appreciated than socks. Of course we all know that the hand-made ones are the very best, but those turned out by the knitting-machines are close rivals. The machine, so kindly donated to the local society by the members, has arrived from Toronto, and will be in operation next week. We therefore hop that next month's shipment will be greatly increased.

As has already been stated, it is the desire of the local Red Cross society that every Peterborough boy who is a prisoner of war in Germany shall receive a fortnightly parcel of food. The committee in charge of this department are depending on the relatives and friends of the boys for their names and address s. If any names have not yet been sent in, the Committee will be glad to have them left at the Examier Office without delay.

The following postcard was received by the Rev. A. F. Sharp, Vicar of St. Stephens, and chairman of the Hampstead Prisoners' Help Fund: "Just a line to acknowledge the receipt of parcel, containing shoes and underclothing, which I received safe, and am using same now. Our position may be summed up by quoting the first Epistle of St. Paul to the Corinthians, chapter IV., verses 11, 12 and 13.

Do not address letters sent to a soldier in hospital "care of Army Post Office, London." Postal authorities have no means of tracing soldiers. We therefore hope that next month's Such letters should be addressed with the rank, initials, name, number and regiment, care of Canadian Red Cross Society, 14 Cockspur Street, London, S. W.

An offer made to the Canadian Government by Mr. Wm. Perkins Bull, of a Convalescent Hospital for Canadian officers, containing twenty-five beds (which number can be increased as required), has been gratefully accepted by the medical authorities. Mr. Bull, who has since the beginning of the war, hospitably entertained a constant succession of Canadian soldiers at his residence, at Putney, adjoining the hospital, will cooperate in the management and upkeep of the institution. The hospital was urgently needed, and will provide accommodation for all the convalescing Canadian officers in London and its environs. The building overlooks Putney Heath, and from its windows the patients will be able to see a momento of their own country, in the shape of the Canadian flag-pole on Wimbledon Common. In the immediate neighborhood may also be seen the homes of William Pitt and Oliver Cromwell. Mr. Bull is well known in Toronto, where he resided for some years, and practiced law.

The Shadow of Eviction Doesn't Stop Plans For This Year's Fair

The Fair directors decided last night to proceed with the preparations for a big night programme of attractions for the second day of this year's exhibition. Fireworks will be a feature, and other forms of entertainment will be further considered. It doesn't seem to worry the directors that their tenure of the grounds is as precarious as Ontario liquor licenses, that September 15th and 16th, the last two days of the exhibition, may be their "last curtain." In fact the directors, forced to look only to the present, find some satisfaction in September 15th being a big day in the city, with a promise of bulging gate receipts. It's the only bright spot on the fair horison. Otherwise the sky is no more and no less promising than usual. There is this consideration, of course, that the prospect of the grounds passing from their hands may induce a larger attendance and a bigger exhibit than ever, and it is to that end the directors are working. Sufficient for next year is the good or the evil thereof.

They decided to advertise more widely, going as far as Tweed and Marmora on the east, and will make arrangements for a special train to Campbellford Friday night. Negotiations will be opened with the Curtis Aviation Co. for an aeroplane flight, and it may be that this super-attraction will be secured.

Mr. Otto Kidd, of Crescent Street, is added to the list of judges for the sheep and swine exhibits, and Dr. Sinclair will be secured to handle the races again.

Mr. Tom Brown will in the meantime have the track put into good condition, and Mr. T. Arnott's attention will be drawn to the necessity of cleaning up the grounds.

PETERBOROUGH BOYS ARE DOING THEIR BIT IN N. Y. CANADIAN CLUB

—The hearts of Canadians wherever found were stirred by Canada's ready declaration to do her part when this mighty struggle began of "Arms Against Arbitration." Nowhere was this more evidenced than in the Canadian Club of New York, where the desire for participation at once put the question, "What can we do to help?"

At the first meeting voluntary offerings enabled them to send $1,000 to Ottawa as a contribution to the Canadian Patriotic Fund. Since, another $1,000 check has been contributed to this fund; and again in response to the inquiry, "What can we do to help? Where is there a real need we can care for here?" Ottawa responded,—"Provide against the suffering and want among the dependent ones on your side of the line left behind by those enlisting in the Canadian Regiments, as these are outside of our jurisdiction." This work throughout the entire State of New York is now being done.

"What more can we do to help?" was again asked when Surgeon-General G. Sterling Ryerson, founder of the Canadian Red Cross Society; addressed the Canadian Club of New York last February. He replied, "Motor ambulances are needed." As a result seven ambulances marked "Gift of the Canadian Club of New York to the Canadian Red Cross Society," are now at the front.

The Examiner has just received the Canadian Club of New York 1915-1916 Year Book, and special mention of members Mr. C. E. Brennan and others, who still boast of being Peterborough boys. Their friends here are glad thus to hear from these sons of Peterboro and their efforts at doing their bit through the Canadian Club of New York. We shall watch for further evidences of activities gratifying to their Peterboro friends.

getting heavier all the time. Their steadiness and coolness under this terrific shell fire was commented on by staff officers, although their sufferings were intense. It was no fault of ours that the Huns made an advance along our front. They came over in overwhelming numbers, wave after wave of infantry repeating their Verdun attack and our boys would not give way, but fought till the last drop of blood. The battlefield around Ypres in red with the blood of our brave boys who knew their duty and gave of their best, their very life, in accomplishing that duty. But Mr. Fritz found out that he had not killed all the Canadians as he thought, for there were boys behind the lines burning to avenge their comrades' death, and the bloody battle continued until we drove Mr. Boche back to where he belonged, but the toll was heavy and the price of victory was dear for our Canadian people. The casualty lists will show you the price we paid. Many a brave boy lies beneath the red-stained mud of Flanders in a nameless grave, and many a home is grieving for the loved ones who fell in that great fight. This is the toll that war exacts, not only life, but broken hearts for the mothers, wives and sweethearts. We have a relentless enemy, cruel, cunning and treacherous, and we know we have him beat, but the German is a stubborn animal (not human) so we have to tame him, and it is up to the boys who have not answered the call to remember that this war is not finished yet. The struggle is growing greater every day. We can be very optimistic now, as the advantage all lies with the allies, but you should realize the seriousness of this struggle, after what has occurred at Ypres, all the way from Sanctuary Woods to Hooge, and remember your duty to your native land. (busy and if you have any red in your veins prepare to avenge your comrades. We know the Huns don't like the Canadians. Why? Because they stand like a rock and they cannot be easily scared, and we can match their cunning. I got mine handed to me from Mr. Frits in Sanctuary Woods, wounded three times in the same day and then buried in a dug out by a high explosive shell before he put me out of action, but I have done a bit and in a very short time will be up the line taking my luck with the rest of the boys. Of course we don't love it altogether, for it is no Sunday school picnic, but rather the choicest bit of hell the devil (Kaiser Bill) ever invented, but if we boys can stick, why you can do the same. Better to fall on the fields of Flanders than to have your home wrecked by treacherous Huns.

When you do get wounded the very best care is taken of you, the Sisters in hospital are like little mothers to us boys. Kindness, sympathy, beams from their faces, and it is as good as any medicine to have them looking after you. The people are good to you, providing reading, papers and magazines, fruit and cigarettes, and you soon regain your health, so there is a good rest and a good time for you while you are recuperating from your wounds, and the hardships of trench life is forgotten.

But the memories of your comrades who fell beside you, the one who always shared his billet with you, who drank out of the same mess tin. These memories will always be with you and their blood cries out to be avenged, and that is why we boys go back to France to finish our tasks.

We do not forget the dear ones at home. They are always dear to us and it is for them we are fighting that they may enjoy liberty and justice in years to come.

Now I will have to draw this letter to a close, hoping that the memories of the brave boys who died at Ypres will not be forgotten in the home land.

Mother, with unbowed head,
Hear thou across the sea,
The farewell of the dead.
Greet them again with tender words and grave.
For saving thee, themselves they could not save.

J. T. Hardwicke,
37th Canadians.

Local men who wish to join the Bushmen's Battalion are asked not to delay as Sergt. Stanley is leaving Monday night with a squad of recruits for Ottawa. This will be the last chance to join the 238th, so that men who wish to join should get into line to-day or Monday.

Pte. Thos. Dee of Millbrook, who enlisted with an Eastern Ontario Second Division Battalion, has been killed in action. His name appears on the official casualty list to-day.

The Kingston Standard says: An effort is being made in Peterborough and other places in that vicinity to secure recruits for the 136th, 139th, and the 146th battalions.

The Lakefield News says: A memorial service was held in the Methodist church on Sunday evening last for Pte. Wilfrid Hull, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Hull, who was killed in action in France on June 27th. The church was well filled, no service being held in the Presbyterian church in order to allow the members of that body an opportunity to attend. Rev. G. W. Barrett reached an impressive sermon, taking for his text, 'Greater love hath no man than this, that he lay down his life for his friend.' A letter from Sergt. W. Hamilton, an officer of the company to which the late Pte. Hull belonged, was also read, informing the parents of their son's death.

As will be seen from the line-up there were Peterboro boys on both teams mentioned in the following report from the Kingston Standard:

Last evening Queen's Field Ambulance was a busy unit. Its duty was to choose nine ball players to inveigle a nine from the 74th Battery, and an idea of the way they jabbed the needle into the gun men may be judged by the score of 15-7.

The ministering angels were fortunate in having Captain McGregor in the box, and if he had received proper support it would have resulted in a case of complete anesthesia. In only two innings did any player of the 74th reach 1st. Sgott, H. E. Smith and Sergt. Barry were there with both on. All of the battery infield played good ball. Lts. Thompson and Pearce showed lots of pep. Their battery was good and seemingly had the range but could do nothing with the heavy hitters of Q.F.A. Captain Morrison, the official umps., gave perfect satisfaction to the players, spectators and rooters.

"PLOT VICTIM" PLEA IN GIRL'S DEATH BY AIR

OKNEY, Ill., July 29.— More mysterious than ever has become the strange death of seventeen-year-old Elizabeth Radcliffe. Her boy suitor, Roy Hinderleiter, held for her death, beagn his fight for freedom.

"I never wronged her," he said. "I don't know why or how she died. I am innocent, and I am going to prove it."

Hinderleiter's arrest followed the death last Friday of the girl, following a crudely attempted operation, the prosecution will try to prove, by the former boy.

Physicians told the Coroner's Jury that air embolisms in the arteries caused death. Every organ appeared to be normal until air bubbles were discovered in the heart and brain.

Suicide made its entrance in the case when Judge Whitcher, who will defend Hinderleiter, revealed to-day he will try to prove that when Hinderleiter rode into Olney last Friday night, the youth carried in his arms the body of another's victim; that Elizabeth Radcliffe chose suicide as an alternative of disgrace, or died from the results of an operation which her sweetheart did not perform. Here is how he explains the innocence of Roy Hinderleiter:

"Roy Hinderleiter has no medical knowledge.

"When he met Elizabeth he was hypnotized by the girl's attractions. She was the belle of the town. A dozen Olney youths fought for her favour.

"Hinderleiter finally she chose as her sweetheart. But she continued her appointments with the town boys.

"With one of them she went out almost every night. Hinderleiter she saw about once a week. When her indiscretions resulted in what seemed inevitable disgrace, it was Hinderleiter to whom she appealed.

"He came to her. She died in his arms.

"He whipped his team to a break neck speed to the Olney Sanatorium, and in so doing disproved any guilty knowledge of the nature of her death."

On the other side, the prosecution alleges Hinderleiter boasted of his knowledge of birth control, and brought into the case the name of Dr. George Weber, of West Salem. Physician Involved.

Dr. Weber, according to States Attorney Morris, has sold Hinderleiter an instrument which the boy used several times.

It was Hall who discovered the parcel which Hinderleiter is supposed to have left under the Big Creek bridge after his visit there with Elizabeth It was Jones whom Hinderleiter is supposed to have asked to recover the instrument because he feared it would be found there.

Berry, the prosecution says, was with Hinderleiter when he purchased the instrument.

Behind all the characters which are entering the strange case is a decoy letter, more mysterious than the death itself. Upon its contents and upon the scrawled signature of the dead girl will be built the defence.

Elizabeth wrote the letter to Hinderleitred the day before she went on the fatal ride. Although it has been seen by no one but Hinderleiter and Judge Whitcher, it is known to be tray the girl's mental agitation. The letter was written, the defence is preparing to prove, to lure Hinderleiter to the girl's side. It was dictated his attorney believes, by another Olney youth.

HOT WEATHER RULES FOR HORSES' COMFORT

Association Sends Out List of Things To Do To Make Dobbin More Comfortable

Horses are not human, but on a hot day they are subject to sunstrokes just like people. The following rules for hot weather have been sent out by the Boston Workhorse Relief Association:

Load lightly, drive slowly.

Stop in the shade if possible.

Water your horse as often as possible. So long as a horse is working water in small quantities will not hurt him. But let him drink only a few swallows if he is going to stand still. Do not fail to water him at night after he has eaten his hay.

When he comes in after work, sponge off the harness marks and sweat, his eyes, his nose and mouth, and the dock. Wash his feet but not his legs.

If the thermometer is 75 degrees or higher, wipe him all over with a damp sponge. Use vinegar water if possible. Do not turn the hose on him.

Saturday night, give a bran mash, lukewarm; and add a tablespoonful of saltpetre.

A sponge on top of the head, or even a cloth, is good if kept wet. If dry it is worse than nothing.

If the horse is overcome by heat, get him into the shade, remove harness and bridle, wash out his mouth, sponge him all over, shower his legs, and give him two ounces of aromatic spirits of ammonia, or two ounces of sweet spirits of nitre, in a pint of water; or give him a pint of coffee warm. Cool his head at once, using cold water, or, if necessary, chopped ice, wrapped in a cloth.

If the horse is off his feed, try him with two quarts of oats mixed with bran, and a little water, and add a little salt or sugar. Or give him oatmeal gruel or barley water to drink.

Watch your horse. If he stops sweating suddenly, or if he breathes short and quick, or if his ears drop, or if he stands with his legs braced sideways, he is in danger of a heat or sun stroke and needs attention at once.

PHONOGRAPH FOR FUNERALS

Instrument a Gift to Calvary Cemetery for Benefit of Poor.

NEW YORK, July 29.—An experiment was made with phonograph music at two funerals recently held in the chapel in Calvary Cemetery, at which Father Lonergan, chaplain of the cemetery, officiated.

Father Lonergan said yesterday that the phonograph music was satisfactory, and that before the instrument was used again the subject of music of that kind would be submitted to the authorities of the Catholic Church.

Thousands of burials are made yearly in Calvary Cemetery, and in many instances the families are too poor to pay for music. It was this that recently led two women to present to Father Lonergan one of the latest pattern phonographs, with appropriate records, in memory of their dead sister.

Father Lonergan declined to disclose the names of the donors, but said they were interested in having suitable music rendered at the funerals of the poor. The phonograph was set up in the chapel in Calvary Cemetery, which is a reproduction of a famous chapel in Rome.

BICYCLIST KNOCKED DOWN BY A HORSE

A young lad riding a bicycle had a close escape from being, perhaps, seriously inqured, at the corner of Hunter and George streets, this morning, when, in attempting to cut across the corner and by neglecting to come up the right side of Hunter street, he crashed into a buggy which was coming up Hunter street at a fair clip. The young fellow was knocked off his bicycle and fell directly beneath the horses' hoofs, narrowly escaping serious injury.

This should be a warning to bicyclists and especially to the younger element, that traffic by-laws are made and enforced for the common good, which includes all kinds of vehicles, from the small boy's hand-cart up to the latest 1916 model arrival.

A Real Medicine; The Ford Motor Car

The disease of civilization is the house.

Putting the American Indians, for instance, in houses instead of tents, killed them off faster than the bullets of the white man.

No time is the Ford motor car more appreciated than during the hot weather spell. A great deal has been said about the commercial use of the Ford motor car. It carries goods and supplants the grocery wagon, delivers parcels and a lot of other merchandise. But its ministry to the human spirit is incalculable.

The best dividends the Ford automobile pays are those of health and happiness. It is making cheeks redder, brighter-eyed women, more vigorous bodied generation of boys and girls. Even the old folks and some of the invalids and shut-ins are able to get out for a day's bit of air and sunshine. When they can speed along the country in the fleetfooted Ford instead of bumping slowly down the road in a buggy.

The trend of these times for city folk is back to the country. But few of us can own country homes in addition to our town dwelling. We can, however, by means of the Ford car, get away on pleasant days to forest and stream, and we can enjoy the country breeze without having and deed to it other than the right and title of appreciation.

People who take their vacations and recreations out of doors are drawn away from those forms of amusement which imply stuffy parlours, smoke noise and badly-aired meeting places

The Canadian Ford Co. has brought the price of their Ford cars within the reach of increasing numbers of persons of moderate means; thus enabling more of us to trip out to the free air of the countryside and get our blood purified and our bodies toned up by God's great sanitarium—Outdoors. Ask Joseph J. Duffus, representative of the Ford, some day when you pass the Duffus Garage, Simcoe street.

Scratch by Girl's Nail Killed Artist Cuneo

LONDON, July 29.—Blood-poisoning from the scratch of a society girl's finger nail was the cause of the death of Cyrus Cuneo, the American artist, a few days ago.

This was the medical testimony at an inquest held on Wednesday. Mr. Cuneo was a guest at a farewell party to some army officers leaving for the front. It was a lively affair, and during a general romp one of the girls happened to scratch Cuneo's nose.

A BLOOD-FOOD DISCOVERED THAT ENTIRELY OVERCOMES ANAEMIC WEAKNESS

CAREFULLY INVESTIGATED REPORTS ESTABLISH TRULY WONDERFUL RESULTS.

Heretofore it has often been a hopeless task for a thin-blooded person to gain either strength or weight. Neither food or medicine in many instances had beneficial effect.

What is practically a perfect blood-food, containing such elements as Iron, has at last been produced, and when taken after meals will put new life and vigor into people that have despaired of ever being strong again.

This wonderful blood-food supplies nourishment, vim, energy — sends a stream of vigorous, strength-making blood to every nook and corner of the body, makes every muscle and fibre sing with new-found life and health.

That gnawing tiredness leaves you —Ferrozone drives it away. Sleepless nights are turned into periods of rest, and you pick up fast. Day by day your appetite improves,—this means more food is transformed in nutriment that will build and energize weak organs. The inclination to worry passes away because Ferrozone imparts nerve — tone and bodily strength that prevents depression.

Think it over—Ferrozone is a wonderful tonic, in fact, it is more than a tonic, because it establishes health that lasts. Thousands use it and thereby cleanse and restore the entire system to a perfect condition. You'll feel the uplifting power of Ferrozone in a week,—it's bound to help you if you only give it the chance. Sold by all dealers, 50c. a box or six boxes for $2.50; be sure of the name Ferrozone. Forwarded by mail to any address if price is remitted to The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

democratic and companionable amid all his great changes of fortune, and who cannot do very long without a smoke of some kind somewhere — occasionally drops in; but as a rule Ministers have to stick to their own rooms and employ the intervals between their appearances in the House of Commons with an attempt to keep up with the work of their departments. Winston Churchill used also to drop in now and then; he does so more now that he has been relieved for a while from Ministerial cares. I have never seen Mr. Asquith there; and I am sure it would have given a fit to the company if the lean ascetic face of Sir Edward Grey had ever been seen there; and now the House of Commons knows that familiar figure no more.

A Little Group.

The advantage of the smoke-room over the floor of the House is that there you see men without the sock and buskin; that there is no public to listen and look in; that party ties cease to exist for the moment, and deadly political enemies sit down in the cordiality and intimacy of private friendship. But party—especially in times of bitter conflict — sometimes asserts itself even in the upper smoke-room; and it is not many months ago since you saw there every afternoon the Irish Orangemen forming a little group by themselves, and apart from other groups of the House — even from that of their English friends. They have always had a certain aloofness from everybody—these rather dour Ulstermen. But even in the hot times—now so remote spiritually, though so near in mere point of time—this aloofness was not continuous; Irishmen can never entirely get over their gregariousness and their kindliness. Ronald McNeil, the giant, who was one of the fiercest of the Orange leaders—it was he who threw a book at Winston Churchill in one of the Home Rule debates—was always on good terms with some of the Nationalists. I knew him years ago when he was editor of the St. James' Gazette, and our acquaintanceship never ceased even when things were hottest.

It is one of the significant events of the transformation of the Irish scene that this isolation between the two groups of Irishmen has largely come to an end within the last few weeks. You might see often the strange spectacle of myself or some other Irish Nationalist seated amid the Orange group, and discussing with them a not unpopular topic with both sides—the stupidity and the vacillation of these English masters in whose hands lay the fate of the recent negotiations. In common scorn for English destiny and English ignorance on all affairs Irish, the two groups found common ground. Sir Edward Carson, who loves a cup of afternoon tea and a mild cigarette, is always one of the figures in the Smoke Room. He has always around him his little court of ardent admirers and loyal followers. This tall, dark man with the sallow cheeks, the high cheek-bones, the resolute mouth and the deep-set sombre eyes, with a curious mixture of geniality, grimness and melancholy in the expression, has a wonderful power of magnetizing men. It is naturally and without effort a dominating personality. It was only he, who, on the one hand, could rouse the Orange population to the frenzy of Civil War; and, on the other, could induce them to forget their fierce hostility to Home Rule and to their countrymen south of the Boyne. It was the same thing even with men from whom he differed. In the Cabinet he was supposed to have more influence with Asquith than any other of his colleagues.

INTENSE FEELING.

But the man to whom Sir Edward Carson came nearest was Mr. Lloyd George. In the intimate and sympathetic association of these two men may be traced much of the history of the settlement of the Home Rule question. What brought them together was their intense feeling about the war, and their common impatience with any slackening in the efforts for conducting it vigorously. Both men of energy and of action, hating procrastination, incapable of indecision, ruthless to incompetence, they found themselves cooperating warmly in the efforts to speed up the war machinery. To Lloyd George and to Carson nothing mattered but the war. Thus it was when the rebellion broke out they both saw at a glance that a disturbed and unreconciled Ireland was incompatible with national concentration on the war, with the resolute of the Empire, with our relations with our Allies, and with the great neutral country of America. Starting on this common ground, they found themselves able to cooperate cordially in the effort to bring to an end, on terms fairly acceptable to both sides, the disastrous quarrel between North and South in Ireland and between Ireland and the Empire.

SLACKENING IN UNITY.

But then came the obstacles and the difficulties, ruined partly by unfavourable conditions in the Irish temper in consequence of the severe repressive measures after the rebellion; and partly because of the reassurance in the South of Ireland and among the ultra-Tories of England. This was added to by the break out within the Cabinet itself of the irreconcilable Unionists, who began to agitate against the settlement. The agitation, of course, came too late; but it was inconvenient all the same. For Mr. Asquith shrinks naturally from any break-up in his Cabinet; for nobody knows where these things are going to end, and any break up in a Cabinet may well be interpreted by Allies and by enemies as some slackening in the unity and the determination of Great Britain to carry on the war to the bitter end.

Sir Edward Carson was just the man to be enraged by such an outburst and by such vacillation. That direct, simple, energetic mind, when once it is made up, does not understand any halt or any vacillation; and the Smoke Room resounded to his strictures on the delay and the hesitation; and when some of the British Unionists tried to reproach or to weaken him, they got a taste of that vigorous tongue, the lashing of which his old enemies knew so well. It was Carson's loyalty and determination that were among the strangest factors in forcing the settlement.

VIOLENT TEMPER.

All these things I recount now to add this important conclusion; that these negotiations and their twisted history have done much to bridge over the gulf between the North and the South of Ireland. The other Orange leaders were quite as resolute and quite as inflexible as Sid Edward Carson. One of the men, curiously enough, who helped him most was Colonel Craig. A new Craig revealed himself to the Nationalists during the negotiations. Reasonable, tolerant, staunch, clear-headed, this great big man, hitherto known only as a man of violent temper and of strong language, showed himself to be quite fair and sternly loyal. He pointed out the difficulties to Nationalists in the Parliamentary history of the settlement and displayed a strange familiarity with the point of view and the inner life of the Irish Nationalists themselves. Thus there has sprung up something like personal friendship and sympathy between the leaders of the two parties. The splendid courage of the Ulster division in the recent fighting has formed another bond. The re-union of Ireland has begun, in my opinion, on the morrow of its temporary partition—nay on the day before that tragedy in Irish history has been enacted.

A BRAVE BATTERY BOY.

(Inscribed to Mrs. F. Whitehouse)

'Twas when with fiendish hate, the Teuton horde
In Belgium's bosom, fleshed the cruel sword;
Loud, high, and clear the clarion call of war,
Re-echoed o'er our own Dominion far.

Eager to quell the haughty tyrants' sway,
Canadians armed, in thousands, for the fray.
And many a stripling suddenly became
A man, with valor's patriot zeal aflame.

Then one so young—it seemed but yesterday
He was a school boy, with blithe mates at play.
But, childish things, he laid at once aside,
And donned the hakki, with a veteran's pride.

Aghast his mother saw her careless lad
A battery man, in martial trappings clad:
Yet, deem her not, of cowardly mould or weak,
Although maternal grief has blanched her cheek.

Thus spoke the gallant youth: though I be young,
Of British blood and lineage, am I sprung.
And chafes my soul, inactive to remain,
While despots forge, oppression's galling chain.

Nor is it with a reckless love of strife
I fain would rush where deadly feuds are rife;
But duty calls, and well my country's needs
Will nerve my arm for honour's valorous deeds.

Yield not, dear mother, to dull grief a prey,
But bid me God speed, for I must away;
Farewell, and ne'er in hopeless sorrow mourn,
For, please kind heaven, we soon will home return.

Right dauntless was that noble mother's heart,
Though from her eyes the tears of anguish start;
While at that parting, sore her bosom bled,
Calmly controlled, and brave she proudly said:

Forbid it, heaven, that 'ere my heart should be
So lost to every sense of loyalty,
As to refuse free manhood's glorious right,
And privilege, for freedom's cause to fight.

Nay rather, glad, a blessing I bestow
On you, who go against the barbarous foe;
And my brave boy to Heaven's sweet care commend
That surely will our righteous cause befriend.

—Mrs. A. F. Calder.

Ques.: "What is the biggest raw product you use?"

Ans.: "Hard to say without looking it up."

Ques.: "You can't tell? I know, now."

Ans.: "You do? Well! What is it?"

Ques.: "Working Time, my boy, working time—the time every workman sells you every day. How do you check it?"

Ans.: "Check it? Oh, I guess my timekeepers do that."

Ques.: "They're human beings? Of course, Yes—well, now, who checks the timekeeper? And who checks the man who checks the timekeeper? Why not cut out all the guess-work and let a cold-blooded machine do the work? Print unchangeable figures under lock and key in and out shifts, four or six times a day, if necessary, giving Records that form an original PRINTED wage sheet."

Ans.: "Sounds good—what's the answer?"

Ques.: "Well the answer is an International Time Recorder. Your competitors are using it. Thousands of the World's greatest manufacturers are doing likewise. Time is the greatest raw material in the world and if you don't check it's purchase you'll lose, and lose four times a day every day in the year. POLICE GRAFT WITNESSES IN FEAR OF DEATH

Two Men and Two Women Beaten and Threatened With Murder For Grand Jury Testimony

INTIMIDATION HAMPERING INQUIRY BY DISTRICT ATTORNEY SWANN, SEEKING ASSAULT CONSPIRATORS.

NEW YORK, July 29.—District Attorney Swann, in the investigation of alleged protection graft by the police, continues to be hampered by threats and intimidation of witnesses. It is the old story over again of the use of the nightstick to close the mouths of informers.

It is the same sort of treatment witnesses received from the police prior to the killing of Herman Rosenthal, early in the morning of the day that he was to have testified before the Grand Jury.

Four witnesses—two men and two women—have been beaten following their appearance in the District Attorney's office. These witnesses gave valuable information to Assistant District Attorney James E. Smith, about the new system of collecting graft.

They were warned that if they testified before the Grand Jury that they would be killed, and it is the fear of deadly violence that is keeping these and other witnesses from aiding the graft investigation with their testimony.

NAMES ARE KEPT SECRET.

The names of the witnesses who have been beaten are withheld pending an investigation to disclose the policemen who, it is believed by Mr. Smith, promoted the assaults and hired the agents to make the attacks.

One of the witnesses, who expressed yesterday over the telephone the belief that she would be killed, is a respectable married woman, the mother of two children.

This woman for ten years kept a lodging house on the upper West Side and there is no police record of complaint against the place. She alleges in a statement made to Mr. Smith that a charge of maintaining a disorderly house was "framed up" against her by Detective Wm. J. Enright, who is now under indictment for perjury and bribery, because she would not pay more money to the police. The woman refused to pay anything, because she ran a respectable furnished rooming house.

The woman housekeeper of the lodging house was arrested and the landlady accompanied her to the station house. Enright took her to a lawyer's office.

LAWYERS ASKED BIG FEES.

Enright conferred with the lawyer, who asked an exorbitant fee, and Enright took her to another lawyer, who after talking alone with Enright, asked her even a larger retainer than the first lawyer.

The woman alleges that while the case was pending, Enright visited her several times at her home and tried to kiss her.

The stool pigeon who "framed up" the charge against the house-keeper for detective Enright has made a confession to Assistant District Attorney Smith, and the woman's testimony is material for corroboration.

Sadie Liepschitz, formerly a prominent member of the old disorderly house combination of the tenderloin, in a affidavit made before Mr. Smith charged detective Enright with accepting $350 bribe from her to have a complaint dismissed. Mrs. Liepschitz alleged that she has been living a model life since she was driven ut of business in 1913.

INFORMER CONFESSES.

Another "stool pigeon" informer, Max Turkowitz, also known in the underworld as "Max Pimple," confessed to Mr. Smith. Turkowitz was one of five stool pigeons for Enright and Detective David J. Foley, who were indicted last month for extortion. He pleaded guilty and after sentence was suspended by Judge Mulqueen, told all he knows about the work of Enright and Foley in "framing up" cases and collecting graft.

Turkowitz alleges that Enright and Foley came together to see him in prison and that Enright said: Don't say anything to any one and we will get you out."

About a dozen witnesses were examined by Mr. Smith, who told stories of the payment of protection graft and the testimony, it is expected, will be ready for presentation to the Grand Jury.

MEETING IN JACKSON PARK

Soldiers' Wives' and Mothers' Club Had Good Outing

The Soldiers' Wives' and Mothers' Club held a most delightful meeting in Jackson Park on Friday afternoon. After the singing of the Doxolgy and prayer, the usual business was gone over and it was very gratifying to know that there were so many who helped to make the outing such a success. Forty children and twenty-five adults were present, the children enjoying themselves in various games. At 4.30 supper was served—ice cream etc., all of which was provided by the members, themselves.

Roll-call was called by the Recorder, Mrs. A. Stanley. Mrs. Bugg gave an interesting report of the sick, recording that seven visits to hospital were made and fruit, flowers etc. were taken. The friends then went home, feeling much better for their outing. The Club gives a hearty invitation to any friends who would like to come to their meetings which are held every Friday afternoon at 3 p.m.—A. E. Lloyd, Secretary.

Every third garage in Canada is a Ford sales and service station

Service is only important to you when you need it—then it is very important.

Even the best of motor cars, sometimes require attention. If you are a Ford owner, a third of Canada's garages assure you this attention when you need it—without inconvenience and at a minimum of expense.

Every one of the five hundred and fifty Ford Dealers in Canada carries a complete stock of Ford spare parts and is competent to make repairs and adjustments when occasion demands.

No matter where you go, Ford Service is never out of reach if you drive a Ford.

Like the Ford car itself—Ford Service is universal.

OBITUARY

MRS. JOSEPH COBAIN.

The death occurred at 10 o'clock this morning of Mrs. Joseph Cobain of 248 Holland Street, Toronto. The deceased lady was on a visit to her sister, Mrs. Tudhope, 569 Homewood Avenue, when she was stricken with the illness which terminated in her death. Her husband arrives this evening from Toronto.

The funeral will take place on Monday afternoon for the residence of her sister, Mrs. Tudhope, 569 Homewood Avenue, to the 1.00 p.m. Grand Trunk train. Interment will take place in Hastings.

MRS WM. GOODFELLOW.

The death occurred to-day, at noon, of Mrs. Wm. Goodfellow, at her home in North Monaghan. Deceased, who was seventy-three years of age, had been ill for some time. She leaves to mourn her loss two sons and two daughters, namely, Ira and Herbert, at home, Margaret at home, and Mrs. Herbert Huffman of Peterborough. Her husband predeceased her about four years ago. Mr. George Young is a brother and Mrs. Israel Payne and Mrs. Davidson, 643 Water street, are sisters.

The late Mrs. Goodfellow was born in North Monaghan. She was well known and highly respected in the community in which she lived and her demise will be regretted by a wide circle of friends.

Funeral announcements will be made later.

MRS. WILLIAM J. ELLIOTT.

Florence Adella Elliott, wife of William J. Elliott, died at the family residence, 7 Bennett Street, early this morning, after a very long illness. She was born in the Township of Hope about 51 years ago, where she spent the greater part of her life. After her marriage, 24 years ago, she and her husband went to Manitoba, where they lived for 12 years, and later on, owing to ill-health, went to Alberta, where climatic conditions did not seem to benefit Mrs. Elliott any, and about five years ago the family came to Peterborough.

Her husband and two daughters, Florence and Winifred, survive.

Mrs. J. W. Walker, of Welcome, Ont., and Mrs. A. J. Ralton, of Calgary, are sisters, and Messrs. Herbert and Fred Hawkins, of Hope, are brothers.

The funeral will be held on Monday afternoon at 2.30 to Little Lake Cemetery. Funeral service at two o'clock.

BUSH FIRES IN THE NORTH

Blaze North of Cochrane Seems to be Gaining in Headway

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

COCHRANE, Ont., July 29.—Bush fires that totally destroyed Cochrane in July, 1911, are again in evidence here. For the past few days the town has been covered with smoke. To-day a stiff wind is blowing, and the fires north of the town seem to be gaining headway. The smoke is very dense, and many citizens are wondering whether it is advisable to move or not. The town of Cochrane has a large gang of men at the town limits working to stop the fire, but it is doubtful if it will accomplish anything. A large number of farms have been destroyed, and the outbreak is very critical, unless rain sets in immediately. The thermometer registered 91 this morning.

WAR HAS TAKEN MANY RAILWAY EMPLOYEES

Recruiting had so crippled the freight department of the G.T.R. some weeks ago that Mr. A. MacNabb, station agent, found it necessary to give practically all of his time to the demands of freight shipping. Five men gone within five weeks was quite a record, but, fortunately, Mr. MacNabb was able to engage inexperienced help, some of it from the Collegiate Institute boys, and he himself has even been doing the work of the billing clerk. In spite of these difficulties, the handling of G.T.R. freight has been carried out speedily. At Mr. MacNabb's suggestion, freight was diverted around Toronto from Georgetown to Orillia, and thus down to Peterborough, thereby avoiding the congested conditions in Toronto. This line has been quite an advantage to the G.T.R., and it has greatly expedited the bringing of freight to Peterborough from the west end of the Province.

In Toronto the G.T.R., like all the other railways, has been seriously handicapped by enlistments, and in Lindsay Mr. Frank Sandy has found it necessary to don overalls and hustle freight in the shed. Apart from personal considerations, the shortage of labour is no joke to the freight agents. In fact, it has been a prolonged and laborious trial, only compensated by a realization that the condition is due to the demands of war, and to the forbearance of business houses.

Milkman's Accident On Annual Picnic Day

The alleged attraction of milkmen to water may be mentioned in connection with the annual outing of the Peterborough Milk Vendors' Association to Rice Lake this afternoon. On the other hand the milkmen have given so much satisfaction to their customers throughout the year that their annual excursion is always well attended, and this afternoon's trip was no exception.

Mr. B. Cooke of Otonabee chanced upon an unfortunate occasion (picnic day) for a collision with one of the George street cars, at the corner of Water street and Barnardo Avenue. Both vehicles suffered from the collision. The milk waggon was overturned and a considerable quantity of milk was lost. At the same time Motorman Houlihan put on the reverse sharply and without shutting off the power the motor was damaged.

SWARMS OF CIVIC EMPLOYEES' HEADS TO FALL IN SLASH

Report of Economy Committee Recommends That From Forty to Sixty Per Cent. of Permanent City Employees Be Dropped From the Pay Roll at End of the Year—Consternation Among Inspectors, Stenographers and Junior Clerks.

MONTREAL, July 29.— Far more serious reductions of personnel and more sweeping reforms in the administration of the city for purposes of economy than were ever anticipated, are recommended to the City Council by the special "economy committee" of the Board of Control, according to details of the carefully-guarded report, which were ascertained at the City Hall.

With the exception of the police and fire departents, in which no cuts are to be made beyond allowing existing vacancies and those that may occur in the near future to remain unfilled, practically every other branch of the administration will lose from 4 to 60 per cent. of its employees.

If the recommendation of the sub committee are approved by the Council ,as they are almost certain to be, fully thirty out of the fifty female stenographers employed in the various offices of the City Hall and the Annex will be relieved of their positions from December 31 next, while no provision will be made in the budget for the filling of the vacancies created by the departure of Mr. Pierre Chevassu, the Mayor's former secretary, or Mr. L. J. Primeau, who was secretary to Controller Cote. One other secretary is also slated to go.

Judging by proportion to staff, but not by the number of employees who will be affected, the largest reduction of stag recommended by the economy committee concerns the city purchasing and sales department, who at present had a staff of thirteen members. This will be reduced to five, representing a cut of approximately sixty per cent. if the committee's report carries.

Cut City Treasurer Too.

City Treasurer Arnoldi, who made several vain attempts a couple of months ago to obtain some temporary clerical assistance to enable him to make up the annual tax bills, is, according to the report, to be asked to reduce his staff by fifty per cent. As there are between sixty and seventy official connected with the treasurer's and auditors' department, this will mean a reduction of thirty to thirty-five employees in this branch.

The sanitary inspection branch of the Medical Health Department is also down for a heavy reduction of staff inspectors, the number amounting to half of those now engaged to be about fifty per cent.

In the Board of Control and the City Clerk's Department there will be no changes, but in the Public Works Department, in addition to recommending that all new public works be abandoned next year and only most necessary repairs carried out there will be a cut of from thirty to forty per cent. among the employees of the chief engineer's office, the water, roads and sewers departments.

Departments with staffs ranging from two to four or five members, such as the Municipal Bulletin, printing, and stationery, archives and statistics, will it is understood be left undisturbed for the present, though it is said the smaller departments of all may later be amalgamated under one head.

Owing to the falling off in new building business during the year and the consequent reduction in the amount of building inspection necessary, the staff of the city architect and building inspector will be cut by about ten per cent.

The revenue producing departments, including the assessors, markets and licenses and privileges departments, are to be left practically untouched but certain changes will be made in the distribution of the work assigned to each with a view to obtaining if possible greater efficiency.

The parks department, the staff of which is small, will lose a couple of its members, but the claims department with a staff of but three or four, will remain as it is at present constituted.

The cut in the law department will chiefly affect the stenographers of whom there are half a dozen. This number will be cut in two.

At present the Controllers are studying the report of the special committee for their own information. The report will go forward to the Council within the next couple of weeks.

Mobilization Of Soldiers' Wives In Old England

July 12, 1916, Bramshott Camp.

We have just about completed the very difficult and complicated manœuvre of Mobilising the Wives of the Battalion, and we are as a whole, quite pleased with the results. So far as we can find out it was accomplished without the knowledge of the enemy.

Of course, all of us did not take part in the mobilisation. Some of us have no wives to mobilise even at such a crisis as the present. Others were not convinced that a wife in England was any more helpful than a wife at home; while others found that their wives, while good, were not amenable to mobilisation. Nevertheless, the results are quite imposing and when the League of Mobilised Wives of the Division turns out for teas or receptions or reviews, the Liphook Chapter, which is our special joy or pride, reflects distinct credit on the battalion in respect to both quantity and quality.

The headquarters of the chapter are at Liphook, which is eligibly situated about two miles from the camp, a reasonable and comfortable distance. Except when in full uniform and on official occasions the wives do not invade us, but are, as it were, held in reserve. In fact they furnish our first line of support, their activity commencing at the tea hour. I understand the Chapter meets frequently and passes resolutions condemning the pernicious system of the British army which places all the work of a battalion on the shoulders of the married officers. The resolutions have about the same effect as far resolutions of good and faithful wives had when functioning at home in the piping time of peace, furnishing the illusion of interest to the wives, kindly amusement to the husbands, and not affecting to any appreciable extent the regular routine of the regiment.

AN UNMARRIED ADJUTANT.

Every night at least three of the married officers return from Liphook under solemn promise to "take the matter up" with the adjutant and make him see reason, but they never do. The adjutant is not married and consequently does not have to see reason, which is one of the many reasons for his being an exceptionally efficient adjutant. If the League ever gets its own sweet way—which it will not as long as this war continues—the married officers of the battalion will be purely ornamental, coming on duty about ten in the morning after a leisurely four-course breakfast, and having dismissed all duties in time to sit down to a hearty English tea at 4.30 in the afternoon. Such a freedom would no doubt stimulate the lagging matrimonial impulse in those who had not already committed matrimony, but the concensus of opinion over here is still that this war, horrible as it is, is being waged for another purpose, so the League, while deserving all credit for fearlessly placing itself on record as regards the principles for which it stands, is apparently doomed to a hopeless if pleasant campaign. Like the rest of us married officers will continue to rise at 5.30 and put in a fairly busy day until nine the same evening, after which their time, like ours, is their own.

A MATRIMONIAL EPIDEMIC.

By the way the virulence of the matrimonial epidemic which broke out in our midst shortly after the organisation of the battalion, is not yet appreciably abated in spite of the number of its victims. War and matrimony appear to be alienably associated in the minds of some of our best and brightest young officers. Some recover but the percentage of fatalities continues to be alarming through the whole division. It is almost an even-money bet that by the time we leave England all but a very few of our most resolute subalterns will have either plighted their troth in person or by letter or placed themselves in a position where they will be expected to do so once hostilities are brought to a conclusion. It is so difficult to explain why this is so, but it is so. Spring has nothing on war for lightly turning a young man's fancy to thoughts of love. Material considerations appear to be wiped away entirely. When a youngster finds that he can live on $2.40 a day, which he earns by harder work than he probably ever did in his life, the problem of supporting a wife and family presents itself—if it presents itself at all—in an entirely new aspect. Judged by the scale the "irreducible minimum" for bank clerks ought to permit a man to commit bigamy with impunity. Before we left Canada we were told that there was only one worse thing in a regiment than a newly married officer, and that was a newly-married officer's wife, but this we now know is an error. An officer who wants to be newly married, but can't, is far more comfortable. As for the new wives those of us who have none recognise fully and freely the many advantages there are in other officers having them, especially when they have them at Liphook. Tea at the "Royal Anchor" is a function to which all of us look forward greedily when the rare opportunity offers itself of taking part in the ceremony. The sandwiches are different and the tea is more in evidence, but the hospitality is Canadian all through. J.S.L.

BREMEN STILL AT SEA

Reports of Capture Apparently False —Deutschland Asks for Pilot.

OTTAWA, July 29.—The Naval Service Department has received no word whatever confirmatory of the report of the German submersible Bremen having been captured and taken to Halifax or anywhere else.

"We would be happy if it were true, but unfortunately we have no such advices," asserted Deputy Minister Desbarats.

The Naval Service at Halifax is under the department at Ottawa, and it is said here that any big event of that kind would be reported promptly to headquarters. Halifax would be the natural port of entry with such a prize.

BALTIMORE, July 29.—Paul Hilken, representing the Ozean-Rhederei, said to-day that the Bremen would arrive safely. "There is no truth in these reports of the capture of the Bremen," he said. "The Bremen will make port in all good time."

The super-submarine Deutschland to-day requested the Maryland Pilots' Association to hold a pilot in readiness to take the submarine down Chesapeake Bay to the Capes. The pilot will be ready to go aboard the Deutschland at a few minutes' notice. The request for a pilot led to a general belief that the Deutschland was planning to make a start for the open sea within 24 hours.

Austro-German Retreat On Kovel and Galician Front Is In Danger of Collapse

PROSPECTS ARE BRIGHTER

LONDON, August 1.—Two years ago yesterday the ultimatum which directly precipitated the world war was forwarded from Berlin to Petrograd, and armies, in preparation for the Titanic clash which was to come on the morrow, began to take their stations on the Continental frontiers.

Reviews of the first and second years of the great conflict have been published in every newspaper of consequence in Europe and America. Journalistic strategists and tacticians have discussed the many phases into which it has been divided, bestowed praise here and blame there, examined the prospects of the contending forces as they enter the third year of the struggle and come to agreement on one fact:—The period of gloom which settled over the Entente countries with the collapse of Russia last summer has been dissipated, and not in two years have the prospects of the Allies been as bright as they are to-day.

While they are not in any sense in a precarious situation, the Teutonic armies are badly battered, their reserves are decreasing in numbers and quality and they are beset on every front by allied armies equally well organized, superior numerically and as well if not better supplied in the all important artillery arm. They are able more or less successfully to counter this general superiority in the west by the strength and intricacy of their fortified line. In the east, however, conditions of terrain and the comparatively short time permitted to them to solidify their front put them at a disadvantage as against the Russian man and steel power, and it is here they are feeling the strain most.

GENERAL RETREAT ON KOVEL.

The remarkable series of victories won by the broup of armies under General Brusiloff, from the Pripet River to Roumania, seems now to have broken the AustroGerman resistance, especially in the most vulnerable points of the front.

The news Sunday indicated that a general retreat on the whole sector before Kovel has been forced by the breaching of the Stokhod River line and the capture of Brody. Berlin admitted a retreat from the great bend of the Stokhod, although so far as can be learned from the official reports they still control Sokul and Kolki and the stretch of the Styr between these two towns. How General von Linsingen can hold Kovel it is difficult to see since on abandoning the river he has not a single natural barrier to which to rally his forces before he reaches the city. The only topographical feature which in any way favours him is a small lake district lying south of the Rovno-Kovel Railway, about twenty miles from Kovel and extending in the form of marsh land and narrow ridges of high ground forty miles to the north, where another lake area is encountered. But this, at its best, is poor defence against the battering ram tactics by which General Brusiloff is gaining his ground.

The vital problem before the Germanic General Staff is the speedy and strong reinforcement of these Colhynian armies. But since the same problem faces them at every other point to the south and at the same time is intruding in Picardy its solution is expected to put the last strain on the resources of the Central Empires. Some relief for the hard pressed Austrians in southern Galicia and Bukowina may come with the Turkish contingent known to be on the way through Bulgaria, but this force is not large enough to more than bolster up the defences of Hungary. Certainly it will not suffice to relieve the situation for General von Boehm-Ermolli or for General von Linsengen.

COUNT VON BOTHMER'S DANGER.

Count von Bothmer's army holding the Strypa a few weeks ago was being out-flanked on the south by General Letchisky's successful advance when the Dniester floods prevented his further progress. This enabled Count von Bothmer to hold on to the threatened positions. General Sakharoff then devoted himself to enveloping these forces on the north, with what success is seen in his double victory west of Lutsk and at Brody.

Thus outflanked north and south, it is considered impossible that Count von Bothmer much longer can delay extricating himself from his position. The Russians at Brody are at present nearer Lemberg than Von Bothmer's forces, which are intrusted with Lemberg's defence, and although the country between Brody and Lemberg is very difficult it becomes a question whether the evacuation of Lemberg will not become necessary in the near future.

ROUMANIA IS PREPARING.

Army Commander of Pro-German Sympathies Removed.

London, July 31.—In view of the Russian successes against the Teuton armies in Galicia and Bukowina, along the frontier of Roumania, and the constant threat of an advance by allied forces in the Balkans, a change in the atttiude of Bucharest toward the two groups of belligerents has long been expected in political and military circles here.

The removal of Gen. Zottu, known for his pro-German sympathies, foreshadows definite action by Roumania in the near future, and it is confidently predicted here that it will not be many months before the soldiers of Roumania march into the fray, shoulder to shoulder with the troops of the Czar and King Peter.

Northern Ontario Fire Has Been Extinguished By The Heavy Rains

It is Estimated That the Number of Fire Victims Will Reach Three Hundred--Over a Thousand Made Homeless---Communication Is Difficult---Refugees Escape on a Freight Train--Blame For the Fire.

AID FROM THE GOVERNMENT

NORTH BAY, August 1. — It is now thought that the number of fire victims will reach 300.

After about 300 people were burned to death and over a thousand made homeless, the worst fire ever experienced in the history of northern Ontario has been put out by heavy rains. Communication is difficult, but at this point it is known that Cochrane, Matheson, Porquis Junction and Iroquois Falls have been destroyed. Survivors who have been brought to New Liskeard appear to be in a most destitute condition, so far as clothing is concerned, and they declare they were forced to flee for their lives, leaving behind everything they possessed.

IRREPARABLE LOSSES.

Lists compiled here would seem to indicate that at Matheson thirty-five of the dead have been identified. Fifty-seven have been found at Nushka, twenty-eight at Cochrane and fourteen at Ramore. No more pitiable sight could be imagined than that presented by the arrival at New Liskeard of special trains carrying the refugees. The territory burned over is inhabited for the greater part by settlers, who are clearing homesteads, although there are a few small gold mines also in the vicinity, and the loss to many of the settlers will be almost irreparable.

The first train to New Liskeard was composed principally of women and children who had left Matheson early on Saturday afternoon. Many of them did not know where their husbands, fathers and brothers were or whether they had perished.

ONLY THREE HOUSES LEFT.

According to the stories told by some of those who passed through the fire, there is nothing left of the town of Matheson but three houses that are situated on the hill and belong to Mr. John Hough, the mining recorder, Mr. McDonald and Mr. Cartwright. All the rest of the buildings have been swept clean off the map, and the residents escaped with nothing but what they wore. The fire approached the town from two sides, and despite the fact that the bush was about one-half mile from town, the flames spread so rapidly through a clearance covered with stumps and underbrush that all efforts upon the part of the male population were useless. When the blaze started in the buildings it was only a few minutes before the town of Matheson was totally destroyed.

ESCAPE ON FREIGHT TRAIN.

Probably if it had not been for a northbound freight train that was stalled at Matheson owing to the burning of a bridge near Wahtabeag, the toll of casualties would have been much greater. When all chances of saving the town and the lives of all the people had passed the women and children were placed in the box cars and about three o'clock Saturday afternoon the train pulled out for the south. Before it reached Englehart many difficulties were encountered. Fire was raging on both sides of the track, and in many places the railway ties were burning, and the rails twisted so that it was impossible to make but slow headway. All this time the refugees were, in the box cars and the van, which were closed tight to keep out the smoke and flames, which the train was passing through. Two cars on the train were burned as well as another freight train standing on a siding.

A RELIEF TRAIN.

COBALT, August 1.—Stopping at every station between North Bay and this point to gather up supplies and medical aid for the sufferers in the burning districts, a relief train started out and contributions were liberally and gladly given out. A carload of coffins were carried to provide for the dead and doctors were up to look after the living. No passengers wer carried on the train with a guarntee of getting past Englehart, although the train started out for Cochrane with little chance of getting there.

BLAME FOR FIRE.

Careless burning of logs and brush by settlers during the dry season is said by old settlers to have been the cause of these fires. Careless campers and prospectors are likewise to blame. "Only last week," said one man, "I came across a settler burning logs and brush close to the railway track. There is absolutely no need of them burning these after May or before September. The Government will have to do something to stop this or it will drive the people out and scare others from coming in. It is going to spoil the whole of this northern country if something is not done. The prospectors get careless, too. They light a fire and never bother to see whether it is properly put out. Campers do the same thing, and the result is that bush fires which may get so big they sometimes get past control, then it gets like this and many lives are lost."

AID FROM THE DOMINION.

OTTAWA, August 1.—The Dominion Government will co-operate in every way possible with the provincial authorities in the relief of the fire-swept districts of northern Ontario. While there has not yet been time to consider it, a liberal grant in aid of the sufferers may be anticipated. There are several precedents, one of the most recent being the fire at Chicoutimi a few years ago when a substantial vote for the purpose was made. Aid likewise was granted in several disasters, mining and others, in western Canada. The question will be considered by the Cabinet at once. Orders have been given for a supply of militia tents and equipment to meet the urgent requirements of the situation, and these are to be forwarded from the Toronto military division.

Weak, Sickly Folks Regain Health Quickly By New Remedy!

A BLOOD-FOOD NOW MANUFACTURED THAT ACCOMPLISHES MARVELS.

Lots of people that were thin and miserable for years have recently been restored by this simple treatment. All you have to do is take two little chocolate-coated tablets with a sip of water at the close of each meal.

The tablets, which, by the way, are called "Ferrosone," are in reality a perfect food for the blood. They contain exactly those elements your blood lacks when it becomes thin, weak, and unhealthy.

This is just the time to use Ferrosone; it excites splendid appetite, gives digestion splendid aid, supplies nourishment for all weak organs. At once you feel buoyant and strong. Nutritious blood courses through your veins, supplies strength, makes you tingle with animation and ambition.

No more headaches.

None of that tired languor.

You feel like doing things because Ferrosone completely renews and strengthens your whole system.

No medicine on earth gives such quick, lasting benefits as Ferrosone. It has raised thousands from down-right weakness, brings robust health simply because it contains the fortifying elements that run-down systems require.

One week after using Ferrosone you'll feel like new, you'll appreciate what real robust health means. In a month you'll scarcely credit the push your vigor and spirits have received. Ferrosone is more than a tonic because its work lasts, its benefits remain and are not temporary. It restores health where other treatments fail, and should be used by every man woman and child. Try it. 50c per box or six boxes for $2.50. Sold by all dealers or by mail from The Catarrhosone Co., Kingston, Ontario.

STYLE TIPS.

About Capes, Frills, Scarfs, Ribbons and Other Frivolities.

Skirts are to be longer, if we are to believe a certain rumor which comes from Paris—not very long, but not quite so abbreviated as they have been for some time. Some of the evening gowns, on the other hand, are closely draped and clinging, falling in at the feet with narrow pointed trains, and as different as possible from the fluffy skirted creations which we are now wearing.

Then the new lingerie is very fascinating, but not a single scrap of lace is to be used for decorating it by those who wish to be really up to date. Silk, ninon and crepe de chine have taken the place of lawn and cambric and are simply ornamented with very fine hemstitching or silk embroidery and rows of handwork in faggot or chain stitch or buttonholed slots for inserting ribbon. Flesh pink is still the most popular color or an exquisite shade of pale parma violet mauve.

For afternoon frocks there is a distinct tendency to copy old fashioned modes, such as the styles of 1830 and the latter part of the eighteenth century. Silk gowns are made with panniers very much looped up at the sides and back over contrasting underskirts. The sleeves will be close fitting for afternoon frocks, with a little puff at the top, while for evening dresses they are made with a tiny puff all by itself.

Tailor mades are completed with little capes across the shoulders or falling down the center of the back as far as the waist line. Most fascinating of all perhaps are the quaint neck ruffles in velvet or taffetas that make such a pretty frame to the face. These will be designed to suit the particular gown and will have a tiny bunch of flowers or a bow of colored ribbon in one of the old fashioned shades, such as sevres blue or vieille rose, attached to one side.

Long ninon or taffeta scarfs are also designed to match the various frocks, often in black, lined with a contrasting shade and bordered with a narrow ribbon ruching or embroidered with sprays and wreaths of small flowers in silks and ribbon work. Anything, indeed, that gives a suggestion of the days of long ago is a feature of the newest design.

Serious.

"Do you think his intentions are serious?"

"They must be. It cost him $6.75 taxi fare to bring me home from the party the other night, and he asked me if he couldn't call again."

In ½, 1 and 2 pound cans. Whole—ground—pulverized—also Fine Ground for Percolators. 172

Tennyson's Birds.

Of all the poets Tennyson was the most exact in his rendering of the songs or calls of birds. A young lady was present when he was reading "Maud." When he came to the passage which says, "Birds in the high hall garden cry, 'Maud, Maud, Maud!'" he suddenly ceased reading and asked her abruptly what the birds were.

She blushed and hesitated and then said:

"Nightingales, I suppose."

The poet turned away with the one word "Rooks."

He always made the sound right. What could be better than "the moan of doves" and "'Whit, whit, whit!' chirruped the nightingale?"

Then, linnets, robins and thrushes "pipe" in his pages, the woodpecker "laughs" and "mocks," the lark and the plover "whistle," the jay "scritches," the parrot "screams," the peacock "squalls," the blackbird "warbles," the ocean fowl "shriek," and the eagle "yelps." He may well ask in one of the daintiest of his lullabies, "What does little birdie say?" He knows, and he lets his readers know too.—London Answers.

The Missing Chapter.

The new pastor of a certain country parish is likely to lose the confidence of his flock unless he changes his ways. During his sermon one Sunday morning not long back he stopped abruptly and asked:

"How many of those here are diligent students of their Bible?"

Fifty hands went up.

"Good!" said the pastor. "Now, how many of you have read the second chapter of Jude?"

Twenty-five hands went up.

A wan smile overspread the divine's face.

"That's also good, but when you go home read that chapter again, and you will doubtless learn something to your interest."

Reader, the point of this story lies in the fact that the book of Jude consists of one chapter only.

Nearer to Port.

Are you richer today than you were yesterday? No? Then you are a little poorer. Are you better today than you were yesterday? No? Then you are a little worse. Are you nearer to your port today than you were yesterday? Yes; you must be a little nearer to some port or other, for since your ship was first launched upon the sea of life you have never been still for a single moment. The sea is too deep; you could not find anchorage if you would. There can be no pause until you come into port.—Henry van Dyke.

NOTHING LIKE IT FOR COLDS

Mrs. Holland Ferguson, Sheffield, N. B., writes: "Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has cured my children and myself of severe colds. We are never without it in the house. There is nothing like it for colds and throat troubles and it is so soothing and pleasant to take, my children would drink a whole bottle if they were permitted."

PARISH REGISTERS.

Records of Births, Marriages, and Deaths Are Very Precious.

How valuable old parish registers, hidden away, maybe in the vaults of a village church, are, is illustrated by the recent offer of £1,000 for the recovery of the parish registers of Cawdor, Nairnshire, for the years 1778-1783, which are wanted in connection with the settlement of an estate.

Through carelessness or ignorance of their value as records, parish registers have gone through some strange vicissitudes. A former clerk of Plungar, Leicestershire, for instance, who combined the sale of groceries with his parish duties, made the registers serve him in a business capacity by employing them to wrap up his wares. Another parish clerk cut the registers up to serve as patterns for the lacemaking of his daughters.

It has been proved that in many cases the vicar only wrote up his record at the end of the year from the clerk's note-book, and that worthy, thinking more of his fees than the instruction of posterity, was content to book only such as owed him money. One painstaking vicar who superintended the souls of Seasalter, however, was wont to append pen portraits of those whom he married, and one wonders if he took advantage of his clergyman's privilege of kissing the bride when he joined "John Housden, a gape-mouthed, lazy fellow, to Hannah Matthews, an old toothless, wriggling hag," to quote his description of them in the registers of his parish.

The origin of parish registers dates back to 1538, when Cromwell, Henry VIII.'s general, issued an injunction to the clergy to keep a record of births, marriages, and deaths. And the explanation of the gaps in ancient parish registers lies in the fact that during William III.'s war with France they were used to assist in the collection of a tax on births and marriages, which was frustrated by the parish clerks, for, as one of them naively notes in his register, "No entries were made for some years to avoid the tax."

Persia's Poet Laureate.

Persia appears to be the only country besides England where a poet laureate has been maintained of recent years. Until Muzaffar-ed-Din abolished the post in 1896, the Court of Teheran had for centuries possessed a laureate, whose duties were far more numerous than those of his British confrere.

According to Narcisse Persin, who spent some years in Persia at the beginning of the nineteenth century, court etiquette prescribed that whenever the Shah traveled outside the capital, his suite must include a dwarf, a giant, a jester, a historiographer, and a poet laureate.

The last two were kept busy, for, while the historiographer had to record for posterity all the doings and sayings of the Shah, the laureate was called upon to celebrate a large proportion of these in verse. M. Persin highly commends this custom, which he found rigidly followed, "for the Shah, knowing that many of his utterances and deeds would be crystallized in an ode, felt bound, on these royal progresses, to speak and behave majestically."

Paper Rolls in Movie Machines.

The substitution of paper rolls for celluloid films in moving picture machines, made possible by the new "cold" light discovered by the French engineer, Dussaud, which is described to the Academy of Science by Professor Branley, with whom Dussaud studied the new light, is obtained by automatic separation of heat rays from luminous rays, which occur together in all sources of light hitherto known to science.

The quest of an absolutely pure light, devoid of all heat, has long been one of the great problems of modern physics. The electric light is the nearest approach to this ideal, but far from it, as it gives off a certain amount of heat.

M. Dussaud has been working on this problem for many years. The light obtained by his method is so intense that it is possible to throw images from newspaper illustrations, picture postcards, and photographic prints on a screen, even in a lighted room, as clearly and sharply as if they were glass lantern slides.

He Drew the Nine.

On one occasion Mr. Justice Hawkins, who always wore his hair close-cropped was on circuit in the South of England, and went for a country walk with a brother judge. Being thirsty the two judges entered a wayside inn in the rear of which were two laborers playing skittles. They decided to join in the game, and each taking one of the players as a partner, entered into the game with spirit.

Getting hot, Mr. Justice Hawkins took off his coat; getting hotter, he removed his hat. His lordship's partner at once stopped playing. "Go on, my friend," said Hawkins; "why do you stop?" "I don't mind bein' neighborly," replied the man, looking at Hawkins's close-cropped head, "but I'm hanged if I be a-goin' to play skittles with a ticket-of-leave man!"

"Morgenroth."

"Morgenroth," the haunting death-song of the forlorn hopes of the German armies, is the song which was sung so often in the Franco-Prussian war of 1870, and is being sung again to-day.

The words were written by Wilhelm Hauff, a patriotic German writer of the first half of the nineteenth century.

Morning bright; morning bright—
Light that leads me to the grave—
Soon shall dawn with summons brazen,
Call me to my death to hasten—
I and many a comrade brave.

The Toronto Board of Trade urged the C.N.E. directors to run the Fair for three months as far back as 1885, but the management thought two weeks quite long enough.

DOMESTIC LIFE IN AFRICA.

A Warning to Little Boys Who Would Like to Be Heathens.

I went with my lantern into Ze's little hut, says Jean Kenyon Mackenzie in the Atlantic Monthly. I sat down by the fire, and there was the family too. Mendom was heating some water in a big black kettle. The youngest, Mpioga, still without teeth, was howling in the arms of little brother. Presently to the light of my lantern Mendom brings her three-year-old. She empties her hot water into a wooden bowl; with a sponge of crushed leaves she washes first one little foot and then the other. Kid howls.

His feet are sore, poor little duffer! He holds out his hand for his father to hold. Mother is relentless until both feet are soaked; then she opens a little leaf packet. There is salve made of the bark of the redwood tree. She adds a little palm oil to this, and very carefully she anoints the little feet. The sobs subside, and the child walks off on his heels.

Now the mother pours more water into this bowl, takes the fretful baby out of the hands of little brother, stands the weeny thing in her belt of beads on the clay floor and swabs her down with water. There is the familiar initial gasp. With her maternal hands she cleanses that little person all glittering with wet, and she says, looking at me and smiling, "God has sent me much trouble." And the father says, apropos of nothing, "All these have been baptized." I sit on my stool by the fire and feel steeped in the most human domesticity.

Everywhere in the world at this hour little children are whimpering over their evening ablutions. It is a mistake to think that any child of a good mother escapes. So much for the illusions of little boys who would like to be heathen.

COLOR OF SEA WATER.

From Tropical Azures to the Vivid Greens Near the Poles.

Why is the ocean blue? Reflection of the sky, you say? This accounts for some of the color, but not all. It is well known that the tint varies greatly in different localities. Persons taking sea water baths on ocean liners are always surprised by the very beautiful color of their morning tubs.

Color in sea water is largely a matter of saltness and density. In the tropics the tremendous evaporation induced by the blazing sun causes the water to be much saltier than in higher latitudes. For many miles north and south of the equator the water of the world's oceans is a deep blue which fades and changes to green the further one goes toward the poles. In the Arctic and Antarctic oceans the greens are almost as vivid as the tropical azures. China's Yellow sea derives its color partly from the muddy water poured in by its great rivers and partly from small organisms which exist there in numbers which exceed the 120,000,000 living creatures to the square mile found on the average.

The question of salt in water brings up our old friend the Dead sea, which contains 25 per cent of solid matter and, bulk for bulk, is heavier than the human body. Many believe, even in Jerusalem, that bathing in this famous body of water is harmful and swimming impossible. This is not the fact. The chloride of magnesia in the water possesses medicinal qualities if it is not permitted to get into the eyes. It is true that the density of the water renders fast progress in swimming difficult, but the impossibility of sinking more than makes up for it.—Agwi News.

CHOLERA INFANTUM
Cured By Using
DR. FOWLER'S
Extract of Wild Strawberry

Cholera infantum is one of the most common, and at the same time one of the most dangerous summer complaints of infants, and many children have died who could have been saved had the proper remedy been used on the first sign of the trouble.

Cholera Infantum begins with a profuse diarrhoea; the stomach becomes irritated, vomiting and purging set in and the child rapidly loses flesh, and becomes weak, prostrated and languid.

Mrs. B. A. Cirwell, Rossway, N.S., writes: "I can recommend most highly Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. A friend of mine whose little daughter was ill with cholera infantum was given up by the doctors. The little one's mother asked me to come in and see the child. I told her I had a bottle of 'Dr. Fowler's' and asked her if she would try it. When the bottle was half used the child was well. This cure was a miraculous one for I thought the child was dying at the time."

Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has been on the market for the past seventy years. Any one who has ever used it will not accept a substitute. See that you don't. When you ask for "Dr. Fowler's" be sure that you get it.

FOUND DEAD ON ROADSIDE.

Paris Green is Reported to Have Been Found in Stomach.

BELLEVILLE, July 31. — Mr. John Burns, Jr., a well-known resident of Elzevir Township, Hastings County, was at an early hour on Thursday morning found dead on the roadside. He had the previous evening visited a neighbour using his horse and buggy to do so. The horse was found tied to a fence, and Burns' body was found near the vehicle. It is reported that the post-mortem revealed a quantity of Paris green in the stomach. An inquest will be held. Deceased leaves a widow and ten children.

A BRITISH SUBMARINE COMING ALONGSIDE A WARSHIP

Admiral Jellicoe's Report a Challenge to the Kaiser

(Special Dispatch.)

LONDON, Saturday.

The despatches of Admiral Sir John Jellicoe, now published, afford a most striking and significant contrast to the inconclusive, incomplete and inaccurate versions of the battle which have emanated from German sources. The narrative, so convincing in its modesty, will establish beyond a doubt to all sound minded men the real outcome of the battle and its actual effect. It constitutes a challenge to the Kaiser to produce Von Scheer's report and place it before the world.

Those who expected to find in the British despatches material for a discussion of the strategical and tactical lessons of the battle will be disappointed. Common sense will have warned most persons that no such explanations must of necessity afford information to the enemy they could not be made. On the other hand, there is very much in the despatches, beyond the description of how the battle was fought, which is of interest to laymen and the naval profession alike.

At the very beginning the commander in chief completely vindicates the Vice Admiral of his battle cruiser fleet, Sir David Beatty, in connection with what took place before the British battle squadrons were able to get into action.

"The junction of the battle fleet," he says, "with the scouting force after the enemy had been sighted was delayed owing to the southerly course steered by our advanced force during the first hour after commencing their action with the enemy battle cruisers. This was, of course, unavoidable, as had our battle cruisers not followed the enemy to the southward the main fleets would never have been in contact."

No further comment is necessary on this plain statement of the facts.

Fleet Must Be Always Ready.

In judging the events of the battle the circumstances which permitted of its being fought are apt to be lost sight of. One lesson driven home by the Admiral's report is the time honored one that a fighting fleet to-day more than ever must be ready at an instant's notice to go anywhere and do anything. The British fleet had no leisurely warning of this encounter off the Jutland coast. It was sprung upon them suddenly. The ships were out for a sweeping movement through the North Sea, as they had been scores of times before, when the word was passed that the Germans were out.

How well the efficiency of the fleet stood the test is shown in these despatches. In particular the skill and endurance of the engineers, by which the huge vessels were placed at the spot desired by the commander in chief, were beyond all praise. Sir John Jellicoe says that "the prelude to action is the work of the engine room department," and after commending the qualities of discipline and devotion to duty shown by these workers below, he adds that "several ships attained speeds that had never before been reached, thus showing very clearly their high state of steaming efficiency. Failures in material were conspicuous by their absence."

It was not only an efficient but a progressive fleet which brought the Germans to action on May 31. The number of new vessels added since the war began, and the developments in fleet organization as the result of experience, must come as a startling revelation to many people. Of the vessels indicated as having taken part on the British side all were less than twelve years of age. The battle squadrons contained no ship launched before 1906, and the destroyer flotillas none put afloat before 1901. There are about fifty light cruisers and torpedo craft mentioned by name in the reports, and no less than twenty-three of them have been passed into service since the beginning of war. Whereas the destroyer flotillas of the navy numbered nine, they now total thirteen, and in place of two light cruiser squadrons there are four.

Aeroplane Aid for First Time.

For the first time in naval warfare, moreover, an aeroplane ship accompanied the fleet, the Engadine, formerly a fast cross-Channel steamship, and the assistance of the machine which ascended from her deck during the afternoon of May 31 was invaluable. As has already been stated, the fighting value of the oil fired, 15-inch gun ships of the Queen Elizabeth type was amply demonstrated. Sir David Beatty shows that these great battle ships opened fire at a range of 20,000 yards, or eleven and a half miles.

Wonderful as were the performances of the different units, it is the personal side which must attract the greater attention. Without trained crews to handle them the best and most scientifically equipped vessels would be useless. The British seamen, however, showed that, allied with professional skill, they possess qualities of daring and initiative worthy of the old glories of the royal navy.

There are instances of heroism displayed by the men in the destroyers in attacking the big German ships. Few persons, moreover, but will be thrilled in reading how, when the destroyer Onslow was disabled after attacking battle ships, battle cruisers and a light cruiser of the German fleet, another destroyer, the Defender, which had likewise been incapacitated by a shell which damaged her foremost boiler, went in at the best speed she could do, ten knots, and took the Onslow in tow. Shells were falling all around the two damaged destroyers, but with the coolness and seamanship of their crews they got home without further mishap.

Another destroyer, the Onslaught, had all her executive officers except two disabled, but was successfully brought out of action and back to her base by Sub-Lieutenant H. W. A. Kemmis and Midshipman R. G. Arnot.

GERMANY, IN STRAITS, CRYING FOR NEW LEADERS FOR HER VAST ARMIES

Merchants and Manufacturers Want Field Marshal von Mackensen as Supreme Chief, with Field Marshal von Hindenburg as Second Choice, but No Suggestions Made of Placing the Kaiser or Crown Prince in Active Command.

(Special Dispatch.)

LONDON, Saturday.

The absorbing topic of the hour in Germany is the necessity of finding a supreme chief to lead the nation's military forces, a man whose name shall serve to regain the courage of the populace, to restore the morale of the troops in certain sections and to promise victory to German arms.

Field Marshal von Mackensen, according to the Zurich correspondent of the Corriere of Milan, is the man who the union of the great German associations of merchants, manufacturers and agriculturists, as well as the leaders of the powerful national liberal party, insist shall be chosen to fill the great rôle.

The names of Field Marshals von Hindenburg and von Mackensen have of late been heralded as the prime leaders of the German armies. It is known to the public that neither of them was an integral part of the great German military machine as represented by the Great General Staff, before the war began, and that both of them, when called upon for their services, insisted on an extraordinary measure of independence from the central bureaus. Each of these marshals has had his friends and votaries, but those of Field Marshal von Mackensen are now bidding fair to gain the upper hand.

The recent removal of several generals from the active German army list is regarded as part of the last despairing shake-up for the purpose of putting the control of the imperial armies into the hands of men of the very highest calibre. An incident that has been particularly commented upon was the retirement into private life of General von Buelow, who had led the second German army in the great rush toward Paris in August and September, 1914. Although he had been "at the disposition" of the government for more than a year, it was known that he was actively connected with the administration of army affairs, and the announcement of his retirement was regarded as a concession to those who are contending that the entire General Staff and, in a special way, the leaders of the six armies which invaded Belgium, Luxemburg and France have been grievously at fault and that only the two marshals who have operated on the eastern and southern fronts have shown the qualities of great leadership.

Kaiser Not Considered.

It is noteworthy that the names of both the Kaiser and the Crown Prince are eliminated from all the present discussions in Germany regarding the military leadership.

In the contention which has arisen between those who favor Field Marshal von Hindenburg for the supreme post at the head of the German armies and those who think that it ought to be awarded to Field Marshal von Mackensen, it is affirmed that the performances of the former were not of the very highest military merit, that his battle of Tannenburg was a serious risk which might have been turned into a disaster had he been faced by a Joffre instead of by a Rennenkampf, and that his rolling back of the Russians to the Dvina was made possible solely by the operations of Field Marshal von Mackensen in Galicia. The latter it was who saved the Austrian Empire and who regained for it all the territory which had been taken by the Russians, and he it was also who performed the masterly "cleaning up" in Serbia and Montenegro and the opening of the way to the coast of Albania for the future benefit of the operations of the Teutonic empires.

It was recently announced in Germany that Field Marshal von Mackensen had been sent to save for the second time the situation confronting the Austrian forces in Galicia, but it is noted with interest by the newspapers of the Allies that his presence has not been reported on that front, and the fact that his friend, General von Linsingen, continues in command of the right wing of the German forces in the east is taken as confirmation of the rumor that Field Marshal von Mackensen has positively refused to be responsible for any share in the operations on the Russian front unless he is intrusted with control of the entire situation. This would mean that Field Marshal von Hindenburg should either serve under him in a subordinate position or else retire from his command in the northern region, an alternative to which it is expected that the doughty old warrior would not readily submit, and the effects of which would undoubtedly be felt as a serious countershock in the entire German Empire, where the field marshal has been for nearly a year regarded as the national hero to whom statues may already be freely erected.

Major Moraht, the noted military critic of the Berliner Tageblatt, is regarded as one of the supporters of Field Marshal von Mackensen, and the French observers are now carefully watching his statements, more, as General Berthaut says, for what Major Moraht does not say than for what he does say, as it is the matters which he hints at by clever allusion which are by far the most interesting features of his writings.

Roumania's Attitude a Puzzle.

Major Moraht now insists that the Russian operations in Bukowina were inspired rather by the political purpose of influencing Roumania than for great strategic reasons, and that the vital point of the German front in the east is that south of Riga, and that here the greatest generalship on the part of the German leaders will be called for. Field Marshal von Mackensen's friends are unanimous in insisting that he should not be asked to take up the relatively subordinate work of remedying the situation on the Galicia front, but that, in view of his immeasurable services in the past and of his invariably perfect strategy and execution, he has proved that he is the one man qualified to assume the responsibility for the supreme crises of the German military operations.

The question of whether Roumania will or will not join the Allies in the war is being made an important feature of the discussion on the question of the choice of a supreme German leader. The question, as it is considered in Germany, is summed up in the following manner in the Paris Journal:—

"The occupation of Bukowina by the Russians must inevitably have an important effect on the Roumanians, who for a long time have hoped to receive that territory, and it is now no secret that in the spring of 1915 negotiations on the subject of the transfer of Bukowina to Roumania took place between Petrograd and Bucharest. It is no secret also that the Roumanian government was entirely satisfied and that Mr. Bratiano, the Roumanian Premier, congratulated his representatives on the promises which they had received.

"It is known that there are two factions in Roumania, with extreme and opposite tendencies, the Ententists, headed by Mr. Filipescu and Mr. Take Jonescu on one side, favoring intervention with the Allies, and the Germanophiles, led by Mr. Carp and Mr. Marghiloman, on the other, demanding that the nation take part with Germany and Austria. Between these two extreme parties is the great bulk of the liberal party, faithful to the Premier, Mr. Bratiano, who has let it be known that he is determined to preserve the neutrality until such time as he shall decide to do otherwise. This time obviously must be the moment when Austria-Hungary has received a mortal blow, when the Roumanian army is ready and assured of receiving a regular supply of munitions, and when it is not too late to act.

"The friends of Mr. Bratiano have announced in his name that the agreement which he made in April of this year with Germany for the exchange of products did not bind him in a political way.

"The present hour would seem to be the hour for Roumania to act, as Austria is badly shaken and there is nothing to hope from Austria except by force of arms. Roumania must now have all the indispensable supplies of cannon, rifles and munitions, and the certainty of being able to renew these supplies. The Bulgarians have their eyes fixed on the intrenched camp at Salonika, and the Bulgarian government has shown toward Roumania a disposition of positive distrust by closing her border. It would, therefore, seem that either Roumania must enter the war now on the side of the Allies, or forever abandon her hopes of territorial aggrandizement."

Expect Salonica Advance.

The French press is insistent that the two new features of the war will be the advance of General Sarrail's force from Salonica and the entry into the field of Roumania. Lieutenant Colonel Rousset, the well known expert of the Petit Parisien, asks the permission of the censor to allude to this subject, as in a previous article his mention of it had been elided. He quotes Mr. Gustave Herve, who says, in the Victoire, that "the great orchestra of the Russians, Italians, British and French has now begun to play in harmony and that all are waiting for the imminent entrance of General Sarrail's clarinet and the Roumanian flute."

Major Moraht, on the other hand, intimates the belief that Roumania can neither be scared nor enticed into the war on the side of the Allies and it is to be noted that General Berthaut, in the Petit Journal, seems to hold a similar view.

"We do not know what Roumania will do or will not do," he says, "and we may be allowed to remain sceptical with regard to her action."

The general discontent expressed by spokesmen of German opinion in army matters is commented upon by the neutral critic Colonel Feyler, of the Swiss army.

"The Germans," he says, "show themselves very irritable over the defeat of the Austrians. In the place of the latter they would probably have done better, for it cannot be denied that they reveal military qualities superior to those of the Austrians and that they have often succeeded where the latter have failed."

"It would seem just, however, for the Germans not to refuse all responsibility in the consequences. Major Moraht has no difficulty in agreeing on this point, at least indirectly. He complains that the German press has been badly informed regarding the true value of the new Russian army and regarding the insufficiency of the Austro-Hungarian positions.

"If the German press has been badly informed on these two points, it must be concluded that the Great General Staff, which knew them, was the first to compromise its allies by withdrawing from Galicia the divisions which were sent to Verdun. These divisions belonged precisely to the army of Volhynia, that is, to the sector which it is most important to keep solid."

NELSON'S LETTERS REFLECT BRITISH NAVY IN PRESENT WAR

(Special Dispatch.)

LONDON, Saturday.

Immediately before the present war began it may be remembered that a remarkable series of love letters written by Nelson to his wife appeared in the saleroom at Christie's.

Although he had no commission, Mr. Edward Dring, the manager of Quaritch's, made it his patriotic duty to obtain and hold the letters for England, and accordingly outbid all comers at $11,000. Now Mr. Dring says that, after nearly two years, an enthusiastic patriot has come forward to buy the letters from him, promising that they shall remain in England, also hinting that some day he may leave them, to the nation, thereby following the example of the late Mr. Benjamin Woollan, who bequeathed the famous Trafalgar memorandum in Nelson's hand to England.

At the present time these 230 letters have a vivid interest, particularly those passages in which the great Admiral writes proudly about the British fleet. A few extracts prove the truth.

"September 11, 1793.—The perseverance of our fleet has been great and to that only can be attributed our unexampled success."

"March 4, 1794.—My seamen are now what British seamen ought to be—almost invincible."

"July 1, 1795.—Thank God, the superiority of the British Navy remains, and, I hope, ever will."

In a letter dated September 17, 1795, Nelson wrote some words which tersely sum up the Europe in situation as it stands at the present moment:—"As for the German generals, war is their trade and peace is ruin to them, therefore we cannot expect they have any wish to finish the war."

With these fascinating letters is a manuscript account of the battle of the Nile written by E. Poussielque, the French Controller General of Expenses in those days. On the first leaf of this Nelson wrote an illuminating comment:—"This gentleman seems to know so much more about the battle than I do, that I will not venture to contradict him. I am satisfied with it, if he is."

Lastly there is the cheery note of optimism when he lost his eye, a spirit which animates so many of England's wounded heroes to-day:—"You will expect me to say something about my eye. It is no blemish, so my beauty is saved."

ENGLAND'S FREEMASONS ACTIVE AT THE FRONT

(Special Dispatch.)

LONDON, Saturday.

When the war began Freemasons did not escape the panic which assailed men in all quarters, and there were many who suggested that lodges should cease to meet or, at least, assemble as seldom as possible for purely formal business during the period of the war. Happily, saner counsels prevailed, owing in a great measure to the wise advice of the Board of General Purposes, which has sometimes been called the Cabinet Council of the Craft. It was recommended to lodges that they should pursue their Masonic duties in accordance with the Book of Constitutions and take such measures as lay within their power to assist in relieving the distress which would be certain to arise out of the great national emergency. This advice has been generally followed.

There is not a large in the country—and there are 738 lodges meeting in the London area and 1,763 in the provinces—which has not a large proportion of its members on active service. Out of the 738 London lodges thirty-five are known as Military Lodges, and many of these have found it difficult to hold the two meetings which, according to the constitutions, must be held during the year. One, St. Mary's Lodge, has been compelled to suspend its meetings altogether, for, like a sister lodge in the province of Middlesex—the Alma, of Hounslow, which is attached to the Royal Fusiliers—every member is on active service.

The extent to which death has depleted the Masonic ranks cannot be estimated even by the authorities at Freemasons' Hall. The Masonic Roll of Honor, compiled from returns received up to the early part of November, 1915, occupies thirty-six pages of the last issue of the Masonic Year Book, and contains particulars of 520 brethren who had fallen in the service of their King and country. The list has been added to considerably since that date.

The whole of the craft has been affected by the war. The Grand Master, H. R. H. the Duke of Connaught, has had to remain at his post in Canada for a further term.

FINDS AUSTRIAN EMPEROR IN EXCELLENT CONDITION

(Special Dispatch.)

VIENNA, Saturday.

After considerable time along the eastern front from Memel to Czernowitz, Sven Hedin, Swedish explorer and writer, journeyed to Vienna, where he was given an audience by Emperor Francis Joseph. In a book just published entitled "Kastward," issued by F. A. Brockhaus, of Leipsig, Sven Hedin gives an interesting account of his talk with the Austrian Kaiser.

"My audience with the Emperor was set for one o'clock of a Sunday afternoon," he writes. "I was ushered into the adjutant's room, where Colonel von Spanyik received me.

"The Emperor was walking back and forth. As I entered he turned quickly and came toward me with extended hand. 'Welcome, doctor,' he said, with a smile. 'It is now six years since last we met, and many things have occurred since that time.'

The Emperor seated himself before his desk and motioned me to a chair near the window. He rested his left elbow on the desk and the right elbow on the arm of the chair, and thus he sat through our entire conversation. He looked well and his eighty-five years of active life were not apparent in his clear blue eyes and calm face. He wore a light blue uniform with an embroidered red collar. He wore four decorations on his breast, one from the Italian campaign.

"The Emperor questioned me regarding my observations on the eastern front and he asked me particularly if I had met the various generals there—Pflanzer-Balton, Papp and Fischer. He was very much interested in all that I was able to tell him. When the Carpathian front was mentioned he wanted to know about General von Linsingen and asked if I had called at General Bothmer's headquarters. Of him he said:—

"'He is a wonder, and though a Bavarian he commands Prussian troops.'

"He wanted to know about Mackensen and spoke of the heavy burdens of General von Böhms' army and Boroevic's troops. By his questions the Emperor showed that he was conversant with every detail of the campaign on the eastern front.

"He spoke of Italy, but I am not at liberty to quote his views. I can say this much, however, that the Emperor was deeply grieved because of Italy's break with the Triple Alliance.

"The Emperor glanced at the little clock on his desk and said:—

"'Well, Doctor, I will not detain you any longer.' He escorted me to the door, and I remarked that I was glad to find him in such good health."

How to Save Wear on Auto Brakes.

In the Woman's Home Companion an automobile expert says:

"Remember that gradual application of power, whether from engine or from brakes, saves wear. When you stop push out the clutch a hundred yards off, cut down the throttle and coast to your stopping place, with the brakes applied gently. Don't come down steep hills using brakes alone. Continued use heats and wears them. Slow up at the top, slip into second gear and cut off the ignition current. The engine acts as a brake or a drag. Gravity, pulling the car down, turns the engine rapidly, and it resists. On extremely steep, rough hills use first gear."

Thackeray and Dickens.

Thackeray was much taller than Dickens. His form, indeed, approached the gigantic in its proportions. He looked far older, although the two men were much about the same age. His immense head, his broad forehead and his prematurely white hair gave him an appearance of authority and even of severity, which one might have thought would prove intimidating to a stranger. Yet I at least never felt it so. He seemed to me to be less self assertive, less conscious of his superiority, than Dickens appeared to be.—Justin McCarthy's Reminiscences.

Back to Her Tender Years.

Boarder—This beef is very tough. It is evidently from an old cow. Mrs Hashleigh—Let me tell you, sir, that the tenderest beef I ever ate was from a cow fifteen or twenty years old Boarder—That's easily explained The cow was so old she was childish.

A WORD OF GRATITUDE.

"In justice to humanity I want to tell you that I was a great sufferer from itching piles, and have found Dr. Chase's Ointment the best treatment obtainable," writes Mr. Fred Hiss, Brodhagen, Ont. "It gives instant relief and I can recommend it to any sufferer from this dreadful disease."

Alone In a Great City.

"Alone—alone in a great city!"

The words burst like heart tearing sobs from the lips of the wretched looking man at the street corner, and passersby eyed him in silent sympathy.

"Alone in a great city!" he sobbed again. Then over his careworn face flashed a sudden look of hope as he added, "Ah, that gives me an idea!"

Taking from the pocket of his shabby waistcoat his real silver watch, he turned quickly into a side alley over which hung the sign of the three golden balls. A few minutes later he returned, pushing a little ticket into his now empty pocket and jingling some coins gayly.

"A loan," he muttered in happy, care free tones—"a loan in a great city!"—London Mail.

Encouragement.

Collector (warmly)—I've been here a dozen times, sir, and I positively won't call again.

Mr. Poorpay (cheerfully)—Oh, come now, my man. Don't be so superstitious about making the thirteenth call. Nothing will happen, I assure you.

Information.

Customer—Have you the papers for a week back? Newsboy—Fer a week back? Yer don't want papers; yer wants a porous plaster.—Exchange

During the Engagement.

Patience—So Peggy is putting off her marriage as long as possible? Patrice—Oh, yes; she loves attention, you know.

High Aspiration.

Peter—It's a fine castle in the air you've built. How do you propose to get into it—by airship? James—No; by heiress!

To effect a quick cure mix cheerfulness with your medicines

That you are young only once does not justify you in spoiling your prospects for an agreeable old age.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S SHIRT WAIST.

By Anabel Worthington.

Those who long for the latest will have reason to feel satisfied after looking at this waist. It bears testimony of having been turned out by a designer of "ideas," and ideas above the everyday level.

It will be simply irresistible in plain and striped silk, plain and striped voile, organdie and silk, pongee or other combination of soft fabrics. The shoulder fronts are gathered and at the waistline in the back the fulness is gathered to a stay belt.

A very beautiful collar, notched at each shoulder, is in one with the broad revers formed of the fronts; the frill or ruffle finishing the edge of the collar and revers continues down the edge of the right front; the closing is made with large crochet buttons.

The sleeves have quite a novelty in the cuffs, with a "roll back" half way and frill finished to harmonize with the collar.

The pattern of this waist, No. 7,832, is cut in sizes 36 to 44 inches bust measure. To make in size 36, like the illustration, will require 2 yards of striped material 36 inches wide and ⅝ yard of plain goods in the same width. Or, using all one material, if that be the choice, 2¾ yards will be plenty.

You may obtain the pattern by sending 10 cents to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

Address—The Examiner Pattern Service, The Examiner, Peterborough.

BIBLE LANGUAGE.

A Revelation of Perfection and Terseness in Speech.

A correspondent called attention the other day to the language of the Bible in describing a windstorm, as an example of concise speech, as follows: "And the winds came from the four corners of the earth and fell upon the house, and it was not." He mentioned it as an evidence of the simplicity and directness of Bible language. And it is well to call attenton to the words and sentences of this grand old book from time to time, for in all literature there is none other more beautiful of diction, more direct or even more poetical than these ancient writings found in the Bible.

Take the opening sentence of the Bible as an illustration, "In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth." That is the whole story told in ten words. You cannot go farther back in time—"in the beginning"—that is all there is to be said upon the subject. A modern writer would probably consume a dozen pages trying to tell when the creation took place and then fail. But in this wonderful old book we have it stated so any one can understand it, and in the only way it could be properly stated—"in the beginning."

But one need not pick out isolated sentences or chapters. The whole book is a revelation of perfection in speech. The writings of Paul, for instance, can be taken as examples of perfect diction. The description of the shipwreck when he was making his way to Rome will stand for all time as the most thrilling narrative of a storm at sea. His appeals to the members of the various congregations with whom he corresponded may be accepted as the best writings we have upon teachings of the Nazarene. The poems or psalms of David, written hundreds of years prior to the time the New Testament was written, are still the choicest bits of sentiment and imagination that can be found, inspiring in their faith and beauty and enchanting in their eloquence.

Sumptuary Laws.

Sumptuary laws are laws, now generally obsolete, enacted in the supposed interest of public morals to restrain extravagance in private expenditure, especially in matters of food, dress and amusements. They abounded in ancient Greece and Rome and found great favor in the legislation of England from the time of Edward II. (1307-27) to that of the reformation (1517). They existed in France as early as the time of Charlemagne (768-814) and continued to be enacted as late as the seventeenth century, but in neither country do they appear to have been enforced to any great extent. Sumptuary laws were repealed in England in 1856.

"The Bridge" Born of Sorrow.

"My poem entitled 'The Bridge,'" said Longfellow, "was written in sorrow, which made me feel for the loneliness of others. I was a widower at the time, and I used sometimes to go over the bridge to Boston evenings to meet friends and return near midnight by the same way. The way was silent, save here and there a belated footstep. The sea rose or fell among the wooden piers, and there was a great furnace on the Brighton hills whose red light was reflected by the waves. It was on such a lone, solitary walk that the spirit of the poem came upon me. The bridge has been greatly altered, but the place of it is the same."

Pugnacious Earwigs.

Observation has disclosed that earwigs are quarrelsome creatures and always ready to use their nippered tails against each other upon the slightest provocation. When any light suddenly falls upon them congregated at the sugar some are more scared than the others and scuttle past them, when each earwig which they nearly touch in fight will savagely swing back its tail and nip in the air with fury. Sometimes the blow falls upon a neighbor, who instantly retaliates, and half a dozen furious nips are rapidly interchanged. But fighting weight quickly settles the quarrel, the smaller earwig scuttling off and the larger pursuing him for half an inch, running blindly backward and reaching savagely to right and left with his nippers. Yet these same earwigs, so vindictive at meals, will be crammed, all sizes together, into any hole or crack by day, and they must be very gentle with each other then, for among them you may find some that have just cast their skins, snow white, soft and helpless.

The Fastest Swimmers.

Few people have any idea of the rapid pace attained by some fish. The dolphin and porpoise are perhaps the swiftest of all. The latter fish has been seen to dart round and round a steamer proceeding at between seventeen and eighteen miles an hour. Probably a bonito (a fish of the mackerel family) at its best could move for some distance at forty miles an hour. Salmon, too, and trout swim very fast, particularly when accomplishing their annual spawning migration upstream. Herrings in shoals move at a steady ten or twelve miles, but mackerel much faster. Whales, though not fish, can swim at a great speed. When excited they will dash along at as much as seventeen miles an hour, but ordinarily four or five miles an hour is their speed. Seals, again, are much more speedy, and certain eastern water snakes glide along at terrific velocities.

Fishless Sixty Miles Long.

The most of the halibut are caught with the hook and line. The fishing, however, has nothing gamy or sporting about it. The lines are dropped down into the sea in such a way that the baited hooks rest on the bed of the ocean. The lines are of great length. Some of them are sixty miles long. When loaded with fish it takes the steam engine on the vessel the better part of a day to wind them up. They are divided into sections, each section having a float or buoy that rests on the surface and is marked by a flag in the daytime and at night by a light. The line lies right on the bed of the sea. Attached to it are hundreds of hooks, and each hook is baited. The halibut swallows the bait and is caught on the hook and held there until the line is drawn up. These fish always feed on or close to the bed of the ocean.

Ignis Fatuus.

Scientists have never explained to their satisfaction the light known popularly as the "will-o'-the-wisp" and also known as ignis fatuus. The phenomenon has been attributed to the combustion of carbons and sulphurs ignited by sulphureted hydrogen. This theory has been shown to be a fallacy by persons who have passed their hands through the so called fire and felt no heat. The strange fire flies fastest over cemeteries and over lowlands and swamps when no wind is blowing. Superstitious persons attribute the flickering fires to the souls of the dead. The most plausible theory is that the phenomenon is due to radio-active emanations rising from beneath the ground.—Harper's.

Nipped.

"But," asked the defaulter, who was arranging for transportation to Mexico, "haven't you something special for tourists?"

"No," replied the ticket agent.

"Pardon me, but I have," chimed in the detective, appearing at that moment with a pair of steel bracelets. "Here's something special for two wrists. Suppose you try 'em."—Exchange.

A Pearl Superstition.

The ancient inhabitants of India had a very pretty superstition concerning the origin of pearls. They believed that at certain seasons Buddha showered dewdrops upon the world, which the oyster, floating on the waters to breathe, received and held until they hardened and became pearls.

Pleasure and Happiness.

There are many pleasures found in the search for happiness, but there is little happiness for him who seeks pleasure. Pleasure is what you feel when your neighbors come to spend the evening. Happiness is what you feel when they go.

Some Time Ago.

Studious Boy—Father, did you ever study arithmetic? Father (indignantly)—Of course I studied arithmetic. Studious Boy—Well, I can't find the cube root of— Father (hastily)—It's a long while since I studied it.—Exchange.

Why He Roasted Them.

Highspeed—Why are you always roasting the joy riders?

Dryscreed—Well, because they are always running down somebody or other.

Witty Retort.

Jerry—I have traced my ancestry back to an Irish king. Pat—Sure that's aisy. What chanst has a dead man to defend himself? — Liverpool Mercury.

No articles offensive in odour or appearance, or of a combustible or explosive character are accepted for exhibition at the Canadian National Exhibition.

Easily First.

Teacher was impressing upon the class the importance of accurate observation. To illustrate she said, "Now each of you look around this room and tell me what is the most interesting object to you and why."

Tommy Jones was the first to raise his hand.

"Yes, Thomas, what is the most interesting object you have observed?"

"Your desk, please, miss."

"Why?"

"Billy Baker put a snake in it."

Misfits.

You can say "The tongue is an unruly member," but what the Apostle James (iii, 8) wrote is, "But the tongue can no man tame; it is an unruly evil."

Peter (first iv, 8) said, "Charity shall cover the multitude of sins," not "Charity covereth a multitude of sins."

Butler said in "Hudibras" (part 3), "He that complies against his will is of his own opinion still." As generally misquoted, "A man convinced against his will will hold the same opinion still."

Best School of All.

It cannot be but the author of the Greatest Show on Earth was right. The world likes to be humbugged, else why all this elaboration of educational systems and theories, educational forms and creeds, this multiplication of modern methods and didactic material? These are, indeed, but things that change and fluctuate and already are on the way to being superseded. Meanwhile the older and larger schoolroom of life never closes its doors, makes no bid for patronage, retains its old teachers, changes its methods not at all and continues to turn out the best pupils.—Laura Spencer Portor in Atlantic.

Poisons in the Dark.

A writer in the Farm and Fireside gives some ingenious ways to identify poison bottles in the dark and to eliminate all chance of accident from mistaking drugs. "The safest method is to run a cord through the cork, leaving about eight inches of string on opposite sides of the cork. Then drive the cork in as tightly as possible and wrap the string around the neck of the bottle in opposite directions and tie securely. If that bottle is opened it will be opened intentionally. If there are no babies on the place an easier method is to run three or four pins crisscross through the cork. The pins sticking into the fingers will prevent accidental use of the contents."

LIQUID CATARRH REMEDIES USELESS, ONLY RELIEVE, NEVER CURE

They go direct to the stomach, have very little effect on the lining of the nose and throat, and entirely fail to cure. Only by cleansing the air passages, by relieving the inflammation and killing the germs is cure possible. No combination of antiseptics is so successful as Catarrhozone. In breathing it you send the richest pine balsams right to the seat of the disease. Irritating phlegm is cleared out, hoarseness, coughing and hacking are cured. For a permanent cure for Catarrh, nothing equals Catarrhozone, get it to-day, but beware of dangerous substitutes meant to deceive you for genuine Catarrhozone. All dealers sell Catarrhozone, large size containing two months treatment, costs $1.00; small size 50c; sample size 25c.

The Idea of the Balloon.

The first practical idea of the balloon originated in the latter half of the eighteenth century, when the Montgolfier brothers, noticing how smoke rose upward into the air, conceived the idea of filling a bag with smoke. The development of this idea resulted in the construction of the first hot air balloon in June, 1783. This consisted of a spherical cloth bag about thirty-five feet in diameter and inflated over a fire fed with bundles of chopped straw. The next step was the use of hydrogen gas, and the balloon was practically invented as used today. The use of this gas was the idea of M. Charles, a professor of natural philosophy at Paris.

A Nickname For Barrett.

Lawrence Barrett, the tragedian, was subject to dyspepsia, and when he was suffering from that disorder he was cold and distant toward his company. One irreverent fellow always refused, however, to be suppressed. He said one day: "Just look at Casslus. He looks as solemn and righteous as if he'd swallowed the sword of justice. Let's call him the Scabbard." And the Scabbard he was—out of his bearing—for the rest of that season.

Cutting.

A Scotch lawyer was well reproved when, seated by a lady fully aware of her own plain looks, having bowed to his hostess in giving the toast, "Honest Men and Bonnie Lasses," she rejoined, raising her own glass, "We may both drink that toast, since it refers to neither of us."

WHAT ABOUT THE UNSOLD OVERSTOCKS?

July and August are the best months to clear out overstocks.

Merchandise that is not likely to ever bring first prices, and which must be sold, sooner or later at Bargain Prices, can be made a magnet for bargain-loving customers.

A turn-over during July and August at a small profit is far better than a stagnant business.

Let stocks circulate and relieve the congestion.

TAKE EXTRA ADVERTISING SPACE

Keep up your turn-over, even at a smaller profit. Do extraordinary things. Every week's delay merely makes matters worse.

KEEP THE WHEELS OF BUSINESS SPINNING

But you say: "So many buyers have gone away, —are up the lakes, or away somewhere else on their vacations."

While it is true that many families go away for a portion or all of the summer, it is also true that visitors to the city usually keep up the local population to its ordinary level.

Eaton's or Simpson's in Toronto, keep up business all through the summer, by selling overstocks every single day. Toronto sends its train loads of families to Muskoka and elsewhere; yet these big stores keep the wheels of business spinning by planning ahead—and with the good help of plenty of advertising.

July and August need not be dull. Change the lean months for fat ones.

NO OBSTACLE CAN STOP THE ADVANCE OF THE RUSSIANS

German Positions Which Enemy Spent Months in Perfecting Are Failing to the Russians---Air Raid on England Caused Little Damage---German Counter-Attacks on the Somme Front Are Driven Back.

PETROGRAD, August 1.—Flooded fields, mushy swamps, and barbed wire entanglements partly submerged, have failed to stop the Russian advance across the Stokhod River north of Kovel. German positions which the Teuton commanders have spent months in perfecting are succumbing daily to the Russian assaults. The enveloping movement around Kovel is proceeding step by step. General Kaledines forces have negotiated the difficult marshes of the Stokhod, and General Sakharoff's division is forcing the Austrian troops under General Von Boehn Ermelli westward from Brody. Between Kovel and Brody is a "kink" in the line. Military authorities here estimate the Teutonic forces must retire from this angle if the Russian advance on both sides continues, or else run the risk of having its flanks turned. Judging from the battle front despatches to-day the floods on the Dneister River have subsided somewhat permitting General Letchitsky to press forward with greater rapidity. Austrian big guns are bombarding Brody in a counter-attack, but it is unofficially stated that the fire is waning.

German Counter Attacks All Beaten Off

Examiner Special:

PARIS, August 1.—The Germans reacting with more than usual vigor north of the Somme, have made counter-attack after counter-attack during the last twenty-four hours without in any way changing the positions of the French. All attempts of the Germans to regain the lost ground have been beaten off by the French rifle, machine gun, and artillery fire, while the work of strengthening and adapting the newly won trenches is being carried on speedily and methodically by the engineer corps. The French commanders regard the situation on the whole as excellent, and say that the arrangements in the rear of the attacking forces have reached a pitch of perfection never before seen. Material of all kinds is in abundance far exceeding the actual requirements, and everything is in readiness for an attempt to push the advance further when the time is ripe.

One of Air Raiders Thought To Be Hit

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, August 1.—Probably one of the Zeppelins engaged in the raid on the Eastern counties was bagged, the War Office announced to-day. The raider was engaged by British aircraft and bombarded by anti-aircraft guns. Later it was seen to drop to a low altitude and disappear in the mist off shore.

Seven Zeps In Raid On England

Examiner Special:

LONDON, August 1.—An air raid last night on the eastern and south-eastern counties of England was carried out by seven or more Zeppelins accompanied by aeroplanes. Independent accounts say that one Zeppelin caught by searchlights, was heavily fired upon by anti-aircraft guns and apparently hit as she appeared to stop, tremble, and then dive.

Withdrawing Supplies From Kovel Now

Examiner Special:

LONDON, August 1.—Wireless reports received at Rome to-day asserted that Germany is withdrawing her heavy artillery and her food and munitions depots from Kovel, in the the face of the Russian enveloping movement. The same reported stated that Vladimir-Volhynskey in the same sector on the eastern front have already been completely evacuated.

Austrian Army Said To Be Surrounded

Examiner Special:

LONDON, August 1.—General Count Von Bothmer's army is reported almost enveloped by the Russians in Galicia, says a despatch from Rome to Wireless Press. Cossack divisions after the occupation of Brody are said to have destroyed the railways behind the Austrian army.

Surprise Attacks Were a Failure

Special to The Examiner:

PARIS (French Official), August 1.—Two German surprise attacks directed at the French lines about Lihons were repulsed, the official communique declared to-day.

No Change Reported By General Haig

Examiner Special:

LONDON, August 1.—No change in the situation was reported to-day by General Sir Douglas Haig. Haig related that north of Bazentin Le Petit, a hostile attack against the British trenches was successfully repulsed, and said there had been heavy artillery firing during the night.

Russians Continue To Pursue Turks

Special to The Examiner:

PETROGRAD, August 1.—The continued pursuit of Turkish forces toward Mossul was announced in the War Office statement to-day.

HOT SPELL IS OVER FOR A TIME SAYS WEATHERMAN

To-day the Maximum Temperature Was 82 Degrees as Compared With 96 Degrees Which Was the High Water Mark Reached on Sunday

53 LAST NIGHT

According to the weather man the hot spell is over for a time. The area of high pressure is moving eastward from the prairie provinces and will pass northward of the Great Lakes region bringing with it cooler weather. Last night the temperature dropped to fifty-three degrees. This represents a drop of forty-three degrees from the maxium temperature of Sunday when the high water mark of ninety-six degrees was reached. At noon to-day the thermometer stood at eighty-two degrees.

A good rain would mean thousands of dollars to this country alone. The late crops are beginning to suffer from the drought. Pastures are burning up and the country is taking on a parched looking appearance.

No Word From Peterboro' People

Concern is Felt For the Safety of Local People Who Were in the Fire Zone

No definite word has been received respecting the whereabouts of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Layfield, also Miss Latimer, who went to visit them at their home in Iroquois Falls. Word was received from Mr. Robert Hall, traveller for the Matthews-Blackwell Co. Ltd., that Miss Latimer had reached Englehart. The parents are anxiously awaiting more definite information. The ever-growing death list only serves to intensify the concern which relatives and friends have for those who were in the danger zone during the big conflagration in Northern Ontario.

The first of the British bands was brought to the Canadian National Exhibition in 1904. They will resume their visits when the war ends.

SIGNALLER HAMILTON OF 33rd BATTERY ON WOUNDED LIST

Word Received This Morning That He Was Injured on July 22---Assistant Recruiting Officer For Military District No. 3 Here To-day---Recruits For Queen's Field Ambulance Leave To-morrow---To-day's Military News

Miss Annie Hamilton, 215 Rubidge street received official word from Ottawa this morning that her brother Signaller B. Hamilton who left Peterboro with the 33rd Battery last Autumn has been wounded. The message states that Signaller Hamilton was admitted to No. 13 General Hospital Bolougne on July 22, wounded in the right thigh. The wire also states that his condition is good. Signaller Hamilton enlisted with the 33rd Battery and went overseas with that unit being afterwards transferred to another battery at the front. Before enlisting he was employed at Barrie's Limited. His many friends will wish him a speedy recovery.

Lieut. Stewart, the assistant recruiting officer for No. 3 military district, is in Peterborough for a few days going into the local recruiting situation with a view to placing it upon a systematic basis. As a result of Lieut. Stewart's visit it is likely that a recruiting staff of about ten men will be stationed in Peterborough county. At Lakefield, Warsaw, Apsley, Norwood, Havelock and Keene, a representative of the staff will be located, while at least four will be left in Peterborough. A systematic registration will be inaugurated so that it will be possible to get a line on every elegible man in the county.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Poast, Omemee, received word on Saturday last that their son, Roy Poast, a member of the Princess Pats, had been missing since the 19th of July and has been probably killed.

Roy Poast, was a bright and brilliant young man. He secured his two parts faculty and honour matriculation at the Lindsay Collegiate Institute, afterwards attending McMaster University, Toronto, from which institution he graduated a year or so ago. Young Poast enlisted with the Princess Pats at Montreal, and since that time he went through several engagements.

He was popular with his fellow students and a favourite. His relatives have the sincerest sympathy of the entire community in their bereavement.

Capt. Deyell of Millbrook, who has recently returned from France, is a guest for a few days of his nephew, Dr. Bennett of Sherbrooke street. Capt. Deyell's brother-in-law, Sergeant Selby of Toronto, was killed in action recently.

Capt. Kennedy, who has been here for some time recruiting for the Queen's Field Ambulance, leaves tomorrow morning for Barriefield with seven local recruits for that unit. Among the latest to join the Field Ambulance is Harold Paquette, who became a member of the Queen's unit to-day. About twenty-five Peterborough men have enlisted with the Q. F. A.

Lieut. J. A. New of Peterborough, who is with the 126th Battalion, is home on leave from Valcartier camp for a few days.

Sergt. Stanley of the 238th Forestry Battalion, left last night for the headquarters of the Battalion at Ottawa where he will have charge of the battalion canteen.

The following recruits for Queen's Field Ambulance will leave for Barriefield Camp with Capt. Kennedy on the 8.10 (G.T.R.) train, to-morrow:

Harold W. Paquette, 217 Prince street.
E. M. Robertson 265 Bethune street.
A. Dunslow, 498 Boliver street.
J. B. Young, R. R. No. 3
C. F. Hayes, 219 Park street.
J. Jubbell, 287 Louis street.
C. G. Richardson, 580 Aylmer street.

Peterborough Staff Well Represented

Annual Convention of Field Representatives of Metropolitan Life Insurance Company

The annual Dominion Convention of field representatives of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company from Eastern Ontario was held at the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, on Saturday. The Peterborough staff, as follows, was well represented:

Wm. A. Haslam, superintendent; Deputy Superintendents, Neil Tobin and Frederick Whatley; Field Clerk, Wm. E. Austin; Agents—Thos. McIntosh, R. M. Kinsman, J. A. McLaren, R. N. Morrison, S. B. Lamb, Ward Patterson, W. E. O'Brien, Chas. Lowery, J. G. Elliott, W. F. Dixon, J. J. Butler, John Malane, C. H. Carleton, J. A. Faulkner, W. J. Pope, and Jos. Murphy.

Addresses of importance were made by some of the home office representatives, including Haley Fiske, vice-president, and Frank O. Ayres, fourth vice-president. The meeting was a most successful one, and very beneficial to the staff of the company.

CIVIC HOLIDAY ON AUGUST 14th

Peterborough will celebrate its Civic Holiday on Monday, Aug. 14th, according to this city's time-honoured custom of always settling upon the second Monday of August as the date of the holiday. If your friends out of town ask you the date of Civic Holiday next year or the year after, you will never be stuck or forced to confess your ignorance if you remember the fact that Peterborough's Civic Holiday always falls on the second Monday of August.

Lord Kitchener never chafed or fretted after the fashion of smaller men. The hour came to him, as it comes to all who have discernment, faculty and will.—Mr. Asquith.

Death Loss In Bush Fires May Reach 400

Hundreds of People Homeless and Hundreds of Families Broken Up, While Property Loss is Estimated at From Two to Three Millions of Dollars.

KNOWN DEAD 262

COCHRANE, Ont., July 31. —An estimated death loss of between 250 and 300 and property loss estimated at between two and three million dollars is the toll of what is considered the most devastating forest fire in Canada's history, which swept over a large section of Northern Ontario on Saturday Hundreds of people are homeless and dozens of families are broken up. The first through train to Cochrane arrived here this afternoon with doctors, nurses, attendants, food and clothing for the suffering and homeless. The town has been cut off from communication by wire since Saturday, and the first assistance was brought with the relief train which left North Bay on Sunday morning and got through as far as Matheson last night.

In Munroe and Beattie Townships there are many prospectors unaccounted for.

At Nushka only three survived.

Fifty-seven bodies were found in a railway cut, where the victims fled in hopes of saving their lives. The bodies were taken to Monteith and buried temporarily.

Known Dead 262.

Haileybury, Ont., July 31. — The heavy downpour of rain throughout the district over which the flames had spread have put out the forest fire which in such a short time wiped out a number of towns and villages in Northern Ontario and collected a large toll of life from the settlers of a wide extent of territory. Nothing else, it is believed, could have averted a disaster of still great dimensions,, and the rain came in the guise of a saviour to the whole region.

With the quenching of the confiagration, communication between the points which suffered is being restored, and the loss in life and property is being reckoned up as rapidly as possible.

It is known that Cochrane, Matheson, Porquis Junction, Nushka and Iroquois Falls (with the exception of the Abitibi) are practically wiped out In all these places there has been loss of life; in some of them very heavy loss. Details are being prepared of th losses as far as known, but these lists will, of course, cover all.

Over 250 Dead.

Figures received to-night by Mayor J. E. McCuaig, of Haileybury, from agents along the Timiskaming Railway, places the total dead at 242. and his Worship vouches for the fact that they did not over-estimate the toll of the holocaust. The sum total is made up as follows:

NUSHKA	67
MONTEITH	63
RAMORE	15
KELSO	2
IROQUOIS FALLS	15
MATHESON	60
COCHRANE	20

Latest advices received here state that a large number of the bodies have been temporarily buried. Refugees from the stricken district aver that in a number of cases bodies are so badly disfigured that they will never be identified.

Identified By Crucifix.

Englehart, July 31.—The death roll in Matheson district reaches one hundred to-night. A team drove in from the Croesus mine with nine bodies and 23 remains to be brought in. Sixteen bodies are those of men, women and children, none of whom can be identified, found near a small creek near the mine. Dr. Reid, of Kelso, was burned to death. His thirteen-year-old daughter Iris brought her five little brothers and sisters away on a freight train on her own initiative and this saved their lives. A brother of Dr. Read, Mr. B. Read, lives at 70 Beatty Avenue, Toronto.

Among the dead at Monteith are Mrs. J. Green and four children, found suffocated in a well. The husband was rescued in a wheat field unconscious and taken to Monteith;

LATEST TOTAL IS NOW 365

Special to The Examinert.

MATHESON, Aug. 1. — Three hundred and sixty-five bodies had been recovered up till midnight last night in the fire-stricken district. Search parties resumed their work at daybreak to-day and it is expected that the death total will be increased considerably during the next few days. This is particularly true of the district between Nushka and the Black River, a distance of about seven miles, and in Munroe township. Dr. D. S. McClaren of Cobalt, estimated the deaths at from 500 to 600 last night.

LAST DAY FOR TAX COLLECTION DREW A CROWD

Tax Collector Green Said the Payment Had Been Heavy—Ratepayers Mention a Few Grievances

DISCOUNT OFFERED

An unbroken, bifurcated stream of money has flowed through the two wickets at the tax collector's office during the past two days.

"My they do get a lot of it," said one man, "I often wonder how they can spend it all. But there's the roads to pave, the sewers to lay; all that sort of thing soon runs into quite a sum."

A woman paying nearly $800 taxes took the opportunity of telling Tax Collector Green a few of the omissions in the city's administration, and in the execution of civic work. Since the tax collector was receiving the public money he seemed to this woman and to other ratpayers the only personal representative of the vague and misty body known as the municipality.

One man paid the taxes of a friend who was out of the city and who had clearly forgotten them. He usually took advantage of the discount. There was no question of receiving the money from the friend. That was assured.

"A few years ago," said another citizen, my taxes were thirty odd dollars, now they are almost one hundred. But the rent I get has not increased. In fact I reduced it one dollar, and for four months last winter I didn't get a cent. This spring I gave a receipt for them just as if I was paid. So you see what my property gets me. But I couldn't turn the people out. They had a son at the front."

Another citizen told of paying $650 taxes on a property from which he obtained only $700 in rent.

You hear all kinds of things when the ratepayers get together and part

ENOUGH TO KNOW.

There is a good deal of frivolous and futile discussion of the proper way to pronounce the name of the colour or material of the British and Canadian soldiers' uniform; as to whether it should be called "khaki" or "karkee." The proper pronunciation is still a disputed question, but there is no difference of opinion that the uniform is worthily filled and worn, and worn out, by the bravest and best soldiers in the world. As long as the victory the uniform will win is pronounced any other pronunciation is a matter of no moment. No fit man need trouble his head over how khaki sounds. It is enouh for him to know how it feels to be inside it.

HONOURS EARNED.

It is admitted to be a fact that the royal honours that come to Canadians, such as knighthoods, etc., are generally suggested by political considerations. Partizan nobodies, judged by the larger standards, are recommended for knighthood, though they have done nothing to give them real grounds for consideration. But if any Canadian deserves such an honor, though it would be more of a recognition than a reward, it is Mr. F. W. Baillie of Hamilton, president of the Canadian Cartridge Company, who has returned to the British Treasury, to be devoted to patriotic purposes, three quarters of a million dollars profits on war contracts. There is something magnificently patriotic about such an action, and if patriotic deeds deserve the recognition of knighthood Mr. Baillie's is deserving of it, and not the partisan politician who has perhaps used his position to secure unrighteous war profits for himself or his political proteges — bleeding instead of benefitting, their country. Mr. Baille has, if there is any such thing, earned a title to a title in a splendidly patriotic way, and whether he gets the "honours" or not, his name will be honoured at home and abroad.

HAPPINESS.

A contemporary newspaper, in answer to the query of a correspondent says that the best way to gain happines is to keep busy. That may be true so far as it goes, but after all it is only a negative remedy. Keeping busy may subordinate thoughts and reflections that interfere with happiness. It is well said that true happiness comes from within and is superior to external influences. Happiness, however, cannot come from conditions that have self as the foundation principle. Lord Byron said truly—

> They who joy would win,
> Must share it; happiness was born a twin.

Herein lies the true secret of happiness—having thought for and doing good to others. To the properly constituted mind the doing of a kindness is the keenest pleasure. Little acts of kindness, little courtesies of consideration do more to shed a radiance of happiness than those who have not tried them can imagine. The boy scout idea is the right one—every day do some kind and helpful act. If we multiply this idea—do not one but many kind acts a day, we shall make others happy. Happiness consists in a multitude of little things, and not in an isolated great stroke of fortune—like inheriting a rich aunt's money, unless one shares it in some expenditure of kindness and consideration upon others. Man is a social being, and loneliness and isolation are a bar to happiness. We shall not be lonely and unhappy if we think of and do something for the good of others, even little acts that cost little effort. Even in the hot weather, if we confine our exertions to making ourselves comfortable, we shall lose the happiness that would come from kindly thought and action for others. If we make ourselves alone the centre of our interest we shall miss the mark; the selfish man is the most unhappy of mortals.

OUR NICKEL RIGHTS.

Even the Toronto News is indirectly and mildly, of course, berating the Ontario Government over the nickel situation. There is reproof even in its apologies for government inaction. The old wives' fable that an agreement exists by which the International Nickel Company proves against its reaching Germany, provide is discredited. There is no assurance that Germany has not been getting Canadian nickel from the United States refineries. It is easy to evade the alleged agreement. The Company may not sell to German agents, but it can sell to the Jones Company, and there is nothing in the agreement to prevent the Jones Company selling to Germany or German agents. The News points out that it would not do, or have done, to prohibit the export of nickel; the supply for making munitions would have been cut off. There are nickel refineries in Great Britain that could have been used to supply all necessary requirements for munition purposes. In the event of Canadian nickel being refined in Wales, we should be absolutely sure that the Germans would get none of it. The war has been on for two years, and there has been ample time to have taken government steps to do the proper thing—procure the refinement of nickel in Canada. But the weak way of makig a bargain with a foreign company was taken. Even if no nickel reached Germany through the International Nickel Company, the unpatriotic plan was taken of developing Canadian resources outside of Canada. The governments of the Dominion and the Province are missing a splendid opportunity of giving Canada the full benefit of the development of her nickel resources. Immediate steps which could have been adopted any time the past two years, can, and should, be taken by providing Canadian refinement facilities and paving the way for the prohibition of export of Canadian nickel. The war furnishes a splendid excuse for taking the latter action without provoking the antagonism that a similar action would have produced at other times. Then, when the war is over, we should have the benefit of the application of the patriotic policy of "Canada for the Canadians." If the governments do not take prompt steps to procure the refinement of Canadian nickel in Canada, they are lacking in enterprise and initiative to a degree to forfeit public confidence. If they are in the hands of a nickel trust or its equivalent, the people will find it out and demand a reckoning.

WASTED EFFORT.

The Pioneer, a temperance organ, wastes a good deal of its space in printing opinions as to the success of prohibition of the liquor traffic. It is not so much a question of prohibition being a success or a failure, as of doing the right thing, and doing a good deal of good. We all know, even the agents and beneficaries of the traffic, that the traffic in strong drink is an evil, without one redeeming feature unless we regard the cent per cent. profit, the price of human misery, as a redeeming feautre, which it is not. The liquor traffic is not a productive industry; the money made by it is simply the money of many centred in the pockets of a few, with no value returned. It is money which, spent unprofitably, is withdrawn from useful employment, and, in sum, impairs the national efficiency, withdrawing capital that should be spent in nourishing and rearing strong, well-fed, well-clad and physically fit children. Prohibition may not prohibit. Nothing we human beings do is perfect. We legislate against crime, murder, robbery, etc. Yet we do not refuse to so legislate because crime persists, as it will do, in spite of laws, till human nature is changed. We do not cease weeding our gardens because a few weeds escape. That the use of alcohol impairs individual and national efficiency is proved in this great war. Russia has found that the efficiency of her armies is vastly increased by the prohibition of vodka—whilsky; and the London Observer declares that national efficiency has been increased by the restraints on unlimited drinking. It says:

> The admiralty, the war office, boards of trade, municipal officers, hospital authorities, all sorts and conditions of witnesses testify to the big improvement in national health, vigor and output. Trade unions and employers agree that there has been better timekeeping and better work, clearer heads, healthier muscles in the morning, and industrial energy, better sustained throughout the day.

There is proof which the thinking, however, do not need to be convinced, that the country is the better without strong drink. We are committed to prohibition in Ontario. It is the law of the land, and whether it prohibits entirely there is no doubt that the millions saved from strong drink and converted to useful purposes will be for the greatly increased good of the country. Of course, as claimed, the question of hotel accommodation is a serious one. It is claimed that a hotel cannot be made to pay without the bar. Then it can be made to pay by increasing prices. Guests and patrons would pay more, but they would get better value for their money. Apart altogether from the moral consideration prohibition is worthy of retention for the material strength it adds to the country that adopts it, as has been shown in England and France and Russia, and as every thinking person can reason out for himself.

MIXED BATHING.

The mixed bathing problem is really a very simple one. People who regard it as improper are automatically disqualified from indulging in it; while those who do indulge in it, know that it is entirely proper. The only improper bathers are bath-less bathers; and even they would be hard put to it to be more proper than a St. Catharine street promenade. Impropriety, however, is commonly in the mind of the shocked observer. —Montreal Star.

NICKEL POSSIBILITIES.

It is somewhere about thirty years ago since Peter Imrie, a Scottish Free Trader, visited Canada to spy out the land. As an outsider sees most of the game, he observed things which Canada was not paying very much attention to just then. He frankly avowed himself a Free Trader, but said that there might arise conditions in any country which were exceptional. He pointed out that Canada had the greatest visible deposits of nickel ore in the world. It was not necessary for us to ask people kindly to take this and pay us hundreds while they took our raw material abroad and converted it into millions. The methods of making nickel steel and the value of the same were pointed out. He urged then that Canada should place a prohibition on the export of nickel ore, or a high export duty. Then we should have nickel plants started in this country, and, with our almost untold iron deposits, this would become the great nickel and nickel steel centre of the world. Nobody paid much attention to him. The Germans are adepts in using nickel, but to this day the Canadian people do not know what immense possibilities the intelligent use of their resources can bring to them. The present war should open the eyes of the responsible ministers.—Montreal Herald.

GERMANY, HOLLAND AND SWITZERLAND.

One of the notable signs of the times in the military situation is the demand made by Germany upon Holland for permission for canal boats to pass from German to Belgian territory through Dutch canals, irrespective of the cargo they carried. The demand is almost in act as it is in principle the same as the demand made at the beginning of the war upon Belgium for free passage for troops. Holland refuses as Belgium refused, but it is safe to say that German will not resort to violence or stir up another enemy on her flank in her present necessity. The Dutch army is considerably over a million strong, is perfectly equipped and drilled, and an invasion of Germany from the Dutch frontier would materially shorten the war. Unless the Germans are quite mad they will not attempt to force the Dutch canals.

Similar demands have been made on Switzerland. The Swiss have closed their frontiers since early in the war to the export of food, and Germany wants the embarog taken off. The Swiss have acted in self-defence, because she depends entirely upon the entente allies for food, and if she exported food to Germany she would soon be starved by the blockade which would be imposed upon her. Germany is practically helpless before these two little powers and we may be sure that both of them have a clear understanding with the entente allies about the whole situation.— Toronto World.

SURPRISED BY AMATEUR EFFICIENCY.

A German officer captured in Picardie is quoted, more than plausibly, as having expressed, in commenting on the British advance, profound astonishment that so much could have been done by "an army of amateurs." There spoke the "professional" after his kind and all his kinds!

The man who has devoted a large part of his life, exclusively, to the learning and practicing of any art—or of any idustry, for that matter—is almost invariably under the delusion that through all that time he has been advancing in proficiency, and that he has arrived at a degree of mastery not to be attained in any other or shorter way. The truth may be, and often is, that the professional ceased to progress not long after his period of instruction turned into a period of practical application, and that ever since he either has been standing still or has been retrograding.

Men who can go on learning and improving indefinitely, or even well into old age, are highly exceptional; most of them reach the limit of acquisition, and do as well as they ever will whatever it is their vocation to do, soon after what passes for the stage apprenticeship. It is said that no scientist who was over 45 when the "Origin of Species" appeared accepted Darwin's theories as sound, and chess players know that it's not interminable practice or study of the books, but natural aptitude for the game, that makes the Morphy or even the Staunton.

Of course some training is essential to efficiency of every kind, in war as in peace, but it wasn't Napoleon's few years at an excellent military school that enabled him to beat so many Generals as well taught as himself, and much more experienced. Doubtless the British Army can fight as well now as it would after ten or twenty years more of drill, and current happenings idicate that its "amateurs" need ask no odds of the German "professionals." The "professional" does know his business vastly better than the "amateur" properly so called, but he doesn't know it better than the man who is an amateur only in the professional's estimation. —New York Times.

Murder And Terrorism The German Ideal of Making War

The execution of Captain Fryatt, of the British merchant ship Brussels, for his attempt to ram a German submarine adds another to the long tale of violations of international law of which Germany has been guilty in this war. The murderers of Miss Cavell have committed another murder differing, indeed, in kind, but not less foul in degree. It is said that in Captain Fryatt's case the Kaiser himself confirmed the death sentence. One can well believe it. The confirmation would be characteristic of the crowned fiend whose "lightest touch means human blood."

According to the law of nations there appears no doubt that the officers and crew of a merchant ship who resist an attack in self-defence, and who are so unfortunate as to be captured, are entitled to be treated as prisoners of war. At the present moment the British have in their hands officers of German submarines who have rammed and fired on merchant ships without warning, and German naval officers who have dropped bombs on defenceless towns and killed civilian inhabitants. Yet they are treated honorably as prisoners of war.

Nor would we wish that they should be treated otherwise, though some of them certainly acted in flagrant despite of the law of civilized nations, which Captain Fryatt did not. On he contrary, he acted within his rights in self-defence, for the purpose of evading capture or destruction. For at the time when he is alleged to have attempted to ram a German submarine, German submarines were notoriously attacking merchant ships without warning.

Even the Germans, however, apparently seek to clothe their dastardly outrage with some species of legality. For they announce that their victim was executed "for a franc-tireur crime against armed German forces." The amazing effrontery of Germany in inventing a crime hitherto unknown to international law adds the culminating touch of insult to the foul wrong committed. For a franc-tireur at sea is unknown to international law.

An English newspaper, apparently endeavoring to elucidate the German viewpoint in the commission of this hideous crime, says that the Germans have always sought to draw a most implacable line between combatants and non-combatants. That may be so when any question has arisen of seizing any loop-hole for the murder of a non-combatant. But when any question of any rights of defenceless and inoffensive noncombatants, whether men, women, or children, has been involved, they have never drawn any "implacable line," but have dealt out death with equal hands.

So that it comes to this, Germany disregards as she pleases, every canon written or unwritten, of international law in her dealings with non-combatant and their rights. And not only this but she has a special code of her own, designed to treat as crimes actions which the common law of the other nations of the world recognize as legisimate on the part of non-combatants. In short, after her fashion, she is hypocritical in her appalling brutality.

The cold-blooded murder of Captain Fryatt resembles the doing to death of Edith Cavell, not merely in its ferocity, but also in the rapidity with which the so-called trial was hurried on. Can there be no self-respecting Germans left to protect against these loathsome crimes committed in their country's name? Such crimes are, too, as senseless as they are loathsome. The latest outrage will no more terrorize British merchant seamen than the Zeppelin butchery of so many little children in the Eastern counties of England has been able to terrorize the British people. But surely, even in Germany, there must have been people who, when the war first started, little suspected through what mire of infamy their country's name was to be dragged. If there were, what, we wonder, are they thinking now?—Toronto Star.

PUT AWAY DURING WAR.

"Troublesome" Germans Are Locked Up in Punitive Camp.

London, July 31.—A message received here to-day by the wireless press from Berne, Switzerland, says:

"The German military authorities have established a punitive camp for troublesome Germans. A decree promulgated on Monday consigned to this camp the entire editorial staff of the Leipsic Volks Zeitung, a daily newspaper. These journalists are to be interned until the end of the war.

"Another decree interns in the same camp four prominent Socialists, who were arrested at Eberfeld, Rhenish Prussia."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Mr. Bowser's Bombs

He Decides Not to Avoid Them

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1916, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Mr. Bowser had to go over to the family drug store after dinner, and when he came back half an hour later he was laboring under great excitement.

"Has any one tried to hold you up?" asked Mrs. Bowser.

"Worse than that," he replied. "Mrs. Bowser, have we got a couple of cots in the house?"

"Cots, cots?" she repeated. "What on earth do you want with a couple of cots? I think there may be a couple in the storeroom."

"Mrs. Bowser," answered Mr. Bowser in impressive tones as he held up a warning finger, "we are in direct peril, and we must dodge it if we can. I want those cots to put down cellar. We shall sleep down there tonight and probably for many nights to come!"

"What is this?" she demanded, as she turned on him. "Did the druggist spin you a yarn that has got you half scared to death?"

"Mrs. Bowser, it is not the time for such talk. The druggist has spun me no yarn. He is not the man to spin yarns in the face of peril. There were eight men in the store, and they were agreed with me that it was a situation full of the direst menace. I want those cots at once!"

As he started to go upstairs Mrs. Bowser caught him and pushed him into a chair, and, holding him there, she said:

"You have evidently heard something that threatens me as well as you. I want to know what it is before you go any further. You talk about cots and sleeping down cellar, and I want to know what such bosh means."

Mr. Bowser gulped three or four times and then explained:

"Mrs. Bowser, you know what a Zeppelin is, don't you?"

"Certainly."

"And you know what a bomb is?"

"I do, and what of it?"

"This of it!" he exclaimed in irritation. "A Zeppelin has been seen hovering over the city within the last hour. Thousands of people have been alarmed, and there are great crowds in the streets."

"I don't see what there is to be scared about," said Mrs. Bowser. "If a Zeppelin is hovering over the city let her hover the same as we would let a crow hover."

"Zounds, woman! Can't you understand that a Zeppelin is probably here to drop bombs down on us? And that is the peril I referred to!"

"Nobody knows that that is her object. And suppose it was. Suppose she dropped a hundred bombs as she flew over the city. At least ninety of those bombs would fall into the streets and do no damage. Nine more would fall into the back yards and, like enough, destroy the clotheslines, and the other one might fall on a barn and demolish a horse. I don't see why you should get excited about that. I'm sure I shan't."

Mr. Bowser said no more. He was so mad he couldn't talk. He rushed up to the storeroom and there found an old cot with a broken leg. He came downstairs with it on his head and disappeared down cellar. When he came up again, puffing and blowing, he found Mrs. Bowser calmly reading the evening papers, and she looked up to ask:

"If you fear the house will be struck with a bomb during the night why don't you go to a brewery vault somewhere? They are so deep under ground that no missile can reach you."

It was amazing that Mr. Bowser did not jump up and down and wave his arms about, but he didn't. He brushed a cobweb out of his hair and sat down and quietly said:

"Mrs. Bowser, let me explain the situation, for I see that you don't understand it. A bomb from a Zeppelin will penetrate the roof of a house and go through to the first floor. There it stops to explode and to make the awfullest racket you ever heard. One in the cellar is safe, but nowhere else in the house. Therefore I propose to sleep down cellar."

"And I don't," she replied.

"Then you can get busted into so many fragments that it would take a police force a week to pick them all up up! Woman, I can't understand you, and I won't try to understand you. From this time on I sleep down cellar. You can sleep up here or sit on the front steps all night long."

"It is because I have a better plan than you have, Mr. Bowser," she explained after a minute's silence. "I have thought of this Zeppelin matter for the last fortnight and planned out what to do or what to have you do in case things come to a climax. Your coming home from the store the way you did, with your hair standing up and your eyes bulging out, was no surprise to me."

"Mrs. Bowser, this is no time for in suits!" he warned her.

"And no one is using them," she answered. "A Zeppelin has been seen hovering over the city. No one knows what she wants, but all suspect that she is going to drop bombs. She may drop one on this house, but if she does it will be by mistake. Mr. Bowser, you are a well known character. You have won your way up the ladder of fame. You have never said or done anything that Mrs. Zeppelin could take umbrage at. I don't think she would willingly harm a hair of your head."

"Woman, what does this talk mean?" was demanded.

"Don't be impatient, Mr. Bowser. You are to go out on the streets and watch with the rest of the crowds. If that Zeppelin every one is talking of has got tired of hovering she will fly around for a change. You will see her flying this way and that and dropping those terrible bombs as she does so. By and by, as you watch with mouth agape, you will see her head in the direction of our house. She has one bomb left, and that may be for us. When she comes near enough you will hold up your hand and shout:

"Ho, there, Mrs. Zeppelin, starboard your helm! You're headed for Bowser's house. Sheer off to the left a rod or two more and drop your old bombs on the butcher shop."

"They will hear you aboard that craft," continued Mrs. Bowser," and it will swerve from its course, and when the bomb drops it will strike plumb on the butcher shop, and the butcher will never send us any more bones. I will help you on with your overcoat and muffle you up, and you go right out and be ready for the crisis."

"Woman, I am tempted to say that you ought to be blown up," said Mr. Bowser as he walked to and fro. "You would be sarcastic with your foot on the edge of your grave. As I cannot convince you of this great peril, I shall leave you to suffer for your obstinacy. I did intend to pass the night in the cellar, but I have changed my mind. I do not want to be awakened by your screams and shrieks as a bomb strikes the roof. I shall therefore pass the night in some other place and come around early in the morning to view the awful wreck."

"If I am alive your breakfast will be ready at the usual hour," remarked Mrs. Bowser as he rose up. "If I have been blown into a thousand fragments you will have to get your breakfast somewhere else. They say that new place two blocks down is going to be a success. Its specialty is fried pork sausages, and you know how dearly you love them."

Mr. Bowser glared at her—just glared.

"I wish you would take the cat with you," Mrs. Bowser pleaded. "You know he has been one of the family for eight long years, and he does not want to be blown to atoms any more than you do. He loves you dearly, and he looks to you for protection in this emergency."

Mr. Bowser walked three steps toward the hall tree, and then over his shoulder gave her another glare.

"And you have some of your speeches in manuscript. They should not be lost to future generations. Hold on a minute, and I will get them for you."

But Mr. Bowser did not hold on. He put on his hat and overcoat and muffler and passed out, and if he uttered any swear words as he did so Mrs. Bowser did not hear them.

It was a cold evening, and the streets were deserted. Mr. Bowser walked about until his ears were red as paint and his nose was as cold as a chunk of ice and then returned to the house.

"You will need two quilts and a pillow down there," quietly observed Mrs. Bowser, "and you had better provide yourself with a rope to tie on something in place of that missing leg. You will sleep in peace in spite of the rats and spiders and cockroaches. Good night, Mr. Bowser!"

But Mr. Bowser warmed himself, read his evening paper and smoked his usual cigar, and when the time came he headed for his usual bed, and though the Zeppelin continued to hover and hover, he was soon snoring as though one did not exist.

Real Strategy.

"Mother, if a poor, hungry little boy was to come to the back door and ask for something to eat would you give him that piece of pie that was left over from dinner?"

"Yes, Willie, I think I would."

"Well, just wait a minute till I run around to the back door."

A Vexed Question.

There was a wise old botanist, and he was known to fame.
Linnaeus Cincinnatus Hocus Pocus was name.
His knowledge was stupendous; his wisdom was profound;
His learning in botanic fields was something to astound.
But there was one deep question this wiseacre could not solve,
And round its puzzling mysteries his mind would o'er revolve.
He'd sit within his study, and he'd ponder by the hour
Muttering, "Is a cabbage rose what we may cauliflower?"

Ques.: "What does your pay-roll amount to?"

Ans.: "Oh, say $10,000 a month."

Ques.: "Quite a wad. Of course you insure it?"

Ans.: "Insure it? What's the idea Frank?"

Ques.: "Well—you see, you're paying out $120,000 a year. Now you insure your building, equipment, stock, etc., why not insure your pay-roll, against loss—so you."

Ans.: "Ask me something easy. What's the point and what's the cost?"

Ques.: "The point is that your pay-roll represents your purchase of the greatest of all raw materials—WORKING TIME. Its subject to loss every day—four times a day—or every time your employees come in and go out of your plant."

Ans.: "Yes, but I employ a time-keeper."

Ques.: "Of course you do. But he's human. Who checks your time-keeper? And who checks the man who checks him? You need a cold-blooded machine for that job—so there will be no favorites or no mistakes."

Ans.: "There isn't any such machine."

Ques.: "Isn't there? Probably your keenest competitor to-day is using it and is just that much ahead of you. And it will cost you perhaps $3 a month to use it. I mean the International Time Recorder. It's the cheapest and best pay-roll insurance you can buy. Gives you printed, unchangeable, records, made under lock and key, that become your weekly pay-sheets. If you want real, inside facts and figures on the system exactly suited to your business write International Time Recording Co., corner McGill and Notre Dame streets, Montreal, or to their Head Office, Anderson Street, Toronto, for latest folders and prices."

Turn over a new leaf

Now that the warm days are here leave the heavy, overheating foods for something lighter and easily digested. Kellogg's Toasted Corn Flakes supply plenty of nourishment to the body to enable it to do its morning's work in comfort. The thin, brown flakes are palatable as well as being quite digestible.

WANT TO "CARRY ON" THOUGH WOUNDED

Tommies of Kitchener's Army Are Hopeful and Cheerful Grumblers

NEW YORK, July 29.—The cheerfulness of the British soldiers as they go forward in the great allied offensive, and how even the desperately wounded crave a chance to rejoin their commands and "carry on," with the rest, is told in a letter received in New York from an official of the British Government yesterday. The writer also pays high tribute to the bravery of the Germans, particularly the men of the German machine-gun organizations. He says:

"In curt phrases broken by exclamation at some vivid memory and sometimes interrupted by a wry smile provoked by swift pain, our wounded officers and men tell the story of the great advance.

"They take up the thrilling tale where the war correspondents stop. Theirs is no flowing narrative resonant in splendid periods, but the terse, half reluctant sentences of men who have seen things too big for words. In the slang of the camp, the jargon of the canteen, they discuss the great hand to hand fight beyond the smoke. Of themselves they say little or nothing, but when they speak of the deeds of their pals their eyes glow, and the phrases come easier and more eloquent.

"Like a Belfast riot on top of Vesuvius" is an Irish soldier's description of the fight for the German trenches.

FOUGHT WITH INSPIRING YELLS.

"Many of the men arriving in London are from Fricourt, Serre, and Gommecourt. Speaking of the Fricourt fighting, an officer said the men were splendid. They were keen and most cheerful, and went for the enemy with inspiring yells. Men were dropping everywhere from machine-gun fire, but fatal wounds were not numerous.

"Dozens of the Germans rushed out of dugouts without equipment. They rushed right into sudden death. Many of the prisoners we took were not a very impressive lot. They were almost starving and complained of being badly fed. They said they had been expecting the attack, and that their big guns had already been withdrawn to the rear to defend positions when the first line trenches were taken.

"They still believe we kill prisoners" an officer said, "and you should have seen the terror of one German prisoner when he saw my revolver in my hand. The blighter thought he was a goner."

"Another officer, speaking about Serre, said he was jolly glad to see Serre captured after having stared at it for four months from our trenches. The fighting at Serre was very hot. Many Germans were said to have come to this neighbourhood to rest, but they fought very hard for tired men. Their machine guns, which they concealed cleverly, were very deadly. When our shells were giving them different kinds of hell they hid the machine guns in concrete emplacements, and they had them out in no time when we advanced.

"The men of the new armies are cheerful grumblers. 'So many nervy things happen to one at the front' is the way Lieutenant — described having been blown up three times and seeing his watchers killed behind him. He has a wife in Liverpool and two boys, one of whom he has never heard talk."

"A division of London Territorials distinguished themselves at a place where again the German machine guns cut swaths in our attacking ranks. The enemy hid underground while the British were passing over and, when the supports came along with reserves of bombs the Germans fell upon them, thereby cutting off the supply of bombs.

NEVER CEASE TALKING OF THE GUNS.

"Wounded officers and men never cease talking of our wonderful guns. 'The German gunners are very good shots, but our chaps can give them points,' was a remark that found ready approval. The attack was remarkably well planned, nothing being left to chance. Subalterns and men seemed to have a clear idea of the part they were to play in the advance, their routes and objectives. All details had been carefully and intelligently explained by the higher commanders.

"One of the keenest questioners of the wounded is a gunner of the South African force, himself an invalid. A jolly, ever-smiling lad of 20, son of a contractor at Port Elizabeth, he gave up farming on the Natal border to join an expedition to German South west Africa, where he served for 12 months.

"The heat out there in Africa was terrific, and that and the thirst beat anything I went through in France," he said.

"He was in France only eight weeks before being invalided home. Very proud he is of his 60-inch gun, and likewise very disappointed in having missed what we call over here the 'big push'.

'Another disappointed chap was his neighbour. He lost an eye in a bombing expedition to the German trenches, 'just as we were getting over the parapet,' he said, and then with a smile, he added: 'However, we killed fifty Germans and took no prisoners, the fighting having been so fierce.'

"Many wounded continue to arrive by the Red Cross trains. Those who were knocked out in the preliminary raids and bombardments forget their wounds in hearing from their newly arrived comrades the details of the big push for which they had all waited so patiently. The pride of each man in his battalion is shown by oft repeated remarks such as 'I'll bet the so and sos were in the thick of it all,' or 'Tell me what price the German paid when they come over our little lot,' and so on."

HUNGRY ALL THE TIME.

In Other Ways, Too, the Earthworm Is a Curious Creature.

Midnight is the favorite play hour for earthworms. To catch a glimpse of them in the daytime you'll have to dig in the earth, which is their home, or watch for them after a heavy rain, when they can be found on top of the ground. But go out any warm night with a lantern, lie close to the ground on a lawn or terrace, and you'll probably see them in abundance.

Probably you've regarded the earthworm merely as a good fish bait and have never taken the trouble to learn his habits. When he's prowling around at night he's usually enjoying a feast on decaying leaves, grasses or animal matter. Before daylight he's back in the ground, burrowing his way in search of more food. His alimentary canal extends from one tip of his body to the other, so it's little wonder he's always hungry.

He has neither ears nor eyes, yet he's sensitive to light, and he knows when night comes just as other creatures with eyes. Another interesting fact is his method of laying eggs. He grows a band around his body like a belt, in which he deposits the eggs. Then he gradually works his way through this belt until he slips it off, when it closes up and forms a capsule to protect the eggs until they are hatched.

Vegetable growers sometimes regard the earthworm as a nuisance. They should be thankful, however, that those of North America are not so large as those in South Africa, where there are earthworms four and five feet long and as thick as a man's finger.

Ceres.

In the classic mythology Ceres is the goddess of the harvest, or, to be more specific, of the cereals. According to Ovid, Metm., book 5, Ceres first taught men to plow the fields and also to have fixed laws, the meaning of which is that laws originated with the settled state known as agriculture.

A Hard Question.

Modern Maiden—I wish advice. Old Lady—Certainly, my dear. What is it? Modern Maiden—Shall I marry a man whose tastes are the opposite of mine and quarrel with him, or shall I marry a man whose tastes are the same as mine and tire of him?

Laws.

The laws of a country must be like a large river and not like a small ditch. Men do not fall in a river because it is remarkably wide and deep, while they often fall into a ditch because it is so narrow and shallow.—Kynes.

Bad Arguments.

The best way of answering a bad argument is not to stop it, but let it go on its course until it overlaps the boundaries of common sense.—Sydney Smith.

Not Eternal.

Soulful Youth (at the piano)—Do you sing "Forever and Forever?" Matter of Fact Maiden—No; I stop for meals.—Exchange.

HONOUR ROLL WAS UNVEILED AT THE PARK ST. CHURCH

Forty-seven Members of the South-end Baptist Church Have Enlisted For Overseas Service---Appropriate Service Held on Sunday Morning.

At the Park street Baptist church on Sunday morning a most interesting military service was held, at which the honour roll of the church was unveiled in the presence of a large congregation. The roll contains the names of forty-seven members of the Park street church who are on active service, and is very handsomely arranged with its purple and gold lettering and draped with the flag of the Empire.

Little Muriel and Gladys Thomas, the twin daughters of Sergt. Fred Thomas of the 21st Battalion, 2nd Canadian division, unveiled the roll. Their father and their uncle, Q. M. S. Sam Thomas, also of the 21st Battalion, are both veterans of the South African war.

The pastor, Rev. Dougald Brown, took as his text the first verse of the fourth chapter of St. James. "From whence come wars and fighting among you? Come they not hence, even of your lusts that war in your members?" During his sermon Rev. Mr. Brown pointed out that Mr. John Haw and twelve members of his Bible class had enlisted. Only one, as far as was known, of the 41 men whom had enlisted from the Park street church had been killed. That was Pte. Fred Buntin.

The music was of a nature befitting the occasion, "O Canada" being played as a voluntary by the organist. Mr. A. Nicholls, while the choir sang, "God Bless Our Soldiers," and Mr. Jones Elgar's "Land of Hope and Glory."

The honour roll as read by the Clerk of the church Mr. Harry Goodwin, was as follows:

Jas. Bills	Fred Buntin
Fred Thomas	Sam Thomas
Alb. Nicholls	Frank Davey
H. Strickland	Harry Young
Fred Edwards	L. P. Campbell
Albert Daniels	H. Wilson
Wm. Baldock	Chas. Hodson
Harry Castle	Everett Castle
M. Dunkley	Fred Dunkley

LOCAL GREEKS WERE INVOLVED IN LEGAL PROCEEDINGS

Trouble Arose Over the Ownership of a Cafe in Belleville—Too Much Competition Alleged

(Belleville Intelligencer.)

Two interesting cases have just been disposed of by His Honour Judge Deroche at the County Judges Criminal Court. The facts were as follows: On or about the 1st of February of this year, one Nicholas Lemper, a Greek, who had been working for Bill Coros, a Greek of Peterborough, and a cousin of his, for five years, was induced to buy the cafe on the east side of Front street, Belleville, called the Boston Cafe, for $1,440.00. Coros representing he had been offered $1,700.00 for the cafe. Mr. Lemper had a claim against Coros for $600.00 wages, and Coros sold him the business, taking credit for the $600.00, and took a chattel mortgage back on it for $840 with a covenant in the mortgage that he was to keep the chattels up to the value of $840.00. Besides the plant, furniture etc., there were certain groceries and food used in connection with the business for which Lemper paid Coros $33.20. Lemper started the 1st of February and continued business until the 4th of May, doing a good lucrative business as the 80th Battalion was then quartered in the city. Lemper claimed as an inducement to get him to buy the business, Coros represented he would not open the candy store he had on the same street on Sunday and serve meals, and after Lemper had purchased the Ideal Cafe, he claimed that Douros, a cousin of Coros, who was manager of the candy store for Bill Coros, opened up the candy store for meals on Sundays, and cut in on his trade. Mr. Lemper had paid $70.00 additional cash on the purchase price without ever having had access to them, and when the dispute arose over the giving of meals at the other cafe, he wished a copy of the papers and agreement, so he could submit them to some one who could read them, as he could not read English, and had not had possession of nor had anyone read over the bill of sale or the chattle mortgage to him. He instructed his solicitors, Messrs. O'Flynn, Diamond and O'Flynn, to write to Mr. Gordon of Peterborough, who was the solicitor who prepared the papers for the documents, and complaining they were opening the other cafe, contrary to their agreement. While the parties were corresponding about it Coros issued a warrant, seized the property and took possession of the same, putting Lemper out of business. Prior to the transaction set forth, one Nicholas Gavas had been working for Douros in the Ideal Cafe, afterwards called the Boston Cafe, and had been discharged, and Nicholas Gavas had been instructed that Coros was slandering him. He caused a letter to be written to Coros and Douros, asking for an apology and discontinuance of the slander in which he claimed Douros had called Gavas a thief, and accused him of stealing, whereupon Coros and Douros issued a warrant against each of the two men, accusing Lemper of stealing goods from the store which he owned, and upon which there was a chattel mortgage, and accusing Gavas of receiving the goods. The parties were arrested on Saturday evening at a time when they were the busiest in their occupation, and when it would be most difficult to get bail; locked up, but obtained bail, although strangers, and the prosecution was held over their heads since the 13th of May, although efforts were made to bring the matter to trial it was not completed until Tuesday, the 25th of July The case against Nicholas Lemper was tried before the court, witnesses carefully examined, and the action dismissed, as there was no evidence whatever of Nicholas Lemper having committed the act complained of. The action against Gavas was also dismissed, as no evidence was offered connecting him with the matter. Both of these men, who are Greek, have carried on a successful business in the city, have been careful and painstaking in their efforts, and have felt keenly the annoyance and injury they have sustained by the action of the complainants. It was learned from the evidence at the trial that since seizure of the cafe in question, Douros, agent for Coros, had sold it for $1,000.00, although the balance due Coros was only $770 with some interest. It was also shown at the trial that when Lemper took possession there was only $33.00 worth of groceries and food supplies on hand, and when he left there was $54.80 worth on hand. It was shown that all of the fixtures there, were still on hand, and that Mr. Lemper had expended $61.20 additional for an electric fan, repairs, meat machine and other improvements. There was some dispute about the knives, and forks, that some were missing, but this was not in any way connected with Mr. Lemper, and may have been the usual shortage by losses in a cafe, and the total amount of such shortage was much less than the improvements which had been added by Lemper to the premises. Messrs. Lemper and Gavas, while considerably worried by the legal procedure to which they were strangers, feel pleased that they have been justified and that they have been acquitted. No evidence was produced against either of them, but the complainants endeavoured, by general evidence, to try and make a case against Mr. Nicholas Lemper, and failed. The prosecution was ably conducted by Mr. W. Carnew, County Crown Attorney, and the prisoners were defended by Mr. F. E. O'Flynn of O'Flynn, Diamond and O'Flynn.

Strike Agitators Rebuked In Germany

Socialists Warn Workers Such Action Might Be Fatal; Peace Called Highest Task

BERLIN, July 31.—The manifesto to the working classes issued by the Socialist Executive Committee and the General Commission of Labour Unions, appealing against the general strike which the leaders of the Liebknecht branch of the Socialists are endeavouring to organize, reads as follows:

"The prolonged war weighs heavily on all nations and entails great sacrifices. It severely tests the endurance of those at home and at the front, and it is natural that ill-feeling and discontent should develop. This situation is unfortunately being abused by irresponsible individuals who wish to mislead labour into resorting to measures which are not in the slightest degree adapted to relieve the burden but rather to increase it.

"An attempt is being made, through anonymous leaflets which have been circulating for several months among members of the party and of unions, to sow hatred and distrust against the Deputies chosen by the workmen themselves. The charge launched against these men, who for years have stood at the head of the organisation of German labour classes, is that they are sacrificing Socialist principles, have disregarded decisions of German Socialist Party conventions and international congresses, have perpetrater party treason, etc.

"Such insinuations and abuse could be disregarded if labour simultaneously was not instigated to ill-advised proceedings and an unscrupulous propaganda conducted for strikes and mass actions, for which the unions and the Socialist party must disclaim all responsibility. Whither must it lead if labour undertakes action which is organized by irresponsible individuals on their own account and without a proper purpose? The consequence must be borne by the individual participants, and neither party nor unions can grant strike relief.

"We therefore consider it our duty to warn labour against the machinations of apostles of protest and a general strike, working in darkness and anonymity.

"The organization of wage movements and strikes rests with the competent union committees, and they are doing everything to emphasize the justifiable demands of members of their organizations. Extraordinary difficulties are present in the distribution of the food supply. We have not failed to combat abuses existing in this field with every means at our disposal.

"Just now, when our brothers in uniform on all fronts must withstand a mighty onslaught by the armies of our enemies and must make indescribable sacrifices, and when, just before the harvest, the food supply presents the greatest difficulties, each thoughtless action may be fatal, and, above all strike labour itself the severest blow.

"Our most important task is to aid in the speedy coming of peace. The competent organization in the labour movement is conscious of this great duty ad is working untiringly to fulfill it."

The Second Anniversary of the Declaration of War

Services at St. John's Anglican Church

Friday next, August the fourth, will be the Second Anniversary of the Declaration of War. The day is to be observed by the Anglican Church all the world over, as a penitential day—a day of prayer, intercession and supplication for the victory of right, against might, for the righting of great wrongs and for the welfare and successes of His Majesty's forces and their allies, by sea, by land, and by air.

By the desire of the Lord, Bishop of the diocese of Toronto, a combined series of Anglican services will be held in the picturesque parish church of St. John the Evangelist on that day, in which all the Anglican clergy and churchmen and churchwomen of the city will be able to take their share.

This church was selected as being, not only the oldest, but the most central Anglican church in the city of Peterborough.

Accordingly, services will be held in St. John's on Friday next as under:—

Holy Communion—7 a.m.
Litany, etc.,—11 a.m.
Intercessory Prayer—5.15 p.m.
Evensong—8 p.m.

At the latter service the Rev. White, rector of St. Luke's East City will be the preacher, while the various Anglican clergy of the city will take their part in all the services. It is hoped that these will be large representative services which will be well attended, not only by members of the Anglican church, but by as many of other denominations as may desire to be present and who will be cordially welcomed.

Report Delayed Pensions To Office Of Patriotic Fund

There are several cases of delayed pensions among those in the city and vicinity. Changes in the Pension Board have resulted in the arrangements for issue of pensions being held up. Details have now been perfected and the Chairman of the Board has asked that the Patriotic Fund Office forward particulars of claims in arrears and they will receive attention. Those interested may apply at the office of the Fund, City Buildings, and matters will at once have attention, and be forwarded to Ottawa.

Monthly Meeting of Ashburnham League

The monthly business meeting of the Women's Patriotic League of Ashburnham will be held on Wednesday afternoon, August 2nd, at four o'clock. The work-rooms will be open all afternoon for the workers.

Peterborough Officer With 38th Battalion

Crack Ottawa Battalion Is Going to Front as a Unit With the 4th Canadian Division, Commanded By Brigadier General Watson, Who Was the Officer in Command of the Peterborough Boys in the 2nd Battalion.

In view of the fact that two Peterborough officers, Capt. Harold Hill and Lieut. Douglas Hammond, are with the 38th, the following will be of itterest:

With the 38th "Ottawas," England, July 12.—In view of the early departure of the 38th "Ottawas" to France the colours of the regiment, presented by the City of Ottawa one year ago, were to-day deposited with appropriate ceremonies in Westminster Abbey, being accorded a place of honour immediately over the monument of General Wolfe.

In attendance at the ceremony were Colonel C. M. Edwards, Commanding the 38th; Rev. H. I. Horsey, chaplain; the original colour party who received the colours on Parliament Hill, Ottawa, on August 1st, 1915—Lieuts. R. E. Greene and R. S. Stronach, Company Sergeant-Major T. Carroll and Company Sergeant-Major W. J. Wilkinson, and Lieut. J. P. Crerar, of Ottawa, who recently joined the 38th here, after coming to England with the 77th of Ottawa, and who was prominent in the movement resulting in the 38th receiving the colours last August. The choir sang "O God Our Help," and the Bishop received the colours which were placed alongside those of the Kingston artillery units.

Hard Training for the Field.

The month which has elapsed since the arrival of the 38th in England has been marked by training of the most strenuous type. Following a special musketry course of ten days, the work of advanced field training with the 4th Canadian division has been engaged in. This includes tactical schemes, bombing and grenade work, entrenching and bayonet fighting, wire entanglements and night operations. The majority of the officers have completed specially arranged courses of instruction in these branches of training essentially developed by the present war and have now returned to the battalion to impart this technical information. All ranks have entered into the enlarged sphere of training involved in brigade and divisional work with fine spirit and energy, with the result that the 38th "Ottawas" stand second to no corps in the entire division in point of efficiency.

The well wishers of the 38th in Ottawa will be delighted to know that the battalion was accepted intact as a company unit in what is regarded as the crack brigade of the 4th Canadian division. This is the 12th Infantry Brigade, commanded by General Lord Brooke, well known in military circles in Ottawa. It is an all-Canada brigade, being comprised of the 72nd Highlanders of Vancouver, the 78th Highlanders of Winnipeg, the 73rd Highlanders of Montreal, and the 38th "Ottawas." All the Highland battalions from Canada have been of a uniformly high standard and those in the 4th Division are no exception. All ranks are enthusiastic over the fact that the Divisional Commander is Major-General David Watson, C.B., of Quebec, who commanded the 2nd Eastern Ontario battalion of the First Canadian Division with such skill and credit as to merit promotion first to the command of a brigade and later on the 4th Canadian Division. General Watson is well-known in Ottawa, being in business life managing director of the Quebec Daily Chronicle.

Some of 77th Men There.

In addition to the officers of the 38th who came here from Bermuda with this corps, four of the 77th Battalion officers, Capt. Hudson, Lieut. J. F. Crerar, Douglas Hammond, and E. G. Maunsell have been taken on the strength to complete the new establishment. The 38th also received a draft of 78 non-commissioned officers and men from the 77th, which corps was utilized on its arrival here to reinforce six different battalions of the 4th Division, which had been depleted to supply drafts to the three divisions already in France. All credit has been accorded the 77th, in the excellent standard of efficiency of all departments of that battalion and it was a matter of keen regret to all Ottawa officers here that it was impossible to keep it intact as a unit, in view of the need of drafts for the 4th Division. However, Col. Street and his officers have the satisfaction of knowing that they supplied one thousand well trained men to various corps which required efficient reinforcements at a time when the division is engaged exclusively in advanced work.

As is already known the 4th Canadian Division on the occasion of its final inspection by His Majesty the King on Dominion Day created a most favourable impression. There were over 25,000 Canadians, representing all branches of the service, in parade, and as column after column of physically fit, sun tanned, smart, well set up troops marched past, many were the outbursts of enthusiasm from the assembly of Canadian visitors present. Following the review His Majesty met the various commanding officers, while Sir George Perley, Sir George E. Foster and Earl Grey paid a special visit to the 38th "Ottawas" and conveyed their best wishes.

The early part of August is the time set for the departure of the division for France and judging by the opinions expressed by the several Imperial Staff officers who have inspected it, these splendid troops will fully maintain the reputation already established by the Canadian divisions at the front.

Apart from the divisional troops which include pioneers, engineers, army service corps, medical corps, artillery and headquarters staff, the infantry brigade of the 4th Division comprises the following:

Tenth Brigade, commanded by General Meighen, of Montreal, the 44th, 45th, 46th and 50th Infantry Battalions all from Western Ontario.

Eleventh Brigade, commanded by General Odlum, of Vancouver, the 54th, 74th, 75th Infantry Battalions from Ontario and the 87th Grenadiers of Montreal.

Twelfth Brigade, commanded by General Lord Brooke, the 38th "Ottawas," 72nd Vancouver, 73rd Montreal and 78th Winnipeg.

Practically all the officers of the 77th Battalion, of Ottawa, have been assigned to certain of the units mentioned above, where their experience and training has already been recognized.

CHIMNEY FIRE STARTED RUMOUR OF A DROWNING

Persons who saw Chief Howard speeding this morning with a chemical tank in his buggy to a chimney fire on George street, south of Romaine street, jumped at the conclusion that he was hurrying the city's pulmotor to the river. By a common method of what might be called spontaneous deduction these citizens decided that some one must have fallen into the river, and before they had proceeded further they imagined that the unfortunate had become unconscious, hence the need of the pulmotor. And, since the Chief was speeding with only one horse power instead of forty or sixty, they assured themselves that the unfortunate was drowned. By this time they had met a friend or two to whom they imparted the information that they had just seen Chief Howard rushing to the river with the pulmotor to attempt to revive some one who was drowned. Thus the rumour rolled on, gathering volume and momentum to such an extent that the Fire Hall men were kept on the jump all morning answering telephone calls about the drowning, and who was it, and so on. Of course it was all news to the firemen, but it all comes in a day's work. However, for the benefit of the citizens who thought they knew a pulmotor, it may be intimated that they saw a mere chemical tank. And of the fire, the Chief reported no damage.

Death Loss In Bush Fires

one daughter, Mildred, and one son, George, were in Monteith at the time and escaped. All that has been found of Rev. Father Gagnier, parish priest of Nushka, is a small bone of his arm. Identification was made by the finding of the keys of the church and school which he had in his pocket, and a crucifix. Up to midnight tonight 252 bodies have been found.

At Ramore three families, Papas, Clement and Picard, were burned to death, with the exception of A. Clement, the father. On the previous day he went out picking blueberries and luckily got lost. On Sunday he found his direction back, and on his way to where his home had been he came across the body of his fourteen-year-old son lying across his path. Nearby he found one of his daughters near a small brook. The father became almost hysterical with grief, and at this juncture a relief party from Ramore station arrived at the scene. The home was about one mile from Ramor station.

A search soon revealed the charred remains of seven members of the Papas family. The bodies were so burned that only fragments could be found and these were located within an area of about ten yards. The bodies were temporarily buried in the afternoon as well as those of the other families named.

Had Speed of Tornado.

At Matheson the fire appeared to envelop the entire town in a sheet of flame, within an instant. In describing it those who were interviewed said that the wave of solid flame seemed to fill the air and practically all of the town became afire at once. The flames from the burning forest north seemed to leap two thousand feet in the air, and driven by a terrific gale, almost with the velocity of a tornado, within a few minutes it had reached the town and with but scant warning, within a few minutes, the town was ablaze. Parents caught up their small children and bidding the others follow, either ran to the freight train on the siding or to the hill, being cut off from the river by the fire on the east side of the town.

The train caught fire three times on the way south and for a time it looked as is there would be but little chance of getting through. The flames actually came through the crack of the windows and doors and the men on board were kept busy holding wet handkerchiefs and rags against them. Whenever an open space was reached the train was stopped and water thrown on the burning cars. About two miles from Matheson a heap of 24 bodies were found near the river, where the victims had rushed in the hope of saving their lives. The wave of flame caught them, and all were found on the slope of the river bank.

BIG CATCH OF BASS BY TWO LOCAL MEN

When Andy Webb and the constellation of pieces get together it's a wise fish that seeks a weedy creek, or crawls out on the bank, or suddenly decides upon a dew worm fast. For "A. H." isn't one of our ordinary anglers that first breakfasts, arranges his poles, reel, lines, hooks and other paraphrenalia and pulls away for any old spot when the sun is high up in the sky. Andy decides his action after sunset, outlines the morrow's campaign, and when day is breaking he drops the first bomb into a well chosen spot and the execution is simply a matter of effect following naturally upon cause. The Webb bomb is a big juicy dew worm, oatmeal fed, and otherwise dressed to kill. One little loop of the hook through the worm's neck, none of this catching it up six or seven times until the hook is filled, and the tamest bass that ever finned will grab for it.

Anyway, Andy and Mr. John Goodson, with their wives, spent last week at Campbelltown, and there were a lot of foolish fish that didn't recognibe the Webb bait. Seventy-three bass, all weighing over two pounds, and five lunge, represented the week's work. This does not include numerous catfish, eels, and bass that weighed under two pounds. The two fishermen simply returned the two-pounders to the water. And a pound and a half bass is not to be sniffed at. But Andy wouldn't give it boat room; dozens of them went back. The party brought home sixteen bass that aggregated 40½ pounds. How's that.

Mr. Webb selected locations above the Otonabees forks for his operations, and although he and Mr. Goodson landed a few black bass they were of a condition that rendered them useless. But the yellow lads bit hard, put up a battle, and coming from the frying pan they brought back the plate for more. Lunge fishing was only fair, the weather being too hot, but the early morning bass battles made up for the lethargy of the lunge.

Around the Curling Rink next winter let some one start a fish story when "Andy's" around, thereby providing an opening for some of the new stuff he recently collected. Of course by curling time the big fish he caught will have shrunk to the size of sun fish, and that seventy-three may be only thirty-three maybe.

A Defence Measure.

While making no particular pretensions to shrewd business foresight, we will say for ourself that when we have lamb stew for dinner we take a great deal more than we can possibly eat and mess it around on our plate, so as not to have enough left untouched to be warmed up next day.—Ohio State Journal.

Apparently Oil Is Coming To Park Street

The workmen who pass along Park Street near R. C. Braud's store noticed with pleasure the preliminary preparations yesterday for a treatment of road oil. The dust has been scraped up into many piles, and the oil is doubtless on the way. Late as it is, this work will be appreciated, and next year it should be done earlier. Probably Dickson Street is slated for a treatment, though this remains entirely with Ald. McIntyre and City Engineer Parsons.

BETTER SWIMMING FACILITIES ADVOCATED BY LOCAL CITIZENS

Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I am fully persuaded after the sad drowning of July 30th and also the other case of an earlier date that the time has come when the authorities of this city should take immediate steps to provide a proper place for the young people of our city where they can learn to swim. It is too bad to think that year after year precious lives should have to be sacrificed when they might be saved. Then if we had a proper place it would save the parents of this city a lot of anxiety for they would know that their children were safe and I am sure that the cost of providing such a place would repay this city even if it only saved one life and I think it is needless to lose even one of our boys when so many have and will yet lay down their lives for the Empire.

It is really too bad that our city authorities should overlook this important provision for the young people of our city. I hope that the events of this past month will stir them up to take immediate action.

Yours truly,
WILLIAM STEVENS.
306 Brock Strtet

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Re your article arising out of the sad cases of drowning on Sunday last, it would be a boon to open air bathers for a swimming pool in the Otonabee from the C.P.R. freight sheds to the C.P.R. bridge, with an entrance off Dalhousie Street East. Ten years ago I had great difficulty in securing the use of water to bathe and teach my two boys to swim. The presence of boat houses raised an objection to the public bathing there, and when one did go there for a dip it was with a feeling that it was against some regulation or other. I finally solved the problem by hiring a skiff and rowing to the end of Park Street, where there is a nice sandy strip, and it was there my boys learned to swim. Many years ago in populous districts the same difficulty was experienced in England as the banks of the river were in many cases on privately owned land. The passing of the Baths and Washhouses Act enacted that "upon petition of the residents of any parish or corporation the councils were compelled to erect and maintain such buildings as should be necessary to provide accommodation for public swimming and bathing." That has been done in small towns of only a few thousand population. Surely it can be done here, for our Council can act without a special act of the local house, and the sooner the better.—Yours truly,

Richard J. Devey.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—You, or one of you, invites suggestion, proposition, or proposals, for definite action looking to the providing of suitable bathing places. The papers have pointed out what they said was in the public mind. But have those who clamour for such places thought just what is involved? I do not mean as a healthful and enjoyable thing, but from the point of view of the municipality involved. For that is most seriously pertinent. Suppose we examine this matter in a common-sense way.

For instance. The municipality constructs a sidewalk and invites the public to walk upon it. From that moment the municipality is responsible. A slight defect may cause a fall. Then ensues the contingent liabilty. In fact a suit is now pending, provoked by a fall, said by the complainant, to have been caused by a small plate covering the water turn-off apliance, the plate projecting, so it is averred, only quarter of one inch above the sidewalk. So we cannot dodge municipal responsibility.

If the municipality, through its council, point out that this or that place is to be considered as to be used for bathing, immediately having so designated, the responsibility is on us. A sort of shelter is built, for such is necessary. Say that a boy frequents among others, the place. He cuts his foot on a fragment of bottle. The shore of the river, under the water is fringed with debris, cans, bottles, hoops and other stuff, heaved there by a reckless public. Blood poisoning sets in. The foot is to be taken off. Immediately follows a bill of damages. For why? The bottom of the river should have been dredged and made safe by the municipality, or those acting for it. Should any one frequenting the spot drown, then a liabilty does exist, failing the provision of proper life-saving apliances at hand and some one to use, or direct the use. Then this responsibilty implies a caretaker, if not some one as instructor, to teach frequenters to swim. For why fall short of practical instruction.

Now, are we prepared to incur all the expense involved. For sure as preaching it is there to crop up. Once we step into paternalism we have to go the whole length. Indeed, so well established is this liability, that our friends who have provided the play grounds should take large thought that a rope may not break and a couple of children be hurled from a swing. Even if they fall, without the breaking of the rope there is a very serious question to be settled. Having invited the use of the things the responsibility is apparent. And anything may happen in the absence of the instructor.

A short time ago, a few weeks ago, the authorities of the Trent Canal were spoken with as to the need of some sort of protection and help o canoeists in using the river just at the lock and dam. A pier was suggested, or whatever would remedy the danger. The Trent Canal people replied, courteously, but declined to have anything to do with it. For why? Because if they constructed something for a purpose, and it effected either less or more than was contemplated, the Government, through the Department, would be liable for damage should accident occur. They would have undertaken, and failed. So no undertaking was undertaken. Per contra, if the Department, in the course of its own work, built something that accomplished the purpose desired, then there would be no responsibility. It may, some day, do something. Let us hope it will. The obvious thing for canoeists to do is to float around the lake or keep their canoes at Rye's. Rye won't object.

If what is termed the public health, (which in this case means some facilities in a public way to keep a clean body), is to be considered, are the ratepayers willing to have the Council spend sufficient money to do the thing right? For, mark you, no council will even touch the matter except with a most careful conception that rigidly the thing shall be made as safe as money can make it. I need not figure the expense.

Then, again, as to suitable places. That we can go in swimming any old place is a figment. No such thing. Just you try it. You will be shooed away from any point between Rye's and Nassau Lucky if you escape with your garments and some consternation. Start to pick out a place and the people interested will stone you from the neighbourhood. Those who hold certain rights in the banks of the river don't want it. Points where there are no private rights are unsuitable. For instance: The ownership and availability of the west and east shores of the river are widely different. By an early survey a road reservation was made, and defined, along the river, starting at a point about where the property known as Crawford's Grove is located, and extended along the bank clear around the Little Lake Cemetery. It dropped at what was known as Hospital Point, (now McDonald's mill site), to reappear at above Matthews'. Dropped again along the high bank and started again at Charlotte street. Defined in an irregular way through the low shore above the Quaker Oats property and on around Goose Island bay and up to Smith street. These facts are here mentioned as they are now forgotten by many, and never known to others.

Suppose we try to snake a location along this strip. Plainly, we would have a whale of a time using any part of the Little Lake cemetery border. Nor along Crescent street. Too public! The high bank is unsuitable. No place available between Charlotte street and the end of Dublin street. Water street, not to be thought of. And unless we take below Elcombe's there is nothing in sight until we reach Inverlea Park. That would do, very well, and could not be put to a better use. But who is going to walk or ride, from the manufacturing district in the South Ward to Inverlea Park for a swim? Not by a jug full!

The west bank seems barren. Bearing in mind that a bathing place must be one for the young and small as well as for the grown and large. Wanting this it is robbed of its usefulness. The east bank offers several sites, but at once the private ownership claim crops up. What are you going to pay for the privilege to use a convenient spot? No use placing it so far away that it cannot be reached on a hot night or evening. Spoils the whole thing. There is another expense added to the contingent bill. Still, if we are to have swims we must pay. No doubt the foot track across the C.P.R. bridge helps to solve the problem. Anyway it removes one obstacle, that of inaccessability.

In the spring of 1914 a small committee of the Council tackled this bathing idea in an earnest effort to provide. It was settled that a suitable spot would be at the end of Lake street. It was proposed to erect a suitable shelter, divided. The Superintendent of the Trent Canal agreed to have the bottom dredged to a suitable depth for small and large. The matter was thought to be settled. At once began an outcry from residents in the vicinity. The bare idea; Monstrous! Unbearable, that a public bathing place should be thrust, with all its flagrant indecency, right under the windows and in conspicuous view. The a law suit was propelled in the direction of the Council, and the Council at once passed, leaving it to some other organization to take it up or make it, to use a euchre term. That expresses the situation.

Then, it is asked, is there no spot along this fine river that may be used for the purpose? Quite so. And this suggestion is offered: The Quaker Oats Co. ask that Mill street be closed, purposing to fill in the old race way, or water power canal so long in use. Take the upper end of this canal, just below London street. Take as much as required and fill to a proper depth. Make two or three depths, if required. There you have a spot, fairly private, sort of concealed from the rude gaze by the high bank behind. Quite accessable. With a suitable shelter and supervision the place is ideal. Consent could be had to the use of the spot. There is the matter of a dead end to the canal, but that could be obviated.

No doubt if the city will authorize the Council to act, to undertake the project, to place the costs on the tax bill next year, and promise not to kick when the bill goes in, we can easily arrange to have bathing places. Money is the only thing that talks. All newspaper argument is futile unless the expense be provided, and the responsibility assumed and guarded.

Yours hopefully,
F. H. DOBBIN

GERMAN GOVERNMENT ISSUES A STATEMENT

BERLIN, by Wireless to Sayville, N.Y., August 1.—The German Government has issued officially the figures relating to the conquests at the end of the second year of the war in a statement which reads:—

"The Central Powers occupied 431,000 square kilometres, against 180,000 a year ago. The enemy occupied in Europe 22,000 square kilometres, against 11,000 a year ago.

"The Central Powers, Bulgaria and Turkey captured 2,658,000 enemy soldiers, against 1,695,000. Of those taken prisoner by the Germans 5,947 officers and 348,000 men were French, 9,019 officers and 1,202,000 men were Russian and 947 officers and 30,000 men were British.

"The war booty brought to Germany, in addition to that utilized immediately at the front, comprised 11,036 cannon, 4,700,000 shells, 3,450 machine guns and 1,556,000 rifles.

"According to the list of statistics of German wounded soldiers 90.2 per cent. returned to the front, 1.4 per cent. died and the rest were unfit for service or were released. The military measures of the Central Powers in consequence of vaccinations were never disturbed by epidemics."

BRITISH ARMY HAD ONE WEEK'S SUPPLY OF MUNITIONS

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PARIS, August 1.—"On June 1, 1915," said David Lloyd George, the British Secretary for War, "the British army had one week's supply of munitions and only 75,000 shots in the reserve stock at the rear. It had nothing more. If there had been a great attack what would have become of us. If the Germans had turned upon our soldiers the forces they then hurled on the Russians, I don't see how we could have saved ourselves."

Russians Wade Across Dneister

Special to The Examiner:

PETROGRAD, August 1.—Charging through marshy lands, some time waist deep in water Russian forces drove back the Teutonic line from the Dneister River to Koropietz, and elsewhere along the eastern front have pressed the Germans and Austrians hard according to to-day's War Office statement.

Heavy counter-attacks from Koval and Lusk were repulsed after the Russians had attacked in the region of Tchekhuv and Dubenka. The crossing of the Dneister toward Koropietz was accomplished despite the destruction of bridges by the retreating Germans, the Czar's troops wading across, reaching the west bank of the swollen stream and taking 1,000 of the enemy prisoners.

The German line was again bent backward in the bend of the Stokhod in the region of Velicki and Kuchary.

DRINK BIG ISSUE IN IOWA FIGHT

DES MOINES, Ia.,—July 31.—The political pot in Iowa is commencing to boil. With the Republican state convention over and the platform chosen, denouncing the Democratic administration and taking a strong stand for temperance, the real contest of the campaign has begun.

With the nomination of H. M. Havner of Marengo for attorney general, the Republicans will have a wet-dry combination in the race.

Linked up with the nomination of Havner is the charge of the Wilson forces that Lieut. Gov. Harding, the gubernatorial candidate, double crossed the Wilson crowd.

POOR POLITICS, BACKERS SAY

Harding could have swung the nomination to Wilson with the movement of his head, Wilson's friends contend. In the primaries the combination for governor and attorney general was Harding-Wilson, they declare. Now Harding, they say, stood idly by and let Havner be nominated. They assert that Harding wanted Havner on the ticket as a staunch dry to bolster up his own chances in November.

Whether Harding will lose votes on account of this act is a matter of much concern among his own supporters. It is admitted that his noncommittal attitude towards the attorney generalship was poor politics.

The platform of the party comes out on the road issue, declaring against arbitrary construction of roads without the consent of the property owners concerned. It, however, makes no mention of the state highway commission, which has been assailed throughout the campaign.

DENOUNCE HARDING AS WET

That is issue of the campaign is wet and dry, with the Democratic nominee challenging the temperance cause, is a much discussed and mooted question. Editorially scores of the leading newspapers have come out in favor of E. T. Meredith, the Democratic nominee, and denounce Harding as the candidate of the liquor interests.

Rob One Family In Mexico of $20,000,000

Young Planter and American Wife Have Thrilling Escape—Bribes Open Prison

NEW ORLEANS, La., July 31. — Yaro Galvon, once wealthy Mexican coffee king, stood up in front of a Mexican firing squad and was shot "dead," but thanks to the heroism of his wife, an American girl from Cleveland, O., he is now alive and well and living as happily on this side of the border as a couple can who have lost $20,000,000.

"I'd attempt to save him again if I had to, but I hope he will never go back to the cursed land," she said, while stopping at the St. Charles hotel.

"My experiences sound like the wildest kind of melodrama, but everything I shall tell you is the truth."

The Galvons were married seven years ago. Miss Laura Holland of Cleveland was spending a winter in Havana when she met Yaro Galvon, son of one of Mexicos wealthiest planters. The young man had just finished a course at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and was spending a few weeks at the Cuban capital before returning to Mexico City.

The elder Galvon, a Spaniard, had migrated to Mexico when a youth. He was a close personal friend of Porfirio Diaz, then president of Mexico, and of Ramon Corral, vice president. By judicious investments he amassed a fortune by raising sugar and coffee.

GIVEN A GOOD START.

The young Mexican at Havana fell in love with the American girl and followed her to Cleveland. The sequel was two weddings — one in Cleveland, to which the bride's Mexican father-in-law sent his draft for $80,000, and another in Mexico City, in which young Yaro Galvon was presented with a sugar plantation in the state of Vera Cruz. The plantation prospered and the Galvons remained in love.

Then two blows fell upon them suddenly. The elder Galvon died. His four sugar and three coffee plantations fell to Yaro. This was in the spring of 1910. In the autumn the Madero revolutionists overran all Mexico.

These revolutionists seized first the Vera Cruz plantation and devoted its revenues to their cause, giving worthless "receipts" in return for what they stole. Emiliano Zapata, the southern bandit, then seized the three other sugar plantations. Only the coffee farms remained in the Galvons' hands.

MRS. GALVON'S STORY.

Mrs. Galvon, who stayed a few days in New Orleans prior to returning with her husband to Cleveland, tells the story thus:

"After Madero came Huerta, and, like the honest old Indian that he was, he gave us back our property and promised to repay us, as soon as the Mexican treasury was able, for the losses we had sustained. But President Wilson took a dislike to Huerta, and he had to go.

"Then came a succession of 'governments,' and of the lot Caranza was the worst, just as his followers have been the worst bandits that have cursed Mexico in the last six years of war.

LOSS OF $30,000,000.

"Carranza allowed his officers to seize not only every one of our seven plantations but declared we should receive no remuneration for them, that they should be divided among the peons who had formerly worked on these properties. The result was that after the Carrancistas had looted the plantations they allowed them to deteriorate into jungles.

"These lands were worth $30,000,000 American money; to-day they are worth nothing except what one might get for the rusted machinery. All the years of time, all the thousands of dollars and all the work of men has gone back to the jungle whence it came, and must be done over again.

"To crown this monumental thievery, Carranza next authorized the seizure of our town house, a property on the Avenida Juarez, worth $80,000, and our country villa at Tlalpam, worth $15,000.

ROBBED, TURNED INTO STREETS.

"These places were taken as offices and homes for the Carranza followers. We were allowed to remove nothing except our clothing. Even our jewelry was taken, and all the money but 900 pesos, and we were turned out into the streets.

"Fortunately Mr. Galvon at the beginning of the Madero revolution had begun hiding money with American friends. Evidently, so as not to excite suspicion, he had reduced his balance until he had only a few dollars in the bank. As fast as he could get his hands on the money he would buy American notes with it and 'lend' them to American friends.

"The Carrancistas were much incensed when they found out that we had such small sums in the banks. They seized them all and filed charges against my husband of 'secreting funds belonging to the sovereign central government.' On this charge he was tried, but on payment of a large bribe to one of the judges he was acquitted — such being the common course of 'justice' in Mexico.

HOPED FOR INTERVENTION.

"Against my advice, we remained in Mexico City, my husband thinking intervention certain and hoping that with the downfall of Carranza he would be able to regain the properties. Day by day he would get sufficient funds for daily expenses from the money we had 'loaned' our American friends.

"We took an apartment near the Nacional palace, but we dared not use even a seated automobile, both of our having been confiscated, so we walked each day past our old home on the Avenida Juarez.

"There the Carrancistas had torn out the tiled floor of the great hall. The women of 'the new Mexico' cannot endure the feeling of the tiles on their bare feet.

"Our library, consisting of hundreds of volumes collected by my husband's father on a tour of Europe and the Americas, was used to feed the cook fires of the officers and their women. They did not understand the electric stoves, so they made bonfires of our books.

BEFORE THE FIRING SQUAD.

"One day my husband said to me. 'They're after me — I guess we had better get out of Mexico.

"He went out to get money from his secret sources so we could leave that night. I never saw him again till he was standing before a firing squad in the artillery barracks near the national palace.

"He had left about 12 p.m. When he had not returned at 8 o'clock I went to the chief of police, who tried to make love to me after telling me my husband had not been arrested. I escaped this lying officil and went to see Pablo Gonzales, who was in command of the Carranza army in Mexico City.

"The captain on guard at the door was a former employee of ours. He told me Mr. Galvon had been before Gonzales and had been sent to the temporary military prison in the south wing of the palace.

"'What are the charges against him?' I asked.

"'Senora, I do not know,' he replied; 'but if you will return at 10, when I am relieved, we will find out.'

"I went home, put on a suit of my husband's clothing—for it is dangerous for a woman to appear alone on the streets of Mexico City at night—and at 10 o'clock met Manuel and gave him 100 pesos in Carranza bills —$3.50 in American money. He then took me to the prison. The guard, Pedro, was Manuel's friend.

SENTENCED TO DIE AT SUNRISE.

"To Pedro I gave a roll of money and he told me my husband had been accused of plotting against Carranza, had been tried at court-martial and was sentenced to be shot to death the the following morning.

"I learned from Pedro that the officials in charge of the execution could be bought. But I did not know in whose hands my husband had left the money. I could not recall the name of a single one of his American friends, but when I got to the apartment an Indian was awaiting me. He handed me a folded piece of cloth and disappeared. On it was written, in what I thought was red ink, these words:

"'William Hay. Good by, if I go.'

"My husband has since told me that, stripped of everything except a five-dollar American bill which he had inside of a sock, he had broken a pants button, scratched his arm and with the button had written me the message. Then he gave one of the guards the five dollars, and told him if he did not deliver the note he would haunt him.

"I started out, dressed as a man, and about 2 a.m. I found William Hay, from whom I got $5,000 American money.

BRIBES WAY IN TO SEE HIM.

"I went home, drank three cups of coffee, and joined Manuel under the trees in the Plaza de Armas at 5. In one hour my husband would be shot and I would be a prisoner, or we would both be free. Everything depended on the proper use of the money.

"Manuel was in uniform, and I gave him $50 to remain loyal to me. We passed the guard of the door of the prison, but a $10 bill stuck to his fingers. The inner guard stopped us. It took $30 to buy him. Manuel led me to the incommunicado where my husband awaited death.

"When I left as the hour neared 6, the firing squad was coming up. As I approached the entrance I saw them drag my husband out of his cell. I saw him reach his hand into his pocket and hand the teniente in command a bill. The firing squad gathered around him and each member got a little of the American money I had left with my husband. Then he called me.

"We embraced, as Mexican men do when they meet or say good-by, and he whispered:

"'When they get me lined up at the wall you rush up and bid me good-bye. The teniente knows you are my wife; the mozos think you are just a boy friend.'

MOCK EXECUTION ARRANGED.

"I did as he told me, just as the firing squad raised the rifles, and the officer in command stopped the execution until the following morning. I spent most of that day with my husband, and it was arranged that the execution should take place at 5 a. m. instead of 6; that the executioners were to have blank cartridges; that my husband was to fall as if dead and I was to have the 'body.'

"All this cost $1,000.

"I remained with my husband nearly all day. When the prison closed at night I left, provided with the names of my husband's friends and a note authorizing the delivery of money to me. From seven men I gathered $32,000. I hired the most powerful automobile I could find with an American driver. At the American club I secured two American men who had been mine guards at El Oro.

"I took the guards and the driver into my confidence. Their services cost $500.

"I gave everything in our apartment to our servants except the titles to our properties; these I took with me, and at 4.30 a.m. I was again beneath the trees in the Plaza de Armas. I crept as near as I dared to the sentry in front of the quartel.

The March to the Firing Wall.

"Soon I heard the tramp of feet, a muffled order in Spanish, the clang of rifles on the interior pavement, and the grating of a steel door swinging open.

"I could see it all in my mind's eye—the teniente of the firing squad and his six mozos, leaning on their rifles as my husband stepped from his cell door into their midst and began his march to the adobe wall on the other side of the patio.

"I could hear the orders, 'Al derecho! pronto!' then a moment's pause; and 'Listo!' and the last word of all, 'Fuego!' with the cracks of guns.

"The suspense was terrible. Would the teniente keep his word?

AN ESCAPE FULL OF THRILLS.

"Suddenly I heard a step beside me and I turned. There was one of my American guards, his automatic in his hand.

"I crept back to him and clutched his hand. With his left arm he swept me behind him, between the wall and the buttress, and drew a clip of cartridges from his belt.

"The iron door of the cuartel grated open and four men came out carrying a limp body.

"The American gave a low whistle.

"The auto slipped silently around the corner. The 'body' was lifted into the car and the four Mexican soldiers were given extra tips. We jumped into the auto and we were off. My husband sat up, alive and unharmed.

"We sped across the Zocalo, into the Avenida San Francisco, and just where the Plateros flows into the Avenida Juarez we were stopped by three mounted guards.

"'Alto! Alto! Quien va?' they demanded. The driver answered:

"'Messengers of the British legation,' and drew from beneath the seat a British flag.

MAN DRESSED AS A GIRL.

"At the magic name of Britain the guards turned aside and we rushed to the railroad station. In the washroom there my husband shaved himself closely, put on one of my dresses, and I powdered and painted his face until, with a long rebozo over his head, he looked like a Mexican girl.

"At 7 o'clock we caught a train, and, by keeping him close by my side and talking to him as a woman would talk to her maid, I got him safe to Puerto Mexico. There the transport Summer picked us up and we came to the United States."

City Founded For, Of, And By The Spinsters

DODGE CITY, Kas., July 31.—A new town is being born in southwestern Kansas. Its name is Victoria City and it is unique. It is a town of old maids, bachelor maids—the Kansas headquarters for spinsters—the place from which men are barred, except as they are willing to give up their prerogatives and allow the women to rule.

The founding of Victoria City is an outgrowth of the Kansas Queen Victoria club, a spinster union, organized by Miss Georgia Hook of Sabetha. The club was launched to protect the interest of spinsters.

At first it was local, but the idea spread and other clubs were formed throughout the state. It has a membership of several hundred unmarried women.

GOVERNMENT OPENS LANDS

In the brain of the president, Miss Hook, was born the idea of a city for spinsters, where they count enact such laws as they desired and live according to their own views.

The idea came to Miss Hook coincidentally with the announcement from the federal government that there were about 20,000 acres of land in Kansas, especially the southwest, which was open to homestead entry, Miss Hook investigated.

Convinced by what she discovered that her idea was feasible, she consulted other members of the Queen Victoria clubs. The idea took hold of them. Five spinsters agreed to enter the scheme, give up their former homes, and invade the front.

OBTAIN LAND FOR CITY

Into the southwest they went. Land was obtained and in the centre of the new settlement Victoria City was laid out. It is not far from Dodge City. The town is only in its infancy. There are a few scattered houses, but many of the women are waiting for clear titles to their lands before they begin the final development of their city.

However, while the actual building of the town is progressing slowly, because of the delay in proving up on the land, the growth along governmental lines is almost complete. And it is in its governmental form that the town has achieved its distinction.

Miss Hook is the mayor, and the city council includes Miss Mabel's Morton, Miss Sylvia Cawker, Miss Mildred Minter, and Miss Elisabeth Whiting. These officers were elected by the original fifty members of the townsite company.

Butter-making competitions were introduced at the Canadian National Exhibition in 1899 for the first time in America. They are similar to those given at the Dairy Shows in Great Britain.

Miss Mabel Van Luvan has returned to her home in Bancroft after spending two weeks with Miss Lillian Calder.

Mrs. James Haggis and daughter Miss Sophia and Georgia have gone to Newtonville Lake, Ontario, where they will spend the remainder of the summer months.

Mr. Walter Nesbitt of Micco, Brevard Co., Florida, is visiting Mr. Walter C. Bourne, 174 McDonnel street. Mr. Nesbitt is an old resident of this city and is busy renewing old acquaintances.

Mrs. Joe Benson and Miss Lylie and Nora of Winnipeg, who have been the guests of Mrs. Geo. Spilsbury, Mrs. Brock and Miss Benson, Weller street, and Mrs. Martyn Mowry, Palmerston Boulevard, Toronto, left Saturday for their home after a month's visit.

Mr. Stanley Matthews, an old Peterborough boy, son of Mr. Benj. R. Matthews, 198 London street, is home from British Columbia, renewing old associates in his boyhood home. He is principal of the King Edward High school, Vancouver, and is a conspicuous example of the many Peterborough boys that have "made good" in the west.

We notice in the Coleman and Calgary newspapers that William A. Davidson, B.Sc., a graduate of McGill University, has been appointed by the Educational Department of Alberta, Supervisor of Instruction in Mining in the School of Technology in Calgary. Mr. Davidson has been Superintendent of Mines for the International Coal and Coke Company at Coleman for some years, and is a son of J. Irvine Davidson, 813 George street, city.

Famous Visitor In The City

Mr. J. C. Richards (D.C.M.) an Old Peterborough Boy, on His Way to the Front

Peterborough has a most distinguished visitor strolling around her streets and enjoying her atmosphere these days in the person of Mr. J. C. Richards (D.C.M), late inspector of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police, and Justice of the Peace and Coroner for the Province of Saskatchewan.

Mr. Richards is a Peterboro' county boy and was born and raised in Gore's Landing, having many friends in this city who are pleased to see him around again visiting the scenes of his childhood.

The former Gore's Landing man has indeed had a most remarkable career, a career chuck full of adventure, thrill and travel in practically every part of Canada and chiefly amid the pioneer sections of the Canadian Northwest. Over thirty years of Mr. Richards' life have been spent as a Northwest mounted guardian of the peace amid lonely sections and haunts where the solitary mounted police officer on his regular rounds is the only representative of civilization with which the Northwest settler comes in contact. A few years ago Mr. Richards' excellent record as an officer caused him to be raised to the rank of inspector. Added to his long experience in police circles, Mr. Richards is also a veteran of the South African war, fighting through the Boer campaign with the Strathcona Horse under Col. Steele. Mr. Richards' bravery under fire won for him special mention in the war despatches and added to his other embellishments, recognitions of military and police activity, he is now the proud wearer of the Distinguished Conduct Medal (D.C.M.)

The energetic police inspector is not through with his life's work yet by any means, and thinks there is plenty of room for him at the front to fight the Kaiser. Mr. Richards is accordingly proceeding to England at his own expense, where he intends taking out a commission in the Imperial Army.

MAN LOSES EYE THROUGH SWITCH OF A COW'S TAIL

TYNDALL, S.D., July 31.—As the result of a cow switching her tail Gottlieb Ruch, a farmer living near the city will lose one of his eyes. The tail of the cow struck him squarely in the eyeball, injuring it to such an extent that he now has gone to a hospital to have the eye removed. This was the only way in which the uninjured eye could be saved, as it has been affected by the injury to the other.

STEAMER GENEVA'S TRIPS THIS WEEK

An announcement was made in Saturday's Examiner stating that Steamer Geneva would run a trip on Monday and Friday mornings of this week for Gore's Landing and Harwood. This was a mistake, as the trip was scheduled to leave on Tuesday and Friday at 9 o'clock. A number of people were at the wharf Monday morning and were consequently disappointed as the boat was at Rice Lake instead of Peterborough. The next all-day trip down the river will be on Friday, leaving the George St. wharf at 9 o'clock. Fare for the round trip 50c, children 25c.

Funeral of The Late Mrs. Derocher

One of the largest funerals which ever wended its solemn way up to St. Peter's Cathedral took place this morning at nine o'clock, when the remains of the late Mrs. Israel Derocher were brought to the church which she attended for so many years. Rev. Fr. Phelon chanted the Requiem Mass for the Dead, while the services at the grave were conducted by Rev. Fr. McHugh. The pall-bearers were: Messrs. Fred., James and Leo Derocher, C. Lacombe, O'Rourke, and Nagle E. Phelan.

NEW JAPANESE PLUTOCRATS

Russia has received many hundreds of thousands of shells and much other ammunition from this country in recent months, but the backbone of the prolonged offensive of the Russian armies is said by munition men to be Japan's factories. A shellmaker said yesterday that more millionaires had been made in Japan since the war started than existed in that country before.

ST. JOHN'S CHOIR'S ANNUAL OUTING

Enjoyable Picnic Held at Rice Lake —Harwood and Gore's Landing Visited

A most enjoyable day was spent last Friday by the choristers of St. John's and their friends at Harwood and Gore's Landing. About ninety boarded the Stoney Lake at 8.30 and sailed to Harwood, where a substantial meal was served nicely by Host Gilman. Mr. H. Roots landed a fine bass before dinner.

At 2.30 a move was made to Gore's Landing, where many amateur records were smashed in the races, and much fun enjoyed despite the heat. The prizes were kindly provided by many members of the congregation. At 3.45 Evensong was sung in the beautiful church of St. John's (Gore's Landing), the Rev. James Price of St. George's, officiating. An offertory was taken up and handed to the rector. At 4.30 the party again boarded the steamer, when tea was served by Coleman Bros., whose catering left nothing to be desired. In addition to the choristers many members of the Chancel Guild, W.A., C.W.A. and Sunday school, were present.

Mr. W. F. Johnston, Mr. H. W. Morphet and Mr. R. J. Devey were responsible for the excellent arrangements made for the comfort of the party, and their thanks are extended to Captain Scollard and the crew of the Stoney Lake for their courteous service during the trip.

OBITUARY

MARY GARDINER.

On Saturday last death claimed an old pioneer resident of Cavan, in the person of Mary Gardiner, daughter of the late Matthew Gardier. Deceased, who was in her eighty-seventh year had been ailing for some time, and her death was not unexpected. Up until a few months ago she resided on the old homestead, Lot 9, Concession 10, where she first saw the light of day. Following the death of her sister, Francis Maxwell, in August of last year, deceased together with her brother, John Wesley Gardiner, removed to Millbrook, thereby severing a life-long association with one of the best known farms in Cavan Township. Death occurred on Saturday evening, following an illness extending over two years. The funeral took place on Monday afternoon. Service was held at the house at two o'clock and interment took place in Gardiner's cemetery. Rev. Wm. Higgs, pastor of Millbrook Methodist Church, conducted the service, which was impresive and was attended by a large number of relatives and friends.

Mr. Higgs referred to the Christian character of the deceased and the success that had attended her efforts to live an exemplary life.

The pall-bearers were: Messrs. T. Hunter, C. McNeill, A. Payne, I. Needham, M. Sutton, and D. Sutton.

Austro-Germans, Facing Two Perils, Unable To Concentrate On Defence

Petrograd Believes It Will Be Necessary For Opposing Command to Give Up One Valuable Point on Chance of Saving Others Almost as Valuable---General Haig Reviews Two Years of War and Month of Offensive ---Death Greatest Test of An Army, He Says.

TRIBUTE TO NEW TROOPS

LONDON, August 2.—With General Kaledine's army in full control of the Stokhod River, which has been the chief obstacle to the westward progress of the northern wing of the Russian forces under command of General Brussiloff, and the troops under General Isakharoff driving the Austrian army commanded by General von Boehm-Ehmolli westward from Brody, the Russians are now well advanced in the campaign against the two important centres of Kovel and Lemberg.

The Russian offensive conducted in both these directions has been so vigorous and unrelenting that the Austro-Germans apparently have been in a predicament, not knowing from which point to spare troops to reinforce the defences of some other part of the front. The result has been that the Germans are exclusively occupied with the defence of Kovel, while General Von Boehm-Ermolli's army, without assistance, has been mainly striving to protect the roads of Lemberg.

Of the two objectives, Kovel is in the position of greater danger, being threatened from the east, where the Russians have successfully passed the Stokhod River, and from the south, where the Russians recently reached an advanced point on the Vladimir-Volynski road, south of Kisselin.

The view held here is that the Austro-Germans, despite their stubborn resistance, will be unable much longer successfully to oppose all three Russian lines of advance upon Kovel, Vladimir-Volynski and Lemberg, and probably will be compelled to sacrifice one of these points in order to stiffen resistance against the Russian attacks on the other two.

THIRD YEAR OF THE WAR WILL BE THE ALLIES' YEAR

LONDON, August 2.—At the close of two years of the war and of the first month of the British offensive General Sir Douglas Haig, commander in chief of the group of British armies in France, in speaking of the situation, laid particular emphasis on the fact that the beginning of the third year of the war saw the initiative entirely with the Allies on all fronts, while Great Britain, for the first time, was exerting something like a power worthy of her numerous resources on land.

"The tide has turned," he said. "Time has been with the Allies from the first. It is only a question of more time till we win a decisive victory, which is the one sure way to bring peace in this as in other wars. Until this victory is won it ill becomes a British soldier in France to think of peace."

TWO ARMIES COMPARED.

Then Sir Douglas Haig referred to the character of the German army and of the British army as revealed by the fighting of the last four weeks:

"The British soldier, used to thinking for himself, recognized the stubborn task before him, but the German, docile in his obedience and taking his superiors without question, was led to believe that the offensive of our new army, which was not taught by their kind of discipline and was therefore inefficient, could not be formidable. When we followed the breach in their first line with a breach in their second, the shock of our success was accordingly the greater to their minds. For the first time German officers, who were taken, admitted that Germany was beaten. One of them, who was on his way to England and had glimpses of our reserve camps in France, said that he had been told that the British had only a fringe of troops on the front line, and once our attack was repulsed they go through to the coast and end the war."

Finally, in expressing the situation Sir Douglas indulged in a Scotch phrase:

"Facts are chiels that winna ding," and continued:

"The third year of the war will be the Allies' year. No less than France, now that we are ready, we shall give all the strength there is in us to drive the invader from her soil and that of Belgium. England will not achieve her full strength on land, however, until next summer.

"All those who believe that our cause is the cause of civilization may rest assured that this army has no thought except to go on delivering blow after blow until we have won that victory by force of arms which will insure an enduring peace."

The Death Rate Will Exceed Five Hundred

This is the Minimum Figure, According to Estimates Made in the North Country--Whole Settlements Were Wiped Out By Flames---Survivors From Fire-striken Towns in New Ontario Arrive in Toronto---Pathetic Scenes on Relief Train---Many Insist Loss of Life Must Be Far Greater Than Officially Announced.

KNOWN DEAD IS 318

HAILEYBURY, Ont., August 2.—The known dead in the northern fires is now 318, and officials at Haileybury claim that the death rate will exceed 500. The terrible toll of life taken by the fire-demon in the country between Ramore and Cochrane grows in magnitude every hour, and there is no hope or belief that even five hundred will be the limit, although the exact number will never be known. When whole settlements are wiped off the face of the map, and reports come in that there are only eight survivors from a thriving settlement of 208 people; when one hears of a hundred and thirty bodies being buried in a morning, charred beyond all recognition; of fifty-seven bodies found in a railway cut; of twenty-four bodies in a root house; of sixteen found in a pit—one realizes that it is impossible to estimate the numbers, and that for every one found near the railway line by relief workers who went up, there may be a dozen lying dead among the ashes that spread for hundreds of square miles over Northern Ontario. And because there has been such a holocaust it is equally impossible to get a list of names of the dead.

That, too, will never be known, for the flames ate up every means of identification and so scattered were the settlements in some parts that even where one member of a family escaped, he or she could not give the names of neighbours, nor know what became of them except in rare instances. And so the relief workers who went up from North Bay, Cobalt, Haileybury, New Liskeard, and other places, and who found bodies lying in every direction ,could do nothing but dig deep trenches and put the remains in them, unrecognized and unrecognizable, while others searched along the creeks or by the walls for wounded who might yet have survived. They were pitifully few and the first train that got back here last night only brought in forty-three passengers, of whom three women and seventeen men were terribly burned, and the remainder women and childrn who were refugees.

At Nushka fifty-six dead bodies of men, women and children had been found lying in the bottom of a clay cut in the railway, where they had hoped to find shelter from the flames. All the bodies were horribly burned and blackened. Some were minus legs and arms. Just the little bones of one child had been found. In the rear of a barn on the property of the Ontario Provincial Experimental Farm near Matheson 65 bodies had been buried that morning. Again in a trench near the lake 25 scorched and charred remains had found a resting place.

Survivors From Fire Stricken Towns Arrive In Toronto

Out from the inferno of the New Ontario fire zone from which they emerged after a nerve-wracking struggle for life; empty of purse, in borrowed clothes, haggard of eye and with skin cracked by the withering heat to which it had been subjected, 500 refugees arrived in Toronto yesterday in the second section of the Cobalt special on the Grand Trunk Railway. They had gathered at North Bay from the fire-stricken towns of Cochrane, Matheson, Twin Falls, Iroquois Falls, Porquis Junction and Timmins to start on the search for relatives and friends.

In the food-littered coaches, eloquent of the generosity of Ontario citizens, mothers and fathers weak under the strain of their recent experiences, quieted fretful children as they drank steaming mugs of coffee brought to them by the train crew or as they munched sandwiches. Frequently though, it was only mother and the children. Father, after seeing his family safely aboard the relief train, remained behind to lend all possible aid to the rescue parties, and to the bands of men who are constantly searching for the dead.

On board the train which brought the refugees to Toronto there was little conversation. There were no smiles; neither were there tears. Adults rested limply in their seats and gazed vacantly into the distance. They were thinking of the disaster which had overtaken them; of their narrow escape; of the hours of agony in the burning bush, of friends who had died and of the future before them. Children also were strangely subdued. Two-year-old Willie Honeyford sighed and sobbed convulsively as he caught sight of the water of Lake Simcoe when the train drew into Barrie.

"Willie can't bear the sight of water any more," explained his mother. "He cries like that every time he sees water now. I had him with me on a log in the lake near Cochrane all through the night of the fire, and the shock has upset him dreadfully," she explained.

One of the first questions asked at the various stations along the route to Toronto was "How many dead do the latest reports show?" When the reply was "Two hundred,' the informant was discredited.

"There must be many more than that," was the invariable answer. "It was nothing to find ten or twelve dead in one heap. In one house alone, twenty-five perished." George Salde, of Carthage, N.Y., who came down from Porquis Falls, estimated the number at between 500 and 600. No figure went lower than 300.

Stranger Suspected of Firing This Hotel

Brantford, August 1.—A fire believed to be of incendiary origin occurred on Sunday morning about 1 o'clock at the King's Hotel here, and the building was damaged to the extent of about $200.

The police are looking for a man who was seen going into the lane adjoining the building and carrying a bag shortly before the fire occurred, and who returned with the bag.

A HAVELOCK MOTOR CYCLIST COLLIDED WITH A WAGGON

Was Seriously Injured About the Face and Hands—An Argument For Road Oil—Havelock Items of Interest

HAVELOCK, Aug., 1.—Mr. Jack Moore, C.P.R. operator here, met with an accident while on his way home from Trent River on his motor cycle. He was passing by McGregor's store, there was a buggy on one side and an automobile passing on the other and the dust was so bad that he did not see the waggon driving out from the store in time to stop and collided with great force. He was picked up in an unconscious condition and was taken to Dr. Watson's office where his injuries were attended. He was badly bruised and cut about the face and hands but did not seem to be hurt internally.

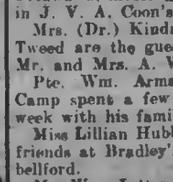
WOMAN GIVEN TWO DAYS

To Make Up Her Mind for Surgical Operation. She Refused; Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"One year ago I was very sick and I suffered with pains in my side and back until I nearly went crazy. I went to different doctors and they all said I had female trouble and would not get any relief until I would be operated on. I had suffered for four years before this time, but I kept getting worse the more medicine I took. Every month since I was a young girl I had suffered with cramps in my sides at periods and was never regular. I saw your advertisement in the newspaper and the picture of a woman who had been saved from an operation and this picture was impressed on my mind. The doctor had given me only two more days to make up my mind so I sent my husband to the drug store at once for a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and believe me, I only took four doses before I felt a change and when I had finished the third bottle I was cured and never felt better. I grant you the privilege to publish my letter and am only too glad to let other women know of my cure."—Mrs. THOS. McGONIGAL, 3432 Hartville Street, Phila., Pa.



ALFONSO GOES BETWEEN

Anxious Relatives of All Nations Offered Royal Aid

Describing the great work of relieving some of the suffering and anxiety of the war which is being carried out by King Alfonso of Spain, an Englishwoman writes from Madrid: "The Royal Palace of Madrid has been the scene of many strange events in the course of its chequered history, and to-day something is happening there which may not, indeed, arrest the attention of the historian, but which will leave a lasting impression in many a home throughout the length and breadth of Europe. One day a despairing mother wrote to King Alfonso imploring his help to find her missing soldier son. The King made inquiries through his Ambassador in Berlin, and the missing son was found. The good deed could not be hid, and letters began to arrive from all the belligerent nations and in many languages imploring his Majesty's aid in some sorrowful quest. The King, with his habitual generosity, undertook the work of mercy with a right good will and no small success, and the flood of correspondence greatly increased.

"In the northeast corner of the Palace, under the direction of Don Emilio de Torres, the King's private secretary, an office has been organized which, from small beginnings, is ever assuming larger proportions. Spain is charged with the interests of all the allied nations except England, both in Berlin and Vienna, and with the interests of Austria in Rome. No two letters are alike. The position may refer to some officer or soldier of one of the allied armies last heard of on any field of battle from Flanders to the Bukowina, from the Baltic to Mesopotamia; to a missing family in the occupied provinces of France or Belgium; to a wounded soldier to be released, or a condemned civilian to be reprieved. It may ask for news of a long lost child or petition for a marriage by proxy; it may be signed by the greatest lady in the land or by the humblest cottager; all receive equal attention.

"Each letter is docketed, indexed, and filed according to the subject matter and the country of origin, and acknowledged by return of post. The request is then forwarded with full particulars to Senor Polo de Bernabe, the Spanish Ambassador in Berlin, or to Senor Castro de Casales in Vienna, and through them to the German or Austrian Governments. The reply, as soon as received, is conveyed in a tactfully worded letter to the inquirer, often anticipating by a telegram if the news is good and accompanied if bad by an expression of the King's personal condolence; in this case the bad news is conveyed through the priest or the mayor of the parish, so that it may be broken gently and opportunely. Some idea of the extent of the work may be gathered from the fact that nearly 200,000 letters have already been dealt with from France alone, while the postal and telegraphic expenses are said to have amounted in two months to about $5,000."

SIGNS OF KIDNEY TROUBLE.

In the early stages kidney troubles are known by backache and urinary disorders. Later come dropsy, rheumatic pains and perhaps diabetes. But don't wait for these. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills will help you in a few hours. Their thorough action on the liver, kidneys and bowels will clear away the pains and the aches and make you well again.

PATRIOTISM

Patriotism, like Charity, should begin at home. The man who is willing at any time to protect his country against foreign foes should be willing AT ALL TIMES to protect his Family against such common foes as Poverty, Privation and Suffering.

A Life Insurance Company cannot take the place of a Husband.

BUT---

It can preserve the family from want.
It can lighten their load of care.
It can build a barrier against adversity.
It can strengthen the foundation of the home.
It can certify to a man's affectionate regard for his family.
It can place his widow beyond the need of carrying for support.
It can add to a man's years by freeing him from anxiety.
It can enhance the respect and esteem of the public and of his wife and children for him.

Complete and absolute Family protection may be had by your taking a policy in THE SUN LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY OF CANADA—The LEADING CANADIAN LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

On the Survey

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

I was second mate of the British steamer Forward during her two years of exploration in the mouth of the Amazon, and no other field could have been selected to furnish more daily adventure.

The Forward carried two six-pound cannon as her armament, and when loaded drew only five feet of water We were convoyed from Georgetown, in British Guiana, by a man-of-war and a brig, the latter to anchor where our captain directed and remain as a store ship and a haven for us in case of disaster.

We had a steam launch and two yawls for exploration where the steamer could not go, and there were six of us out in the launch one day making soundings in a great bend, when a monster crocodile rose to the surface close beside us, lunged forward and had his head and one leg over the gunwale before any one saw him. The engineer had a hatchet within reach, and with this he gave the reptile such a blow as made him draw off and sink out of sight. The launch had scarcely righted herself, however, when a full dozen more of the saurians rose to the attack. We should have been capsized and every man devoured alive had we been in one of the yawls. As it was, we drove ahead full speed and outran them, though some of them pursued us for half a mile, and we were nearly swamped with the water splashed into the boat. A few days later, one afternoon as the steamer came to anchor in a channel, the anchor must have dropped among a bed of sleeping crocodiles. They rose all about us, hissing and splashing, and this excitement brought up others until sixty-six enormous big fellows were to be counted at one time. They attacked the steamer with the utmost fury, and while their efforts were harmless their struggles rocked her as if she was at sea in a gale.

On another occasion one of these monsters did us a good turn. I had charge of one of the yawls which was sounding a channel. The men at the oars were pulling slowly against the current, while the one handling the lead was casting and calling out when zip! came a dart, from the sound it made. Either shore was too far off for a dart to reach us. Over our starboard bow as we pulled ahead was a long tongue of land reaching out from the right hand shore and ending in a pile of driftwood. The tongue had been created by drifting trees grounding on the bottom and the silt collecting to make a bar. I stood up in the boat and took a long look, but could see nothing. I ought to have been able to detect even a rabbit anywhere on that tongue or drift, as there were no bushes, but nothing whatever was in sight. I was in the act of sitting down, almost satisfied that we had all been deceived when a second arrow whisked so close to my cheek that I thought a bird had darted for my eye.

"A close call, sir, and it was a poisoned dart at that," said one of the men as I dropped back to my seat. "The infernal wretch must be in that driftwood, though I can't see him," added the man with the lead line.

We held the boat stationary and prepared to signal to the steamer, which was a mile below, when all of a sudden a fifteen foot crocodile landed on the tongue of land and began crawling toward the driftwood. He had just reached the pile when a native who had been skillfully concealed rose up with a cry of despair. He had a reed or blowgun in his hands, and he made frantic motions to us to save him. We were consulting what to do when the crocodile made a rush, drove him off the pile and followed after to catch him in the water. As we saw nothing of the man after that, we felt positive of his horrible fate, though we had no sympathy to waste.

The jaguar of the Amazon is also called a cougar, a puma and a panther, and he seems to be one and the same beast, no matter what the name. He is lithe, fierce and vigilant and an enemy to be dreaded by even the best armed men. We often saw pumas on the shore or crouched in trees and now and then floating past us on drifting logs, and their far reaching cries were always to be heard at night if we lay within a mile of the jungle. The only man of us killed in the two years met his fate at the hands of a jaguar and under singular circumstances. We had landed on the right hand shore and then paid out our rope cable by which we were fast to a tree to be safe from a cave-in during the night. The anchor watch for the night consisted of only one man, relieved at intervals of four hours.

The man who went on at midnight had been on duty only half an hour when a cave-in took place. A strip of the bank, which was four feet above water when we turned in dropped to the river, and with it the tree to which we were fast. The tree fell directly over the bows of the boat, but only its top coming aboard, and that without doing any great damage. We heard the man's shouts of alarm, but before any one had turned out it was all over with him. A jaguar had been hidden in the treetop, and as the tree fell it came aboard with it and at once sprang upon the watchman. He had the man by the throat and was sucking his blood as we turned out and finished him.

Many similar adventures filled our days before we finished our explorations on the Amazon.

Sandy Was Willing.

An old farmer and his wife were paying a visit to an exhibition in Glasgow and were deeply interested in the wonders which they saw. Overcome at the sights the old woman dropped into a chair and exclaimed:

"Oh, Sandy, this is just splendid! I could sit here a' me days."

"Aweel," said the farmer, "jist sit still, Jeanie, wummun. I'll no grudge the shilling."

Boots In Russia.

All Russians have a weakness for handsome footwear, and the result is that there are more pairs of showy boots worn in the czar's empire than anywhere else on earth. This preference extends to the women as well as to the men.

Pleased.

"You may say what you like about that new play of mine, but you've got to admit that it sends the audience away in good humor."

"That's very true. Most of them seemed to be glad it was over."

Freshly Defined.

"What's the honeymoon, pa?"

"The honeymoon, my son, is the only period in a man's life during which he considers it funny to come home and find that his dear little wife hasn't dinner ready on time."

Preposterous!

Officer — Why do you think he wouldn't make a good corporal? Sergeant (indicating sentry)—'Im a corporal! Lor' lummel Why, 'is name's Clarance!—London Punch.

Nearly Empty.

Theodosia—What do you think of my friend? Theodore—The only thing he had in his head was a cigarette and that was going out.

The Ink That Homer Used.

Ink of various hues was used by the ancient Romans, that of a purple tint being considered the exclusive fluid for the execution of all royal writings, as it was distinctively the royal color. It is said that Homer's works were written in letters of gold on a roll 120 feet in length, formed of the intestines of serpents, but we are left in ignorance as to the method of preparing this ink.

Badly Balanced.

A witty Frenchman wrote at the commencement of this century a very interesting and amusing book bearing the title, "Les Agremens et les Chagrins des Mariages." In this work the first four pages are devoted to the "agremens" (joys) and the remaining 350 to the "chagrins" (sorrows).

The Real Trouble.

He—Miss Hibrowe is completely disgusted with the modern young man. She says he is incapable of thought. She—What the poor girl really means is that the modern young man is incapable of thoughts of her.

No Novelty.

"When I took Mrs. Gaddy out for an automobile ride she was nervous all the time for fear we should strike somebody."

"That was all put on. She's used to running people down."

Not the Right Brand.

"I must request the congregation to contribute generously this morning," said the Rev. Mr. Smallfee sadly. "My stipend is eight months in arrears, and my creditors are pressing. I, of course, work largely for love, and love, equally of course, is tender, but it isn't legal tender."—London Tit-Bits.

LADIES AS OSTLERS.

Gentlewomen Do All the Work at Three Horse Depots.

A notable example of the utilisation of female labor in war-time is afforded by three large military horse depots at Reading.

There is not a single man on any of the staffs, the work of attending to the horses being done by gentlewomen. Some of them have been brought up in Australian and Canadian horse-ranches, but most of them are members of the South Berks and other hunts. The depots are convalescent homes for army horses. They have been organized by Mr. Cecil Aldin, the sporting artist and a joint master of the South Berks Hunt.

The fifty ladies working at the depots wear caps, short breeches, and gaiters. They meet the horses at the railway stations and do all that is necessary for their comfort, duly dispatching them from the railway stations when they are restored to health.—Tit-Bits.

Lamps of the Sea.

Many kinds of jellyfish are phosphorescent at night and present a wonderfully beautiful appearance when slowly moving through the water, and it is this phosphorescence which has given them the poetic title of "the lamps of the sea." They are not less beautiful in the daytime, for most of the species are striped or tinted, some being melon shaped, with rows of fringes dividing the sections. The tentacles are often plumed and while waving about in graceful curves attract or gather in the food of the animal. The "Portuguese man-of-war" is probably the best known as well as most attractive in form of the whole family.

Cholera Morbus.

"'Cholera morbus' is a term with a curious history," says the London Chronicle. "To our forefathers 'cholera' meant not necessarily a disease, but one of the four 'humors' present in every human body, as the bilious humor, excess of which made a man 'choleric.' 'Cholera' and 'choler,' in fact, meant just the same thing. So the comparatively mild ailment which we know as 'English' cholera was referred to as 'the disease cholera' or 'cholera morbus,' in order to distinguish it from the other sense of the word. Much later, when Asiatic cholera was introduced to the alarmed notice of England, 'cholera' got transferred to it."

Good Guess.

A musical director tells a story of the embarrassment evinced by a young woman at a reception given Mme. Schumann-Heink. The young woman was an enthusiastic admirer of the songstress, and she had often expressed to the hostess her intense desire to meet the celebrity. When, however, her turn came to be introduced to the famous woman she was so overcome that she lost her self possession completely.

Blushing deeply and twisting about the rings on her fingers, she managed to emit, "You—er—er—you sing, I believe."—Everybody's.

Malleable Glass of the Egyptians.

Strabo and Josephus both affirm that the Egyptian glass workers were so well skilled in their art that they imitated the amethyst and other precious stones to perfection. Malleable glass was one of the secret arts of the ancients, the formula for making it being now reckoned as lost. Strabo mentions a cup of glass which could be hammered into any desired shape, the material of which it was composed being as ductile as lead.

Bad Writer With a Good Memory.

Harvey Waters, an expert on patent cases, had occasion to write Rufus Choate on some important question and when he received the reply was unable to read a word of it, so took the missive to Mr. Choate and asked him what he had written. Mr. Choate replied, "I never can read my writing after the ink is dry, but if you tell me what it is about I will tell you what I have written." And he did!

All Clear.

"Now, my lad, I hope you have some clear and well defined idea as to what you want to be in life. That means everything to a young man."

"I know it, uncle. I want to be a doctor or a lawyer, or something like that."

Value of Reticence.

"What makes you think Stillwater is such a clever fellow? I never hear him say anything more than 'yes' or 'no.'"

"That's what convinces me he is clever."

Holding on to It.

Bill—Has he the saving habit? Jill—I think so. He showed me a cent he owned dated 1895.

Like the bee, we should make our industry our amusement.

Fully Occupied.

"Beauty is only skin deep."

"I consider that a wise provision of nature."

"Why so?"

"With that limitation the girls are kept busy enough."

Anatomical.

GREAT POTENTIAL WEALTH OF CANADA

TIMBER, COAL, OIL, NATURAL GAS AND MINERALS BEYOND CALCULATION, HERITAGE OF CANADIANS

PROSPECTS of new wealth in boundless quantities, through the application of science to industry, were unfolded the other day by Arthur D. Little, of Boston, in an address at the Royal Alexandra, at Winnipeg, after a luncheon given in his honor by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. Mr. Little represents the firm of Arthur D. Little, Inc., of Boston, an organization of chemists and engineers, whose specialty is industrial research.

At the invitation of Lord Shaughnessy, president of the Canadian Pacific, the firm established a branch in Montreal, and Mr. Little has undertaken to survey the resources of Canada. His address yesterday was partly the result of a tour through Canada, which he had made in company with George Bury, Vice-President of the C. P. R.

W. M. Ingram, president of the Manufacturers' Association, introduced the speaker.

Mr. Little explained that he was born in Boston, and therefore belonged to those who do not have to be born again. He was therefore surprised to find himself, after a brief acquaintance with Canada, undergoing an unexpected process of rebirth. He had found himself in a new and ampler world, in which one breathed a more stimulating atmosphere and learned to think in continental terms. It was a world in which present achievement, wonderful though it was, derived its chief significance from its promise of the future. He had seen the black soil of the prairies turning green with the young wheat, great stretches of forest, lakes like inland seas, mountains rich in minerals and of commanding beauty, noble rivers and cities so clean, orderly and metropolitan that the traveller's admiration was blended with envy. It had been his good fortune to come to Western Canada with George Bury, Vice-President and General Manager of the C. P. R. Mr. Bury's knowledge of conditions and potentialities throughout the country was so full that to travel with him was to receive a liberal education

Natural resources, proceeded Mr. Little, did not of themselves create great industries. Such industries resulted from personal initiative. Opportunity implied responsibility, and it was upon the heirs of this rich inheritance that the responsibility for a wise initiative was placed. The first requisite for a wise initiative was a compelling desire to do something with the opportunities at hand, and the second was knowledge. Science was only knowledge at its best; it was not something occult, to be followed for its own sake, but was intensely practical. The war had taught English-speaking people that science was the basis of prosperity and power, and that without science there could be no liberty and no national existence.

Mr. Little defined industrial research as research having for its immediate and avowed purpose some practical end. No greater service could be performed than that of inculcating into the public mind a proper appreciation of what research could do. For forty years the spirit of research had pervaded the entire social structure of Germany, with the result that Germany although not possessed of great natural resources, had before the war been rapidly making a peaceful conquest of the world. In the United States the handwriting on the wall was being read, and already several large corporations found it profitable to maintain great research laboratories. At least a dozen corporations spent $100,000 or more on such laboratories, and one company employed 650 chemists.

There was also, declared Mr. Little, an insistent demand throughout the British Empire for the mobilization, co-ordination and extension of research facilities. Lord Shaughnessy had acted by calling the organization represented by the speaker, Arthur D. Little, Inc., of Boston, to Canada, for the survey of the natural resources of the Dominion and the promotion of industrial research. He and his associates felt that, in so doing, Lord Shaughnessy had honored them so signally that they would be dishonored if they failed to make the most of the opportunity placed in their hands. They were not in Canada in the exclusive interest of any corporation, but to serve all clients whose interests were in line with those of the Dominion. Their work had scarcely begun. Ultimately they hoped to have the known resources of the Dominion indexed, so that the main facts about them would be instantly available. They expected to assist in securing new facts, and were assured of the cordial co-operation of the Federal Government and the universities. They would strive to introduce industries along new and non-competitive lines and, if permitted to, improve the practice of many existing industries. Some progress could be reported already, although they had only been in Canada a few weeks.

Mr. Little then mentioned a few of the lines in which applied science could help in the production of Canadian wealth. Sometimes as much as 20,000,000 acres were sown to flax in Canada for the grain only. It was not practicable, in view of the labor situation, to grow flax for the fibre in order to make linen. But mountains of flax straw resulted from the growing of flax for the seed, because when grown for that purpose it was sown much more sparsely than when grown for fibre, and its habit of growth was changed. Hundreds of thousands of tons of the best paper stock in the world could be obtained from this straw. And in the United States the Government was circularising housewives not to destroy old paper and rags, from which new paper could be made. It had not been an easy matter to separate the fibre required for paper from the broken straw. A great many people had tried it without success. His own company had carried out some experiments in its experimental paper mill at Boston, and had succeeded so well that the United States Government was taking the paper they produced. Samples of it were shown by the speaker. Such paper was worth 6 cents in any market, he said, and probably 8 cents. A mill established to manufacture it could afford to pay the farmers $3 a ton for flax straw delivered.

Another question they were investigating was the possibility of providing gasoline from natural gas. A new process for effecting this end had been developed in Oklahoma. It was of peculiar promise, and his company had taken out a license to use it in Canada. If some of the gasoline thus obtained contained too much sulphur, probably it could eventually be eliminated by an adaptation of the French process, which had proved so successful in taking sulphur out of oil. By this method, copper was put into the oil, and the sulphur attacked the copper, leaving the oil pure. There was much lignite in Canada. This was a good gas producer, and a new type of machine, a rotary, which worked well with lignite, had recently been made available.

Another possibility for Canada, said the speaker, was the production of dry milk. Several processes for doing this had been invented. Sterilized it kept good for a long time, and for certain purposes, including those of bakers and confectioners, was better than ordinary milk. It could be restored to the condition of ordinary milk by the addition of water. He was convinced that it would become a staple article on the kitchen shelf. Its great merit was that, in shipping, seven-eighths of the freight on ordinary milk was saved, and dairies could profitably be established at points remote from markets. About $15,000 worth of dried milk entered London daily from Scandinavia, and quantities were going into New York. Properly handled, the dried milk industry could become in Canada more important than the cheese industry.

Another thing about milk, said Mr. Little, was the fact that thousands of gallons of skim milk were daily fed to hogs. Casein, worth 30 cents a pound, could be easily extracted from skim milk.

One of the most promising fields for industrial research was that afforded by the enormous quantity of straw, for which Canadians had no present use. Some things could be done with straw already; straw boards and corrugated board could be made. A straw lumber, suitable for cheap outhouses and partitions, could be made at a cost of not more than $5 or $6 a ton. He believed something might be done with it in the rotary gas producer. The distillation products of straw were worth looking into, also the possibility of converting it into fuel for use on the farm. Grain alcohol had been made from straw, although the commercial value of this process was not yet assured.

Few nations were so bounteously endowed with potential wealth as Canada. There was merchantable timber in such profusion that a single island on the Pacific coast boasted the greatest amount of such timber in proportion to its acreage in the world. There was coal in all varieties, from lignite to anthracite; oil and natural gas; the finest fisheries known; mineralls beyond present calculation; vast areas of fertile soil. What could not be done with them, with the aid of industrial research?

Speaking of the lumber industry, Mr. Little said, the Canadian lumbering practice was not better than the best in the United States. In the States, two-thirds of a tree felled in the yellow pine belt was wasted as litter in the field or burned as mill waste. Three dollars a thousand was a good profit on lumber. For 15,000,000,000 feet board measure which found its way to market, 30 billion feet were wasted. This was not industry; it was crime.

A few months ago there had been 2,000,000 automobiles in the United States, and they were increasing at the rate of 4,000 a day. These machines represented 60,000,000 horse-power in gasoline engines. That was more than the potential horse-power of the United States water power. Auto manufacturers were bringing in an additional 100,000 horse-power a day. The unprecedented increase in the demand for gasoline thus caused was responsible for the high price of that commodity, and soon there would not be enough gasoline to go round. Alcohol was the only feasible substitute, and grain alcohol—not wood alcohol—could be produced from wood waste. A plant for doing this had been started in Louisiana.

The speaker concluded by indicating the industrial possibilities of electro-chemical and electra-metallurgical processes. As showing what they had already succeeded in doing, he said that ten years ago 2% per cent. of steel rails manufactured were rejected for faults. Whereas out of ten thousand tons of rails made in the electric furnace in three years there were no failures. Exceedingly interesting experiments were also being made in producing synthetic materials by the use of the ultra-violet rays. Great results were likely to come from this line of research.

Industrial research was applied to idealism. It expected rebuffs. It learned from every stumble, and turned a stumbling-block into a stepping-stone. It trusted the scientific imagination, knowing it to be simply logic in flight.

A Long Sleep.

A Swedish girl holds the record for long sleeping. She came home from her work soon after her fourteenth birthday, complaining of toothache, and went to bed. Soon afterward she fell asleep and slept without waking from 1870 to 1907, a period of thirty-two years.

Her only nourishment during this period was two cupfuls of milk a day. She fully awoke at the age of forty-six and immediately asked for her mother, who was dead. She did not recognize her brothers, whom she had known as little boys. She remembered nothing during her trance. Yet her recovery was absolute. She became well and hearty in every way.

Historic Knowledge.

Imagine the civilized world waking up tomorrow morning with every trace of historic knowledge and all memory of what has occurred in the past wiped completely out of mind and placed beyond recovery. The world would fall into confusion. There would be no guidance for statesmen or for scientists.

Every new problem would have to be solved by the long and painful method of trial and error. There would be no stimulus of pride, emulation and confidence springing from the recollection of man's past achievements. A nation without history would be like a man without memory.

A Troublesome Creditor.

The poet Clement Marot, being in very straitened circumstances, went to the king and said, "I have come to lay before your majesty a complaint against one of my creditors whose claims I have satisfied over and over again, and yet he persists in dunning and harassing me every day."

"Who is the scoundrel?" the king inquired.

"My stomach, sire. Though I have satisfied its wants time without number, it never ceases to torment, and I am utterly incapable of meeting its demands."

The king was pleased with the joke and allowed the poet a pension on the spot.

Holding the Shade.

"When a shade is drawn in front of an open window," says the Woman's Home Companion, "it will often blow fat into the room and be no protection whatever. This device is hardly visible and solves the problem perfectly: Put screw eyes at top and bottom of window sash and through the slat on each side of the shade. Fasten cord in top screw eye, run through the eye at method to slat and tie securely in lower screw eye. The curtain may then be raised and lowered with perfect ease, and there will be no flapping. Neither will there be any risk of damage to the unruly shade."

MEXICO'S NEW ARMY.

The Mexican army of to-day is as different from that of the time when Porfirio Diaz thought he had 32,000 soldiers, and woke to find barely 14,000, as is the German army that swept through Belgium different from our handful of 50,000 down in Texas. Six years ago the Mexican army was composed of the riffraff of Mexico, convicts, political prisoners, drab slaves who served because they owed money to some friend of the government, or wretches who had had the misfortune to marry women whose beauty attracted the eye of some other friend of those in power. Unlike the "rurales," who, having been bandits and highwaymen, still preserved their air of freedom and independence because they had been bought and not enslaved, the regular army of the Diaz administration was herded to its work as the Russians were driven into battle at Port Arthur, or bound, as Gautemalan soldiers are, chained to their barracks lest they flee.

To-day, the Mexican army is composed of free men, most of them bandits, it is true, many of them murderers, few of them to be trusted, out of sight of their commanding officers, but all fighting because they want to fight, not because they have to fight. And those who judge the coming opposition of the Mexican army of 1916 by that which the forces of Santa Ana put up nearly 70 years ago are as mistaken as those who would attempt to compare the Armada with the British North Sea fleet.—Cartoon's Magazine.

GOES TO NURSE BROTHERS.

Two Wounded on the Somme with Newfoundland Regiment.

NEW YORK, July 31.—Among the passengers arriving yesterday from St. John's N. F., on the Red Cross Line steamship Stephano was Miss Elsie Herder, who sailed on the American liner St. Paul to nurse her brothers, Ralph and Arthur Herder. They are in a hospital in England recovering from wounds received in the recent heavy fighting on the Somme, in Western France, where the eldest brother, Hubert, was killed.

The Newfoundland regiment, to which the three Herders belonged, distinguished itself so prominently that President Poincaire, of France, has named a wood St. John's Wood, after the cemetery at the capital of Newfoundland.

Miss Herder, who is a daughter of William J. Herder, proprietor of The Evening Telegram of St. John's, N. F. Three other young women from St. John's will accompany Miss Herder to England to-morrow to serve as nurses in the military hospitals.

PINEAPPLE PRESERVE.

Twelve pineapples cut in slices, peeled and eyes taken out. Put through coarse grinder. Put pan under to catch juice. Use one cup of sugar to pineapple; add sugar and let stand over night. In the morning cook until transparent; then it is ready for jars. This will take from 4 to 6 quarts.

ONE GRAFT DOLLAR SNARES 20 POLICE

Crumpled Bill Used to Silence Prisoner Points to Score of Indictments

EVIDENCE IS PILING UP

Women Tell in Affidavits of Extortion at Hands of Vice Squad Members.

NEW YORK, July 29.—A crumpled dollar bill handed to a police spy by a detective in front of the Yorkville Prison may put a score of policemen behind the bars. It was this happening, reported by another policeman who saw it, that inspired the police graft investigation by District Attorney Swann that has resulted in the indictment of five members of the force on charges of extortion. It is expected to produce three more indictments by the Grand Jury of policemen whose names have not heretofore been mentioned in connection with the white slave inquiry.

According to the District Attorney's office, the dollar bill was handed to Max Turkowitz by Detective William J. Enright of the Vice Squad on June 29 as a price for "keeping his mouth shut." The story was made public after Turkowitz had received a suspended sentence from Judge Mulqueen in the Court of General Sessions when he pleaded guilty to the extortion charge.

Turkowitz and David Cohen, for many months spies for Detectives Enright and Foley of the Vice Squad, both now under indicement on graft charges, were arrested on June 28 on a charge of extortion for representing themselves to women of the underworld as agents from the District Attorney's office and extorting money to save them from arrest.

Detective Saw Prisoner.

According to the District Attorney, Foley went to the prison in Fifty-Seventh Street at 2 o'clock on the afternoon of June 28, displayed his badge, and demanded to see Turkowitz. According to affidavits by Turkowitz and others in the hands of the District Attorney, Foley said to Turkowitz:

"Enright went down to Deputy Police Commissioner —— and asked if he could testify for you. The Commissioner said yes."

Then, according to the affidavits Foley asked Turkowitz:

"Do you need any money?"

"No," was the alleged reply.

"Don't you be afraid," Foley is said to have told the prisoner. "We will put you out. Enright and I will testify for you, and we will have the complainants held for perjury."

Turkowitz's case was postponed until 2 o'clock the next day. On the morning of June 29 he was indicted by the Grand Jury, and Patrolman Conway got the warrants for the arrest of Turkowitz and Cohen. When he appeared at the Police Court with the warrants Turkowitz and Cohen were released on the extortion charge, so that Conway could arrest them for the District Attorney. According to Conway, when Turkowitz and Cohen left the Police Court, Enright and Foley were standing outside of the door, although not officially connected with the case. Conway reported that Enright handed money to Turkowitz and said:

"Me and Foley will be a witness for you. Don't be afraid and don't talk."

Turkowitz told the District Attorney it was a dollar bill that Enright gave him. Enright, Foley and Turkowitz were for a time in the Tombs together and District Attorney Swann issued strict orders that the accused policemen should not be allowed to communicate with their spies.

Immunity and Revenge.

Some seeking immunity but more for revenge, denizens of the underworld, went to the District Attorney's office to tell what they knew about the activities of grafting policemen. Apart from these was one woman, whom Assistant District Attorney James E. Smith described as of unimpeachable character, who told a remarkable story which may lead to new charges against Enright. She will repeat her story to the Grand Jury as one of the District Attorney's most important witnesses. Mr. Smith refused to divulge her name.

She told Mr. Smith that soon after December, 1914, when the graft ring is said to have been organized, that her maid, a respectable married woman with a child 7 years old, had been "framed" by the police and their spies on the charge that the boarding house in which she was employed was a disreputable resort to extort money from her. She went to the police station following the arrest of the maid and said she was met there by Enright, who told her he would get a lawyer for her. She told him she already had a lawyer but Enright persisted in taking her to the office of a lawyer, who, after a whispered conversation with the detective, offered to take her case for a fee she couldn't afford to pay. She said Enright then took her to the office of another lawyer who demanded twice as much as the first.

The next day, she said, the maid was bailed out. That afternoon, her affidavit says, Enright went to her house while she was alone and made indecent proposals to her. She finally got him out of the house. The maid was discharged later, the police charge having proved groundless.

A Woman's Affidavit.

Another woman who gave an affidavit to Mr. Smith was Sadie Lipschitz, a one-time keeper of a disorderly house in other days, who reformed, married, and lives on the east side with her husband. They have a daughter, 16 years old, who works in a Broadway department store.

She swore that one day last year she was out shopping when Enright went to her house and waiter for her return. When she came back Enright told her she was under arrest for running a disorderly house and her husband for soliciting. She swore that while Enright was charging that her daughter was one of the disorderly inmates of her home the girl came in with her pay envelope. She exhibited the envelope to Enright as proof of her daughter's respectability, but Enright took her and her husband to the police station

Her affidavit said that in the afternoon of the next day, after she had been bailed out, Enright sent word that he wanted to see her. She said that when she met him, the detective told her that for $700 he could settle both cases. Her husband's case was to come up in the afternoon and her own in the Night Court. She said she went to a pawnshop and got a loan of $450 on her diamond earrings. Mr. Smith said he had the pawn tickets as part of the evidence.

Then, according to the woman's affidavit, she met Enright just before her husband's case was called and gave him $350. She said she was to deposit $350 more with a go-between before her case came up that night. Her husband was dismissed, but she was unable to raise the other $350 by the time her case was called at night, and she got a three months' sentence on the Island.

Mr. Smith said Magistrate Murphy was on the bench that night, and that he had sent for the minutes of the hearing to see exactly what the woman had reported to the Magistrate. He also said that an investigation of the case was made last year, but that he hadn't been able to learn the result. The woman served her three months' terms. Mr. Smith believes she was innocent.

Plenty of Witnesses

"There are a great many such stories," said District Attorney Swann in whose presence Mr. Smith repeated what the woman had told him, "and we have to sift the grain from the chaff before we present the witnesses to the Grand Jury. If all of our witnesses told their stories to the Grand Jury it would be swamped.

"The evidence gathered by this office does not show any widespread grafting in the Police Department, but indicates that it was confined to a comparatively few. The evidence is cumulative against those who have been indicted and much evidence has been collected against others. The particular ring of grafters we are after began its operations late in 1914 and it is amazing that it has assumed such proportions without coming to light."

Mr. Swann has received letters from many policemen in the ranks asking that he do everything in his power to stamp out grafting in the department. The District Attorney said that Commissioner Woods and the other police officials were doing everything in their power to aid his investigation. Five policemen have been indicted and evidence has been gathered against about fifteen more.

Something to Step On.

We don't get very high in this world unless we have something to step on. That is why we put risers in stairs and rounds in ladders.

When we were boys if we could stick our toenails into a crevice in the bark of a tree, be it ever so shallow, we could shin up to the top all right. When we got to the lowest branch we were all right. After that we could pull ourselves up easier. But it did seem a long ways to the lower limbs sometimes.

That is the story of all life—getting the feet on something and then springing up.

"She is as strong as a man and twice as brave. Three times while in our employ she captured burglars single handed and held them until the police arrived and saved hundreds of dollars' worth of silver and jewelry."

All the manager of the employment agency had to do when that girl needed a situation was to read that letter out loud, and there ensued a wild scramble among his customers for the strong fisted maid

Duration of a Wink.

The time occupied by the several phases of the movement has been measured, and it is found that the mean duration of the descent of the lid is from seventy-five to ninety one-thousandths of a second.

The interval while the eye is shut was in one case only fifteen-hundredths of a second. The rising of the lid occupies seventeen-hundredths of a second. A specially arranged photographic apparatus was used. The popular phrase that something is done "quicker than a wink" is therefore expressive to a degree that may be stated in fractions of a second.

Crafty Red Squirrels.

The red squirrel is as crafty as he is quick. He'll select three or four places to store nuts, so if one is discovered he has reserve supplies. And he never makes a mistake and put away worm eaten nuts. The red squirrel knows a wormy nut as soon as he picks it up and revolves it in his paws.

Ever see him eat a hickory nut? He sits up on his hind legs with his tail curved over his back, holding the nut in his forepaws. First he drills a little hole in the shell with his sharp teeth, breaking away the shell a little at a time until he can get at the kernel.

If the red squirrel limited his diet to nuts he would have more friends. But sometimes he adds a store of the farmer's corn to his underground nest. He's a robber of birds' nests, too, and you'll see him perched on a limb eating an egg as innocently as though he were cracking a walnut.

Dangerous Learning.

A little learning is a dangerous thing, but a little too much learning is still more dangerous. To have too much learning sets you so far above your fellow mortals and fills you with such contempt for them that you cannot be comfortable in their presence nor they in yours. Beyond a certain point learning ceases to be of use and becomes a burden, because nobody can comprehend what you are talking about. Thus it happens that men are so learned sometimes that the only way society can live with them is to shut them away in some asylum.

So, then, follow Pope's advice, "Drink deep or taste not the Pierian spring," but don't drink too deep. Which is much the same as saying that a happy medium in the matter of learning is just as happy as any other happy medium.

BULWER-LYTTON.

His Dandified Dress, Mobile Face and Piercing Eyes.

In his book, "Forty Years of 'Spy,'" Leslie Ward, the artist, recalls that Bulwer-Lytton "had a remarkably narrow face with a high forehead. His nose was piercingly aquiline and seemed to swoop down between his closely set blue eyes, which changed in expression as his interest waxed and waned. When he was interested by questioning his neighbor he became almost satanic looking, and his glance grew so keenly inquisitive as to give the appearance of a 'cast' in his eyes.

"Carefully curled hair crowned his forehead, and his bushy eyebrows, beard and mustache gave a curious expression to his face, which was rather pale, except in the evening, when he slightly 'touched up,' as the dandies of his day were in the habit of doing. His beau ideal was D'Orsay, and he showed the nicest care in the choice of his clothes. His trousers were baggy as they tapered downward and rather suggested a sailor's in the way they widened toward the feet.

"I can see him now standing on the hearth rug awaiting the announcement of dinner dressed 'up to the eyes' and listening with bent, attentive head to his guests. It was typical of Lord Lytton that he listened to the most insignificant of his guests with all the deference that he would have shown to the greatest. Replacing his hookah (for he smoked opium), he would be silent for a considerable time, watching us out of his odd eyes, and when he spoke it was in a soft voice, which he never raised above a low tone. He told many stories of 'Disra-eel-i,' whose name he pronounced with a slow deliberation."

Some Exercise.

Walking is the best exercise. Do some of it every day. Next to walking comes bowling. You can't throw a bowling ball without stooping clear to the floor, and every stoop stimulates the liver and exercises the intestines. Fifty per cent of the sickness in the world would be eliminated if everybody bowled. Walk or bowl every day. And at night lie flat on your back and raise your legs above your head slowly as many times as you can without fatigue. Then, anchoring your toes under a weight of some sort, raise and lower the body. These two exercises repeated fifteen or twenty times night and morning will do a lot for you. And you'll be surprised to find how quickly you develop endurance. Start with five times and increase each day or two until you reach twenty.—Woman's Home Companion.

THE TONIC THAT BRINGS HEALTH

"Fruit-a-tives" Builds Up The Whole System

Those who take "Fruit-a-tives" for the first time, are often astonished at the way it builds them up and makes them feel better all over. A Shabby Royal Palace.

The Persian royal palace is a most unattractive place. The courts are filled with painted figures of cast iron in a kind of operatic Romeo's costume, and with boys of gilt iron offering vermilion cups to gilt eagles. The tanks are stagnant and shabby, the gardens neglected. The rooms are horrible even for one of those monuments of bad taste called royal palaces; the walls are covered with mirrors, and a decoration made of small pieces of mirror set in elaborate patterns, the effect reminding one of a wedding cake. The furniture is without exception European, of poor quality and worse taste; there is not a single one of those exquisite works of Persian art which in the collections of Europe arouse enthusiasm—not so much as a fine carpet. Neither the famous peacock throne—so long erroneously thought to be the one built for the great moghal and looted by Nadir Shah—nor any of the jewels are now exhibited. Local gossip believes them to have been broken up and sold in Europe by the present government. —"From Moscow to the Persian Gulf."

WHAT ABOUT THE UNSOLD OVERSTOCKS?

July and August are the best months to clear out overstocks.

Merchandise that is not likely to ever bring first prices, and which must be sold, sooner or later at Bargain Prices, can be made a magnet for bargain-loving customers.

A turn-over during July and August at a small profit is far better than a stagnant business.

Let stocks circulate and relieve the congestion.

KEEP THE WHEELS OF BUSINESS SPINNING

But you say: "So many buyers have gone away, —are up the lakes, or away somewhere else on their vacations."

While it is true that many families go away for a portion or all of the summer, it is also true that visitors to the city usually keep up the local population to its ordinary level.

Eaton's or Simpson's in Toronto, keep up business all through the summer, by selling overstocks every single day. Toronto sends its train loads of families to Muskoka and elsewhere; yet these big stores keep the wheels of business spinning by planning ahead—and with the good help of plenty of advertising.

July and August need not be dull. Change the lean months for fat ones.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

CHILD'S ROMPERS.

By Anabel Worthington.

Every woman knows the rompers to be a remarkably serviceable play garment. Especially in the warm weather does it belong in the first rank. There are times, though, when more than one woman has longed for something that would savor a little more of the artistic and yet be out of the suit or dress class of garments for children. With pleasure, then, we can regard the one in the illustration, No. 7,834, a new fashion in rompers that has descended upon us quite recently.

This will appeal especially to the mother who has been unwilling to, at certain times, put just plain rompers on the boy or girl her "very own." The picture tells that the model is buttoned on the shoulder, has a pocket, and bloomers belted at the waist. Nothing more effective than the ever pleasing scalloping could be employed to finish the neck, pocket and sleeves, and an embroidered design at yoke line will give cause for greater admiration.

Blue or tan linen, white repp, ratine, &c. will be suitable for developing, but galatea, madras and other fabrics will be desirable without the embroidered design. The pattern is cut in sizes 2, 4 and 6 for No. 7,834.

You may obtain the pattern by sending to the office of this publication

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

The French Win New Ground North and South of Somme

Germans Lose Heavily in Attacks on Vaux Chapter Wood --Russians Make Rapid Progress in Their Movement to Envelope Kovel--Terminus of Lemberg Line Has Fallen Into Hands of Czar's Forces--Deutschland Has Sailed

UNDERSEA FREIGHTER LEAVES BALTIMORE

PARIS, August 2.—(French Official).—French onslaughts have won additional ground from the Germans, both north and south of the Somme, according to the official communique. A German gain, after many unsuccessful attacks, was admitted in Vauxchapter Wood, but the enemy's losses were said to be heavy. North of the Somme we captured a powerful fortified work between Hem and Monacu, the statement declared. South of the Somme we occupied a German trench north-west of Dennecourt.

In the Champagne zone, west of Aubrives, Russian forces charged and dispersed a German detachment at the point of the bayonet.

On the right bank of the Meuse, along the Vauxchapter and Lechenois front, a violent struggle continued all night. After many unsuccessful attacks, in most of which asphyxiating gases were used, the Germans gained a little ground in Vauxchapter Wood. They were elsewhere repulsed. The German losses were enormous. One hundred prisoners fell into the hands of the French.

On the Somme front there was extraordinary air activity. The communique mentioned 33 aerial combats by French airmen over the German lines. One German aeroplane, attacked by two Nieuports, fell in flames. Fourteen other German machines were obliged to land, badly damaged.

DEUTSCHLAND ON HER PERILOUS TRIP

Examiner Special:

NORFOLK, Va., August 2.—The German cargo submarine Deutschland passed Tangier Island, fifty miles up from Cape Charles, at six o'clock this morning, but had not been heard from nearer Norfolk at 8.30 a.m. In this port it was believed she might not come into Hampton Roads until nightfall. A possibility that the Deutschland would shoot on out through the capes without touching here was seen in the fact that the thick weather of the early morning made conditions perfect for the hazard. The heavy haze concealed boats at a distance of two miles. This same haze has hidden the warships of the Allies lying somewhere outside, and caused the commander of the U.S. steamer North Carolina to bring the American neutrality protector inside Cape Henry, where she waited early this morning for the Deutschland to appear.

BRITISH TROOPS GAINING AT POSIERES

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, August 2.—British troops are still grappling in hand-to-hand combat with the Germans around Pozieres, but are gaining, according to General Sir Douglas Haig's report from the front to-day. "During the night additional progress had been made along the hostile trenches east of Pozieres. There," he said, "the fighting is in close quarters between small detachments, and was still in progress."

GERMANS ATTACK CONVOY OF WOUNDED

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PETROGRAD, August 2.—The War Office statement detailed rifle and artillery duels "at various places." An attack on a transport carrying wounded occurred at Dusitchi. The bombs which the Teuton aviator dropped killed one and injured twenty. The same aeroplane dropped bombs over a divisional hospital, killing one and injuring eight orderlies.

"The Caucasus advance continues."

Russian Wedge is Making Progress

Special to the Examiner.

PETROGRAD, August 2.—The Russian wedge separating the Austrian and German forces, was thrust still further forward to-day. Not only has the separation been virtually accomplished, but to-day unofficial advices here indicated rapid progress of the movement from the south enveloping Kovel. Although official statements were silent, military experts here believed that the terminus of the only remaining railroad line to Lemberg, at Stojanof, has probably fallen before the advance north-west of Brody. The railway routes to the Galacian city from the east to the west would in that case all be in Russian hands. The utilization of those and other railroad lines in Galicia will greatly aid the Russians in their advance.

Dutch Steamer is Sunk by a Sub

LONDON, August 2.—The Dutch steamer Zeeland was submarined during last night. The crew was landed safely at South Shields.

CHEESE OUTPUT IS DOWN BUT PRICE IS MUCH HIGHER

G. A. Gillespie Paid 17½c This Morning for 2,368 Boxes of Cheese—Lively Bidding Boosted the Price

EFFECT OF DRY SPELL

Aug. 2—2,368 boges at 17 5-8c.
July 19—2,609 boxes at 16 1-2c.
July 5—2,869 boxes at 15 7-8c.
June 21—2,772 boxes at 16c.
May 30—2,088 boxes at 16 5-16c.

July's dry spell is reflected in the above figures representing the gradually declining flow of milk during the past month. Up and down the country the scorched pasturage has meant a twenty per cent. decrease in the quantity of milk received during the past two weeks. This comparison is made with the high cheese production of the year.

At this morning's Board sale the factories chalked up about three hundred boxes less than two weeks ago, but this was largely covered by the big price of 17 5-8c. Mr. Gillespie filled one order of 1,000 boxes at this price, and took the rest of the Board at 17 9-16c. Among the latter were the Trewern and Killarney salesmen who with modern cold storage rooms remarked, "That's a poor acknowledgment of cold storage in hot weather." They wanted the additional 1-16 cent, but Mr. Gillespie said he had filled his first order and could not take any more at that price. Besides the difference was inappreciable.

Mr. W. S. Cooke—You gentlemen with cold storage are saving two to four pounds a box this warm weather. It is saving you money and you have nothing to complain about.

The Boarding.

The factories boarded as follows:

Keene	80
Warminster	120
Shearer	135
Selwyn	110
Villiers	80
Warsaw	170
Westwood	190
Oakdale	100
Myrtle	135
Ormonde	120
Young's Point	157
Lang	160
East Emily	110
Trewern	165
Norwood	195
Fleetwood	110
Killarney	97
Mt. Pleasant	59
Missing Link	75
	2,368

..The Bidding.

Mr. Cook opened at 16 cents and by sixteenths and quarters the price went to 17 5-8 with Mr. Thompson and Mr. Gillespie setting the pace.

At 17 5-8 cents, Mr. Gillespie bought Keene, Villiers, Westwood, East Emily, Norwood, Warsaw, Ormonde and Selwyn.

At 17 9-16c. he secured the rest of the Board.

The adjournment was made for two weeks.

TO RICE LAKE TO-MORROW AFTERNOON

The steamer "Stoney Lake" has arranged to make a trip to Gore's Landing and return to-morrow afternoon for the benefit of all who can avail themselves of the half holiday. The steamer is timed to leave her George street wharf at 1.30, and the Street Railway wharf at 2.00. As the Stoney Lake is commodious, well equipped and speedy, this affords an opportunity for spending a pleasant time on the water for a small price. These Thursday afternoon trips are becoming quite popular, and citizens should take advantage of them to get away from the heated city for an afternoon.

TWO PETERBORO' BOYS IN HEAVY ARTILLERY

ANOTHER PETERBORO' BOY GIVES HIS LIFE FOR EMPIRE'S CAUSE

Pte. Harold McClunnan Who Left Peterborough With the 39th Battalion Early Last Year Killed in Action--- Lindsay Battalion Has Arrived Safely in England---Ambulance Recruits Leave For Kingston--To-day's Military News.

Another Peterborough soldier has given his life for the Empire. In last night's list of casualties issued from Ottawa, appears the name of Pte. Harold McClunnan, officially reported killed in action. Pte. McClunnan enlisted in Peterborough with the 39th Battalion on February 19, 1915, and after training with the 39th here and at Belleville, went overseas with Colonel Preston's unit. Afterwards he was transferred to another battalion at the front. Pte. McClunnan, who was only nineteen years of age, was popular with his comrades in the 39th. He lived at 98 Lafayette avenue while in Peterborough, and had no relatives here, his next of kin residing the Old Country.

OTTAWA, August 1.—It is officially announced through the chief press censor's office that the following troops have arrived safely in England:

102rd British Columbia Battalion, 109th Ontario Battalion, Lindsay, Ont., 112th Nova Scotia Battalion, 115th New Brunswick Battalion, 116th Ontario Battalion; drafts and details.

BROCKVILLE, August 1. — The presentation of colors to the 156th Battalion by the Daughters of the Empire will take place at Barriefield Camp, instead of Brockville, as was originally intended. The arrangements for the event clashed with the Civic Holiday celebration.

The Kingston Whig says: There is a decided feeling of dissatisfaction among the officers at Barriefield camp over the way that the 4th Pioneer Battalion of Ottawa has been managed or mismanaged.

From the very start this unit has been the cause of the greatest amount of trouble and the severest criticism should be recorded against such an institution.

The battalion was authorized very suddenly and without any notice being given headquarters at Ottawa one day sent a young officer down to Barriefield to chose twenty men from each of the nine units then in camp here. The battalions were caught while on parade and without even informing the officers in command of his intention he ordered the battalions to come to attention while he asked for volunteers.

He explained in suave language that the English War Office had sent out an S.O.S. call for 1,000 pioneers to cut wood and do sundry odd jobs around England. The call was so urgent that the men were to be chosen from already organized overseas units and taken directly to England. In every unit some twenty men fell out and were hastily signed up before they could realize how foolish was their choice. The twenty wer taken to Ottawa under the promise that they would be going overseas between June 18th and June 17th, according to the address as heard at the time by a Whig representative. To-day not one platoon has moved from Ottawa, where the officers and men are doing the right foot, left foot, while some of the battalions that the men left are now in England.

It will be remembered that the resentment against such a high-handed piece of busines was shown up at the time by the resignation of Lieut.-Col. C. A. Low being offered. It was not accepted, as the camp headquarters explained that they had absolutely nothing to do but obey orders. The rank injustice can only be stopped by the return of the men to their units.

Eight more Peterborough boys left this morning on their first step towards the European battle fields, when the squad of recruits for Queen's University Field Ambulance left for Barriefield camp. A number of friends of the boys were on hand to say goodbye. In addition to the list given yesterday W. Connors also went with the squad. Capt. Kennedy did not accompany the recruits, but will remain here until Saturday, so that there is still a chance for local men to get into line with this desirable unit.

From the battle front the following verses have been sent to The Examiner:

CANADA.

We give thee but thine own,
Whate'er the gift may be;
All that we have is thine alone,
We die, Oh Canada, for thee.

May we thy bounties thus
As stewards true receive,
And gladly as thou gavest us,
To thee our best fruits give.

Oh, hearts are trained and dead,
And homes are bare and cold,
And hopes for which our fathers bled
Are passing from our hold.

To comfort and to dress
Those wounded by the foe,
To tend the lame and sightless,
Is woman's work below.

Captive nations to release,
Freedom to the earth to bring:
Life to sacrifice for peace—
It is a man-like thing.

And this our order, "Carry on,"
Though the end be out of sight,
Until Britannia from her throne
Looks down in peaceful might.

RESULT NOT IN DOUBT SAYS HAIG

The Third Year of the War Will Bring the Deserved Punishment to Germany Says the British Commander-in-Chief.

FOE ON DEFENSIVE

Special Cable to The Examiner:

PARIS, Aug. 2.— Gen. Sir Douglas Haig, after reviewing the main events of the war on the eve of France's third year of participation in it, makes the following pronouncement :"The German army is now reduced to the defensive everywhere. The success of the month of July in Picardy is only the beginning of a new era and must assure progressively the triumph of the allies. The task can still be long and painful, but the result is not in doubt. The third year of the war bring the deserved punishment to Germany.

PUBLIC MEETING WILL BE HELD IN VICTORIA PARK

Second Anniversary of the Declaration of War Will Be Observed on Friday Evening Next — Returned Soldiers Invited To Be Present

BAND WILL BE OUT

On Friday evening a public meeting will be held in Victoria Park in recognition of the second anniversary of the declaration of war. The meeting is being held in compliance with the proclamation of the Lieutenant-Governor, appointing that day to be observed. His Worship Mayor Duffus will preside. Addresses will be delivered by his Honour Judge Huycke and Mr. D. O'Connell. A resolution will be submitted reaffirming the belief of the people of Peterborough in the righteousness of the cause for which we are fighting, and their inflexible determination to assist in continuing the struggle until victory is achieved.

The band of the 57th Regiment will be in attendance. All Peterborough soldiers who have returned from overseas are asked to be on the platform in uniform, and those who have returned since the last public reception on May 24th, will be given a reception. The returned soldiers have been written to, but in case any letters have not been received owing to changes in addresses, or otherwise, they are asked to be present whether or not they have received the formal notification.

Steamer Stoney Lake Will Take the Excursion—Leave George St. Wharf at 8:15 O'clock

Don't miss the opportunity of a nice sail down the River to-night, on the Overseas Club Tobacco Fund Moonlight excursion. It will be an ideal night and the proceeds of the excursion are to be devoted to a good object. Music on board. The boat leaves at 8.15 from George Street Wharf, and will return at a very reasonable hour.

NICKEL PLANT TO LOCATE AT PORT COLBORNE

OTTAWA, Ont., August 2. — The Canadian plant of the International Nickle Company is to be located at Port Colborne, on Lake Erie. Four hundred acres of land have been purchased for the work, which will cost from three and a half to four million dollars. The company state that it will break ground at once and commence work on the new structure.

Alex Lajeunesse Loses Two Fingers

Mr. Aleric Lajeunesse, son of Andrew Lajeunesse, who lives at the corner of Townsend and Stewart Streets, lost two fingers yesterday at the De Laval Dairy Supply Co., where he is employed. The accident occurred yesterday afternoon, and the injured man was removed to St. Joseph's Hospital, where his hand was dressed by Dr. J. H. Eastwood. He was taken to his home on Stewart Street late last evening.

THE ADVANTAGE.

Of calling to see Dr. Lacey when you are troubled with your eyes or head, is that you know you will receive satisfaction. If you are suffering from headache he will tell you whether you need glasses or not. Broken lenses duplicated and repair work.—Peterborough Optical Parlors, 410 George Street.

Fire Victims May Reach A Total of 50

Search Parties 'Have Not' Yet Returned to Their Starting Points

HAILEYBURY, Ont., August 2.— With the official figures of the death roll in the great bush fire placed at 348, and with all the outlying districts away from the railroad still to be heard from, there is every fear that the total number of people who lost their lives will at least reach 600. Communication with the north is difficult owing to the frequent breaks in the telephone wires caused by the falling of burning trees across them. The search parties who went out from Matheson, Monteith and Cochrane have not yet returned to their starting point, but judging by the stories of those who have managed to survive the holocaust there was little chance for anybody who was not near deep water. Nothing else could save them from the roaring furnace driven by a forty-mile-an-hour wind which laid the country for over two hundred miles was at the rate of ten miles an hour.

The latest official figures are as follows:

Raymore 14.
Matheson and vicinity 139.
Nushka and Monteith 137.
Kelso 2.
Iroquois Falls 15.
Cochrane 20.
Total 348.

TORONTO, August 2. — Twenty-two refugees from Northern Ontario fire zone arrived to-day bearing scars of the great conflagration and carrying similar stories of heavy losses of life and property destruction told in the first stories from the north. The story of great heroism is that of the heroic work done by Brakeman W. L. Lewis, of Englehart, who dashed back along the burning railway line through suffocating smoke to flag an oncoming train. His action prevented a railway wreck being added to the horrors. The latest reports indicate great necessity for clothing. Commissioner Dane, of the Ontario Government, has sent out a province-wide appeal for clothing to be sent to him at North Bay. Great fear is held for the safety of large numbers of prospectors unheard of since the fire. No additional list of casualties have been compiled, but it is reported over four hundred bodies have been recovered.

MR. ARMSTRONG IS OPTIMISTIC

Mr. W. H. G. Armstrong, Provincial Organizer for the Grand Lodge of Orangemen in the west, is in Peterborough for a visit. Mr. Armstrong is very optimistic of conditions in his part of the country and states that unless something unforeseen, such as hail, hits the country, there will be a bumper crop. Mr. Armstrong's son Lieut. Armstrong, who enlisted in the west, is now at the front.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

WEDNESDAY, AUG. 2, 1916

THE SECOND ANNIVERSARY.

The late blessed Lord Kitchener was a wonder. He could not only act well, but he he could talk well—when he did talk. He said the war would last three years. It has lasted two, come August 4th, and the probabilities are that the third year will finish the war victoriously for the Entente Allies. In obeserving the second anniversary of Britain's entry into the war, we can do so with the sure and serene feeling that it marks the beginning of the end.. Germany spent forty years in preparation for her great outrage and was wickedly ready. Britain spent two years in preparation, and at the end of that time has gained a condition of preparedness in every way superior to that of the Germans, at the beginning of hostilities. To be just, Britain's war fleet, which has saved the situation, was infinitely superior to that of the Kaiser. But to-day Britain's armies, her guns, her munitions and all the paraphernalia of war are superior to those of Geranny, as the last great drive shows. The morale of her forces, their fighting spirit, their elan—they borrowed the word, but not its military meaning, from the French—are infinitely superior to those of the enemy. The British are fighting for great principles and fighting a winning battle. The German soldier is fighting under the goad of compulsion and habit—automatically and perfunctorily—and is fighting a losing battle. We have the word of Sir Douglas Haig, the British commander of our forces, that "the third year of the war is the allies' year," and he intimates that the strength of Britain on land is yet to be exerted; that the comparatively thin khaki line of British troops, now winning ground and gains at the front is only a skirmishing line and that the thundering big guns and the bursting shells they belch out, are only the advance guard of guns and munitions. He hints that behind the battle line, not yet in action and employment are immense aggregations of splendidly fit and eager soldiers and mountains of munitions and parks of big guns.

It is to be seen and felt that in a material sense Britain, as well as her allies, is well prepared, equipped to the hilt in men and munitions for waging a victorious war. But we do not, in presaging triumph, altogether put our trust on the arm of flesh. We are told on the highest authority that "the battle is not to the strong" that Almighty God is alone the giver of victory. It is, therefore, the part of those who are fighting the battle of God's Christianity to recognise His overruling influence and to propitiate Him with praise and prayer. We shall best observe the second anniversary of the war by grateful acknowledgment of the measure of victory that has been divinely vouchsafed and humble ourselves in supplication for continued help. It is, therefore, becoming to Canadians in Peterborough and elsewhere, who profess and call themselves Christians, to mark the day by assembling in the citadels of Christianity, the churches, and joining in thankfulness and intercession for the divine help that has been given and a continuance of it. That is our first and highest duty, but we must not omit to join works to faith; to do our share in our own way and sphere, the great condition of divine cooperation. The circumstance of our soldiers winning does not absolve us from the responsibility of our individual duty. The Canadian soldier still needs socks, tobacco and comforts. The Canadian soldier that suffers wound needs Red Cross dressings. There is more reason now than ever that we at home should do our share in helping give impetus and impact to the great "drive." We can do it all the more consistently and cheerfully because the fighting will be fiercer, the casualties greater, the needs greater, and, too, because we are winning steadily and surely and have every reason, both presently and prospectively, for making August 4th next a red letter day in our calendar—a stage of advance to a triumphant end.

THE Y. M. C. A. IN WAR.

The Examiner has received from Capt. H. A. Pearson, an old Peterborough boy, and head of the Canadian Y. M. C. A. work at the front, a little illuminated and illuminative pamphlet dealing with the work of "The Canadian Y. M. C. A. in Flanders," showing that the good work of Canucks, is not confined to the Tommy Atkins, with the gun. A summary of the Y. M. C. A. work done at the front, reveals that thirty centres have been established in the Canadian area. Four of these are of standard type, 20 x 100 feet huts, and five of 80 x 90 ft. tents, and the remainder in smaler tents, in buildings erected by the army, and others in deserted houses and barns. The central branch and headquarters, is located in a building as large as the old Toronto West End Y. M. C. A. building, and "used in times of peace as a Roman Catholic club house." Figures totalled for an average day would be 30,000 hot drinks per day, 12,000 sheets of writing paper given out daily, 3,000 magazines given out daily, and daily attendance at lectures and entertainments 3,000. The work is carried on by fourteen Canadian Y. M. C. A. officers, and one hundred no-commissioned officers and men chosen from the ranks. The activities commandeered, in the interest of the combatants in this war are many-sided, and the Y. M. C. A. holds a prominent place in the auxiliary agencies of the war.

THE NEW YORK CANADIAN CLUB.

The Examiner has received with thanks the 1915-16 year book of the Canadian Club of New York City, which keep alive the Candian spirit among the expatrioted Canadians that make Gotham their home. The membership is large, and the Canada residences of members is pretty widely distributed throughout Canada. It may be thought a reflection upon Peterborough that it has only one member in the club, Mr. C. E. Brennan, but this fact is a tribute to this city—it provides home conditions, that less justify the migration of our citizens to seek betterment elsewhere. The Canadian Club is not a mere social coterie; but it is a repository of the Canadian and British spirit. Generally the functions of such clubs is to give dinners and listen to addresses; but the report of the treasurer shows that that is not the chief function of the New York Canadian Club.

The cost of the season's eight dinners given amounts to $3,724, while the contribution of $1,000 to the Canadian Patriotic Fund, and $2,000 for an ambulance, and a balnce of $6,000 in the ambulance fund, making a round total of $10,000, shows that the expatrioted Canadians in New York have been true to the call of the blood, and have stood by, and are still standing by Canada and the Empire in the time of stress, and still cherish the ideals of British freedom.

FOREST FIRES AND RESPONSIBILITY.

It is almost impossible to think calmly of the terrible disaster represented by the forest fires of Northern Ontario. Think as we may, while we shrink from thinking, we cannot imagine a millioneth part of the grim picture of flaming destruction that square miles of tender dry forest, burning fiercely, presented. We cannot half picture to ourselves, if we had courage to do so, the suspense the tense agony of mind with which men and women and children walled in by a relentless circle of seething fire, awaited the awful end. We have, under this awful visitation, a responsibility as a country, and as fellow citizens of the surviving sufferers, to come to the rescue; and, apart from emergent action, we have a duty to urge upon the government, a more effective and energetic policy of prevention, and dealing with forest fires, and their attendant calamities of material loss, and, what is worse, human suffering of the moment, and future hardship. It is not to be denied that the Province of Ontario has not dealt with the menace of forest fires with the perfection and energy and completeness of other provinces. Of course it is impossible to entirely prevent forest fires, which have their chief origin in criminal carelessness and inhuman recklessness. But, certainly, largely preventive measures may be taken and applied, and a more effective mode of dealing with fires begun, might be devised and applied. It is not to be denied that the provincial system, or make-shift, of fire ranging is criminally defective and inadequate. Of course it will cost money to secure and apply approximately effective fire-ranging as a preventive measure; but the cost of such an effective system for half a century would not equal in sum the amount of loss of the forest fire of Saturday and Sunday, or of the forest fires that annually destroy millions of dollars of forest wealth, provincial resources, and private property. Though this last great fire is supposed to be due to the carelessness of some settler in putting out clearing fires, yet he and the settlers of the North have dearly paid the penalty. The responsibility of reparation and restoration, however, rests with the government of the Province, and it becomes their duty to use the provincial resources and the machinery of administration to reinstate the settlers, and help them back to the conditions the fire wiped out. The Government, one would think, should advance money without interest, to help rebuild the homes of settlers, stock their farms, and furnish living supplies. The people would regard such an expenditure as better warranted, better made, than spending a million in biulding a wickedly expensive lieutenant-governor's residence, whose excess of cost over reasonable residence requiremnts, would go far to relieve the distress and suffering, due, indirectly at least, to official avoidance of provision to establish and enforce apportionately adequate prevention of forest fires.

GENEROUS, BUT NOT JUST.

By handing back to the country profits on a war contract amounting to $750,000 the owners of the Canadian Cartridge Company, Hamilton, strikingly call attention to two things: generosity and patriotism of the men behind the concern ,and the injustice of a system by which such patriotic generosity is apt to be imposed upon.

Why should a democratic country like Canada, where opportunities are equal and where sacrifice therefore should also be equal, tolerate a condition of things under which some members of the community are enabled to take advantage of the patriotism of others to get away without supporting their share of the burden and often in some cases without paying anything at all?

The truth is that voluntaryism in patriotic effort as, for example in the case of subscriptions to the Patriotic Fund, works with just as much injustice and inequality as the voluntary system does in the matter of enlistment, where some men take advantage of their very freedom to let others fight for that freedom for them.

A departure from volunteering in the matter of recruiting may not be practicable under present circumstances. But in view of the growing financial burdens of the war, it might not be undesirable if we followed the example of Britain and taxed all war profits on a sliding scale — the bigger the profits, the bigger the contribution towards the cost of the war. — Ottawa Journal.

Maturing Developments In The Far Eastern War Zone

Among the earlier results of the present allied offensive on the Eastern and Western fronts will probably be a Turkish defection, which is being helped along by Russia's drives. As long ago as 1889 Germany was preparing for a war in which Turkey should be her tool. In that year the German Mauser rifle factory at Obendorf started in to manufacture Mauser rifles for Turkey. The Mauser was a piracy on the invention of James Lee, of Galt, Ont., who worked in the Remington fire arms factory in 1873. Mauser, one of his fellow-workmen, handed it out as his own invention. Lee, who had gone to England, succeeded in having it adopted there eventually, and the general principle of the bolt action which he designed is now used in the Lee-Enfield, the Lee-Metford, and other magazine rifles. The Germans adopted the piracy, and their factory made some $15,000,000 of Mauser rifles for Turkey in 1889. It was arranged that, in case the forces of Turkey and Germany should ever be allied, the two nations would have a weapon in common, and that there might be no difficulty about it the Turkish weapons were constructed to use the same calibre cartridge as the rifles in the German army, instead of another calibre which the manufacturers had been using for orders elsewhere. Eight officers of the Turkey which makes her adhesion to Moorish villa at Obendorf to take over the rifles as fast as they were ready.

Why this effort to arrange so long in advance for Turkey entering into the world war on the side of Germany? Why did Turkey allow her army and navy to be Germanized? There is little doubt that she was well subsidized for doing it, as she had no special interests to serve by coming in. It was not especially the military power of Turkey which makes her adhesion to the Teuton cause a matter of grave importance to Germany. Constantinople is the hoped-for German key to Persia and India. To lose it would render futile the results of the Serbian campaign in which Germany acquired for the time being the long desired right of way through the Balkans, the approach to Bagdad, and the rich markets of the East. The Huns aimed at paralleling Britain's trade route to India. It was to accomplish this that Germany was at work cementing a Turkish alliance years before the war. If it should fail her now it would mean the loss of one of the first objects she had in view in starting the trouble.

Did Great Britain not know this? She did, and the expedition to Saloniki was her answer to the Teuton move on the checkerboard of war. Britain and her Allies now have a great army at Saloniki, and when the proper time comes this army will be thrown between Turkey and the Huns, completing the narrowing ring around the Central Powers, and leaving the Turk no recourse but a separate peace on such terms as he can get. This means the occupation of the right-of-way which Germany has carved through the Balkans at such tremendous cost The old bugaboo of Russian supremacy at Constantinople will not retard the removal of Turkey from Europe. In fact, Britain the only obstacle in the past, is prepared to perform the task herself. Interesting news from this quarter may soon divert attention from what will continue to be a lively offensive in the Anglo-French as well as Russian theatres.—Montreal Herald.

BETTER SWIMMING FACILITIES ADVOCATED BY LOCAL CITIZENS

Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—It is with great interest I read the citizens letters in regard to a civic bathing pool.

Although Ald. Dobbin is a great friend of mine I beg to take issue with him in regard to a few points in his lengthy contribution.

In regard to its supposition of disasters it is exceedingly pessimistic something totally unlike himself, as he is otherwise a very great optimist and it is a trait in his character I have heretofore admired.

If Ald. Dobbin supposed things in reality as he does in his letter he would either be afraid to leave his house or people not knowing him would think it was about time the 16th of September came around.

With conditions as they are, the city fathers are, of course, not financially responsible for the lives of the citizens but I contend that they are morally responsible and if they have the welfare of the citizens at heart they will put a stop to present conditions by providing adequate facilities for safe bathing.

I do not see why the sensibilities of any citizen should be shocked if dressing rooms (cheaply built) were built along the shore and a board wall built for a short distance out into the water at each end of the building. A wooden bottom could be built, as in many other places, say three feet deep in shore and gradually sloping out towards the river.

I wish to put in a special plea for the many hundreds of factory workers who are employed in the city many of whom do not even have a bath in the home and who have to use the washing tub in the cellar when they do not bathe in the open.

After a ten hour day in a hot factory the temptation to have a swim comes very strong in the evening and proper safeguarded facilities ought to be provided.

If a swimming pool was provided in the north, one central and one in the south it would then restrict the bathing area and lifebelts and pole hooks could be hung on standards around the pools.

In hopes that this correspondence will move to action the powers that be. I remain,

Yours,
J. W. WORTH

JONAH VINDICATED.

National Geographic Society Is Convinced That "Great Fish" May Have Swallowed Prophet.

The National Geographic Society, which has for its object the increase of geographic knowledge and its diffusion among the people swims into the limelight, says the Albany Knickerbocker Press, with the suggestion that the whale which swallowed Jonah may have been a shark.

How easy it would be for a man eating shark to devour a person whole may be judged from the Geographic Society's assurance that an entire one hundred pound sea lion was discovered in the stomach of a thirty-foot shark on the California coast. Another man eater, thirty-six and a half feet long, had jaws twenty inches wide, inside measure, and teeth two and a half inches long. It is likely, the society adds, that at the time of Jonah much larger man eaters existed than are now known ,as shark teeth with cutting edges five inches long have been found on the sea bottom, and these are believed by naturalists to have belinged to sharks not long dead.

It is possible, too, that Jonah's "great fish" was a basking shark. This species reaches a maximum length of fifty feet, but despite its enormous mouth its teeth are very small, and it feeds on fishes and floating crustaceans and is not of a ferocious disposition. Men of science appear now to agree that there is nothing inherently improbable in the Biblical narrative which has given rise to so much incredulity. Thus are the faithful vindicated and the scoffer confounded. The National Geographical Society stands on sounder ground—not to say in deeper water—than some of the theological seminaries.

When you send money to a mail order house, you "Buy a pig in a poke." You may not get what you send for, as you are always asked to make "A Second Choice." If goods are damaged in transit, there is trouble and at best, an irritating delay in getting matters straightened out.

If your local merchant asked you to pay for an article before you ever saw it, what would you say? Yet that is what the mail order house insists upon. Read the advertisements, see what you are buying, and spend your money at home.

YEAR-OLD CRIME IS RECALLED BY CLEVER DETECTIVE CAPTURE

MONTREAL, August 1.—One of the most remarkable coincidences of recent years is now engaging the attention of the Detective Department of Montreal. On the evening of July 29th, or the early morning of July 30th, 1915, a most daring robbery was carried out at the rooms of Mr. and Mrs. Vankirk in the Prince Apartments, corner of Guy street and Lincoln avenue. A daring burglar as skillful as daring, entered the apartment and before the sleeping inmates had become aware of his presence, had succeeded in securing some $700 worth of diamonds and jewellery. Mrs. Vankirk was finally aroused by the presence of the intruder, but he made off, as she described it at the time "like a shadow."

On July 30th, 1916, Mr. Vankirk who since the robbery had left Montreal and moved to North Tonawanda, near Buffalo, N.Y., received a telegram from the detective authorities in Montreal that a man under arrest in this city had been discovered with jewellery in his possession corresponding to that lost by Mr. and Mrs. Vankirk.

The capture of the criminal and the forging of the links in the detective chain of evidence against him was one of the smartest pieces of work that the local detective force has pulled off for some time. It was the work of Detective "Billy" Lamothe and Tom Ryan secretary of the Detective Bureau. On July 17th last a young and dapper-looking man, who gave his name as Arthur O'Brien, was arrested by Patrolman Brucault, of No. 5 station an a charge of stealing a bicycle. He was taken to No. 5 and on being searched there, certain articles were found in his possession which caused the police to believe that this was no ordinary case. A list of articles was handed over to Mr. Ryan at detective headquarters and with great patience and care the robes, lounging robes, suits of clothes underwear and toilet articles which were discovered among his belongings But the things which prove of peculiar interest to the police were three articles which they discovered after a diligent search through the trunks One was a small miniature block, with a broken leg, another a small ivory razor, and the third a watch with a number inside. Strange to say, all three tallied in every possible way down to the number on the watch. with the list held by Mr. Ryan at detective headquarters.

REMANDED UNTIL WEDNESDAY

Mr. O'Brien arrived from Bordeaux at noon and was remanded by Judge Ct. Cyr until the 2nd of August.

O'Brien claims to come from Ottawa originally but has made his home in Montreal for several years. He speaks French fluently as English, and is a prepossessing young gentleman.

Mr. Vankirk, who lost the jewels in the first place, arrived in Montreal to-day, and will be given an opportunity to identify his property. latter went through all his long list of records of goods reported stolen in this and other cities. His search was rewarded, as he found that the articles in the possession of the man corresponded with some of the articles lost by Mr. Vankirk.

SIX TRUNKS FULL

Then Detective Lamothe got busy At the address given by O'Brien a house on Park avenue, occupied by a rather well-known Montreal family who had taken O'Brien in as a boarder at the request of some friends, who had recommended the young man highly, Lamothe found six trunks packed with an assortment of goods which to a policeman looked suspicious. O'Brien apparently believes in living well, as was shown by the number of bath

TOWN NOW A CEMETERY.

One Hundred and Thirty Bodies Are Buried at Monteith.

ENGLEHART, Ont., Aug. 1.—One story has it that already 126 bodies have been taken to Monteith and that an order for 50 more coffins in addition to the 100 already sent has been wired.

Numerous narrow escapes are reported from different places. One trainman tells how his train got near Matheson and could get no further. Four cars had to be cut off to save the train and men. The engine and other coaches had to back down. On the way they picked up fire refugees on the track. They got nicely started when they had to transfer the people from one coach to another because it had caught fire.

People at Ramore preferred to stay there and fight the flames rather than get aboard this train, claiming they were safe enough and could fight the fire all right. At this place the schoolhouse escaped the flames, as did a frame house, the flames seeming to jump over the buildings, missing these and catching the bush on the other side.

The Delight of Children

The self-devoleped, inner-flavour of New Post Toasties has a unique attraction for the kiddies—they even like them dry from the packages for their lunches. A box of Toasties provides "eats" that will delight the children.

New Post Toasties are usually served with cream or good milk, in which form the flavour is more pronounced and the flakes more delicious. These New Post Toasties do not "chaff" or crumble in the package and they don't mush down when the milk or cream is added—both common defects of old-fashioned "corn flakes."

Then, too, notice the tiny "bubbles" on the flakes, produced by a quick, intense heat of a new patented process of making which imparts delightful crispness and a substantial body to the flakes.

New Post Toasties are a vast improvement over any old-style "corn flakes.

FRENCH ARMY OF TO-DAY SUPERIOR TO HUN MACHINE

Within Two Years Has Built Better Organization Than Germany Did in Forty Years

(By Henry Wood.)

PARIS, July 29. — Within two years, despite the handicap of maintaining her own unequal end in the world's greatest war, France has built up a military machine that to-day the French contend is superior to the organization Germany was forty years in preparing.

France is not a military nation. She does not boast of her war engine, but she takes credit for genius in organization and resourcefulness which she would have preferred to employ in pursuit of peace.

That her armies to-day are superior to those of Germany, France feels has been demonstrated by their successful resistance up to date. Germany has had to divide her organizations on various fronts, but has opposed man for man on the French front, and there is no reason to believe that in most combates, she has had numerically superiority.

Barring the first two months of the war, when unprepared France fell back under the impetus of this world's Colossus, she has held her own. Before the war ends, she expects to have demonstrated that she can do more than that.

VERDUN SUPREME TEST.

France feels Verdun is the supreme test of the present relative efficiency of the two fighting machines. Best estimates available here place the total of German troops employed there since the beginning of the battle at 1,000,000. France can give the names and numbers of German regiments to establish this figure.

France has had no more than half that number. The Germans themselves place the total of French troops at Verdun at 500,000. Some neutral military experts give the same figure while the Swiss and Argentine military attaches with the Crown Prince's army place the figure so low as 350,000. Yet the French have more than held their own at Verdun.

This intensive organization has cost France tremendous effort. Since the beginning of the war 5,000,000 Frenchmen have worn the French uniform in actual service. With a population of fewer than 40,000,000 one person of every eight in France, regardless of age, sex or physical ability, has served.

Before the war, each class as it was called to the colours with its attainment of military age, gave France but 250,000 soldiers. Since war began, the classes of 1916, 1917 and 1918, the last not called but its number known, have yielded 300,000 men each. The explanation is that when France to to create a military machine in these societies a course for military preparation sprang up. The youth of France began in these societies a course of rigid military training largely athletic, with the result that 50,000 more soldiers in every class have attained the physical perfection necessary for the military requirements than attained it before the war. France can still call another million men without recourse to a call en masse which would seriously affect the French industrial, economical and commercial life that is running as smoothly as her military machine. She does not believe she will ever have to do it.

GREAT MILITARY MACHINE.

The French military engine has attained its present perfection without a terrible toll of human life. The class of 1916 was called out and prepared but it has never been sent to the front; the class of 1917 still is in training, while the class of 1918 is simply in the hands of private societies for military preparation. France's new steel helmet alone has reduced the head wounds 38 1-3 per cent. France has spared her men by superior genius in organization.

Upbuilding the material side of the French machine involved greater genius. There is not one French soldier who is wearing the same uniform or using an ounce of the same material he entered the war with. All have been entirely refitted many times. Besides the munition and artillery accomplishments the above fact is not even worthy of mention.

Not the least military accomplishments of France has been the generous help extended her allies, especially the little ones.

In November, 1914, when the Servian army retreated for three weeks, before the Austrian invasion owing to lack of ammunition, it was the steamers of the Messaggeries Maritimes and the flagship Waldeck Rousseau that rushed to Saloniki the heavy artillery and French ammunition that enabled the Serbians to turn the only decisive victory that the allies have won to date, the destruction of an entire army.

When a few weeks later the heavy artillery on Mount Lowcen, the Gibraltar of the Adriatic, proved insufficient, French artillerymen dragged heavy French guns up the all but inaccessible sides of the Montenegrian mountain and manned them.

Had all the allies extended the same timely and generous aid to Serbia and Montenegro that France did these two countries would still be enjoying their independence, and the present Saloniki expedition would never have been necessary.

From a purely military standpoint France has rendered even greater aid to her allies. So far back as the Balkan wars the remarkable efficiency of French artillery had been demonstrated. Germany began the war with an abundance of heavy artillery, but they could not compete with the mechanical perfection of the French guns or the superiority of the French artillery fire.

FRANCE'S GREAT SECRET.

This was France's great secret, jealously guarded for years. She has since shared it generously with her allies.

French artillery officers early in the war perfected the Russian artillery fire that rendered possible this year's great drive through Galicia The guns furnished the Russians by the Japs are French models. Other nations were added.

—When the present war began, it was one of the national scandals in Italy, that her artillery did not have a single modern field piece. France allowed her to equip her entire army from the Dupont Works.

Since the beginning of the present war, France has organized, fought and bled with all the superior genius and generosity or which the French nation has ever been capable.

Boy Slowly Dying Of Dread Tetanus Due To Small Cut

Bayfield, August 1.—With his jaws tightly locked by that dread disease, tetantus. Willie, the nine year old son of Dr. James Struthers, of Toronto, who owns a summer home here, is slowly dying.

At a late hour Sunday night the boy was still alive but the doctors have slight hopes of his recovery.

Recourse has been made to the lock jaw serum and chlorotyne, the only remedies known to medical science to combat the germ of tetantus.

The boy's jaws closed rigidly on Thursday morning, and victims of lock jaw are not known to survive beyond a period of five days.

DUE TO SMALL CUT.

The disease was brought on as the result of a small cut on the foot due to stepping on a piece of glass while barefooted. He had been in the water a great deal and this prevented the cut from healing. While walking through the sand, it is presumed, infection set in which finally resulted in lock-jaw on Thursday. Along the beach are the remains of many dead and decayed fish and by stepping on one of these infection could quite easily arise.

Dr. Hadley Williams of London and Dr. H. H. Ross of Seaforth, were called in by Dr. Woods for consultation.

The anti-toxin serum for tetantus was administered, followed by chlorotyne, but to no avail, as the boy's condition appears hopeless.

Dr. James Struthers, father of the boy, is the doctor for the workmen's compensation board of Toronto, and spends his summers here.

TOOK REFUGE IN WELLS AND STREAMS

Vivid Details of the Conflagration Which Swept the North Country--- Survivors Tell of Their Experiences---Fire Covered a Total Mileage of 320 Miles.

NORTH BAY, Ont., Aug. 1. — The only casualty list received to-day was by the T. and N. O. from Onagon, a small place located at Mileage Four, on the Iroquois branch, where the dead are: Joe Dredieux, his wife and two children; John Vigenault, Alex. Fibion, Joe Cavanneth; and from Iroquois Falls, where Alex. Laporte, Mrs. Laporte and their two children and Mrs. U. Marion are reported dead.

The total number of bodies found up to 4 o'clock this evening is: Ramore, 14; Matheson, 130; Nushka, 187; Kelso, 2; Iroquois Falls, 15; Cochrane, 20; total, 318.

The officials here claim that the total death rate will exceed 500. Another train of refugees arrived in town to-night at 6 o'clock, and were fed and re-clothed by the citizens of the town.

Ten men at Croesus Mine are missing.

The sawmills at O'Brien, on the G. T. P., a divisional point east of Cochrane, was burned to the ground.

Eleven houses at Wabikin, and three at Makimak, east of O'Brien, were burned, but no lives were lost.

A large French settlement is safe 140 miles east of Cochrane, but there are a large number of prospectors and settlers back in the country, of whom nothing has been heard.

The Frederickhouse lumber mill and buildings were burned.

The fire extended from Hearst, 130 miles west, to Nottawa, east of Cochrane, a total mileage of 320 miles.

Jacksonboro, with a large mill, new power plant and pulp mils, are al safe. Jacksonboro is 32 miles east of Cochrane.

The Tough-Oakes Mine and other properties in the Kirkland Lake section are safe

No communication has yet been established between North Bay and Cochrane. There is only temporary despatching by telephone, hence the delay in the casualty list.

FLIGHT FOR REFUGE.

Haileybury, Aug. 1.—Dr. W. C. Arnold, of Haileybury, who went through to Cochrane on the Sunday morning relief train from this place, arrived home at 3 a.m. to-day. Dr. Arnold says that there were no fatalities in Cochrane itself, and that Porquis Junction was not destroyed by the fire The entire business section of Cochrane was wiped out by the flames, but most of the residential district escaped.

Dr. Arnold stated that Kelso is completely destroyed, and no vestige left of Monteith.

Nushka is wiped out. Homer, is destroyed. At Matheson only three buildings remain standing. Ramore is gone. But Bourke's has not been burned. The fire has not worked any further south than a few miles below Ramore, where it struck green brushes. Thirty-five houses were burned at Porcupine) but Schumacher escaped the ravages of the flames. At the Croesus mine, back of Matheson, Dr. Arnold declares there were a great many more deaths than was at first supposed. The mine property itself is completely wiped out. No record is available of the persons who were in the vicinity of the Crossus mine at the time of the devastation, and so no information is available as to those who perished. When Dr. Arnold returned from Cachrane last night many tents had been set up at Nushka, Monteith and other points along the line. Thanks to the efficient work of rescue parties, the survivors remaining in the north are now all adequately supplied with food and clothing.

The Children's Aid of Haileybury is making arrangements to care for the children who have lost their parents in the disaster.

One of the Cochrane survivors brought down on the rescue train that reached here at 3 a.m. was a Miss Lacasse, a domestic, about 16 years of age, and formerly of Nushka, who lost her father, mother and two brothers and a sister in the disaster. Her only surviving relative, a brother, is now training for overseas arvice at Camp Borden.

Five miles from Matheson the bodies of 21 victims were found in a root-house. These people had died from suffocation. In the railway cut between Nushka and Monteith 24 dead were discovered.

Dr. Nelson stated that there are not more than on hundred persons who were seriously injured or burned. This he attributes to the fact that the fury of the fire was so great that most who were caught by it lost their lives.

Mayor McCuaig, of Haileybury, has been bereaved by the death of his brother-in-law, Norman Throop, and Mrs. Throop, who are among those who perished at Croesus mine.

SUNK CANOES AND INSTRUMENTS.

Ben F. Carr, a surveyor for Routley and Summers, was three miles above Twin Falls, on the Abitibi River, when caught by the fire. Carr and eight companions had raced a mile down the river in canoes, and were out off at a bend about 5 o'clock. They sunk their canoes, with their instruments and records; covered themselves with well-moistened blankets, and remained standing in the cold water for one and a quarter hours. The heat was so intense that it was necessary to keep splashing water over the blankets. After the fire had passed by the party paddled 19 miles to Matheson, but there they found only three houses standing. They were without food from noon Saturday until 9 a.m. Sunday.

Mr. Carr said that the wind blew the fire at a furious rate. The wind was blowing at 40 miles an hour, and it carried entire tops of Spruce trees with it. At the point in the Abitibi where the party was caught the fire crossed the river, 300 feet wide, in a few seconds.

PARTY OF SIXTY SURROUNDED BY FIRE.

A party of sixty was surrounded by the fire at Twin Falls, but as they had some time ago cleared a large tract of land at this place, Mr. Carr feels confident that they are safe, and will be heard from within a very short time. Mr. Carr said that there had been no deaths in Matheson proper, all fatalities happening in the surrounding districts.

Dr. W. E. George, representing the health authorities of the Provincial Government, left for the scene of the disaster on the northbound train at 2.30 p.m. to-day. He will endeavour to secure a complete record of the dead, and will forward that report as soon as obtained to Toronto.

Blacklisters Sold Meeting in Park

Three Fines Imposed at Police Court This Morning

Two blacklisters and a friend who once upon a time was a blacklister himself and who, has more than a bowing acquaintance with the local police dock, proceeded to make merry at Central Park yesterday, oblivious of the fact that drinking strong stuff in the open air is liable to cause scandal and is condemned in Canadian books of etiquette.

The aftermath of yesterday's episode amid the shade trees of the park was that at this morning's police court the delightful story of yesterday's fund was listened to by the magistrate, police and the four rows of empty seats.

The two men who are restrained by the firm wing of the law from sucking the forbidden juice, each like dutiful children, admitted their guilt and heard the solemn voice of his Worship announce the withdrawal of ten bones from their trouser receptacles.

Frolicker No. 3, he of the kindly disposition, who had used his hind pockets to good advantage on the way to the park, pleaded not guilty to the charge of supplying liquor to his two weak friends. The evidence was very glaring, however, and backed up by the suggestive presence of a bottle of Keegan's whisky and two bottles of Trent Valley which had played such a heroic part in yesterday's proceedings, his Worship imposed two fines of twenty-five dolalrs, making a gross total of the half century mark to be paid forthwith.

Being found in Victoria Park, a plea of guilty and lack of funds was the logical sequence of events which landed an elderly local man a term of ten days on the hill. The prisoner had hardly recovered from the effects of his rampage, and the old dock trembled violently as the old fellow rose to answer his call.

"A loud laugh bespeaks a vacant mind," and added to his strange incoherent remarks, a Montreal man who appeared on a charge of drunkenness, was remanded for one week. Peterborough liquor had apparently got to his mentality, and the Chief, judging him to be on the verge of the "D.T's" asked for a week's remand.

Black Bass Weighed Over Five Pounds

Good Fishing at Oak Orchard

A small-mouthed black bass weighing five pounds twelve ounces, and measuring twenty and a quarter inches in length with a girth measurement of fifteen inches, was caught at Oak Orchard by Hamilton Slaight of Cleveland. This is an unusually large fish of that species. Almost at the same moment that this fish was hooked another occupant of the boat anded a four and a half pound bass.

ICE CREAM SOCIAL A SUCCESS YESTERDAY

The ice cream social of the Soldiers' Wives' and Mothers' Club was held yesterday afternoon and evening on the spacious lawns of Mrs. Robert Bugg, 349 Aylmer street, and a large number of the members and friends of the Club were on hand throughout the day and all worked energetically to make the day a real success.

The officers of the Club are grateful to all those who helped them yesterday in their social and wish to extend their special gratitude to Mrs. Geo. Morrow, Mrs. G. H. Matthews, Mrs. Walter Stocker, Mrs. (Dr.) Scott for their kind donations. Also to Mr. T. Hooper for his donation of ice cream cones, and to Mr. Turner for his loan of flags and other suitable decorations.

EXPECT BAD TIE UP IN NEW YORK

Examiner Special.

NEW YORK, August 2.—City officials, aided by state authorities today prepared for the worst in New Yorks city strike situation. They were convinced that the most disastrous tie-up in the city's history is inevitable unless both sides concede points which each up to to-day has persistently refused to consider. The public service commission to-day began formal inquiry into the situation. Representatives of employers and employees were summoned.

Even Women Are Harvesting Hired Man Getting $2.50 a Day

Mr. Robert Shaw of Harvey, ex-warden of the county, is paying $2.50 a day and board to a farm helper, and even at that price is glad to get him. This is about the average wage being paid to harvest hands, he said, and applies particularly to the harvest period.

Mr. John Telford of Bridgenorth, recently drove through parts of the upper townships and observed that farm labor is so scarce the women in many cases, are helping to harvest the crops. And as far as the men are concerned everybody from grandpa down to the small boy are keeping the home fires burning, in other words are striving to fill the gaps.

In referring to the crop condition around Peterborough, it is the consensus of opinion that on the whole they are far brighter than was expected. The early crops are uniformly good, but the later ones are disappointing.

These are the days in the country when the sun can't get up too early nor linger too long above the brow of the western hills. From breakfast to bed time is only a matter of a few winks and the strenuosity is almost as wearing as the work at the front. Of course, there is the brighter side. Prices are encouraging, and the sincerely patriotic farmer realises that his greater labour is a contribution to the Empire's cause. It may also strike him that he is one of the class of citizens who are paying through the nose for the boasted voluntary form of enlistment. And there is little doubt that the number of recruits from the farm who are fighting the German sat the front has been increased by those who are munition makers at a wage considerably higher than $2.50 a day, not to mention the $1.10 the soldiers receive.

REGULATIONS FOR STANDARD HOTELS

Mr. W. S. Dingman, Vice-Chairman of Ontario License Board Makes Announcement

Applications for licenses for "Standard Hotels," which will be the hotels of the Province after September 16, must be in before August 15, according to the regulations governing this class of hotel yesterday by Mr. W. S. Dingman, vice-Chairman of the Ontario License Board. The following is a summary of the regulations:

That in addition to being a suitable place for public accommodation, each standard hotel shall be a well-appointed eating house.

That applications for licenses for a hotel should be made to the Board throuhg the License Inspector not later than August 15th for the license beginning Sept. 16th, 1916, and thereafter, not later than March 15th for the license year commencing May 1st. License fees are $1.

That eveay hotel must keep a supply of pure, cold drinking water, conveniently placed for the use of guests.

That every guests' room shall have a bolt on the inner side of every door.

That fire-escape signs must be prominently displayed, and ropes must be placed at the windows of every bedroom.

That liquor must not be sold, served or kept on the premises.

That no disorderly conduct, gambling or drunkenness may be permitted upon the premises.

The cynical humor of the Russians is admirably illustrated by their proverbs, a selection of which we give from the "National Proverbs of Russia," published by Frank Palmer:

LAYFIELD PARTY ARE ALL SAFE

Telegram Received From Mr. Douglas Layfield Last Night

A telegram received from Mr. Douglas Layfield of Iroquois Falls, conveyed the welcome information that Mrs. Layfield and himself, as well as Mrs. Layfield's two sisters, the Misses Bessie and Eleanor Lattimer, had come safely through the terrible fire which destroyed such a wide tract of the north country. At Iroquois Falls where the party were situated, fifteen people were burned to death.

ENO TITANIC SUITS BY PAYING $665,000

Judge Mayer Signs Decree After the Company and Litigants Reach Agreement—Bars All Future Actions

New York, July 31.—Judge Mayer, sitting in the Admiralty Branch of the Federal District Court, signed a final decree yesterday disposing of all the suits brought against the Oceanic Steam Navigation Company, Ltd., which operates the White Star Line, growing out of the loss of the Titanic. The decree was issued on a petition asking that the liability of the company be limited under the American statute, to the amount of freight and passenger money collected for the ill-fated voyage, and for the value of the lifeboats' salvage.

The money value of this liability was estimated by the company to amount to $117,101.35, and this sum which had been disposed subject to the order of the court, yesterday was returned to the company. Suits were begun by hundreds of claimants, but pending the action of the court on the petition the complaints and answers were withdrawn and the suits were adjusted out of court. By the terms of the settlement the company agreed to pay about $665,000 in full for all claims, and this amount it was understood, was to be distributed pro rata among the claimants.

The original actions represented claims amounting to more than $18,000,000. These were afterward reduced by agreement between the counsel for the claimants and the company to about $3,000,000. The $665,00 paid by the company was deposited in the New York Trust Company and yielded about 21 per cent. of the total amount of the adjusted claims.

The Titanic was lost on April 15, 1912. Shortly afterward suits began to be instituted and on Oct. 4 1912, the company filed its petition for a limitation of liability. Many of the complaints charged that the Titanic was lost through the negligence of her navigators, with the privity and knowledge of her owners. Trial of the limitation proceeding ran from June 22 to July 3, 1915, the evidence clearly indicating that the loss of the Titanic was due to an accident.

Judge Mayer's decree held the company guiltless of any privity of knowledge such as were charged in the complaints and held "that the petitioner is not liable to any extent for any loss damage, injuries, destructions, and fatalities, of for any claim whatever in any way resulting or arising from or growing out of said collision.

The first list of claims filed amounted to $5,900,000 and this amount was rapidly added to. In one of the preliminary arguments in the suits it was contended that the company had no right to the protection of the American law which would reduce its liability to about $97,000. It was argued that the claims must be tried in accordance with the British law which would provide between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 as the basis of a settlement.

DOLLAR DAY.

The Examiner, at Merchants' Request, Will Announce a Summer Dollar Day For Latter Part of August---Best Event Yet Is Promised

Persistent inquiry from outside points, particularly places from which people were unable to come last time, has prompted the merchants to ask the Examiner to put on a summer Dollar Day. After considering the most advisable date, it has been decided to select a day towards the close of August, which will be announced in a few days. In the meantime the stores are making big preparations to insure this latest Dollar Day being the best event of the kind yet undertaken, and in every line of goods there will be a friendly rivalry as to which can offer the greatest values.

Dollar Day has come to be looked upon as a district holiday, and the crowds that throng the streets of Peterborough contain hundreds of old acquaintances who meet so seldom that for Auld Lang Syne sake alone, Dollar Day is well worth coming a long distance to participate in. This enjoyable feature of the big day is further enhanced by the extra buying power that the Dollar has in all the stores which display the Dollar Day pennants, and the additional interest of the prize contest, for which the merchants contribute $150.00 in cash, and which money is given away absolutely free to the happy buyers. Watch for the date, which will be published in a few days, and be ready to attend and take part in what promises to be the greatest Dollar Day yet seen in Peterborough. 1d-1w

Stielow Reprieved As He Is About To Start For Electric Chair

OSSINING, August 2.—As Charles F. Stielow was about to start for the electric chair at the state prison the prison authorities received word by telephone that Supreme Court Justice Charles L. Guy had granted a stay of execution.

Stielow is condemned to die for the murder of Charles Phelps, a farmer, and his housekeeper, Margaret Wolcott, at Medina, N.Y., in July, 1915. In granting the stay Justice Guy said that so many papers had been submitted to him during the night in defense of Stielow that he did not have time to examine them before the hour set for the execution.

When the condemned man received the news he said: "I hope to God they do something for me this time."

Efforts to save Stielow continued almost up to the hour set for his death. His friends contended that mentally he was barely the equal of a seven-year-old child. They asserted also that an alleged confession had been wrung from him by third degree methods. Governor Whitman was showered with messages asking clemency. At Albany the wife and three children of Stielow made a final appeal.

"It would be a travesty on law, justice and everything else to go farther in the case,' said the governor at midnight in announcing his decision. "The man has had every chance."

Stielow's fellow prisoners believe him innocent and collected $40 by subscription to bring his wife and children her from Medina for a last visit. A number of influential men and women interested themselves in Stielow's case. Six hundred citizens of Medina signed a petition asking for a communitation of sentence.

WELCOME TO POORHOUSE, BUT BRING YOUR DINNER

Reading, Aug. 1.—Some of the heaviest eaters in Reading society are tormented by the announcement, made to-day, that in the future callers at the county poor house may not remain there for dinner. Persons of unquestioned standing and appetite, who have been crowding the paupers at the Sunday dinners for more than a year, are openly complaining that John H. Rhode, County Controller, has gone just a little bit too far in his drastic action.

For the last five years every official having anything to do with the care of the county poor has striven to keep wealthy gourmets out of the poorhouse on Sunday.

At times it has appeared that the evil had abated but one Sunday last month there were one hundred callers around the poorhouse board, and Mr Rhode's definite order has resulted. The poor must be left alone, be insists.

For a generation the county's political families have considered it their unquestioned privilege to eat at the poorhouse on Sunday at which time excellent meals have always been served. They have always been on their way out after a tour of inspection and have only remained when assured that it was dinner time and that they were quite welcome. This is how the matter was managed.

Now they continue right on out. They have as a result grown awfully indignant. They won't even inspect the place.

When Bass Perspire They're Easy To Catch

Syracuse, N.Y., August 1.—The hot weather habits of fresh water bass—heretofore a secret of the most sacred aquarium type—have been discovered by Hibbard Raymond of Pultney, N. Y., one of the most canny members of the Lake Keuka West Branch Fishing Club. He knows where they go when it is humid; he knows how to get them there, and from this day on bass fishing for him and for all who read of his experiences will be just one catch after another.

Mr. Raymond, smoking a pipe which caused the flag on a house across the lake to flutter feebly, to-day spoke through the fumes, bearing his heart on the subject of the tricky bass.

"Bass suffer terribly in the hot weather," he said between clenched teeth, "and I know of all the world seem to have realized it. Yesterday I set out for the cove north of Fish Point and aside from ten beauts of golden shiners I carried a large block of ice, the cost of which ran into money. Out in the bull weeds I dropped the ice. I waited an hour, dropped my line, came back and then dropped my line."

At this juncture Mr. Raymond, who dreads himself, sat perfectly motionless, and puffed his chin heater for ten endless minutes.

"Well, sir," he continued, to the yawning audience, "there was a school of bass over that cake of ice just basking in its costly chill. I dropped my line five times with the shiners, and caught just ten bass, the lightest of which weighed three and a half lbs. They all put up a pretty fight and it made the niftiest day's fishing I ever did see."

From afar, over the dank hills, came the lowing of a cow's husband.

War Anniversary Service At St. John's On Friday

Friday next, August 4th is the second Anniversary of the entry into the great war of the British Empire. Throughout the entire Dominion of Canada the day will be observed by special intercessions on behalf of the Allied forces engaged in this terrible fight for world liberty. In St. John's church the following services will be held and a hearty invitation is extended to all to be present at at least one of them.

7 a.m.—Holy Communion.

11 a.m.—Morning Prayer and Litany.

8 p.m.—Evensong.

Preacher the Reverend W. W. White (St. Luke's) at intervals.

"O King of Peace" will be played on the chimes and all who are in hearing are asked to make of the words a prayer for our soldiers, sailors and airmen, especially for the men who have gone forth, or who are preparing to go from Canada.

Kitchener, French, Haig, Jellico and Beatty have set us a splendid example, not only as military leaders, but as leaders of their forces in prayer at the Throne of Grace.

Their Golden Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose Jones, of 381 Romaine street, celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary on the same date as the battle of the Boyne was fought, 12th of July. A number of their intimate friends were present to congratulate them on the event. All but one of their children were too far away to be able to join the family circle on the occasion. Mr. and Mrs. Jones have been blessed with children, all of whim are still living, with the exception of one son.

Man Found Drowned In Park Reservoir

New York, August 2.—The body of a well dressed man, evidently drowned several days ago, was found floating in the reservoir in Central Park near West Eighty-seventh street. From a typewritten name with a suit measurement in the man's inside coat pocket, and under a vest armhole he is believed to be A. J. Ryan of Cambridge, Mass. The label shows that the suit was made by L. Pinkos, Cambridge, Mass., in April, 1915.

The man was about 35 years old, five feet, eight inches tall, and stockily built, with black hair and blue eyes. There were no marks of violence.

WHEN THE WAR IS OVER

I once stood in a harbour as a ship was going out;
It was loaded down with soldiers
For to go beyond the seas;
And I watched one dark-eyed soldier
As he said his last farewell,
To the lassie whom he loved most tenderly;
And I saw the teardrops falling
As the last good-bye was made.
It was the sorrow of a parting all must learn.
And I heard the soldier promise to the lassie, now in tears:
When the war is over, I'll return.

(Chorus.)

When the war is over and peace
reigns again
Let the love-flame in your heart more brightly burn;
For I love you, sweetheart, only;
And remember, when you're lonely,
When the war is over, I'll return.

Now, the war is over, and peace
reigns again.
And a girlish heart is breaking with its pain;
For the news she heard that morning
Of the boy who went away
Would return to her ne'er again;
And the one she's sadly weeping for.
As the one she mourns is dead;
When a voice beside her whispers,
Molly, dear,
God has spared me for the Keeping of the promise once I made:
When the war is over I'll return.

Chorus: "When the war is over, etc.
Alfred Duvall, 132 Park Street.

Bright Jersey Sunset Taken For a New Fire

New Yok. Aug., 2.—The red flare of a New Jersey sunset caused excited persons to inquire at Police Headquarters and the newspaper offices what powder mills were blown up. The reflection of the sun struck a gray bank of clouds just before eight o'clock giving the impression of a distant fire.

Calls were received from North Jersey as far north as Greenwood Lake and from Newark and Hachensack asking if the Dupont mills were on fire.

Seems Familiar.—The following dialogue from a Tribunal Court is published with considerable reserve: The Chairman— "Supposing the Germans were to come and attack your wife, would you not fight?" Applicant — "No, I would not." The Chairman — "What You would not protect your wife?" Applicant (pathetically) — "Look here, sir, you don't know my wife."

HOPE BOY WILL SOON GIVE CLUE TO KIDNAPPERS

BUFFALO, Aug., 2.—Search for the kidnaper of Stephen Murawski, the four-year-old boy who was found on Friday after a ten months' absence from his home, 106 Goodyear avenue, has so far proved fruitless, but it is being taken up again to-day. Inspector Girvin has detectives looking over Lackawanna and other suburbs along the route of the B & L. E. line. The police are working on the theory that someone living outside the city took the boy. Last Friday the person, tiring of keeping the lad or being forced to give him up, had him sent into the city on a street car and left at the corner of Louisiana and Seneca Sts., the police think.

At the time the boy disappeared October 5, 1915, a thorough search was made for him. Although none too rich, the boy's father offered a reward of $100 for his return. The case was given wide publicity and the police kept up watch for him for weeks.

CANVASS NEIGHBORHOOD

Since his return detectives, accompanied by the youngster, have canvassed the neighborhood of the corner where he was found. The boy has shown no evidence of recognising any places or persons in the vicinity and not a child or grown-up has been found near the place who knows the boy.

"The age of the boy itself is a handicap" said Inspector Girvin, who is directing the search, this morning. "We are not discouraged though. I have detailed men to accompany the boy again to-day and I will have them see him every day until he is able to give us some clue."

NEATLY DRESSED.

The boy was neatly dressed in a white bloomer suit, white stockings and patent leather shoes when found. He wore a straw hat. Although his clothes seemed new there were no marks on the garments tha would indicate where they had been purchased.

It is hoped that the four-year-old will tell something that will give the police a clue after he calms down from the excitement of being found and returned to his mother and father. Just now his mind seems too much taken up with thoughts of candy, ice cream cones and moving picture lithographs to aid in the search.

SEES HARD TIMES AHEAD.

Kaiser Mentions Desire of German People for Peace.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—A message from Emperor William to the German Imperial Chancellor, Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, on the second anniversary of the war, transmitted by Reuter's correspondent at Amsterdam, quotes the Kaiser as follows:

"There are still hard times ahead. After the terrible storm of two years of war the desire for sunshine and peace is stirring all human hearts. But the war continues because the battle-cry of the enemy governments still is the destruction of Germany. The blame for further bloodshed falls only on our enemies. Germany knows she is fighting for existence; knows her strength and relies on God's help. Therefore, there is nothing to shake our determination or endurance."

The Art Gallery, with 7,084 feet of floor space, is the smallest of the more important buildings at the Canadian National Exhibition.

The agricultural and implement building is the largest on the grounds of the Canadian National Exhibition. It contains 76,640 feet of floor space.

FARMERS ARE ADJUSTING PRICE OF HAY TO A BRIGHTER POSITION

The farmers are commencing a strategic hay drive. With an exceptionally large crop bulging their barns, the first price prospects hovered around five dollars a ton. But recently they have brightened the outlook to some extent, and the aspect, whether factitious or not, appears more favorable.

They base their revised opinion on the general reports that feed is found to be scarce. The crop of straw is going to be unusually light, and the same report applies to corn. Likewise oats are far from promising and with this reduction in the ordinary feed supply, the farmers state they will have to depend to a greater extent upon hay, very little of which, they claim, will be offered for sale.

In the vicinity of Peterborough crops are said to be much better than those more remote. Only grain that was planted early has made any kind of showing, and some farms were not even seeded, as the result of the extremely wet Spring. Hay ripened quickly, and grain followed closely, but without the proper filling of the heads. Hence, while in some districts the conditions are quite favorable, the general reports are not so glowing. In fact they are inclined to be pessimistic.

With regard to the future price of hay, it will be some time before the situation settles down to a basis that can be actually estimated. Certainly some of the reasons ascribed as effecting the home demand of hay are even now apparent, but it is a long way from a price of $5.00 a ton, which has been rather freely accepted, to a condition that retains the crop for fodder.

RICE LAKE REMINISCENCES

No. 3—"Serpent's Mound"—Indian Mausoleum

If it was given to man to draw back the curtains of time and to gaze upon the deeds and feats of unrecorded history, what wonders and deeds of heroism would not be unfolded to man's eye. A country's history is not only inscribed upon tablets of stone or upon manuscripts, but is written upon the very face of the land itself. This unwritten history generally goes by the name of tradition and is handed down from generation to generation by word of mouth, until it becomes firmly engrafted in the minds of following generations, and in the course of time it becomes collected by some compiling genius and takes the form of history.

The Rice Lake country, whose shores in years past were no doubt thickly inhabited by the fish and fowl seeking Indian, is replete with evidences of ancestral activity. If you stroll along the Hiawatha shore in the direction of Harkamore's Point, and if you examine the sand closely you are quite likely to discover shattered remnants of old Indian arrowheads. These relics of the red man's artillery are to be found at various points around the lake, but are especially conspicuous by their plentifulness around Hiawatha.

The most sacred memorial of the red man's age, however, is to be found on the north side of the lake, down towards the end of the lake and pretty well opposite Margaret's Island. It takes the form of a long mound, perhaps two hundred feet in length, and is some feet in height. It is called Serpent's Mound by the Rice Lake populace on account of its winding nature, so resembling a serpent, and is the last resting place for many a red skin who in ages long past is believed to have bitten the dust in a memorable battle once fought on the shores of the lake.

This curious and uncanny shaped mausoleum of his swarthy forefathers is the object of the deepest veneration on the part of the present Indian settlers dwelling around the lake, and many and varied are the legends connected with Serpent's Mound Old Indians tell us how a terrible battle had been fought on the site of the mound, but on account of the terrific numbers slain it was impossible to carry them back with the usual triumph and stoic display to the village and necessitated the burial of the slain warriors in the curious manner seen to-day on the north shore of the lake.

Some years ago the white man's instinctive curiosity caused him to send Toronto curio hunters to examine Serpent's Mound, and several interesting relics of by-gone warfare were resurrected and taken back to the Queen City to delight the eyes of museum throngs. The Indian, however, prefers to save the mound which shelters his dead, left undisturbed, which is only natural to any nation which venerates its dead so highly as does the red skin.

Says "Divine Right" Craze Will Greatly Prolong War

Kaiser Wilhelm's 'superexalted, almost insane idea that he is the regent of od on earth, closely associated with the Deity in his projects for universal dominion, portends a long period of warfare yet to come, according to acute observers of the progress of events in Europe. In spite of the vigorous allied drive on both fronts and the passing of the initiative from the Teutons Mr. Ernest Lavisse, in the Revue de Paris, sounds a note of warning to his countrymen that it will be a long time before German militarism is finally conquered and democracy saved from overthrow by force.

"The truth is," he says, "the strength of the enemy remains very considerable; so we must anticipate that his final effort will be formidable On the edge of the abyss he will desperately cling. Think what a height he would have to fall! For years this people by the voice of its philosophers, its professors, its generals and its Emperor has been proclaiming its superiority among the nations and its divine mission. It has lavished on every other state the insult of its contempt. Believing Force invincible it has pretended that there is no right except in and by Force.

"Is it likely that it will be convinced of its error? Will it easily submit to the right of the strongest, which it affirms to be Right itself? After it is defeated what irony to the 'Gott mit uns' that glitters on its helmets and the plates of its sword belts! And then to give up its desire for territory, its appetite for gold, and fall into the deepest poverty! Imagine such a total collapse; such a downfall of philosophical theories, of Biblical texts, of industrial prospectuses! Never was a people at any period of industry menaced with such a catastrophe.

"The Kaiser has many a time spoken of a universal empire for the Hohenzollerns. Concerning the character of such a State he has not clearly expressed himself. He has been content to say it would not be like those of Alexander, Caesar or Napoleon. The idea of imitating Alexander, Caesar, or Napoleon when one is William II. He who imagined he would be ruler of the world must be passing some very unhappy hours now.

"He is a visionary of the theatrical kind; he has inspired subjects of plays and has presided at rehearsals. Once he asked the French Ambassador, Mr. Herbette, how the swan in 'Lohengrin' was moved on the stage of our opera house. Some years ago in Berlin he was talking to me of the Teutonic knights, conquerors of old Prussia. I expressed my astonishment that the picturesque and poetic account had not inspired some German composer, and I told him of a legend related by one of the 'scriptores rerum Prussicarum.' On the evening of a battle in which the knights had been conquered the Blessed Virgin, their patroness, having descended from heaven, leaned over the bodies of the martyrs, collected their souls and handed them over to two angels who accompanied her. The Emperor became very attentive. He at once imagined the souls represented by little electric lights and said, 'That shall be done.'

"We may be sure that such a man, who is always seeking the spectacular, has more than once dreamed of the great historic scene of the return of the troops to Berlin after their victory. But what if the impossible arrived and he has to hide his face, as a conquered man, at Potsdam or Hubertustok?

"Before resigning themselves to such an end the Emperor and his son, the Crown Prince, will be obstinately bent on continuig their attempt. As log as they have any regiments left they will continue with rage to cry out 'Vorwarts!' We should expect terrible upheavals. Prince von Bulow has predicted that 'the heavens and the earth shall tremble.'"

All this is true, according to Mr. Lavisse, but he enumerates on the other side truths quite as certain and of which the General Staff possesses conclusive proofs; the exhaustion of the available Teutonic forces, shown by very careful estimates; the increase of want and poverty in Germany, shown by many documents, especially by letters of German civilians and military officials; cries of families dying of hunger, of soldiers crazed with terror, of threats and even revolutionary mutterings.

"The whole truth," concludes Mr. Lavisse, "is that a great force of resistence remains with the enemy. Moments of anxiety are still possible and we must foresee that there will be unexpected blows. But the power of resistance is decreasing and the decrease will be accelerated. Let us guard against premature rejoicing, and strengthen our courage and patience. And let us always keep in mind our object, to preserve ourselves and the world from the haughty, pedantic, hypocritical domination with which we were threatened by the guns, the preachers, the doctors, the and we must forsee that there will merchants of Prussianised Germany.'

Accused of Eloping With 15-Year-Old Girl

New York, August 2.—Accused of eloping with his 15 year old stenographer, Theodore Ferris was arrested at the Empire City race track on Saturday evening. The prisoner will face a statutory felony charge.

Ferris is a wealthy farmer and business man of Roxbury, Conn. The alleged elopement took place on July 7 Them other of Nora Hang, the young stenographer, notified the police of the girl's disappearance when she found letters beginning "Little Duckey Darling," and "Honey Bunch."

Constable Jones of Greenwich found the girl in the home of John Elks Ferris's brother-in-law, and took her to her home. He then arrested Ferris.

FORMER LOCAL PEOPLE MARRIED IN ENGLAND

Corp. Frank C. Roberts, Peterborough Member of 21st Battalion, Weds Miss Jessie Garrett, Former Member of St. John's Choir and the Peterborough Choral Society.

AN INTERESTING WEDDING

A wedding of great local interest was solemnized on Monday, July 10th at the Parish church of St. Mary's, Acocks Green, Birmingham, England when two well known former residents of Peterborough were united in marriage. The bridegroom was Corp. Frank C. Roberts, C.A.M.C 21st Battalion Canadians who enlisted in Peterborough with the 21st Canadian contingent and whose English home was at Deanshanger, Stony Stratford, England, while the bride was Miss Jessie Kathleen Garrett of the Lightwood's, Greenwood Road, Acocks Green, Birmingham. She formerly resided in Peterborough Canada, where she like her husband was a member of St. John's church choir and of the Peterborough Choral Society. Both young people have a host of friends in Peterborough who will wish them every happiness. The Rev. P. E. Lord, vicar of St. Mary's Parish church officiated. The bride was unattended and was given away by her mother, Mrs. J. Garrett. Mr. Manfred Butcher, brother-in-law of the bride was the best man. During the afternoon Corp. and Mrs. Roberts left on a honeymoon trip visiting relatives at Bath Gloustershire and then at the home of the bridegroom at Deanshanger, Northamptonshire and at other points. Corp. Roberts has been in France for many months and was given special leave of seven days in order to be married.

Runaway Accident On Gravel Road

A runaway accident occurred on the Gravel Road, just a few miles beyond the city limits, yesterday, when Mr. John Bradbury, a driver for Mr. J. H. Sanderson, of Cavan, lost control of the team which he was driving, and was thrown from his rig, suffering severe sprains to both arms, and receiving a general shaking up. Mr. Bradbury had spent the morning in town, and had left the White House before noon. He was proceeding along the Gravel Road, when the horses suddenly became frightened and started off on their mad career down the road, throwing Mr. Bradbury out upon the road.

Dr. J. V. Gallivan was called, and motored out to the scene of the accident, bringing the injured man to the city to St. Joseph's Hospital.

Last night the final game in the full rink contest was played. The green was crowded with interested onlookers. The Cairns rink won out with the handsome score of 16 to 9.

There will be contest next week. On Monday, 14th August, the doubles contest will begin and at its termination the singles will be run off.

The bowlers are having a very enjoyable season this year.

FRENCH PRISONERS ARE OPTIMISTIC

"The confidence and optimism expressed by the French prisoners are often disconcerting." This is the experience of George Queri, a German writer, who has been passing some time with the German army near Verdun.

"To-day," he writes, "a number of French prisoners were brought in from the Caillette wood. I said to one of them:—

"Fort Vaux is in our hands."

"That's nice," he replied courteously, and have you also captured Souville.

"That is a characteristic French answer and often it is difficult to hold one's temper at such a reply. We must admit, however, that their optimism is wonderful. These prisoners had emerged from a veritable hell, but it was amazing how quickly they recovered their usual good nature. They had been standing for hours in trenches with nothing to eat or drink and exposed to the worst fire from German guns that the French had yet experienced.

"Now they are stretched out on the grass and laughing and joking with one another. They eat ravenously the food that is brought to them, and smoke and smoke. The majority of them have thrown away their heavy steel helmets. I picked up one of the helmets and inside the lining found a letter. My curiosity got the better of me and I opened the letter and read it. It was from the soldier's wife—a pathetic, heartrending epistle which told in simple language the tragedy of this terrible war. Evidently the soldier had not written to his wife that he had been sent with his regiment to Verdun, but she got word of it somehow and wrote to him from Amiens:—

"I am very unhappy to learn that you are at Verdun. I had hoped that you would remain far away from that terrible battlefield. My dear loved one, how you suffered on the Somme! After that awful experience I thought you would be spared more horror, but it seems that fate has destined you to go through the worst, and I only pray that God will give you the strength to bear it all. I think only of you me day and night I worry. To think of you in Verdun is awful. If I did not have confidence in the belief that the war will soon be over, I do not know what I would do. It is terrible that two such as you and I should be held apart all these twenty-two months but happily the war will soon be over I hear this from people who ought to know. So, be brave, my dear Leon this war cannot last much longer—death would be preferable.

"You wanted to spare my feelings but I know full well where you are and I pray that you will be spared. I often wish that you would be wounded—not to give you any pain—but that you would in that case be brought home to me and little Pierre. Don't say I am silly, you who are all the world to me."

Shots Fired in Chase of Window Smasher

New York, August 2.—After an exciting chase in which many shots were fired, Jack Kelly was arrested in the lobby of the Hotel Navarre. Kelly, it is said, broke a window in an automobile supply store at West Thirty-seventh street and Sixth avenue, from which he took a tire.

He was pursued by Policeman Tetzner, who opened fire. Kelly was stopped by a man in front of the hotel. He knocked him into the gutter but the man jumped to his feet and captured Kelly in the lobby.

Austrians Failed To Report

Steps to efface German influence in the treatment of the baser metals of Australia have taken practical shape. They cover copper, zinc and red metal outputs. A syndicate to which many of the leading metal houses of the Antipodes are parties has been formed under the title of Metal Manufacture, Ltd., and it will engage in the production of copper wire, tubes, sheets and the like. The ore will be refined by the Electrolytic Co. and turned into finished articles by the new syndicate

Similarly with regard to zinc a new organization under the head of the Electrolytic Zinc Co. of Australia has been formed, and will employ the electrolytic process which is now so successfully at work at the Anaconda. Already contracts for 30,000 horsepower are being arranged, and provision will be made for a further 20,000 from the Tasmanian Government-owned hydro-electric system.

The Teuton element is being eliminated by the Anzacs very practically, and the Commonwealth Government is taking a lively hand in co-operating with citizen efforts.

Sir Gilbert Parker Tells America What The British Have Done In Two Years

LONDON, Aug. 1.—Sir Gilbert Parker, Bart., M.P., whose services to the British cause have been notable in the field of publicity in the United States, has made the following statement on the European war:

"You ask me to make a statement upon the two years of war, in which England, with her allies, France, Russia, Italy, Belgium, Portugal, Serbia and Montenegro, has been engaged.

"Three months ago the task would have been far more difficult than it is to-day. Since then Great Britain and France have moved forward on their fronts, and with tremendous effect—but of that later. Also during that time, Russia has moved heavily upon the troops of the Central Empire, and, in the south-eastern corner of the Russian front, has driven in, league upon league, the Austrian troops, has captured sector upon sector, city upon city in the regions where Austria was dominant and has made prisoners of 300,000 men.

"Over in Asia Minor the field of conquest has been enlarged and developed. Erzerum and Erzingan have been captured and other centres of Turkish authority have been taken. The renowned von Hindenburg, up in the Riga district, has been driven back mile upon mile, and Russian prowess has proved itself beyond question. Russian generals, like Brusiloff and Grand Duke Nicholas, have re-established the Russian positions, weakened at the beginning of the war through lack of munitions.

"Looking back, one is forced to wonder how Germany was stayed in her march of conquest. According to every rule she should have been in Paris at the time she herself appointed, early in the autumn of 1914. She came very near it. What stopped her?

"She had left out of her calculations the strategical skill which belongs by nature to the French army, the new French army from behind Paris and 'the contemptible little British army.'

"It is a remarkable thing that on the Western front the only gains of Germany were achieved in the first few weeks of the war. Those gains were of immense strategical value to her. They included the mining and industrial districts of France and nearly the whole of Belgium from which she has steadily drawn practical support and advantage and supplies. The wonder is not that the Allies have done so well but that with all her preparations and her perfect armaments Germany and her obedient colleagues, Austria, Turkey and Bulgaria, have done so badly.

Everything in German Hands.

Apparently at the beginning of the war everything was in their hands, everything, except one—the British navy. If Germany could have mastered her as she mastered Belgium and a goodly portion of France the war long since would have been over. France would have been a third rate power under practical German control; Russia would have been driven back into her steppes and plains, once more the slave of German influence and control, and the British Empire as we know it would have become a thing of the past.

"What the British navy did was to sweep German merchant commerce from the seas, prevent Germany from trading with the rest of the world except by crooked methods, bottle up her fleet to uselessness, drive her South Atlantic fleet to the bottom of the sea and throttle and choke German export to an extent that great cities like Hamburg have lost the buzz of their activity, and, outside the Baltic Sea, there is no stir of German commerce save in a freakish enterprise like that of the Deutschland. Those, however, who count the work of the Deutschland as extraordinary should remember that it is not original, since a considerable number of British submarines have crossed the Atlantic during the last year safely and surely. It is not strange that the Deutschland accomplished the feat. It will be very strange, however, if that feat is repeated by many sister submarines.

"German foreign commerce cannot be rehabilitated by the activities of submarines. Since the battle of Jutland it can be safely and surely said that the seas are still controlled overwhelmingly by the British fleet. The German fleet came out and then fled to cover again after a stiff fight.

"But let us now take the field of battle on the Western front. For a whole year or more critics in the United States, whose only idea of warfare was that of constant action, have continuously asked why was it Great Britain, which had recruited between three and four millions of men, should be doing nothing on the Western front. They complained that France was left alone at Verdun and elsewhere. They did not realize that France knew she had at her disposal at any moment the British troops, which were holding their own line of the front and steadily extending it. They did not remember that at the beginning of the war Great Britain was armed on a basis of a mere handful of men; that all the machinery of equipment was upon a basis of the handful and that, having men, a million or two millions, she will could not equip them because she had not factories of munitions except upon the scale of the handful.

Needed More Equipment.

"Men had to be recruited, fed, uniformed, equipped; artillery had to be developed and extended beyond all experience of the past. Rifles had to be supplied. And the one reason why there was such delay in making a move on the Western front by the British was lack of equipment. The push forward at Loos was not final and effective because there were not sufficient munitions.

"But what is the condition of affairs to-day? There are enough munitions. Why? Because big men have given their brains and skill to the task of organization; because the manual workers of England have roused themselves to a complete sense of duty; because they have given up trades union regulations for the period of the war; because, without murmuring, they have thrown up their holidays; because hundreds and thousands of women have joined the munitions works or have entered into fields of occupation formerly monopolized by men, such as the conduction of cars on tramlines, driving vans, working upon farms, clerking in offices, doing men's work in scores of small trades; because all England, in every corner of it, is alive to the terrible significance of the world light and has given its best blood, mind, strength and craft to the nation's cause.

"In spite of criticism and complaint, England would not and did not move on the Western front until she was ready, though she was willing to help at Verdun if needed, and said so. And she was not ready until she could dominate, as she has done, the German artillery by a greater weight of metal; until, making a move forward over the whole of her line, with France moving forward on the whole of her line, they both could make good their successes, mile by mile, and steadily and surely diminish the capacity of resistance upon the part of Germany. This they have done.

"What is the position to-day? Everyone of the Allies has moved forward, and at the same time, and every one has succeeded, as she has moved. Italy, like Russia, France and England elsewhere, has succeeded in her field against Austria. Germany cannot put forward her men to help Austria. Austria is harassed by Italy and by Russia. Germany is harassed and hammered by England, Russia, France and Belgium.

No Rest for Germany.

"There is no rest for Germany anywhere. She cannot shift her troops from front to front, as she did in the early days of the war, smashing one enemy here and then whisking her troops over to smash another enemy there.

"Mistakes? The Allies no doubt have made mistakes, but England has made no such mistakes as have been made by Germany, all of whose plans have gone awry. England was expected to, and promised to, furnish 150,000 men for the protection of Belgium in case of an European war—and that was all. She has, in fact, provided an army and navy personnel of nearly 5,000,000 men, and has ribbled the personnel of her fleet. Could any other nation in the world furnish more than 4,000,000 men on a voluntary basis, as Great Britain has done?

"Americans should understand that it is not alone in the field of battle that Great Britain has proved her capacity for organization. She has proved it in the civil field; she has nationalized the railways of the country and has paid the regular dividends; she secured the sugar crop of the world at the very beginning of the war, through which sugar is cheaper to-day in Great Britain than it is in the United States, and at the same time has got out of it a revenue of nearly $34,000,000.

"She rescued the British people from being done by meat "trusts" by seizing all ships which could carry chilled meat, and, having the ships, she could get her meat on fair terms, and has done so—50,000 tons a month for Great Britain and France and 10,000 tons for Italy. She also has supplied France with steel, boots, shoes and uniforms. She has made coal a public military service and by Act of Parliament has fixed the profit of the coal mines, and she supplies the British, French and Italian navies with coal.

Purchase of Wheat.

"She has organized the purchase of wheat by a small committee, which also buys and ships wheat and oats, fodder, etc., for Italy. She has bought up the fish supply of Norway and very lately bought up against German intrigue the great bulk of food exports of Holland.

"As for manufacture—in a fortnight as many heavy shells can be made as were made in the first year of the war. Great Britain has shown her ancient skill for organization in a new and successful light."

FROM BOBBIN BOY TO $100,000 'BOSS'

YONKERS, N.Y., Aug. 1.—Reuben Borland, of No. 10 Delevan Terrace, Yonkers, who began service as a bobbin boy in the Alexander Smith & Sons Carpet Company in this city to-day was elected president of the concern to succeed Eugene S. Clark, who resigned because of ill health.

Mr. Borland has been in the employ of the carpet company, the largest in the world, for thirty-five years. His salary as president, it is understood will amount to $100,000 a year. His salary as a beginner was not more than $8 a week.

Not much is known of Mr. Borland in Yonkers except that he has been a conscientious and steady worker and, as a bachelor, has supported his mother and sister. He is known as a good musician and a lover of music.

Previous to his elevation to the presidency Mr. Borland was superintendent of the plant, and in absolute control. He held several executive positions, and because of his practical knowledge he was first in line for the office of president.

It was stated to-day that Mr. Clark resigned because his illness prevented him from longer attending to his duties. The company employs approximately seven thousand men and women.

Casement Can Be Saved By America's Aid

New York, August 2.—England will not execute Sir Roger Casement, despite the decree that Ireland's hero shall die on August 3, is the opinion of Michael Francis Doyle, of Philadelphia, Casement's counsel.

Mr. Doyle has returned to the United States on the New York after a six weeks battle to save Sir Roger's life.

"I do not believe that Sir Roger Casement will be executed," he said. "Before leaving England I wrote to Sir Edward Grey a statement of his defence, had the government permitted him to call witnesses. In view of these facts I think that it is unlikely that the sentence will be carried out.

"It is, however, a most delicate situation. Public opinion in America, if properly and promptly expressed to England will, I am sure, save his life."

Dr. Doyle refused to indicate what measure he thought should be taken, but admitted that he will be in Washington to-day to see what can be done. He hopes to see State Department officials and President Wilson without delay.

"If America is to save Sir Roger Casement she must speak up at once," he said.

On being apprised of the Senate resolution in behalf of Sir Roger, and of the many letters and telegrams sent to Washington by individuals and societies, Mr. Doyle was much gratified. He said they undoubtedly would help.

Sir Roger's health has been of the best, Mr. Doyle said, and his spirits are excellent. He is firm in his resolution to die bravely if he must die, to show the world Ireland's true spirit.

"He is actuated by the highest possible motives of patriotism," declared Mr. Doyle.

Cabled requests came from Sir Roger shortly after his arrest for Mr. Doyle to cross the ocean to act as his counsel. Great Britain granted every courtesy to Mr. Doyle, who became the first American citizen to plead an English state case. He had all the rights of an English solicitor, even being permitted to visit his client in jail.

Copies of the proceedings in the case including Sir Roger's address, "the speech from the dock," were brought back by Mr. Doyle. He intends to occupied by Smith, the notorious bigamist and wife murderer, who was executed in connection with what is Though reluctant to answer questions Mr. Doyle appeared to be confident Sir Roger would have been cleared if all the witnesses desired had been called. He admitted the witnesses wanted were in Germany, but refused to say whether they were Irish, or German.

London, August 2.—Should the Royal prerogative not be exercised, Sir Roger Casement will suffer the extreme penalty of the law in Pentonville prison next Thursday morning. The hour of his execution probably will be 8 o'clock.

Those who have been following the case closely are not sanguine of a reprieve but it would not be fair to say there is no hope. There is—a little Casement himself from the first has believed that he will be hanged. In fact he has not personally petioned for a reprieve nor will he do so. It is understood that his health is very good and he is quite resigned to his fate. It is not expected that the decision will be announced before Tuesday.

He is confined in the condemned cell at Pentonville, the cell which was last known as the "brides in bath" mystery. It is a commodious room on the ground floor, furnished with an ordinary plank bed, blankets, a small table, stool, washstand and basin and a book rack.

As to his life itself, one day follows another in its motony. His meals he has regularly; they are ordered by the medical officer. He has practically cart blanche with the hospital menu—chicken and soup, jellies and fruit, and even choice grapes. He is allowed to smoke a pipe, and tobacco ad lib. is provided, but he must ask the warder for light to ignite it. Intoxicants are not allowed.

Says Haggerty Took Baby's Bed

ROCHESTER, Aug., 2.—Mrs. Gertrude McLaughlin, mother of Mrs. Grace Brown Haggerty, to-day expressed strong indignation over statements made at police headquarters by Haggerty and his attorney. Haggerty was tried yesterday on a charge of kidnaping his daughter. His attorney said Haggerty had been contributing $20 a month toward the support of the child. Haggerty said that when he called to see the baby Mrs McLaughlin "slammed the door."

"These utterances are absolutely untrue" said Mrs. McLaughlin. The only home provided for Haggerty and his family in Rochester was provided by me. He has never paid me the money he owes me and he has contributed only $120 in a year to the support of his family. When he left he took all his household belongings, consisting of the furnishings from one room. He took his wife's bed and he took the baby's bed.

"Nevertheless he was never refused admittance to the house. The statement that I slammed the door in his face is as false as it can be. A newspaper ought to refuse to publish such rot. Haggerty was here yesterday afternoon and he denied that he made that statement. Somebody is lying.

"I do not see why I should be dragged into this case at all. I have nothing to do with it. It seems that an effort is going on to feature the mother-in-law so that public opinion will be influenced. This is a source of great annoyance to me and it is very distasteful that my name should be bandied about in that way. I am determined to get at the bottom of it and find out who is behind all this. It seems impossible to get at the truth, but, believe it or not, this work of trying to degrade me is wholly unjustifiable, unjust and infamous. I've long ago wished that this case was settled one way or another. It is cruel to picture me as an interfering mother-in-law. I have never interfered with them in any way."

Accused of Stealing $106 From Policeman

New York, August 2—Charged with burglary, Charles Legido and Robert Walters, each 16 years old, and living at No. 1808 Second Avenue, were locked up.

They are accused of entering the apartment of Patrolman William Dooley, at No. 1671 Second avenue, and stealing $106.

Britain Seizes Flour And Arouses Norway

Christiana, Aug. 2.—The fact that the British authorities have ordered the unloading and seizure on arrival at Christiana of some 3,000 bags of American flour on board the cargo steamer Noruega, which is expected to arrive here to-morrow, caused surprise and indignation. It is known the flour is destined to importers at Christiana and will not be declared free for delivery before arrangements satisfactory to the British minister have been made.

It is stated that the procedure now ordered is absolutely different from the established practice. The papers to-day urge delegations of the Union of Norwegian Flour Importers, who are about to proceed to London, to explain the statistics, as the British authorities apparently do not understand the Norwegians are dependent to a large extent on imported flour, their own production of flour being quite insufficient for their needs.

Before the war nearly the whole of the grain and flour imported into Norway came from Germany and Russia, sources which no longer are available, with the result that the whole of the country's imports of these foodstuffs is now brought overseas. The stoppage of these supplies means starvation for the people of Norway. The press states that the action of the British authorities is incomprehensible and iniquitous.

The attendance the first year of the Canadian National Exhibition was 101,000. It ran three weeks. Last year there was a daily average attendance of 72,000 for 12 days, a total of 864,000.

OBITUARY

THOMAS GORDON.

The death occurred at Lakefield on Saturday of Mr. Thomas Gordon, one of the oldest and most highly respected residents of that town. The late Mr. Gordon was born in Quebec 83 years ago, but had come to Lakefield as a young man and spent practically all his life in that town. For many years Mr. Gordon was in the canoe building business and was one of the oldest boat builders in the Midlord district.

He is survived by three sons, Gilbert, of Bobcaygeon, William of Rochester, and Charles, of Winnipeg, and seven daughters, Mrs. Blewett of Vancouver, B.C., Mrs. Pents, of Winnipeg, Mrs. Humphries, of Griswold, Man., Mrs. Record, Toronto Miss Gordon, Toronto, and Mrs. Gilman and Mrs. Baker, of Lakefield His wife predeceased him in 1910

The funeral took place yesterday afternoon from the residence of Mr. Wm. Baker, his son-in-law to the Baptist church and thence to Lakefield cemetery.

CROP PROSPECT IS GOOD.

Country in Western Canada Never Looked Better.

James Carruthers, who is making a trip through the Western wheat belt, summing up results of his visit, on his arrival at Edmonton, says:

"Crop prospects at present in the Canadian Northwest could not be better. They are uniformly good over all lines, and with a continuance of fine weather it looks as if Canada were going to be favoured with another large crop. A few sections are damaged by hailstorms, but this happens every year. I never saw the country looking so well in the districts covered by the Grand Trunk Pacific between Winnipeg and Edmonton. Business conditions are very quiet, but it is believed that if the country pulls off another large crop this fall that they will improve very fast."

Coroner Holds Drug Clerk Responsible For Death of Baby

MONTREAL, Aug. .—Adelard Savard, drug clerk, who gave out the wrong package of medicine to the parents of Anna Pula, the taking of which caused her death, was found criminally responsible by the coroner's jury for the death of the child. Detective McCann gave evidence showing that the woman for whom the package was originally intended could not be traced.

Savard was detained at headquarters pending the issuing of a warrant The jury recommended that any drug gist receiving a prescription for dangerous medicine should fill it himself and see that it was properly delivered.

Heat Increases Mortality Among Infantile Paralysis Victims.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—All previous mortality records in the epidemic of infantile paralysis were broken today. During the 24 hours' period ending at 10 a.m., the plague killed 87 children in the greater city, and 159 new cases were reported by the Health Department. The great increase in the number of deaths is attributed to the season's worst heat wave.

Few Driven Mad By War, Says Savant

Optimism of the Most Exaggerated Type the Dominating Note in the Hallucinations of Paralytics.

The war has not driven mad so many persons as was anticipated in the early stages. Statistics thus far show that the first reports of men going crazy after the infernal fire of modern artillery were exaggerated.

Dr. G. Dumas, who has treated all the cases of mental trouble in one of the French armies, says that his data, covering the first ten months of 1915, agrees with the reports of German doctors concerning madness among combatants.

He finds that the cases of insanity caused directly or indirectly by the war in France are quite as few in proportion as those in Germany and offers the figures as a refutation of the theory of German specialists that the Teutonic race is showing greater nervous resistance than the Latin.

Dr. Dumas's report covers 1,186 cases of derangement of which only 3 1-2 per cent. were cases of general paralysis, while in most asylums in time of peace the proportion is 15 per cent. This he takes as conclusive evidence that the fatigues and commotions of war have no influence upon the development of this form of insanity.

General paralytics, however, when they become delirious, rave about the war, the same as cases in which the symptoms are quite different, and Dr. Dumas concludes that the life of the combatant often simply gives a war colour to delirium that would have existed under normal circumstances, but in a different form.

Horror, inspired by battle scenes, sometimes work directly on the nervous system, developing symptoms such as hysteria, speechlessness, deafness, loss of the sense of feeling, fits of mental confusion or paralysis, not always accompanied by hallucinations or delirium.

Optimism Dominating Note.

Optimism of the most exaggerated type is the dominating note in the hallucinations of the paralytics and Dr. Dumas considers it a wonder that officers do not in fits of exaltation give absurd heroic orders that lead to disasters.

In one case a lieutenant who declared to the doctor that he had "cleaned out a German trench with two machine guns that he had carried on his back from a point several miles in the rear," had remained in command of his section until 48 hours before he was examined. A few days later a captain was brought to Dr. Dumas, fresh from the command of his company, suffering from an equally radical fit of "exaggerated optimism."

Dr. Dumas reports 17 cases of what he calls "reasoning madness" in which the fatigues and commotions of war have had no influence, but in which hallucinations previously existing were applied to the war. An artillery man who, before the war, imagined that he was charged with the defence of the radical and socialist members of parliament against what he considered the calumnies of the royalists and nationalists of the 'right' was brought to a hospital suffering from a tumor. He immediately divided the nurses of the hospital into two parties, the Left and Right, and would have nothing to do with the latter while he began to fall in love with one after another of the nurses of the Left.

The mentally debilitated are largely represented in the statistics. Of 185 cases, 110 were sent to the rear as being permanently inapt for further armed service and 56 who presented symptoms of delirium were interned Several of these, Dr. Dumas says, owe their mental condition to fatigues and commotions of war and all of them derive the themes of their delirium from their experiences at the front. There are among them Messiahs come to announce the final victory, messengers designated by Joan of Arc to show the way to success spiritualists who have acquired occult knowledge of the plans of the enemy.

Predominance of Alcoholics.

Alcoholics were numerous in the first month of the war among the deranged soldiers, but have since been remarkably few. In August, 1914, 131 cases were brought to Val de Grace of which 31 were suffering from alcoholism; in another hospital there were 38 out of 65. Of these 69 cases 18 had delirium tremens and 11 of them died. They were all confirmed drinkers who had exaggerated their propensities during the exciting days of the mobilization.

The number diminished rapidly after the first month, not a single case of alcoholism being reported during September from one of the most fortified places and only 163 developing in an entire army during the first ten months of last year. All of the 163 were reservists and in so far as their history could be learned were old drinkers. Nearly all of them resumed their service after taking the milk cure.

The tendency of the alcoholics was to dream of battle and to see Germans everywhere. One of them took a detachment of his comrades for the enemy and charged them with fixed bayonet.

The proportion of cases of mental depression among the 1,186 was large. There were 2224 in ten months—mostly officers with besetting notions of professional shortcomings and difficulties. The majority of these men realized fully about it though unable to overcome it.

"I am no longer able to give an order without immediately cancelling it," said one officer. "I cannot help weighing to an exaggerated extent every eventuality and many imaginary consequences. I always foresee the worst possible issue to every movement — am paralyzed by the anxiety to do the right thing and have become nothing but indecision and contradiction."

Due to Horrors of Battle.

A man who rose from the ranks to the grade of captain was haunted by the thought that he was unequal to his responsibilities and pleaded to be retrograded.

Among the cases of this kind was a man who reproached himself for having important military secrets and who was haunted by the prospect of being courtmartialed for treason.

There were 348 cases between March, 1915, and January, 1916, of mental troubles considered directly due to horror of battle scenes and commotion produced by bombardments.

A considerable number of the mentally debilitated have the mania of invention. Dr. Dumas is of the opinion that the number of these cases outside the army would be found greater in proportion if the minister of munitions could make public the correspondence he receives from civilians.

Among the debilitated were several men and officers who didn't know where and for whom they had been fighting. One declared that he was unaware that France was at war.

French Fire Twice As Fast As Foe

Bray, Picardy, France, Aug. 2.—Two French shells to one shell by the Germans measures the gunfire on this part of the front as observed by a correspondent during a three day stay behind the lines. The cannonade continues throughout the night, rising to intensity during the long mid-summer days, when the sunlight enables accurate direction of fire from the air observers.

The French artillery commanders feel that they dominate the German guns, and they owe it largely to the airmen. The German gunners must fire by maps, searching for hostile batteries by calculatig probabilities, because the French still hold command of the air. No German sausage balloons, as the French call them, are able to keep the air, since they began to be burned by a new device three weeks ago. Hostile aeroplanes began appearing in considerable numbers on Friday and Saturday, usually flying at very high altitudes, being frequently invisible from the earth. Machine gun firing heard occasionally from remote heights in the air told of air encounters.

The fighting in this part of the battle front is in the open and the combatants are not now facing each other from behind solidly constructed field works as during the long period from September, 1914, to the end of June The Germans, with the breaking of their third line, must rely on hastily dug ditches and shallow pits. It would take many weeks to duplicate the old positions. Their abandoned works are now being reorganized by the French.

The purpose of the incessant shell fire is to break up the new German diggings and keep the Germans constantly unprotected and cause as many casualties among them as possible.

Some eighty per cent. of the casualties in this war are from shell and direct gun fire without infantry assaults or without changing positions The gunfire wastes the adversary's strength in men. Five hundred shells may only tear up a trench work and then one shell will kill or wound twenty or thirty men.

The French are increasingly shelling a five mile zone back of the German front lines so as to harrass the German communications and destroy the roads and bridges. Bits of the front are often selected for destruction, usually a salient interfering with the symmetry of the line. A characteristic incident was that of Estrees, where the Germans on July 24, held the houses. French attacks on the right and left had bent back the German support. The French shelled the group of houses for six hours and it seemed impossible that anyone could have lived under the fire. When the French infantry moved forward, however, they found 15 wounded survivors out of the 450 men who had held the position.

How You Can Make Hairs Quickly Disappear

(Helps to Beauty)

Even a stubborn growth of hair will quickly vanish from the fact, neck or arms after a single treatment with delatone. To remove the hairs, make a stiff paste with a little powdered delatone and water, apply to hairy surface and after about 2 minutes rub off, wash the skin and it will be left free from hair or blemish. To avoid disappointment, be quite certain you get real delatone.

Elaborate Precautions Taken To Insure The Safety of Deutschland

Few Persons Witness the Start of the Big Submarine From Harbour of Baltimore---Farewell Cheers Are Given to the Crew---Tugs Escort the Underseas Craft on Her Start For Bremen---The Final Preparations.

BALTIMORE, Md., August 3.—The German subsea merchantman Deutschland, with her cargo of gold, nickel and rubber, and painted a sea gray, began her dash out of American waters late Tuesday afternoon, and today off the Virginia Capes are sweeping the seas with their dragnets to prevent the craft from escaping.

The Deutschland passed Cove Point sixty miles from Baltimore, at five minutes to twelve. She was in convoy of a newspaper yacht and the tug Timmins, and was making only nine knots. This is the last place where she can possibly be sighted until she is in Virginia waters. The press boat reported "Everything O.K."

CHEERED BY SMALL CROWD.

The dash of the Deutschland was greeted by cheers from the small crowd that had been attracted by the activities which indicated the vessel was to leave, after many days of waiting and preparation. The North German Lloyd line steamship Ueckar, which had served as a fender for the submarine while she lay in this harbour, unfurled the German colours at her aftrail and spread the code flags which read:—"Homeward bound; good luck." The crew of the Neckar, on board which the Deutschland's crew had been quartered while in port, leaned over the rails and cheered, while the whistles of a score of small craft tooted, and Captain Koenig smiled.

Convoyed by the tug Thomas F. Timmins, under charter to the owners of the subsea freighter; the Wissahickon, of the United States Customs Service, and the Baltimore police boat Lannan, the Deutschland cast off her lines and slid out from between the Neckar and a barge, which had protected her from the public and Germany's enemies, and started out into the thirtyfive foot channel of Baltimore Harbour.

Instantly the port was alive with excitement. Newspaper and other boats which had been waiting for days and nights, always with two or more eyes trained on the Deutschland, fell into line or ran abreast. Motion picture cameras began to click on board small power boats and the whistles of many craft added to the tension of the half hour which was required for the enchanted submarine to fade away on her voyage which soon was to be a test between German cunning and British and French vigilance.

WILL SUBMERGE IN SECRET.

Somewhere between here and the Capes it is believed the Deutschland will submerge and "lose" her convoy. The Wissahickon will continue on out to the three-mile limit and it is probable United States naval vessels also will be there, but it is not believed they will see the Deutschland, although she may pass immediately under them.

That the Deutschland was preparing for her dash was apparent when the Timmins and the tug Efco dragged the channel to be used by the Deutschland for any obstruction, possibly mines, that might have been placed there to prevent her leaving port. A net was stretched between the two tugs and they went down the river abreast, dragging the net the full depth of the thirty-five foot channel. They continued on down the harbour for a mile, but found nothing.

During the day there were several conferences on board the Neckar in which Captain Koenig participated. Early in the afternoon the Wissahickon arrived and then came the Lannan. The commanders of these vessels held a conference with Captain Koenig on board the Neckar and then it was certain the Deutschland was to start.

A little after five o'clock the barge that had shielded one side of the submarine merchanman was moved away and the log boom ahead of her was towed away.

The crew of the Deutschland then appeared on her long whaleback deck and Captain Koenig appeared. They saluted him and he addressed them in German. Their faces presented eager smiles. They appeared to be in the finest fettle, and when their commander had finished they waved their caps and cheered him. The wiry little German commander, all in white, then mounted the wheelman's platform, or conning tower, as it has been called, a line was passed to the Timmins and the Efco, there was a "toot toot," the waters were churned by propeller blades and the disguised Deutschland began to move out of her berth.

A few days ago she was painted a steel gray. To-day she appeared above the water in a sea gray coat over which had been splashed irregular lines of dirty white to simulate seas.

HER DISGUISE IS PERFECT.

This new disguise, it was said, will make her indistinguishable from the green seas in which she expects to encounter enemy war vessels. Those who had seen "war paint" upon armed vessel said this disguise of the Deutschland had been applied by a master hand.

Soon after the Deutschland left her berth Captain Koenig, who was smiling and bowing to the cheering crowd on the piers and to the motion picture cameras and the men in the many boats, was joined by two of his officers, also in white, and one of them took the wheel. Soon the Timmins and the Elco dropped their lines and the Deutschland, under her own power, came up abreast and between them and the procession moved on down the harbour and beyond the view of those who remained behind. The Lannan dropped out when the harbour limits had been passed and the Wissahickon led down to the sea.

The crew on board the Deutschland is the same to a man that brought her to this country, making in many respects the most remarkable cruise across the Atlantic on record. Gustav Prusse, who came on board the Deutschland as super-cargo, remains in this country, and it is understood that he will be attached to the Bremen, sister submarine of the Deutschland, when she arrives—if she does arrive.

Precautions taken by the Deutschland to prevent onything happening at sea were revealed. Not a thing went on board that was not tested. Even the crude oil for her engines was run through meshes and then analyzed by German chemists to make certain there was no concealed explosive and that the proper combustible qualities were present.

Final preparations included a thorough inspection of the cargo of gold, nickel and rubber, which had been inspected many times previously. All the machinery was gone over by experts in the employ of the Eastern Forwarding Company, owner of the Deutschland, by experts said to represent the German government and by the engineers of the crew.

Russians Are Approaching Kovel and Lemberg

Tsar's Troops Within Twenty Miles of Kovel and Vladimir-Volynski---Lemberg Threatened From the Northwest --Austrian Forces Between the Zlota Lipa and the Dniester Are Almost Surrounded.

ENEMY NEARLY ENVELOPED

LONDON, August 3.—It is reported that the Russians are only ten miles from Kovel. Steadily forcing a wedge between the German armies in Volhynia and the Austrians in Galicia, General Brusiloff is pursuing his brilliant progressive move toward Kovel and Vladimir-Volynski. His forces are now well across the Stokhod River from the Pinsk marshes to its source near Kiselin.

They hold both the Sarny-Kovel and the Rovno-Kovel railroads, both of which are connected with Kieff and the network of Russian railways in the interior, so that a ready and continuous supply of ammunition can be easily forwarded to the front. The Russians are within twenty miles of Kovel and about the same distance from Vladimir-Volynski. The occupation of these two towns would almost certainly cause the evacuation of Lemberg.

The Russians could then advance down the Bug River, threatening the Galician capital from the north, while their forces in the Austrian province moved southward from Brody, west from Tarnopol and northwest from the Zlota Lipa, are attacking it from three sides at once.. A collapse of the entire Austrian army would certainly follow.

Despatches from Rome state that the Germans are already withdrawing from Kovel their heavy artillery, food and munition depots, and the city of Vladimir-Volynski is said to have been completely evacuated by the Germans. Although these despatches are not confirmed, it is believed here that at least they are only premature, as Rome is usually well informed on Russian news.

A correspondent with the Russian forces has reported that the roads toward Kovel "are black with the retreating enemy." The Russians are virtually within striking distance of both Kovel and Vladimir-Volynski and also are pressing closer toward Lemberg.

Telegrams from Vienna say that the Austro-Hungarians have made all preparations for the evacuation of Lemberg, says a despatch from Copenhagen. Large quantities of goods have been removed from the city. The Neuve Freie Presse, of Vienna, says it learns that a large number of the inhabitants of Lemberg already have left the place.

Further south, military obeservers here believe, the Austrian forces of Count von Bothmer between the Zlota Lipa and the Dniester are doomed. They are already nearly enveloped by the Russians, and the railways behind them were destroyed by Cossack divisions pushing out from Brody after the occupation of that town.

Look For Second Mammoth Crop At War Prices

Farmers of West Expect to Reap Rich Harvest Again This Year

WINNIPEG, Aug. 1.— Fine, even torrid weather has characterised the past week nearly all over the spring wheat area of the Canadian prairie west. This has been interspersed with heavy local thunder storms, but very little hail has been reported. There may be some ground for the alarmist report about the grain ripening too fast to fill the head, but theer is plenty of moisture in the ground, and from experience in previous years these reports are seldom borne out by threshing returns.

More serious have been the widely disseminated reports of black rust. In some localities of Southern Manitoba weather conditions of heavy rains followed by intense heat all make for rust. But there is a vital difference between the comparatively harmless red rust—which is always to be found in some part of the country, and the devastating black rust. A few years ago a member of the Manitoba Government announced in Chicago that Southern Manitoba was scourged with black rust, and the market rose accordingly. But as harvest progressed it developed that there was no real ground for this sensational talk.

There is, indeed, a tendency to exaggerate crop damage for this will tend to strenthen the market and thus benefit our farmers. The Hon. Valentine Winkler, Minister of Agriculture in the Provincial Government, was saying this week that although there is a great stand of wheat in the province, looking like all the way from thirty to thirty-five bushels an acre, he believed that the ear was not filling properly, and despaired of even a fair average.

Not Good Advertising.

Unless black rust does develop—and at present there is absolutely not a single piece of actual proof—this sort of statement is merely ridiculous, and it is doubtful whether Mr. Norris' colleague is doing the farmers of the province anything but a disservice in giving it currency for the benefit of the Chicago Bulls.

Crop reports of the Saskatchewan Government, on the other hand, continue optimistic. Wheat in later there, especially on the heavy lands along the C. P. R. main line and in the Regina district than Manitoba but even at that harvesting should be well up to the average year.

In Alberta there is now the practical certainty of a more than average yield, both in the considerable area seeded to fall wheat and the much larger spring wheat sections. All over the paririe west a big hay crop has been saved successfully and barley cutting is making good progress.

Last year what with the abundant yield and war prices, western farmers practically harvested two crops in one. Half of it paid for their expenses, their seed and met their payments on implements. The other half was all to the good and many of them were able to lift their mortgages, this resulting in the rare spectacle of several western mortgage companies finding difficulty in placing their money. Now there promises to be another great crop at war prices.

It is really ridiculous for anyone to try to boost the price still further by belittling the crop, for these abnormal prices are set for reasons beyond the control of even the fourth of the wheat-producing countries, as Canada has now become. There is always a slump when needy farmers are inclined to dump their crop on the market on any terms. With banks and loan and implement companies clamoring for their pound of flesh, western farmers indeed had no choice in the matter. They had to realize cash as quickly as possible. Happily steps are now being taken to market this great crop on more rational lines. These are the direct outcome of negotiations which have been in progress for some months between representatives of the banks and of the farmers.

Methods Were Wasteful.

The bankers concede that the former methods were wasteful, and that if Canada is to gain the utmost value from their production, the marketing of the corp must be spread over a reasonable period. In the first place, therefore, farmers' notes, where the personality is satisfatcory, are to be renewable until such time as the crop is marketed, and not, as hitherto has prevailed, on that blighting date, November 10. Then again the banks will loan money to farmers on their actual wheat in stock to enable them to "carry on" until they have got it out of their farm granaries in the elevators.

This frank co-operation is likely to have far-reaching results. Farmers in the west have been hostile to or suspicious of the chartered banks just because they have supposed that there are for the most part eastern financal institutions exploiting western producers for their eastern shareholders. To some extent this has been justified, and has resulted in great farmers' agitation for rural banks on co-operative lines. The chartered banks through their western supervisors and managers have come to see the peril of this movement, and are meeting it more than half way. They will even go further and will finance at special rates of interest farmers' co-operative credit associations where such are conducted on sound lines. This is a great step forward and marks the inauguration of a new and happier era in the West, in which the hitherto rival financial and producing interest will pull together for the common good.

African Race Who Are Real White

ONE NATIVE RACE, THE BERBERS, HAVE FAIR SKINS AND LIGHT HAIR.

Most people imagine that all African tribes are dark skinned people, but this is a wrong impression. The Berbers are an African race and although they have lived on the dark continent for ages, they are as white as Europeans. They are very fine looking people, with white skins, fine complexions, and many have blue eyes and very light hair. Many of the women and young people have very pretty rosy cheeks.

It is generally believed the Berbers originally came from southern Europe centuries ago, and the race has remained distinct all these years in spite of the odds that would seem to be against them.

Many of the Berbers are very industrious and some show considerable mechanical skill, having invented a number of devices that are in use among the people of their own tribe.

If they lived and dressed as Europeans it would be difficult to detect them from our more modern people, but in their own way in the dark continent there is nothing to indicate their origin except their color, which has remained perfect for all these long years as if they came from Europe or America.—New York American.

Be Careful What You Wash Your Hair With

Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali, for this is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulsified cocoanut oil, for it is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

GIRL SLAIN BY AIR BLOWN IN BODY THEORY OF POLICE

OLNEY, Ill., Aug. 1.—The "murder by air" of little Elizabeth Ratcliff, seventeen-year-old farmer's daughter, promised to be noteworthy in the criminal annals of Illinois.

Wealthy relatives of Roy Hinterlinter, the young farmer boy held to the Grand Jury without bond for the alleged murder of the girl, are making strenuous efforts to secure his release on bail.

The manner of death is declared by Dr. Frank H. Weber of the Olney Institution to be remarkable. He said he knew of no other case under similar circumstances. The autopsy disclosed the presence of air in the arteries, collected about the brain and heart.

According to Dr. Weber the girl died of embolism. When the postmortem was held there was apparently nothing to indicate the cause of death—no marks of violence, no symptoms of disease and no sign of organic afflictions. It was evident that she was about to become confined.

The barest chance revealed the cause of death. In making the autopsy one of the surgeons accidentally cut an artery and noted that an air bubble came from the wound, although the girl had been dead for hours. The doctors then concluded that a bubble of air had reached her heart and death had been instantaneous.

The theory of the State is that Hinterlinter did not himself know what killed the girl and was as puzzled at the cause of death as were the doctors. It is not even intimated by the prosecution that the Hinterlinter had any intention of killing her.

With the accidental discovery of an illegal instrument by which physicians believed Hinterlinter blew air into the girl's arteries in an effort to produce a condition calculated to relieve her, the State obtained a start upon which to work.

The work of producing evidence along these lines has progressed far enough to warrant, in the opinion of the authorities, Hinterlinter being held to the Grand Jury. The authorities refuse to disclose all of the evidence obtained, but declare they have the confessions of several boy friends of Hinterlinter. This evidence will be placed before the Grand Jury.

Hinterlinter, in jail here, still refuses to throw any light on the alleged murder and maintains that he knows nothing of the case, other than the girl fainted while she was riding with him.

The mystery as to how the air got into the artery might never have been solved had it not been for two boy friends of Hinterlinter. They were caught in trying to hide a package. In it was a catheter, used in performing illegal operations. Examination showed that it had been tampered with.

"Somebody blew into that catheter and then pumped it into the girl's body. It killed her instantly," said the doctors.

The State will try to prove that Hinterlinter decoyed the girl to a spot near a bridge, two miles south of Olney. Here the boy seized her, according to the State's theory, and used the instrument. Signs of the struggle were found in the sand. Here the boys were seen with the package. They said Hinterlinter had sent them there for it.

Hinterlinter was not the only beau of the Ratcliffe girl. There was another—Sam Harrin, of Olney. Harrin was the girl's favourite, but Harrin was a soldier and marched to camp with the Fourth Illinois Regiment. He wrote many fond letters back, but Elizabeth forgot the absent for the present and her friendship for Hinterlinter was renewed. They took nightly buggy rides and people began to talk. Then came the last ride, which ended at the doors of the Olney sanitarium last Friday night, with Hinterlinter holding over his arm the lifeless body of the pretty farmer girl.

"She died in my arms in the buggy," Hinterlinter explained when they found that life had gone. She was dead when placed in the buggy, say the doctors.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

BOWSER'S SIDE OF IT

He Avers That Mrs. Bowser Has Also Made Mistakes.

By M. QUAD.

Copyright, 1916, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Readers of the Bowser sketches cannot have helped but notice that Mrs. Bowser always twists everything around so as to appear one of the smartest women in the land, while I am held up to scorn and contempt as a faddist and an incompetent. I have stood this as long as I shall stand it. Mrs. Bowser is a very good woman, but I shall not longer allow her to boost herself up at my expense. If I have made mistakes she is also guilty of the same thing and should share the blame with me. She has related in these sketches thousands of my blunders, but I shall content myself at present with relating only a few of hers.

One evening last fall as we sat enjoying our home life I observed that I must soon see about the winter's supply of coal for the furnace. She replied that I was an overworked man and that it was her duty as a wife to take all the burdens off my shoulders she could. I needn't bother about the coal, for one thing. She would not have me strain my voice at the telephone for fear of producing some lasting injury to my vocal cords. I might go right along in peace and contentment and on the morrow she would order the coal. She looked at me so lovingly and her attitude was so confident that I left the business to her.

I shall not state that I expected she would blunder about it, but between you and me I looked for some calamity. On the next morning as soon as I left the house she got into communication with our coal man and asked him over the telephone:

"You have got coal, I presume?"

"We have kept coal for twenty-eight years," was the reply.

"Then I want five tons of it."

"Very well, madam. It shall be up today."

That was just like a woman—just like Mrs. Bowser. There are about a dozen different brands of coal. She did not specify whether we wanted it for the range or the furnace or a steam boiler, and as a consequence five tons of pea coal came up. Pea coal is the smallest size, you know, and will almost sift through a pepper box. The men had deposited half of it in the bins when she discovered her mistake. That pea coal would last about as long in the furnace as so much sawdust, and it cost her $4 in cash to have it reloaded and taken back to the yards, and she paid the money out of her weekly allowance and bribed the cook with a new pair of stockings to say nothing to me.

And again. When she tells me that we are out of butter I go over to the grocer and say to the swindler who runs the concern:

"Look here, Brown; I want five pounds of butter."

"Yes, sir."

"I don't want to find any coat buttons, peach stones or vest buckles in it. I want good creamery butter and less than a hundred years old. If you attempt to swindle me I will make Rome howl around this old shebang. You know me, sir. My name is Bowser. I am a desperate and dangerous man!"

And wouldn't he have sent me the sweetest, nicest, slickest, juiciest five pounds of butter that two horn cows ever produced on this grassy globe? Sure he would.

And what did Mrs. Bowser do? She waited until she saw a farmer driving past on our street. Farmers occasionally come our way to dispose of their products. She rushed to the door and called to this farmer, and when he had come up the steps she asked in the gentle tones of an angel if it so happened that he had a crock of butter which he would be so kind and courteous as to sell to her for 2 cents over the market price. Yes, sir, that's just what she did instead of calling him a fraud and a robber to show him that he could not be deceived. The farmer replied that he had such a crock and it was such butter as had never been offered for sale in the city before. He brought in the crock. It looked good to Mrs. Bowser. Because it looked good on the surface she made no investigation. Because the farmer looked childlike and innocent she did not doubt his word. She bought that crock and paid cash down for it, and all day long she was smiling and chuckling and thinking of how she would boast to me of her bargain.

Some butter was wanted for dinner, and the crock had been brought out and a nice chunk lifted up just as I came in. I could not help but see it. I must have been stone deaf not to hear the gasps of surprise and chagrin uttered by Mrs. Bowser and the cook. About two inches of nice looking butter had been spread on top of a crock almost full of dirt, and Mrs. Bowser had been made a victim of a bold faced villain. He had never been on our street before and didn't intend to ever drive there again.

Did I use sarcastic words then to Mrs. Bowser? Did I say that she ought to have known better? Did I say that it served her just right? No! No, I did not even look sarcastic at her and had not a single word to say. We had no butter for dinner, but not a kick from me, and Mrs. Bowser has never mentioned this incident in print, but on the contrary every time I brought home a dozen eggs, and she has found a bad one in the lot, she has told of my utter failure as a business man.

And speaking of eggs reminds me of an occasion when she asked me, in a soft, bland voice, why I didn't buy them at wholesale instead of retail. I replied like any conservative husband would have done, that I would think the startling suggestion over for awhile, but she could not be content. She was in our family grocery when the grocer offered a crate of twelve dozen eggs at wholesale price. She did not ask if he would warrant them fresh eggs, but closed the bargain at once and was very proud of her economy.

Mrs. Bowser wanted to make an egg omelet for dinner, and the first nine eggs out of that crate proved to be bad ones. Out of the twelve dozen eggs she found later on about three dozen good ones—that is, they were not so bad but what they could be forced down the throat. Now, then, how would I have proceeded to buy twelve dozen eggs? I would have entered that grocery and said to the swindler who runs it:

"I want to buy a crate of eggs at wholesale. I want them for 10 cents a dozen less than retail price. I want every egg to be as fresh as the summer dew on a pumpkin vine. If there is a bad egg among them, or a shortage in the count, I will come in here and work such destruction in this old shanty of yours that you will have to go into bankruptcy inside of an hour. Don't think you can swindle me, you old hyena. I am up to the games you practice on innocent customers! Twelve dozen eggs, sir, and every one of them a fresh one!"

And wouldn't every egg have been fresh, and wouldn't I have saved a dollar or more where Mrs. Bowser lost two or three? Of course I would—of course. And has Mrs. Bowser ever told the public of the swindle in eggs? She has not even hinted it that such a thing occurred, and she never will.

One evening not so long ago she observed that our front steps needed repainting and that she wished I would employ a painter to do the job. I was about to declare that I would do it myself and thereby save $100, when she swished off on some other subject and shut me up. On the next day when a big tramp came along and begged for something to eat she asked him if he had ever done any painting.

"I have been a house painter for over twenty years," was his reply.

"How much will you ask to paint the front steps?"

"Only $3, ma'am, if you will furnish the paint. I wouldn't do it for any one else for less than $7."

We had five or six different kinds of paint down cellar, and Mrs. Bowser brought them up and mixed them altogether. There was no oil to thin them down, and so she poured in a pint of kerosene. The cook said that oil of some kind was highly necessary, and so she emptied a bottle of castor oil in on top of the kerosene, and the tramp went to work.

Were those steps when finished a thing of beauty and a joy forever? Not hardly—not as you could perceive. There were streaks of green and red and purple and lead color and white. There were spots of oil here and there. There were spots of the old paint showing through the fresh coat. They were variegated front steps. They were such as no house ever had before. This incident occurred days and days ago, but the steps have not been in use since, and they may not be for years and years to come.

The tramp had got his money and gone when I reached home, but a crowd still lingered in front of the house. I borrowed a ladder and climbed up to the chamber window to get in and found Mrs. Bowser mentally perturbed. But did I say anything to add to her sufferings? Not one single word. In fact, I patted her on the back and told her this was a good world to live in. She made the most of it when I bought a dozen hens and none of them laid an egg. But did I try to arenge on her when those steps were painted? Not a try!

I am still entering and leaving my house by way of the ladder and the window. But am I saying or doing anything to humiliate Mrs. Bowser? Not a thing. On the contrary, I am saying that she is a nice woman—a very nice woman—and I don't see how I could get along without her. She has her faults, as we all have, but I can excuse and overlook each and every one of them.

IRELAND AND MUNITIONS

Mr. John Redmond, M.P., introduced a deputation of business men from the All-Ireland Munitions Conference to Mr. Lloyd-George. The deputation said Mr. Redmond, had come not to ask for a favor, but to help the Minister. They had come to place their services entirely at his disposal in order to carry out the object they had in common—to produce as much munitions of war as possible. Mr. Lloyd-George: "Is there anyone here representing the trade unions?"

Mr. O'Neill: "No."

"Mr. Redmond: "We will have no trouble with the trade unions."

Mr. Lloyd-George: "Will they accept the principle of dilution—that men, women and unskilled men should work together?"

Mr. Redmond: "That is going on at present in a small degree, and they have raised no objection." In his reply Mr. Lloyd-George said that at present they had not the means of equipping factories beyond those which they had actually set up in Ireland, because of the demand for the machinery.

THIS IS REAL KULTUR

Francis Joseph Ordered Suicide of His Own Soldiers

According to a despatch received in Berne, 1,000 Bohemian soldiers were sent to their death by the Austrian Emperor to expiate an offense committed by others. Two entire battalions of the Twenty-eighth Austrian Infantry Regiment, Czechs from Prague, deserted to the Russians. The Emperor Francis Joseph signed the following decree: "The twenty-eighth Regiment is erased from my army. The remaining officers and men thereof must expiate with their blood the dishonor of their regimental comrades." The remnant of the regiment the third battalion, numbering over 1,000 Czechs from Prague, of ages varying from 18 to 20, was sent to the Isonzo and thrown against the Italian lines, under orders to make a frontal attack upon an exceptionally exposed position. The Italians annihilated the battalion, there being only eighteen survivors. On April 17, 1916, the Emperor reinstated the regiment "for gallantry on the Isonzo," the desertions in Galicia having been expiated.

Gentlewomen-Laborers

Lady Mabel Smith, sister of Earl Fitzwilliam, the great land-lord of Wentworth in Yorkshire, has taken a job as a farm hand. Other land workers whose names have figured in the society columns are being trained for work on the land and in the farm house. General Barrett's daughter has gone through a course and blossomed forth as forewoman on Lady Markham's estate at Newstead Abbey, near Nottingham; Sir Horace Smith's daughter is also working on a farm in the valley of the Thames, while Miss Begbie, the author's daughter, is being trained for a similar post. Five hundred gentlewomen are required to join the Women's Land Service Corps to help farmers. The purpose of this heavy call upon the upper class women is to show village women that the upper crust is not above doing farm labor.

Munitioner's Feat

Lloyd-George, in his first year as Minister of Munitions, not only took over an enormous number of establishments, but created many of his own, until there were over 5,000 factories at work. A certain place in the North, which a year previously was a mere hamlet, became a considerable town, with electric lighting, surface cars, and rows of factories and streets in which the workmen were housed. Other munition centres sprang up in the suburbs of great cities, and the number of men and women controlled by the Ministry of Munitions grew to be well over two millions within the twelvemonth.

RUSSIA'S SENATE

Council of Empire is Discussed For Englishmen's Benefit

H. Hamilton Fyfe writes from Petrograd: A Russian said to me: "We have heard a great deal about our ignorance of what England is doing; but is there not a still greater lack of understanding in your country about Russian affairs?" I assured him that England appreciated to the full the valor of the Russian army.

"I know that," he replied, "but there are many sides of Russian life of which the English as a nation have no idea. For example, all the Englishmen I have met supposed that the Duma was like your Parliament; could make and upset Ministries, legislate, control the Administration, and so on. It is a pity they are not better informed."

I was obliged to agree with him. It is most desirable that England and Russia should know more about one another. Of the Upper House there is little to be said. The "Council of Empire," as it is called, corresponds more nearly to the French Senate than to the British House of Lords. There are no hereditary members. Half are appointed by the Emperor; the rest are elected by county councils (Zemstvoes), by local assemblies of landowners, by learned societies such as those which have their habitation in Burlington House, by guilds of merchants, by societies of manufacturers and employers of labor. The result is an Assembly distinguished but inactive. Youth and energy find no place there; age and experience (which is only another word for disillusion) have it all their own way.

"I know what it is. It's a horse with a periscope." — From London Opinion.

KILLED HIS CAPTOR

Captured British Aviator Takes Revenge Upon German Officer

A Havre correspondent sends the following: A young British aviator was decorated in front of the troops for a flight accomplished in company with a German officer. The aviator had been obliged to descend within the German lines, and was made a prisoner by a German officer into whose hands he had fallen. The latter conceived the idea of making his prisoner take him in his aeroplane for a flight above the allied lines in order to make observations, which would not be disturbed by anti-aircraft fire, as the enemy would be misled by the cockade on the biplane.

The German officer reinforced his order with a revolver, and the aviator accordingly resumed his seat in the machine and strapped himself in securely. The German officer, with his pistol in his hand, took the observer's seat, and the couple then flew towards the allied lines, the aviator making a number of evolutions to the right and left, according to the orders of the German. Having seen sufficient, the officer of the Kaiser ordered the aviator to turn his machine, and in order to do so the aeroplane mounted higher, and suddenly turned over in an admirable loop. On righting himself the pilot found that he was alone, the German officer having for once been insufficiently strapped in. The aviator descended as quickly as possible into the British lines, where he received a welcome which took the form a of a decoration.

BAD COLD IN THE CHEST.

"I am happy to tell you that I used Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, and was promptly cured of a very bad cold in the chest," writes Mrs. Josephine Gauthier, Dover South, Ont. You can depend on Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine to relieve and cure all inflammations and irritations of the throat and bronchial tubes.

WHEN CUTTING TEETH

Babies Are Subject to DIARRHOEA

When the baby starts to cut its teeth, then is the time that the poor mother is under the stress of great anxiety. For some reason or other the bowels become loose, and diarrhoea, dysentery, colic, cramps and many other bowel complaints occur; the gums become swollen, cankers form in the mouth, and in many cases the child wastes to a shadow.

When the child gets into this condition the bowels must be looked after very closely, and for this purpose we know of nothing that can equal Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry.

This sterling remedy has been used for teething children, for over seventy years, by thousands of Canadian mothers who will swear by its efficacy.

Mrs. R. J. Waldruff, South River, Ont., writes: "Two years ago my little girl had diarrhoea while cutting her teeth. She got thin and very weak. I had tried different remedies, but all to vry little good. A friend recommended Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, so I procured a bottle at once, and after she had taken a few doses I could see a change, and by the time she had taken half the bottle she was cured. I think every home should keep it on hand."

The genuine "Dr. Fowler's" is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co, Limited, Toronto, Ont. Price 35c.

HOW RIVALS CHARGE

Bayonet Work of Allies and Germans Differs Greatly

Dr. A. A. Martin, a surgeon of New Zealand, who is on duty with the British forces in France, gives a clever descriptive comparison of the manner in which the three armies—French, British and German—charge. The French charge magnificently, but they charge in a state of tremendous excitement. When rushing across an open space to the enemy they shout and scream with excitement. "France!" "A bas les Boches!" "En avant!" They are uplifted with the wild ecstasy of the onfall. Men fall in the mad rush, never to rise again. N'importe!—it is unnoticed; on they go, an impetuous, irresistible avalanche of steel, yelling, stabbing, slaying, overwhelming! They are superb, these Frenchmen.

The British charge stoically and more grimly. They do not shout. I have heard them cursing. The British line advances as a sinister cold line of steel, in a sort of jog-trot. It is a line of cool-brained gladiators, alert of eye and thoroughly bent on slaughter. Our Briton sees his foe, and smiles savagely with the calculating judgment of a good Rugby forward, and with the bound of a wild cat. . . .

The German, in spite of what is often said to the contrary, is a brave and determined man with the bayonet. The German discipline is undoubted. It is a part of the people. It is the fibre of the nation. . . . . They charge well, advancing with a stooping, jerky trot, uttering hoarse guttural cries and "Hurrahs." On they come, in solid masses, shoulder to shoulder, hoping by the weight and speed of the dense columns to get a momentum that nothing can withstand. . . But if this compact line and solid column is broken, as it so often is to-day by shrapnel, rifle, or machine gun fire, the sense of cohesion is lost, and the heavy column is then no match for the lightning bayonet onfall of the French infantry, or the weighty heave forward of a British regiment.

A ROYAL SOLDIER

Among the most popular of the Royal soldiers of Great Britain is His Serene Highness Prince Alexander Augustus Frederick William Alfred George of Teck, who was born in Kensington Palace, the third son of the late Duke of Teck and the late Princess Mary Adelaide. Prince Alexander is the brother of Queen Mary, who has always been devoted to him. He has spent more than twenty years in the army, and saw his first active service in the Matabeleland campaign in 1896. Three years later he went to South Africa to engage in the Boer war. He was present at the relief of Kimberley and took part in Lord Roberts' advance on Pretoria. In both campaigns he won mention in the dispatches, and earned the Distinguished Service Order and promotion to the rank of captain in the Seventh Hussars. Four years after the war he was transferred to the Royal Horse Guards and promoted to the rank of major. In his South African experience he had the ill fortune to arouse the animosity of some war office officials because of his rather free criticism of the food supplied to the soldiers. On one occasion it was said, the Prince and the men under him were without food for two days, and were then supplied with meat which made him violently ill. His greatest popularity is among the rank and file of soldiers and the hospital patients, and the boy scouts have exalted him to the position of a hero.

ST. THOMAS, DANISH WEST INDIES—Which may soon come into the possession of the United States. Negotiations for the purchase of the Danish West Indies from Denmark have been under way for several years, and it is said that a purchase price of $25,000,000 has now been agreed upon by both governments. St. Thomas is the principal city of the Islands.

Keene Bowlers Visited Peterboro'

Items of Interest From the Village to the South

KEENE, August 2.—A rink of Keene bowlers—Messrs. G. Howson, McLachlan, Nelson, and Rev. E. McEachern—went to Peterborough last Thursday, playing afternoon and evening games, and returned home as usual with unlimited praise for the Peterborough bowlers, and delighted with the good showing made in the evening game.

George H. Simpson, of Smith Township, spent Sunday in the village at the home of Jas. H. Dickson, Mill Street.

Mr. L. Hart returned to his home last Saturday morning, after spending several days in the village with friends.

Misses Lottie and Phoeba Wedlock returned to the West on Friday, after spending Thursday with their parents on Aylmer Street.

Miss Lola Kempt and sister, Mrs. Thomas Wedlock, of Toronto, visited at the home of Mr. George H. Simpson, in Township of Smith, last Friday.

Miss Ruth Waldie, of Peterborough, visited in the village last week.

Mrs. Wallace Wood, of Toronto, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Campbell.

Mr. Edward Doris, of the village, was the guest of Michael Maher at Guinn's Point last Thursday.

Miss Kathleen Walsh and sister, Mrs. J. O'Connor, are visiting at the home of their father, Mr. Timothy Walsh.

Obituary.

Mrs. Thomas Charman, who died so suddenly at the hospital in Peterborough last Monday, was laid at rest in the Keene Cemetery on Wednesday afternoon. The many friends extend their sympathy to Mr. Thos. Charman in his loss.

Mr. Patrick Kinnaley, of Toronto, is spending a few days with his mother at the Victoria House.

The raspberry social, held under the auspices of the Red Cross Society last Wednesday evening, was a very successful event, proceeds amounting to $110.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Reid, who have been visiting at the home of Benjamin Reid, his brother, returned last Tuesday for their home at Devil's Lake, North Dakota.

An exhibition game of baseball was played last Wednesday evening on the home ground, Keene vs. Roseneath, and was very largely attended by the admirers of both teams, but was chiefly a clean walk over on the part of Roseneath.

Archibald Weir, of East City, was in the village last Saturday afternoon.

Mr. George Mather and sister, Miss Mary, left last Tuesday for the North-West, where they will visit friends.

Funeral.

The funeral took place last Monday afternoon of the late William Nelson, who died last Saturday morning at his late residence on High Street. Services began at the house at 2.30, and were conducted by the Rev. A. K. Edmison of Keene Methodist Church. The funeral cortege left the family residence at 3 o'clock, and was very largely attended. Interment took place at Bethel Cemetery.

James H. Dickson spent Sunday with his family, Mill Street, and returned on Monday to the home of George Simpson, Township of Smith, where he will remain during the harvest.

Rev. E. McEachern and family have left for three weeks' holidays.

Mr. Robert Armstrong, of Oshawa, called on friends in the village last Tuesday.

SKIN SOFT AS A CHILD'S.

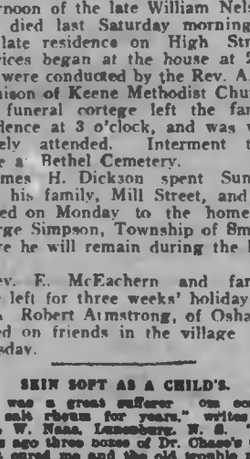
"I was a great sufferer from eczema and salt rheum for years," writes Mr. John W. Nase, Lunenburg, N. S. "Five years ago three boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment cured me and the old trouble never returned. My skin is as soft as a child's now, and I shall always say a good word for this Ointment."

Somewhat Rummy.—Here are some extracts taken, according to the Insurance and Financial Gazette, from letters received from applicants for separation allowances: "I have received no pay since my husband has gone away from nowhere." "My husband has been away at Crystal Palace and out four days furlong, and has now gone to the mind sweepers;" "Mrs. Hayes has been put to bed with a little lad, wife of Peter Hayes;" "I have received your letter. I am his grandfather and grandmother, he was born and brought up in this house in answer to your letter;" "My Bill has been put in charge of a spitoon. Shall I get any more money?"

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

CHILD'S DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.



Of course, girls wouldn't be girls unless they liked variety, and even very little girls are as enthusiastic over something very odd as are the rest of us.

Can you think of anything more fascinatingly odd than the dress design in the illustration No. 7,851? Any girl will want such a treat, and the mother will find the making of it a pleasurable task. It is made to slip on over the head; a separate guimpe closing at the front is employed; long or short sleeves may be used. The dress has large armholes and is cut to hang from the shoulders; a wide belt of material with its ends fastened at either front side is arranged around the back at a normal waistline, leaving the front fulness unconfined. Below the belt slashes are made, diagonally, for inserting a pocket. Edging is used everywhere but at the lower edge—it trims the point collar on the guimpe, the sleeve band at the elbow, the neck of the dress, armholes and pockets.

Light and dark material will be well chosen for this design, selection being made according to the service that the dress is expected to give.

The pattern of dress No. 7,851 is cut in sizes 4, 6, 8 and 10 years. To make in size 6 will require 1⅛ yards of 36 inch material for the guimpe, 1⅝ yards for the dress and 2 yards of edging.

You may obtain the pattern by sending to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

Address—The Examiner Pattern Service, The Examiner, Peterborough.

FOR SUPER-PATRIOTS

Eligibles For Death or Glory Corps Are Described

In response to numerous entreaties from patriotic gentlemen over military age, a special corps will be formed entitled the Death or Glory Corps, the membership of which will be restricted to those over the age of 40. It is felt that in no other way can an outlet be found for the lofty patriotism that our older men have exhibited since the beginning of the war. Recruits for the Death or Glory Corps will be drawn principally from the ranks of journalists, shipowners, politicians, government contractors, and civilian members of military tribunals. Trade unionists and members of the lower orders generally will not be eligible, but the applications of Labor leaders will be considered if they can produce sufficient evidence of having betrayed their class. Members of the Death or Glory Corps will receive no pay, it being felt that as they have exhibited such a Spartan indifference to material things, it would be out of harmony with their ideals to reward their services with anything but the certainty of death or imperishable glory. It will be apparent to everyone that such a corps as this will have a decisive effect on the German nation. For instance, the corps will contain journalists who have been able to cause more depression than all the German victories, and shipowners who have inflicted a more severe blockade of their own country than the whole German navy. It may be imagined how great will be the damage done to Germany, and how great the relief to Great Britain, when these patriots are devoting the whole of their energies and abilities to the destruction of the Huns.—W. Mears, in the Herald, London.

Death of Well Known Former Hastings Resident—Epworth League Rally

HASTINGS, August 2.—The funeral of the late Mrs. Joseph Cobain of Toronto was held on Monday morning from the G.T.R. station here to the Trent Valley cemetery.

Deceased was well known here where she spent her girlhood days, and where she had many friends who extend their deepest sympathy to the family in their bereavement.

Mr. Jas. Stewart of town is a brother.

EPWORTH LEAGUE RALLY

Mr. and Mrs. Rev. R. McWilliams were in town on Wednesday evening and were present at the Epworth League Rally held in the Methodist church when he gave a very earnest address.

Mr. and Mrs. McWilliams have been chosen as representatives of this dis and the district will be responsible for their support while there.

The young couple are very enthusiastic and their many friends are hopeful that a very useful career is ahead of them and join in wishing them every success in their chosen work.

HENRY SCRIVER.

The death is recorded at Karney, Ont., of Mr. Jas. Henry Scriver, who until recently was well known, and where his family was born and brought up. Deceased had been in failing health for some time and his friends were prepared for the worst.

While here he was a very prominent worker in the Methodist church where a memorial service was held on Monday afternoon, prior to interment in the T. V. cemetery.

One daughter, Mrs. D. Scriver, resides here. Several sons and daughters also his widow, survive.

Monday next will be observed as Civic Holiday and arrangements are being made for a record breaking celebration.

LIEUT. HUBBS.

Lieut. Fred Hubbs has written to his wife here stating that as well as being a prisoner he has also been wounded in his left leg (which is fractured) and about the face, but will be permitted to receive parcels from his friends.

Pte. W. Abbott is home for a visit and is sufferingg from a severe cut in his foot, two of his toes having been cut off by an axe with which he was cutting wood.

The sad intelligence is to hand of the death in Colborne of Miss Rosa Ostrander, the 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. Ostrander, former resident of Hastings.

Ross was a general favourite here and many will recall her amiable disposition and youthful charms. A host of friends extend their sincere sympathy to the parents in this their sore bereavement.

ANNUAL VACATION

Dr. King and family of Toronto are on their annual fishing holiday to Hastings. Their many friends extend to them a hearty welcome.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Hunter of Toronto, are renewing acquaintances here for a few days.

Miss Nellie Colville has returned to her home in Toronto after a pleasant holiday here.

LADIES AID SOCIETY

The members of the Ladies' Aid in connection with the Methodist church drove to the home of Mrs. C. Huycke Percy, on Thursday last and held their monthly business meeting. Luncheon was served and a pleasant hour spent socially.

Mrs. (Dr.) Stewart and children of Toronto, are holidaying with Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Stewart up the river.

Pte. G. Kerr has been spending a few days with his family.

TURKS SPARED NONE

Protestant and Catholic Armenians Victims of Savage Malice

A correspondent of the London Chronicle writes: It is not surprising that when Turkey declared war upon the Entente, the Armenians secretly prayed for the success of the allies, though they remained perfectly quiet, well knowing that any premature ebullition of sympathy would bring swift retribution. All the insurrections which took place occurred in consequence of the measures taken by the Government against the Armenians. Such as escaped the massacre fled to the mountains and joined others in like case. The Armenians of Van, when, in April, they saw massacres occurring in districts to the north-west of the Lake, rose in arms in self-defence, entrenched themselves in the garden quarter of the town, and held out until the arrival of the Russians in June. The semi-independent mountaineers in Basun and Zeitun resisted desperately to the last, until all were exterminated. In one or two other places the Armenians where they had arms, resisted. In all cases where such opposition was made, wholesale massacres ensued. Elsewhere in Anatolia, the Armenians only existed as scattered communities, and were forced to submit to murder or deportation without any show of resistance.

In the Hamidian massacres of 1894-1896, as a rule, only the males were slain, and the Protestant and Catholic communities were spared. In the present case, vast numbers of women and children were butchered or carried off to a fate worse than death, and the Protestants and Catholics shared in the common fate of their race. The fine work done by the missionaries whose numerous schools and colleges were cases of Western thought and civilization in a vast desert of ignorance and savagery, has been brought to nought at a signal from Enver and his co-bandits.

CAPTAIN "P.W." IS GOOD ROYAL SOLDIER

Heir to Empire's Throne Has "Grown His Beard" in War—In Egypt in Summer

When the Prince of Wales got short leave to go to Buckingham Palace to say "Good-bye" to his brothers and sister before going to the front, Prince John asked him: "What are you going to do when you get there, David?"—David being the name by which he is called at home. "David" rubbed his chin and smiled.

"I think I'll grow a beard for one thing," he answered. Figuratively speaking, the Prince of Wales has "grown a beard" since the war began—that is to say, he has ceased to be a boy and has become a man. The change is very apparent to all who come in contact with him. Always inclined to seriousness he has taken his share in the war very seriously indeed. His staff work has included carrying despatches, acting as interpreter, superintending the making of trenches, and duty as assistant transport officer, and he has been in imminent danger of death scores of times.

Earned Promotion

He has become tremendously popular with all ranks because he has done his job without any suggestion that he was being favored on account of his rank. That he has taken his chances like everyone else is proved by the fact that it is almost seventeen months since he went out as second lieutenant, and he has only just been given his captaincy. Promotion has come the way of a great many other second lieutenants much more rapidly than that.

As captain, the Prince of Wales, or "P.W.," as they called him on the western front, went to Egypt, and Egypt with the summer coming on was not exactly the spot people hankering after "cushy jobs"—as the army expresses it—pine for! But, then, as a certain Tommy writing home put it: "The Prince of Wales is not very big, but he has got a bigger heart than a lot I know at home."

As French Saw Him

One of the best pen pictures of the Prince comes from a distinguished French author, who had opportunities of seeing him at the front. Here it is: "A party of British are just finishing lunch; they do not break off their subdued conversation at the appearance of a soldier who, pipe in mouth, advances and listens to them; he has no ribbon, no officer's stripes, no badge, no insignia. He is not tall, very slender, even a little frail but for his firm carriage; the peak of his cap low over his forehead, crook-handled walking stick hanging on his arm, wrists protected by warm woollen mittens—a young man, blue-eyed, fresh-cheeked, clear-complexioned."

Stands No Nonsense

There is nothing aggressive about the personality of "P.W.," but he has a quiet way of standing no nonsense. One day at the front he was on duty watching transport wagons being filled. Packages were being thrown up to the man in the wagon whose duty it was to count them out loudly, pausing as each fresh twenty-five packages were reached. The man in the wagon "tried it on" with the Prince; to save himself trouble he started calling out "twenty-five!" when he should have been saying "twenty." But it did not work.

"Twenty-five already?" said the Prince blandly. "I make it twenty. One of us is wrong. Just unload the whole wagon and begin from the beginning again."

Glass of Hot Water Before Breakfast a Splendid Habit

Open sluices of the system each morning and wash away the poisonous, stagnant matter.

Those of us who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when we arise; splitting headache, stuffy from cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, lame back, can, instead, both look and feel as fresh as a daisy always by washing the poisons and toxins from the body with phosphated hot water each morning.

We should drink, before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to flush from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract before putting more food into the stomach.

The action of limestone phosphate and hot water on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast and it is said to be but a little while until the roses begin to appear on the cheeks. A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will cost very little at the drug store, but is sufficient to make anyone who is bothered with biliousness, constipation, stomach trouble or rheumatism a real enthusiast on the subject of internal sanitation. Try it and you are assured that you will look better and feel better in every way shortly.

FRESH PROGRESS FOR FRENCH AT VERDUN

Russians Battering The Teuton Defences On The Kovel Front

Czar's Troops Mixing Infantry Attacks With Heavy Artillery Bombardment in a Series of Battles at Various Points in Spite of German Counter-Attacks---General Kaledine Less Than Dozen Miles From Kovel---French Make Material Progress South of Fleury.

LINER BRITANNIC HAS BEEN SUNK

PETROGRAD, August 3.—The battering of the Teuton defences along the Kovel-Lemberg line showed no sign of abatement to-day, the Russian forces mixing infantry attacks with heavy artillery bombardment in a series of battles at various points. German counter-attacks in heaviest were being launched against the Muscovite columns so far without success. Press despatches to-day said General Kaledine was less than a dozen miles from Kovel, and continuing his advance. He is threatening momentarily to take the Kovel-Lemberg Railway, spreading still wider the Russian wedge between the German and Austrian forces. This same wedge threatens a turning of the flanks of the two Teutonic armies. Marshy terrain is hampering the Russian attack slightly, but the Czar's forces are confident of early victory.

FRENCH MADE FRESH GAINS AT VERDUN

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PARIS (French Official), August 3. — Material progress south of Fleury was reported in to-day's communique detailing French operations. Pressing their advantage the French troops advanced to a point beyond yesterday's station and took 700 German prisoners, making a total of 1,100 since Tuesday.

South of the Somme ,German counter-attacks south of Estrees were checked. On the right bank of the Meuse the German forces violently counter-attacked the trenches captured yesterday, but were everywhere checked by the French fire, losing heavily.

Around Lchenois and Vaux Chapter artillery firing continues actively, but there have been no infantry attacks.

British Troops Are Consolidating Gains

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, August 3.—British forces last night continued the consolidating of the ground gained so far during their thrust at the German lines according to the report of General Sir Douglas Haig to-day. He said there had been almost constant artillery firing from both sides.

At dawn the enemy's fire slackened and a small mine was exploded near Souches without inflicting any casualties on the British troops, and with but little damage to the terrain.

French Aviator Bags Two German Planes

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PARIS, August 3.—In air reconnaissance on the Somme front Sergeant Chainat, of the French flying squad, yesterday bagged two German aeroplanes, making a total of eight so far brought down by him. His exploit was announced in an official statement to-day. Another German aeroplane, it was stated, was defeated in an air combat near Chauney.

AMSTERDAM, August 3.—Berlin University has conferred the degree of Doctor of Laws on Crown Prince Frederick William.

Liner Britannic is Sunk Says London

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, August 3.—The liner Britannis has been sunk it was announced to-day. The vessel was unarmed. Lloyd's register lists contain three vessels named Britannic.

NEW YORK, August 3.—The New York offices of the White Star Line said they had no information to-day regarding the sinking of the liner Britannic. Officials stated that so far as they were aware their liner of that name had been laid up in a British port for some time, not having been used in passenger service. The Britannic of the White Star Line is the largest vessel in their fleet. She is larger than the Lusitania or the Olympic, and is only 7,000 tons smaller than the German liner Vaterland.

German Gas Gave Russians Warning

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PETROGRAD, August 3.—The timely discovery of German gas, giving warning of approaching Teuton attacks enabled the Russian forces in the region of Smorgan to beat back their foes with heavy losses before they even reached the barbed wire entanglements before the Russian positions.

The War Office statement to-day describing the incident, asserted that the Teutonic forces lost heavily, and a number of machine guns and rifles were captured.

MANITA HAD TO HELP CARRY THE CROWD LAST NIGHT

Stoney Lake Navigation Company Placed Second Steamer at Disposal of Committee Free of Charge to Ensure Success of the "Tobacco" Moonlight.

BIG CROWD ON HAND

The moonlight excursion under the auspices of the Overseas Tobacco Fund last night was a great success, and as a result of the splendid patronage, a substantial sum is available for a fresh supply of tobacco for the many Peterborough boys on the firing line. So large was the attendance that the steamer Stoney Lake was unable to carry all the crowd, and Manager Frank Young, of the Stoney Lake Navigation Company, most generously placed the steamer Manita at the disposal of the committee. It too was quickly crowded, and many people were left behind at the Street Railway Wharf. The two steamers proceeded down the river below T.A.S. Park, before turning for the return trip, reaching the city again at 11 o'clock. Ice-cream and other refreshments were sold on board, augmenting the fund in this way.

The thanks of the committee are due to Mr. Frank Young and the Stoney Lake Navigation Company, who not only loaned the Stoney Lake free of charge for the good of the cause, but also placed the Manita in commission and refused to accept any payment for the second steamer either. The generosity of Mr. Young and his company not only added to the pleasure of the evening, but will mean a big increase in the profits from the excursion.

The only hitch was in the music. A number of organizations had offered their services; in fact so many that a misunderstanding arose, with the result that none were on hand. However, on the Stoney Lake a number of pianists donated their services and dancing was indulged in downstairs all through the excursion.

Assigned Pay Cheques Here

Delayed cheques for assigned pay have reached the city and are welcomed by the wives and mothers of soldiers who were becoming rather anxious about a condition they did not understand. The explanation of the delay is doubtless in the sending of the nominal roll of the 93rd Battalion to Ottawa when it left Canada, to revise it, and remove the names of men who were illegally absent or who for other reasons did not go overseas. This would not be completed in less than a week or two, and hence the soldiers' assigned pay was held for any readjustment of the roll that may have been necessary.

PETERBORO' MEN SHOWING UP WELL AT BOWMANVILLE

Boys From This City Who Are in the 235th Are Making Good in New Battalion---Figures Showing Recruiting For This Military District During the Last Two Weeks of July---To-day's Military News.

Peterborough soldier boys have a habit of making their presence felt wherever they go, and are usually somewhere around when promotions are being handed out. This has been illustrated again in the 235th Battalion at Bowmanville, of which a number of Peterborough residents have become members in the past couple of months. Lieut. A. B. Mills, son of Lt.-Col. Jos. Mills, is one of the officers of the battalion.

The battalion sergeant major is F. Oxley of Peterborough, formerly of the 93rd. The pioneer sergeant is Wilt. G. Metheral of Peterborough, while Chris. Brooks of this city is the sergeant cook. Sam. Long, also of Peterborough, is a company quartermaster sergeant. Fred Jamieson, son of Assistant Chief Geo. Jamieson, of the local Fire Department, is a staff sergeant, while Sergts. Sam Mills and Mark Black are among the other Peterborough non-coms. with the 235th. A number of the Peterborough boys are home on leave, and they seem delighted with their camp at Bowmanville and with conditions generally.

The Kingston Whig says: There was a regular raid on Lieut.-Col. M. K. Adams for farm help after the battalion returned from Belleville on Sunday evening. The thousands of farmers, who were in Belleville for the presentation of colours to the 155th Battalion, seemed to think of nothing else but the possibilities of securing these finely built lads to work on their farms.

Almost veery farmer who met the colonel had the same request to make, and nothing could have stimulated the demand more than the appearance of the 155th in Belleville at this critical time.

As orders have been issued that only a small percentage of the men of the 154th and 155th Battalions may be granted farm furlough there is small likelihood of many leaving the battalion for this work. Colonel Adams, however, is ever ready to do everything possible to assist the farmers and where the conditions are satisfactory some of the men may be allowed the much sought for privilege.

The wages being paid in the district of Belleville are very high for the soldiers, running from $45 to $60 a month with board. This, however, is not exorbitant when one considers that these soldiers are in the midst of training, and the physical drill that they have been receiving to fit them for work on the firing line makes them highly desirable as farm help.

Barriefield, Aug. 3.—The Special Service Battalion is now getting on its proper footing and the best men are being kept in its ranks, while those who have proven to be unfit for further service are being discharged. The battalion expects to receive the medically unfits from the battalions at Barriefield and also those from the 130th, 136th, 139th and 146th now in training at Valcartier. As the battalions at Valcartier have all been warned for immediate overseas service it is altogether likely that the final medical examination is now going on. The men who fail to pass this final and most severe test will be put in to the Special Service Battalion, which ought to increase considerably the strength of the Camp.

Cobourg, Aug. 2.—Lieut. Oliver Dennis, transport officer of the 21st Battalion, is home on six months furlough. He was riding near the trenches when a German shell hit the horse, killing it instantly, and throwing the rider into a trench. The horse fell on top of him and he received serious injuries to his back and was also injured internally. Lieut. Dennis lay in the bottom of the trench in an unconscious condition for some time before he was found.

AMBULANCE CORPS

Queen's Field Ambulance Corps needs about sixty more men before it will be up to strength. Owing to the popularity of this branch of the service and the fact that it bears the name of Queen's University, there is small likelihood that there will be any difficulty in securing the desired number of men. An effort is now being made to bring the corps up to strength in a few days, and Capt. Kennedy is recruiting in Peterboro and Capt. Lumb left on Tuesday to carry on the same work at Melrose.

A number of cases have occurred where "Enemy Aliens" have enlisted into the Canadian Expeditionary Force by means of misrepresenting themselves, that is, as Serbian or Roumanian subjects. This is undoubtedly a source of danger to the Force, and must be prevented.

The Department of Immigration has offered to place all the information which is in its possession at the disposal of Recruiting Officers in order to enable them to prevent enlistment of "Enemy Aliens".

All Recruiting Officers, will, therefore, submit any doubtful cases for enlistment, with regard to nationality, to the Department of Immigra-

CASEMENT PAYS TREASON PENALTY

DR. A. W. McPHERSON

Former Knight Hanged at Pentonville Prison at 9.07 a.m. To-day —Met His Death on Scaffold Fearlessly.

EXPECTED A REPRIEVE

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, Aug. 3.—Roger Casement paid the penalty for treason to-day with his life. He was hanged at Pentonville Prison at 9.7 a.m. to-day. Ten minutes later his body was cut down life being pronounced extinct.

The Irish leader's last words, spoken while he waited fearlessly for the drop to be sprung were: "I die for my country."

The Rochdale barber, Ellis, the prison's regular executioner, sprang the drop after he had adjusted the hempen noose, not the "silken cord" which the former knight had hoped up to a few weeks would be granted as his instrument of death, in accordance with the ancient privilege granted men of his title. The hanging was witnessed only by officials of the prison. A large crowd waited outside the grim gaol and when the bell tolled announcing the law's satisfaction, there were a few cheers intermixed with groans. Several Irish women standing outside at the rear of the Pentonville jail, attempted a demonstration, led by an Irish member of parliament, but were quietly hustled off the scene by guards.

Casement went calmly to his death, led by a Catholic priest, who ministered to him when he retired last nipht for the last time at 10.3 0and when he arose early to-day. The Irish leader has only recently been converted to Catholicism. Casement expected a reprieve and commution of his sentence up to last night, but when the darkness came he realized there was no hope, it was said, and without emotion went about setting his affairs in order.

These who witnessed the hanging said the Irish man was master of himself, walking to his death and waiting for the noose to tighten. When the priest recited the Litany, Casement responded in a clear voice, "The Lord have mercy on my soul."

PUBLIC MEETING WILL BE HELD TO-MORROW NIGHT

Resolution Reaffirming the Belief of the Citizens the Righteousness of the War Will be Submitted, Returned Soldiers Will be Present.

THE SPEAKERS

A big crowd will likely participate in the public meeting that is to be held to-morrow evening in Victoria Park, when a resolution, reaffirming the belief of the people of Peterborough in the righteousness of the cause for which we are fighting and their determination to assist in continuing the struggle until victory is assured, will be submitted. The meeting will be in recognition of the second anniversary of the declaration of war. Among the speakers will be His Honour Judge Huycke and Mr. G. O'Connell. His Worship Mayor Duffus will preside. The band of the 57th Regiment will be on hand.

Returned Soldiers.

All Peterborough soldeirs returned from overseas are asked to be on the platform in uniform. Those who have returned to the city since the public reception to soldiers on May 24th will be given a reception. All the soldiers have been written to, but as some may not have received the letters owing to change of address and otherwise, they are invited to be present, whether or not they receive a formal invitation.

What Reid Says and Does

To the lady whose wardrobe can stand one or two more garments for summer wear, the last day or two of Reid's Clearance Sale with prices away down, affords an unusual opportunity for buying to advantage. The Reid people are aiming to reduce stock 40 per cent., and the extreme price reductions would warrant the assurance of a quick disposal. The season is more than half gone and a turn-over of stock pow, at a small profit, is better than holding on for regular prices. At least this is Reid's way; and Reid's mean to keep business humming by parting with overstocks at a fraction of their value as fast as possible. This advertisement makes interesting reading for the ladies.

EYE TROUBLE ENDED.

If you call and see Dr. Lacey about your eye or head trouble you will find he can cure it, and it will stay cured. Call and see him now; do not put it off. Lenses duplicated without prescription.—410 George Street.

CROPS NEED A HEAVY RAINFALL

Late Crops Are Beginning to Show the Effects of the Prolonged Drought

The rain this morning, had it continued for at least a day, would have meant thousands of dollars to the farmers of Peterborough county. As it is, very little relief was afforded the crops, which are beginning to show the effects of the prolonged drought. It would take a good heavy rainfall to alleviate the present condition.

DOLLAR DAY

Merchants Please Notice

The Examiner has been asked to promote a Dollar Day in August—A large number of stores have signified their willingness to participate but it is too big a job to see everyone in the time remaining. Every store is welcome to be in the list of those giving the prizes, and have their firm's name and business published in the big advertising done free for Dollar Day by the Examiner. All who have not been seen are asked to call up Mr Callender at the Examiner who is looking after the treasury box for the merchants, or 'phone a message for him to call and full particulars will be given them. The Examiner is anxious to give every store an equal amount of publicity which can only be done if all names are in when the first big announcement is made.

A CREDITIBLE WAR RECORD.

The fifth annual report on Labour Organization for the calendar year 1915, has been issued by the Department of Labour, and it reveals the gratifying and praiseworthy extent to which the trade unionists of the Dominion have contributed to the military forces which Canada has sent to the war. The response of organized labour to the call of duty was prompt and liberal. Of the local branch unions, 261 have had one or more of their members in overseas service since the beginning of the war. The trade unions altogether have contributed 23,411 recruits. Of these Peterborough's quota was 159, the largest number of any of the minor cities of the Dominion, the average of the other minor cities being 58. We are all in the war, more or less, and the part the trade unionists have borne has been exceedingly creditable, their enlistments having been one out of every 120 of the total membership of 148,348. Peterborough's contribution according to membership being 159 out of a membership of 335, a little under half of the total local membership, a ratio much larger than that shown by any of the other minor cities. And as trades unionism means standing together, it is pretty certain that the soldier trade unionists of Canada are standing shoulder to shoulder with their comrades in the ranks of battle, as they are doing in the ranks of organized labour.

RETALIATION.

It is sometimes very hard to do the right thing—to show the decent restraint. With the renewal of Zeppelin raids upon the English coast, the first impulse of the natural human being is to retaliate and drop bombs upon unfortified German cities and non-combatant centres. Bomb dropping is a cowardly sort of warfare, or, rather, of murder, for so far the German assassins have not dropped destructive bombs on fortified places or places whose injury and destruction would be of military advantage to them. The allies could easily enact terrible retaliation. It is a fact that the allied air ships are superior, in number and potentialities of destruction to those of Germany; only the will is wanting. The allies are moved by considerations of humanity inherent in a Christian civilization. The will is wanting, however. Witness the actions of the French aviator who flew across the whole width of Germany dropping proclamations instead of bombs, and reminding the Huns that if he had wished he could have dropped death dealing missiles upon sleeping cities and could have committed large murder. The difference between the outlook of the German and the civilized Christian nations is spiritual. One is moved by the spirit of destruction, animated by the idea that in winning victory terrorism and destruction are legitimate instruments. The allied nations are fighting for the higher civilization and the principles it represents. They are fighting for the good of humanity and can see no justification for the employment of brutal methods. A victory gained for the principles for which they are fighting would not be a real, a clean, a consistent victory if it were stained with the marks of the outrage of the laws of humanity. The allies will win fairly. They welcome as a commendation the reproach Lady Macbeth addressed to her husband when he was hesitating over the murder of King Duncan—

> What thou wouldst highly
> That wouldst thou holily; wouldst not play false.

And the allies will win under the higher spirit as they are winning. The temptation to retaliate is strong—humanly, almost irresistible. But it will be resisted and the victory for truth and righteousness and justice and human right will not be stained with murder; not be stained with the blood of women and innocent children. It is left to the Hun Herod to repeat the slaughter of the innocents. But the punishment will be ample and sure, and however stern it be, all the civilized nations, all humanity whose sympathy the barbarous policy of Germany has alienated will applaud its infliction. Germany will have to pay to the uttermost farthing.

SWIMMING AND RESPONSIBILITY.

The correspondence that has appeared in The Examiner, as well as other sources and events of evidence, shows that public opinion is not only in favour of, but intelligently anxious for the establishment of properly provided and supervised swimming places. But if the long letter of Alderman Dobbin is taken to represent the ideas of the City Council as a body, as to their responsibility, the provision of swimming places by the civic authorities is not a very promising expectation.

It is not necessary to analyze the dilated aldermanic arguments against the taking of civic action. They are easily answerable and refuted by the logic of facts. They are based upon a false foundation. The Council must not take action because it would incur responsibility. We elect aldermen for the express purpost of placing upon them the responsibility of looking after the interests of the city, of the people of the city. His argument, logically extended, would justify the aldermen in refraining from constructing and maintaining streets because there are sometimes damages claimed in respect of accidents due to defective streets. In this regard responsibility is a spur to proper action—keep the streets in safe and sound condition and there will be no claims for damages from accidents; and if there it it is the people in the end, not the aldermen, that pay the damages in the interests of their fellow citizens.

The crime of governments, general as well as civic, is the desire to avoid doing things that the public interests demand.

It is the duty of the City Council to act in the matter of providing supervised swimming places, whose utility, necessity and comfort need no urging. It is action, not argument, that is demanded. If the City Council is afraid of the responsibility they will assume by providing bathing and swimming facilities, they must remember that they assume, in effect, and possibility a far heavier responsibility by refusing or neglecting to act. With a splendid river of water, pure enough for drinking purposes, flowing past the doors of our twenty thousand residents, it is probable that not a third of this number knows how to swim, and that half of the boys and girls have no knowledge of swimming as a refreshing recreation and a life-saving art. If through the inaction of of the city fathers a fatal drowning accident can be traced to inability to swim, the aldermen are at leeast morally, if not technically, responsible, and the responsibility in this case is a much more serious matter than the civic responsibility for a boy cutting his heel on a broken bottle which, by the way, would not be found in a properly prepared swimming pool. As remarked the swimming pools demanded by the public are a matter for action, not argument, not a matter to be ignored and flippantly dismissed in the name of the responsible authorities. The people look to the City Council to protect their interests, and will hold them responsible, both for providing for the promotion of these interests, and for neglecting to provide for them.

WHY GLASS FELL OUT, NOT INWARD.

Those who have observed the effects of Sunday morning's explosions as seen at points remote from their centre have noted, usually with surprise, that in almost every instance the windows broken were blown outward, not inward. That phenomenon, however, is not a new one, or one peculiar to the present calamity.

A sudden and enormous release of gases, as then occurred, acts in two ways. There is first a violent rush of air away from the detonating materials, and a window or other partition near enough to get the weight of that concussion is driven in, but the chief action of such an explosion is upward, that being the line of least resistance, and the consequence is the creation of a great vacuum, or an approximation to a vacuum, and the rush of air to fill it moves with violent suddenness a portion of the atmosphere extending for a long distance in every direction. Windows all through the area of that motion are thus deprived of the outside pressure that normally balances the pressure from within, and the latter, acting alone, breaks the unsupported glass.

This theory, though sound, does not fully explain what might be called the selectiveness in destruction that such explosions always show, but careful inquiry in most cases where a few windows in a building are broken and the others spared, or where one building suffers and another just like it and close by escapes, will reveal that there were differences as to the ease with which the confined air in the several rooms could escape.

When warning can be given beforehand, as in the testing of great guns, householders are always advised to keep their windows and doors open while the firing is in progress, and thus they usually escape injury to their property. Gunners, too, keep their mouths open for the same reason, when they fire their cannon, and regard doing so as not less necessary than the covering of their ears with their hands to protect them from the inward-driving concussion. — New York Times.

ONE IMPORTANT THING THAT GERMANY FORGOT

The New York Evening Post, in its review of the two years of war, says that through it all an invisible ally has all along fought against Germany, and still presses her back. "This is the adverse moral judgment of impartial men." This principle is just as true to-day as it was when the powerful Shakespearean lines were penned,

> What stronger breastplate than a heart untainted!
> Thrice is he armed that hath his quarrel just,
> And he but naked, though locked up in steel,
> Whose conscience with njustice is corrupted.

The most carefully planned scientific preparedness that the world ever saw has now proved to be a dismal failure. The dominating minds of Germany have been engaged in it for forty years. Trade, art, literature, all were made but part of a great scheme for world domination, to be accomplished by war. Not only the best minds of their own country, but every one in the world who had an idea upon war, could market it at Berlin.

It was thought that what the German Great General Staff did not know about war was not worth knowing. They had utilized what were regarded as the finest brains of mankind, the laboratories of the universe, and years of tireless energy to make sure that nothing should escape them. Perhaps, indeed, in the concentrated study of war they had.

> "Out of too much learning become mad."

As the Evening Post points out, with all the wonderful display in arms which the Germans have made, what is the story of the past two years but one long record of German plans miscarried and German hopes shrivelled in the blast of war? It is plain now that those hard-headed realists of war were capable of enormous miscalculations, and in many ways acted like dreamers. They made a fatal omission in their reckonings. They card-indexed all the information to be had from all lands. Their spy system was world-wide, and believed to be perfect. They could tell you the quantity of copper ore in Newfoundland, the capacity of the nickel mines in Ontario, the location and staff of every pier in Montreal. They had pigeon holes for knowledge of all kinds. There was one thing that they omitted. They forgot the soul of man!

"One thing has been permanent in all the flux of the two years behind us," says the Evening Post. "The moral judgments of the world have stood firm. Nothing which has since happened has altered them. The conscience of mankind responds today as instantly and sensitively as it did in those first days of August, 1914, to the challenge made to it by those who took the first steps in the war, and especially by the deliberate outrage inflicted upon Belgium. Under the reproach of that shameless deed, Germany continues to suffer, and will to the end of the war, no matter how long it lasts."

The great feature which marked the close of the second year of war is the knitting together of the moral alliance against German aggression, German militarism, German effort at world domination. No new resources or men have been found. They were always there to make head against the German armies, but they could be got together and utilized only by nations having a great issue and a great moral unity. These Germany, as if led by an evil genius, has herself furnished. —Montreal Herald.

PROVINCIAL NEGLECT.

At first thought one is inclined to view such a disaster as that of the North country as something inevitable, unavoidable something to be expected in a new country. But, this is not true. Measures could have been taken which would have reduced the possibility of the occurrence of that horrible fire, and increased the possibility of the occurrence of that horrible fire, and increased the possibility of confining it when it did occur. Such measures might have been fruitless, the fire might have occurred and have been as engulfing even if they had been taken, but the chances are very great that it would have been otherwise.

As it is, practically nothing has been done in Ontario to lessen the danger of forest fires, and this in the face of our many and disastrous experiences. About the only protection provided has been a few forest rangers patrolling the dangerous areas. The Ontario government has sat back and bragged of what it has done for the country. It has boasted of opening up the rich sections of Northern Ontario to settlers. But it has let year after year slip by without doing anything to protect the country from such disasters as that of last week. Even in the last five years, following the terrible fire of 1911, practically nothing has been done to lessen the danger.

It is said that there has been no great public demand for action in the directions of protecting the North country from such fires, that the indifference of the people of Old Ontario to the fate of New Ontario is responsible for the indifference of those in authority. The government of Ontario would not have the boldness to offer that as an excuse for its inaction. The government is in charge of the affairs of the whole province. It is for the government, not for the people of the province, to attend to those affairs. In the matter of protection against forest fires, the government has been guilty of almost criminal negligence. With out adequate measures of protection the fire of last week and its death toll of hundreds were inevitable.

New Ontario has been given a black eye, from which it will take year to recover; and the government must be held responsible. — Ottawa Free Press.

ENEMY MURDERS IRISH SOLDIERS

LONDON, Aug. 3.—Baron Newton, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, replying to a question in the House of Lords as to whether the Government had any information concerning the shooting of two Irish soldiers while prisoners of war in Germany, said:

"The American Embassy in Berlin notified the Government on July 7 that Patrick Moran of the Connaught Rangers had been shot by a guard at the working camp near Limburg on May 28. The Commandant of the camp told the American representative that Moran while intoxicated attacked a guard, who shot him dead in self-defence.

"On July 10 the American Embassy informed the Government that another Irish prisoner, William Devlin, Munster Fusiliers, had been shot at the Limburg working camp. When Ambassador Gerard visited the camp in connection with the death of Moran the shooting of Devlin was concealed.

"It is important to note that, according to our information, both soldiers had refused to join with Roger Casement in his proposed expedition to Ireland."

Secrets Are Guarded.

Baron Newton added that on July 13 the British Government had addressed a strong protest to the German Government against their action in placing obstacles in the way of Ambassador Gerard's inquiries into the shooting of Moran and the concealment of Devlin's death.

"We demanded an immediate inquiry in the presence of a member of the American Embassy into the shooting of the two prisoners and the punishment of those found guilty," said the Under-Secretary. "We pointed out that the proceeding would be all the more infamous if it were found to be connected with the men's refusal to join Casement. On the 30th we received a detailed report of the shooting of Moran, from which it appeared the German authorities refused to allow Ambassador Gerard to talk to witness except in the presence of a German officer.

"It appeared from Ambassador Page's report," added the Under-Secretary, "that the investigation into the shooting of Devlin was not undertaken until Ambassador Gerard took the matter up. The Ambassador was even warned by the Gerard commanding at Frankfort not to go to Limburg. Devlin was shot the day before Ambassador Gerard visited the camp, but neither the Chief of Staff at Frankfort nor the Commandant of the camp informed Ambassador Gerard of this."

SOME MULE.

A man who lives in Savannah and owns a plantation in Chatham county, Georgia, bought a mule with a reputation for owning a set of gifted and hair-triggered hind legs, and shipped her out to his place to be used in plowing for cotton.

A Sunday or so later he visited the plantation. The darky whose particular job it was to take care of the working stock came limping up to him to report.

"Jim," asked the owner of the plantation, 'does that new mule kick much?"

"Kick?" said Jim. "Boss, dat dar mule kin kick de sweetnen' right out of yore coffee."

PRISONER ESCAPES.

Succeeded in Making His Way Out of Sandwich Jail.

WINDSOR, August 3. — At 10 o'clock yesterday morning Morton Allen, twenty-eight years old, a prisoner, waiting trial in Sandwich Jail, was locked up in his cell. When his dinner was brought to the cell two hours later the prisoner had disappeared. There had been no attempt made to tamper with either bolts or bars of the cell, and the officials are puzzled as to the method the prisoner used to escape.

Allen was to have been arraigned in Police Court on a charge of illegally having liquor in his possession for sale.

If a merchant or a manufacturer is willing to spend good money for advertising, to ask you to try his store or his product, it stands to reason that he must have something worth offering. Otherwise you would not go back, or you would not again purchase the product, and the first sale would be the last. In that case advertising would NOT pay. It only pays when it brings continuous patronage, and to do that there must be real value given. That is the reason, advertised stores or products are almost invariably good. It will pay you to patronize the advertisers.

Warm Weather Is Breaking Up and Cool Spells Will Be More Numerous in August

In his weather forecast for August, Professor Irl Hicks presents the following preview:

A regular storm period is central on the 1st, extending from July 30th to August the 4th. Disturbing causes and things to expect.

This Vulcan period is reinforced by the Venus disturbance, near its centre, and the moon passes over the celestial equator on the 2nd, passing to south declination. August will come in with general indications of coming storms over the central to eastern parts of the country. In western parts, the barometer will be low, and threatening clouds, rain, wind and thunder will already be organised and starting on their eastward sweep across the country. These storms will reach a general crisis on and touching the 2nd to the 4th, more precisely on the 2nd in central, and on the 3rd to the 4th in eastern states. Meantime the barometer will rise and cooler, clearing weather will be advancing from the western sections. By the 5th to the 6th, these clearing, cooler conditions will have passed the central and on into the eastern parts of the country. If you want to plow, or sow, or reap, or entertain, or go on an outing, before the storm reaches your locality, make your arrangements according. If it best suits your interests and convenience to have the storms pass your locality first, and then act in the changed weather conditions, just watch your barometer, the temperature, the wind currents and the clouds—and wait. We are writing these forecasts, and they are going into cold type on the 29th day of April, 1915, and we venture at this time to say that many, and some very violent storms, with more than an average of general rainfall for August, are reasonably to be expected during this month. For the most part, the rainfalls and storms will come in regular cycles at the storm periods; but under stress of the Venus, Mercury, Vulcan and Earth disturbances, storms of rain, wind and thunder will overlap the normal limits of the regular storm periods, giving prolonged spells, unusual for the mid-summer season.

A reactionary storm period is central on the 6th, 7th and 8th. The barometer will naturally fall—beginning in the west and passing eastward across the country—on and touching the 6th, 7th and 8th. This falling barometer will be the forerunner of higher temperature, cloudiness and a return of decided rain, wind and thunder storms. The atmospheric tires will naturally follow the Moon toward the south, and the cooler currents from the north, especially in the upper atmosphere, will conspire with the Venus influence to precipitate hail storms of very violent type.

A regular storm period is central on the 12th, embracing Thursday, the 10th, to Tuesday the 15th. Disturbing causes and things to expect.

The Vulcan, Mercury and Venus influences, with probably the oncoming autumnal equinox of Earth, all "lock horns" at this period. The Moon is in perigee on the 12th, is in opposition with Sun and Earth on the 13th, and most important of all, is on the celestial equator, coming up from her south declination on the 15th. All these astronomic causes combine to make this period an opportunity for a conflict between the perturbing and opposing "storm gods". In all western parts of the country, as early as the 10th and 11th, marked changes in weather conditions will appear. Increasing southerly winds will blow, the barometer will indicate decided fall in atmospheric pressure, the thermometer will rise, humidity will increase, and cloudiness, with rain and wind storms will rapidly ensue. From about Saturday, the 12th, to Tuesday, the 15th, these changing conditions, followed promptly by storms of widening scope and increasing energy, will pass over most parts of the country, from west to east. Aseries of rains thunder and hail storms for two or three days in succession, may reasonably be expected, leading up to and culminating on the 15th. The conditions at this period are such as to excite apprehension of destructive hail storms in many sections, more especially in the north-western grain belt. Many localities may expect downpours of rains, amounting to "cloudbursts and water spouts," with scattering tornadoes over wide stretches of northwestern and central regions.

After the culmination of rain, wind, hail and thunder storms on and touching the 13th to 15th, look for sudden revulsions to high braometer, westerly winds, and much cooler weather. The Mercury influence will cause prolonged cloudiness, and reinforced by the Venus equinox, will excite the elements to a spell of stormy, threatening weather beyond the normal limits of this storm period.

A reactionary storm period is central on the 17th, 18th and 19th. The Mercury, Venus and Earth braces in the storm diagram show that these astronomic perturbers are united in their disturbing force at this time. Conditions are such that very threatening storms should be no surprise to any of our readers on and about Thursday the 17th to Sunday the 20th. West India and equatorial gales, hurricanes and tornadoes in the extreme south, are among the things to expect, at this and other August storm periods. The reaction from phenomenal heat, to unseasonably cool, under the Venusian breeder of extremes in temperature, should be expected after all the August periods of rain, thunder and wind. In high northern latitudes these sudden and extreme changes to very cool will bring frosts of more or less intensity to many localities before the end of August.

A regular storm period is central on the 24th, holding under its influence Tuesday, the 22nd to Sunday the 27th. Disturbing causes and things to expect:

The warring forces of Mercury and Venus and the increasing force of earth's autumnal equinox, with the Moon at extreme north on the 22nd, and in apogee on the 24th, will all conspire in the disturbance of this period. The conjunction of the moon with Saturn on the 24th and with Neptune on the 25th, will also be possible factors in these disturbances. People who live in western extremes may expect falling barometer and other indications of brewing storms as early as the 22nd and 23rd, and by the 24th storms of wind, rain and thunder will assume aggressive force, moving through central to eastern parts of the continent from the 25th to the 27th. Look for your part of the marching weather Caravan—warm and threatening, or the storm area itself, or the change to clearer and cooler following, accordingly as you live eastward, centrally or westward. Don't be foolish or piggish enough to expect any one of the conditions at your door throughout the whole storm period, but expect them to glide from one into another as the whole movement of change and storm and change pass by you from west to east. Do the work most needed, during the warm, weather-breeding days that go before the storm; do things best suited during the passage of the actual storm; do things commonsense dictates, in the cooler, clearing area that follows after the storms and winds of the period. The better you comprehend what we are trying to explain the more you will see that it is not balderdash and the more pleasure and commercial value you will derive from it. In understanding and appreciating these great facts of nature you will indeed be hitching "your waggon to a star"—God will be your ally, and creation will become your carrier and servant.

A reactionary storm period is central on the last four days of August. The Moon is in conjunction with the Sun and earth on the 28th, and on the celestial quarter on the 29th. Disturbances of the preceding storm period may last into this period; at any rate, storms of renewed and quickened activity will return on and about the 28th and 29th. Watch your barometer—watch the clouds—watch for reports. Change to very cool nights should be expected, with frosts to the northward, within seventy hours of the dividing line between August and September.

Putrified Body of Living Man At Ann Arbor

Case Unique in Medicine--His Body and Entrails Flyblown

Ann Arbor, Mich., August 2.—What is said by Dr. A. S. Warthin of the University of Michigan faculty, to be the most unique case in medical history, was discovered here by two Greeks when they came upon the badly decomposed body of Frank Bogardus and found the man was still alive.

Bogardus, who has lived here for a year past, is said to have a family of children in Detroit.

Bogardus was discovered lying near the Michigan Central tracks, face upward. His body from head to foot was decomposed and badly flyblown. He had been attacked by vermin, his eyes, ears, nose and mouth being infected. A terrible odor emanated from his body and it was this odor that caused the two Greeks to search for the cause. They supposed that the man was dead, and said as much when they were startled by Bogardus declaring himself alive. The men procured assistance and Bogardus was taken to the jail where he died three hours later.

The body was taken to the university. Dr. Warthin, who made an examination, said that he found a condition without parallel in medical history. A large number of huge blue bottle flies were in the man's stomach, his body was one mass of putrefaction, with vermin back of the ear drums, in the interior of the cranial cavity and elsewhere. Dr. Warthin claimed the body and will have it steeped in alcohol. Bogardus before his death told the sheriff's deputies he had a wife and family living but was ignorant of their whereabouts. He declared that he had lain where he was found since last Wednesday night.

A New Blood-Food Has Been Discovered That Works Wonders

SAID TO PUT NEW LIFE INTO PEOPLE THAT ARE RUN-DOWN.

For years doctors have been searching for a combination that would enable them to inject into thin blood the elements it lacked. This can now be done, and any weak-blooded person can quickly be made strong and well.

Already, a small army of ailing people has proved the merit of taking after each meal with a sip or two of water, two chocolate-coated Ferrozone Tablets. This is easily done, and even one week's use of this wonderful blood-food will prove how nourishing and strengthening and fleshbuilding the treatment is.

Just think of it—Ferrozone uplifts the entire nervous system, removes the blood, makes it rich and red — gives the sort of aid that's needed in throwing off weakness and languor.

Tens of thousands enjoy the advantages of renewed health through Ferrozone;—if you'll only use it, you'll surely grow strong too; its beneficial action is noticed even in a week. You see it goes right to work, removes the causes of the trouble and then quickly makes a cure.

For those who sleep poorly and have nervous apprehensions, Ferrozone is a boon; it is a specialist in such cases.

Where there is paleness, poor appetite and languor, Ferrozone makes the patient feel like new in a few days.

In tiredness, nerve exhaustion, spring fever and debility, the power of Ferrozone is known from coast to coast and universally used with grand results.

Let Ferrozone build you up, let it win you back to robust health,—it will do so quickly if you give it the chance. Sold by all dealers. 50c. per box or six boxes for $2.50. Remember the name Ferrozone.

Paper bags which accumulate from the grocery store are very useful to slip over jars and various other articles to protect them from dust and flies.

KAISER ISSUES ANNIVERSARY MESSAGE TO THE NATION

"Hard Times Are Ahead" Says the German Emperor--Interesting Manifesto Is Made Public

Berlin, August 2—Emperor William sent the following message to Dr. Von Bethmann-Hollweg, the Imperial Chancellor:

For the second time the anniversary of the day arrived when our enemies forced me to call Germany's sons to arms to protect the honor and the existence of the empire.

"The German nation has been through two years of unprecedentedly heroic deeds and suffering. The army and navy in union with our loyal and brave allies, have gained the highest glory in attack and defence. Many thousands of our brethren have sealed their loyalty to the Fatherland with their blood.

"In the west and in the east our heroic men in field grey resist in unshaken fortitude the terrible onslaughts of the enemy.

"Our young fleet on that glorious day in the Skagerrak inflicted a heavy blow on the British armada. Deeds of untiring sacrifice and loyal comradeship at the front glow brightly before my eyes.

"At home also we see heroism. Men and women, old and young, all quietly and bravely wearing mourning, and the anxiety of all who organise and help to lessen the sufferings caused by the war, and of all who labor day and night unceasingly to supply our fighting brethren in the trenches and at sea with the necessary armament.

"Our enemies' hope to outstrip our production of war material will prove as unattainable as was their plan to secure by starvation what their sword could not attain.

"God's blessing on Germany's fields has rewarded the farmers more bountifully than we dared to hope. South and north in friendly rivalry, strive to find the best means for an even distribution of the foodstuffs, and other necessaries.

"To all those fighting either on the battlefields or at home, my heartiest thanks.

"Still hard times are ahead. After the terrible storms of the two years of war, desire for sunshine and peace is stirring in all human hearts, but the war continues because the battle cry of the enemy government is still the destruction of Germany. Blame for further bloodshed falls on our enemies.

"The firm confidence has never left me that Germany is invincible in spite of the superior numbers of our enemies, and every day confirms this anew.

"Germany knows she is fighting for her existence; she knows her strength and she relies on God's help. Therefore, nothing can shake her determination or her assurance. We shall bring this struggle to such an end that our empire will be protected against future attack and that a free field will be assured for the peaceful development of German genius and labor.

"We shall live free, secure and strong among the nations of the world. This right nobody shall, or will snatch from us. I ask you to make this manifesto public."

FAILED TO REPORT

LINDSAY, August 2.—Chief Short received a letter from A. P. Sherwood, Police Commissioner, Ottawa, to-day, which stated that steps would be taken at once to find out where the Austrians who were sent to Lindsay three weeks ago had landed.

The letter was written in answer to one sent by the Chief, announcing the fact to the authorities at Ottawa that no Austrians had reported to him, as was expected.

Chief Short had a Lindsay man who speaks the Austrian language visit the Arsenal plant and make enquiries if such men were engaged there, and was informed that they had not arrived up to that time.

The authorities at Ottawa will get busy and endeavour to locate the enemies of our country.

SAY BREMEN ONLY A MYTH

PITTSBURG, Pa., August 3.—That the merchant submarine Breman, reported due in America, is a myth, invented by German naval authorities for the purpose of scattering English men-of-war in these waters, thereby giving to the Deutschland a better opportunity to slip away, was the statement made here by Henri Detollenaire a Frenchman, who has been in this country several months placing orders for war munitions for his government. Mr. Detollenaire says he received this information direct from high officials in Paris, who also say the British naval authorities have known of the German ruse for some time and have arranged accordingly.

Wanted to Enjoy his Leave.—Two soldiers caused some amusement at a Scottish golf course the other day. The first man teed up and made a mighty sweep, but failed to shift the ball. The miss was repeated no fewer than three times. His pal was unable to stand it any longer, and said in an angry voice: "For guid's sake, Jock, hit the bloomin' thing—ye know we hae only fower days' leave."

THREE DROWNED NEAR BEAVERTON SUNDAY NIGHT BOATING TRAGEDY

Pefferlaw, Ont., August 1.—A whole family, with the exception of one, was wiped out here on Sunday night by drowning when Mr. and Mrs. David Godfrey, and their three year-old-boy, Edward, lost their lives when a row-boat capsised on the Black River. Miss Beckie Godfrey, aged 14, now an orphan, and her cousin, Reita Wesley, aged 12, were saved by clinging to the boat till rescued. Changing seats in the boat, which had fifve people in was the cause of the upsetting of the boat and the triple tragedy.

Mr. Godfrey, his family and niece, spent the day on Lake Simcoe fishing, and returning in the evening, Mr. Godfrey's niece, Reta Wesley, was rowing. Pleased by the way his niece was handling the oars, and the execution of rowing, Mr. Godfrey suggested that his daughter Beckie take the oars and see if she could duplicate the gracefulness of her cousin in rowing. Both girls got up to change seats, and while passing each other the boat tipped over, throwing all five to one side and capsising the craft.

Mr. Godfrey, who is a powerful swimmer, but crippled by rheumatism, put up a heroic struggle for his life, and the effort to save his family was heart breaking. Twice he had his wife and the baby in the boat, which he had righted, but it was full of water, and each time it capsised. On the third attempt the little baby floated away, and the mother in her effort to get it, got away from the boat. The father started after his wife and baby but was so exhausted from his effort that he sank. The mother terror-stricken at seeing her husband disappearing beneath the water, sank also.

The two little girls screamed for help till their voices failed them. Nobody was near. The nearest help was a mile away. The children's cries were heard, but the people thought it was some party in swimming and paid no attention to the calls.

After some time the children were rescued by people walking along the bank. The baby never sank and was breathing when taken out of the water. Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey's bodies were located about an hour and a half dragging operations.

Mr. Godfrey was a keen fisherman and a powerful swimmer, but on account of his crippled condition from rheumatism was not able to do any work, and he was badly handicapped in the water. The accident happened on the Black River, seven miles southwest of Beaverton, and about a mile from Pefferlaw.

Miss Maud Welsh, of 128 Seaton St., Toronto, is a sister of Mrs. Godfrey.

PRIEST ORDAINED MONTH AGO VICTIM OF FOREST FIRE

Bunch of Church Keys and Crucifix All That Remained

MONTREAL, August 3.—The sad fate of Rev. Father Wilfrid Gagnon, cure of Nushka, a victim of the bush fires in Northern Ontario, was ascertained beyond doubt yesterday, by the finding of human ashes which had by their side, a bunch of church keys and a crucifix. The only part of the cure's body that kept its human form was the bone of an arm. Searchers going through the ruin discovered the ashes and among them was the arm bone. The fact that the church keys and the crucifix were lying close by the side of what was once a human form leads to the belief that there is no doubt the cure perished with his parishioners.

Rev. Father Gagnon was born at Victoriaville, and was a student at Nicolet College, and later at the Montreal Seminary. He began his ministry at Lachute, and only went to Nushka a few weeks ago. He belonged to the diocese of Mont-Laurier. Father Gagnon was ordained at the last ordination held at St. James' Cathedral by Archbishop Bruchesi.

Arrested On Charge Of Abducting Girl

County Constable Archie Moore rounded up in Campbellford yesterday Willis Bigham, who is charged with the abduction of Lily Martin, aged 14, from the home of James Sampson, Dummer, on July 9th. He was lodged in the jail, and was remanded this morning until further witnesses were summoned.

At this morning's session of the Police Court he was remanded again until Wednesday.

HORROR SUCCEEDS HORROR IN NORTHERN ONTARIO

Fled From Burning Town—Drove Through Flames—Town of Cochrane Fire-Swept—Only Two Buildings Standing—Storekeeper Lost Everything.

"No one has any idea of the tragic happenings of the past week in Northern Ontario," said Mr. W. G. Sparling, a survivor of the Northern Ontario fire. Two little children accompanied Mr. Sparling and his wife and their sound and dreamless sleep testified to their weariness and fatigue towards the end of a long journey.

"As soon as we saw the fire we jumped into a rig and drove to the station," said Mr. Sparling. "When our store caught fire we could not get within two hundred and fifty yards of the building. The windows were choked with smoke and like a dreadful pall it hung over the town. Illuminated by the flames from the surrounding country the sky made an impressive and awe-inspiring sight, and every one was terrified. The fourth, fifth and sixth concessions at Cochrane suffered most, and that is where the greatest number of lives were lost. We are glad to have escaped, and although we have lost all we had, the fact that my wife and children are safe is enough to make me grateful."

HORROR SUCCEEDS HORROR.

"Many are worse off than we are," said Mrs. Sparling. "We cannot be sufficiently thankful for the mercy which has spared us in the midst of such a calamitous visitation. When I see my two little children sleeping peacefully and realize that they are safe, my heart swells with gratitude to God. Only those who have been through these awful days can realize what we have experienced. And when we think of those less fortunately situated we wonder how people can survive such horrors. We have been helped all along the line, although we do not look for assistance. None the less, we are grateful for all the kindness shown us. The stories we have heard are appalling. Horror seems to have succeeded horror in that devastated country. We have been told of mothers attempting to shield their children from the flames until they and their loved ones perished.

APPALLING LOSS OF LIFE.

"Bodies have been picked up on the roads and in the ditches, charred almost beyond identification. I think that no fewer than two hundred lives have been lost in Matheson alone. Sixty-four have perished in Monteith, and over one hundred in Nushka. We were living on Sixth avenue in Cochrane, and when we were making for the station we had to drive through flames and dense smoke. We had to go quickly. The lumber yards caught fire first, and the flames took a zig-zag course through the town, eating everything up in their path. The fire had the appearance of chain lightning. It was an awful sight, and it was made worse by the high wind, which blew the flames broadcast over the doomed town.

"It was an experience which will ever be indelibly impressed on my memory. No one could ever forget the sights at the Union Station in Cochrane. One's heart ached for the sufferers, and the worst part of it all was the feeling that one could do so little for those who were so grievously stricken."

LOSS HEAVY.

"Our business loss has been a heavy one," added Mr. Sparling. "I think that very little insurance was carried by those who have suffered so much materially. I cannot assign any reason for this, but the fact remains that shopkeepers have suffered very much. I think they imagined that there could never be a repetition of the scenes of five years ago, but we know now that these forest fires cannot be foretold, and that their suddenness contributes to the awfulness of the disaster which follows in their train. The recent visitation is by far the worst that has ever overtaken Cochrane, and the other towns which have been fire-swept. The English Church and Bishopthorp are the only buildings left standing. There is nothing but smoking ruins on Main street, and all the principal avenues have suffered dreadfully. I never want to go north again after this experience."

"We have not wanted for anything since we left Cochrane," said Mrs. Sparling. The railway company has really waited on us hand and foot. Organizations, such as the Freemasons, the Oddfellows, and kindred bodies, have united in the effort to help the distressed. All along the line we have been given assistance, and a realization of the kindness and thoughtfulness of many friends mitigates to some extent the sense of loss which we feel. We are assured of a welcome in Toronto, and it is a comfort to reach such a hospitable centre. We have heard that the Mayor was personally at the station to-day to meet those who came from the north, and this is another evidence that the hearts of the people of the principal city in Ontario go out to the bereaved and afflicted.

SOLDIER TO THE RESCUE.

Pte. Roy Cooper was up in the north country recruiting for the 1st Construction Battalion. He lost his kit and all his money. He was slightly injured when he endeavoured to rescue a baby which was left in a perambulator outside Oldrich's bakery at Cochrane. He got within a few yards of the store, but was forced to retire from the terrific heat. This was about noon.

"At 4 o'clock the flames returned with increased force," he said. "Soon the saw mills were destroyed. The district from the mills to Fourth Avenue was destroyed, but most of Second and Third avenues was left intact."

Pte. Copper rendered great assistance in the collection of the bodies of the victims when the flames had died down. Among those whose bodies he helped to recover were Louis Prue and his wife and four children and Mrs. Jack Pearce, Jr.

FLAME AHEAD OF FIRE.

"The fire was something which had to be seen to be believed," said W. B. Muir. "The flames were in some parts a mile ahead of the actual fire, and in some of the lakes where the people sought safety the water was boiling hot. The poor women had the worst of it, as with screaming children clinging to them they were practically useless, and where a man was not present to help, their fate is too awful to even conjecture. The generosity of the people up north towards the unfortunate people cannot be too warmly extolled."

FREIGHT TRAIN BLAZING.

"It was something terrible," said little Freddie Douglas as he endeavored to explain how he ran back to the house to save his mother, his brother Jack and sister Helen. "Some men assisted me and we all got aboard a freight train. It took fire and we all gave up as lost, but the men worked heroically, and at last we were taken out of the fiery furnace. At times the engine would go ahead for half a mile as if on scout duty, and if the way was clear would come back and couple on and take us a little bit further on our journey."

The father of the family, Richard O. Douglas, kept a drug store in Matheson, and was at the time in Timmins with another son, Bert, and they arrived in time to meet the other members of the family. Everything has been lost, and with the exception of the father, all came to Toronto this morning, and will be the guests of Dr. R. M. Bateman, a brother-in-law, who lives on Danforth avenue. The father remained in Matheson to take charge of the body of another brother-in-law, Andrew Hill, the postmaster at Munro, who is reported to have perished.

A MATHESON HERO.

A Matheson refugee pays tribute to the heroism of Jack Smith, a well-known local character, who, with his beloved team of horses, did much to aid those seeking safety in an open space. He many times drove through the danger zone to fill casks of water at the river, the water being used to drench the clothing of the imperilled persons.

Archie McChristie, who knows the country thoroughly, has since Sunday been engaged in the gruesome task of driving through the settlements collecting the remains of the dead and bringing them to Matheson.

W. A. Corner, the postmaster, and his wife, bundled all the office stamps, etc., into a mail bag, and carried them off. They have since returned with them, ready to resume business.

Mrs. Frank Ginn, wife of the mining recorder, residing 1 1-2 miles north of the town, was a heroine. The residence was saved, though all buildings round about were burned. Mrs. Ginn, with a broom, beat out sparks as they fell in the house. Afterwards she tore up all the bedding in the house to provide bandages.

M. A. Atallah, the Syrian Mayor of Matheson, and his wife, have returned to what is left of the town.

Toronto relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Burton, Matheson, were relieved to receive a telegram telling of their safety, though they lost everything.

Fell From Mow; Broke His Neck

Alexander Millage, Well Known Douro Farmer, Fatally Injured

A fatal accident, resulting in the death of one of Douro's oldest and best known farmers occurred the day before yesterday when Mr. Alexander Millage of lot 10, concession 3, fell from a hay mow to the granary floor beneath, breaking his neck.

The unfortunate man lingered for twenty-four hours after the accident, but death came last night. The late Mr. Millage was seventy-eight years of age, but was of an exceedingly strong and robust frame and had taken his usually active part in the season's haying, when the unfortunate accident ocurred, which resulted in his death.

The late Mr. Millage was a widower and had resided for some years on his farm adjoining the canal and close to Lock No. 3. He was a well known figure around the country, and especially in Lakefield and this city.

CITY HALL PARAGRAPHS

The streets that have not yet received an application of road oil are being treated this week. If there are sufficient funds left an attempt will be made to oil some of the streets that are not authorized at the beginning of the season.

DUSTLESS SWEEPER.

The dustless sweeper was out yesterday over some of the paved streets of the city. The machine has given fairly good satisfaction so far. A number of improvements have been made which should insure better service in the future.

A WORKMAN'S OUTING.

The workmen in the employ of the city are planning an outing some day this month. This will likely take the form of a picnic or a trip down the river.

MAY TAKE REFERENDUM ON PROHIBITION IN PROVINCE

Ontario Government Fears That the Measure Lacks Full Public Support

The Toronto Telegram says:

The Ontario Government, it is understood has reached the conclusion that the prohibition measure, coming into operation on September 16, is in advance of public opinion. The Cabinet is seriously discussing the advisability of an early referendum to the electorate on the three questions:

(1) Are you in favour of the liquor license system?

(2) Are you in favour of beer and wine licenses?

(3) Are you in favour of total prohibition?

Premier Hearst and his colleagues now think that there is not a majority behind the temperance law. They believe that it would be folly to wait until 1919 for a plebiscite, that a vote as soon as possible would be the best policy. But no vote or change in the law can be arranged for until the Ontario Legislature meets in January or February of 1917. The Government, if it so desired, could call an emergency meeting of the Legislature and get authority to submit a referendum and it is possible that this may be done, the House meeting early in September and the vote being taken a short time later.

ENEMIES AT WORK.

The enemies of the Government are spreading stories about the resignation of Premier Hearst, and the selection of Hon. G. Howard Ferguson as Prime Minister. Ministers say that the matter has not even been discussed. The enemies of prohibition have sent in a deluge of anonymous letters to the Premier, accusing him of wrecking the party with the prohibition measure, and making all sorts of threats. These letters have worried Mr. Hearst considerably, but he has stuck to his determination that the people alone shall decide the temperance issue.

It is pointed out by Cabinet Ministers that the prohibition measure was not a Government policy, but a war-time measure, passed by the whole Legislature. They now see through the movement of the Liberals to gain power by turning a handspring on the liquor question.

JOHNSTON TO LEAD.

All sorts of attempts are being made by the Liberals in South-west Toronto to have E. F. B. Johnston K.C., accept the nomination in the late Hon. Mr. Foy's riding. They are sure that Mr. Johnston could win the riding. The plans, it is said are for the dumping overboard of N. W. Rowell, K.C., and his abolish-the-bar policy, and the substitution of Mr. Johnston, K.C., or Fred Pardee, M.P. as the new Liberal leader. The decision rests with Mr. Johnston.

SOUTH-WEST TORONTO.

The Government fears for the safety of South-west Toronto. Despite the Premier's announcement some time ago on the cause of the defeat in North Perth, viz., the German vote, most of the Cabinet believe that the liquor issue was the cause of their candidate's downfall. These members also believe that the liquor issue will cause the Government's downfall in South-west Toronto, unless the intentions of the administration to refer the temperance question to the electorate becomes known in time. The Ministers see quite plainly through the Opposition scheme to blame the Government for prohibition in liquor ridings and to take the credit away from them for prohibition in temperance constituencies.

FORCE HEARST ONT.

There is no doubt but that a strong attempt is being made by the liquor end of the Conservative party to force Premier Hearst from the leadership. The Premier feels keenly the present position of the Government. He does not wish to enforce prohibition if it is not acceptable to the majority of the people but he does intend to enforce prohibition if the majority want it and enforce it he will, regardless of the attacks of the liquor men. That is Mr. Hearst's position as made known to the Telegram by a high authority.

FAILED HIM.

Mr. Hearst thinks that the temperance people who were to do so much if they could only get prohibition have utterly failed him and the biggest failure has been in South-west Toronto.

O'BRIEN ADMITS THE THEFT OF DIAMONDS

Confesses His Crime To-Day When Faced With the Evidence—Though Diamonds Were Worth Five Hundred Dollars, and Was Amazed When Informed That They Were Valued at Two Thousand Dollar

MONTREAL, August 3.—Arthur O'Brien has confessed to the theft of the Vankirk diamonds. He was arrested July 1st for the theft of a bicycle, on which charge he will appear to-morrow. When in the cells the authorities discovered among his other possessions certain diamonds which, through clever detective work, were identified as those stolen from Mrs. Vankirk as she lay asleep in her room in the Prince apartments on the evening of July 29th, 1915. A visit to O'Brien's room disclosed the other articles which were missing from the Vankirk suite and to-day O'Brien confessed that he was the culprit.

When first questioned the young man denied absolutely that he had anything to do with the crime. He claimed that he had bought the diamonds from someone whom he might recognize if he saw again, but whose name and address he had forgotten. On being confronted with a small ivory clock he stated that he had purchased that as part of a set of four pieces. When asked if it had ever been repaired he declared no and was then confronted with the unmistakable marks of a leg having been replaced—the same leg as was missing from Mr. Vankirk's clock which was stolen. Asked as to where he obtained the watch which Mr. Vankirk identified and which bore the same number as the one stolen, O'Brien became flustered and finally broke down altogether and told the detectives that he had commited the theft.

"I saw Mrs. Vankirk through the window and watched long enough to make sure that she was asleep. Then I crept in, and when I saw the diamonds sparkle on her fingers I made up my mind to try and get them and after securing the watch and other articles I managed to get up enough courage to slip them from her fingers without being detected." I took the things more or less as a joke and meant to send them back, but did not know the name or address of the parties."

O'Brien had been out of work for a month and the police believe he was becoming desparate and tried to obtain the bicycle which led to his arrest so that he could obtain some ready cash.

When asked by the detectives as to why he did not attempt to dispose of the diamonds, he stated that he was afraid that if he did so he would be caught. When asked what he considered the value of the diamonds, the prisoner stated that he thought they might be worth about $500 and was amazed when informed that a jeweller had just valued them at $1,300. He will appear next Tuesday for sentence.

Von Bissing Derides The Evacuation Story

ROTTERDAM, Aug. 3.—The Courant says that Gen. von Bissing Governor-General of the occupied portion of Belgium, has posted a warning in Brussels against "the fantastic reports circulated about the imminent evacuation of Belgium by the Germans, which are without foundation."

The notice says the authorities will prosecute the persons responsible for these reports, according to the newspaper.

FROM 95 TO FROST WITHIN THREE DAYS

WOODSTOCK, August 3. — This city experienced its first frost of the season yesterday morning. From a temperature of 95 degrees on Sunday to a frost on Wednesday morning is surely some drop, but it is true. Thos Montford, a well-known gardener, said that when he went out yesterday morning the leaves on his squash plants were white as snow, also the grass in the vicinity. The gardener said squash vines are tender and drew the frost.

A Commercial Traveller Is Appointed J.P.

The following is a contributed reference to the appointment of a widely known commercial traveller as a Justice of the Peace:

George William Prescott, Esq., of 504 Huron Street, Toronto, has been appointed by His Honour Sir John Strathearn Hendrie, Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, by special Royal Warrant, under the Great Seal of the Province to be a Justice of the Peace in and for the County of York, including the City of Toronto, and all Justices in the County of York, including the City of Toronto, are commanded to receive him as their associate, The Sheriff of York and the Sheriff of the City of Toronto and all Constables and other peace officers in the County of York, including the City of Toronto and all others of His Majesty's liege subjects are commanded to obey him, the said George William Prescott, in the specially endorsed commission issued to him, bearing date the 27th day of June last, and recorded by James D. McGibbon, Deputy Provincial Registrar, on the 13th day of July.

Mr. Justice Prescott was sworn in before Mr. H. E. Irwin, the Clerk of the Peace for the County of York, and that official has issued his certificate to that effect with the seal of the County of York attached, and bearing date the 19th day of July. The Commission is countersigned on behalf of the Ontario Government by the Hon. W. J. Hanna, Provincial Secretary, and the Hon. I. B. Lucas, Attorney General. The newly-appointed Justice has been the Ontario representative and associated with the well-known house of Hudon, Hebert and Company, Limited, of Montreal, for the past twenty years, and is very well and favourably known not only to the citizens of Peterborough, but throughout Eastern Ontario. He is a prominent member of Toronto Board of Trade, the Dominion Commercial Association, the Illinois Commercial Association, the Royal Arcanium Society, the Knights of the Maccabees of the World, a member of The Belleville Club, Port Hope Citizens' Club, etc. His legal knowledge is excellent; he holds a certificate of fitness for call to the bar of this Province for some years past, but has preferred the busy commercial life, and will continue to represent the firm he has been with so long in Eastern Ontario. In religion the newly-appointed Justice of the Peace is a Protestant, and a member of St. James' Cathedral, Toronto, and is a man of exceptionally broad views.

WATERMELON DESSERT.

Delicious fruit combinations can be made with watermelons as one of the ingredients. Cut the watermelon which has been thoroughly chilled, in dice, and sprinkle very lightly with sugar and lemon juice. Then mix either with diced pears or peaches, and serve for dessert.

During July and August bot flies lay their eggs chiefly on the long hairs on the horse's legs. These eggs get into the horse's mouth, hatch, and the insects attach themselves to the wall of the stomach. It is a good practice to clip off these leg hairs at intervals during late summer.

Trunk Sewer Will Be Tunnelled Under the C.P.R. On Park Street

The outfall sewer has been laid to a point opposite Park Street Baptist Church, and the C.P.R. crossing is approaching nearer every day. Three tracks across Park Street cover quite a length of street, but Mr. Parsons, City Engineer, expects to be able to tunnel under them, thereby avoiding the difficulty the G.T.R. crossing presented. The earth is a heavy blue clay, and not the sandy formation further south.

Coming on to the Albert Street corner, the sewer will avoid the street railway line by swinging over to the east side of Park Street. This will mean the paralleling of the old sewer from Albert Street to Rink Street. It lies under the street railway on Park Street, and this short section will simply be abandoned when the Albert Street sewer is connected with the new trunk line. Rink street is the northern extremity of the outfall sewer, the completion of which is now in sight.

CROP PROSPECTS FOR DOMINION

OTTAWA, Aug. 3.—A special press bulletin issued by the Census and Statistics Office reports on the condition of field crops in Canada at the end of July in part as follows:

Ontario— In the peninsula (Essex county) a large crop of hay has been harvested in splendid shape. Wheat and barely are harvested, but are not quite a standard yet. Oats will be below average. Corn and hoed crops are fair, though later than usual. In eastern Ontario crops are suffering from lack of moisture. Wheat is little grown, its condition is fair and it is beginning to ripen. Barley is poor, rather late and very uneven. Oats, the most important crop of the district, shows some great divergence, some crops being far advanced, others only a few inches high. About three-quarters of the hay is harvested and the crop is a very good one. Corn is poor; potatoes are healthy.

Northwest Provinces—The weather conditions of July have been generally favourable, although local hailstorms have done some damage. Grain crops continue to show fine promise, especially on bearing and summer fallow. Grain on stubble is not so good. In southern Alberta crops are all good, and harvesting will commence sooner than was expected a month ago. Wheat cutting is expected to begin about August 20, hay roots and potatoes are good.

Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island report all crops as making good growth. In Quebec the hay crop is abundant, but grains have suffered from drought. British Columbia reports cereal crops growing well.

Exact names, age, date of arrival in Canada, name of port of arrival, whether Canadian or American, name of steamship, and date, if possible, of its arrival or date and port of its sailing.

It is pointed out, as a matter of information with reference to the question of alien nationality, that the Department of Immigration keeps a record of every immigrant entering Canada legally, showing name, age, citizenship, country of birth and address of relatives.

Furthermore, that Department states that there will be practically no delay in furnishing any such information.

In place of the championships, which could not be held on account of the war, the English Amateur Athletic Association arranged a big military meeting at the famous Stamford Bridge grounds, at which the star performer was a Toronto athlete, Gunner "Hec" Phillips, of the Canadian Field Artillery.

After his triumphs in the hundred yards, in which he defeated Applegarth, the British champion, Phillips turned his attention on this occasion to the 660 yards run. He not only won handily from the champion of Ireland, but established a new British record for the distance. The London Sportman's summary of the games says:

"660 yards invitation race: final—Gnr. H. Phillips, Canadian F.A., 1; Corp. J. Gamble, Irish Guards, 2; Pte. W. L. Heard, 7th Middlesex, 3. A grand race. The Irish half-mile champion took second place from Heard fifty yards from the tape, but Phillips had the race well won by fifteen yards; two yards between second and third. Time, 1 min. 23 4-5 sec. (New British record)."

BRITAIN SHRINKING FROM NO SACRIFICE TO GAIN VICTORY

Sinn Feinn Rebellion, Hatched in America, Was Not An Expression of Irish National Sentiment

By Ed. L. Keen.

London, July 11. (by mail.)—Some Britons are born patriots others have patriotism thrust upon them; and still others—yes the paraphrase holds good all the way through. Only those who have had patriotism thrust upon them constitute a very small minority of the British public.

Conscription is no criterion. There were less than a million eligibles left to be conscripted. The majority of these would have volunteered if the reasons why their services were required had been frankly, freely stated. Lots of Britishers have relatives in Missouri, some more sceptical than others. The military powers thought they could not take the British public into their confidence without enlightening the Germans. "Your King and country need you," they said. That sufficed for five million men; the others wanted details.

But this instalment of war anniversary observations has to do principally with those who have achieved patriotism, and it revolves largely about a man named Ben Tillett—because he is a type.

TILLETT DOING HIS BIT.

Before the war Ben was a self-proclaimed international revolutionary Socialist. For the period of the war he is neither international, revolutionary nor socialistic. He is all Briton. What he will be after the war Ben says is his own business. If he weren't over military age Ben would be in the army. He is doing his bit by preaching patriotism to those who have not acquired it in full measure.

Ben used to vie with Mrs. Pankhurst for the doubtful distinction of being Trouble-Maker-in-Chief of the British empire. As head of the Dockers' Union and organiser of the powerful Transport Workers' Federation, he had successfully engineered some most disturbing strikes.

It was to the Tilletts and Pankhursts of England and the Casements of Ireland that Germany looked for substantial aid. But mostly her calculations went wrong. Social and industrial unrest in England did not mean pro-Germanism or anti-British ideas when the empire became involved in outside difficulties.

There were serious labor disputes in the early days—two of them big, involving the Welsh coal miners and the Clyde ship-workers. But in these there were other causes than lack of patriotism. The strikers felt that they had been unduly exploited. Their sole demand was that they be accorded a reasonable share of the war profits from their labor. In both the big strikes the men won.

This year's disturbance on the Clyde was different. It was obviously organised by men of pro-German sympathies and most Britishers believe financed by the Germans. The labor leaders had no part in it; they protested against it. The government requestioned the agitators and killed the strike.

As to the attitude of British labor generally towards the war. No fewer than 4,800,000 of the five million volunteer soldiers were drawn from the working classes. But this is only part of the story.

SURRENDER PRINCIPLES

The Tilletts of England, men who previously had put the rights of organized labor above everything else, have surrendered their most cherished principles. In the interests of the empire the trade unions have forfeited for the period of the war practically all that they had succeeded in establishing through desperate and bitter struggle. Their greatest sacrifice was the "dilution of labor" or placing unskilled workers on a par with the skilled (both men and women). The bars of unionism have been let completely down in the name of patriotism. The unions' agreement with the government provides:

"Co-operative efforts to increase production by the adoption of all expedients which tend to increase and maintain output; interchangeability inside the trade of various classes who are members of the trade; suspension for the period of the war of all internal lines of demarkation, and introduction from allied and other trades of skilled men, unskilled men, and women."

This is organized labor's reply to the charge of lack of patriotism. The unions are still passing resolutions against the priciple and application of conscription, against the one because it is repugnant to the ideals of unionism and against the other because they still think it unnecessary. But there have been, and will be, no draft riots in England as there were in New York during the civil war.

THE IRISH QUESTION.

So much for Ben Tillett and his friends. How about Ireland?

Most of the Irish opposition in the war is of American origin. There are no finer patriots in Great Britain today than John Redmond and Sir Edward Carson, each representing extreme poles of Irish politics. The Sinn Fein rebellion, organized by well-meaning but misguided idealists, encouraged by self-expatriated Irishmen in America, financed by Germany, was not an expression of Irish national sentiment. No troops in the whole empire have fought more gallantly or suffered greater losses than the Irish regiments. The Ulsterites have proven their patriotism by consenting to the inauguration of home rule forthwith. The Nationalists have also demonstrated theirs by agreeing to the exclusion of Ulster from its provisions. Patriotism alone is solving the Irish question. Altogether Great Britain is showing a more firmly united front to-day than when the war started or than a year ago. Capital and labor have been drawn closer together. The overseas dominions have exhibited magnificent loyalty. Even India, on which Germany confidently counted for seditionary activities, if not open rebellion, has remained steadfast.

But to Britishers the most encouraging sign is the attitude of the business community. As Lord Revelstoke (England's greatest commercial banker) recently told the United Press: "So long as our military authorities require money to carry on the war we shall shrink from no sacrifice in order to provide it."

Among the tests for fresh eggs the New Jersey station gives the following: "Drop the eggs into a bowl of water. If they sink they are fresh; if they stand on end they are not quite fresh and if they float they are probably spoiled."

Seeking a Public Swimming Pool

(Photo by Moule.)

The above is a photograph of, of course, an actual occurrence and illustrates the natural anxiety of the young, who are in this only a type of the old, to seek the relief of a water plunge in hot weather. On one of the recent hot days, two little tots, evidently brother and sister, were wandering up George street, with their little express waggon. When near Soden's Bookstore, they espied a pool of water left in the gutter, after the passage of the watering cart, and not running away. They sat down on the curb, took off their boots and stockings and gleefully paddled in the water with their bare feet till the little pool oozed away. Innocently unconscious and intent on their pleasure, they paid little attention to the considerable crowd that had gathered to witness a, not only unusual exhibition upon a busy thoroughfare, but to receive object lessons, both in the brightness and quickness of the little kids to size up a situation and take advantage of it, and in the inclination of people young and old to take to water, naturally as a duck, when the temperature rages and when both the passion of cleanliness and of coolness invite to its refreshing depths. If one argument more than another demonstrates the necessity, wisdom and comfort and utility of supervised swimming places, it is this little illuminative incident.

Auto Collision At George and McDonnel

An automobile smash-up in which two cars fared badly but fortunately no one was injured, occurred last night at 9.10 at the corner of George and McDonnel streets when cars driven by Mrs. Agnes M. Doxsee of Campbellford and Mr. Frank Montgomery of town met in a head-on collision.

Mrs. Doxsee was travelling east on McDonnel street close to the right hand curb, while the other car driven by Mr. Frank Montgomery was proceeding west on McDonnel and in making the turn at the corner of George and McDonnel the cars met and were badly damaged. The injured vehicles were taken to different garages for repairs.

HOLLAND FORCES GERMANY TO PASS FOOD FOR BRITAIN

LONDON, Aug. 3. — The German Government has given a pledge to Holland not to destroy or molest Dutch ships carrying foodstuffs to England, according to a Copenhagen despatch to the Express. This decision is the result of a visit to Berlin of Cornelius J. K. Van Aalst, president of the Overseas Trust, and another Dutch commissioner.

The Express says Van Aalst presented an ultimatum to the authorities in Berlin to the following effect: "Unless German agrees not to interfere with Dutch ships bound for England with food cargoes, Holland will close her eastern frontier. Otherwise the Entente may stop Dutch imports from America and the Dutch colonies."

The trip of the Dtuch commissioner was the result of representations by the Entente that Holland was selling large quantities of foodstuffs in Germany while her food trade with England had almost ceased. Holland replied that trade with England was made dangerous by German submarines. Van Aalst, fearing reprisals by the Entente, then undertook the trip to Berlin and after a series of conferences obtained Germany's acceptance of his demands.

Words of New Scotch Song Written By Mr. J. A. Hendry

The following are the words of a new song in the hands of a Toronto publishing house, composed by Mr. J. A. Hendry, of Minneapolis, Minn., who is home on a short visit to Peterborough. It is fully copyrighted and is the seventh song Mr. Hendry has written in the past year:—

A Wee Sprig O' Heather.

Sometimes when I am lonely and feeling rather sad,
And thinking of the bygone happy days,
How I clum the quarry knowe's when I was but a lad,
And wandered o'er the dear old Cathkin Braes,
My heart goes back in raptures to the land where I was born,
I sing the songs of Robbie Burn's fame.
And I long from morn till night and from night till early morn,
For a wee sprig o' heather frae ma auld Scotch hame.

Chorus.

Just a wee sprig o' heather frae ma dear auld Scottish hame
The bonnie hielan heather frae the land of fame
A Scotchman loves the heather, cause he knows from where it came,
Just a wee sprig o' heather frae ma auld Scotch home.

Chorus.

Sometimes I long to wander back to the dear old fireside,
Just to see the dear old home where I was born,
And to stroll again once more on the bonnie bank o' Clyde
With my lassie on a summer sunny morn,
What joy what happy cheer, to me what memories dear,
The flowery dells to me are not the same,
I've a funny feeling here, and I often shed a tear,
O'er the wee sprig o' heather frae ma auld Scotch home.

Chorus.

Oft times when brother Scotchmen meet in far off foreign climes,
Or when they face the foe on battle fields,
They sing of Bruce at Bannockburn in days of auld lang syne
History shows that Scotchmen never yield,
They're heroes on the sea, don't matter where they be,
They fight for Scotland's honour just the same,
And don't forget the bielan lass, she's good enough for me.
She's a wee sprig o' heather frae ma auld Scotch hame.

He Was Exempt.—The fare of a certain boarding-house was very poor. A boarder who had been there for some time was standing in the hall one day when the landlord rang the dinner-bell. An old dog that was lying outside on a rug began to howl mournfully. The boarder watched him a moment, and then said impatiently, "What on earth are you howling for? You don't have to eat it."

To-morrow Will Be The Second Anniversary of the Declaration of War

Services at St. John's Anglican Church To-morrow

To-morrow, August the fourth, will be the Second Anniversary of the Declaration of War. The day is to be observed by the Anglican Church all the world over, as a penitential day—a day of prayer, intercession and supplication for the victory of right, against might, for the righting of great wrongs and for the welfare and success of His Majesty's forces and their allies, by sea, by land, and by air.

By the desire of the Lord Bishop of the diocese of Toronto, a combined series of Anglican services will be held in the picturesque parish church of St. John the Evangelist to-morrow, in which all the Anglican clergy and churchmen and churchwomen of the city will be able to take their share.

This church was selected as being, not only the oldest, but the most central Anglican church in the city of Peterborough.

Accordingly, services will be held in St. John's to-morrow as under:

Holy Communion—7 a.m.
Litany, etc.—11 a.m.
Intercessory Prayer—8:15 p.m.
Evensong—8 p.m.

At the latter service the Rev. F. W. White, rector of St. Luke's East City, will be the preacher, while the various Anglican clergy of the city will take their part in all the services. It is hoped that these will be large representative services which will be well attended, not only by members of the Anglican church, but by as many of other denominations as may desire to be present, who will be cordially welcomed.

The following guests were registered here on Thursday evening of this week: Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Lyman, Pasadend, Cal.; Mr. and Mrs. Gibbons, Buffalo; Mr Alex. Darling, city; Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Knox, Peterborough; Wm. McTavish, Toronto; Lillian Clancy, Marguerite Clancy, Betrica Picard, Peterborough.

The fishing here is good. Mr. Knox had just captured a fine lunge and some good bass.

Sunday was a sweltering hot day: the thermometer reaching 96 degrees in the shade.

The Regatta Association have decided to hold their annual event at the head of the lake on Friday, 11th August. Included in the evening's amusements will be good music and dancing.

CHARGE AGAINST 235th SOLDIER

Appears in Police Court To-day on a Serious Accusation

Two individuals who had partaken of too much local wine juice appeared in the police court dock this morning on charges of drunkenness. One hailed from Midland and the other from Sudbury and both were given the same advice to vacate Peterborough as soon as possible and save further complications.

An out-of-town youth was charged with being a deserter from the ranks of the 155th Battalion. He pleaded guilty to the charge and was ordered to be held until handed over to the proper military authorities.

A soldier of the 235th Battalion, now stationed at Bowmanville, and a former chef by trade at a local hotel, appeared on the charge of administering drugs to a local girl and a former employee of the local hotel with a view of procuring abortion. Capt. McLean of the 235th Battalion and a former Bowmanville lawyer, appeared as counsel for the defendant and put in a plea of not guilty. In the box the girl stated of making a trip to Toronto with the prisoner and told of the procuring; of a bottle of mysterious looking capsules. The girl admitted being in poor health since last January as the result of her sad plight. As both parties are of previous good character and apparently thought a great deal of each other, marriage was suggested by the court and agreed upon by the two parties as the best means of settlement. The ceremony took place this afternoon.

BLANCHE SWEET AT THE EMPIRE

A Particularly Good Play Will be Shown for the Balance of the Week

America's most popular photoplay star, Blanche Sweet in "The Ragamuffin", by Wm. C. DeMille, will appear at the Empire Theatre the balance of this week.

CAST OF CHARACTERS.

Jenny—Blanche Sweet.
Bob Van Dyke—Tom Forman.
Beth, His Sister—Minnette Barrett.
Mary, Their Housekeeper—Mrs Lewis McCord.
Kelly—Billy Elmer.

SYNOPSIS.

Blanche Sweet, one of the most popular stars of the screen, will make her appearance in another Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company productions entitled, "The Ragamuffin" by Wm. C. DeMille. This popular star, who has gradually risen to the top of the photo-dramatic profession as an artist of beauty and talent, will be seen in this elaborate production as a waif of the streets.

Replete with dramatic action, tense situations and exciting episode, the "Ragamuffin" contains an earnest and emphatic plea for universal life opportunity. Wm. C. DeMille, the author of this photoplay, is one of America's leading dramatists. He has treated the subject of environment in a startling, original, and dramatic manner. Jenny as portrayed by Blanche Sweet, from a lowly beginning overcomes life's greatest temptations through an inward struggle of reformation.

FOR OILY HAIR.

One of the very best tonics for oily hair is the following: Witch hazel, two ounces, alcohol, two ounces, resorcin, 20 grains. Apply nightly and rub well into the scalp. Cleanliness of the scalp is very essential, but there is such a thing as overdoing it, as excessive washing deprives hair of its vigor.

JAPANESE MUNITIONS BEAT TEUTONS BACK

TORONTO, Aug. 3.—Marquis Inouze, Japanese Ambassador to the Court of St. James, arrived in Toronto on his way from London, England, to his home in Japan. His Excellency, who is staying at the Queen's Hotel, in the course of an interview discussed Japan's relation to the present war and its future relations with the Allies in the compact of peace which was set forth by Premier Asquith in the House of Commons.

The Marquis displayed a wide knowledge of world affairs and shrewd insight into national motives.

"What about the 'yellow peril' that we hear so much of?" was one of the questions asked.

"German peril," repled the Marquis, with a broad smile. "The scare of the 'yellow peril' was started by the Kaiser with the notorious cartoon he published. The purpose of the scare was to cover up his own ambitions in China, which were to make that a country a German India. He wanted to prevent Japan from gaining legitimate power in the East. At the conclusion of the Chino-Japanese war the Kaiser wanted Russia and France to join Germany in depriving us of the fruits of our victory. To a certain extent he succeeded, and until the present war the German nation has enjoyed a large percentage of the concessions wrung from China by us. One of the fruits of this was Germany securing Kiau Chow."

"Will you give Kiau Chow back to Germany after the war?"

"We will give it back to China, to whom it belongs."

"So then the United States need not fear any 'yellow peril'?"

"There never was any such thing. The Kaiser, in order to further his ambitions in securing a huge Chinese Empire, did his best to make trouble with the United States. For the last fifteen years Germany has been Japan's inveterate enemy. While superficially trying to court our good wishes, the Germans were unceasingly plotting against us."

"What part is Japan actually taking in the war at present?" was another question.

MUNITIONS FOR RUSSIA.

"Japan is playing a large part in the war. All our Government arsenals and our private industries are mobilized against Germany. We are doing everything possible to help the Russians. We are sending munitions to the eastern front via Vladisomocks. I might safely say that Japan has supplied the major part of the munitions that are being used by the Russians in their present offensive, and in that way we have contributed a great deal toward the Russians' success."

Referring to the Conference of Paris on the commercial alliance after the war, the Marquis said Japan was represented there and subscribed to all the resolutions passed, and that they would carry out all their agreements with the allied nations. He looked forward to a closer commercial intimacy with Canada as a result of the conference. "Our earnest wish is to do everything to re-establish the trade of the allies, which has been broken up by the war. When the history of the war is written the world will more fully appreciate the part we have taken in it."

TWO LOVE ONE HONEST SWAIN SO THEY FIGHT

MONTREAL, August 3.—The affection of two colored girls for the same man has resulted in the arrest of one of the girls, and the love affair which ended in a row, will have to be aired in the courts on Friday, the 4th. The course of true love never did run smooth, and this Bessie Tuitt and Frances Lee have discovered to their cost. Bessie and Frances were rivals for the heart of a certain man, and Bessie appeared the other day to be rapidly becoming the favourite of the much sought for swain, accordingly Frances is alleged to have restored to the last weapon of the jealous lover, violence—and has now landed in the toils. She laid her plans carefully and the result was that one evening as Bessie was taking a walk she met her rival who, it is claimed, asked her into an adjoining dwelling. Here Frances according to Bessie, had secreted an other lady of color and large dimensions and they both set on the successful lover, with the result that she received several severe concussions. A pendant which she wore round her neck, she claims was twisted so tightly round her throat that it left a deep mark.

She swore out a warrant for the arrest of Frances Lee and the latter who is employed as maid by a well-known resident of Grosvenor avenue Westmount, appeared at the police station accompanied by her employer who became her bondsman. Hearing of the case is set for the 4th.

LOCKJAW PATIENT MAKING RECOVERY, A REMARKABLE CASE

RAYFIELD, Aug. 3. — Notwithstanding that all hope had been abandoned, and the death of Willie Struthers had been hourly expected from lockjaw, the boy's condition has taken a decided change for the better, and attending physicians now look for complete recovery.

The boy's contracted tetanus last Thursday by an insignificant cut on the foot that finally developed into the dread disease.

The only remedies known to science for tetanus were administered, but as no change was noticed on Saturday the doctors stated his death would no doubt be the matter only of a few days at most. On Sunday he showed improvement, and further administrations were made of the tetanus antitoxin serum and chlorotyne. Yesterday his jaws commenced to relax, and to-day his condition was such that his complete recovery is now expected.

The case is one of those peculiar instances that sometimes baffle the skill of the most experienced physicians.

Generally "lockjaw" is fatal after five days, but this case proves the exception.

MILITARY NEWS

Ottawa, Aug. 2.—Canadian maples are to be planted around the graves of Canadian soldiers in France. Seed of the red and silver maple, ripened at Ottawa, has been sent to London by Dominion Horticulturist W. T. Macoun and planted in Kew Gardens. After the war the little trees from these seeds are to be transplanted in France. Seeds of the large-leaved maple of British Columbia are to be sent to London for the same purpose as soon as ripe.

Vancouver, B.C., Aug. 2. — To the second member of the Bell-Irving family has come the honour of being decorated with the Military Cross, according to private advices received in Vancouver this morning.

This time is is Roderick Bell-Irving, acting Major in the 16Sth Canadian Scottish, and is in recognition of his gallantry in leading his company to the attack and the eventual capture of an entrenchment which had been taken from the British by the Germans.

SAYS TENDERLOIN WAS APPORTIONED

District Attorney Declares Grafting Policemen Got Money From Women of Underworld For Privileges

NEW YORK, Aug. 3—That grafting policemen recently opportioned sections of the Tenderloin to certain women of the underworld who paid them and kept all other women of that character out, was the statement of Edward Swann, District Attorney. He learned that, he said, in connection with the wide investigation of alleged conditions of graft in the Police Department, which he and Arthur Woods, Police Commissioner, are attempting to find.

Mr. Swann said that one of those women was allowed privileges in Sixth avenue between Twenty-third and Twenty-eighth streets by certain policemen. She had in her possession a letter signed by a police official which insured her against annoyance from any police source, it was said. Mr. Swann refused to say who had signed that letter, but he said that his investigation indicated that it had been used by the woman on several occasions when she was threatened with arrest.

"We have information that sections of the Tenderloin were thus sold to various women," he said. "She paid a high price for the privilege, but the police evidently lived up to their bargain, for this letter seemed to make her immune to arrest. On the other hand, any woman caught in the particular district mentioned was at once arrested and in many instances sent to Blackwell's Island for infringing on some one else's territory. The women of the underworld know this situation very well and they are careful not to get into the 'restricted territory.'"

Several detectives from the District Attorney's office are in Rockland County to escort three women witnesses to New York city to testify before the Grand Jury in connection with the graft cases. Those women fled when the investigation started, and certain of their friends received beatings for having gone to the District Attorney's office.

"They refuse to come to New York on the ground that they feared for their lives," Mr. Swann said: "consequently we sent the detectives after them. They will have every protection."

Mr. Woods said he had no new comments to make, but reiterated that he was as anxious as the District Attorney to rid the department of any graft that might exist.

FROM THE TRAIN TO BATTLEFIELD

NO SIGNS, HOWEVER, OF A SUDDEN COLLAPSE OF THEIR MILITARY STRENGTH.

(By Stanley Washburn)

Russian Army Headquarters on the Stokhod Front, Aug. 3.—Fighting of the most desperate character is in progress on all portions of our fronts. The Germans, driven to absolute desperation by their losses in guns and men, have been launching counter-attacks almost without cessation.

Monday and Tuesday they were pouring fresh divisions, which proceeded from the trains to the battlefields, where they were mowed down by the Russian fire. With huge losses in all attacks which so far have been delivered they have been beaten back. Cannonading continues night and day, at times reaching such violence that it is impossible to distinguish individual sounds. It is simply a continuous roar like thunder.

At night the whole sky is illuminated by burning shells, searchlights, and star bombs. The towns are filled with German and Austrian wounded. The Stokhod position is extremely strong. Indications accumulate daily that the Germans will hold this line until the last moment.

The allied victories both in the east and west have not sufficiently reduced the morale of the Germans to give ground for a supposition of a sudden collapse of their military strength. The bitterness is extremely great on account of the persistence with which enemy flyers are bombing hospitals and dressing stations which occurs on an average of twice daily.

HINDENGBURG'S BIG JOB.

Amsterdam, via London, Aug. 3.—All of the German and Austrian armies on the eastern front have been placed under the supreme command of Field Marshal von Hindenburg, according to an official German statement.

Who Fired the First Shot in European War?

When and where did he fire the first shot in the great war asks a contributor in London "Answers." On sea, the ball was probably opened by the Grafton, which about midnight on August 4, 1914 put a shell across the bows of a German barque in the North Sea, made her crew prisoners and seized her as a prize of war.

But the honor of landing the first blow on sea fell to the Amphion, which on August 5, 1914, sank the German mine-layer Koenigen Luise. The Amphion herself was sunk by a mine on the following day, and was the first of our losses. We did not score against German warships proper, however, till August 9, 1914 when the Birmingham sent the U-15 to the bottom.

In land operations our first shot was fired on August 20, 1914, by the 4th Dragoon guards. The same regiment was the first to begin killing Germans.

A BIG DAY ASSURED

Dollar Day Preparations Are On a Big Scale--Distant People Can Attend Easily This Time

Dollar Day promoters are getting more enthusiastic over the prospects for a record day, as the arrangements progress. It is felt that summer conditions make it possible for many people to attend, who were quite unable to negotiate the winter roads for the distance they live from Peterborough, but a trip to town now will be only a pleasant jaunt, with the excitement that a big crowd always produces as an extra inducement.

In the Rice Lake district the boat service is now available, and that makes the trip possible for several hundred who could not come last March.

Fully expecting a record crowd, the merchants are busy making great preparations to present offerings of such extraordinary value that it will be worth while coming many miles to share them.

With all the other attractions, after all, the most interesting feature will be the friendly contest for the $150.00 in cash prizes which will be given away by the merchants to shoppers who patronize the stores that display the Pennants.

The date will be toward the end of August. Watch for the announcement, and don't let anything prevent your participating in the big day.

This took place at Hermignies, at about 5 a.m. on August 22nd, when a part of C squadron opened fire on a number of the enemy at a distance of about 600 yards. The first Hun to fall was an officer.

It seems clear, further, that on this occasion the 4th dragoons not only took the first prisoner, but fired the first machine-gun used on our side in the war.

As regards the first shell fired on land, there is some dispute, both E battery and D battery, Royal Horse artillery, claiming the record. The evidence in favor of the former, however, is much the stronger. It went into action at Bray, near Mons, at 11.15 a.m. on August 22nd, and the case of the first shell it fired is now in England.

When, again, was gas first used The earlier record is 5 a.m. on April 22, 1915, when the Germans released it in the northern sector of the Ypres salient, and among the first, if not absolutely the first, of the units to get the "benefit" was the 2nd London Heavy battery, Royal Garrison artillery (territorials), some of the men of which were "gassed".

Here is another hotly disputed point: Which regiment gained the first Victoria Cross? The Royal Engineers say the record is theirs, and both an officer and a lance corporal in that famous corps certainly won the coveted distinction on August 23, 1914. The officer was Captain Theodore Wright, who, at Mons attempted under heavy fire to connect up the line to demolish a bridge, and, though wounded in the head, made a second trial. He was mortally wounded at Vailly on September 14th. On the same day—August 23rd—Lance Corporal C. A. Jarvis won the V.C. for great gallantry at Jemmapes.

But the Royal Engineers were run very close by both the 15th Hussars and the 4th battery, Royal Fusiliers to each of which fell a V. C. on August 23, 1914. In all, the most prized of military decorations was won four times on that fateful day.

COMPULSORY SERVICE

New Zealand Had Adopted Bill With an Amendment.

London, Aug. 3.—New Zealand has decided in favour of the compulsory military service bill, which is applicable "to men of any age not less than twenty and more than forty-six." The only important amendment to the measure by the Legislative Council was the stringent religious objectors exemption clause. The governor has given assent to the bill.

FRENCH REOCCUPY FLEURY AND THIAUMONT WORKS IN GENERAL OFFENSIVE EAST OF THE MEUSE

German Artillery Is Maintained in Strength on Verdun Front But Lack of Infantry Prevents the High Command From Following Up Bombardments by Attacks in Mass—Grenadiers Pave Way For Advance by Bombing Path Through Vignes Ravine.

PARIS, August 7.—By recapturing the greater part of the village of Fleury, by forcing their way into the Thiaumont work and by obtaining a firm foothold on the Pepper Ridge the French at Verdun have accomplished in three days a task to which the Germans devoted nearly a month. The military observers in Paris are in some doubt concerning the greater object of the offensive undertaken along the east bank of the Meuse, but there are no two views regarding its first successes.

There is nothing to indicate that it is a major effort by General Joffre to restore the status as for February 1 or, more important, to threaten German Lorraine. It is regarded, on the other hand, as a logical development of the Somme operations for the purpose of holding at Verdun troops which are being detached from the Crown Prince's army with great regularity to bolster up the German defences in Picardy, and it is putting the initiative in this zone solidly in the hands of the French.

Officers who are returning from the Meuse front say it is more and more apparent the Germans are unable to operate on the overwhelming scale on which they conducted their early Verdun attacks. The artillery continues as strong as ever, but the demands of the eastern theatre and the calls from the Somme have cut deeply into the man power opposed to the fortress, and the German command no longer is able to gather the masses necessary to follow up the preparatory work of the artillery.

Since the Anglo-French armies began their attacks on the Somme the Crown Prince has been able to launch but one serious assault on the right bank of the Meuse, and that was nearly three weeks ago. In the meantime the French have been quietly preparing for a blow which should restore to the garrison some of the strong points of support lost during the June fighting. This preliminary work was done largely by the grenadiers, who have been working down the Vignes ravine with the purpose of encircling Hill No. 365 and thus getting to the vicinity of the Thiaumont work.

BOTH PARTIES REACH OBJECTIVE.

These bombing parties reached the Bras-Fleury road more than a week ago. Here they separated, one party fighting its way eastward toward Thiaumont and the other pushing to the north toward Vacherauville and Pepper Ridge. Both reached their objective last week and placed the whole section from Vacherauville to the aproaches of Souville in French hands and paved the way for a general attack along the front from the river to Damloup.

Fleury is the strategic centre of the German positions on the right bank of the river. The Germans reached it by an attack from the northeast which drove a salient into the French front. They were unable to expand the salient and when the French were ready thre days ago to undertake its recovery they were able to attack it both from the northwest and the southeast. The early attacks drove the Germans from the village, but counter-attacks recovered it, and since then it has changed hands several times. The fighting has been of a particularly desperate character.

In the course of the general attacks, of which the Fleury struggle formed only one—although the most important—part, the Thiaumont work was laid open to assault from the south, southeast and southwest. Friday the French entered the work, but the artillery fire concentrated on them was so violent they were compelled to withdraw. Later in the day fresh efforts were made to obtain control of the redoubt, which is one of the most formidable positions on the entire Verdun front. Attack after attack was launched in the face of a withering fire, and late in the evening the position had passed definitely to French hands.

RUSSIANS OUTWIT GERMAN STRATEGY

General Von Linsingen's Attempt to Flank General Brusiloff East of Vladimir-Volynski Falls—Kovel Being Now Threatened From the South, Sokal From the East and the Valley of the Bug From the Northeast.

ENEMY SURRENDER IN MASSES

LONDON, August 7.—By admirable strategy the Russians are broadening their wedge between Volhynia and Galicia, where the German forces are beginning to crumple up before what Herr von Jagow called "Russia's inexhaustible supply of men." General von Linsingen's strategy has signally failed, and military observers here believe it is only a question of days, possibly of hours, before Kovel falls to General Brusiloff, and this important centre of railways and roads from Austria and Germany into Russia will be reconquered from the invaders. On the east at Rudka-Mirynskaia the Russians are only nineteen miles from Kovel, and on the Rovno-Kovel Railroad they have been reported only ten miles away.

General von Linsingen's army was not engaged in the operations which resulted in the capture of the Lutsk salient. It was the army of Archduke Joseph Ferdinand which was defeated at Olyka and further south that of General Boehm-Ermoli, which had been pushed back to Brody. In this crisis General von Linsingen hurried to the region between the Styr and the Stokhod to defend the main road from Lutsk to Kovel. The battles at the bend of the Styr were very sanguinary and for a long time indecisive. The Russians at first were stopped with heavy losses, but these were constantly made good, and they finally regained the advantage.

TEUTONS SURRENDER IN MASSES.

Repeated attacks by the Russian infantry charging with the bayonet have gnally overcome obstables which appeared insurmountable. The heat was such that both Austrians and Bavarians, thoroughly exhausted, surrendered in great masses. The Austrian prisoners especially gave themselves up to discouragement, crying:—"All is lost; why should be keep on fighting

General von Linsingen's scheme was to defend vigorously the line of the Stokhod while he was protecting Kovel by a triple line of new trenches after having been forced to yield ground at the bend of the Styr. The impression in the Russian army was that these terrible battles were a sort of gigantic rearguard action, the chief object of which was to facilitate a retirement on positions of which the fortifications had not yet been finished.

But General von Linsingetn had also in view a strategic move which, if successful, would have rendered abortive General Brusiloff's whole campaign. Reassembled south of Kovel, half way between Vladimir-Volynski and Lutsk, he gathered a large force to attack the left flank of the Russians, with the idea of penetrating it and taking in the rear their bases of operations on the Styr. Thus the greater part of the Russian army would be suddenly placed between two fires and, fortune aiding him, General von Linsingen would have been nearer to Lutsk than General Brusiloff was of Kovel.

FAIL TO SURPRISE RUSSIANS.

Such ambitious operations, which seem very fine on the map, necessitate in the field a marked superiority in men, great rapidity of action and negligence on the part of the enemy. Now not only did the German troops of General von Linsingen fail to surprise the Russians, but they ran into a powerful counter offensive by General Sakharoff on the Russian left wing which inflicted on them a severe defeat on the Lipa. This stream is an affluent of the left bank of the Styr, rising a few miles from the Galician frontier, to which its course is almost parallel.

General Brusiloff was simply following Napoleon's maxim of placing troops so that whatever the enemy does one's forces can be reunited in a few days. Moreover, during the battle he flung forward a fresh mass of infantry on the Germans' left. Some reinforcements the latter received in time enabled them to retire behind the Lipa, but only after they had left 13,000 prisoners and about thirty guns in the hands of General Sakharoff.

Thus General Brusiloff has cleared on its southern or weakest side the Lutsk salient, which is daily becoming less of a salient, because the Russians hold both the Stokhod and the Lipa, threatening Kovel from the south as well as the east; Cokal form the east and the valley of the Bug from the northwest.

When the Austrians were being beaten the Germans could not find enough sarcastic remarks for their faithful allies. Now that it is the Germans who are being defeated they cannot repress a real cry of distress. It is not from a newspaper published with an object in neutral countries, but from the semi-official Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung that the following is taken:—

"The situation of the Germans is grave in the fact of the millions of soldiers of the Entente who are rising to the attack at once on all sides at the same time that the Russians are crushing with their weight our feeble positions in the east and the Austrians are obliged to draw back in Italy."

WAR BABY FUND IS STARTED HERE

Countess Marie de Hemptinne Appeals for Funds for Women About to Become Mothers.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.— Countess Marie de Hemptinne, who has charge of a depot in Paris where clothing and food are received for distribution among the destitute, has made a special appeal to Americans for funds with which to supply beds for women who are about to become mothers. The appeal was sent to Mrs. Jules S. Bache, whom the Countess has asked to become the head of a branch here of the War Baby's Cradle.

"The special appeal I wish to make to you is for beds for the poor women who are about to have babies," the Countess said. "In thousands of cases these poor creatures are destitute and will have to bear the pains of childbirth on straw, strewn on the floors of miserable cabins, if some one does not go to their assistance.

"You can scarcely picture to yourself the situation, but you can well appreciate the act that it is really terrible, that the wives of the men who are fighting for their country in the trenches should be compelled to bring their children into the world under such frightful conditions.

"I have seen many of these homes and many soldiers when returning to the firing line who said to me that their great anxiety was about their little ones lying on the straw on the wet floor.

"I have done all I could. I promised them each time to give a bed to the mother, but unfortunately I have nothing left, and we have decided, a few friends and I, not to take any rest until we have given a bed to each woman who is about to become a mother. We will ask all over the world. We are sure that Americans will not refuse to help us. We want beds sheets, blankets, cradles, baby blankets, milk or money to buy these things and to pay a woman during ten days to take care of the mother and child."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

DID HE KIDNAP HER?

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

"Gosh hang it, but I believe I am an idiot! I not only believe it, but I know I am. Here am I most thirty years old and still am a bachelor instead of having a wife."

It was Giles Stebbins, seated in his farmhouse three miles from the town of Dawson. Outside it was raining heavily.

"No dog, no cat, no wife!" he muttered as he looked into the fire and then gave the wood a vicious kick. "I ought to have been married years ago. I ought to have a wife to do the cooking and make the bed and sweep up this litter on the floors, but I have been a fool and had to pay for it. I 'm too homely to go a-courting like other men, but I ought to have taken desperate chances."

It was true about Giles Stebbins being a homely man. Nature had not been kind to him. He was long, lank and lathy.

"Yes," continued Giles as he reached for his old clay pipe and filled the bowl of it with the dried leaves of a hazel bush as a substitute for tobacco: "I am going to bring a wife here. Then will follow a cat, perhaps a canary, then some decent meals and a happy home."

At about the same hour, in the village of Dawson, Mary Parker, old maid and twenty-nine years old, sat talking with her mother.

"Mary," said the mother, "I don't want to hurt your feelings, but both your father and me are bitterly disappointed in you. I say it is almost scandalous, with you being such a good housekeeper as you are."

"You may call it scandalous or anything else, mother, but I have no chance with the other girls, and you know that as well as I do. I can cook, mend and wash, but I am so dreadfully homely."

"But there is Giles Stebbins," said the mother after a brief silence.

"Why, he is more homely than I am," ruefully laughed Mary. "I shall wait a hundred years if necessary for some other man to come along."

"They say he is getting well off."

"And it may be true, but that is no compensation for his looks. He always reminds me of a scarecrow hung on a pole."

With that Mary went to her room, and after fussing around for a moment she sat down and took a long look at herself in the glass. By and by she said to herself:

"Yes, that is my homely face, and it will be homelier as I grow older. I ought to have found a husband long ago, homely as I am, but none came along. Put myself in the way of being kidnaped. At least if some man tried to kidnap me I wouldn't shriek and cry for help. I'll take a little walk through the streets tomorrow evening and see if something won't occur. With a new hat on and a veil hiding my face I think I can pass muster."

On the evening of the next day after his frugal repast Giles Stebbins hitched the old white mare to the top buggy and then donned his Sunday suit and started for the village of Dawson.

"Yes, I am going to be a kidnaper and a husband," said Giles to himself as he rode along. "I shan't stop to introduce myself or explain anything."

It was nearly 9 o'clock when he drove into the village. Its citizens kept early hours. Most of them were in bed or preparing for it when the old white mare and her driver appeared. Miss Mary Parker had strolled out as per her program. She had taken a walk of half a mile and had just turned to retrace her steps, somewhat disappointed, but still hopeful, when a vehicle dashed up beside her and a man leaped from it. It was Giles Stebbins, of course, but she did not recognize him.

"You are going with me!" he exclaimed in a low, tense voice. "If you resist the consequences may be awful!

"Don't you call for help," warned Giles as they dashed through town.

"If you are a married woman tell me so and I will take you back. If you are single I am going to take you to Deacon Carter's house to marry you. I am not a villain, but I have lived alone long enough. What do you say?"

Giles thought she snuggled up to him a little for answer, and he was satisfied that he was not running away with some good man's wife.

"Now to get spliced," said Giles as he descended from the vehicle and reached up his arms to aid his victim to follow. She had no objections to offer, as he expected. He took her arm and escorted her to the deacon's store and had the good fortune to find the justice winding the clock preparatory to retiring to his bed.

"We want to get married," was the kidnaper's salutation.

"It won't take over three minutes, and the fee will be $2," was the reply.

Now came the crisis. Mary Parker had to raise her veil, and at the same time she slipped a ring off her finger and handed it to Giles to be used at the proper moment. She looked him full in the face, as he did her, and there was mutual recognition.

There was no scene to scandalize the good deacon and his wife. The kidnaper and his victim clasped hands and were quickly made man and wife.

Giles Stebbins was never arrested for kidnaping, and he never sat alone in front of a green wood fire again. A cat and his wife were with him.

TELLS OF HIS FIGHT WITH A ZEPPELIN

Big German Craft Took Refuge in Clouds But Was Finally Set on Fire

A young American air pilot with the French army gives in The New York Sun a graphic description of his pursuit of a Zeppelin, as follows: A brilliant burst of sunlight suddenly reveals the ship to the aviators, and the Zeppelin captain also discovers us as we wheel around to pursue. We are at a lower level and we promptly start climbing. The Zeppelin leaps upward, and, setting her elevation planes, seeks to gain a still greater advantage in height.

To us below it looked as though pursuit were helpless, but we held on grimly. Steadily we gained in forward speed. Our engines were fresh, while the Zeppelin motors were feeling the strain of long running at high speed. When the affair settled into a stern chase the Zeppelin opened fire.

We were prepared for this and kept as close as possible in the wake of the German ship, thus masking the guns in the forward cabin. But the Zeppelin, learning a lesson from previous encounters, had guns in the rear cabin, and, despite the disadvantage of shooting in a line parallel with the keel, they made rapid practise on the aeroplanes.

Zepp. Was Desperate

The situation grew desperate for the Zeppelin. All the ballast had been thrown out, gasoline was running short, and the engines were showing signs of increasing weakness and irregular running.

Undeterred by the guns, one of our squadron of aeroplanes had already climbed to the same level as the airship and was steadily rising to a height where it would be concealed from the Zeppelin guns by the body of the ship itself. A great burst of forward speed could alone save the commander of the Zeppelin from being overtaken by the enemy.

The machine which I was piloting was the second to rise above the firezone, though one ragged wing showed a wound of the fray. As a balloon the Zeppelin could rise no higher, for all her ballast had been sacrificed. The captain decided to bring his elevating planes back to normal and stake on a high-speed flight in a horizontal course. He was encouraged in this by the sight of his German lines below, with the landmarks which he knew so well. Puffs of smoke told him that the aeroplanes were being shelled by German gunners, that the bombardment showered upon us might relieve him at any moment. Indeed, some of the shots burst so near the Zeppelin that the commander must have had an indifferent opinion of the gunners' marksmanship.

When I talked afterward with a comrade in a machine below the level of the Zeppelin, he told me of the intense agony which the Zeppelin crew suffered as they looked at each other with horror-stricken eyes. Without doubt their one possessing thought was, "What is happening above us?" From their little cabins there was no possibility of an upward survey, for the great body of the ship loomed above them, shutting out the overhead view. But the crew of the zeppelin could picture in their minds' eyes those two gaunt birds, of which I happened to be piloting one, flying after them remorselessly as Fate, and inch by inch gaining on them. Well did the crew know that the Zeppelin would soon be beneath the areoplanes. A bomb will drop on the great ship's back, and then—

Captain in a Frenzy

In a frenzy the captain plunged his ship downward and swung her to the right with a swerve that threatened to break her spine. But the elephantine manœuvre availed them little. We in the areoplanes could dive and swerve with the grace of swallows, while the giant ship lumbered like a derelict balloon. We summoned up all our remaining nerve-energy. Our prize was just within our grasp—he must not escape. If he did we could most easily become the prey of the anti-aircraft guns that were waiting their chance to send aloft their deadly hail of shrapnel. Down swept our bombs with unerring accuracy. There was a dull thud and then a sheet of flame, spreading with lightning speed, in a moment enveloping the entire massive vessel. The burning hydrogen consumed it with appalling fury, and in a few instants the great ship, crumbling and melting, hurtled to earth like a blazing meteor. From the earth many guns spoke. They but served only for the firing-salute over the graves of the fallen.

Teaches Crippled Belgians

Miss Julie Heyneman, a Californian residing in London, has worked indefatigably to establish and manage "California House" for disabled Belgian soldiers. Miss Heyneman organized a committee composed of Californians in London, and this committee arranged the furnishing of a large house in Lancaster Gate which was generously given by its owner rent free. In this house, now called "California House," Miss Heyneman and her advisory board have made a day home for disabled Belgians. Here they are taught English, French, Russian, Spanish; classes receive instruction in applied designing, agriculture, horticulture, electrical engineering.

Huns vs. Hungarians

The German press views with some anxiety the anti-German campaign which has been opened by the Magyar or Hungarian press. The leader of the anti-German movement is Senator Rakosy, editor of the very powerful and influential "Buda Pest Hirlap" and a close friend of Count Tisza, the Hungarian Premier, who, in his paper, is conducting a violent campaign against the Germanisation of Hungary. This the Hungarian censor refused to stop.

London's "Red-caps"

A new feature of London life was the appearance of the "red-caps," or military police, wearing cap-covers of scarlet, an outward sign of stiffened regulations and a call to caution which the troops are quick to recognize

"English Barbed Wire"

The leaders of the German motor industry met in Berlin to discuss after-the-war trade. Speakers said that German motor manufacturers were well aware that "England was already putting up barbed wire all over the world against German trade," but confidence was expressed that "the superlative qualities" of German cars would ensure them their old hold on pre-war markets.

WOMAN AVOIDS OPERATION

Medicine Which Made Surgeon's Work Unnecessary.

Astoria, N. Y. — "For two years I was feeling ill and took all kinds of tonics. I was getting worse every day. I had chills, my head would ache, I was always tired. I could not walk straight because of the pain in my back and I had pains in my stomach. I went to a doctor and he said I must go under an operation, but I did not go. I read in the paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and told my husband about it. I said 'I know nothing will help me but I will try this.' I found myself improving from the very first bottle, and in two weeks time I was able to sit down and eat a hearty breakfast with my husband, which I had not done for two years. I am now in the best of health and did not have the operation." — Mrs. JOHN A. KOENIG, 502 Flushing Avenue, Astoria, N. Y.

Every one dreads the surgeon's knife and the operating table. Sometimes nothing else will do; but many times doctors say they are necessary when they are not. Letter after letter comes to the Pinkham Laboratory, telling how operations were advised and were not performed; or, if performed, did no good, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was used and good health followed.

If you want advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass.

THE PLAY IN CHINA

It is a Curious Mixture of Noise, Costume and Strut.

DIN FROM START TO FINISH.

It Begins When the Curtain Rises and Continues Until the Last Scene Ends the Agony—The Property Man a Mighty Important Personage.

I was all tired and knocked out when I reached China, so I thought to myself, "I'll just go to a Chinese theater and spend a quiet evening. I won't understand anything, so I can doze off when I want to and come out as refreshed as a sprig of celery."

"What time does the play begin?" I asked as the guide led the way to the gallery, for in a Chinese theater the farther away you are the more aristocratic. No Chinese of caste would be caught in orchestra A.

"It have begin," he answered.

"How could that be?" I demanded, for it was still a few minutes of 8.

"It begin yesterday. It run two plenee days. It No. 1 play."

And so I found out. The better the play the longer it lasts. A Chinaman doesn't think he is getting his money's worth unless the play lasts a couple of days. Some of them continue a week. They consider a play that lasts only a night a curtain raiser and tag it on to a real play just to try it out.

The Chinese believe in noise. A theater isn't a theater to them unless it has a ladies' annex to a boiler factory just off stage. The hammering begins when the curtain goes up and continues until it falls. I soon found out that I erred seriously in coming to a Chinese theater to sleep. A person might drop off for a few minutes in a car shop, but he could never get near the knitting up of the raveled sleeve in a Chinese theater.

Chinese acting consists of the actors coming on again in another outfit of clothes. They come on, whirl a baton a couple of times and exeunt. While they are off another delegation of actors arrive with another collection of clothes. They whirl their clubs a few times and file out Indian style as another lodge arrives. There is no more expression on the face of a Chinese actor than on a punching bag.

When they want to show that the intrepid hero with a handful of men is trying to take a fortification against a vastly overwhelming enemy the property man hurries around in front of the hero with a black cloth stretched over a frame. This is the fortification, even though you can see his fingers gripping the breastworks. The dauntless hero marches across the stage, stops before the impregnable barrier, casts his eagle eye over it, draws his long sword and rips it asunder with one fell blow, the property man holding the swaying corner, while the hero marches through to victory. The intrepid hero stops to explain to his subordinates how he was able to accomplish the feat, while the property man drags the ramparts into the wings and begins pinning them up for the attack in the next act.

In a Chinese play there are no girls, their parts being taken by boys, speaking in a high, quavering voice as if something were too tight. When an actor wants to show that he is old he ties on a beard that comes to his waist. The beard works off to one corner and hangs grimly by one string, but the audience doesn't worry about that. They know that he is an old man because he has a beard.

I was constantly alert to figure out what kind of show it was. When I first got there and saw the constant change of costume I thought that it must be a musical comedy, but after studying it more closely I saw that it was a farce. When they began to kill people I came to the conclusion that it was an operetta. Later, when the hero found his wife in another man's arms, I decided that it was a problem play.

The most important person in a Chinese show is the property man. Alongside him the lead sinks into insignificance. He has charge of the show. The show opens when he says and closes when he wants to go out to a tea house. He keeps his properties where they are handy—down stage by the proscenium arch—right out where the audience can lean over and almost touch them. To know what is coming next all the audience has to do is to look over and see what the property man is getting ready.

Hour after hour the play continued without an intermission. Midnight came, and the actors seemed to be just getting into the spirit of the play. When I remembered that the play had been running for two days I felt sure that the next five minutes would see the last costume, but the show still continued.

I clung desperately on, determined to be in at the finish when the last hot, feverish kiss was pressed on the upturned lips, but it didn't end that way. It ended when the leading man came rushing out with a cheese cutter and killed twelve men in breathless succession, the maimed and wounded thoughtfully crawling to the wings to die, thus giving the leading man the center of the stage until the envious property man came up and spitefully yanked the curtains to.—Homer Croy.

BURNING OF FALSE FAITH STRUCTURES

Such a Burning Has Never Taken Place Until Now.

This Day of the Lord a Period in the Close of This Age—Burning Now Under Way—Faith Structure of Many Destroyed — Text Deals Only With Christians — Only Those Have Had a Structure Built on Christ—Structures of Gold, Silver, and Precious Stones Will Stand—Those of Wood, Hay, and Stubble Are Now Being Consumed—Some Saved so as by Fire—The Faithful Being Manifested

[The matter under this heading is supplied by the Pastor Russell Lecture Bureau, who conduct the Brooklyn Tabernacle (unsectarian) Bible Studies, and who have arranged for its publication.]

New York City, Aug. 6.—Pastor Russell was at the New York City Temple to-day, and delivered an address of great power. His text was, "Every man's work shall be made manifest; for the Day shall declare it, because it shall be revealed by fire; and the fire shall try every man's work of what sort it is." (1 Corinthians 3:13.) He said in part:

We have now come to the time to which the Apostle refers as "that Day." The reference is not to a twenty-four-hour day, but to a period of time in the end of this Gospel Age, in which things will be different from what they had been before. We are greatly pleased to be living in this time; for in it occur not only special trials—"the fire of that Day"—but also special blessings and enlightenment.

It has always been true that trials and testings are proportionate to knowledge and privilege. What a wonderful blessing is ours to be able to understand God's Word as we may to-day! In this respect especially is our day superior to all previous time. We possess the Bible in a most convenient form, with marginal references, concordances, good type, etc. We have the ability to read; we have superior lights, comfortable houses, and shorter hours of labor, thus having more time for study than people have previously had. In fact, we have every advantage; and this means greater opportunities, greater blessings, greater responsibilities, and greater trials.

As shown by our context, the Apostle clearly points out that the fire of "the Day of the Lord" will burn up the faith structure of some. Our Lord Jesus speaking of this same Day, said, "When the Son of Man cometh, shall He find the faith on the earth?" (Luke 18:8.) He intimated that very few then would have the faith of God's Word, the true faith. The faith structure of many is likened in our text to "wood, hay, and stubble"—combustible materials. He indicates that such Christians have the proper Foundation—Christ—but a poor superstructure, because they did not build with the proper material. Wood, hay and stubble represent a flimsy, inferior, unsuitable material; while gold, silver, and precious stones represent substantial, superior, indestructible material. Those who have built with the wrong kind of material will suffer the loss of their entire faith-structure; but those who have used the right kind will pass safely through the fire. Their faith-structure will endure.

What Is This Proper Material?

By contrasting these two kinds of building material, we believe that we are quite right in understanding that the gold, silver, and precious stones represent the promises of God's Word, the teachings of Christ, and the Apostles. This proper material must be built upon the only true Foundation—Christ Jesus, our Ransom-sacrifice. (Acts 4: 12; 1 Corinthians 3:11.) Evolution is no foundation. The creeds of the past are no foundation. The creeds were merely poor superstructures built upon the true Foundation. Christ is the one Foundation. Upon this substantial Foundation were built the twelve Apostles, who are Scripturally represented as precious stones. In these twelve foundation stones of the Church are the names of the twelve Apostles of the Lamb—St. Paul taking the place of Judas.—Revelation 21: 14, 19, 20.

Upon this Foundation which God has furnished His Church, we are to build ourselves up the most holy faith. Using the teachings and promises of the Bible for the erection of our faith-structure, we should make sure that we add to these nothing which men say. We are not to inquire what Calvin or Wesley or Knox says, and build their opinions into our structure, except as we prove every word by the Holy Scriptures. Rather, we are to ask, "What says the Word of God?" and to build with that alone; for it is all-sufficient. (2 Timothy 3: 16, 17.) We may get good suggestions from these various teachers; but we must build with the Word of God alone, if we would stand the test of "the fire of the Day of the Lord."

"The Wood, Hay, and Stubble."

Having considered the true Foundation, we next inquire, "What is meant by the wood, hay, and stubble with which many build upon it?" These represent the creeds of the past and of the present, not founded upon the Bible, not established by the Word of God. These are "the traditions of men," to which our Lord referred at His First Advent, when He said to the Jewish teachers, "Thus have ye made the commandment of God of none effect by your tradition." (Matthew 15: 1-9.) There are many of that kind to-day, who always wish to know what the Church fathers or the commentaries and theological works have to say, or what their minister thinks about a subject. All this is the wood, hay, and stubble which will be consumed in the fire of our day.

We believe that we have come down to the testing time, the Day of reckoning. For the past forty years the fire has been under way. Those Christians who have built with the gold, silver, and precious stones of the Word of God will not be injured by this fire; but those Christians who have not built wisely or carefully will suffer loss, and will have a great deal of trouble as a result of that loss. Already this burning has consumed much wood, hay, and stubble theology.

For instance, in nearly every public audience which we address, perhaps three-fourths of them, as Christians, have lost their faith-structure. If asked what they believe, many of them will reply, "I do not know what I believe. I only know that I believe in Jesus; but I do not feel very sure as to what to believe about Him." Such have no faith-structure; but if they are still on the Foundation, Christ Jesus, they may thank God. Probably they are the better off for the loss of any part of their faith that was erroneous. Some of us have had what wood, hay, and stubble we possessed burned up; and we are all the better off for the loss. We did not know how poor we were until our false theology was consumed. Something has occurred that has burned out this false doctrine. It is the fire of this Day.

Man's Six Great Work Days.

The Lord has divided the world's history under its sin and death experiences into six great Days of a thousand years each. As the Apostle declared, "A Day with the Lord is as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one Day." (2 Peter 3:8.) God used the six days of our ordinary week to symbolize man's great Work-Week of six thousand years—from the fall of man until the time for the beginning of his recovery as a race—until the great Seventh Day should begin.

God has given fallen man these six thousand years during which to show what he can do toward his own uplift, to prove how the race can manage themselves. Mankind have tried to overcome the weaknesses and infirmities of the race—mental, moral, and physical. They have sought to rid themselves of sickness, pain and death, have sought to find some elixir of life which would heal their diseases and restore their youth and health. The ablest physicians have been unable to discover the secret of perfect life. Their only hope is to keep abreast with the new diseases that are coming up; but they cannot prevent sickness and death. Man's best efforts have been in vain. Is man, then, ready to look to the Lord for help?

Gradually the whole world is being convinced that unless God shall bless mankind and give back life to the race—unless He shall [illegible]

now. They are like bewildered sheep, longing to hear the voice of the true Shepherd. They refuse longer to believe the eternal torture doctrines of the past; and they find no soul-satisfaction in the Christless, loveless teachings held out to them to-day as spiritual food. Let us give them the Truth of God's Word, which will satisfy their hearts as nothing else can do.

When we tell them about the fall in Adam, the Redemption in Christ, the selection of the Church in this Age, and the blessing of the whole world in the coming Age, now so near at hand, when through Christ's Kingdom all the willing and obedient shall be helped up out of death, sin, and sorrow into life, joy and peace, there is something soul-satisfying in this Message. To a hungry, sorrowing heart the doctrine of Evolution is poor comfort indeed.

Who Shall Abide in These Burnings?

This great burning of our day will not stop with the church. The fire of this great Day will continue its work until all of the tares are consumed—not as individuals, but as imitation Christians. Heretofore there has been no separation of wheat and tares in the nominal church systems. In His parable of the Wheat and the Tares (Matthew 13:24-30, 36-43), our Lord directed that both were to be permitted to grow together until the Harvest, and that then the separation would take place. This time of separation is here. For nearly forty years the work has been under way, and is nearing completion, we believe. The whole field must be cleaned up for the new crop of the incoming Age.

Who shall be able to abide in these burnings? (Isaiah 33: 10-17.) Only those who have built with the gold, silver and precious stones of the truth of God's Word. Everything but the Truth and the structures built thereupon will be consumed. The social "earth," as well as the ecclesiastical "heavens," with all the various elements—political, industrial, financial, etc.—will be burned up. (2 Peter 3: 10-14.) The fire will cease only when there is nothing left to burn. It will be a lasting fire—one that will continue until everything of the present order of things shall have been consumed. It will burn even down into the Millennial Age; "for our God is a consuming fire," and is irreconcilably opposed to all wrong, injustice, impurity, and unrighteousness. When His work is completed, there will be a clean world.

For many centuries men have tried in vain to patch up this old order of things. Now it is the Lord's time to work. He will not patch up the old order. If the world were in that condition in which a little patching would do, it would be done. If Babylon could have been healed, the healing would have been accomplished. But the case is too desperate for anything less than just what God now purposes. (Matthew 9:16, 17; Jeremiah 51: 8, 9.) The world has failed to hear the Message which God has sent through Christ and the Church. Therefore the curse is coming—the long-predicted Time of Trouble. But after that curse of trouble will come "the desire of all nations"—the Messianic Kingdom of peace and righteousness.

We praise God that the time of deliverance is so near, not only for the Church, but also for the whole world—"the groaning creation."

Pre-Eminent!

The late Sir W. S. Gilbert, of Savoy opera fame, met Liebling, the pianist, and the following interchange of courtesies occurred between them:

Liebling was introduced to Gilbert, and Gilbert said:

"Sir, I have heard Liszt——"

Liebling bowed his head in acknowledgment at what he supposed was the coming compliment.

"I have heard Henry Hertz," continued Gilbert. Liebling bowed still lower. "I have heard Paderewski." Liebling made a genuflexion even unto the ground.

"Well, sir," continued Gilbert, in abrupt tones, "not one of them—not one of them, sir, perspired as profusely as you do!"

Beneficial Coal-Dust.

It is well known that colliers do not suffer from phthisis. Although coal-dust does not kill germs, it has come to be regarded by medical men as a preventive of phthisis. Town-dwellers and smokers in introducing smoke particles into their lungs educate them to deal with harmful foreign bodies.

Iron Bridges.

Introduction of the semielliptical arch in bridge building in England met with complaint on behalf of the Tweedside people, because the roadway over it being almost level, as one old man said, "You did not know when you were on it and when you were off it." The first iron arch constructed was made in England at Coalbrookdale by one Darby. The bridge consists of one semicircular arch, 100 foot span, each of the ribs being cast in two pieces only. It was opened for traffic in 1779, and a new era in the art of bridge building was thus entered upon. Up to 1800 cast iron was predominant in bridge construction, and although it is believed that wrought iron was introduced before 1800 it does not appear to have been extensively used before 1820.

WOMAN LEADS CONVICT TO TRAP

Westchester Burglar Again in Hands of Police After Escape from Sing Sing.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Jean Kirscher, said by the police to be the man long sought as the "Westchester burglar" was arrested at Third Ave. and Thirty-fifth street and locked up in Police Headquarters as an escaped convict. It was charged that he escaped from Sing Sing on January, 11 last, after serving three months on a seventeen year sentence.

Kirscher, to whom the police attach the aliases of "Weber" and "Muller" was arrested by Detectives Daly and O'Connor, through information furnished by the man's sweetheart, whose name the detectives refuse to divulge. It is a coincidence that Kirscher's arrest for the offence that caused him to receive his term in prison was brought about by information furnished by another woman with whom he was friendly.

The last big burglary credited to Kirscher was last fall, when he and another man are said to have sought to rob a residence in Pelham Manor. The other man was shot. Kirscher was captured soon afterward and received a stiff sentence.

Kirscher told the police last night that he refused to make any move toward escaping while Thomas Mott Osborne was warden, because he thought Mr. Osborne a "mighty fine fellow". After Mr. O'Sborne left, however, he says that he decided to escape.

"It took me six weeks to train the keepers," said Kirscher. "I would lay perfectly still in my cell reading a newspaper. Finally the keepers would pass by without looking my direction at all. One night I rigged up a dummy and fixed a newspaper so that it looked as if a man were reading it. Then I waited in the chapel and in the dead of night made my escape over the prison walls. I walked to Yonkers and then rode to New York on a street car."

A few weeks ago Kirscher wrote a letter to the Sheriff of Westchester county expressing regret that he had to go on a trip south "for his health".

"But I will be back in Westchester this fall" the letter said, "making my usual calls at the homes of the wealthy residents of your county."

As Kirscher was being led to a cell last night he turned to his captors and said with a laugh:

"I will be out again soon and will have dinner with you in Broadway by Christmas."

FELL IN A FAINT.

Mrs. Edwin Martin, Ayer's Cliff, Que., writes: "Before using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I was in a terrible condition. Dizzy spells would come over me and I would fall on the floor. I could not sweep without fainting. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has so built up my system that I can wash and do my housework. Your medicine cured me when doctors had failed."

BELGIANS WOULD NOT HAVE KAISER'S BUST EXHIBITED

Their Objections Punished By Another Robbery of 10,000 Marks.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—The German Administration of Belgium has imposed fines amounting to 10,000 marks on the Belgian committee in charge of the recent municipal art exhibition, according to a Rotterdam despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company. At the request of the German Administration, says the despatch, the bust of the Emperor was exhibited among other sculptures. It caused such a hostile demonstration on the part of the visitors to the exhibition that it had to be removed.

SERIOUS DAMAGE DONE BUILDINGS BY WHITE ANTS

These Pests Also Work Considerable Havoc to Trees, Crops and Vegetation

Termites or 'white ants' are frequently the cause of serious damage to buildings and occasionally to trees and crops. They are not really ants, but their appearance which, except in colour, superficially resembles that of ants. Like ants, too, they live in large colonies usually located in dead trees in the foundation timbers of buildings, in wood that is in contact with the ground, or in underground passages in the earth.

In the eastern and southern portions of the country, damage from these insects to foundation timbers, floorings in basements, and other woodwork, is common and sometimes serious. It is only occasionally, however, that living vegetation is attacked and then principally on recently cleared land where there is much decaying and humus in the soil. An infestation of corn in the prairie region of Kansas is reported to have been due to the presence of enormous numbers of the insects in the heavily sodded soil, but, says Bulletin No. 338 of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, a professional paper by Thomas E. Snyder which reports in detail on the economic importance of termites in the United States, "it should be borne in mind that such damage to living plants is usually occasional and then only local, and not in general a serious problem."

The damage that termites do to buildings is more important. Many of the buildings in New Orleans recently demolished by a hurricane were found to have been mined by insects, probably by termites, and thus seriously weakened. The termites frequently honeycomb beams, floorings, walls and other woodwork, even as high up as the second and third floors of buildings. They obtain an entrance through underground passages, extending their subterranean galleries for comparatively long distances. Frequently the damage is not discovered until the floors have settled or the joists collapsed. In such cases, extensive repairs and the removal of the damaged timber are often necessary. All wooden farm buildings are liable to infestation as, in fact, is any timber that comes in contact with the ground. Bridges, telephone and telegraph poles, hop and bean poles, mine-props, fences, woodwork in wells, wooden silos, beehives and lumber piled on the ground have all been seriously damaged in this way.

Once they have gained entrance to a building, the termites frequently prove very destructive to many kinds of material stored in it. In houses they destroy furniture, wall paper, books, fabrics, clothing, shoes leather goods and food that is stored in dark, damp basements.

To prevent their attacks, the foundations of buildings and the basement floor should be made entirely of brick, stone or concrete and no woodwork should be in contact with the ground. Certain woods are known to be resitant to termites. Black walnut and persimmon, for instance, among the cabinet woods, have this quality, and several of the cedars and the southern bald cypress are both resistant and durable in contact with the ground. In other woods resistance for varying periods, depending upon the method of treatment, may be obtained by the use of chemical preservatives, the most effective of which are coal-tar creosotes.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S WAIST.

By Anabel Worthington.

Now that frills on blouses are so popular, the designers are taxed to their utmost to turn out designs that will feature the frill and at the same time not have the frill hide the other good features looked for in a nice blouse. How well the designer can cope with the situation is proven by the illustration, No. 7,860.

For the esteem of the discriminating woman this waist was planned. Figured and plain materials are advantageously used, but all one material will be just as fashionable. A deep cape collar, cut in points below the bust, covers the entire front of the waist. A frill follows its edge, the full sleeves are gathered to a deep cuff on the style of the Chevalier, and a frill is used at the joining and again at the outer edge of the cuff. For a more practical style of waist of the cape collar may be omitted, the shoulder fronts gathered and the neck finished without any collar, as shown in the smaller view of the garment.

Silk, voile, cannaline, marquisette and the soft novelty cottons and crêpes are suitable materials for this design.

The pattern of waist No. 7,860 is cut in sizes 34 to 42 inches bust measure. To make in size 36 will require 1¼ yards of 36 inches figured goods and ¼ yard of 36 inch figured goods and ⅝ yard of plain material. Or, in all one material, 2¼ yards will be plenty.

You may obtain the pattern by sending to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

GERMANS INDIGNANT OVER FOOD EXPORTS

Bear Shipments Go out of the Empire including Some to Enemy Lands

Game Shooting to Increase the Meat Supply Is Hampered by Lack of Cartridges.

In spite of the reassuring statements frequently given out by high officials of the German Government regarding the food situation in the empire and the constant repetition of the declaration that Germany can "hold out" indefinitely in an economic sense, scattered news items found in the few German newspapers that reach New York, after having run the gauntlet of the British censors, indicate that the appointment of Adolf von Batocki as "Food Dictator" has by no means solved the problem of feeding the Kaiser's subjects and that the food question is just as burning as ever.

Indignation has been aroused among the populace by reports to the effect that, while exorbitant prices are being charged for some of the articles of food still on the market, agents representing foreign concerns, even including some from enemy countries, have succeeded in making purchases of these very articles in Germany for export by more or less devious ways. Coincident with a report in the National Zeitung of Berlin of May 27 telling of eggs being sold at retail for 8 cents apiece, the Kottbuser Anzeiger printed the following despatch from Lubbenau, Prussia:

"There is a suspicion in wide circles that the eggs recently purchased in the neighbouring towns and villages at the highest prices are being sent by agents to England via Denmark and that the same thing is being done with potatoes, and probably with asparagus. It has been proved that large quantities of potatoes were delivered to Danish agents for the purpose of being resold in England, and the guilty parties have ben punished."

From several towns along the Rhine come reports of the activities of Dutch dealers who are trying to buy up practically all the unpicked fruit available for export. In one district foreign buyers are said to have bought some 500 long tons of cherries on the trees. The Government is taking steps to prevent such deals in the future. On the other hand, following the announcement of their intention of exporting fruit from the occupied part of Russian Poland to Germany, the German authorities are making arrangements for the obtaining of other foodstuffs from Poland, and, according to schedule, eggs from that country were due to begin to arrive in Germany on July 15 and be put on sale at about 4 cents apiece to the ultimate consumer.

CURB ON EGG SPECULATORS.

In order to curb speculation in eggs, the authorities of Munich have decided that dealers must be provided with a special license which will be issued only to those who were in the egg business before the war began. The Mecklenburgische Zeitung says that the Ministry of the Interior has fixed the maximum price to be paid to the producer of eggs in the Duchy of Mecklenburg-Schwerin at 8 cents and the price to the consumer at 8½ cents. In cases where the producer sells direct to the consumer the former may receive the maximum retail rate. No eggs may be exported from the Duchy without special permission.

Although, according to the official report from the American Embassy in Berlin recently given out in Washington, there are no babies in Germany starving for lack of milk, the price of that necessity is constantly rising, the retail rate in Berlin having recently been advanced to a small fraction over 8 cents a quart. Before the war the price was about 6 cents a quart. In line with the campaign in favor of the use of goats' milk, the Chamber of Agriculture of the Stendal district in Saxony announces that it will advance 25 per cent of the money needed by individuals for the purchase of kids.

Confirmation of a rumor sent out from Copenhagen early in May that the Germans were preparing to eat crows on a wholesale scale is found in a long article in the Berliner Zeitung am Mittag on May 22 announcing the arrival of the first young crows in the Berlin market and expressing the hope that they will soon be followed by many thousands of others. It is pointed out that these additions to the German food supply are really rooks and that they have frequently been sold before as game birds. They are said to be very tasty when roasted, provided they are skinned instead of merely having their feathers plucked off. Emphasis is laid on the fact that the forests of Germany teem with crows and the writer declares that, while they cannot be sold at the old rate of 5 to 6 cents apiece, because of the increase in the price of powder and shot, a retail price of 12 to 15 cents would afford ample remuneration to both hunter and dealer. Consequently maximum prices for crows seem likely to be established.

ADVERTISES FOR HORSE MEAT

Because of the scarcity of other kinds of meat, the dealers in horseflesh are doing more business than usual, and, according to the Berliner Tageblatt, have put thier prices up to 48 to 67 cents a pound. The demand for old horses for slaughtering in Leipsic is shown by the following advertisement appearing in a newspaper of that city.

"I buy all kinds of horseflesh at extraordinarily high prices. When necessary, they may be butchered either by day or at night. The hoofs and tails will be returned by mail, postpaid, if desired. Comfortable carts for lame animals are always available. I will pay 30 marks ($7.14) on account for each horse I buy to slaughter."

In some instances the efforts of the food authorities to increase the meat supply by the shooting of game are seriously handicapped by a shortage of cartridges. The manager of a large preserve in Silesia states, according to a report reprinted by the London Daily Mail, that, despite vigorous efforts, he cannot get cartridges, of which he needs about 2,000 a month. The military authorities have commandeered everything necessary for the manufacture of cartridges and for a month not a single one has been obtainable for love or money. In consequence the district is full of roebucks and rabbits, which have not been molested, and which in the case of the latter, "are multiplying at a really alarming rate". If cartridges do not become available the gamekeeper asserts that the "plague" will soon be so dangerous that hundreds of acres of unreaped crops will be destroyed by the ravenous little animals. He asks for the immediate liberation of sufficient cartridges to meet the "rabbit menace" before it is too late.

Stung by the repeated charges that the leather dealers of the Fatherland have been making great profits be cause of the war, the Lederzeitung of Berlin hits back at the butchers, who seem to have ben worrying a great deal over the gains of the leather men with the following illustration of the enormous profits made by some of the meat dealers.

Then came the order forbidding the manufacture of sausages destined for preservation, and the firm saw itself induced to sell the meat to a dealer named Fehlan for 92,500 marks, (22,015) in cash. Fehlau then sold the 500 zentner to the M. Liemann Company of Berlin for 115,000 marks, and that concern sold the meat in Cologne for 160,000 marks. This entire deal took place between May 2 and May 19. In that time the price of this meat went up 67,500 marks, or 135 marks per zentner, or some 4,000 marks per day for the lot of 500 zentner.

In giving the details regarding the official pronouncement issued by the Consistory of the Evangelical Churches of the Province of Bradenburg against members of the church who take advantage of the present crisis to enrich themselves, the National Zeitung of Berlin quotes as follows from the statement, which was signed by President Steinhaugen:

"While the task of keeping the enemy far from our frontiers lies upon the sons of our people who are battling for us on the field, every one of us at home is called upon to do his part in his own house, and by his own example in co-operating to the end that the plan to throttle us economically may prove a failure. Unfortunately, signs are multiplying that this duty is not clearly understood everywhere and by everybody. Thoughtlessness, selfishness, and lust for gold hamper the execution of the regulations and measures already worked out or ordered to insure the obtaining and the equitable distributing of the foodstuffs that, although not overabundant, are available in sufficient quantities.

"Of course, we do not deny the fact that the need of the present time has made all living and economic conditions materially harder, and that the scarcity of important raw materials, the dearth of labour, and the stoppage of foreign imports have increased the cost of the creation, fabrication and delivery of all goods to an extraordinary degree, and, consequently, caused notable rises in the prices of both necessities and luxuries. But a grievous crime is committed against his own people by one who takes advantage of their distress to enrich himself or who holds back articles intended for the nourishment of the people in the hope of obtaining usurious profits or only offers them for sale at prices out of all proportion.

Meantime the press of the cities continues to be filled with complaints charging that the country landlords and farmers have laid in great stocks of salted meat and sugar, and only with great difficulty can be induced to put this supply on the market for the benefit of the dwellers in the towns and cities. The Berlin Tageblatt of June 2 prints a report from Schleswig-Holstein which says that a house-to-house search by the police in a certain village revealed some 4,000 pounds of meat which had not been declared by the owners when an inventory had been taken a few days before.

Farmers' Hidden Stocks.

The Deutsche Tageszeitung, the leading organ of the Agrarians, practically admits the truth of these charges by printing a story from Paderborn telling how, as the result of the cooperation of the Agricultural Association of that district and the country clergy, the 32,000 inhabitants of the City of Paderborn hal been voluntarily supplied with 18,618 pounds of pork and 17,167 pounds of ham by the residents of the country round about. The Berlin press thinks that if Food Dictator Batocki succeeds in making the Farmers put their hidden stocks on the market, he will be taking a long step toward the solution of the food problem.

Bitter complaint against the institution of the new meat cards in Berlin were voted at a meeting of the Hotel Men's Association of the German capital reported in the Tageblatt of June 3. The hotel men were sure the regulation would injure their business, as they declared most of their guests came to the hotels to eat rather than to drink, and the new cards formed a decided handicap in this respect. It was reported that the Hotel Men's Meat Commission had bought meat to the value of about 1,000,000 marks, and it was proposed to make the purchasing agency a permanent institution so as to continue to supply the hotel men with meat, even after the war.

In noting that the people are being advised to replace meat with vegetables and fruit, the Vossische Zeitung points out that the prices of most such things have risen considerably. In Cologne, for instance, carrots, which cost $2.20 for 100 pounds in May, 1913, advanced to $2.50 in May, 1915, and to $4.25 in the same month this year, while the price of spinach was $2.20, $3.60 and $4.70 for the same quantity in the corresponding months.

Incidentally, the President of the German League of Vegetarians has asked the Imperial Chancellor to authorise local authorities to grant vegetarians, "who have never done anything to diminish the meat supply," substitute privileges in the way of extra rations of flour, vegetables, peas, beans, rice, barley, tapioca, butter and sugar.

London newspapers draw attention to reports in the Berlin press laying stress on the alleged hardships suffered by the inmates of the children's shelters, which in normal times care for about 13,500 little ones, but which now, owing to the wider employment of women, look after about 40,000. It is said sugar is so scarce that only one and a half pounds a week is allowed for a ward containing ninety children. As these shelters are supported partly by municipal grants and partly by private charity, they are in a peculiar position and are especially hard hit by the advance in food prices.

LEIPSIC HARD PRESSED

Leipsic seems to be particularly pinched, according to a story in the Berliner Vorwarts, which says that the stock of potatoes in Leipsic is practically exhausted and that the distribution of extra meat rations to workmen doing hard physical labor is very scanty. The City Council recommended German macaroni, dried mangold and other things instead of potatoes but there was immediately so heavy a run on those articles that the entire stock disappeared in an hour or so, and in many cases families could procure nothing. The Council issued the following notice:

During the coming weeks and until the new harvest, foodstuffs of the old harvest, and especially potatoes will be very scarce. Our first duty now is to care for the provisioning of our troops in the field. We at home must step back, and remember that it is our duty to bear this burden of privation. Let us also remember that whatever these privations may be they they are far less than the privations borne by our brave ones in the field. We have confidence that this sacrifice will be borne by our people. Thank God there is a prospect that the harvest will be abundant enough to make the future brighter."

Two of the parliamentary representatives of Leipsic have sent the following telegram to the new Food Department in Berlin.

"The import of food from Prussian districts bordering on Saxony is still prohibited. Among the populace discontent is increasing. One does not understand why superfluous food in neighboring areas should be held up in this manner. Tear away speedily these unjustifiable restrictions or the injury to Germanism will grow greater still. You can, and you must change the situation."

In the midst of all these complaints comes Herr Koerte, head Mayor of Konigaberg, and informs the City Council that among all the cities of the empire, Konigsberg stands in the best relative position regarding the matter of a supply of meat. Several weeks after this statement by Herr Koerte a cable report vit The Hague told of breeding cattle bringing six times their normal price at the Konigsberg auction.

36 Persons Die As Cloudburst Sweeps Valley

Many Missing in Disaster to District Near Tazewell, Tenn

Great Property Damage Caused — Train Service Is at Standstill.

MIDDLESBORO, Ky., Aug. 5. — Thirty-six persons are known to have been drowned and an enormous property loss was caused by a cloudburst on Blair's Creek, near Tazewell, Tenn. The territory deluged extended about a mile in width and six miles in length from the headwaters of Bif Barren Creek due west to the Clinch River. Intermediary streams are swollen, thus adding to the devastation wrought by the flood.

More than one hundred persons lived along the creek, and only a few have been accounted for. Nine bodies have been recovered.

City officials and citizens of Tazewell have organized rescue parties and are in the stricken district searching for the dead. The region is rough and communication, which normally is not of the best, has been practically cut off.

The known dead are:

Robert Johnson and his wife, Mrs. D. C. Edmonds, her four children and two grandchildren; the Misses Lillie and Minnie Wiley, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Wiley, of Monroe, Mich.; Bush I. Ferguson, his wife and seven children; W. P. Zachery, his wife and five children, and Thomas McBie, his wife and seven children.

Two bridges on the Southern Railroad, between Middlesboro and Knoxville, are washed away and train service is at a standstill.

Reports from Barboursville say that mountain slides, caused by heavy rains, have covered the Louisville and Nashville Railroad tracks, stopping all traffic. Two serious slides occurred within a mile, destroying the entire roadbed. The mining town of Ely Hollow, in Knott county, Ky., received the full brunt of the storm. Several houses were washed away and several persons reported injured.

TIRED OUT KIDNEYS

Kidney troubles are so frightfully common because the kidneys are so easily upset by overwork or excesses in eating and drinking. Cure is effected not by whipping them on to renewed effort but by awakening the action of the liver and bowels, by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This rests the kidneys and makes them well. Backache and urinary disorders then disappear.

Infantile Paralysis In New York Spreads

Experiments Will Be Made on Monkeys by Experts Seeking a Cure.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4. — The epidemic of infantile paralysis reached the high mark yesterday in the number of new cases. The health department figures showed that 217 developed during the twenty-four hours ended at 10 a.m., and that the death list for the same period was forty-three, two more than Wednesday. Seventy-six were stricken in Manhattan alone, where the epidemic now appears to be centred.

A consignment of eighty South and Central American monkeys arrived here yesterday on the United Fruit steamer Almirante. The animals, according to their custodian, M. Schmidt, are to be used in experiments by physicians of the Rockefeller Foundation engaged in seeking a cure for infantile paralysis.

Fifty thousand dollars was contributed for this special work recently by the Foundation.

J. A. NORRIS SAYS HE IS GOVERNMENT CANDIDATE.

He Represents Views of Liquor Merchants, Declares Hotelman.

TORONTO, August 4.—James A. Norris, the insurgent Conservative candidate in South-West Toronto, considers himself the Government candidate. He amptly says: "If I am not, who is?" And as he points out, any member of the Legislature has the right to propose an amendment to the Liquor Act, as he proposes to do if elected.

Several hotelmen were asked if Mr. Norris' views were acceptable to the liquor interests, but only one had anything to say on the subject. J. E. Laxton, Ocean House, said he thought Norris' views were right. Asked if he represented the retail liquor merchants of the city, he replied: "I represent their views, not the merchants themselves."

VIOLENT GERMAN ATTACKS REPULSED BY THE FRENCH

ALLIES GAIN GROUND ON THE WESTERN FRONT

CREST OF IMPORTANT RIDGE IS IN THE HANDS OF THE BRITISH TROOPS

General Haig's Forces Now Look Down On a Slope Rolling Away to the City of Bapaume Which is Less Than Seven Miles Away---British Artillery is Preparing For Another Advance on Both Sides of the Bapaume Highway---French Fire Checked Two Violent German Attacks---Germans Suffered Heavy Losses.

TURKISH FORCES ROUTED

LONDON, August 7.—The crest of the important ridge west of Martinpuich is now firmly in the hands of the British. Despatches from the war correspondent's headquarters at the British front revealed this fact to-day. Entrenched on the newly won heights, the Australian troops now look down on a slope rolling away to the City of Bapaume, the immediate objective of the great British offensive, and now less than seven miles away. British artillery already is preparing the way for another advance on both sides of the Bapaume highway. The Village of Courcelette, where the Germans erected strong defensive works, has been completely levelled by terrific fire from the British guns.

ENEMY ATTACK WAS CHECKED BY THE FRENCH

Examiner Special:

PARIS, August 7.—French fire checked two violent German attacks on the northeast front of Verdun last night, the War Office announced to-day. The Germans were repulsed on the sectors of Thiaumont, Vaux and Chapaitre before they were able to debouch from their positions.

The Germans first launched an attack against the Thiaumont works following artillery preparation. French screen fire caught the Teutons who were thrown back upon their own works.

In the Vaux-Chapitre wood a German blow which had been expected because of Sunday's heavy bombardment, fell at 7:30 last night. The attack was completely stopped by French machine gun screen fire. On the Somme front intense artillery action occurred last night. Many air combats occurred in this region yesterday. Three German planes were brought down. Three others badly damaged, fell behind the German lines. Two German captive balloons were destroyed.

German artillery bombarded the Allies line from the Ancre to the Somme.

British Troops Execute A Successful Raid

Examiner Special:

LONDON, August 7.—The Germans suffered severe losses, the British retaining newly won ground. British troops executed a successful raid against enemy trenches east of Nemillstraast last night. The Germans attempted to raid a British trench southeast of Grenie Wood, but were driven back with losses.

LONDON, August 7.—Repulse of several small German attacks against British positions east of Poziores was announced by General Haig to-day.

The situation on the Somme front was unchanged as the result of last night's encounters, General Haig reported this afternoon.

Turkish Troops Routed By British Troops

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, August 7.—Turkish force routed by the British east of the Suez Canal have been driven back a distance of eighteen miles, it is officially announced to-day. The fleeing Turks have now been entirely cleared from the Katia Umaisha Basin.

Thus far forty-five officers and three thousand one hundred men have been captured. The official despatches characterized the prisoners as "a very fine body of men," indicating that the Turkish attack was by no means a raiding venture of irregulars.

British artillery and rifle fire was very effective, the Turks suffering heavily in killed and wounded in the fighting near Katia. Territorials carried a strong Turkish rearguard position Saturday.

The Allies Are Winning In German East Africa

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, August 7.—Closing in upon the Kaiser's last colony in German East Africa separate British forces have won victories both on the south and east, it was officially announced to-day. British naval forces cooperating with General Smuts occupied the small German port of Sand Ani last Tuesday after slight opposition. Other naval operations are progressing along the coast line where the German Central Railway has been reached. In the region of Hpwapwa, one hundred and fifty miles west of the coast, a British detachment operating in the direction of Singeda engaged an enemy force which surrendered after a vigorous resistance in a blockhouse. General Northey operating in the southern part of the German colony defeated the Germans in an engagement July 24th, near Malangali, the Germans losing one hundred and fifty killed and wounded, besides prisoners. Northey's column has advanced to Madibira, thirty miles north of the road leading to the Iringa station.

RUMOUR BURNED UP MOST OF THIS COUNTY YESTERDAY

But a Berry Patch Near Havelock Was the Only Semblance of Brush Fire That Could Be Located

BLAZE AT HOLLAND'S LANDING

Peterborough was ringed around with bush fires yesterday that reached all the way from Rice Lake to Apsley, according to the rumour producers who, being unengaged, joined the arson brigade and proceeded to burn up the greater part of Peterborough county. The wind changed during the night, the smoke shifted and disappeared, and with it the stories of the alleged fires which gradually vanished like the ignes fatui that become invisible under the light of day.

Some of the more imaginative had dwellers along the Dummer shore driven by the flames out into Stony Lake on scows and small craft. It was a real holacaust up in that section, but the telephone this morning travelled all over the back country and failed to find even an incipient blaze. The local offices of lumber companies stated that their bush rangers had reported that all was well. William Armstrong of Gilchrist stated that berry pickers through the north country hadn't seen a single fire. In fact the Examiner went back as far as the Blue Mountains and couldn't locate a single fire.

Citizens who returned early this morning from the east end of Stoney Lake expressed the opinion that the fire was at the head of the lake, which was overhung by a dense pall of lowlying smoke as impenetrable and as gray as an old stone wall, and cutting off the vision a short distance ahead.

Then there were rumours that Deer Bay had been visited, but once there was plenty of smoke, but no fire. A. E. Bottum of Bobcaygeon, stated that in that vicinity Sunday's sun was shut out by the smoke cloud, but that 'Cayeon rumour placed the fire at the upper end of Stoney Lake. Chasing the source of that smoke cloud was as fruitless as seeking the end of the rainbow. At that there may be a fire some where near at hand, but it hasn't announced its presence.

The morning news from Toronto reported a considerable conflagration in a 1,000 acre stretch of marsh at Holland's Landing, Lake Simcoe. Its smudge drifted to Toronto and it may have come on to Peterborough. This explanation, however, falls down when it is recalled that the wind was from the north-east.

Havelock provided the following story:

Huckleberry Plains, about 1,100 acres, were ablaze yesterday and the fire threatened the surrounding district. The plains are covered with dry underbrush, which made good fuel for the flames.

But as far as the reports from nearer home were concerned the fires were pipe dreams of which it might be said, "Of course you're only dreaming, blow the smoke away," except that the visiting smoke cloud was more material than the stuff of dreams.

Serbs Win Again From the Bulgars

PARIS, Aug. 7.—The Serbians have won another success in operations along the Macedonian front, according to a Havas despatch from Salonica to-day, taking the village of Remli, near prosba, which had been occupied by the Bulgarians.

German reports that the Bulgarians had delivered successful attacks against the Serbians south of Monastir are unfounded, the despatch declares.

REGULAR MEETING OF THE CITY COUNCIL

Question of Public Swimming Place may be Brought up To-night.

The regular meeting of the City Council will be held this evening. A number of matters of general importance will be dealt with. Some of the Aldermen may be intrepid enough to have something to say regarding the necessity for a public swimming place. Peterborough with a natural waterfront extending from one end of the city to the other cannot boast of a place where one can make preliminary preparations for a swim. When the matter is broached in municipal circles one of the Aldermen for some reason only known to himself accuses a civic employee of advocating a supervised swimming place for his own personal advantage; the inference being that the said civic employee would seek the position of caretaker and instructor. A supervised swimming place would mean less work for the pulmotor.

Street Car Guilty of Les Majeste

Ran Into His Majesty's Mail Wagon Although Not the Motorman's Fault

A George street car south-bound, hit the mail delivery waggon this morning near the corner of Dalhousie street. The horse and harness were tangled up a bit, but with the assistance of other drivers the trappings were repaired in time to meet the noon train.

THE FATHERLAND WILL KNOW MORE NEED AND MISERY

No Hope For Teuton Until England Deprived of Her Strength—Harden Tells Germans That Britain Is Still To Be Reckoned With

FORSEES NAKED MISERY

ROTTERDAM, Aug. 7.—Maximilian Harden, writing in Die Zukunft, says:

"This war is a question of the power of impotence, perhaps of deciding its existance or non-existence.

"What pressure could force a quick conclusion of peace?

"If Russia lost all her Polish territories she would go back and invite the conqueror to follow her, perhaps even to Vladivostok. It is said that France could be forced to lodge and feed our armies and to suffer German authority, but there are her colonies. You can only take them when you have deprived Britain of her strength.

"How can you deprive Britain of her strength? Favor, or heaven, or accident might bring about a revolution in India, a Turkish invasion at Suez, damage by fire, mass strikes in Britain, or a sea battle which would not leave so much to Britain that she would be able with the ships of France and Japan to patch up something like a fleet of a great power.

"But Britain is not even suffering yet. London's face has shown no fear. Her ships sail from America; Britain does not need to give up anything, and can barricade all roads by which we could fetch raw materials for our industries.

"We are not yet at the goal of hindrances of all kinds that may face our armies. All we can do it to make sure that our armies lack nothing they desire. We shall see more naked misery and hard need in the third year than in many ordinary years.

"Resign yourselves to the different times. Do not imagine that you are already at the beginning or nearly at the beginning of the end and it will fully commence dividing up the earth. A decision can only be secured by challenging the cold-blooded British.

FRANCE'S "UNBENDING ENERGY.

"Russia's armies stand again in Galicia and in Bukowina, close to the Carpathians. Even if they are beaten it's to a second retreat who will give the guarantee that, the rivers once more freed of ice, there will not flow a third wave still stronger than the two which have been held back with so much difficulty and again flood over the country?

"Will the admirable upward swing of the French power of resistance be paralysed shortly? Do not indulge in vain prophecies. That torn country still carries the colours of unbending energy and determination.

"Britain has great embattled armies in the field. Both western powers have said that their present offensive is not their highest effort, and according to our experience a still more furious offensive will follow.

"No, the earth is not to be divided yet!"

Levied Tax On Denmark

Forced Scandinavian Country to Pay For Breach of Neutrality

THE FINE WAS $22,400,000

Danes Allowed British Submarine Into the Baltic Sea.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 7.—Denmark has been forced to pay a secret indemnity to Germany for failure to maintain strict neutrality.

The indemnity enacted is understood to be as much as 80,000,000 kroner (about $22,400,000).

The offence occurred last winter when the Baltic Sea was invaded by British submarines. To enter the Baltic from the North Sea it is necessary to pass through Danish waters, strongly guarded by forts. Germany secured evidence that the English submarines could not have entered the Baltic without the permission or connivance of the Danish Government. Of all the Scandinavian countries the Danes are the strongest sympathizers with the allies and have the strongest antipathy to Germany.

German merchant ships plying between Swedish and East German ports with food, rubber and copper, constintuted the only German merchant traffic which the war had not suspended. But the havoc made by the British submarines in the Baltic so terrorized the German and Swedish shipmasters that there was a time when the traffic was at a standstill.

No Protest Made.

When the U-boat raids ceased Germany waited to see whether Denmark would protest to England against the violation of the neutrality of the Sund. There was no protest. A few weeks later an E-boat flying the British flag came through the Kattegat and appeared before the forts at the entrance to the Sund. The E-boat commander asked permission to pass through. Permission was given. The E-boat passed through and headed straight for Kiel. This E-boat was a German U-boat in disguise. Its crew consisted of sailors who spoke good English, like the crew of the Deutschland. Crew and officers wore English uniforms.

At Kiel they dropped their disguise. Their passage had furnished the German Government the evidence of Denmark's willingness to allow what was supposed to be an English E-boat to violate neutrality. Germany thereupon made her demands.

The damage which the British submarines in the Baltic had done to German shipping was considerable. It was minimized by the Germans in their newspaper accounts at the time. It was not minimized in the bill which Germany presented to Denmark.

Fact Leaked Out.

According to the best informed bankers, it was agreed, when Denmark finally consented to pay 80 million kroner damages in satisfaction of Germany's claims, that the transaction should not be published. It leaked out in a curious way. About two months ago the rate of exchange between Copenhagen and Berlin began to fall sharply. Bankers were puzzled, as there was nothing in the balance of trade to justify it.

It was suggested that Denmark was to be invaded by one of the warring powers, and that wealthy Danes were sending money out of the country. The fact was that Denmark was making its payments to Germany in instalments.

Denmark then pressed the negotiations with the United States for the sale of the Danish West Indies for $28,000,000. Although Denmark was eager to sell the Island of St. Thomas, St. Croix and St. John a dozen or

Major-General Lawford Commanding 41st Division Expresses Appreciation For Young Officers' Rescue of Two Men Under Fire

HIS SERGEANT ASSISTED

To Second Lieutenant J. R. Stratton, 237th Field Company, Royal Engineers:

The G. O. C., 41st Division, wishes to place on record his appreciation of your gallantry in returning under shell fire, to find two missing men who had been left in a dug-out.

LAWFORD,
Major-General, 41st Division.

The above is a copy of a communication received on July 19th by Lieut. J. Reginald Stratton, son of Ald. A. H. Stratton, from Major-General Lawford, commanding the 41st Division in recognition of a rescue which Lieutenant Stratton and his sergeant effected under shell fire, and which he mentioned as follows in a letter to his father:

When they shelled the billet there was another officer, myself and about thirty-five men in it. We got all the men out and into a trench without any casualties. When I tried to see if everybody was present I found that there were two men missing. It was reported that they were in a dug-out, and as one was laid out with a bad leg, I started back to try and get them up. My sergeant shouted 'You're not going alone, sir," and ran after me.

We ran back and just got into the square when a 5.9 inch shell blew away a sandbag breastwork we were behind. It blew my sergeant off his feet and I thought it was all over for both of us. But he was all right, and we rushed into the dugout and found that the two men had just managed to get out. About four more shells dropped in the meantime. We ran back to the trench, making a record or the two hundred yards. That is how it happened, and I really don't think it was worth all this fuss, but I hope something comes out of it for the sake of my sergeant, because I had to go back and he didn't.

I have a week's rest the day after to-morrow and am not sorry because I have had a very trying three weeks.

Yesterday they had a dinner party to congratulate me and strangely enough Wilfred turned up so we had a rather merry time.

My sergeant received a similar appreciation fro mthe G.O.C. You can readily understand how valuable this is to fe, as very few have the opportunity to get one. I believe I may get the Military Cross or else mention in desatches. Love to all.

TEMPERATURE WAS NINETY-FIVE DEGREES

Peterborough is Still Suffering from the Extreme Heat with No Immediate Relief in Prospect.

The maximum temperature was ninety-five degrees in the shade. This is close to the high water mark for the season. It is also announced at the Observatory that cool weather prevails from Alberta to Lake Superior and from Quebec to Newfoundland. The statement should be eminently satisfactory to the west and the east, but it brings no joy to Peterborough, nor no promise of similar conditions within the immediate future.

The long-looked for atmospheric upheaval which is the only means of relief is not yet in the offing.

A heavy pall of smoke that hung over the city yesterday filtered to a certain degree the rays of the sun and toned down slightly the heat in unshaded places. Many people thought the bush fires must be worse than a week ago, but no serious reports were received.

HOME HEROES OF THE WAR.

There are heroes and heroes; heroes in the quiet, every-day walks of life; for war does not produce all the heroism. We have examples of it in connection with the great northern fire disaster, and from day to day, the year round, where patient mothers do work and make sacrifices meet for heroic classification. But, in this material age, when the quest of the mighty dollar obsesses humanity and tends to smother heroism and self-sacrifice, making the personal element, the element of gain, the dominant factor in the equation, we don't expect heroism to take its root and rise from the dust and debris of the machine shop, or amidst the clangor of industrial enginery.

But we have, in Canada, a magnificent example—a veritable romance of enterprise and patriotism, in which are found heroic surrender of gain and super patriotic devotion to the cause of Empire. On this page is repeated the story of the Canadian Cartridge Company, in which two Canadians, one of them a Peterborough boy, Mr. Frank Wood, born in Ashburnham, and son of the late John Wood, are the sole elements, have the sole interest, and are distinguished figures. These names stand out in th pages of current Canadian history in the white light of heroism and their names will go down in our recorded history as almost unique examples of the home sacrifice made by Canadians in the cause of freedom and to the lasting credit of their country. They fought a strong battle for the privilege of "doing their bit." They had difficulty in getting a contract for the making of shell cases. The home authorities seemed to have had littl confidence in the enterprise and industrial capability of Canadians. After getting the contract for a million shell cases they financed the installation of machinery against a coy money market. With splendid optimism they preserved in their enterprise, in the face of the discouragements and crooks of disaster of experienced business men. But they persevered, and they succeeded. They filled their contract to the perfect satisfaction of the War Department, and crowned their success in this regard with the truly magnificent action of donating $750,000 of profits, more than three-quarters of a million of dollars, to the war office; money they had righteously and well earned; but they regarded it as trust money; their contribution to the prosecution of the war. This action, and its antecedent proof of Canadian capability, is not only a great act of patriotism in itself, but it has the further merit of ennobling the name of Canada, or rather, redeeming the name of Canada, which has suffered so much in the many scandals associated with war contracts; in the lust of gain at the expense of the interests of the country and the empire.

The action of these men will serve also another purpose—it will gild with the glow of patriotism and sacrifice the evidence it affords of Canadian energy, of enterprise and industrial capability.

The action of these men is in strong contrast to the sordid sharkery that has been associated with so many war supplies contracts. It is set infinitely above the disregard of patriotism, not to say treason, that has permitted the conscienceless, instead of returning legitimate profits to the mother government, to make unjust profits—where there has not been actual—appropriation—of public funds consecrated to the comfort and efficiency and, perhaps, life-safety of our soldiers. Peterborough can well be proud of her share of glory reflected from the action of the Hamilton Cartridge Company; much grander than Lindsay, which hangs its head over the alleged irregularities in connection with the financing of the 109th Battalion, which are public property in the sister town, and in the counties which the Minister of Militia claims as his personal headquarters and political appanage. We shall have Canadians decorated—receiving the royal accolade, for services to the Empire in the battle strife as well as in the arena of peaceful strengthening of the fighting forces. We shall have perhaps some men knighted, whose hands may have the unknightly odor of unrighteous gain, at the expense of the country and empire. If decorations or honours are given, it is with pride that a Canadians can submit the names of Frank Walton Baillie, and Frank Parker Wood.

A Romance of Enterprise and Patriotism Rather Be Patriots Than Be Millionaires

A Peterborough Boy, Member of the Canadian Cartridge Company Shares the Glory of Financial Sacrifice for the Benefit of the Empire---"Did Their Bit," Making Shells and Donating Profits

Mr. Frank Wilton Baillie drew doggedly on his store of energy, patience aur ready cash to convince the British War Office that if they entrusted him with an order for 18-pounder brass cartridge cases, he would make good; having finally landed a small contract. Mr. Baillie has just now presented the War Office with $758,000 in real money, being the profits which Mr. Baillie and his partner in Canadian Cartridge Company might have put in their pockets, but didn't. They preferred to emerge from the business of making munitions of war, with clean hands, and with the consciousness that if in later years, any one of their children asked the fatal question, "What did you do in the war?" one or both counter with the sentence:

"Gave Britain three-quarters of a million dollars."

It is all very well for a man of established millions to hand over or pass out a large cheque for this or that worthy object; he doesn't feel it. He has so much more in reserve. This contribution of Mr. F. W. Baillie to the Empire's war fund is money that he worked like a Trojan to earn, and earnings it is. It is the total profit—every cent above the actual cost—on the manufacture of 1,000 brass cartridge cases. The cases were turned out by the Canadian Cartridge Company, and to-day the Canadian Cartridge Company does not possess a cash or any other surplus equal to the amount of $758,000. More than that, the magnificent plants at Hamilton erected by the company, built with private capital, will be seventy per cent junk when the war ends. The plant contains mammoth presses, capable of striking a blow equal to the force of a thousand tons. There are six such presses in the factories, and they cost $15,000 apiece. With the termination of war, the mechanical monsters will be idle. They are too big, too powerful for ordinary commercial work. Costing $90,000 set up, they will be interesting bits of scrap when the war is over. The same may be said of most of the remaining machinery in these plants. It was especially designed to turn out brass cartridge cases, and for nothing else. It is good for nothing else. So that the fortune turned back by Mr. Baillie and his partner in Canadian Cartridge Company, Mr. Frank P. Wood, is not surplus, nor easy money, nor unearned increment or anything of the sort. If Mr. Baillie and Mr. Wood had decided to protect the future of the factories built with their own private funds, they could not have done better than place this money away as reserve for depreciation, or something of the sort had they been managers of a stock company owned by the public, their shareholders would have expected them to do just that. Canadian Cartridge Company is not a public stock company; it is a plant employing 600 people owned outright by Mr. Baillie and Mr. Wood., and both gentlemen have thrown away one chance of becoming millionaires, electing to be patriotis instead.

When the war upon us, Mr. Baillie, financially interested in the Chadwick Brass Company of Hamilton, set about to see what he could manufacture in the way of munitions. He looked into this subject and that subject, and he sent a man to Quebec to get pointers. The man in question had his eyes open when the wrappings were taken off a glittering brass cartridge case that had just come from Woolwich arsenal as a sample. He immediately wired the plan in Hamilton that here was the field they were looking for.

Mr. Baillie took command of the situation then. He examined this particular case, the product of special tools, skilled workmen and machining which was true to the four-thousandth part of an inch, and he decided to attempt its manufacture. He foresaw many difficulties in the way but the chief and initial obstacle he had to overcome was the securing of an order. He cabled London on the subject, and received a most discouraging reply. He cabled again. London ignored him for the nonce, and asked the Shell Committee, "who is Baillie?" Having received the information, they despatched a message to the effect that any manufacturer engaging in this business must turn out his own brass for the shells. In other words, they had grave doubts of the ability of Mr. Baillie or any one else in Canada to obtain fine brass in volume ,and work it up according to specification. This last dampener from London was met by another Baillie cable, something to this effect: "I can have the total output of American Brass Company, two million pounds per day."

Andso, finally, an order was cabled to the Shell Committee from London, for 100,000 brass cartridge cases, for eighteen-pound guns. With the order came the promise that the contractors would be furnished immediately with templates which would enable them to have the dies made for stamping the original brass discs into case form. So the Canadian Cartridge Company was incorporated, a few months after the war began. It was decided to erect an entirely new plant, designed to carry the cases from one process into another in the quickest time, and $75,000 was the estimated cost. The first plant had about $107,000 spent on it before completion. Even the first building was no temporary makeshift; steel and concrete was the construction used. The factory was well under way, and the time came for installing parts of the machinery, at which point it became evident that London was going to fall down on furnishing the promised templates. No templates, no dies. No dies, no cases, and Canadian Cartridge Company had signed a contract to supply 100,000 cases, at the rate of 2,500 cases per week. At this point, with a lot of private capital sunk in Canadian Cartridge Company, many a man would have taken ship to London, and demanded the templates, or patterns for the dies. Frank Baillie instead put a blue-print in his pocket and took a fast train to New York. He laid his troubles before the Bliss Engineering Company. Most probably a concern like this can make anything from a safety pin to a Mogul engine. At any rate, they put their experts to work, and on the strength of the blue-print containing working specifications of the cartridge case, they finally turned out the dies needed to stamp the cases. The next job of this company was to make the gauges to test the shells when ready. These gauges are exceedingly delicate instruments, as they must show variations of a fineness which cannot be perceived by the naked eye, nor with a powerful lens. Having secured his patterns and his dies, Mr. Baillie gave this firm an order for a full set of stamping presses. Then he had the Bliss people set up presses, insert tools and dies, and stamp out brass cartridge cases. At the same time Mr. Baillie was learning, in the plant itself, how the brass should be drawn, how the case should be annealed after every stamping process, and in short, how the work be done. He filled a loose-leafe notebook with data on the subject. When the Bliss plant turned out brass cartridge cases, these cases were then shipped to Bridgeport, Conn., to eb machined into form to pass the gauge tests. After passing the machines they were forwarded to Quebec to be submitted to the firing test. The cases were found to be all right.

So the machinery armament was shipped from the Bliss works to the plant at Hamilton and Canadian Cartridge Company engaged hands and commenced turning out cases. Those must have been rather anxious and disquieting days for the two partners. The first presses arrived in Hamilton on February 8, 1915, at which date the duration of the war was most uncertain, and the subject of Canada figuring in volume as munitions maker, was in confusion. The first office of Canadian Cartridge Company was an old house opposite the bank, rented by Mr. Baillie, at fifteen dollars per month. The lower portion was used as offices and the upper rooms were used as sleeping quarters by Mr. Baillie. In May of the same year, 1915, the plant had turned out 23,000 cases, and the people overseas were made aware that Canada could manufacture these brass shells satisfactorily. In a few more months, it became apparent that the capacity of the first plant was not nearly great enough for orders that might be filled. Things were in this position when Mr. D. A. Thomas (Lord Dhondda) was sent to Canada as an emissary of David Lloyd George, then British Minister of Munitions. D. A. Thomas visited the plant at Hamilton, saw the case being made, and agreed with Mr. Baille that additional plant should be erected. It was then that Mr. Baillie having demonstrated that he could turn out perfect cases, made his patriotic offer to D. A. Thomas.

"If you will give me an order for 1,000,000 cases, at the present ruling price, I will hand that number of cases over to you at actual cost of manufacture," was Mr. Baillie's proposition to D. A. Thomas. It would be interesting to have the exact recording what Mr. Baillie said, and what D. A. Thomas relied, but it is not available. In the end, the proposal was accepted. The contract was to be given through the Shell Committee, which body was to supply the brass used. The price at which the cases were to be supplied was to include full operating and maintenance charges, with no salaries or profits to proprietors, and the cost was not to include any allowance for wear and tear depreciation of plant or machinery, and it might be said it did not include any allowance for "wear and tear" on Mr. Baillie and Mr. Wood.

A second plant was put up, and this million-case order was commenced, quite apart from any other contract, received by the Canadian Cartridge Company. As deliveries were made on this special contract, the Shell Committee made payment to Canadian Cartridge Company, and the money was lodged in the bank. And when the final unit of this big order had been turned out in the Hamilton plant, the proprietors figured that they had available $758,000 to be turned over to the Imperial Munitions Board, for which amount a cheque was forwarded. While the amount returned might seem large against an order for 1,000,000 cases, it must be remembered that while the Cartridge Company has spent about $600,000 in plant and equipment, not one cent of this amount was charged up against this contract. In addition it must be remembered that the Cartridge Company did not start on this order until early in 1916, at which time all the early manufacturing difficulties and heavy operating costs had been overcome.

That appears to be the story, in a nutshell. The difficulties in the way of engaging successfully in the business of turning out completed brass cartridge cases for eighteen pound guns, have only been hinted at. The manufacturer will appreciate what the proprietors of Canadian Cartridge Company were up against. The banks would not loan a cent on the undertaking, at the outset. Available private capital was scared stiff at the idea of putting its good dollars into a plant designed to make something that Canada had never before turned out in connection with a war which might terminate any day. One of the best-known manufacturers in Canada called Mr. Baillie aside, and advised him as a friend to drop the whole undertaking. And this douche of cold water had just fairly landed when another manufacturing magnate came along, and duplicated the advice. However, any one who knows who Frank Baillie is, and what he has done, can understand that it requires a good deal to daunt him. He is not only an expert financier, but he has a penchant for mechanics. His friends tell a rather characteristic anecdote of him. Quite a few years ago, when motor cars were just making good with the public, F. W. Baillie decided that he wanted a new car, and he also wished to fathom the inner works. No one could tell him much, in those days, about the principle of the internal combustion engine. So he packed a grip, journeyed to Cleveland, and ended up in the plant of the Peerless Motor Car Company. Here he purchased a Peerless car, on condition that he could spend as many weeks as he wished amongst the machines and workmen, learning all about the motor he planned to drive. Permission being given (with the proviso that he was not to talk to the hands, nor they to him) Mr. Baillie filled his head with car dope, and his clothes with grease, and in the end he backed his own motor out of the plant, and droved it to Toronto.

Mr. Baillie was formerly a partner in the Stock Exchange firm of Baillie, Wood & Croft, recently dissolved. He is president of the Canadian Cartridge Company, Hamilton, president of The Banker's Boad Company, Toronto, president of the Burlington Steel Company, Hamilton, and vice-president Dominion Steel Foundry Company, Limited, Hamilton. He commenced his business career as clerk and private secretary to the late Senator George A. Cox, Toronto. He became secretary to Central Loan Company, General Manager of the Metropolitan Bank, had a hand in the formation of Dominion Steel Company, and has figured in many other large national enterprises.

Mr. E. P. Wood, the remaining proprietor of Canadian Cartridge Company, is a brother to Mrs. E. R. Wood, Toronto, and son of the late John Wood, born in Ashburnham, and has been a partner of Mr. Baillie for the past fourteen years. It is generally understood that there is most harmonious team work between these two, and that the one will not enter any transaction unless it has been fully endorsed by the other. Friends of Mr. Wood will appreciate that he entered fully into the spirit of generous patriotism underlying the offer made to D. A. Thomas, tantamount to the gift of over three-quarters of a million dollars to the British Government.—Toronto Saturday Night.

THE GAINING CAUSE.

While we and others in the overseas Dominions are passing resolutions expressive of our resolve to stay with the war-waging till the end, the allied forces are acting, and acting nobly. August 4th marked the beginning of the third year of the war, and the allied armies have been marking the enemy with defeat. Today, August 7th, after only one working day—though Sunday does not stop the fighting—the war reports may be truthfully summarized in the statement that from all parts of the principal battle fronts come encouraging reports of striking successes of the allied armies. The intention of the Allies to make their third year of war a generally victorious one, has had a splendid beginning. We have been preparing for two years, and we are ready to drive home the thrust that will end in victory. There may be temporary and partial reflux of the wave of victory, but in the main, we can look with encouragement for steady and resistless onward progress.

AN UNPRECEDENTED FEAT.

It may well be that future historians, in describing the Great War, may find its most notable feature in the fact that Great Britain was able to transport across the Channel, within a few miles of the base of the enemy fleet, yet without the loss of a single man, the greatest army ever sent by any nation upon foreign service.—Montreal Star.

Appeals to Everybody.

Many people overlook the advantage of newspaper advertising. If the farmer has stock to sell, he can find buyers, if he wants to buy, he can have the sellers come to him. When anything is lost or found, when help is wanted, or a position is sought; when any article from a baby carriage to a pet fox could be exchanged to advantage, a small advertisement in the newspaper will accomplish the desired result.

Nearly everybody can use the advertising columns to advantage at some time, and every person will profit by reading the advertisements regularly.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

URBAN SHOCKER'S RAPID RISE TRIBUTE TO J. B.

The following from the Detroit Tribune is nothing short of a tribute to Joe Birmingham, who took U. Shocker from the New York Yankees and gave him such a reputation that he has been recalled by his owners.

When the sporting pages bore the news that Bill Donovan had ridded his New York Club of Pitchers Keating and Markle, fans resident in Detroit pricked up their ears and likewise cleared their eyes for some watchful waiting. They figured, from that minute, that Urban Shocker, Detroit boy, and star slinger this season for the Toronto team of the International League, would receive a telegram and ticket in very short order. They were the more convinced of this because of the recent injury to Nick Cullop, who has been the Yankees' mainstay.

Detroit has a special interest in Shocker's career and future, because, in addition to getting his baseball education on the local lots, he has twice been the property of the Tigers. If he could come here and do any work that would closely approach what he has done for Toronto, the pennant chances of Jennings' team would be immediately enhanced. There is no chance, of course, for Detroit to get him now, because the New York Club has the privilege of recall, just as Detroit had it in the case of Red McKee, who was Shocker's battery partner in most of his triumphs of this season.

Shocker's greatest feat of this season was that of two weeks ago, when, pitching at Rochester, he shut out the home club without hit or run, for 11 consecutive innings. This is not a minor league record, as Nabors, now with the Athletics, once went thirteen innings without being hit safely or scored on. He then was with the little Georgia-Alabama League, from which Connie Mack's scouts rescued him. But no International League pitcher has equalled Shocker's record. And ten innings is as far as any major league hurler has gone.

With this game in, the Detroit boy had pitched 47 scoreless innings, and had won 14 games of 16 pitched. He needed nine more rounds to equal Walter Johnson's record for consecutive so-score innings, the Washington star having done 56 rounds of this sort in 1913. Faulkner, with Wilmington, Del., pitched 77 no-run innings some years ago, and then ran away after Detroit had signed him. Faulkner was a strike-out pitcher, who probably never would have amounted to anything in the major leagues.

Snared by Roesink.

A. John Roesink, who managed the S. & S. team, playing at Mac's Park, for several seasons, deserves the credit for bringing Shocker to notice, and getting him into major league society. Shocker's first work of any moment was with the Windsor team of the Border League, for which he was catcher. He could hit and field, and also was a good utility man, and was used in various positions. Finally, in a pinch, he went in to pitch. He made good, and from that time was a slabbist.

Being a wise and watchful person, Roesink grabbed Shocker for himself. He made him his chief pitcher in 1913, and Shocker led the S. & S. team to the city championship. Roesink tipped Shocker to President Navin of Detroit, as a youngster worth watching, and Detroit signed him. He was sent to Fort Wayne, Ind., with a string attached. Fort Wayne was overstoched with twirlers, and Shocker was transferred to Ottawa, in the Canadian League, where he won 32 games in 46 starts.

Lost in the Shuffle.

Detroit covered him up, and in 1915 he was sent back to Ottawa, where he won 35 out of .8 games. Freddie Payne, former Detroit backstop, went to Ottawa that season, and handled and helped to develop the youngster. Detroit let its claim to the pitcher lapse, because of adverse reports from scouts, and from players of its own team who batted against Shocker, these claiming that his fast ball was not good enough. Incidentally, they still insist that this will be proved once he gets into major league society.

After his successful 1915 season, Detroit, Cleveland and New York of the American League, and Brooklyn Nationals, went after him. New York won. Donovan took him south, but sent him to Toronto shortly after the season started. Bill had a hunch of veteran pitchers that he decided would give him better service. Detroit was one of four clubs that refused to waive, when New York wished to send Shocker away, but all finally were induced to let him go. Since then, as said, Shocker has walked through the International League.

Joe Jackson's Breezy Gossip of Ball Players

Detroit, Aug. 5.—There's a lot of comfort in the thought that Connie Mack has a club in this league. Otherwise it would be possible, and with no great loss of time, for the Tigers to get into the cellar position, which it has not been their habit to occupy in recent years. At the present moment they are less than a game in front of Washington, and only two games better than the Browns.

St. Louis is the surprise party of the league right now, with its run of twelve straight victories, and its consequent gain on all of the other clubs. It is not regarded yet as a probable flag contender, but it is only seven and one-half games back of Boston, and, like the other western clubs, I a long home stand at the close of the season. The home lot seems to suit the Browns much better than the road, both of their long stretche of victories having been in St. Louis, and having followed rather saddening road tours. They are a club worth watching. They have good material, and there are not many smarter managers than Fielder Jones.

Chicago doesn't seem to be having very good luck in its effort to revise the far side of its infield. It started with Terry at short and Weaver at third, and then bench Terry. Later he was brought back, and Rowland decided that he had the proper combination with the collegian at short and Weaver on third, where he did not have so many chances to overrun second or to hurl the ball into the stands. Now Terry is back on his old jo bat short, with McMullen holding down third.

This may affect Chicago's chances some, Terry being rated a more valuable man than McMullen. Right now the Sox are practically tied with Boston. They need all the games they can get. Boston goes from here to St. Louis, where it may find the going rather tough, and then has to visit Chicago. This is the time for Rowland's team, if it had serious designs on the flag, to get out in front.

Bill Donovan, who brought the New York team to town yesterday for one of those well-known night-before-the-battle sleeps, seems to be able to get for himself hard luck in any form that hard luck can take. His most valued players have suffered injuries in all of the forms in which injuries come. And now he loses the services of Ray Caldwell, one of the best pitchers in the league, though not very successful this season, because the charges go, that young man has not been observing the club rules. This is the second time that Caldwell's services have been lost by New York on similar charges. The last occasion, when Chance fined and suspended him, and when Ray replied by leaping to the Feds, is easily recalled.

Caldwell will be missed, because Donovan is none too long on pitchers right now. He recently released Keating and Markle. Cullop, who had been his big winner, and who was hurt while opposing the Tigers in New York, is not with the team, and it is not believed that he will be able to joint it before it reaches home again. With Caldwell suspended, Billy has only five pitchers eligible for duty. Three of these, however, have been going unusually well, and have evidenced an ability to work with much frequency. Handling his pitchers, in some of his games here, Donovan will show a young catcher who threatens to become one of the stars of the league. His name is Walters.—Jos. S. Jackson.

MANY IRON CROSSES OF SECOND CLASS

More than 400,000 iron crosses have been issued since the start of the war according to figures which were published in a recent issue of the Berliner Tageblatt, a German daily newspaper. The great bulk of these are crosss of the second class, such as are given to the privates in the ranks for distinguished service on the battle fields. There are 401,100 of this class alone.

Besides these crosses of the second class the iron cross of the first class is held by 6,506 persons. This include 275 generals and 5,605 other officers. There are 398 aviators who have this decoration. 399 naval men and 136 in other branches of the service. This brings the total of iron crosses of both classes which have been distributed in the course of this war up to 409,409.

TRIS SPEAKER'S STORY OF HIS RISE TO FAME

Here is Tris Speaker's story of his own life and baseball career that started when he was a kid in short pants, down in Texas. The story is told in instalments, starting from those boyhood days and continuing until he was sold to the Cleveland Indians for over $50,000, becoming one of the main cogs in the ball team that is now the sensation of the big league, holding third place in the American league.

Baseball has been my life work from the time I started to school, more than 20 years ago at Hubbard City, Texas. I really never mapped out a career of any sort and my parents gave me free rein to choose as I wished. My father conducted a dry goods store in the home town, but I early resolved to fit myself for something other than the routine of mercantile business.

Like all the other kids of Hubbard and every town that boasts enough youngsters to form a baseball team, I had the baseball fever almost before I discarded my swaddling togs. At eight years of age I was pitcher on the grammar school nine and when not working in the box turned tricks in the outfield and on first base.

In those days I was a right-hander and had a lot of speed on my fast ball. My dream of a baseball career nearly went up in smoke, however, a year or so later, when I was thrown from a horse and sustained fractures of two bones in the lower right arm and one in the upper part.

I feared my days in athletics were over, but even before the fractures knitted I was out practicing to peg with my left hand.

Weeks of hard practice finally brought the desired results and I found that I could throw left-handed even more accurately than I could with my right. Then I got back my job with the team.

My first offence as a pitcher in professional ball was committed in 1906, when I broke in with the Cleburne club of the then North Texas league. As I remember I started seven games and lost all. I was beginning to weaken on the job when luck smiled on me one afternoon.

Ransom, right fielder for the Cleburne club, was hit in the head while batting and the manager sent me in as a substitute. I have been an outfielder ever since, though in centre field.

Men On Trail of Eskimos Are At Last Come Here

Two Royal North-west Police Arrive in Montreal—Capt. French Stops at Ottawa

Montreal, Aug. 5.—Two red-coated military looking men over six feet tall, spurred at the heels, and carrying riding crops stepped off the Vancouver train as it pulled into the Windsor station. They are now registered at the Queen's Hotel.

Their journey is only just begun. In a few days they will leave Montreal for the cold and icy regions of the Far Northland, where it is perpetual winter. Their business is to track two Eskimo murderers and effect their arrest. They expect to be away three years. Where others have failed these men hope to succeed.

These two men hail from Regina. They are Constables W. D. Douglas, and C. B. Crombie, of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police.

Inspector F. H. French, nephew of General French, who is in charge of the party, left the train at Ottawa. He will take two or three days to confer with the Comptroller of the R.N.W.M.P., and will then come on to Montreal to join the ship. The fourth member of the party who has been in Montreal for several months past, is Engineer Chin. It is he who will take charge of the specially constructed motor boat the party are taking with them. This boat will hold sufficient gasoline to cover 500 miles.

Inspector French's party is going out to the Arctic to relieve Inspector Beyts's party which has been in the north two years, without locating the tribe of Eskimos to which the murderers belong.

The party expect to sail on the Hudson Bay Company's boat. Nascopie, on Sunday. In addition to the motor launch they carry with them six "huskies"—sled dogs—and one hound.

The party will sail from Montreal round the Labrador coast to Churchill in Hudson Bay territory. From Chesterfield Inlet to Baker Lake in the far north they will journey by motor boat. At Baker Lake they will make their winter headquarters. From there to Coronation Lake, a distance of over one thousand miles they will travel by dog team. It is at Coronation Lake that the Killin-E-Muit tribe of Eskimos are supposed to be found. So far Inspector Beyts has failed to reach this point.

The entire trip comprises a thousand miles by water and over another thousand by dog teams across the ice floes and snow.

Radford, an American explorer, who together with Street, a Canadian, were murdered in the Arctic by Hull-la-lark and Am-me-ker-mic, started in 1913 for the Mackenzie river basin. Striking out across country they finally came out of the wilderness on the shores of the Hudson Bay. Tracking up country again they came to Chesterfield Inlet, a long arm of the Hudson Bay stretching a hundred miles westward and widening into Baker Lake, itself 75 miles long. By dog sled they then reached Bathurst Inlet. They intended to work west again and make an arch back to the Mackensie river district.

STRUCK FROM BEHIND.

As they were about to make the journey back under new guides, several of them refused to go and according to the story which was told to the Mounted Police Radford struck one of the men with his crop to enforce obedience. A fight then followed, Radford defended himself as best he could. He was keeping his assailants at bay when a native crept up behind him and buried a fish spear in his back. Even then he made a brave fight but several further wounds were inflicted with the sharp spear, and finally as he lay on the snow his throat was cut.

Street, Radford's partner, made a dash for the sled but was struck down before he had a chance either to render assistance or gain safety.

It is stated that the guide's reason for refusing to accompany Radford was that his wife was ill, and he was wanted at home. Radford did not understand.

Constable Crombie stated this morning that only two reports have come from Inspector Beyts. The chief point made is that he expects to locate the Killen-E-Muit tribe some time this summer near Bayhurst Inlet. The instructions to both parties are to establish friendly relations with the tribe and to conduct investigations It is upon the result of these investigations that the fate of Hull-la-lark and Am-me-ker-nic depends.

Inspector French has been three times through the north country and knows the lay of the land and the conditions he has to fight against.

Freemasons Active At The Front And In Works of Relief At Home

LONDON, Aug. 1.— When the war began Freemasons did not escape the panic which assailed men in all quarters, and there were many who suggested that lodges should cease to meet or, at least, assemble as seldom as possible for purely formal business during the period of the war. Happily saner counsels prevailed, owing in a great measure to the wise advice of the Board of General Purposes, which has sometimes been called the Cabinet Council of the Craft. It was recommended to lodges that they should pursue their Masonic duties in accordance with the Book of Constitutions and take such measures as lay within their power to assist in relieving the distress which would be certain to arise out of the great national emergency. This advice has been generally followed.

There is not a lodge in the country —and there are 738 loges meeting in the London area and 1,763 in the provinces—which has not a large proportion of its members on active service. Out of the 738 London lodges thirty-five are known as Military Lodges, and many of these have found it difficult to hold the two meetings which, according to the constitutions, must be held during the year. One, St. Mary's Lodge, has been compelled to suspend its meetings altogether, for, like a sister lodge in the province of Middlesex—the Alma, of Hounslow, which is attached to the Royal Fusiliers—every member is on active service.

Many Freemasons Die on Field.

The extent to which death has depleted the Masonic ranks cannot be estimated even by the authorities at Freemasons' Hall. The Masonic Roll of Honour, compiled from returns received up to the early part of November, 1915, occupies thirty-six pages of the last issue of the Masonic Year Book, and contains particulars of 520 brethren who had fallen in the service of their King and country. The list has been added to considerably since that date.

The whole of the craft has been affected by the war. The Grand Master H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, has had to remain at his post in Canada for a further term. The Pro-Grand Master, Lord Ampthill, joined his regiment on August 4, 1914, and since that date he has had only forty-eight hours' leave of absence, the whole of which was occupied by Masonic business. Upon the shoulders of that "Grand Old Man of Freemasonry," as he is affectionately known, the Right Hon. Thomas F. Halsey, P.C., has fallen the responsibility for the government and direction of the craft. His industry and activity at seventy-seven years of age would put to shame many men of forty. It is now more than fifty-five years since he was initiated into the "mysteries" and he has been Provincial Grand Master of Herefordshire for forty-three years.

But there must be something in Freemasonry conducive to longevity and activity, for the war has put a considerable amount of work upon the shoulders of the Grand Secretary Sir Edward Letchworth—a name revered wherever Freemasonry is known —who, notwithstanding the fact that he is in his eighty-fourth year, still finds pleasure in daily toil.

Four sons of the Deputy Grand Master are on active service, and one, Captain Lionel Halsey, of H. M. S. Ned Zealand, had the happy distinction of taking part, under Admiral Beatty, in the fight off Heligoland Fight in the early days of the war. He has since been promoted to Captain of the Fleet on H. M. S. Iron Duke, under Admiral Sir John Jellicoe.

Generous Contributions.

At the first meeting of the Grand Lodge held after the declaration of war a grant of $20,000 was made toward the Prince of Wales' National Relief Fund, in addition of $5,000 to the funds of the British Red Cross Society and $5,00 to Belgian relief. Entirely unsolicited, English speaking Freemasons overseas have forwarded to the United Grand Lodge of England sums amounting to nearly $35,000, which at their request have been apportioned among these and other funds of the relief of disress occasioned by he war.

In November last an appeal was made to the Grand Lodge of England on behalf of two hundred Freemasons interned in the civilian camp at Ruhleben, many of whom were in very reduced circumstances, with a view to obtaining some relief for them in their necessity. A letter sent by the Grand Secretary to the lodges on the roll met with an immediate and hearty response. Within a few weeks more than $10,000 was received and the total is now nearly $30,000. This money is being devoted to the purchase of food and other necessities, both for Freemasons and those who are not Freemasons.

The number of new lodges formed and concentrated since the beginning of the war has been considerably below the average, but one has been called into existence as an outcome of the war. The City of London National Guard Lodge, with its record number of founders—283—was consecrated in November last, with Mr. Henry Cart de Lafontaine as its first Master. He will be succeeded in the chair next November by Major General Sir Francis Lloyd, K.C.B.

Freemasons mourn the loss of many distinguished brethren whose lives have been given for their country. To mention only three: Lord Kitchener had been an officer of the Grand Lodge of England for twenty years, before he was appointed, in 1899, District for twenty years, before he was appointed, in 1899, District Grand Master of Egypt and the Sudan; Lord Roberts was a Past Grand Warden of Eugand, and Prince Maurice of Battenberg, at the time of his death from wounds received in action, was Master of the Twelve Brothers' Lodge, No. 735, Southampton.

German Editor Hopes the Allies Will Win and Crush The Prussian Junker Rule

LONDON, Aug. 7.—That the cause of the real Germany will be best served by the overthrow of militarism, and that even now there is a strong trend toward democracy is shown in an interview published in a Swiss newspaper with Dr. Roesmeier, an editor of the Berlin Mogren Post, now a voluntary exile in Switzerland.

"The question of the hour," he says, "is how ought the world to protect itself against Prusso-German domination? And it is on this account that all Germans who have not yet sacrificed to chauvinism the spirit of universal solidarity are hoping for the victory of the Allies' arms or at least do not wish that the coalition of the Central Powers should emerge victorious from this frightful war."

"No one more than myself so ardently longs for a democratic Germany," said Dr. Roesmeier in reply to the question what he thought of the tendency of German policy toward radical liberalism. "I am, nevertheless very sceptical on the subject, not to say pessimistic. If any one ever hated with all his heart the Prussian junkers it is I; but this does not hinder me from recognizing that they are good fellows of their kind, while I have a very poor opinion of the energy and courage of the German liberals and of the German socialist majority.

"I have not in vain frequented half my life the press gallery in the Reichstag. I acquired experience there. Permit me to give some personal recollections. On July 31, 1914 a famous democratic journalist tried to argue against my aversion to the war by saying:—

"Have patience! This war, let us hope, will break the neck of the Hohenzollerns."

HE PLAYS "GOOD DOG"

"But our troops had been in the field only a few days when the same man, with entire absence of dignity was playing the part of 'good dog' before the thrones of the German princes, from that of the Hohenzollerns to the lowest that of a Guelph the Duke of Brunswick, whose advent to the throne a little while before had greatly irritated him.

"And Herr George Bernhard, the quick change political journalist, once a social democrat, who calmly said on the opening of hostilities.

"We must resign ourselves to a reaction of fifty years. We must give up the management of our policy to the general staff."

"So on one side we have a complete surrender to the militarist monarchy. On the other hand the gentlemen of the Right by no means intend to subordinate their feudal rights to the interests of the nation.

"I foresaw this in 1913. In my inner consciousness there was always dormant the presentiment that one day I would find myself in the position of being obliged to choose between humanity and Germany, as is now the case. The possibility of this conflict grieved me. I wanted to know for certain whether the dominant parties would allow themselves to be influenced without any restriction, as they pretended, solely by national interests. I asked of a great number of journalists of the Right whether if there were a complete democratisation of Germany, even its transformation into a republic, they would side absolutely with a democratic or republican Germany in case of a foreign war.

HERR PETREN'Z ANSWER

"Only one of those gentlemen replied affirmatively, and I am convinced that his affirmative was sincere for it came from an honest heart. That was Adolf Petrens, editor of the Taeglische Rundschau, who has died.

All the others answered in the negative. An editor of the Deutsche Taegeszeitung declared with the greatest sincerity:—

"I would oppose a democratic Germany by every means, even in the ranks of the Russian army."

"I know, however, that he was only expressing the convictions of his editor in chief who was a junker. The Prussian junker cannot conceive of a Germany unless it is dominant by Prussia nor of a Prussian unless it is managed by junkers. For five hundred years the constitutions of Northern Germany, taken as a whole have showed themselves more powerful than the most powerful of the Hohenzollerns, not even excepting Frederick the Great who left to the junkers the entire administration of the country.

"For every one who knows Germany it is almost a comical idea to pose that Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg could succeed in the masterstroke of uprooting the domination of the junkers in Prussia and Germany. The owner of the domain of Hohenfinnow, he is himself a junker in three-fourths of his being.

"Thus, of a complete failure of the war is even half spared to the German people my profound conviction is that the rule of the Junkers is again assured for some decades, even if their final dethronement should be accelerated by industrial development On the other hand, it is not unlikely that an obvious and definite defeat, which could not be minimised, might awaken the revolutionary forces in a part of the masses and in certain circles of bourgeois ideologists.

BIG BUSINESS WITH THE JUNKERS.

"I would be glad to answer affirmatively the question whether a democratic regime in Germany would mark the end of German imperialism and the imperial schemes of conquest, but here also I am somewhat sceptical. Without doubt the Prussian Junkers from the heart of the German militarist party. But there are many other elements connected with them.

"First are the great industries whose role in instigating the war as such that it would be taking water to a well to seek to ignore it. In questions of internal policies big business has almost identical views with those of the Junkers with whom, moreover, its magnates are closely allied. Both have an interest in gagging the working masses and establishing high protective custon tariffs. The instinct of the people discovered this long ago. After the war of 1870 the expression Barons of cabbages and of chimneys', lords of the land and captains of industry came into vogue.

"Besides that, the small trader organized in the manufacturers' league the exporters, certain circles in the banking world, the little merchants and the overwhelming majority of the 'high brows' are all more or less fascinated by the thought of 'Greater Germany'. One dreams with exaltation of the deliverance of his 'German brothers' in Russia; another of a German coast line from Petrograd to Calais, another of the 'freedom of the seas'. The 'Berlin-Bagdad railroad' completely turned many heads otherwise perfectly sensible.

"A glance at the German newspapers, writings and pamphlets, shows that even now, after twenty-three months of this terrible war, the madness for annexation dominates German public opinion. This violent and brutal desire for annexation finds its principle defenders in Prussian junkers, who covet other countries full of laborers who work cheaply docile, Slavs and slaves, and in big business which is eagerly desirous of keeping Briey and Charleroi.

THE EXPANSION PERIL

"But in my view more dangerous still is the veiled form of annexation which I name 'expansionism.' I refer specially to the disciples of Naumann, those who dream of a 'union of States from North Cape to the Indian Ocean,' and designate this ideal by the false geographical expression 'Central Europe' (Mitteleuropa.)

"It is just these persons, many of whom are social democrats, who are the most zealous partisians of a democratic or a reactionary manner is without importance for the nations who are resolved to defend their right to independence against Germany To apply a democratic regime to a people of dominating spirit does not in any way lighten the chains of the oppressed nations. History proves it by many examples.

"However that may be, the present military operations appear to be infinitely more important than the turn events may take within Germany. The question of the hour is how ought the world to protect itself against German domination?"

COL. WILLIAMS EXPECTS TO GO OVERSEES

LINDSAY, Aug. 7.—At a meeting of the citizens one of the speakers was Col. C. G. Williams, of Lindsay, the Chief Recruiting Officer for Canada, formerly Chaplain of the 109th Battalion. In the course of his short remarks he stated that his heart was with the boys of the 109th and that his place was also there for him. He fully intended, and wanted, to go across with the Victoria Battalion, but General Hughes requested him to wait three months, as there was further work for him to do in Canada.

Col. Williams stated his intention of joining the boys of the 109th as soon as he could be relieved from his duties in Canada.

DEAF MUTES MAKE TRIP TO CHEMONG

Party of Mutes Entertained by Mrs. Pope at Chemong Park - An Enjoyable Outing.

A party of deaf and dumb mutes including John Crough, W. Charlebois, Daniel Gordon, Gerald O'Brien and Wm. A. O'Rourke decided on an outing yesterday afternoon and picked out Chemong Park as their rendezvous and destination. The mode of getting there was also seriously discussed and as most of the party were willing to sacrifice the idea of speed and comfort for the sake of a little fun, they decided to make the six mile jaunt up the Chemong Road on bicycles.

STARTING POINT

The trip started from Murray St. the temporary headquarters of Mr Wm. O'Rourke of Ottawa and the half-way house was Jack Crough's home half way up the Chemong Road. Jack is always ready for a little excitement in his two wheeled "Ford" and gave the rest of the bunch a hot chase the rest of the trip to the Park.

Arriving at the resort, the five decided on a "dip" in the cool drink All were expert swimmers, except the Ottawa visitor, Mr. O'Rourke. His four friends tried to convince him that it was only natural for men to navigate his way in the aqueous fluid. He was accordingly thrust into the cool waters of the lake and in a very short time found out he was an excellent swimmer. He was so pleased with his efforts that he swore he could land a position at the Rideau Canal, Life Saving Station.

A FIELD DAY.

Several athletes being present in the cycling corps, they decided on a field day of sports. Jack Crough proving himself to be the bonner athlete of the party.

The happiest item on the day's programme, however, was the delicious supper served to the visitors by Mrs. Pope in her lovely cottage "Hibernia Rest". Mrs. Popp, assisted by Miss Kathleen O'Brien proved to be excellent hosts and attended to the visitors' wants in fine style.

In order to save a few substantial relics of the day's fun Mr. Gerald O'Brien's camera was used to good advantage.

VISITORS FROM FIRE STRICKEN COUNTRY

Mrs. E. Noble and daughter, Dorothy Cox, of Timmins, Ont., one of the centres of the devastated fire territory, are visiting Mrs. Noble's sister-in-law, Mrs. W. J. Cox, 133 Lock street. Mrs. Noble and daughter had left here before the fire, but received word that their home in Timmins was safe. Homes and houses far and wide on each side of them were destroyed by the flames, however.

De Laval Employees Held An Excursion To Rice Lake

Members of the De Laval Organization Who With Their Families to the Number of About Two Hundred and Fifty Participate in an Enjoyable Outing on Saturday—Tug of War.

Last Saturday afternoon was an auspicous occasion for the members of the De Laval organization, who, with their families, to the number of about two hundred and fifty, boarded the steamer Stoney Lake, which they had chartered for the occasion, and enjoyed a trip down the river and across the lake to Gore's Landing. The boat left George Street Wharf at about 1.30, arriving at its destination a few minutes past four. The ride down on the water evidently sharpened the appetites of the picnickers, as lunch baskets were brought out very soon after landing, and for a time every one was busy. After lunch a number of races were run off. Mr. Ruiter and Mr. Wren were the starting judges, while Mr. Robinson, Mr. Pitchford and Mr. Cook officiated at the other end of the course and decided who were the winners in some close finishes. Mr. Byers acted as Secretary. The names of the winners are as follows:

THE PRIZE WINNERS.

Girls, 12 years old and under—1st, Ethel Cox; 2nd, W. Melton.

Boys, 12 years old and under—1st, G. Nichols; 2nd, K. Hamilton.

Young Men's 100 yard dash—1st, Mr. J. McFarlane; 2nd, Mr. J. Hoag.

Young Ladies' race—Miss Melton 1st, Miss Evans, 2nd.

Married Ladies' race—Mrs. Byers 1st, Mrs. Scholey, 2nd.

Fat Man's race—Mr. Bradshaw 1st.

A TUG-OF-WAR.

After the races a Tug-of-War was pulled off between teams from the Separator Shop and the Dairy Supply shop. The last-named team was the winner. At 7 o'clock the party embarked for home, reaching the Wharf at George Street about 10.30. One of the most pleasant features of the excursion was the music furnished by the DeLaval Orchestra of eleven pieces, and it certainly added in no small way to the entertainment, and was appreciated by all on board. The "Band Boys" deserve a cordial vote of thanks. The refreshment booth was in charge of the Business Girls' Club and did a thriving business, the profits going to the fund for the Prisoners of War. The picnic will be remembered by all who attended as a most enjoyable and decided success.

CONDUCTOR OF 39th BAND

Bandmaster Peryer Has Received Appointment—Five Signallers Wanted at Once—This is Good Chance

OTHER MILITARY NEWS

The district signalling officer has sent in a wire to Capt. Ackerman for five men, telegraphers, linemen, electricians and signallers. Men to report at once.

Bandmaster Peryer in a letter to his wife, 4 Grandview avenue, tells of the breaking up of the 59th Battalion by drafts, and of his own appointment as leader of the 39th Band. Bandmaster Peryer was conductor of the local Salvation Army Band before he went overseas with the 39th.

Is a Prisoner.

The following letter, which refers to Private Lawrence of the 4th Canadian Mounted Rifles, was received by Mr. Ernest Lawrence, 472 Elm street. Since this letter was sent out, Mr. Lawrence has received word to the effect that his son is a prisoner in Germany. The letter follows:

Dear Sir,— I regret to report that your son, Private H. Lawrence, a member of this Battalion, has been missing since the recent heavy fighting in which we were engaged. Inasmuch as the enemy claim to have captured a number of prisoners, we hope that your son is still alive and that you may soon hear from him to that effect. I need not add how nobly they all fought, and that they remained at their post of duty till the last.

With deep sympathy to you in your anxiety.

W. Gordon, Major,
Officer Commanding,
4th C.M.R. Battalion.

Has Returned.

Lieut. J. A. New of the 136th Battalion, returned on Saturday to Valcartier, where his regiment is stationed.

Draft of Officers.

Brig.-General Hemming has been asked by headquarters to submit the names of 19 officers for an overseas draft at an early date. The draft will be made up entirely of officers from the various overseas units whose establishment has been disturbed by the recent order cutting off assistant adjutants, transport officers, signalling officers, and junior majors. Should there not be sufficient of these to complete the number required for the draft, the list will be made up of supernumary officers who have recently been dropped from different overseas units. No others will be considered, and it will mean a waste of time and effort for others to apply for a place on this draft. The draft will be mobilized at once, and in a matter of days will be ready for overseas service. This will be welcome news to a number of officers whose positions have been cancelled by the new order, and the draft will afford a quick means of getting overseas.

Technical Scheme.

A tactical scheme which will be carried out some time next week at Barriefield, is in course of prepafation by Lt.-Col. Thompson, G.S.O. The exact date of the scheme cannot be given, as it would interfere with the carrying out of the same, but when carried out will include night work, and matters of the most practical and recent character which are carried out in actual warfare at the front.

It is published for the information of all concerned, that it has been decided to increase the establishment of all draft-giving depot batteries now in Canada, by 50 men (approximately 40 gunners and 10 drivers).

Sergt. Steward W. W. Gray of the 17th Brigade, R.F.A., Barriefield, returns to-morrow, after a three days' leave at his home, 121 Brock street.

Petitions For Bathing Places

Several Petitions Now Being Signed to Present to Council

A number of petitions are being circulated before the public asking that the Council take up the matter of swimming and bathing places for both sexes. A request will be made that such places be built as soon as convenient this year.

The Presbyterian General Assembly

During the last Presbyterian General Assembly at Winnipeg a number of delegates from the Maritime Provinces made their trip to Winnipeg via the Canadian Government Railways, Grand Trunk Railway System, and the Transcontinental Line. The Grand Trunk are now in receipt of a eulogistic letter from these delegates, fifty-two in number, which reads as follows:

"The undersigned, Commissioners to the Presbyterian General Assembly at Winnipeg and their accompanying friends from the Maritime Provinces hereby express their very great satisfaction with the conveniences and comforts enjoyed by them during their journey.

The officials of the Transcontinental Line, from the highest to the lowest, were not only faithful in the discharge of all their duties during this first excursion trip on their line from the Atlantic to Winnipeg, but they cheerfully did everything they possibly could to make the trip to be a long-remembered one by all who took it."

NOTICE TO THE MEMBERS OF THE WOMEN'S PATRIOTIC LEAGUE OF ASHBURNHAM

A call has come from the Queen's Canadian Military Hospital at Shorncliff, for surgical dressings and hospital supplies. Material is in stock, but workers are needed. The League Rooms will be open Wednesday afternoon, August 9th. A full attendance is earnestly requested. Our soldiers are doing their bit; let us do ours.—By Order of the President.

When shoes are too large at the heel and slip up and down fit a piece of velvet in the heel and glue it there.

Voice of The People

Correspondence under this heading, containing or involving attacks on individuals or violent or extreme statements, must to secure insertion, be signed with writer's real name, the owner of which thus assumes the responsibility.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—With the advent of dog days comes the usual bombardment of the press with letters inveighing against the foresight of our City Fathers in not providing swimming baths for the use of our citizens. The belated cry is not only evoked by the torrid heat, but also by the usual quota of drowning cases, from the want of swimming facilities. The wise or otherwise complaints and suggestions of these Rip Van Winkle Wiseacres, if given effect to, would materialize in the Fall, if not mid-Winter, so unseasonable are they. The writers, too, are usually newcomers, or not the best qualified for projecting such a scheme, and, beyond achieving a little notoriety for themselves, they accomplish nothing.

Until we can elect, at least, a Mayor and Aldermen to the Council board who can appreciate the necessity for such a scheme and having the foresight to start the ball rolling in time for the first warm weather, we shall go on complaining ad infinitum while the river claims its annual quota of victims and the great unwashed will grin and bear it.

Yours, etc.

BRUSILOFF AND IVANOFF

A Character Study of Two Notable Russian Generals by Hamilton Fyfe in the London Daily Mail

Were I King, Emperor, or Sovereign, People, I would have no generals in my service older than forty-five. If a man is not capable of commanding an army at that age, he never will be. After that age he loses more and more every year the energy, the enterprise, the desire to be up and doing, not waiting to see what the other side intends; all the qualities which are so necessary in war.

Yet to this rule I would make an exception, and it would be in favour of General Alexis Brusiloff. Never did anyone illustrate more aptly the truth of the saying that "a man is as old as he feels." General Brusiloff is sixty-three, only two years younger than General Ivanoff, whom he succeeded recently in the chief command upon Russia's south-western front. In everything but fact there is twenty years' difference between the two men. Ivanoff is big, slow-moving, old-fashioned in his views. Brusiloff is spare, alert, modern. As I sat and talked to him in the bare room from which he directs the operations of one of the three groups into which the Russian armies are dividied. I felt at once that his mind worked quickly, that he is for never-ceasing "push and go," that he is first, last, and all the time a man of action.

A STRONG FACE.

His face tells this. Dark, steady, searching eyes and a nose with a high, commanding, curved bridge give him the look of an eagle. No pale cast of thought here. No student or professor, this. Firm chin, vigorous jawline. When this man begins a task he will carry it through to the end, as he carried his Carpathians campaign. It was he who overcame all the difficulties of that surprising adventure. Spite of winter, spite of deep snows and terrible cold, he pushed on till he had won the whole ridge of the mountains and was ready to push his troops down into Hungary.

No fault of his that the efforts and the victories naught availed us. He has place in history. He has made new records in the annals o' war. Never before, I believe, has an army taken prisoners to the number of twice its own strength. General Brusiloff's army averaged about 180,000. It never exceeded 200,000. At times it dropped as low as 100,000. He captured in all 360,000 Germans and Austrians, with 400 guns. 'And how many machine guns?" I asked him. "I forget. Thousands," he replied.

HIT HIM FIRST.

His success he attributes to the courage of his troops and to the policy which he followed of never giving the enemy any rest. "The best strategy and the most successful tactics lie in attack," he told me. "Don' let the enemy choose where he will hit you. Hit him first; keep on hitting him. Give him no rest." The general's close-cropped, stubby hair seemed to bristle as he spoke. His longish but thin and little-noticed grey moustache quivered. "Yes, that is the way. Always attack. Even if he is stronger, attack him. Keep him guessing. Puzzle him. Make him wonder what you are up to."

"But that means heavy losses!"

"No, no, not if your attack succeeds. Attacks which fail, like the German attacks at Verdun, are terribly expensive. But successful attacks cost very little. If only we had had munitions this time last year, ..." He shook his head regretfully. He half-closed his eyes. He could see again the dim vista of the plains of Hungary, upon which he looked down from the Carpathian crests. He was thinking of what might have been . . . . But men of action do not give way to futile regret.

"Now it is different," he said briskly. "We have abundance of everything, as you have seen for yourself. We are ready, and we shall be very glad when we get orders to prove it."

IVANHOFF IS THE OPPOSITE

General Ivanoff was immensely popular in this south-west command, but General Brusiloff, by his record and his character, has already, I think, inspired more confidence. In almost every way the two men are curiously unalike. They have only one thing in common, that they both belong to the Regular Army and not to the General Staff. In Russia, as in other Continental armies, staff officers are separated, usually from the very start of their career. As a rule they are given the high commands. Both Ivanoff and Brusiloff reached their positions without the aid of this valuable stepping-stone, and both reached them by hard, useful work. In every other respect they are at opposite poles.

Ivanoff, the son of a pleasant-proprietor, has remained in essentials a peasant all his life. He lives in the simplest fashion. Prefers soldier's food to any other. Sleeps on a soldier's truckle-bed When he was in command at Kiel and had a palace to live in he furnished very plainly three small rooms and lived in these, leaving the rest empty. I need hardly add, after this, that he is unmarried. He might have advanced himself by marrying a rich wife. He preferred to be a bachelor and play his own hand. Modesty he carries to an almost morbid length. One of the censors on his staff told me he was quite angry because a newspaper telegram was passed praising his conduct of certain operations! A man accustomed all his life to working continually, he liked doing for himself many things which a commander-in-chief ought to make others do. A self-made man, in short, with very fine qualities and character, but with the defects of his qualities appearing more plainly as age crept upon him.

BRUSILOFF AD INFLUENCE

General Brusiloff's career has been as different as possible from that of General Ivanoff; therefore his mind and temperament have developed along different lines. He is of good family, went to the Russian Eton (the Pages' Corps"), and then began life in a fashionable cavalry regiment. Ability and influence combined to make his achievement rapid. He held many good positions, was reckoned a favorite at court, distinguished himself as a daring rider, encouraged cavalry officers to go in for polo and cross-country steeplechases, was popular in Petrograd society. Then came the war to try out the capacity and characters of men. Most of the "fashionable" soldiers went under very quickly. It was the studious, strictly professional type of officer which came to the front. Brusiloff is almost the only one of the prominent social figures in the army who has made good.

He began in 1914 as the commander of an army corps. Soon he had an army under him, and his army did the most brilliant work that has been done by any of the combatants. Now he has deservedly been promoted to a still higher command, and all who have worked with him are sure that he will win further fame. "He is so straightforward," one of his officers told me, "and so direct. He knows what he wants, and what he wants he must have." In his mode of life he follows the habits of western Europe. His interests are those of cultivated people. He talks French like a Frenchman and says he will learn English after the war.

DIED IN DENTIST'S CHAIR WHILE UNDER CHLOROFORM

RESTON, Man., Aug. 7.—Mrs. John R. Guthrie of this place, died under the administration of chloroform in a dentist's chair.

The Freesia

As a winter bloomer the freesia has of late become popular, its dainty and delicately colored flowers being in great demand for the better class of bouquets, along about holiday time, at which period it is generally at its best. As a table decoration a vase of it is ideal, combined with a few fronds of Adiantum fern or some branches of asparagus plumosus nanus.

It has not been grown to any great extent in the winter window garden, where other bulbs are used so effectively. It well deserves a place there, however, and those who grow it will be so well pleased with it that they would not willingly be without it thereafter.

The freesia is a native of the Cape of Good Hope. It was introduced into this country many years ago, therefore it is not what may be called a new plant, but for some unaccountable reason it seemed to drop out of sight shortly after its introduction, and in all the years that have elapsed since it was brought here it has been neglected, and few except a small number of professional gardeners have known there was such a plant until recently.

Our up-to-daet gardeners are always on the lookout for something new and novel, and some of them happen to recollect having seen this plant, shortly after its introduction, and the idea occurred to them that it might be worth giving a trial as a winter bloomer, and the result is that it is now a standard flower for forcing in winter.

While the freesia is related to the Irid family, which includes the iris, the gladiolus, the crocus and the tigridia, it requires a treatment quite unlike that which is given those plants. Being tender it cannot be used in the outer garden, and its cultivation must be confined to the window garden and the greenhouse.

It is easily brought into bloom in the window garden. But it should not be treated as we treat the hyacinth and tulip. Instead of being potted and put away in a dark place to form roots, it can be potted and placed in a warm light room at once. I would advise using half a dozen roots of it in a six inch pot of turfy loam and sand. Planted singly it would not be satisfactory, as it's of such slender growth that one plant, would not give a pleasin geffect.

Water it well at planting time, and then set aside in a warm corner to get a start. Do not apply more water until growth of top is seen.

After the flower crop has faded expose the pot to full sunshine to ripen the roots. When the foliage turns yellow set the pots away in a moderately cool place without disturbing the roots. Let the soil dry out almost entirely during summer. In September shake the roots out of the old soil and repot them.

By planting at intervals a long succession of bloom can be obtained.

The flower stalk of the freesia is slender and must be tied to supports of wire or something else inobatrusive as it reaches up. If this is not done it will crinkle down before flowering time arrives, and the crop of flowers will be in danger of being spoiled.

In color the flowers of this delightful plant are pure white, or white with a blotch of pale orange on the lower division of the perianth. In shape they somewhat resemble the gladiolus, but they are so much smaller that the two can hardly be compared. They average an inch and a half or two inches in length, and are borne in spikes which are depressed at the extremity, as if an accident had happened to the stalk and half broken down the flower spike.

The flowers stand nearly upright on the horizontal stem. The foliage is sparse and grasslike. All the beauty of the plant is in its blossoms, which have a rich, fruity tropical fragrance that will fill a room when a few of them are used in it.

The flowers of this plant last well after cutting, and on that account they are popular for table decoration and corsage bouquets. If those who have never grown it will give it a trial the coming winter I am sure they will not be willing to go without it afterward.—Chicago Tribune.

LEVIED TAX ON DENMARK

more years ago for $5,000,000, she was able to take advantage of "war prices for naval bases in the Caribbean Sea," and expects now to get $25,000,000 from the United States.

It is understood here that President Wilson agreed to that price and that a treaty will be signed soon in Washington. The Danish Parliament will undoubtedly ratify it, but whether the United States will do so, is unknown here.

One Cause of Satisfaction.

Denmark, it is said, takes a grim satisfaction in selling these islands for two reasons: First, because the money is very welcome; and, second, because Germany wanted them very badly a few years ago.

It is understood that German influence was used a few years ago to prevent a treaty going through for the sale of the islands to the United States when the late H. H. Rogers, of the Standard Oil Company, was prominent in the negotiations. But German influences have not been exerted to precent the sale this time. The only popular opposition to the sale is that expressed by the Koebnhaven, a conservative, but violently anti-German Danish newspaper.

Nevertheless, Germany is in an important sense the cause of Denmark's urgent efforts to sell the islands, since the indemnity which Germany demanded is responsible for Denmark's need of money.

Danish officials refuse to discuss any phase of the situation.

After the recent Jutland naval battle, several British cruisers, badly damaged, entered Danish harbours. This time Germany sent an ultimatum. The cruisers were compelled by Denmark to leave within 24 hours. One of them was so badly crippled that it was abandoned and the crew taken off in the North Sea.

Soldiers' Wives and Mothers' Club Held a Meeting

Interesting Letter Read From Sergeant E. J. Downey—Peterboro' Boys Honoured

A meeting of the Soldiers' Wives' and Mothers' Club was held Friday afternoon in the Salvation Army Temple. After the business part of the meeting Mrs. Downey, President, gave some interesting information, having received from Sig.-Sergt. E. J. Downey, a letter, in which he says that the 4th Battalion, 1st Canadian Contingent, B.E.F., was personally thanked by the General, and also mentioned in despatches, and that Sergt. McBride won the Distinguished Service Medal, and that another had won the Military Cross.

The ice-cream social was a great success, enough money being realized to enable the Club to send six dozen pairs of socks, gum, etc. to the 59th Battalion, overseas. A vote of thanks was heartily given to Mrs. Bugg and Mrs. Stewart for so kindly putting her house and lawn open for the Club on that day; also to all friends who helped; Adjt. McElheney, for chairs and tables, and Mr. Gillespie, for the cones; also Mrs. Hicks.

Mrs. Bugg visited seven homes and the hospital during the week, taking gifts of flowers, fruit, and good cheer to the sick.

On Wednesday, Aug. 9th, at Mrs Downey's, 158 Edinburgh street, the parcel of socks, etc. will be packed for the 59th Battalion. Any members wishing to help, please be there by 2.30 p.m.

Next Friday, 11th inst., a special meeting is called. Will all members try to be there on time, 3 p.m.? Bring your friends.

It was with regret the members heard that Mrs. White was so ill, that she was taken to the hospital to undergo an operation.

OLD CHIEF PAUDASH VISITED THE CITY

Clad in a khaki shirt, soft hat and running shoes, with the pipe of peace firmly set in his mouth, an old Indian sat upon the George Street wharf, Saturday afternoon, waiting for the steamer Rainbow to pull down stream and bear him back to his beloved Hiawatha.

The stolid personage was no other than old Chief Paudash, former Chief of the Hiawatha Reserve, who had not been to the city in one year, and was gazing in stoic wonderment at the traffic buzzing up and down along the main thoroughfare. The old Redskin leader admitted seeing quite a change around the streets in that time and was especially struck by the marvellous growth in the number of 'waggons without horses.'

The old Chief is very much interested in the progress of the Allies and was inquiring for the latest "war dops." The Chief has two sons at the front, Messrs. Johnston and George, who are in France with the 21st Battalion and are both alive and "doing."

SINGLE TAXERS TO MEET AT NIAGARA

Mary Fels, widow of Joseph Fels, founder of the Fels Fund Commission, has just announced a gift of one million dollars to found a colony in Palestine after the war. The colony to be run on Single Tax principles. Mrs. Fels will be at the Canadian and the United States Conferences of Single Taxers, Tax Reformers, and Fels Fund Conference, and will address both meetings at Niagara Falls, August 19th-20th.

R. C. Henders, President of the Manitoba Grain Growers' Association, F. J. Dixon, member Manitoba Legislature, and D. E Peddie, President of the Tax Reform League of Western Canada, will be at the Conference of Tax Reformers, Single Taxers, and Joseph Fels Fund Commission at Niagara Falls, August 19, and 20th. The Western delegates are instructed to vote for the resolution of Henry Tinmis of Montreal, to demand a Federal Tax of one per cent. on land values, to meet the expenses of the war. The attitude of the Nova Scotia and New Brunswick delegates is not now known.

The demand made on all members of parliament has met with replies from a large number—most of the answers being beautifully non-committal. These replies will be read at the Conference.

RICE LAKE REMINISCENCES

No. 4 "The Rice Beds of the Lake"

Sailing across Rice Lake these lovely days of late summer, when the harvest, on shore, is just beginning to ripen, and wave its golden head before the refreshing breezes, you will see, springing above the bosom of the lake, a heavy maze of green weed. To all appearances it is nothing else than an ordinary growth of lake grass, but the more experienced ones know that it is the annual sprouting of the rice beds.

These rice beds are to be found everywhere around the lake, and practically every island, all the way from Bewdley to the Trent, is surrounded by these green labyrinths of esculent grain, which envelop the shores in their green folds, and extend for some distance into the lake, forming an excelling bulwark of protection for the duck and fowl when September breezes begin to blow and when the "decoys" of the hunter begin to dot the lake.

In the early part of the summer the rice begins to emerge from the surface of the water, but is not ripe or delay for collecting until the middle of September or thereabouts, when the Indians from different parts of the lake paddle through the ripened beds and with a long stick, which is made for the purpose, scoop the ripened grain from off the stalks, and pile it along the bottom of the skiff, until it is filled to overflowing, when the trip is made to the home or storehouse, where the watery harvest is left to dry until it is ready for consumption.

These rice beds, by a special grant of the Government, have, for years, been the property of the Rice Lake Indians, and in years gone by, when the Red Man had not become so modern in his modes of living, what was collected every fall from these rice beds, formed his sole sustenance for practically the rest of the year, supplemented, of course, by the luscious fish and fowl.

Indians interested in the annual collection of Rice Lake's harvest tell us that this year's crop, from present indications, will be a very poor one. This fact, however, is not in keeping with the tradition of the lake, and old Indians tell us that several seasons have gone by without any rice being collected at all from the beds. Of late years the productivity of the rice beds has been greatly lessened, and it may be but a matter of time when they will disappear.

An old Hiawatha chief informed the writer once that he remembered the time when the rice stalks rose to ten and twelve feet in height, and that to collect the rice a man had to stand at full height in his skiff and reach for the Red Man's annual harvest. Such instances as these belong to the past, however, and simply demonstrates the ancient adage that the "old order changes" and, in time, flits away.

SEVEN LINDSAY HOTELS WILL TAKE OUT LICENSE

LINDSAY, Aug. 7.—All the hotelkeepers in Lindsay except Mr John Maunder have expressed their intention to take out a license for keeping standard hotels.

In Coboconk Mr. Jackson has signified his desire in regard to taking out a license as also will Mortimer and Jones of Minden village. At Victoria Road the well-known hostelry of Wm. Chirpaw will be open for the accommodation of the travelling public, and Kinmount will keep the open doors of two hotels for the public, one of which will be Mrs. Simpson's.

Jack Crough's Narrow Escape From Drowning

The holiday season came near being marked by another drowning fatality, when Mr. Jack Crough, the well-known local mute, came very close to losing his life in Chemong Lake yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Crough and some friends had "wheeled" up to the park from the city and were out rowing upon the lake when Crough lost his balance, and fell into the water. Crough immediately sank out of sight and Mr. Gerald O'Brien, who is an expert swimmer, immediately plunged into the lake to Crough's assistance. Crough had just come up the second time when he seised O'Brien by the neck and his heavy weight made it impossible for O'Brien to keep him above water.

Mr. Don. Gerow of Bolivar street, another mute, son-in-law of Wm. Pilling, seeing the serious turn which matters were taking and how it looked like a double fatality, lost no time and leaped into the water to the aid of the pair. In the meantime O'Brien managed to rid himself of Crough's grasp and between he and Gerow, Crough was safely landed on the shore.

Thirsty Line-up At Water Street Fountain

These are busy days at the police station water faunt and the number of thirst ones who gather during the hot moments of the day to slack their thirst would make a long line, rivalling perhaps the number of Fords sold during a busy season. To drink and then to drink again some of the cool water bubbling from the Water street "town pump" is the big question agitating the minds of those who are lucky enough to pass by this favoured spot and imbibe some of the aqulous liniment at the expense of the city of Peterborough.

NEW GIANT LINER READY.

Cunard Company Gets the Statendam for Atlantic Freight Trade.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—Notice was received last week from Liverpool that the British Admiralty has handed over the steamship Statendam, which was purchased on the slips at Belfast from the Holland-American Line for $5,000,000 shortly after the beginning of the war, to the Cunard Steamship Company. She is being fitted out to carry freight between this port and Liverpool, and will be called the Neuretania. Cunard officials in Liverpool say the new steamship will have cargo space for 21,000 tons, the largest amount of freight ever shipped from America on a single vessel. After the war is over the Neuretania will be fitted out for the passenger trade on lines similar to the Cunarder Aquitania.

The new liner is 740 feet long, 88 feet 4 inches beam, 49 feet 6 inches depth of hold, and her gross tonnage is 22,500. She has two masts and three funnels, and is equipped with triple screws driven by two reciprocating engines and one low pressure turbine in the centre, giving her an average speed of 18 knots.

No date has been fixed for the first trip of the Neuretania to New York on account of the delay in getting work done in the Harland & Wolff shipyard at Belfast, as everything else has to be set aside when a warship comes in for repairs, which happens frequently.

BLANCHE SWEET IN THE BLACK LIST

Three Days at the Empire Theatre—A Story of Exceedingly Human Interest

The "Black-List" is the name given to the system by which certain big industrial concerns keep track of discharged employees, making it impossible, through the interchange of information, for the employee to obtain work elsewhere.

With Blanche Sweet as the star, the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company presents on the Paramount Programme a thrilling photoplay in which, for the first time in the history of the screen, this much despised system of "black-listing" is exposed. The play is entitled "The Black-List" and was written by William C. DeMille and Marion Fairfax.

Many will discover in this photoplay a parallel with the horrible happenings and revelations of a year ago when in Colorado the state and federal troops were called to quell a war of death between striking miners and mine guards.

Blanche Sweet, whose power as an actress of strong and intensely human roles has increased with her growing popularity, appears in the leading role in "The Black-List". Into her hands is given the fate of thousands of striking miners who have taken up arms against strike-breakers. The story does not end with a thrilling representation of the conflict, but is carried through to a conclusion in which he authors give a substantial remedy to the problem of the war between capital and labour.

NEW CLASSIFICATION OF FREIGHT PROPOSED

Jobbers and Merchants Studying Classification No. 17, Submitted to the Railway Commission.

Local jobbers and all those who receive shipments of goods by freight, especially those who buy in less than car load lots and this is the rule rather than the exception, are being called upon to make a study of freight tariffs in which they are interested. The Canadian railroads, it is understood, have submitted to the Railway Commission, for approval, a proposed new freight classification, to be known as No. 17. The new classification is said to provide for a general revision of the Rules, Minimum Carload Weights, Ratings and Shipping Conditions.. Owners are required to load and unload all freight carried at carload ratings. The "Trade Lists" and "Distinctive Headings" are abolished and shipments of Mixed Carloads at carload rates are only allowed on articles taking the same class rate, and at the highest minimum carload weight.

In addition there are numerous advances in the class ratings. It is proposed, for instance, to make plug tobacco, less than carloads, first-class instead of third, and carloads of tobacco fourth class instead of fifth. There are other items in which jobbers and merchants are interested that have been similarly raised. It is said the changes in rules are important, and that the Railway Commission has issued an order requiring the railways to furnish a statement showing all the changes made in the rules, the grounds upon which they are sought to be justified, and the results such changes would have on traffic in eastern and western Canada respectively. The Commission has also directed that any objections to the proposed changes, involving increased transportation charges, are to be filed within three months from July 29th.

Local Boards of Trade throughout the district are discussing the matter, and it will no doubt be a subject for discussion by our own Board of Trade in the near future.

"OTHERS CAME TO FIGHT."

This Man From Canada Tried to Evade Enlistment.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—A man who said he came all the way from Canada, where he had been five years in order to carry on the business of his father-in-law here, now old and feeble, appealed to-day at Fulham Tribunal, thinking it hard that he should be called to join the army as soon as he arrived. The chairman remarked that many others had also come from Canada, but they had come to fight.

NEW PRIEST SINGS HIS FIRST MASS

A very solemn and impressive ceremony took place in St. Joseph's Church, Douro, yesterday morning, when Rev. Jos. Leahy, S.J., son of the late James Leahy, S.J., son of the late James Leahy, of Douro, and a former Douro boy, sang his first high mass in the church of his childhood. A large number of friends and parishioners thronged the church to attend the young priest's first high mass.

Rev. J. V. McAuley of the Sacred Heart Church acted as deacon, while Rev. John V. Power was sub-deacon. Messrs. John O'Leary and John J. Garvey of St. Augustine's Seminary, Toronto, acted as masters of ceremonies.

An eloquent sermon on the dignity and duties of the priestly life was preached by Rev. Michael McGuire, Pastor of St. Joseph's church, who referred in glowing terms to the zeal and self-sacrifice which marked the life of the young man who consecrates his life to God's service.

HUN WARSHIP TOOK SOUNDING WHILE ON VISIT

MONTREAL, Aug. 7.—Only the authorities connected with the Admiralty know what careful and complete measures have been taken to protect the Canadian Atlantic seaboard from attack by enemy sea craft. It may be taken for granted that nothing has been forgotten or neglected, that could possibly be done to secure the safety of the large and important cities and harbours in the Maritime Provinces. It was not always thus, but war conditions have brought about a great change.

No longer ago than 1911, Canada received a friendly visit from the German warship Bremen. Her officers were feted and her crew welcomed with the greatest cordiality and hospitality. In the harbour at Charlottetown the Bremen spent a considerable time. The officers gave out that they had lost an anchor, and they were given full freedom to search the bottom of the harbour for days for the missing implement. Then they were given permission to try their guns on targets set up on heights in the vicinity of the city and to recover their projectiles.

In a striking address delivered a few days ago at Charlottetown by Premier Mathieson, in the interest of the British Sailors' Relief Fund, the Premier said that no doubt soundings were being made at the time they pretended they were looking for the anchor, and that surveys were being made while projectiles were being recovered. He had not doubt that from that visit the German navy was provided with all the records necessary to enable a man-o'-war to enter the harbour by day or night.

The same vessel visited St. John's sailing right into the middle of the harbour in the silence of the night without causing any alarm or even awakening a single inhabitant or attracting a watchman.

ITALIANS MAKE NOTABLE ADVANCE IN NEW OFFENSIVE

Over Ten Thousand Austrian Prisoners Are Captured

Italians Capture Goritz After Severe Fighting Ten Thousand Prisoners

The Greatest Victory of the Whole Austro Italian War—Position Has Been Defended by the Austrians With the Greatest Stubbornness For More Than a Year—Several Important Positions Have Fallen Before the New Italian Offensive.

THE KEY TO TRIESTE

Special to The Examiner:

Rome, Aug. 9—Italians to-day occupied Goritz, taking ten thousand Austrian prisoners in and around town.

ROME, August 9.—Italian troops have scored their greatest victory since the opening of the Austro-Italian war.

Official anouncement was made late yesterday afternoon that the Goritz (Gorizia) bridgehead, where the Austrians have defended themselves with the greatest stubbornness for more than a year, has been captured by Italian troops.

At the same time it was announced that Monte Sabotino and Monte San Michele, scenes of almost equally bloody fighting and strongly fortified Austrian positions, have fallen before the new Italian offensive on the Isonzo.

It is said Goritz is being shelled to drive out the Austrians.

More than 8,000 prisoners were taken on August 6.

Italian artillery is driving the enemy out of houses just west of Goritz, it was officially announced. The fall of the fortress is considered by Italian military officers to be imminent.

Gorizia, Gores, or Goritz, 22 miles northwest of Trieste, lies a little removed from the left bank of the Isonzo at the foot of the mountain country through which that river has come by a deep gorge. It is the key to Trieste, for so long as it remains in Austrian hands a large body of men and guns will be available to attack and cue the communications of any Italian army proceeding towards Trieste between the mountains back of Goritz and the sea.

Hillaire Belloc calls the taking of Goritz the "main Italian operation"—the most important task confronting Italian armies.

The bridgehead was therefore one of the most important defensive positions of the Austrians along the Isonzo front. It was the scene of heavy fighting in the early months of the war when the Italians, after making considerable advances, were finally held up along the Isonzo line.

Gorizia is the principal city of the Isonzo Valley, with a normal population of about 30,000. Its buildings, however, were long since levelled by shell fire and those of its citizens who have not fled are living underground. In the matter of underground defences, Goritz may be called "the Verdun of the Isonzo front."

THE TURNING POINT.

ROME, August 9.—Two million men are battling fiercely along the Isonzo front in a great struggle, centring about Gortiz that may prove the turning point of the war. With the Goritz bridgehead and surrounding heights strongly in Italian hands, Italian troops are pouring across the river for the assault upon Goritz itself, singing gaily as they advance under a hot fire, their helmets decked with flowers. Scores of great guns already are pounding the Austrian stronghold. It is believed certain here that Gorits will fall before a storming attack within a few hours, if it is not already in Italian hands.

A later despatch states that Goritz has capitulated, and that ten thousand prisoners passed into the hands of the Italians.

Feats of British Aviators Surpass the Imagination

Ceaseless Rain of Projectiles Falls on Germans at Rear of Somme Line—Explosion of Bombs is Felt at Height of Nearly Two Miles—Germans Ordered to Retake British Positions.

ENEMY ATTACKS REPULSED

LONDON, August 9.—The aviators felt the concussion 9,000 feet in the air when a brigade of British aeroplanes bombarded Heninlietard (northeast of Arras) with a shower of 112-pound bombs.

When the German sheds and storehouse at Martinpuich were fired by incendiary bombs a vast pillar of smoke from the resulting conflagration rose to a height of 8,000 feet.

The work of the British aviators recently has surpassed the wildest flights of imagination. Aerial flights which attract sensational attention are an incident of the offensive campaign. Overwhelming numbers of aeroplanes are concentrated on the narrow front of the Somme battle in coordiation with a superior, unceasing volume of gunfire. The aeroplanes move in larger and larger flotillas and there have been cases with a dozen engaged in battle on either side.

The German first line and second line trenches, headquarters, billets and supply depots of all kinds have been bombed, the aerial offensive being limited only by the number of aeroplanes and the supply of bombs. Not a village occupied by the Germans in the neighbourhood of the front that has not had its aerial bombardment, according to accounts. Barges and automobile trucks have ben set on fire. One moving train was blown up.

The dry official accounts of the Aviation Corps and their aviators' jargon reveal amazing feats every day. A pilot describes an average experience thus:—

"I first attacked a Roland, but finding a Fokker behind turned and manoeuvred under his tail. He fired one drum at very close range, and the Fokker nose dived and went down with a spin."

If it had gone down direct it would have been a "crasher."

ORDERED TO REGAIN PLATEAU.

PARIS, August 9.—A despatch to La Liberte, dated North of France, says:—

"The Germans furiously counter attacked positions taken the day before by the British north of Pozieres. An order had been given to the units in the Pozieres sector to retake from the British at whatever cost Hill 160, as shown by the order of the day issued by General von Belaw and read to the troops. The order said:—'We must at whatever price regain possession of the Pozieres plateau, which, if it remains in the hands of the English, would give them a precious advantage. Attacks will be led by successive waves, separated by a distance of eighty metres. Troops which first gain footing on the plateau must remain there and await necessary reinforcements at whatever loss there may be. Any officer or man who fails to resist, even unto death, on the conquered ground, will be summoned immediately before a court-martial.'

"A number of copies of this document were taken from prisoners. Two divisions participated in the heavy attack.

"The Australians again covered themselves with glory. One regiment, which occupied advanced trenches to the left of the Bapaume road on the edge of the plateau, gave proof of magnificent heroism in resisting the assaults there of Bavarian and Saxon regiments, holding out stoically under a deluge of shot and shell and yielding not an inch of ground. The regiment suffered appreciable losses, but its courageous resistance enabled the English commander to make the necessary dispositions to check the German counter offensive."

FIST FIGHTS ENLIVEN SCHOOL BOARD ROW

CHARGE OF COLLUSION IN LETTING CONTRACTS LEADS TO BLOWS AT BAYONNE MEETING.

New York, August 9.—Two fist fights between two prominent members of the Board of Education, of Bayonne, N.J., made a recent session of that body a lively and interesting affair.

The principals in the bouts were Michael J. Donovan, a contractor and a prominent Democratic politician, and Thomas Kerman, superintendent of the Babcock and Wilcox boiler plant. The cause of the dispute was a row over the letting of contracts for the new school buildings. Mr. Donovan charged that there had been collusion in some of the bidding.

Architects, contractors and agents of building concerns who were present at the session and who witnessed the fights, agreed that Mr. Donovan was worsted in both of the contests. His face was marked up and both of his eyes discolored.

Trouble has been brewing for some time. During the session of the board Mr. Donovan on several occasions, it is said, aroused the ire of other members by sneering remarks concerning the manner in which bids for contracts had been made.

"It would not surprise me," he said, "if the contractors had been selected before the bids were advertised for."

The fight followed.

Crown Prince Holds Verdun Army Intact

By Senator Charles Humbert

Paris, August 9.—I have completed my third visit to Verdun since the battle began. The leaders and the soldiers still declare that the Germans will not get the fortress. They are aware that the fight is not ended, but our troops are more than confident.

A highly placed officer tells me Germany has not withdrawn a single man from the Crown Prince's army for the Somme front nor scarcely diminished the strength of her artillery before Verdun, but she no longer throws fresh divisions into the battle and appears to be more careful in the expenditure of shells.

The spirts of the German troops are lower. We are taking more prisoners, and there are deserters.

Those who think that the war is almost ended should see the frightful carnage and the horror of the battlefield.

It is a spectacle of two nations throttling one another, pouring out their blood and their strength and soul till one drops from exhaustion.

BERLINER TAGEBLATT SUPPRESSED; ADMITTED HUNS STARTED THE WAR

"Undoubtedly the Conflict Could Have Been Averted had the Government Desired to Avoid It," Was Outspoken Declaration—It Adds War Would Have Been Averted Had the Reichstag Been Consulted.

LONDON, Aug. 9.—According to the Daily Express, the following represents a translation of part of the article for which the Berliner Tageblatt was suppressed:

"The declaration of this war was inevitable and that Germany was forced into it unprepared and against her will cannot be supported except by the most extreme partisians. Undoubtedly the conflict could have been avoided had the Government desired to avoid it, as doubtless it would have been had the Reichstag been taken into the confidence of our rulers instead of merely being presented with a recital of actions taken independently of Parliament.

"The proposals for a conference put forward by Sir Edward Grey were ejected befoe the members of the Reichstag had an opportunity of hearing them, and the Imperial Chancellor's statement with regard to the regrettable necessity of violating the neutrality of Belgium was also made after the event.

A YEAR INDOORS.

"For thirteen months I was so bad with chronic indigestion that I could not go out of doors. Nerves were unstrung, the heart bad, and smothering feelings came on till I thought that I would choke. Doctors' treatment failed me so I began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which I thank for my present good health. I am now doing my housework and have a family of ten.

Women and Children Killed In Air Raid

Early This Morning Zeppelins Visit the East Coast of England and Southeast Scotland—Germany's Method of Retaliation

DAMAGE WAS SLIGHT

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, Aug. 9.—Zeppelins raided the east coast of England early this morning, and another Zeppelin raided south-east Scotland without penetrating far from the coast, the War Office announced to-day. Three women and one child were killed and fourteen persons injured. The Zeppelins dropped a number of bombs on certain localities. They were engaged by coast guards and driven away from their objective without doing any damage of military importance the statement said.

RETALIATION.

THE HAQUE, Aug. 9.—Two hundred German soldiers were killed or injured in recent allied air raids on Metz, the capital of Lorraine, according to word received here to-day. The station and barracks were seriously damaged.

The German war office stated that "some damage" was done in the raid on Metz. To-day's Zeppelin raid on unfortified English and Scotch towns and the killing of women and children is doubtless Germany's retaliation for the successful raid on German fortified camps at Metz and the death of her soldiers.

FIFTY-TWO YEARS IN PRIESTHOOD

Bishop Dowling, of Hamilton, is Receiving Congratulations—Was Once Bishop of the Peterborough Diocese

Hamilton, Aug. 8.—The congratulations of a very wide circle of friends are being extended to-day to Right Rev. Thomas Joseph Dowling, D.D., Lord Bishop of Hamilton, who is celebrating the 52nd anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood. In spite of Bishop Dowling's advanced years he is in the enjoyment of excellent health and still able to administer the affairs of the diocese over which he has presided for so many years.

In 1881 he was made vicar general of the diocese of Hamilton and two years later was appointed its administrator. In 1887 the Bishop of Peterboro died and father Dowling was elected Bishop of that diocese. There he remained two years, when he returned to Hamilton as Lord Bishop of this diocese. In 1906 Bishop Dowling was elected to the office of grand spiritual adviser of the C. M. B. A.

To-day Bishop Dowling enjoys the distinction of being the senior bishop of the Roman Catholic Church in Canada, and in recognition of his faithful services he has been made an assistant at the Pontifical throne.

Chinaman For Allies Germans Arrest Him

Baltimore, Mr., August 9.—His loyalty to the British cause, his loud and repeated boasts of his allegiance, coupled with his being the possessor of a particularly ferocious grin, won a trip to the Northeastern police station for Charlie Chin, a Chinese laundryman.

It is all because Charlie lives in a neighborhood populated almost entirely by families of German origin. Believing China to be an ally of Gt. Britain, the glossy-finish artist has elected himself a defender of the allies' cause. It was testified before Justice Clift by a dozen or more of the neighbors that the Chinaman makes frequent appearances on the step of his shop and shouts in pidgin English:

"I'm English, hooray! We win! Dutch no good!"

MOTHER OF FOUR CHILDREN

How Lydia E.Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Kept Her Well and Strong.

Lincoln, Illinois.—"I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for ten years with good results and I have four healthy children. This summer I was in a very run down condition and the very hot weather seemed more than I could stand, but I commenced taking your Compound in June and from then until September 25th, when my last baby was born, I got along much better than I had before. My baby was a girl and weighed 14 pounds at birth, and I recovered very rapidly which I am sure was due to your medicine. I am well and strong now, nurse my baby and do all my work. I had the same good results with your medicine when needed before my other children came and they are all healthy. My mother has taken your medicine with equal satisfaction. She had her last child when nearly 44 years old and feels confident she never would have carried him through without your help, as her health was very poor."—Mrs. T. F. CLOYD, 1355 North Gulick Ave, Decatur, Ill.

Expectant mothers should profit by Mrs. Cloyd's experience, and trust to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

HOW CANTEENS ARE RUN

British Committee to Get Fair Prices For Forces In Training

Canteens form a far more important branch of British army services than formerly, when they were only the "bars" and the "tuck-shops" of the soldier. Every commanding officer now receives a sum of money monthly, equivalent to 11 cents per man per day, which must be spent, through the canteen, to the best advantage of the soldier in supplementing his ration of bread, meat, and bacon. The officer is not allowed to purchase outside the canteen and many complaints have arisen from the fact that commanding officers have been unable to reconcile the quality and prices of supplies bought in his regimental canteen with supplies in local shops and in neighboring canteens. In addition there have been similar complaints from soldiers. Some commanding officers have gone the length of refusing to buy from the canteen and have risked court-martial by buying elsewhere.

By appointing officers or civilians of equal standing to visit camps, inspect canteens and take samples, the British Canteen Committee is trying to keep in close touch with commanding officers' complaints. With the help of local advisory committees it hopes to facilitate the purchase of local supplies of fresh vegetables and dairy produce, and in many ways add to the comfort and welfare of the men. There is no change in the system under which the contractor pays one-tenth of his daily takings to the committee and the latter refunds four-fifths to the commanding officer for regimental games and other funds. These arrangements do not affect the canteens of the Expeditionary Forces, which are run by the army for the benefit of the soldiers in the field.

Summer-Spoiled Skin Removed by Absorption

As undue summer exposure usually leaves an undesirable surface of tan, redness or roughness, often freckles, too, the sensible thing to do is to remove such surface. There's nothing better for this than ordinary mercolized wax, which actually absorbs an unwholesome complexion. The thin layer of surface skin is itself absorbed, gently, gradually, so there's no inconvenience, no detention, indoors. Spread the wax lightly over the entire face at bedtime and take it off in the morning with warm water. If you will get one ounce of mercolized wax at the drugstore, use it for a week or so, you may expect marked improvement daily. When the underlaying skin is wholly in view your complexion will be a marvel of spotless purity and beautiful whiteness.

Don't let those summer wrinkles worry you; worry breeds more wrinkles. Banish them by flushing the face in a solution of powdered saxolite, 1 oz., dissolved in ½ pt. witch hazel. Used daily for a while this will be found wonderfully effective.

WAR SURGERY'S MARVELS

"I have seen two soldiers, with shrapnel bullets in their brains, sitting up in bed talking and laughing with their friends. Is there no limit to the marvels of modern surgery?" writes an orderly in one of the London hospitals. Judging from the marvellous achievements of our war surgeons, we do not think there is. Quite recently a Canadian soldier, whose lower jaw had been partly carried away by a fragment of shell, causing terrible disfigurement, was provided with a new jaw, built with a piece of the wounded man's rib.

In another case a lieutenant in a Highland regiment, whose lower jaw had been almost completely blown away, was doctored in a marvellous manner. The surgeon put a new floor to the man's mouth, actually induced two pieces of bone to grow on the lower jaw, fixed complete artificial teeth, and healed the remains of the lips, with the result that now the man is as normal as ever, and the only trace of his mishap is a slight scar by the mouth. In another case the successful re-uniting of the spinal cord was made for the first time in surgery. A soldier whose spinal cord had been completely severed by a shell splinter was so treated that in a short time he was able to move his lower limbs and gradually recovered his sensory powers. Another wonderful operation was the extracting of a fragment of hand grenade from the heart of a Parisian sergeant, the cure being established beyond all doubt.

BRITISH SPY'S FEAT IN ISLAND FORTRESS

Heligoland's Secrets Not so Cleverly Kept—Thrilling Story of Narrow Escape

Heligoland was British in 1890. It was just a lump of waste rock of no particular use to anybody, except seagulls and fishermen. To-day that rock is the most strongly fortified place in the world. The island covers about 130 acres; it is a mile long, and stands 200 feet above the level of the sea. In the southeast corner there are the town and harbor, with some of the finest sands in Europe. Anybody could go to the town, and tourists were welcomed there; but nobody was allowed to wander over the island. Everywhere there were "Verboten" notices, and sentries with rifles to make sure that everybody understood that "verboten" meant "forbidden."

As a Secret Service agent, I was only interested in that part of the island which was walled off by the notice boards. So I changed my name to Franz Gagelmann, went to Essen, and became a workman in Krupp's famous armament factory. Then after much careful manœuvring, I managed to get myself sent, along with a hundred other workmen, to set some heavy guns in position on the island.

Guarded Like Convicts

But we were not allowed to see much. We did not even know in what part of the island we were working. We were under the closest supervision. Sentries guarded us night and day, like convicts. We were never allowed to go down to the town. All I could learn from the gallery in which I was working was that the Germans have literally hacked out of the solid rock the strongest fortress the world has ever seen.

But I wanted to learn far more than that. It was useless to think of slipping off at night and making a few observations. The sentries were far too watchful, and they had a habit of counting the workmen at odd times. So I had to evolve a rather elaborate plan. One day I slipped down and twisted my ankle so badly that I could not walk. They carried me off to the hospital. Luckily it was some distance, and, by keeping my eyes open, I managed to learn quite a lot about the galleries and to note the position of several guns and a magazine.

As soon as I was in the hospital I spent half an hour going over in my mind everything that I had seen. It was not long before I had everything fixed in my memory, but I still had no idea as to the points of the compass. Luckily the night was clear, so suddenly I felt exceedingly faint, and asked to be taken to the window. A glance at the stars was quite sufficient to give me my bearings.

Life In His Hands

Having only an alleged sprained ankle, I was rather neglected by the doctors and nurses. So much so, in fact, that I managed to slip away. I was now carrying my life in my hands. At any moment I might be seen by a sentry. My absence was sure to be noticed at the hospital. And I had to make as many observations as possible. Within half an hour I had found the weak spot in the defences which was being strengthened with heavy armor plate.

There was a shout. I had been seen by a sentry. I ducked and ran. In a few minutes there was a regular hue and cry; but I managed to reach the town, where I had confederates. And so it happened that the next day Mr. Charles T. Held, an American citizen, returned to Hamburg after his visit to Heligoland. With him were his wife and daughters. He had his passport, his hotel bill duly receipted, and everything else in perfect order. But in the heel of Sadie Held's shoe there was a rough chart containing a lot of very useful information about Heligoland.

HOLLAND KNOWS GERMANY

Knows No Need of Hun Protection, Says Raemaekers

Louis Raemaekers, Dutch artist, discusses an important question, as follows: On which side will Holland enter the war? I have heard this question asked many times in England. Believe me, no Dutchman who knows anything at all about the situation has any doubts about it whatsoever. It is difficult for English people to understand the situation as it appears to the Dutch. Let me try to explain. The Germans are a curious mixture of great cunning and stupidity. Their stupidity is more especially evident when they think they understand the psychology of other peoples.

They are thinking they may succeed in making us believe that the presence of their armies in Holland is necessary for our protection! The Dutch, of course, laugh at the idea except for a very small and quite unimportant pro-German party. But the Germans are in earnest, or pretend to be, and you will have noticed that pro-German Dutch papers were quick to circulate the lie that the precautions of the Dutch Government were taken in consequence of a decision made at the Allies' Conference in Paris.

SOME ONE CARES.

When you meet some disappointment,
an' yer feelin' kind o' blue;
When yer plans have all got side-tracked or some friend has proved untrue;
When yer toiling, praying, struggling at the bottom of the stairs—
It's like a panacea—jest to know that some one cares.

Some one who can appreciate one's efforts when he tries;
Some one who seems to understand—
and so can sympathize;
Some one who, when he's far away,
still wonders how he fares—
Some one who never can forget — some one who really cares.

It will send a thrill of rapture through the framework uv the heart;
It will stir the inner bein' till the tear drops want to start;
For this life is worth the livin', when some one yer sorrows shares—
Life is truly worth the livin' when you know that some one cares.

Oh, this world is not all sunshine—
many dark clouds disclose;
There's a cross for ev'ry joy bell, an' a thron for ev'ry rose!
But the cross is not so grievous, nor the thorn the rosebud wears—
An' the clouds have silver linin's — when some one really cares.

BE BRIGHT, WELL, STRONG RESTORE YOUTHFUL LOOKS

Let your fight for better health begin now! Before you feel any warning of physical collapse, cleanse and strengthen and build up your system. The one remedy for that tired droopy feeling is Dr. Hamilton's Pills, the acknowledged king of all tonic medicines. Thousands of men and women in the late years of life retain their youthful looks and feeling simply because they regulate their system with this old reliable family remedy. Nothing so good for the bowels, stomach or kidneys. Cures headaches, prevents biliousness, stops aching pains in the back and limbs. Get a 25c box of Dr. Hamilton's Pills to-day.

Here is a tried remedy for toothache. Fill a small cup with boiling vinegar. Dip a piece of cotton wool into the vinegar, and rub the gum. Let the vinegar be as hot as you can endure. Stop the aching tooth with some of the wool. In five minutes the pain will have ceased. Sometimes, however, two applications must be made.

To get a tight ring off a finger thread a needle with a long end of strong cotton—a short needle is the best to use for this purpose. Pass the eye of the needle under the ring towards the palm of the hand, pull the thread through a few inches, twine the long end of the cotton tightly round the finger up to the nail, then take hold of the short end and unwind it. The thread pressing against the ring will gradually remove it from the finger.

To keep knives clean, fill a flower pot with fine, dry sand, and keep it on the dresser. When putting away knives, instead of laying them in the knife box, plunge the blades into the sand. The sand keeps them clean, and unless used for anything acid they will need little cleaning, thus saving both knives and labour.

CHAMBERLAIN'S TABLETS

Act directly on the liver and regulate the bowels. Price 25c. A month's treatment in a package.

SURGEON'S SIDE OF WAR

Pain, Sorrow and Death Obscure View of Victory

Dr. Martin writes from the front: The surgeon sees the seamy side of war. He comes close to the men stricken down in the field, helpless and bleeding and in pain. He stands by them in their dark hours in hospital and by their bedsides when they die. While the world is hearing the earthquake voice of Victory, he is perhaps kneeling on the straw easing the path to a dying man, one of the victors in the fight, or perhaps operating in a mean cottage, surrounded by wounded men waiting their turn on the table.

The gallant charge, the brave defence, the storming of the enemy's position are heralded in despatches and in song and story, but translated into the notebook of the surgeon in khaki they represent many dead, many wounded, much crippling and mutilation, tears, distress, and broken hearts.

I have seen brave men die the death in battle—changed in a second of time from forceful, vital, volcanic energy to still, inanimate rest. I have seen mortally wounded men pass uncomplainingly and composedly to the valley of the shadow, and I have seen faces become anxious and troubled at the thought of those dear and loving ones left behind and of the aching hearts and tears. I have written letters of farewell from dying men and officers to wives and sweethearts and children, and have felt the horror and misery of it all. It is a sad and mournful sight to see brave young men die.

GENERAL ALLENBY
Commander of the British cavalry in the western war area.

FEAT OF TWO "75's"

How two French "75's" stopped a German advance under difficult conditions is told by H. Warner Allan in a letter from the front. He says: "The Argonne, with all its cover, is a difficult country for artillery, but the French gunners there have accomplished a number of feats of which they may well be proud. There is a point on one of the tree-hidden roads of the forest which is shown to the visitor as the scene of the exploits of a certain artillery lieutenant. It is no distance from the German lines, but on one occasion, when the Crown Prince was hammering away at the French trenches and his infantry had left their cover, this lieutenant brought up two "75's" and set them one on either side of the road. There was no time to link up his guns to the front trenches, but, with the aid of a compass and a map, he blazed away at the line where he was convinced the Germans would try to pass. He knew the country well, and scarcely wasted a shell, so efficient were his map and compass. The German advance stopped suddenly, and the next day the French counted 400 bodies in the steep hillside, for the majority of which those '75's' had been responsible."

KITCHENER'S THREE YEAR MINIMUM

Shortly after England declared war as an ally of France it was reported that Lord Kitchener had said that the war would probably last at least three years. After he was lost on the Hampshire it was reported that he had recently said that matters had so developed that he did not hesitate to say that the war would probably be over in less time than he had previously calculated. Recently Lloyd-George, who now holds the great Kitchener's place as civil head of military affairs, announced that in a few months there would be momentous events which would probably end the war. More recently, several very high authorities of several of the allied countries have pointed out that the advances on the western and Italian fronts, as important as they are, have their main importance not in the positions, men and equipment captured, but in establishing the fact that the offensive has passed entirely into our hands, making it necessary for the enemy to shift his forces at our will. Such authorities are unanimous in the opinion that these advances in the west will continue at slowly but steadily increasing speed until the spring and early summer of 1917. They also say that the brilliant advances of Russia will probably continue, but will also probably lessen in speed and extent as Russia gets nearer and nearer the German border. The general consensus of opinion seems to indicate that by the early summer of 1917 Turkey and Bulgaria will no longer be troublesome enemies, Austria and Hungary will be driven well west of their middle line, and Germany will be forced out of Belgium and France, and struggling to defend her powerful border fortifications. Then, if Germany can still muster men for these greatly shortened lines, will come the deadliest part of the whole conflag- will make the war even more terrible ration. If possible, Germany will make the war even more terrible than at any time in the past. It is beyond human imagination to picture what that may mean.

GERMAN ARE TORTURERS

Rack and Asphyxiating Coffin Among Kultur's Finest Examples

The Paris Matin, describing awful conditions in German camps for war prisoners, says: In the German system of repression, special mention must be made of the aspyxiating coffin. This is a large tin box in the shape of a coffin, wherein the condemned man is placed after being suitably bound and gagged, and the lid is then hermetically sealed in order to prevent the influx of fresh air. The poor, miserable wretch soon begins to stifle, and finally loses consciousness, when the coffin is opened and the patient is revived by the administration of a restorative, and then once more thrown back into this infernal coffin of torture.

As regards the torturing rack this is a stake fitted with all conceivable manner of fine cords. The condemned man is suspended in such a manner that these cords bite into his flesh as soon as the members become stretched under the weight of his body. Even the most hardened soldiers are unable to resist this form of torture more than two hours. As soon as they lose consciousness, they are let down and they regain consciousness, but the same torture begins again on the morrow, and to think that the official dose of this punishment lasts 28 hours!

TWO YEARS OF WAR.

Once more swift time on restless circling wings
Of war unleashed, the day returning brings,
When at a lawless tyrant's reckless word,
Red carnage bared her keen relentless sword.

Grief laden 'neath her cruel, gory sway,
Two years of mortal strife have passed away;
And oft to Heaven ascends the cry, how long
Shall prosper rapine's deeds of fiendish wrong?

On many a heart the record of those years
Indelibly is traced, by scorching tears;
From many a home, hope's radiant smile is fled,
And countless orphans weep, in vain, for bread.

Unbridled lust, her banner has displayed;
Dark wreck and ruin, grim, the voice obeyed.
Till hapless Belgium, ground beneath the keel,
Of armed oppressors, felt the piercing steel.

To aid her, thousands from our native land,
Nobly have gone at duty's stern command,
And some beyond the broad Atlantic's wave,
Are sleeping in a nameless foreign grave.

Although the stubborn Teutons' purblind hate
Seems not a whit in fury to abate,
His onslaughts, now, by land and sea and air,
Are but the desperate struggles of despair.

And still our hearts, by steadfast hope, upborn,
Can laugh the haughty foeman's power to scorn.

Not in the arm of flesh our faithless boast,
But in the Almighty Captain of our host.
Not always is the victory to the strong;
But still, to Him, issues of war belong.

—Mrs. A. F. Calder.

Kitchener's Way.

Somebody once said of Lord Kitchener that half a dozen words from him could reduce the most cocksure young officer to a state of limp dejection. An example is the case of the fussy young officer who had been appointed aide-de-camp to his lordship. On the first morning this young officer was summoned to Kitchener's tent to receive a series of verbal orders which were to be taken to another officer. Three times the young man asked Kitchener to repeat the orders, and three times Kitchener obliged him, but when the young man started to go over them again the great man's patience gave out. "One moment," he said, and, sitting down at his table, he hastily scribbled a few words and handed them to the aide-de-camp. "Now, this is really important," he went on. "Take this note to the Chief Medical Officer at once. I have asked him to examine your ears very carefully, because there is evidently something seriously wrong with them. And as you go out tell them to send me somebody else."

Ques.: "How much walking time" do you lose?"

Ans.: "Come again, Jee, I don't see it."

Ques.: "How often do your employees take a walk at your expense?"

Ans.: "Say—it's lunch time, don't keep me."

Ques.: "Wait a minute, this means hundreds of dollars to you. Answer me this one—where is the time recorded in your plant?"

Ans.: "At the factory door, of course."

Ques.: "Then they do take exercise at your expense? Your employees, I mean. They can take a quite a promenade couldn't they, from factory door to department door?"

Ans.: "Promenade, nothing. Why, what, what's the point?"

Ques.: "Why not put a Time Recorder at Each Department door? Then your employees can take all the time they need in the halls or the lavatories or cloak rooms. But they can't get into the bench until they are all ready for work and just then they "punch the clock." How about it?"

Ans.: "Sounds good. Put me next."

Ques.: "Will you write a letter TODAY? Address it to the International Time Recording Co., corner McGill and Notre Dame Street, Montreal, or to their Head Office, Anderson street, Toronto, for latest folders and prices. Remember your strongest competitor may be able to under quote you because he buys the biggest of all raw products, WORKING TIME, closer than you do. Shouldn't delay, should you?"

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Her Atonement

A Story For Memorial Day

By ESTHER VANDEVEER

The summer of 1863 was an eventful period of my life. I was then a girl of eighteen, and the war between the states was at its height. I was living in Pennsylvania just north of the Maryland line and on a road leading up to Gettysburg.

One morning persons began to pass our house, making all the haste they could. Some of them were on foot, some in vehicles of different kinds, and nearly all carried articles of furniture or household utensils. When asked why and whence they were moving so hurriedly they said that a great army of Confederates was advancing to invade the northern states.

We held a family conclave to decide what to do. We were all Union sympathizers and knew we had nothing to expect from the southerners. But it didn't make much difference which side we were on, for the fences were sure to go for firewood, and soldiers who are bent on pillage don't mind which side they loot. We decided to stay at home and protect our property as far as we could. We buried the valuables—some silver and a little jewelry—and I walked back and forth over the ground under which it lay so that the recent digging might not be noticed. Father took down his fowling piece and started off northward to join the Federals.

When we had hidden everything that was hidable we waited. Father and the boys—the boys had long ago enlisted in the Union army—had always kept guns in the house for hunting and two or three revolvers. After father's departure I found that one revolver had been left, and I took it and put it in my pocket—for women had pockets in their dresses in those days—not knowing but that I might have occasion to use it.

It seems to me now, an old woman, that I must have been a plucky girl, though I didn't think so at the time. Indeed, the idea of a horde of men, with weapons to kill, sweeping over us like a cloud of locusts was enough to terrify any one. I felt the danger, but I kept my self possession. And I have noticed all through my long life that it is the unexpected that happens. Vice versa, the expected does not happen.

Surely this was illustrated in the first locust which came in advance of the swarm. A young fellow in gray uniform, with gold braid on his sleeves, rode up to the house. I was on the porch. He took off his sombrero, smiled and said in the most deferential manner and voice:

"Can you tell me if there is a road leading eastward within a few miles north of us?"

There was certainly nothing to be afraid of in this young fellow, and I bravely answered:

"I can, but I won't."

He seemed rather amused than offended at my blunt reply. At any rate, he smiled, showing a set of very white teeth.

"You are a Unionist, I suppose?" he said.

"I am," was my firm reply.

"Then you are quite right to refuse information to a Confederate."

He looked up the road, hesitated, then spoke again.

"Would your Union sympathies prevent your giving me a crust of bread? I've been on the go for twenty-four hours with not a bite."

This was certainly not what I had dreaded. I had pictured a lot of rough men coming to the house and helping themselves to what they could find without asking permission. Here was a handsome young man deferentially begging a crust of bread.

"I will give you what we have," I replied and went into the house. He dismounted and, throwing the bridle rein over a picket in the fence, followed me. The cook had run away with other fugitives, and since there was no one to do anything but myself I set some cold meat and bread and butter on the table and made a cup of coffee. The young man was really hungry—indeed, he seemed famished. And it did my heart good to see how he enjoyed the coffee.

"That's the first cup of real coffee," he said, "that I have tasted in more than a year. You northerners have no idea what privations our southern people are enduring. The blockade has cut us off from every luxury."

While he was eating I was wondering why he wanted to know about a road running eastward. I asked him some questions, which he answered frankly, and from his replies I learned that he was an officer on the staff of a general commanding one of the corps of the Confederate army and that he wished to reach the general commanding troops on the road next east and running parallel with the one on which we were. In his sword belt was a folded paper, which I presumed he was carrying to this commander.

The only persons in the house besides myself and the officer were mother and Aunt Charlotte, and they had locked themselves in a room on the second floor. My eyes were fixed on the paper the young man carried, and, womanlike, I was curious to know what was in it. Then the idea popped into my head to do my country a service by appropriating it. Had I been a man this might have been easy, for I had a revolver in my pocket and could produce it instantly, while his own pistol was in a holster on his hip. A man might have pointed his weapon at him and ordered him to throw up his hands, then possessed himself of the paper. But this was a good deal for a woman to do. At any rate I shrank from it. I determined to use more feminine means.

I noticed that it was difficult for him to keep awake while he was eating. There was nothing surprising in this, for I have heard that in wartime a man may pass several days without sleep, and many a man has slept under fire. When he had finished his meal I went to the cupboard where father kept his cigars and, taking the box, offered it to the officer. He opened his eyes with delight, and taking one bit off the end, and I lighted a match and held the flame to the cigar.

I now had an object and softened my manner toward him decidedly. Pointing to a lounge, I invited him to take a nap on it. He protested against the nap, but could not refrain from stretching himself upon it for a few whiffs of the cigar. I asked him if he would not take half an hour's doze, provided I would awaken him at the end of that time. He positively refused, though he confessed that he had had no sleep for two days. While he was refusing to sleep he passed into slumber.

He had hardly fallen asleep before I had the paper from his belt. I read it and it proved to be a message to a general on another route just when and where to meet the corps on our road and march together toward Gettysburg. Leaving the young man sound asleep, I went outside, mounted his horse and galloped away northward.

It was evening when I reached the camp of one of the corps near Gettysburg and delivered to the general the dispatch. He read it with great interest and said that it indicated what the southern forces were intending. Then he sent it to the commander of the Federal army.

All was changed when I reached home. An army—or part of one—had swept over the place, but though the fences and other articles that could be moved were gone, the place was not injured beyond repair. Our buried valuables had not been disturbed. The officer from whom I had taken the dispatch had, of course, vanished. Notwithstanding the service I had rendered the Union cause my heart smote me for the position in which I had placed him.

Then a boom coming down on the north wind announced the great historic battle that proved to be the turning point of the war. For three days we listened to the booming, like distant thunder; then down the road came the Confederates in retreat. They did not stop, but we expected another visitation when the Federal army would follow them. This, however, did not occur at once.

The Confederates left numerous wounded men in the different houses along the route, and we all took hold to care for them. I was very busy preparing such articles as they needed. Several wounded men were quartered at our house, but I left them much of the time to the care of my mother and my aunt, while I devoted myself to the production and distribution of supplies. This led me to a great number of the neighboring houses.

One day I went to a farmhouse to leave some lint. When I entered the living room, where several wounded men were lying on cots, there, pale and helpless, lay the officer whom I had robbed. Though I had done a legitimate deed of war I felt as guilty as if I had run a knife into him. Perhaps if I had met him strong and well I should have triumphed over him. As it was, I was seized with a desire to atone for what I had done.

I did not dare face him and beat a hasty retreat. But the next day, summoning my resolution, I returned and walked into the room where he was lying. He recognized me at once, but I did not receive the look of reproaches of bitter antagonism that I deserved.

"I presume," I said, "that you despise me?"

"Why should I despise you? All is fair in war." Then, with that pleasing smile with which he had greeted me the first time I saw him, he added "and in love."

It would be impossible to express my feelings as I stood over him looking down upon him, that smile on his face, which grew sad as he thought of the disadvantage that had accrued to his cause through his yielding to the fatigue which had overcome him.

"Forgive me," I said.

"I have nothing to forgive."

"I will do what I can to atone for what I have done. I will nurse you back to health."

"I shall feel a pride in being nursed by so brave and energetic a woman."

I kept my pledge. I devoted as much of my time to him as I could spare from my work for his wounded comrades. And when he had recovered he declared that my tender care had saved his life.

Three years later he reminded me of my words, "I will do what I can to atone for what I have done," and declared that it would require a lifetime of devotion on my part to enable him to bear the position in which I had placed him with his commander and brother officers. I replied that my life would be devoted to that purpose.

We are now an aged and feeble couple. Our grandson is an officer in the United States army, and my husband participated in the war between his united country and the Spanish at the end of the last century.

WRONGDOING.

If society is to be further uplifted, if it is to be kept from slipping back, it must hold firmly to the right of saying that wrong is wrong, no matter who commits it or how guilty others may be. If there can be no responsibility and no condemnation till we get a perfect world there can be no way of holding the world up to the level which it has already reached.

DEUTSCHLAND HAS NOT PUT TO SEA AS YET

Norfolk, Va., August 8.—British authorities declare that the German super-submersible Deutchland, has not yet actually gone to sea.

This claim is based on the fact that the sounding apparatus on the British warships has not detected the submarine passing. It is declared these "listeners" would have recorded the presence of the submarine had she been within ten miles of a warship.

There is a report in marine circles here that the Deutschland is hiding in the bay after having made as it were to start out to sea.

Strategic Ignorance. — A certain conscientious young sub was in the front line the other day when a major on the divisional staff came along and began questioning the the boy, with a view to testing his alertness and efficiency. "What trench is this?" "I don't know, sir." "What regiment is on your right?" "I don't know, sir." "How do your rations come up?" "I don't know, sir." "Well, you don't seem to know much, young fellow, do you?" "Excuse me, sir, but I don't know who you are."

Gave Her a Lesson.—"Have you any rags to sell?" said the ragman to a thin looking woman who was standing at her door. "No," replied the woman, "excepting those I am wearing at the present time. If you want them you will have to take me, too." The ragman scanned the householder up and down, and a triumphant smile lurked around his lips. "I'm very sorry, ma'am," he replied, as he made for the gate, "I'm only buying rags—not bones."

PATRIOTISM

Patriotism, like Charity, should begin at home. The man who is willing at any time to protect his country against foreign foes should be willing AT ALL TIMES to protect his Family against such common foes as Poverty, Privation and Suffering.

A Life Insurance Company cannot take the place of a Husband.

BUT---

It can preserve the family from want.
It can lighten their load of care.
It can build a barrier against adversity.
It can strengthen the foundation of the home.
It can certify to a man's affectionate regard for his family.
It can place his widow beyond the need of carrying for support.
It can add to a man's years by freeing him from anxiety.
It can enhance the respect and esteem of the public and of his wife and children for him.

PILES

If you suffer from this painful malady, apply Zam-Buk. It is purely herbal, quickly eases the dull, gnawing pain, stops bleeding, ends the irritation, and in a short time completely and permanently cures. Zam-Buk should be in every house.

Mrs. C. Hanson, Poplar, B.C., says: "I suffered for years with bleeding piles. The pain was often so bad I could hardly walk. I tried remedy after remedy, and finally underwent an operation, but only got temporary relief. At last I tried Zam-Buk. Perseverance with this completely cured me and there has been no return of the trouble."

BLOODSUCKER ONCE HIGHLY VALUED

Leech Was Much in Favour With Old-time Physicians.

Our great-grandfathers regarded the leech as a sort of first-aid outfit in case of sickness. In the days when blood-letting was a popular panacea, the physician would have worried less over the loss of his pill box than over the death of this little animal. And so long as blood-letting was popular there was nothing to match the efficiency of the leech.

Nature fitted him for the task to which the physician adapted him. Long before he was used on humans, the leech was performing operations of his own on fish, frogs and other neighbours of his in the mud and slime at the bottom of his marsh home.

His operating tools consists of a cup-like sucker at the end of his tail and another at his mouth. Also at his mouth are three semi-circular, sharp-toothed jaws, which he works together like a saw. With these he cuts his way through the scales of a fish and reaches the blood.

Then the leech's workike body begins to expand. He has 11 pairs of sacks in his stomach, and he must fill all these before he is satisfied. He drinks until he is from two to three times his natural size.

The leech is liveliest in daytime, and at night he curls up for a nap. When winter comes he buries himself in the mud and waits for warmer weather.

A WEAK HEART.

When the heart is weak or irregular in action, when the blood is thin and watery remember the blood forming qualities of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and by its use flood the system with rich, red vitalizing blood. This is nature's way of curing weakness and disease. It is the only way to ensure lasting benefits.

BRITAIN'S PENSION NEEDS.

Parliament to Be Asked for an Appropriation of $30,000,000.

LONDON, Aug. 7. — Parliament will this week be asked to vote £6,000,000 (approximately $30,000,000), including £1,000,000 already voted, to provide the full estimated cost of supplementary pensions of widows and dependents of non-commissioned officers and men and of partially disabled non-commissioned officers and men.

This sum, William Hayes Fisher, Parliamentary Secretary to the Local Government Board, explained in the House of Commons, is estimated on a number of deaths not exceeding 220,000, but if this number is exceeded the amount would be increased proportionately. An additional grant would be made for officers and men whose general circumstances warranted assistance.

GERMANS EAGER FOR SWEDISH AID IN WAR

Plan for Bringing Nation Into Alliance With Teutons Announced

SCHEME AIMED AT RUSSIA

REPORT TELLS OF MANY MISTAKES MADE BY TOO ENTHUSIASTIC PRO-GERMANS.

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 4.—A sensation has been created through all of Sweden by the publication of an alleged official report from a German agent in this country regarding a plan to bring Sweden into a political "if not closer" alliance with Germany as the northern link in "an immovable wall against Russia and against the Asiatic danger." This wall, representing a new idea as to Germany's plans, is referred to as being constructed by Turkey, Bulgaria, Austria and Germany.

For the work of propaganda in Sweden the alleged report asks for a preliminary appropriation of more than 100,000 marks ($25,000) and suggests that Turkey and the other allies of Germany be asked to contribute their proper share. The anti-German newspapers in Stockholm comment rather bitterly upon this suggestion of a interational "slush fund" for Sweden, but assert that many of the recommendations in the report, evidently written last December, have been carried into effect. It also is asserted that the report explains much of the recent activity in Sweden against Russia, and the attempt to force a situation which would cause Sweden to declare war as an ally of the Central Powers.

The report, as printed in detail, begins with a discussion of the possible effect of a Russian offensive this summer. It said that if Russia showed sufficient signs of recuperation to reorganize its armies into an effective force, it would be necessary at once to carry forward a propaganda in Sweden showing the Swedish people how greatly it would be to their advantage to interfere and ally themselves with Germany, "thus preserving their present interests and assuring their future." The report is addressed to "your Excellency," and says among other things:

WANT SWEDEN'S INTERVENTION

"Even if you have only a political union in mind, considerable work will be necessary to win over the Swedish elements not already on our side, and actively favoring an alliance with the Central Powers. Swedish sentiment cannot be swayed by sporadic methods. It must be trained by systematic and sustained propaganda. We must win over the entire people by an intensive effort. This propaganda must be cautiously executed if we are to gain the active interference of Sweden in the Spring of 1916. We must be particularly careful not to let it appear that the propaganda springs from a foreign source. Every political thinking Swede must be convinced that he had made his choice voluntarily and in the interest of his own nation.

"In the opinion of pro-German politicians, Sweden has not come into the war because she has lacked a direct cause. But gradually the political influences are becoming more and more unfavourable to the Entente, especially to England. The new constellation of nations, arranged by German diplomacy in the Balkans, has tended to win not only the sympathy, but the reason of the Swedish people for the Central Powers.

"Concerning the tactics of the propaganda, it should be carried forward on three main lines:

"First, opposition to and guarantees against British power.

"Second, information concerning true conditions in Russia and the danger threatening Sweden from that quarter.

"Third, the advantages of a lasting union with the Central Powers.

"The so-called Activist group in Sweden has lost considerably in influence lately. Perhaps the designation was unhappily chosen, for even some of the best pro-Germans, who believe in the ultimate goal of war on behalf of Germany, have hesitated to align themselves publicly with the group which has demanded immediate action without the necessary working up of public opinion.

"There is no denying that in the last ten months sentiment has been growing against throwing Sweden into the horrors of the war without a compelling cause. The pro-German group however, in its press and in its agitation against the Entente Powers, has been directing public opinion toward a neutrality as it should be."

"Undesirables" Among Activists.

The report then declares that the Activists have been so impatient and sharp in their demands as to create the suspicion of being foreign agents. Some of these unwise Activists, it says, must be cast aside, like many other pioneers, "unthanked." Too many "undesirables" had entered their ranks. The report continues:

"I believe that most of the Swedes, who must decide the fate of their nation, can be won over for union with the Central Powers. It is a question now of gathering our friends and many of those whose sympathies are with us but who yet stand apart in a new party which will stand between the Activists and the pacifists, by which at the psychological moment will combine forces with the Activists to bring about the desired result. So to this group or party we must get men whose names and whose standing place them above all suspicion. Our programme must avoid Jingoism or 'being more Swedish than the Swedes.'"

The report refers to "several unfortunate incidents" of the Activists' campaign, and particularly deals the pitcure delivered in Stockholm by the German professor, Wilhelm Ostwald, "publicly proclaiming Germany's plans of conquest."

"By systematic effort," it continues, "we could weaken the Social Democrats headed by Branting and who are so decidedly pro-English. I wish to propose a pamphlet in which the democracy of the Western Powers shall be laid bare in all its nakedness and where the real policy of England, and its actions against smaller nations, shall be placed in juxtaposition to the theory of English democracy.

"The Swedish-Russian question must, of course, play an important part in the propaganda. A Russian news bureau with a Swedish name, should at once be started in Stockholm because Russian questions now are given only small space in the newspapers. A beginning has been made for spreading this propaganda by John Lonnegren, a Swedish writer, in a work called 'Russia and the European War,' based upon the German work of Dr. Paul Rohrbach. In this publication the principle has been followed of giving it the character of a Swedish author and issuing it from a printing house above the suspicion of being in the pay of Germany.

Causes of Entente Sympathy.

"The main causes of Entente sympathy in Sweden, I find, are as follows:

"1. The publication in Germany of annexation of territorial plans.

"2. The supposed over-development of German militarism.

"3. The violation of Belgium's neutrality.

"4. The U-boat war (Lusitania.)

"5. The assertion of Entente friends that Germany alone was preparing to bring about war.

"6. The publication here of articles asserting the danger of German imperialism which would reduce Sweden to a vassal state of the empire."

The reopt deals with Sweden's growing export trade, the establishment of direct lines of steamers to America and to England, and the great increase of business with Russia, as one of the great obstacles in the way of inducing the people into a union with Germany, especially as they have discovered they can carry on trade independently of Hamburg.

CHINESE FINANCE IN TANGLED STATE

PEKING, Aug. 1. — In bygone times if China wanted money she had no difficulty in raising it by pawning some of her resources.

The rest of the world has never entirely lost the belief, inspired by reports of early travellers, that China is a land of fabulous riches. Chinese loans, in view of this, have always enjoyed great popularity in the world's money markets, and even at present, when her political affairs are in a bad state, her credit is said to stand higher than that of Japan.

The days of easy borrowing, however, have passed. Peking is no longer as in the early days of the republic, crowded by financiers from all the corners of the earth prepared to induce China to borrow money. Not only is China unable to borrow money from the foreigners, but she is discovering that her past exploits as a borrower are adding to her present embarrassments. Japan was the first to give her an unpleasant reminder that financial chains hang heavily. The revenue from the salt taxes in China is pledged as security for the interest payable ona loan of $125,000,000 borrowed in 1913.

The reorganization of the salt administration was undertaken as soon as the loan agreement was signed, with the co-operation of foreigners, headed by Sir Richard Dane an expert, formerly in the service of the Government of India. Very shortly the good effects of the reorganization became evident. The revenue increased. Instead of a large percentage going to enrich the officials intrusted with the collection of taxes, the entire proceeds passed into the coffers of the Administration. As the revenue was considerably in excess of the amount required to meet the obligations charged upon it, an arrangement was made that, when Sir Richard certified that there was a surplus that could safely be released, this surplus would be handed over to the Chinese Government to be used as they deemed fit.

The salt administration account, by the terms of the loan agreement, is kept in British, French, German, Russian and Japanese banks. The four first-named paid over the surplus to the Chinese Government, but the Yokohama Specie Bank, under instructions from the Japanese Government, refused to release the surplus that it held. The reason assigned was the uncertainty whether future collections would be adequate to meet obligations in view of the fact that several provinces had declared their independence.

This action on the part of Japan practically paralyzed the central government's ope ration against the seceding provinces, as the surplus salt revenue had been largely dependent upon for military expenditure.

The death of President Yuan Shih-kai and the probability that it would entail a cessation of hostilities, inclined the foreign banks, all of which had been compelled to follow the example of the Yokohama Specie Bank to agree to release the surplus salt revenues, but the hopes that were raised that the financial stringency would be relieved were suddenly dashed by the action of the French minister, who vetoed the release of the surplus held by the French bank.

No fundamentally satisfactory settlement of China's financial affairs can be attained unless a revision of the tariff is arranged. China is in the unhappy condition of having lost freedom of action in regard to tariz-making. In a time of emergency most countries turn to their tariff. This expedient is denied to China.

The tariff was revised in 1902, but any further revision has been impossible, as it is necessary for China first to obtain the sanction of all the nations with which she has treaty relations.

After the war it is hoped that the nations whose interests in China are purely commercial will bring pressure to bear upon Japan to induce her to withdraw her opposition to the proposed rectification of the tariff. If this rectification takes place, and internal peace prevails in China for a few years, she will easily be able to overcome the financial difficulties that are now clogging her.

It Would Be a Small Loss.

A lady went into a chemist's shop one morning and laid down a prescription, which was duly dispensed. As the chemist was wrapping up the bottle the lady said:

"How much is the medicine, please?"

"It is three-and-sixpence," was the answer.

The lady examined her purse. "Oh, dear," she said, in surprise, "three shillings is all I have with me."

"Very well," observed the chemist, anxious to oblige. "You can pay the remainder the next time you call."

"But," pursued the lady, laughingly, "but—supose I should die?"

"Oh, well, then," said the chemist, still anxious to oblige, "it would only be a small loss!"

Captain of British Freighter Says He Sank German U-Boat

BALTIMORE, Aug. 8. — Captain David Thomson, master of the British ship Stranhess, which arrived here from Mediterranean ports, told of an engagement which he declared his vessel had with a German submarine on July 15th in which the submersible was sunk.

Two gunners from the British navy who were in charge of a six-pound gun mounted on the afterdeck of the Stranhess for defense purposes, sank the submarine, according to Captain Thomson, when a ball struck it amidships, causing an explosion. He said the underwater boat dived suddenly and was not seen again.

While the Stranhess was struck several times, once according to Captain Thomson, by a torpedo, no great damage was done and the freighter escaped with several dented plates and portions of her superstructure demolished.

"The submarine attacked us in the Mediterranean, near Algiers, on July 15th," said the captain. "It was about six o'clock in the afternoon when the Stranhess was shaken by the impact of a ball striking her amidship near the water line. It was the first intimation we had of the underwater craft. In an instant our two gunners had their piece trained on the submarine and began firing. I ordered full speed ahead, but the submarine kept up with us, firing rapidly.

"After about an hour's run a shell from our six-pounder struck the submarine near the conning tower. An explosion followed and with her gun still on deck and the hatch open the submarine dived suddenly."

WIFE SLAYER DIES PENITENT.

"Tell Young Men of World to Let Whiskey Alone," Last Words of Allan Bradford.

SING SING PRISON, Aug. 8.—"Tell the young men of the world to let whiskey alone and stay away from rough company. I am not afraid to die. I have nothing to live for with mother, father and wife all gone. I will meet them. I once despised the church, but now I have learned to love it."

That was the message which Allan Bradford, a wife murderer, sent to the world a few minutes before he died in the electric chair at Sing Sing prison this morning. Bradford, a strong negro, was placed in the chair at four minutes to six o'clock. It took eight minutes to kill him and four shocks were necessary because of his unusual vitality. Two thousand volts at eight amperes were necessary.

Bradford walked to the chair with a smile on his face. He was accompanied by the Rev. A. N. Peterson, pastor of the Scarborough Memorial Church, and the Rev. W. S. Holder, of the Harlem Congregational. The latter gave out Bradford's message while the body was being taken to the morgue.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

BOY'S SUIT.

By Anabel Worthington.

All boys "love sports." Whether at the very active age a boy has a strong desire for a suit that will speak "sport" as strongly as mother's now does, or not, we too cannot say, but it is a fact that Fashion has favored the nation's future men with sport suits.

If correct clothes give confidence, the boy in the picture is going to score some with his ball, just because he has scored many fashionable points with the suit he is wearing. It has as many good features and is altogether as winning as the boy himself is. The blouse in all striped material—for stripes insist on prominence in all sport clothes—has its closing at the right side of the front; tiny revers are faced with solid color goods to match the collar, roll cuffs on short sleeves and also the belt. The straight trousers with open knee, in all white, show button trimming. If you would rather make up this design in all one material, you will have a splendid little suit and you may make long sleeves with a wristband cuff.

The pattern is cut in sizes 2, 4 and 6 years. To make in size 4 will require 1⅝ yards striped material and 1¼ yards of plain in 36 inch width. Or 2⅝ yards all one material.

You may obtain the pattern by sending ... to the office of this publication, ... No. 7,829.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

THE FRENCH REPULSED GERMAN ATTACKS ON THE VERDUN FRONT

Thiaumont Fort Changed Hands During the Night and Was Finally Recaptured by the Germans--French Are Still in Possession of the Outskirts of the Famous Redoubt --Enemy is Beginning to Feel the Effects of the Mighty Triple Offensive--.Turks Forced to Yield Ground to the Russians.

BRITISH TROOPS ADVANCE

Examiner Special:

PARIS, August 9.—French troops again recaptured Thiaumont fort northeast of Verdun in the heavy fighting yesterday, the War Office announced to-day, but the Germans again took it last night. The French repulsed all other attacks on the Verdun front, and made further progress in the village of Fleury. North of the Somme the Germans constantly counter attacked throughout the night against the new French positions, finally gaining a foothold in a single trench from which they were partly ejected. The battle is continuing in this region. The French are still clinging to the outskirts of the Thiaumont redoubt, which is being bombarded unceasingly by French artillery. In the Vaux Chapitre Wood in the same region a German attack was repulsed. The battle south of the Somme is extending to the region of Chaulnes where a violent bombardment is reported. On this sector the Germans occupied an advanced French trench, but were thrown out by a bayonet attack.

RUSSIAN TROOPS ADVANCE MORE THAN SIX MILES

Galician Town [of Tysnienica Captured With Over Seven Thousand Prisoners—March on the City of Stanislau Continues

Special to the Examiner.

PETROGRAD, August 9.—The Galician town of Tysnienica, seven miles east of the City of Stanislau, was captured by Russian troops under General Lechitchy last night, it was officially announced this afternoon. The Russians took seven thousand prisoners including three thousand five hundred Germans. The official statement shows that the Russians have advanced more than six miles in the last twenty-four hours in their march against Stanislau. The rapidity of the Russian forward movement is accepted as an indication that the Austro-Germans are retreating in very great disorder. Tysnienica lies on a small river of the same name, a tributary to the Dniester, and on the Stanislau-Tarnopal railway, which has also been cut by the Russian forces that occupied Nizniof.

Foe Failed To Smuggle Coffee-Speckled Rubber

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, August 9.—An ingenious conceit, by which an attempt was made to smuggle rubber and coffee into Germany, was revealed by the Foreign Office. Alert British officials inspecting the Norwegian steamer Lyngefjord, which sailed from New York on April 4 for Christiania, found hidden among its cargo of seventeen tons of coffee some 250 sacks which at first appeared to be perfectly innocent. The officials thought they contained coffee like the other sacks, until opening some of them they discovered tucked away small chunks of rubber some four inches square by an inch thick dotted all over with coffee beans which had been stuck in. The officials wondered at first if some new-fangled food was working its way to Norway, but close inspection showed unmistakably raw rubber and equally raw green coffee beans. The entire cargo was put into the Prize Court and every bag opened, with the result that immense stacks of a mixture of rubber and coffee beans were piled up. The whole cargo was billed by L. T. Nainetty, New York, to H. C. A. Milbaye at Christiania, but Milbaye will have to wait until the war is over for the coffee-speckled rubber stuff, and probably for the rest of the cargo. The Germans have practised many tricks to get contraband cargoes past the watchful British Admiralty, but nothing up to now like the funny-looking blocks of rubber sprinkled with green coffee beans.

Enemy Forces Are Giving Ground On All Fronts

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON (Special Cable), August 9. — A mighty triple offensive with several million men and thousands of guns engaged is slowly squeezing in the armies of the Central Empires on every front. Fighting stubbornly, and in many instances with rare bravery, the Austro-German-Turkish forces are giving ground in every theatre of war, including the Balkans, where recent skirmishes may herald the beginning of another great Allied push. Only on the Verdun front where German attacks again reoccupied Thiaumont Work in heavy fighting last night, are the Teutonic armies still on the offensive. The position has changed hands eight times since the Verdun campaign began. Even in the far-away Caucasus the Allied troops are again marching victoriously. Both Russian and Turkish War Offices report the beginning of a new Russian offensive in which the Turks admit they have been forced to yield some ground.

SALE OF LIQUOR BEING INVESTIGATED CASE WAS ADJOURNED

Local Agent Appears on Charge of Selling Without a License—Case of Gordon Gin Figures Largely in the Evidence

THE DEFENCE

All the "in's and out's" of the Liquor License Act were under warm discussion this morning at the Police Court, when J. M. Brooks, agent for the O'Keefe Brewery Co., Toronto, was charged with selling liquor without a license. Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for the defendant, and entered a plea.

Evidence was given to show that a Monaghan farmer had exported a supply of Gordon's gin and had telephone inquiries made as to whether it had arrived or not.

The driver of the Canadian Express Co. was called. His delivery book showed express parcels to have been delivered at Mr. Brooks' house four times during the month of July. The items in his book mentioned the four parcels simply as "boxes," and he could not tell whether the said boxes contained fish or liquor.

The agent of the Express Company here stated that the way-bills showing what the parcels contained and also the shipper's name were in Montreal, but could be procured. He admitted remembering two of the parcels to have been "handle with care" articles.

The purchaser of the gin stated that he had ordered the case of Gordon's gin on July 12th. His nephew had gone to town perhaps a week later and procured the case of gin from Mr. Brooks, thirteen dollars being paid over for the same.

"Not Proven."

Mr. G. N. Gordon, counsel for the defence, submitted the objection that it had not been definitely proven that the defendant was acting contrary to the Liquor License Act. He showed where, in his opinion, there was no real contract between the receiver of the gin and the local liquor agent. He denied that a sale had really been made by the defendant.

Mr. W. H. Moore, who conducted the case in the interests of the License Commission, thought that the fact that the money for the gin was paid over, was enough to show that Mr. Brooks was acting in a capacity other than that of an agent.

The case was adjourned until to-morrow.

COUNTY COMPANIES

Company Commands Likely to Be Authorized in Counties; Not Able to Recruit Full Battalions — Headquarters For Each Company To Be Selected By a Committee

MILITARY NEWS

There seems to be a great deal of hesitation about authorizing new battalions to take the place of those which have gone overseas. Those at present at Valcartier are, according to a recent order, to be supplied with recruits from the home areas, but to date the strength has not been run up to such an extent that they are being overburdened with recruits.

According to the best information available, because of the fact that the final plans have no yet been made, there seems to be a great possibility of each county being allotted a company of a battalion. This county company will be recruited during the winter months, and at the opening of the spring camps four counties will unite to form a battalion. In cases where counties can supply men for more than a company, a second and a third company will then be authorized, but in the majority of cases the commands will only be for companies of 250 men each. These will be treated as battalions at headquarters for the time being, but eventually they will be united into battalions.

The scheme will be on something the same principle as worked out last year with small groups situated in places that raise at least twenty men.

The selection of a battalion headquarters in this case would prove to be a difficult matter, and to secure the earnest co-operation of all concerned the headquarters for each unit will be directly at the district headquarters. The headquarters for each company will be selected by a committee of representative men acting in conjunction with the chief recruiting officer at Ottawa.

Soldiers' Wills.

It is requested that commanding officers will see that all troops under their command be specially instructed to make their wills on the forms already issued for that purpose, and that, when any unit leaves for overseas, the wills, made by such unit, be forwarded to divisional paymaster for his transmission to the officer in charge of estates.

The importance of making a will should be impressed upon the troops, and it should be explained to them that such a course at once puts their affairs on a proper basis, and prevents trouble and inconvenience hereafter.

A Warning.

The military editor of The Standard will lecture in the big tent of the 154th Battalion on Friday evening on the subject, "John Bull and His Empire." The lecture will be illustrated.

Will Pay Damages.

J. HARRIS M'CLELLAN HAS BEEN DECAPITATED ACCORDING TO LETTER

Local Conservatives Addressed a Letter to Premier Borden Protesting Against the Appointment of J. Harris McClellan as Superintendent of Camp Borden

PREMIER'S REPLY

The inter season equanimity of local political bodies was distributed some weeks ago by the reappearance in Peterborough of J. Harris McClellan. The latter who formerly held the post of superintendent of the Peterborough Division of the Trent Waterway, was attired in the uniform of a Captain of the Canadian Militia and according to the various reports received was paid at the rate of ten dollars a day and was officially designated as superintendent of Camp Borden. The Conservative Association of West Peterborough held several emergency meetings and finally a letter of great protest was forwarded to Premier Borden. In reply the following letter was addressed to Mr. C. E. Moore, President of the Conservative Association for West Peterborough.

THE LETTER

The letter reads as follows:—

Prime Minister's Office,
Ottawa, Aug. 5, 1916.

Dear Sir,—I am directed to refer to your letter of the 18th ultimo to the Prime Minister and to say that Mr. J. H. McClellan is no longer in the Government service.

Yours very truly,
L. C. CHRISTIE.

C. E. MOORE, Esq.,
President Conservative Association,
Peterborough, Ontario.

GUNNER G. S. TAYLOR INJURED ON JULY 21st

Mrs. Susan J. Taylor, 472 Mark Street, received from the Record Office this morning a telegram informing her that her son Gunner G. Stanley Taylor of the 26th Battery was wounded on July 21st but was able to remain on duty. Gunner Taylor enlisted with the 33rd Battery but was later transferred to the 26th.

INTERESTING STORY OF THE 93rd's VOYAGE

93rd BATT. MEN FARED WELL

Corp. Norman Hartshorn in a Letter to His Mother Adds Little Interesting Details

QUARTERS CROWDED

The following letter from Corporal Norman A. Hartshorn of the 93rd Battalion, was received this afternoon by his mother, Mrs. A. Hartshorn, 512 Stewart street. It affords the interesting aspect of the ocean voyage as the men experienced it:

9 A.M. Saturday, July 15, 1916.

Dear Mother,— I am starting this letter on the train at Halifax, N.S., and intend to post it when I arrive in England. We are not allowed to post anything here.

We left Kingston at 7.30 Wednesday night (July 12th) and arrived in Halifax Friday night 8 p.m. We had a very nice trip, the battalion being on two trains. We had great fun when we stopped at the stations, although we could not leave the train. The girls especially took great interest in us. They came along the side of the train shaking hands with us and wishing us the best of luck and a safe journey. At one place some lady distributed a large bunch of roses among us. At another place we had a stop of an hour, and we went for a short march, the only trouble was that we had no music except the singing of the boys. We had our meals on the train and they were very good, proper tables and dishes.

Just before we got to Halifax we had orders to draw the blinds. I had a peep out when we got there and the first thing I saw was four warships. I heard that two were British and two Japanese, so I guess we will have a pretty good escort across the pond. We are now waiting for the word to go aboard.

Monday, July 17—We went for a route march at Halifax, going through most of the main streets. I can't say that I think much of it, it seems a dusty, dirty looking place. We went aboard the ship (Empress of Britain) on Saturday afternoon and were shown our eating and sleeping quarters. We have lots to eat, but that is all one could say about it. We sleep in hammocks slung over the mess tables, and they are so close together that they cannot swing. I slept there the first night, but have my hammock slung up in the pay office, and believe me it is a little more health. We are having a splendid passage so far, sun shining and the water quite smooth, although the wind is a little cold. There are two troop ships, the one I am on and the Lapland. Our escort is the cruiser 'Drake,' but from what I hear she leaves us near the Old Country, our escort there being some torpedo boats. We are getting paid to-day, but the boys would sooner be paid money instead of cheques, for like myself most of them, if not broke, are pretty badly bent. You would have laughed at Halifax. There was a small motor boat alongside the Empress of B with candies, cakes, drinks, etc. This was sold to the fellows aboard, it being sent up in a basket tied to a rope. Well, one fellow had bought about 40c. worth of stuff and was gaily hauling it up when a hand shot out of a port hole and swiped the lot. You ought to have heard the language. I wish you could see me at dinner time. I am in charge of a table of eighteen, and I carve the meat for them. Of course I find out from them if they like fat or lean.

Pte. C. Primeau Is Recovering

Peterborough Member of the 93rd Battalion Has Been Struck Off the "Seriously Sick" List

Word has been received by Mrs. Primeau, 32 Cricket Place, to the effect that her son, Private Charles Primeau of the 93rd Battalion, now in England, has been struck off the "seriously sick list." A few days ago it was reported that Pte. Primeau was in a hospital at Liverpool suffering from pneumonia, so that the message received by Mrs. Primeau, yesterday, is interpreted to mean that he is recovering.

EXCURSION DREW A LARGE CROWD

The popularity of the Stoney Lake Navigation Company's special trip to Healey Falls was demonstrated this morning when a capacity crowd boarded the steamer Stoney Lake with Healey Falls as their objective. It is estimated that about two hundred and seventy-five people took in the trip.

Left Barriefield on July 12 and Reached Liverpool July 24th—Lost No Time at Halifax But Embarked Almost Immediately Upon the Arrival of the Troop Train at the Coast.

FROM LIEUT. McNABB'S DIARY

In a letter to his mother, Mrs. McNabb, 453 Water street, Lieut. J. A. McNab presents an interesting story of the overseas voyage of the 93rd, including the railway trip from Kingston. At the close he writes: "Please don't publish any of my letters," but as this is the first letter received from the 93rd it is regarded as of special interest since it breaks a long month during which only the barest information has been received from Peterborough's battalion:

On Board the Empress of Britain.
July 23rd, 1916.
Somewhere at Sea.

My Dear Mother and Sister,— Church parade is just over and as we are nearing the end of our journey, I thought I would commence to-day to give you a slight idea of my trip. First of all our trip on the ocean so far has been one grand, glorious round of pleasure. Strange as it may seem, the ocean has been as calm as a lake, and the trip has been most enjoyable.

Well, going back a few days, we left Barriefield camp at 6.30 p.m. on Wednesday, July 12. We entrained for Halifax at 7.20 p.m. and departed from Kingston at 7.30 p.m. sharp. We arrived at Montreal about 2 a.m. the 13th and left about 6 a.m. All day during the 13th we travelled through the province of Quebec over the Intercolonial railway, which is built along the St. Lawrence river. In all my travels I don't think I ever saw such beautiful natural scenery. The quaint little villages we passed through were very interesting and at every station a large crowd was waiting to give us a cheer. During the night we passed out of Quebec and into New Brunswick. This is also a pretty province. About 3 a.m. on the 14th I awoke from my slumbers and we were passing along the Restogoush river. This side of the river is level and the other side very mountainous, which made the scene very picturesque. I lay awake for about two hours watching the scenery. At 10.40 a.m. we reached Moncton, N. B., where we detrained for a short route march through the town. The people of Moncton gave us a wonderful reception and all ranks enjoyed the short stay very much. Shortly after leaving Moncton we crossed into Nova Scotia. When we reached Windsor Junction, N.S., no more mail could be posted without first passing through the censor's hands, and at the same time all blinds in the troop train had to be drawn and we all had to keep perfectly quiet until we reached Halifax. We arrived at Halifax 6.40 p.m. 16th inst., Peterborough time 6.40 p.m. We could not leave our train which was strongly guarded by military police, and they would not let you off unless you had a pass signed by the intelligence officer. From Friday night until Saturday morning at 11 a.m. we remained on board the train, and at this hour we detrained and had a route march through the business district.

DOLLAR DAY

Merchants Please Notice

The Examiner has been asked to promote a Dollar Day in August—A large number of stores have signified their willingness to participate but it is too big a job to see everyone in the time remaining. Every store is welcome to be in the list of those giving the prizes, and have their firm's name and business published in the big advertising done free for Dollar Day by the Examiner. All who have not been seen are asked to call up Mr. Callender at the Examiner who is looking after the treasury box for the merchants, or 'phone a message for him to call and full particulars will be given them. The Examiner is anxious to give every store an equal amount of publicity which can only be done if all names are in when the first big announcement is made.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

WEDNESDAY, AUG. 9, 1916

LABOUR DOES ITS BIT NOBLY.

Labour as a national interest is inclined to contend for the advantages of peace. Canadian labour, however, is thoughtful and has seen that its interests were menaced by the ambitions of Germany for world dominance and commercial and industrial monopoly and has acted splendidly in accord with its convictions. With a home demand for labour of the highest, with high wages at hand, the labour organizations of Canada have looked beyond the profitable present and done their share to protect the future of labour, and, necessarily, of national interests. The labour organizations in the year covered by the report of their activities, have furnished 19,000 recruits, besides contributing potentially to the production of munitions and other war supplies, and, be sides, keeping "the home fires burning," Canadian labour in its zeal and self sacrifice has not been surpassed By the labour interests of the old country, where in addition to long hours, workmen have voluntarily re signed the boon of the customary holidays.

A BEGINNING.

Mr. C. E. Moore, secretary of the West Peterborough Conservative Association, has received a letter from the secretary of the Premier, Sir Robert Borden, in answer to a letter of Mr. Moore, containing the assurance that Mr. J. H. McClelland is no longer in the employment of the government. While this action will be regarded as a good beginning, we have yet to hear what the master of the administration, Sir Sam Hughes, has to say about it—whether it goes with him. Why should their demand for the head of a subordinate favourite and the Minister of Militia, who moved into the fatal limelight only a few hours in Peterborough, be demanded and got, while big favourites like Honourary Col. Allison, who has been long in the lime light, are still held in high favour, undisturbed and unreproved. If the Conservative Association of West Peterborough will follow up the good example it has set by instituting a campaign against all the war graft and expensive favouritism that has existed in connection with the discharge of the government's duty in this war, it will be doing a patriotic thing, performing a national service. Getting at an honourary cannin is not enough. The scandals and irregularities and extravagances that are notoriously in existence should receive official parte attention.

GOING FORWARD.

Germany is not only being steadily pushed backward in the battle struggle, but she is in danger of losing the allies which she plotted and schemed and lied into the war. While the entente allies are making war unitedly and triumphantly, as one nation, the Teuton alliance, or conspiracy, is going to pieces. Turkey is on the verge of disruption and withdrawal. Bulgaria sees no hope of gain by continuance in the conflict. Austro-Hungary has had cough of it, especially Hungary, though both are disgusted with the arrogance of their Prussian confederate. The outlook for the Entente Allies is brightening with the beginning of the third year of the war. They are inflicting heavy losses daily upon the weakened and weakening enemy, whose condition, viewed at all round, can best be expressed by the prize-ring term, "groggy." We have reason to be well satisfied with the way the war is going. It is still a terrific struggle, but its trend is in the right direction. We have, however, much had work and to do. Germany and her allies, recognizing their desperate plight, resist, as they can still make, a desperate fight, a hard fight to overcome. But we can fight, and are fighting, and winning, with the courage of hope and certain success. The Teutons can only fight with the courage of desperation, the courage of a cornered animal brought to bay. While we can look forward with increasing hope of ultimate victory we must expect occasional reverses. Every tide has its ebb as well as flow.

HOT-WEATHER ELECTIONS.

Without bearing heavily upon the Ontario Government it is certainly open to criticism on the head of bringing on a by-election in South Toronto in this sizzling weather. What ever justification the fact may have otherwise, it is simply cruelty to animals. Neither candidates nor electors can enthuse "while the thermometer is doing all the "enthusing." There is no outstanding issue, except perhaps that of filling the seat with a government supporter. Prohibition, however, is an issue and not an issue. The candidate appointed by Premier Hearst is against prohibition, and declares for wine and beer licenses. Mr. Norris is trying to do the impossible, to please the liquor interests and support the government which passed and, presumably, must stand by, prohibition. Then there is a Whitney Conservative candidate and a Liberal candidate, who does not favour prohibition, and there may be other candidates. In this hot weather the situation is too puzzling to try to untangle, but, after all, it seems clear that the situation is giving prohibitionists anxiety. Premier Hearst, to whom the prohibitionists look to to at least not wreck the Prohibition Act he passed, are a little concerned over the fact that he has endorsed as a prospective and acceptable supporter a candidate who declares himself an enemy to prohibition. Moral reform has continually to be on the look out for a blow from the exploiters of political interests. We thought we had got prohibition ou of politics when both parties united to bring it into being, but in South Toronto it is most mysteriously and discouragingly complicated with politics of the worst kind—party politics.

PARLIAMENTARY VACANCIES.

There are now fourteen vacancies in the representation of the House of Commons, the last addition being made by the resignation of Mr. D. O. Lesperance, Nationalist Conservative member for Montmagny, Quebec. Of these vacancies, most of them were created by the death or resignation of Conservatives to accept office or contest provincial seats with defeat in every case. One Liberal, Mr. Wm. Chisholm, of Antigonish, resigned to contest a provincial seat and was handsomely elected. The vacancies and the circumstances leading to them are as below. Mr. D. O. Lesperance, Montmagny, Que., Mr. DeWitt Foster's seat, vacated nearly a year ago, as result of investigation into his connection with the purchase of war horses, and Mr. W. F. Garland's seat in Carleton, following proof of his conection with Militia Department purchase of drugs. Also the seats of Brandon and Lisgar, Manitoba, where respectively Sir James Aikins and W. H. Sharp resigned to contest provincial seats and both were defeated. The former has since been made Lieutenant-Governor of Manitoba. Mr. J. O. Lavelle, Conservative, resigned to contest a provincial seat in Quebec, and was defeated. Mr. Wm. Chisholm, Liberal, resigned to enter the provincial field in Nova Scotia, and was handsomely elected. In East Grey Mr. Speaker Sproule resigned. The remaining six vacancies were caused by death—Geo. H. Baker of Brome, B. B. Law, Yarmouth, who lost his life in the Parliament Buildings fire; J. W. Richards, P.E.I.; E. A. Reid, Restigonche, N.B., and Hon. Samuel Barker, East Hamilton. There is no indication that any of these seats will be filled before a general election; nor is there any evidence, that public interests or the interests of the respective constituencies are suffering thereby. This lends force to the claim that, with proper redistribution of the ridings of the country, the representation in both parliament and the provincial legislatures, could be reduced by one half, not only without detriment to, but to the advantage of the interests involved.

AUSTRALIA AGAIN.

Again the Dominions Overseas have shown Germany that the old British stock has not deteriorated by being transplanted. The Australians, who astonished the world with a bravery amounting to almost continuous recklessnes in the Dardanelles campaign, have now fairly stunned the Huns with the brilliancy of their attack and swept off their heaviest counter-attacks as a duck shakes water from its feathers.

At all fronts and at all times the Allied troops have done splendid deeds, but it is only now and then that it falls to the lot of any given body to achieve a glorious success at a named point of importance, where a victory will be dignified in history as the battle of such and such a place. As the Canadians will ever have their names associated with Ypres and St. Julien, so will the neme of Australia recall to the world the victory of Pozieres, one of the most brilliant and important since the offensive began. Well done, Australia. —Montreal Herald.

ARE OUR EDUCATIONAL IDEAS PRACTICAL ENOUGH TO INSURE MATERIAL SUCCESS?

The "most unkindest cut of all" comes from the London Statist, which says: "Broadly speaking England's educational ideas are those which prevail in the United States." The Statist doesn't say that we got our educational ideas from the United States. It leaves that an open question. The United States may have got its educational ideas from us; and if so, great would be our responsibility. The Statist said that not long ago England had a full century's start of Germany in manufacturing and commerce, but in about fifty years Germany rivalled and in various important respects outstripped her. Organization, intelligent co-ordination of government and busines, doubtless played an important part, but mainly Germany attained her pre-eminence in trade because she was scientifically the best educated country in the world. We take the liberty of disagreeing with our esteemed contemporary. It is not due to the superiority of German education that she has attained her alleged pre-eminence, certainly eminence, in certain lines of trade; but to that very co-ordination of government and business to which the Statist refers in the application of education to business. We shall make a cardinal error if we asume that Germany's succes in any line of business is due to the superior education of its scientists. Germany is far behind Great Britain or France, or even the United States, in scientific achievement. Where Germany shines is in the business application of scientific knowledge, its own and other people's. The Statist has, however, some justification for the general attack it makes upon the English mental attitude with regard to scientific education. It says: "We cry out that Germany has beaten us. The question is: How? And the answer is, our dislike of science, disbelief in real education, mental indolence. We flattred ourselves that the kind of teaching which suited mediaeval schoolmen is adapted to make Britishers supreme in the economic world of to-day. As long as we indulge in that folly so long Germany will beat us; let us resort to what alliances and what treaty engagements we please." That the nation which has produced the greatest scientists in the world should be so negligent in its application of science to business, and so little interested in scientific education, is really remarkable; but it is only too true, and it is due to that lack of co-ordination in government and business which is so characteristic of Germany.

The great defect in our educational system arises from this lack of co-ordination which would lead to the application of science to business. The average Englishman is rather proud of his ignorance of science. The average American is sinfully proud of the scientific knowledge he hasn't. Both of them are too mentally indolent to think. Consequently, while British and American are ahead of the German brand, applied science, which is so common in Germany and so profitable, is rare on this continent and in the United Kingdom. We do not say that it is unknown in the Old Country or on this continent, but in most cases it does not rise much above the wooden nutmeg or "Pigs in Clover" standard. The simple truth is that most of us are too lazy to think or to read about science.—Montreal Herald.

Two Million Dollars Of Wall Destruction

Excuses and apologies, direct and indirect, are being put forward for the destruction of $2,000,000 worth of standing walls on Parliament Hill. The strictness of supervision by the Conservative patronage dictatorship, and the political and financial profits resulting therefrom, are the explanation generally acepted, but it lacks the element of an excuse. The fact that the contractor's profit is increased not by decreasing but increasing the cost of rebuilding may also serve to explain this phenomenal waste at a time when everyone is calling for economy and conservation. The exasperating impertinence of secrecy in public affairs was seldom more insolently flaunted than when this destruction was undertaken, not only without announcement regarding the momentous change, but even without the knowledge of the Joint Committee supposed to consult with the Minister of Public Works. Hon. Dr. Pugsley, a member of that committee, did not learn of the intention to tear down the walls until the demolition was complete. The people of Canada had no reason to suspect anything worse than an improvident bargain, and knew nothing of the impending loss until it was financially irreparable.

The additional story and the shifting of the location of the chambers have been set forth as excuses and erplanations, but this only reveals an eagerness to escape responsibility. These changes were included in the plans submitted when it was intended to use the standing walls. All the essential changes were designed on the asumption that the walls would be used. They were built for all time, in accordance with the traditions of that day of thoroughness and permanence. The bedding and bonding of both the masonry and brickwork were designed and carried out with a single regard for solidity and strength. The quality of material was also a matter of scrupulous care. The perfection of workmanship, likely to be disregarded in this hurrying age, proved its usefulness when substantial walls to the value of $2,000,000 survived the fire. But this benefit, inherited from an age of mechanical thoroughness, has been wasted in an age of departmental prodigality, without even an excuse that is not on its face ridiculously insufficient. Canadians must restore $2,000,000 worth of needless destruction, and must pay architects' fees and contractors' profits not only on the work of restoration, but on the cost of destroying the old walls. The profits that will accrue to favoured ones through this waste, though in the aggregate a formidable sum, are the least serious of the losses involved. We suffer gigantic and unnecessary wastes that favoured ones may get percentages on them. If thep ublic could escape by paying these percentages, profits, and unnecessary wages, the loss would be incomparably less. This is the unpardonable feature of the escapade—the designing of vast losses fo comparatively small takings.—The Globe.

TWO MEN FOR ONE JOB.

Conflict in Appointment of Sir Sam and Militia Council.

KINGSTON, Aug. 4.—There is quite a lively time on here in connection with the appointment of a medical officer to the Royal Military College to succeed Major R. K. Kilborn, who recently retired owing to ill health. Two weeks ago Major R. J. Gardiner, A.D.M.S., of the third military division, was appointed to the position. This appointment apparently came through the Militia Council at Ottawa. To-day it was announced that Lieut.-Col. W. G. Anglin, who went overseas in May, 1915, with Queen's University Hospital Corps, and who is now on his way home on leave of absence owing to illness, had been appointed to the position. This appointment has apparently been made by Sir Sam Hughes, who is now in England.

Germans Are Urged To Dread An Ally Victory

A new and interesting development in the German press is the beginning of a propaganda directly aimed at the maintenance of public confidence. The Munchner Neueste Nachrichten devoted a page and a half to a laborious series of "conversations" entitled "War," "Want," and "Victory." It is a dialogue between a pessimist and a very official optimist and a curious exhibition of what the authorities evidently think that newspaper readers at present need.

The pessimist begins by talking about the terrible duration of the war, the loss of "thousands" of lives, and the multitude of crippled soldiers. The optimist reminds him of the official fables about the cause of the war and deprecates any peace talk which does not assure to Germany the frontiers that she wants, and the "honor of her people." Above all he insists that the individual German has everything at stake and points the consequences of defeat as follows:

You would be the first to complain of the terrible taxes which the war indemnity would impose upon us and you would be the first to note with indignation that your little business was crushed by English competition. Your sons would complain every day and every hour that they cannot find positions anywhere in the world because all Germans are despised, and your daughter who is betrothed to an artist, would complain bitterly that nobody in Germany has any more money to buy pictures.

"WHEN MR. SMITH RULES THE WORLD."

The conversation on "Want" is full of eloquence about the virtues of self-denial and the "co-operation of Germany and the German army which will make victory sure." The conversation about "Victory" is opened by the pessimist with doubts about the fall of Verdun. The optimist replies that that is certain but even if Verdun by any chance failed to fall "modern war is something quite different from the war of 1870," and that success nowadays must not be measured by vulgar standards. As to the Russian offensive, that "really causes no anxiety to anybody who has followed events intelligently."

Finally the pessimist depicts the terrible consequences of a British victory, saying for example:

In that case we shall be for at least a century the slaves of England. England and only England, will reap the fruits of our labor.....How happy Mr. Smith will be when he alone rules the world, when your money jingles in his pocket, and when your son has to fight for England in all parts of the world as an English mercenary.

Here the optimist suggests that these views are exaggerated, because a "Kultur state like England does not do such things." The pessimist then replies:

That was how you people talked at the beginning of the war about the starvation policy. You stuck your hands in your pockets and laughed, and considered all the precautions of the government unnecessary. What England says, England has always done; she has indeed always done more than she said. Nothing but our victory can prevent our destruction and our domination by England. That is why the wives must wait patiently for their husbands, the fathers for their sons, and the girls for their lovers. We must bear every privation without complaint, and we should even have to starve if it were necessary. Believe me, we have only the choice of holding out or being destroyed.

EXAMINER and MERCHANTS'

Great DOLLAR DAY
MONEY SAVING EVENT
Will soon be here

GRATIFIED by the enthusiasm of the people over the previous Dollar Days in Peterboro, and urged by the people from outside who were unable to attend the last one owing to bad roads, the Examiner is again co-operating with the Merchants in featuring a Midsummer Dollar Day—

WEDNESDAY AUGUST 23rd

The date selected should be the most suitable of all the summer season, for a record crowd to attend from outside points. There's everything to come for, and only regrets if you don't. There's a company of hustling merchants preparing a feast unequalled in the history of the city. In any line of goods you want, you will find your Dollar has a buying power you would have thought impossible. As Dollar Day selling is just for one day, the merchants, in order to add zest to the excitment, make their offerings look reckless, but it is because they have entered into the spirit of the thing, and they are bound to do their part at considerable loss.

The list of merchants will be published in later issues, and it will be well to get the participating stores fixed in your mind to save delay when the great day comes. In addition to the splendid values offered the merchants are giving away

$150.00 in Treasure Box Bonuses

This money will be given away in this way:—With every dollar purchase on that day, an estimating blank will be given to the purchaser. You will fill in your name and address, and a number representing your estimate on the following question:

Estimate the Number of these Blanks that will be filled in and Dropped into the Ballot Box at The Examiner Office by 10.15 p. m. on Dollar Day.

The nearest correct estimate will be awarded the first bonus of $20.00; the second $15.00; the third $10.00, and so on.

As a guide in estimasting the probable number of blanks that will be used the two previous Dollar Day results may be studied. On the first one, Mar. 12, 1914 with good weather and roads, there were 16,000 blanks dropped into the box at the Examiner office. On the next Dollar Day in 1915, with bad weather and impassable roads, the result showed only 10,807 estimate blanks but in the box. With these figures as a guide, an intelligent estimate can be made, if weather and season are taken into consideration.

The Dollar Day crowd is the happiest gathering that meets in Peterboro in the year.

You can recognize all the stores where Dollar Specials are being given by the Red Lettered Pennants in the windows.

RAILWAY RATES Parties of Ten coming from any one point to Peterborough on Wednesday, August 23rd, Dollar Day, can secure a rate of fare and one-third by making application to their local station agent.

AGAIN IS BRIDE OF THE MAN SHE DIVORCED 33 YEARS AGO

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—"It isn't as if it was a stranger," said Mrs. Delilah Williams Dobbs Butler yesterday as, at sixty-four, she was again married to the man to whom she was married at nineteen. She and her husband had been separated thirty-three years since she got a divorce from him after twelve years of life together, and for fifteen years she had been Mrs. Butler.

After Mrs. Dobbs had become Mrs. Butler, Mr. Dobbs married the correspondent in he action for divorce. Both partners in the second marriage have died. A reconciliation was brought about through the son of the couple. Wilbur Dobbs, forty years old, an actor.

"Now did it seem different to be married this time than before?" said Mrs. Dobbs last night, blushing beneath her grey curls in answer to a question. "Well, I was a lot more nervous this time. My hand shook so I had to hang on to the minister and I guess I held Mr. Dobb's hand longer than I was suppose to.

Sixty-four is pretty old to get married, isn't it? But it isn't as if it was a stranger. Both of us know just whom we are getting.

The bridegroom, who has been living at No. 1000 Decatur Street, Brooklyn, is sixty-four years old. His neighbors refused to believe yesterday that he had been married again.

"Mr. Dobbs wouldn't be married," they said. "You've made a mistake. He's not a young man."

Mr. Dobbs is a printer and has been President of the Pressman's Union several times.

Mrs. Dobbs Butler Bobbs has been living at No. 845 Bushwick Avenue.

Forty-five years ago, when Delilah Williams was nineteen and Peter Jay Dobbs was twenty-three, they were married. Twelve years later, when their son Wilbur was seven years old, their home was broken up by the "other woman". Mrs. Dobbs obtained a divorce in Kings County and went away with the child, who continued to see his father continually.

Eighteen years later she became Mrs. Butler. A year or two afterward Mr. Dobbs married the woman who had broken up his home. The divorced couple did not see each other for years.

Six years ago Mr. Butler died, and soon afterward Mr. Dobbs was left a widower. Wilbur, the son, while travelling in the West, met his father and told him of his first wife's affairs.

DIDN'T MIND PEOPLE HEARING

Mr. Dobbs vowed he would come back to New York to see her. He did, and, as Mrs. Dobbs says 'he kept calling, off and on', and after a second courtship of three years they were remarried yesterday at the ohem of Mrs Lina Kimball, No. 96 Palmetto St., Brooklyn. Mrs. Kimball sixty-seven years old, was the matron of honor her husband, who was also in the bridal party is seventy.

"When we went to the Marriage License Bureau and I showed them my divorce papers so I could get married again. "I said to Mr. Dobbs that the newspapers would hear, some way, of us old folks being married again. And he said, 'Do you care?' and I said, 'Well, I guess I shouldn't care about people hearing about it, if you dont. So then he had to say he didn't care, either.

"The papers didn't all get it right. They said we had been separated only twenty-seven years. It is thirty-three. That's a long time, isn't it? But then when you got married again you know each other and yet you do not, so it's all right.

Episcopalians Urge Lord's Prayer Change

St. Louis, August 9.—The closing clause of the Lord's Prayer, as it appears in the King James' version of the Bible, may be eliminated when the triennial general conference of the Protestant Episcopal Church, meets here in October.

The commission on revising the Book of Common Prayer will recommend it, the Rev. Edmund Duckworth said to-day. These words would be stricken out: "For thine is the kingdom, and the power and the glory, for ever."

French Soldiers May Give Up Rifles For Grenades in Charge

IN FRANCE—"War is a trade" said Sweeney, 'and it is full of tricks'

All the Americans in Paris know of Charles Sweeney. He is the sort of soldier of fortune one reads of in books. He fights because he likes to fight. He has chased wars all over the world. He is a West Pointer, though certain differences as to the ethics of hazing kept him from graduating. When the war broke out he joined the Foreign Legion. He is the only American to have won a commission among the foot soldiers. The surgeons said the wound he received at Champagne would kill him, but he is back at the front.

"In the French army," said Sweeney, "we do not believe in sniping."

It appears that sniping is primarily the Saxon's game. Both Briton and German turn out some extraordinarily good shots. The Frenchman does not shine at sniping, partly because he did not run heavily to outdoor sports before the war, and partly because of the anti-sniping theory that governs his officers.

Suppose that you do kill a few men by sniping? asked Sweeney "That won't help win the war."

LET GERMANS RAMBLE

The French prefer to let the Germans ramble about behind their lines, believing themselves unobserved. By and by the watchers see that Germans disappear in a hole in the ground at the angle of a certain hill, or that other Germans emerge from that hole. It is just like watching wild animals play about their dens, Sweeney said. When the hole is definitely located—when the observer thinks that the hole is sufficiently full—when an apparent immunity has baited the trap—

"The seventy-fives are turned on," said Sweeney. "One round of the battery—bam, bam, bam, bam—good-by, Boche."

The modern rifle he thinks, is not well adapted to modern conditions of warfare. There is no probability that on the western front, at least, the fight will ever return to the old war of movement. No matter which side breaks the line in the end, the defeated side will fall back slowly, from trench to trench. Both sides have scored the whole countryside in the rear of their frontal positions with these trenches of prevention. For the same reason it is difficult for him to see an early end to the war. But that is not speaking of rifles.

"The rifle with a flat trajestory of 400 yards would be the best for present conditions," said he. "You never get a chance to shoot at a man at a greater distance. You likely never will have. The rifle of an extremely long range is a misfit."

FRENCH BULLETS THE BEST

It is the knockout blow at short range that is desired. This has been fairly well secured by the French bullet, in which the centre of gravity is so far in the rear of the centre of length, that the bullet keyholes when it strikes a bone. It is entirely within the limits set by the Geneva convention, but it disables as the other bullets do not.

"Any bullet will smash a bone that contains marrow," said Lieutenant Sweeney, "but the German bullet will merely drill a hole through a solid bone. The French bullet is infinitely more effective. A wounded man is more trouble than a dead one."

"Are explosive bullets ever used?"

"The Germans use them. I know of instances in which they have been used. They may not be often used, but they are used sufficiently often that we can tell the difference in sound they make as they go over our heads."

NOT PROMPTED BY HATE

This statement is not prompted by a venomous hatred of the foe. Lieutenant Sweeney is extremely fair in his estimate of German fighting qualities.

"They are as brave as any men," said he. "Their differences from the French and English are those of temperament and training and not of courage. I do not believe they could act semi-independently as our men do on occasions. But no other troops could beat them, in mass formation against concealed batteries. Do not think this is an idle waste of life. Occasions arise when the mass formation is the cheapest way of gaining a position.

"It has been stated the Germans do not like the bayonet."

"They did at first, said he, "but lately they have turned from it. That is no reproach to them. It is in German military history to avoid cold steel, a sit is in French military history to rely on it."

It is frequently stated that the German soldiers are made drunk to keep them in their trenches or to induce them to charge from them.

"That is an infinite petty and shameful lie in my opinion," said Sweeney. "I have asked many officers and I have not found one who had first-hand knowledge of such a story had its origin on the front, but in the civilian offices. Nor have I been able to find that the Germans have ever chained machine gun men to their guns. They do not need to.

NOT CHAINED TO GUNS

"The machine gun man is the best type of German soldier. He volunteers for the job, knowing what it will be; and he fights his gun to the last. I have never seen a machine gun man made prisoner, but I have seen many of them cut down at their guns."

At one time the Germans tried to shield their machine guns with steel turrets, monitor fashion, but that seems to have been given up It was too easy for the artillery to get the range and one shell would blow such a turret to kingdom come. It was the same way with the steel shields, which were sent to the front for the use of the bombardiers. The plan was for the bombardiers to advance slowly behind them, half a dozen at a time.

"A flivver," said Sweeney. "In the first place they were too slow and heavy to handle, and in the second the seventy-fives could find them too easily, and in the third and last place we found that by reversing the bullets in our guns they penetrated the shield better than if they were sent pointed end first. That, of course is at very short range. The shields went out of circulation at once."

He does not agree at all with the estimate expressed by others that the 105 is the best gun in the German box. He thinks its decreased rate of speed in comparison to the weight of the projectile, makes it inferior to the French 75. None of the small guns will beat down properly made bomb proofs, said he. The Germans had an unquestioned superiority in heavy guns at the beginning of the war. He naturally declined to discuss the French position in this matter.

BEST WAR WEAPON

"The grenade" said Lieutenant Sweeney, "is the best weapon of the war. Our men habitually go forward in the charge now armed only with an armful of grenades and a long knife. Some of them carry the rifle of course, and when the bombardier has exhausted his supply of bombs he never has any difficulty in finding a gun. There has been some discussion on taking the rifle entirely away for some of the men, even in defensive work. The advisability is rather fully recognized, I believe. It is only a question of the proper proportion. Some officers advocate arming three-fourths of the men with grenades only."

This has not been decided on, but as the men are never permitted to carry a loaded rifle in a charge, for fear of stray shots proving dangerous to the attackers, it is likely that the use of the grenade will be enlarged. Men armed with the rifle are tempted to stop on the embankment of an enemy trench and load and fire. While so doing they make excellent marks.

"They are ordered never to jump into a trench," said he, "because if they do the attack stops right there. The thing to do is to run on and try to take the next trench. A grenade is handy for this sort of work. It is easy to throw it into a filled trench. You don't have to stop and take aim."

Liuetenant Sweeney was asked to explain why so few bayonet wounds are seen in this war.

The man wounded with the French bayonet is usually dead," was the explanation. "It has four angles and it holds so tight that often you must put your foot on the other man before you can pull it out. The wound closes after it and he bleeds internally. It is the best bayonet in the world."

"Do the French soldiers like to use it?"

"You ought to see them," Sweeney said.

Laying A Rug As An Indoor Sport

Scene: A suburban transient sleeping place for servants, at one time called a home. Persons in the tragedy: A man and his wife. Property: A new rug, just delivered from the shop.

Wife—"How do you think it ought to go."

Husband (grabbing it and throwing it on the floor)— "This way, of course."

Wife (lifting up one end and pulling it around—"No, that's better. Still, that isn't quite right. Turn it completely around. No! Not that way; the other way."

Husband—"Huh! That's no good."

Wife—"Well, try it."

(Husband leans over and moves rug where she indicates. Wife surveys it critically.)

Wife—"A little more that way. That's too much. Push it back. Now pull it—just a little."

Husband (puffing)—"What do you think I am—the piston rod of a steam engine?"

Wife (absorbed)—That's not quite right. Take it up and put it down the other way."

Husband—"Look here! Have we got to do this thing now? I'm tired."

Wife—"Yes! Yes! Try that way. Not the other way!"

Husband —"Say! You don't know anything about this rug. (He grabs it furiously and, mad with rage, lifts it with supernuman strength into the place where he threw it first.)There! That's the proper place for that rug! Youn ever did have any judgment or taste about rugs, anyway."

Wife —"No! No! That isn't right. Just move it—"

Husband—"Never! I——"

Wife (sweetly)—"Just once more, darling! That's a good fellow—one inch more that way. There! That's just right."

(Husband, immensely relieved, starts to go.)

Wife—"Oh, darling ,wait a minute."

Husband—"Well, what do you want now?"

Wife—"Won't you please take this rug up to the top floor? It isn't a hall rug, you know. I just wanted to see how it would look here."—Life.

FOR PERSPIRATION.

A lotion can be made of one dram of alum and one pint of water, or one pint of water and two heaping teaspoons of carbonate of soda. A powder paste of one ounce of alum, two ounces orris root and two ounces of powdered rice will also help to check excessive perspiration. The too lavish use of perfumery of any kind should be avoided as it shows lack of taste.

Germans Gain $260,000,000 in 1916's Savings

BERLIN, Aug. 9.—Deposits in German savings banks during May were 250,000,000 marks ($50,000,000) greater than in the month preceding, as compared with 235,000,000 marks last year, says an Overseas News Agency announcement to-day.

Of this sum 235,000,000 marks were transferred to war loan investments leaving a net increase of 15,000,000 marks.

Since January 1, savings banks deposits adds the statement, increased 1,300,000,000 marks ($260,000,000) as compared with 1,285,000,000 marks last year.

Deserting Dolls, Beppo Tries to Be a Man's Dog

NEW YORK WOMAN'S PET SHAKES OFF SHACKLES OF CIVILIZATION IN THE WILD NORTHWEST.

Donaldson, Wis., August 9. — Miss Louise Van Nordan, of New York, is mourning because Beppo her pet King Charles spaniel, a dog of pedigree far longer than his little body, has declared his independence. From being a perfectly fine cit ydog, and the pet of his owner, content to play with his four dolls, Beppo has become so inoculated with the out of door freedom of the Northern Wisconsin lake region that he has discarded dolls, has learned to growl, and will eat almost anything in the way of food, instead of insisting as of yore in his usual diet of lamb heart.

When Beppo came west for a visit he travelled in a crate with four dolls as playmates. He now has gone "back on them" and apparently is now trying to be a man's dog. He has been found trying to steal food from the kitchen at the resort where Miss Van Nordam is staying.

Miss Van Nordam has a misfortune with another pet, a song sparrow, which she adopted, having died. A funeral service was held with those present singing well known hymns

SPEAKS IN PRAISE OF LIQUOR ACT

Winnipeg, August 9.—Sir Hugh Macdonald, formerly premier of Manitoba, and now police magistrate in the city police court, yesterday delivered himself of a highly laudatory opinion of the wording and the operation of the Manitoba Liquor Act, founded by himself and Sir James Aikins some 16 years ago.

"I think that since the government of Manitoba came into existence," said Sir Hugh, "few if any acts of the legislature have done more good throughout the province than has the Manitoba Liquor Act.

"I am more than satisfied with the way the act is working out. There is decidedly less crime in the city since its inception. This I know through my work as police magistrate of the city.

"Strangely enough this decrease in crime is most noticeable among the foreign element in the city. Before the province went dry I used to have three or four assault cases every day coming from that quarter. Since 1st of June there have been but four of these. Of course there have been the cases of assault arising out of quarrels between neighbours, but these are soon adjusted satisfactorily.

FORMER STEADY DRINKERS PLEASED.

"I have been told by personal friends," said Sir Hugh, "who, although not drunkards, have been steady drinkers and accordingly drank more than was good for them, that the doing away of the bar was acting out to great advantage as far as they themselves were concerned. I hear from merchants throughout the city that their customers are paying their accounts much more promptly and with more regularity than before June 1st. A great deal of the money formerly spent over the bars is now being expended in purchasing food and clothing.

"I have instituted inquiries throughout Manitoba as to the effects of the province having gone dry and I find that this same story holds good in every place and community with little exception. Many people who at first were opposed to the measure and voted against it at the referendum election are now decidedly in favor of it."

GENERAL TOWNSHEND TREATED HANDSOMELY

London, August 9.—General Townshend, the British defender of Kut-el-Amara, which was captured by the Turks after a siege of several months is, according to unofficial despatches received here, being treated very generously by his captors. He lives in a well appointed house on the Island of Halki, but spends much of his time in Constantinople, a naval steam launch and a military motor car being entirely at his disposal for visits to the city.

On these trips to the Turkish capital, General Townshend is accompanied by his aides and a guard. He is said to be a familiar figure in the main streets of Jera and Stambul, and the principal restaurants and gardens.

Government Report of The Crop Situation Throughout The Dominion of Canada

All Crops Have Made a Strong Growth—Barley is Late and Very Uneven—Potatoes Are Healthy But Are Not Setting Well on Account of the Drought—The Average Shows a Fair Yield of All Kinds of Grain

OTTAWA, Aug. 9.—A special press bulletin, issued by the Census and Statistics Office reports on the condition of field crops in Canada at the end of July, as summarized from telegrams received from the Dominion Experimental Farms and Stations, in accordance with arrangements made between the departments of Trade and Commerce and Agriculture:

MARITIME PROVINCES.

Prince Edward Island.—All crops have made strong growth; hay is an average crop; potatoes and roots look well.

Nova Scotia.—Cereals have made good growth; corn and potatoes are good; turnips are fair, but mangolds poor.

New Brunswick.—All crops have made good growth, except where damaged by June floods; hay much above the average; grain mostly headed, and indicates an average crop; potatoes and roots promise well.

QUEBEC.

All reports agree that the hay crop is very abundant, and of good quality. Grain crops have suffered considerably from drought during the month, and apparently the harvest will be earlier than usual. Potatoes are reported as good, except from Ste. Anne de la Pocatiere, where they have suffered from drought and from Cap Rouge, where they were hurt by too much rain. Corn is reported as doing well.

ONTARIO.

In the peninsula (Essex Co.), a large crop of hay has been harvested in splendid shape. Wheat and barley are harvested, but are not quite a standard yield. Oats will be below the average. Corn and hoed crops are fair, though later than usual. In Eastern Ontario crops are suffering from lack of moisture. Wheat is little grown; its condition is fair, and it is beginning to ripen. Barley is poor, rather late, and very uneven. Oats, the most important crop of the district, shows great divergence, some crops being far advanced; others only a few inches high. The condition is uneven ad owing to the dry weather the straw will be short. About three-quarters of the hay is harvested and the crop is a very good one. Roots have started well, but much depends upon the next few weeks. Corn is poor. Potatoes are healthy, but are not setting well, because of the drought. The crop is likely to be light.

MANITOBA.

Telegrams from Brandon and Morden report that wheat prospects have deteriorated during the first few days by an attack of rust. From Brandon it is reported that cutting will be general by August 10. Oats and barley are a heavy crop and uninjured. A heavy crop of hay was harvested during July. Corn is doing well. At Morden the weather is dry and conditions will be serious if rain does not come soon.

SASKATCHEWAN AND ALBERTA.

Weather conditions in July have been generally favourable, although hailstorms have done local damage. Grain crops continue to show fine promise especially on breaking and summer fallow. Grain on stubble is not so good and there will be a greater difference between stubble and fallow grain than last year. In Southern Alberta crops are all good to excellent, and harvesting will commence sooner than was expected a month ago. Wheat cutting is expected to begin about August 20. Hay, roots and potatoes are good.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

At Agassiz the weather has been cool and bad for hay, though excellent for roots; corn has suffered badly. Cereal crops are growing well; the second crop of clover is good. At Invermere cereal crops are good, and are ripening fast. Field peas are exceptionally heavy; roots are looking well, except mangolds; the second alfalfa crop is coming on well. From Sidney it is reported that beneficial rains fell during the month. Autumn cereals are ripening late; spring cereals and forage crops are growing well. A portion of the oat crop is being cut for hay.

FORGET THE DOG DAYS

And go on the delightful cool trip to Lindsay, on Friday, August 11th, per Steamer Stoney Lake, returning home early by first-class twilight train same evening. Steamer leaves at 7.30 a.m. Round trip tickets only a dollar. Meals on board. Set the alarm clock for the 11th August. 5d-30

Kitten Dies of Fright At Sight of Wildcat

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 9.—'Snowie' a blue-blooded kitten, with a faint heart, fell dead at the sight of one of its untamed sisters from the wilds. 'Snowie' went into a room and ran into the stuffed carcass of the largest wildcat ever killed in California, mounted as though snarling. 'Snowie' took one startled look at the distended jaws wih their rows of glistening white teeth, and died of fright.

'Snowie' will be buried at No. 1616 San Jose avenue, Alameda, the home of Grace, ten-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Faulkner. A little plot in the back yard flower garden is ready. 'Snowie' was the only blue-ribboned kittie in Alameda that had one green and one blue eye.

FRIDAY EXCURSION TO LINDSAY

You're sick of the heat; yes, you're ready to quit;
It's the keepin'-your-chin-up that's hard.

The long stretch of hot weather has certainly made living a little distasteful; and the relief which has come to-day in cooler breezes has been very timely.

A chance for a pleasant pick-me-up will occur to-morrow, when the steamer Stoney Lake makes another of her popular trips to Lindsay, returning by Grand Trunk special train to Peterborough in the evening twilight. From depressing heat to delightful coolness, passengers will enjoy this trip up through the series of back lake waters, including Lakes Katchewanooka, Clear, Stoney, Loves sick, Buckhorn, Pigeon, Sturgeon, etc., and on to Lindsay. A trip full of romantic beauty as well as cooling temperatures.

HOG ATTACKED LITTLE GIRL

STERLING, Aug. 9.—The six-year old daughter of James Seeney, a farmer who resides on lot 21 of the first concession of Rawdon, about three miles west of this village, was savagely attacked by a huge sow, and narrowly escaped death.

The little girl had apparently been playing with the litter of small pigs and this had aroused the anger of the mother hog, which threw the child down and began to tear her face with teeth and tusks.

The lusty cries of the youngster brought help from the house, and the irate animal was beaten off.

Medical aid was hastily summoned from Sterling, and an examination revealed the fact that the child's jaw had been broken and the lacerations were very serious. It is xpected, however, that the patient will recover and not be badly disfigured.

Canadian Girls Fret As Husbands Dwindle

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 9.—"The war has changed the expression on the faces of Canadian women. To-day most of them appear worried. Lines are supplanting dainty dimples. The reason," said F. N. Bowden, of Calgary, Alberta, "lies in the fact that the eligible husbands are being killed off. Spinsterhood must infallibly be in store for some of them, and they are very gloomy in consequence. "My advise to young Americans in need of worthy helpmeets is to hurry to Canada and get busy. The girls are there and can be secured for the asking."

INTERESTING STORY OF THE 93rd's VOYAGE

of Halifax. It lasted about an hour after which we again entrained. Dinner was served out to the men, and some of the officers were fortunate in getting a "bite." I was one of the fortunate ones.

At 2 p.m. we commenced to embark on the Empress of Britain for our voyage. We went aboard in companies, A company leading. The companies were formed into single file, and each man carried everything that belonged to him. As each man advanced toward the big gang plank he was handed a ticket which designated his sleeping quarters, deck and mess quarters marked. On the boat they were directed by stewards just where to go. After all the men were on board the officers followed and we also received a card. We are all up on a deck. The Empress has had all her rich fittings removed and special state rooms built. Three lieutenants are assigned to a room and the senior officers are in "twos." After we came aboard we were followed by the 105th and 106th Nova Scotia battalions. They were followed by the 67th, 69th and 70th Toronto batteries. Then came the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, Army Medical Corps, Army Service Corps and about 200 Jack Tars from H.M.S. Newcastle. We have on board between 4,500 and 5,000 troops.

Everybody was aboard by 9 p.m. and then they began loading the luggage, etc. I retired at midnight, and at 6 p.m. Sunday, July 16 we pulled away from the Halifax docks accompanied by the steamer Lapland and the cruiser Drake. In a couple of hours we were out on the "briny." The ocean was quite steady. Of course there is always a land swell that makes the boat very unsteady. The Empress rides the swell very easily. Toward evening I felt very dizzy and did not go down to dinner. I went to bed at 6.30 p.m.

On Monday, July 17th I got up at 7 a.m. feeling fine. The sea was very calm and the day bright, but very cold. I had to get out my great coat. At 10 a.m. we had our first life belt parade. 'Each unit has a particular spot to parade and all during the voyage one must wear or carry a life belt at all times. At 3 p.m. we have daily emergency drill. All men are in their quarters, and sharp at the appointed time we try to see how quickly we can get on deck. Shortly after this parade we sighted a vessel on the horison. I got my binoculars and at 4 p.m. we distinuished the ship. It was the Olympic steaming to Halifax. It was a magnificent sigh such a large steamer coming into view and then slowly fading beyond the horizon.

On Ship Duty.

On Tuesday, July 18 our battalion was on duty, so Lieut. Richardson and myself were in command of the first watch. It consists of twenty-five men. Each man has a station and he must regulate the traffic. We were on four hours and off eight. The ocean was exceptionally calm, not a white cap to be seen anywhere and during the evening I saw the most beautiful sunset I ever witnessed in my life.

Wed., July 19—I arose at 7 a.m., had a salt water bath; went down to breakfast which I parted with shortly after. Something I ate didn't agree with me. The sun shone beautifully but the evening was very cold.

Thursday, July 20 — Dull, rainy morning. A steady sea rolling. Very cold all day. During the afternoon we saw many schools of porpoise. These are water mammals and live near the surface of the water. Retired at 10 p.m.

Friday, July 21.—Arose at 9 a.m. Went out on deck. Saw some very large white fish that appeared to be sharks. Five of them were in a group. During the afternoon the officers held inter-battalion sports. The 93rd won most of the events. During the evening we had a concert given by a number of the men of the batteries. It was very enjoyable and the boys provided a fine programme of amateur singing. Retired at 10.50 p.m.

Saturday, July 22nd—We are nearing the war zone now. We have the cruiser with us and expect to meet the British escort some time on Sunday. It makes one feel rather ticklish when the mind drifts toward submarines. During the evening a number of the boys of the 93rd band gave a little informal concert which lasted until 11 p.m.

Sunday, July 23.—Everything goes well. We are in the danger zone and are travelling in a dense fog. We had church service on board this morning and enjoyed it very much.

After leaving off writing this afternoon we waited on deck to see the waited on deck to get a glimpse of the British escort. Finally we noticed one torpedo boat appear on the horizon and in a very few minutes two more popped up. Talk about speed boats; they certainly can cut the water. We have an escort of three torpedo boats and one cruiser. I was a little restless last night on account of being in the danger zone. It is quite a different feeling to be here than it is to read about the danger zone in the evening papers. I did not retire until 1.30. During the evening I played 500 and Lieut. Armstrong and myself won a game after playing thirty-two hands.

Monday, July 24.—On this date the Empress reached port at 9.10 p.m. Lieut. McNabb confines his diary entry to a description of the scenery along the Irish coast and in the Irish sea. He tells of the trawlers and mine sweepers and other evidences of Britain's dominance of the seas. The troop ship received numerous ovations from passing vessels. Lieut. McNabb breathes the spirit of thanksgiving that the crossing was made so successfully.

Britain Again Ready For Polish Relief Plan

WILL REOPEN WAY FOR RESUMPTION OF NEGOTIATIONS BY THE UNITED STATES.

London, August 9—The Foreign Office will send a memorandum to Walter Hines Page, the American Ambassador, which will leave the way open for a resumption of the negotiations for feeding the civilian population of the German-occupied areas, the conditions for which as laid down by Great Britain, were recently rejected by Germany. The memorandum will suggest that the United States government can reopen the question if it considers such a step advisable or useful.

IRISH WOMAN IN SERBIAN ARMY

Paris, August 8.—Miss Flora Sandes, an Irish woman, who is a sergeant in the Serbian army, has arrived at Toulon on her way to rejoin her regiment after a holiday in Ireland, according to The Matin.

Miss Sandes was in Serbia when the war broke out and joined a hospital as a nurse. Later on she enlisted as a regular soldier and went through the last campaign, taking part in the disastrous retreat to Durazzo.

DISEASE DROPS MORE SOLDIERS THAN BULLETS

British Headquarters in Mesopotamia, August 7.—Flies, heat and dust, the three principal plagues of Mesopotamia, are what have stopped the fighting for the past several months in this theatre of the great war.

The flies are so thick that the soldiers say that it is impossible to keep them out of their food. A squadron of cavalry coming down the road looked as if they were wearing chain armor. When they came close enough it was found that what looked like mail was the steely blue metallic mesh of flies.

At night the flies disappear and the mosquitoes and the sand flies relieve them. Many species bite or sting.

The thermometer runs up to 130 degrees in a tent. All the men wear a sunguard over their helmet and a spine pad for a person can get sunstroke here through the small of the back.

The persistent hot wind is better than complete stillness though it flings sand and dust in the faces of the men, who eat sand, breathe sand, lie in sand, have sand in their ears, eyes and clothes.

There are different kinds of heat — the moist and tropical heat of the swamps of the Euphrates and the Shat-al-Arab, the parched and desert heat of the Tigris and the Karun. Each variety has its attendant insects and peculiar ailments, which often take the form of boils and eruptions. Disease had incapacitated more troops than bullets.

SCOURGE STILL WORSE.

Highest Number of Cases — 217 is To-day's Report.

NEW YORK, August 9.—The epidemic of infantile parlysis reached the high mark to-day in the number of new cases. The Health Department figures showed that 217 developed during the twenty-four hours ended at 10 a.m., and that the death list for the same period was forty-three, two more than yesterday. Seventy-six were stricken in Manhattan alone, where the epidemic now appears to be centred.

Promoted On The Field

Nephew of Mr. Robt. Fair of This City Has Been Promoted to the Rank of Captain

As a recognition of good service performed on the field of battle, Lieut. Robert. M. Fair, officer commanding the Trench Mortar Platoon of the 24th Battalion, Victoria Rifles, Montreal, has been promoted from the rank of Lieutenant to that of Captain. Captain Fair served for three continuous weeks without respite or relief. He is the eldest son of the Mr. George L. Fair of Centreville and a nephew of Mr. Robert Fair of this city.

vie to investigate the automobile accident in which Sergt. Grady was involved on Friday night last, will complete its work to-day, and will at once report to Colonel Ogilvie, A.A.G. The A.D.S.T., it is said, also appointed a board of enquiry on Saturday, but the findings of the board appointed by headquarters will be final and binding. Sergt. Grady has offered to pay all damages connected with the accident, and it is understood that this will amount to fully $500. In view of this fact it is felt that the board will in all probability recommend that no further action be taken in the case. Brig.-General Hemming's car will be repaired at once, and the offer of Sergt. Grady will be accepted.

93RD BATT. MEN FAREB WELL

One of them was very impolite at the table to-day. As soon as he received his plateful, he looked at it and emptied it on the table. I was awful hurt and told him to put it back immediately. He looked at me and—did it! We have four German prisoners aboard, and they declare that this boat will never get across but they have a pretty good guard and will find it a pretty hard job to do us any harm.

July 27—I intended to write a little to this epistle every day, but didn't, so am just finishing it up in camp at England. I guess you know that we arrived safely. I didn't send a cable as I heard that Major Watt did so. We arrived in Liverpool Monday night, July 24th, after one of the dandiest trips one could wish for. There was a big bunch of Tars aboard from out west, having been recalled to England, and believe me I soon got talking to some of them. You ought to have heard the yarns. I was on guard on board ship pretty near the whole way across. I had to see that 68 men got fed ;talk about a job.

It seemed awful funny to get in the trains here, although it made some of the Canucks open their eyes when we got going. We had a clear run through and most of the time doing 50 or 60 miles an hour. You ought to have heard the complements about the country. The best I heard was that it was worth fighting for.

Well, mother, I am glad to see England again, and will be glad when I can leave to see some of my friends. I am taking another course in physical training and bayonet fighting and hope I make good at it.

Well I hope you will excuse this short epistle, but think I had better close as I don't want dad or the children blaming me for making them late for work through reading it. With west love to all and your dear old self. I remain,

Your loving son,
NORMAN.

Lightning Uprooted Tree

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Aug. 9.—This vicinity after many weeks of drought and intense heat, was relieved by a rainfall of about three hours. The electrical storm spent its fury west of St. Thomas, but the citizens were shocked by a bolt of lightning that struck an immense oak tree in the St. Thomas cemetery which was rent in tow, uprooted and thrown several yards. The bolt which struck the tree was like a huge ball of fire. Simultaneously with the flash all the Hydro lights went out throughout the city, which was in darkness for about half an hour.

Lightning at midnight struck the barns of William Mathews, a Yarmouth Township farmer, and totally destroyed them, with fifty tons of hay grain and all implements. Loss $5,000; party covered by insurance.

Enjoy Civic Holiday

The attraction of the day will be the exciting events to be run off at the Regatta off Juniper Island under the management of the Stoney Lake Cottagers' Association. Quite a long string of aquatic events have been arranged for and the competition in each contest will be as keen as rivalry can make it. Delightfully cool weather on the lake is another inducement. 4d-13

Mr. Jos. Wearing Supports The Idea of Equality of Pensions

Peterborough, Aug. 9, 1916.

Editor Peterborough Examiner:

Dear Sir,—In your editorial of yesterday under the caption of "equality of reward," you struck a note that will find an echo in the sentiments of thousands of citizens of this country. There is beyond doubt a considerable feeling in all the provinces that in the matter of pensions at least, no distinction should be made between those who happened to go overseas as privates and those who were fortunate in being sent as officers.

Whatever it may be in other countries, certainly in this no line can be drawn between officers and privates in the matter of education or social standing. Every battalion recruited shows proof of this. The only distinction is in the matter of military training. For the superiority which they have in military training, together with the added responsibilities the officers, while in the service, receive higher remuneration than privates. This is as it should be. But why should this greater consideration extend to pensions? The officer while on duty have been paid for their higher service. As far as I can see there is no reason whatever why any added advantage in money matters should follow.

The truth is that in many cases men are in the ranks as privates who might have been officers because of a nobler spirit of self-sacrifice which they have shown. They have been willing to humble themselves that their country might be exalted. Let me give a case in point. A friend of mine graduated from McGill University and then prepared for the Anglican ministry at Western University. At the end of his training he joined the ranks of a Middlesex battalion and went to the front with the second contingent. Before leaving Canada he was married to a girl from one of the best homes in the town where she lived, and on the 12th of July of this year he was killed, leaving this girl as his widow and a daughter he had never seen. This young man had every opportunity to train for an officer. He went as a private because he believed the call was urgent and because he wished to set an example to other young men in the locality where he lived. For my part I see no British justice in granting a pension to this hero's widow which is one cent less than she would receive if he had died an officer.

There are other personal friends of mine who are university trained professional men who have enlisted as privates in this province because they have had the courage and the spirit of self-abnegation to obey their country's call promptly and without taking time to put themselves in a position of greater authority and higher remuneration. Some of these men have shown me the financial sacrifice which it meant to them to leave their professions and don the khaki. Yet they have gone; and in almost every case among my own friends, left families behind them. There is no question that there are hundreds and perhaps thousands of Canadian soldiers similar to these I have mentioned. To me the idea is absurd that in the matter of pensions they or those they leave behind should for years suffer for the sacrifice which they made in responding readily to the urgent need, not for officers, but for men in the ranks. We boast of our democracy, and these facts show that we have something to boast of. Let us be true to it.

Yours truly,
Joseph Wearing.

DIVISIONAL SIGNALLING CO. WANTS FIVE ELECTRICIANS FOR OVERSEAS

Five men, experienced in electrical work, are wanted for the Divisional Signalling Company, Ottawa. This is an opportunity for elizible men to enlist with one of the best branches of the service. They will serve as telegraphers, linemen, electricians and signallers. Any local men who have been engaged in electrical work and who desire to enlist with a corps that has attracted a splendid type of recruits should get in touch with Major Ackerman at once. Only experienced men or those with a working knowledge of electrical equipment need apply.

WHEAT TOUCHED A NEW HIGH

September Wheat Closed at $1.44½ a Gain of About Eleven Cents Since Last Night

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

CHICAGO, ILL., Aug. 9.—Wheat soared to its highest mark since the war boom of early in 1915, just before the close of the market to-day. September wheat closed at $1.44 1-2, a gain of about eleven cents since last night. In 1915, wheat at one time reached $1.67 a bushel. The grain pits were mad houses at the close to-day.

WINNIPEG, Man., Aug. 9.—Provincial experts to-day estimated that Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta would yield 276 million bushels of wheat this year, as compared with 376 million bushels last year.

ZEPPELINS KILLED SIX PERSONS

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, Aug. 3.— Gen. French, commander of the home forces, reported this afternoon that one man, two women and three children were killed in a north-eastern town as a result of last night's Zeppelin raids. Five men, six women and six boys were injured.

Risks His Life to Rescue Dog Chased by Shark

ARIEL CAMERON DIVES INTO HUNTINGDON BAY—PET ESCAPES WHEN MONSTER TURNS TO ATTACK.

South Norwalk, Conn., August 9.—The entire Connecticut shore is intensely interested over the attack a shark made on a shepherd dog in the waters of Huntingdon Bay. The dog undoubtedly would have been killed by the shark had not the owner of the animal at the risk of his life waded neck deep in the water and with an oar kept the hungry fish at a distance.

The dog was owned by Mr. and Mrs. Ariel Cameron who were in a yacht in the bay. With their family Mr. and Mrs. Cameron went in swimming and later on went ashore. The dog was left on the yacht and seeing the fun the bathers were having, he jumped overboard and was swimming the hundred feet to the shore when the shark attacked him. The dog barked in fright and Mr. Cameron saw the shark's fin and grasping an oar from his rowboat went to the dog's rescue. Mr. Cameron waded until the water was over his shoulders before he succeeded in rescuing the dog. It was estimated that the shark was 7 or 8 feet long.

ANNUAL REGATTA OFF JUNIPER ISLAND STONEY LAKE

The official announcemennts for the popular Regatta off Juniper Island, Stoney Lake, under the auspices of the Stoney Lake Cottagers' Association, will be issued to-morrow. This annual event comes off on Peterborough's Civic Holiday, Monday, Aug. 14th, starting usually about 1.30 p. m. This is one of the best attractions for Peterborough's citizens on their Civic Holiday, and a large portion of the population will take advantage of the event for a trip to the lakes and to see the regatta. The executive committee in charge of this year's Regatta have been engaged in preparing an unusually lively programme of aquatic sports, and both in number and in events of lively interest, the regatta is expected to create a gala day. Train and steamer arrangements have been made to meet the requests of the public. Three trains will leave the Grand Trunk Station, viz., at 8.20 a.m., 12.20 p.m., and 5.30 a.m., to connect with steamers of the Stoney Lake Navigation Co., who are putting their whole fleet in requisition for the events.

The steamers Empress and Manita have been slated to leave the George Street Wharf at 8 o'clock in the morning, while the other steamers will be in waiting at Lakefield for the arrival of the morning, noon and evening trains.

Arrangements have also been made for those who wish to participate in the evening festivities to return by a late boat, so as to allow time for dancing and other pastimes, for which Mr. Asa Huycke's Orchestra has been engaged to provide enlivening music. Fuller particulars may be learned from the official announcements and programme of events.

EXCESS OFFICERS NOT TO BE SENT OVERSEAS

NO APPLICATIONS WILL BE ENTERTAINED FOR THEM AT HEADQUARTERS.

Militia orders issued contain the following in reference to the establishment of infantry battalions:

"As it has been decided to make the establishment of all Canadian divisions in the field uniform, the establishment of officers of an infantry battalion cannot exceed 38, which includes a chaplain, if one is authorized. Officers in excess, such as majors, third in command, assistant adjutants, signaling officers, etc., are not to be taken overseas, and it must be distinctly understood that no applications to take these officers overseas will be entertained at militia headquarters. It must also be borne in mind that when battalions are broken up in England, no officers above the rank of lieutenant are sent over to France, and there will be no chance of a major, third in command, getting any appointment."

ONLY INDIAN TO FIND WEST POINT WITH 237TH UNIT

Is Athletic, Has Been An Editor, and Also Soldier.

The latest recruit to the 237th Battalion, American Legion, is known as Sylvester Chuhuska Long-Lance, a mighty man in sports and studies at Carlisle University and St. John Military Academy. Long-Lance was chosen by President Wilson to be the only Indian trained at West Point. He is a graduate of Carlisle. He has thrown Frank Leavitt, the heavyweight wrestling champion of the United States army. Three times he has beaten Jim Thorpe the all-round world athlete in a mile race. He has been a clerk on a railroad, editor of a magazine, and many other things.

He did not tell the recruiting officer these things as he walked into the St. Catherine street office yesterday and announced that he had just come up from New York to take a look round, and had decided that it would not be a bad plan to enlist in the Canadian Expeditionary Force. He said his name was Long-Lance and the recruiting officer did not remember having heard it before. There was some one in the office, however, who had heard the name and remembered the connection.

His Record.

"Any relation to the Long-Lance who had his photo in all the papers a little while ago when President Wilson appointed him to West Point?" asked this man.

Long-Lance admitted that he was the self-same chap. So they looked up his record and here it is:

Long-Lance was born twenty-four years ago, on the North Carolina Cherokee reserve on the estate that Kit Carson used to have in the old days. Three grandparents are still living there. One of his grandaunties is 112 years of age and another 113. The boy was educated first at the reservation school, then at Carlisle University, graduating at the head of his class. Afterwards he went to St. John's Military Academy for three years, followed by a few months at West Point.

At Carlisle, Long Lance was first lieutenant of the cadet corps, president of the literary society, member of the college debating team, vice-president of the school government body, president of the Y.M.C.A., treasurer of the senior class, valedictorian, honour graduate and solo clarionet player. In 1913 he passed highest at St. John's. Of all his achievements he prizes most the honour conferred upon him by President Wilson. The President of the United States is the only man who can open the West Point door to an Indian and only once has it been done.

That is the record of Long-Lance and the 237th has him. He has filled up his attestation papers, and made himself quite at home with the Montreal staff of the American Legion. He is of medium height, brown and sturdy. He will be picked out as he marches along with the battalion, even among such soldiers as those who, like him, have come over the border to fight for honour under the British flag.

British Troops Further Advanced Their Lines

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, August 9.—The British further advanced their lines north of Pozieres last night in bombing attacks along the enemy's trenches, taking many prisoners, General Haig reported to the War Office this afternoon.

No Change Occurred on British Front

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, August 9.—No change occurred in the vicinity of Guillemont, where the British and French troops were on the offensive Monday. The Germans displayed considerable activity at the Ypres salient last night. British trenches between Bellewaarde Lake and the Yser Canal were heavily shelled for two hours before midnight. The Germans then attacked in masses on a broad front. The attacks had little effect, the enemy failing to enter the British lines.

Canadians hold the line in the vicinty of Ypres. From General Haig's report it is evident that the Germans made another unsuccessful attempt to gas the defenders from the Dominion.

THE CAPTURE OF GORITZ IS OFFICIALLY CONFIRMED

Examiner Special.

ROME, August 9.—The capture of Goritz, a town and fortress, by the Italians, who took ten thousand Austrian prisoners and many guns, is officially confirmed.

LONDON, August 9.—The taking of Goritz, is the greatest achievement for Italian arms since Italy declared war on Austria in May, 1915, and opens the way for an Italian advance southward toward Trieste. Goritz is the point of convergence of important railways, and the key to the whole plain opening up to the invasion of Austria from the west. Goritz has a population of about thirty thousand, and is the capital of an Austrian province. It lies on the east bank of the Isonzo, surrounded on three sides by mountain ridges and peaks, which constitute a natural fortress. The ease with which Goritz was taken is one of the greatest surprises of the war. Following successful artillery attacks the Italians also completed the occupation of the heights west of Goritz, said the official despatch.

PETROGRAD (Officitl), August 9.—Another Russian detachment has captured the left bank of the Koropetz river at its junction with the Dniester river east of Stanislau. South of the Dniester the Russians pursued and drove the enemy from a series of heights and villages, capturing the ridge northeast of Tysnienica to the River Dniester, and also the right bank of the River Verona, as far as Stockovchica.

Mine Explosion In The West

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

FERNIE, B.C., Aug. 9.—A rescue train has been dispatched to St. Michael, British Columbia, where a serious explosion was reported to-day in Mine No. 3. Early reports did not say, how many men were entombed.

TORONTO, Aug. 9. — One report says at least twelve men were killed in mine explosions at St. Michael, B.C.

Will Oppose Alterations

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

TORONTO, Aug. 9.—E. P. Clement, K.C., chairman of the Committee of One Hundred, to-day declared emphatically that the committee would fight every effort to alter the Temperance Act.

Don't Bathe Too Long

It may be taken for granted that most boys and girls are now looking forward to the great treat which summer has in store for them, "going in bathing." A doctor had this to say the other day to a little boy (you will not want to hear it, perhaps, but you had better listen, as is tip-top advice to the would-be bather):

"You know that after awhile you begin to feel the water beginning warm. That is the time to get out. The water is not getting any warmer; it is you that are getting colder. Your body has become reduced in temperature, and so the water seems to be getting warmer. Fifteen minutes is long enough to stay in the water unless you are on a swim and keeping your body so briskly in action that you are not reducing its temperature." —Brooklyn Eagle.

WHAT THE WAR HAS DONE FOR ROMANCE

"Oh, keep him safe where'er he be,
And bring my true love home to me."

The old-fashioned air floated out in to the garden with a plaintive cardence and mingled with the music of summer.

The garden gate clicked, feet crunched the gravel, the song in the house suddenly ceased, there were running footsteps, and then a quietness settled down.

Up the short lane I watched the post girl continuing her round, and saw her turn in by the little Catholic church that nestles on the edge of the wood.

Behind the quaint grey stone, ivy-clad church there was a glimpse of a white robed woman, on whose breast was emblazoned the Red Cross. But the post girl did not make towards the Red Cross matron. She went instead towards the great white cross which stands in the garden, sharply defined against the dark greenery of the ancient trees, and she handed a letter to a blue garbed man reclining there at the foot of the cross—a sunburned, tanned young man, temporarily broken in the wars.

Down the hill went the post girl and the soldier was left there with his letter. It must have been a long letter or maybe it was a short letter that he read many times for he kept it in his hands longer than is usual, and afterwards he did not slip it into the ample side pocket of his coat, but laboriously he undid the coat and safely laid the letter in an inner pocket, sheltered beneath his maimed arm, and the side on which he laid it was that which we like to think is nearest the heart.

The song of the girl within the house had started again but now it had a different cadence—the plaintive note had gone. The melody was wafted over the meadow and reached the ears of the young soldier beneath the cross in the sunny little Catholic churchyard. He placed his hand where the letter lay.

Both the girl in the house and the soldier in the garden has received what to them was a possession to be desired above all others in these war days—a love letter.

. . . . . .

The ships which pass to and fro across the channel are laden with letters—nearly all of them contain messages of love for some one, but the great majority are real love letters.

Lovers who in the old days found their thoughts so hard to express on paper and who were rarely satisfied with their sweetest efforts, now sit down in the trenches, in billets, in the Y.M.C.A. huts, in hospitals, in camps, and in the ships that carry them away from our land, and the words that were so reluctant to express their sentiments in other days, now trip off the pen (more often pencil) with a fluency that often surprises the writers themselves.

They, being men, do not always realise that their former lack of success often lay in the fact that they tried to think of something poetical and lover like to write, whereas now they sit down and just write us the blunt truth.

They say "I love you," and that is all a woman ever wants to hear.

But some rise to more eloquent heights than others—nearly two years of the pain of parting, have given to the girls of to-day some of the most exquisite love letters that have ever been penned.

Many a lover who invented subterfuge in order to escape writing the conventional love letter now finds relief in putting his thoughts on paper: many a husband who thought that for him the days of romance were over writes love letters to his wife.

. . . . . .

There are few women in Great Britain to-day who do not cherish love letters of the Great War—we have never had so many love letters in our lives. Women for generations past have not received the homage that the girl of to-day receives—in writing—and women love to see it in writing.

We look through our old love letters—carefully written little epistles on faultless paper. They are very dear to us.

Then we look at the ever growing bundle of flimsy, often soiled, badly written pieces of paper that the love ships have brought us from over the water—these are to us dearer still, we read them afresh, we discern the new tone in them, and we are happy and satisfied.

SANK A SUBMARINE.

Captain of British Ship at Baltimore Tells of Exploit.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 4.—Captain David Thomson, master of the British steamship Strathness, which arrived here to-day from Mediterranean ports, told of an engagement which he declared his vessel had with a German submarine, near Algiers, on July 15, in which the submersible was sunk.

Two gunners from the British navy, who were in charge of a six-pound gun mounted on the after deck of the Strathness for defensive purposes, sank the submarine, according to Captain Thomson, when a ball struck it amidships, causing an explosion. He said the underwater boat dived suddenly and was not seen again.

While the Strathness was struck several times, once, according to Captain Thomson, by a torpedo, no great damage was done, and the freighter escaped with several dented plates and portions of her superstructure demolished.

'ROUND THE STORES

The proprietor of the Peterborough Creamery has shown that it has kept abreast of the times, and is in accord with the investigations of noted European scientists, regarding the value of butter milk. To-day physicians, students of the scientific investigations and researches of the British Medical Society, prescribe buttermilk for many of the ills of humanity. In many cases of nervous breakdown, overwork, and general prostration, buttermilk in the present age is prescribed instead of the product of the apothecary shop as in days of yore.

To meet the increasing popular demand for buttermilk, as a nutritious, health-preserving and health-restoring libation Peterborough Dairy Company has made adequate preparation, the same scrunity and thoroughness being observed in the handling and delivery of the buttermilk as in its other products.

The success of the Peterborough Dairy is due to the untiring energy of Geo. A. Gillespie, M.P.P., who possesses not only business talent and activity—but is a known leader in Dairy and Agricukural pursuits. He is a good type of Canadian business efficiency. A hard worker and is still in his prime. The favorable reputation of the Peterborough Creamery's products is spreading, so that it will not be long before enlargments and modern labor-saving machinery will have to be added.

BUFFALO PITCHERS VIOLATED RULES, USED "EMERY BALL"

Toronto Players Complained Repeatedly to the Umpires - Say Buffalo Pitchers Used Solution S'milar to That Employed in Grinding Automobile Valves

TORONTO, Aug. 9.—The Buffalo pitchers put more than ordinary "stuff" on the ball during the six-game series at the Island, which concluded on the holiday.

Manager Birmingham and the Toronto players declare that the Bisons tampered with nearly every ball that was put in the game, using either emery or a similar substance to ruffle the seams on the ball so as to enable the pitchers to make it "break" in an unexpected manner.

The umpires repeatedly examined the baseballs in the two games on Saturday, and another dozen on the holiday, and threw several out of the game, but it did not stop the Buffalo pichers. Even George Gaw tried to get away with it on Saturday, but was called so often as to make his work ineffective. Pitcher Bader did it oftener than any of them and got away with it.

The Toronto players say the Bison pitchers used a solution similar to that employed in the grinding of valves in automobile engines.

UMPIRE BAITING IN NATIONAL.

The question of umpire baiting comes up in the National League to-morrow, when the club-owners

President Tener has called a meeting of the league here to-morrow and the question will be thoroughly discussed.

Just how poor may be the eyesight of the arbiters of the National League, is a matter of doubt, J. Evers notwithstanding, but it is significant that the Phillies, who last year won the pennant, had least trouble with the umpires, and Brooklyn this year seldom raises a howl.

ATHLETICS AFTER RECORD.

Connie Mack and his Athletics have just one more chance to-day to escape the ignominy of tieing the American League record for consecutive defeats. They have lost 19 straight, and have won but five games out of the last 67. The record for successive defeats is twenty, established long ago by Boston, and thought safe against any assault. Mack will play his one remaining card, Joe Bush, to-day in an effort to win from the Tigers. Philadelphia has been the one soft spot this year in a league filled with fighting teams. St. Louis and Washington, though close to the cellar, have caused all kinds of trouble for the league leaders. But when an American League team pulls into Philadelphia this year, it figures that only possible bad weather stands in the way of four straight.

Work of the Army Behind the Army

Lord Northcliffe Describes Wonderful Organization Behind British Front

WOULD MAKE GERMAN PRISONERS LAOUR ON DOCKS IN BRITAIN.

LONDON, Aug. 8.—Under the title "The Army Behind the Army," Lord Northcliffe contributes a lengthy article to the Times describing the wonders of the organization behind the British front in France, which he favorably contrasts with conditions earlier in the war. The British, he says, enter the third year of the war under "miraculously changed conditions from the point of view of efficiency and economy." The number of skilled workers behind the lines he points out, exceeds the number of the total British expeditionary force.

"We have a whole South African campaign and a complete Crimea every month," he writes.

"The army behind the army has already improved on the spot much of the machinery in which we had thought to have attained perfection. Among Germany's many blunders was her forgetfulness of the British power of quick improvisation and organization is unexpected circumstances.

"Making allowances for war time, our lines of communication, organization, superimposed as it is upon the overworked French railways and roads, and in a country where there is no native labour to be had, is in August, 1916, as near perfection as it ever can be. As difficult as economy and war are to mate I have on the occasion of this visit, and in contrast to the days of 1914, seen nothing wasted.

GATHER ALL WORTH SALVAGE.

"To-day, almost before the reek and fume of the battle is over, almost before our own and the enemy dead are all buried, the salvage corps appears to collect and pile unused cartridge and machine gun belts, unexploded bombs, old shell cases, damaged rifles, haversacks, steel helmets, and even old rags which go to the base and are sold at $250 a ton.

"It is only old bottles, which, with old newspapers, letters, meat tins and broken axes are features of battlefields that do not appear to be worthy of salvage.

"At one place I saw over 1,000 French and Belgian girls cleansing and repairing clothing that had come back from the front. Elsewhere I saw men using the most modern Northampton machinery for soling and heeling any pair of old boots that would stand the labour; and such footgear as was useless was not wasted, for by an ingenious contrivance, invented on the spot by a young Dublin bootmaker, the upper parts of such boots were being converted into boot laces by thousands.

The authorities at home seem to hide our German prisoners. In France they work, and in public, and are content with their lot, as I know by personal enquiry of many of them. If it be true that there be congestion in the docks at home, caused by lack of labour, the sooner the German prisoners are put to work and help to shorten the war, the better."

The only criticism Lord Northcliffe has to make is in the clerical departments, which might, he thinks, be modernized. He also says he has heard that in some of these there are still men of military age working behind the lines.

AUSTRIA PATERNAL TO WAR PRISONERS

Precautions Taken to Insure Good Feeding, Health, and Moderate Labour Only, It Is Asserted.

Austria-Hungary is making effective use of her hosts of prisoners of war in harvesting the crops of the Dual Monarchy, and the prisoners themselves are being treated with great consideration, according to a report sent to Der Tag of Berlin by a correspondent in Vienna. This report, which is in direct contradiction with some accounts of the alleged abuse of prisoners in Austria that have been printed in this country, reads, in part, as follows:

"The starvation plans of our enemies have failed. And our enemies themselves have, although much against their will, contributed towards making it possible to confirm this happy fact. For the greatest danger that menaced our agriculture in particular consisted in a lack of adaptable labour. This shortage of men has now been remedied in the most fortunate manner by the armies of the Central Powers in sending hundreds of thousands of prisoners to be placed at the disposal of the agricultural establishments and thus not only furnishing substitutes for the farm labourers in the army, but also replacing with them the former migratory movement of farm workers in times of peace.

"That it is possible to reconcile the protection of prisoners of war guaranteed by international law with the interests of domestic industry is proved to the fullest degree by the regulations applied to the employment of prisoners of war in agricultural and industrial establishments which have been worked out by the Austro-Hungarian military authorities and which are entirely accessible to the public. A regular codification of social-political regulations for the care of this class of workers is offered by these regulations. In general, so far as labour periods, rest periods, changes of tasks, overtime, Sunday rest, and labour protection are concerned, the same laws and provisions that apply in the case of similar work by civilians apply to the prisoners of war. Violations of these regulations are regarded the same as violations of the labour laws.

"As the work done by the prisoners of war cannot come under the provisions of the wage law, a new regulation has been made for this part of the labour contracts. Therefore detailed regulations have been issued as to the kind of lodgings to be furnished the prisoners, and these lodgings must be so constructed that the 'preservation of the health and working ability of the prisoners of war under all circumstances is guaranteed.' Also there are exact provisions prescribed as to the arrangement of the rooms, the kind of beds, the supply of drinking, and wash water, etc.

"An entire chapter is devoted to the most detailed regulations regarding the feeding of the prisoners of war. With the greatest conscientiousness, minimum and maximum quantities of food for the 'moderate' as well as for the 'hard' working prisoners are fixed, daily menus are prepared that also take into consideration the countries of origin of the prisoners, regulations for the preparation, and the serving of the food are given, and cooking recipes are added. Great weight is attached to the observation of the state of health of the war prisoners. They are medically examined upon their arrival at the scene of their labour, and this is repeated once a week for a month and fortnightly after that. Of course, every individual has the right to treatment and medical care in case of illness. The 'extra labour pay' of the war prisoners is also closely regulated. This allowance is not to be less than 15 heller (3 cents) a day, and the paying of higher allowances and the arrangement of special pay for special tasks, as well as the paying of premiums, is recommended.

"Numerous provisions look after the impartial treatment of the prisoners of war and their protection against injustice and offences by the guards. The prisoners of war may only be punished by the competent military authorities. The employer who is using them has no right to punish them. The following rule holds good under all circumstances: 'The prisoners of war remain soldiers, even while at work, and any abusive treatment of them is an injury to the prestige of the State.'

"The military administration also takes care to see that its orders are closely carried out. For that purpose—quite aside from the regular punishments prescribed—it has been arranged that every employer has to put up a bond of 30 crowns, ($6), for each prisoner, which is forfeited in case the employer treats or feeds the prisoner contrary to the regulations."

MUNITION WORKERS SPURRED ON BY HAIG

DIAGRAM, MADE BY BRITISH OFFICIALS, SHOWS THE IMMENSE INCREASE IN OUTPUT.

New York, August 9.—An official diagram received by a British official in this city yesterday shows the rise in the production of shells in Great Britain from September of last year, up to two weeks ago. The diagram indicates that two weeks ago the production of shells had almost reached the maximum capacity of the British plants and that this probably would be reached within the next few weeks.

With the diagram there came from the British war office a copy of a letter from General Sir Douglas Haig, the British Commander in Chief in France, in which he appealed to the munition workers not to lose a moment's time in keeping the army at the front plentifully supplied. A two days' let up in the supply, said General Haig, would be a serious thing for the army in France, and "might even mean the addition of many months to the war."

General Haig's appeal, written from his headquarters in France, was as follows:

"I feel sure that you would like to know how fully the troops in this country appreciate the strenuous and self sacrificing efforts which are being made by their fellow countrymen at home to furnish them with the quantity of ammunition necessary to bring this campaign to an early and successful conclusion.

"At this moment we are engaged in the greatest battle the British army has ever fought. Our daily progress has been continuous since the battle opened, but the successes of our gallant troops have only been made possible by the guns and ammunition turned out in the factories at home.

"The munition workers at home very generously gave up their Whitsuntide holiday and were promised two days in August instead. I fully appreciate how tired they must be and how much they must be looking forward to that promised holiday! Yet, I feel confident that if they could but see their comrades fighting here, both night and day, with heroism and determination which is beyond all praise, they would not hesitate to surrender those two days' rest and would devote them to raintaining and if possible increasing the supply of guns and shells, without which victory is impossible.

"I ask you to put the facts before the workmen and I know that they will consent.

"Two days' cessation of work in the munition factories must have the most serious effect on our operations. It might even mean the addition of many months to the war. The pressure which we have now brought to bear on the enemy must not for a moment be relaxed. The troops are prepared and eager to maintain it but a continuous supply of ammunition is a vital factor.

"The army in France looks to the munition workers to enable it to complete its task and I feel sure that this appeal will not be in vain.

"Let the whole British nation forego any idea of a general holiday until our goal is reached. A speedy and decisive victory will then be ours!"

The official to whom a copy of General Haig's appeal was sent, said yesterday that it could be stated officially that the Commander in Chief's desires in the matter of munitions would be more than met by the workers in the British shell and ammunition manufacturing plants.

A novel polishing cloth has the outline of a hand stitched in it to save the hand of the worker.

In France all medical prescriptions are written in the language of the country.

Struck by Express As He Sat Resting at Edge of Bridge

Victim Was Killed While Out for an Early Morning Walk.

LONDON, Aug. 8.—The inquest called by Dr. C. C. Ross of Hyde Park to inquire into the circumstances surrounding the death of Warren K. Jenkins, who was killed early Saturday morning on the G. T. R. tracks near Hyde Park, will be held Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock at Smith, Son & Clarke's undertaking parlours.

The jury viewed the remains on Saturday evening.

Dr. C. C. Ross, in telephone communication with The Advertiser last evening, stated that he had received information which he had not been able as yet to confirm, to the effect that Mrs. Thos. Higgs, who lives near Hutton's bridge, had witnessed the accident. According to Dr. Ross's informant, Mrs. Higgs had arisen early on Saturday morning on account of her husband leaving for the city market at 5 o'clock.

She had noticed Jenkins walking along the tracks and had later seen him sit down on the edge near the east end of the bridge to rest. A few minutes later she heard the fast passenger, 5.38 a.m., train No. 14, known as the Sarnia-Montreal train, coming and expected Mr. Jenkins to get up and move away.

Instead, he did not move, apparently not hearing the approach of the train, and, according to Dr. Ross's informant, Mrs. Higgs saw Jenkins swept from the bridge by the swiftly moving train.

Owing to the fact that she was alone she decided to summon help.

Before she had accomplished this the freight train No. 15 came along, and the fireman saw Jenkins lying some yards from the bridge. Mrs. Higgs will be summoned to give evidence at the inquest, as will the engineer of train No. 14 and the fireman of train No. 15.

To a good woman a lover's jealousy is a homage, but to a good wife a husband's jealousy is an insult.

Mark Twain's First Money

Diogenes wasn't able to find an honest man, but it is doubtful whether he could find anybody who hasn't heard of Samuel Clemens, known more familiarly as Mark Twain. Once, while travelling, the late Mark Twain was asked by a friend and fellow passenger if he remembered the first money he had ever earned.

"Yes," answered Mr. Clemens, puffing meditatively at his cigar. "I have a distinct recollection of it. When I was a youngster I attended school at a place where the use of the birch rod was not an unusual event. It was against the rules to mark the desks in any manner, the penalty being a fine of $5 or public chastisement.

"Happening to violate the rule on one occasion I was offered the alternative. I told my father and as he seemed to think it would be too bad for me to be publicly punished, he gave me the $5.

"At that period of my existence $5 was a large sum, while a whipping was of little consequence, and so"—here Mr. Clemens reflectively knocked the ashes from his cigar—"well," he finally added, "that was how I earned my first $5."—Exchange.

Fire Destroys This Singer's Camp

Lake Placid, N. Y., August 9. — Fire, supposed to have started from an exploding kerosene lamp, destroyed the camp occupied by Miss Lydia Locke, prima donna soprano, of No. 106 Central Park West; another occupied by the Rev. Robert F. Norton of Brooklyn and an unoccupied camp adjoining them, on Mirror Lake. The three camps were in a group of four owned by Thomas Stewart, Jr., of New York. Few of the furnishings were saved, and the total loss amounted to about $5,000.

No one was about the premises when the fire started, the Rev. Mr. Norton being in Brooklyn, and Mrs. Norton and her daughters, her maid, and Miss Locke, and her maid, being away.

The village fire department, aided by volunteers from the nearby camps made a good fight and succeeded in saving the fourth camp of the group. Miss Locke, who is the wife of Orville Harrold of the Raveina Opera Company, of Chicago, is at the camp of Victor Herbert, on Lake Placid. She lost much clothing and some valuable jewels. Mrs. Norton and her daughters also lost a quantity of clothing. Elizabeth Robinson, 17, negro maid of Mrs. Norton, got separated from the party during the excitement, and remained all night in the woods.

ZOO ANIMALS IN GERMANY GETTING THIN

The eight or ten absolutely meatless weeks which, according to the food dictator, Herr Batocki, are hanging over the heads of the people of this city like the sword of Damocles, have not yet come, nor have they yet been reduced to the same straits as were the people of Paris during the siege of 1871, when they were compelled to eat all the inmates of the Paris Zoo. But if the authorities do not very soon make up their minds to have the animals of the Berlin Zoological gardens slaughteed, they shall find very little meat on any of them at the time when it might become necessary to send them to the abattoirs.

In the Berlin Zoo the sufferings of the poor beasts are obvious. Their constant roars and howls leave no doubt as to their feelings toward the wardens than the birds which are the national symbols of Germany as well as of the United States have seldom been seen. Few had any feathers left to speak of, and they were so weak that they could barely move.

Here is what the Berliner Tageblatt says of the poor creatures that are being slowly starved to death behind the bars of their cages:

"To feed 8000 animals in war time, when food for human beings is growing scarcer every day, is no easy matter. It is quite out of the question to say to these beasts: 'My dear Herr Lion or Herr Tiger, we ourselves have for some time been forced to get along with several meatless days a week, and it is, therefore, no more than right that you should do the same. On these days, therefore, you will in the future get only a sour herring or a few potato peelings.'

"Nor can you expect the serpents to feel happy when you give a measure of lettuce or spinach once a week instead of their usual weekly meal, which always has consisted of a fat rabbit. Animals stand a radical change of diet far less readily than human beings, and during our cent walks through the zoo we have noticed that the lions and tigers are looking anything but happy. Their flanks are hollow and their ribs protrude.

"The elephants are melancholy, and are trying in vain to understand why none of the visitors who used to spoil them with buns and cakes now ever go near them, and why those who stop to look at them never give them any food.

"Five ostriches have died, and of the eleven giant snakes there are now only three left, and these look anything but alive. Nearly all the inmates of the aquarian have died."—Baltimore News.

VODKA NOW IS REPLACED BY MOVIE SHOWS

Petrograd, July 5 (by mail.)—"Has the abolition of Vodka done any real good in Russia?"

I put this question to-day to Nicholas Tchakovsky, member of the Central Cooperative Committee of Petrograd as he sat in front of his desk at Committee headquarters.

Tried in 1907 as a revolutionist and acquitted he is now doing his bit for Russia. His sensitive face, reminding of portraits of Longfellow, surrounded as it is by snowy beard and hair, became very eager.

"Done any good!" he echoed. "It has worked wonders. For one thing it gives Russia a sober peasantry, and a sober peasantry means almost double working capacity. And over 80 per cent. of the Russian population—170,000,000 souls—are peasants It means better farms, bigger crops, more money, better living conditions in the homes, better fed children, and consequently more rapid advance in schools. Better children make better men.

"It means a more progressive, more dependable, richer Russian peasantry. It means all that and more besides."

"Tchaykovsky speaks English fluently. He moved to Kansas in 1870 and started a community there. A moral success it failed for lack of funds, whereupon the founder went to Chester, Pa., and worked as a carpenter. Later he got a job in a Philadelphia sugar mill. Subsequently to Paris, then to London (1905) he returned to the United States (1906), on a mission, founding Russian Committees in New York, Boston, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Cleveland Cincinnati, Chicago, Denver and other cities. In 1907 he returned to Russia where he was arrested and put in prison.

FINDING A SUBSTITUTE.

Since 1910 Tchaykovsky has been working here as a member of the Central Co-operative Committee, helping Co-operative Societies to get started and is so happy at the job that his face positively beams.

"We have always fought drink," he told me, "but when vodka was prohibited our committee asked:—'What are you going to give the people instead?'

"You know our villages are few and far between. Our rural districts are lonely. Vodka was a curse but it was also a diversion, which was why it got such a hold on Russia.

"So our thousands of rural Co-operative Societies all over the empire got busy. We organised diversions to keep the peasants and the villagers from missing their vodka.

"Most of our stores, offices, banks and warehouses are two-storied buildings. On the ground floor business is transacted. On the floor above are halls. These we turned into theatres, cinema halls and community meetings where the folks could come for diversion. We organised bands, amateur theatricals and so forth. We give concerts. The people come in droves and everybody has a good time.

"I don't think the vodka is missed much.

"In the meantime peasants have more money than they ever saw before.

"And despite the war our Co-operative Societies are growing at a wonderful rate.

"In one district alone the number of co-operative unions has grown since the war from 50 to 302.

OVER 400 WHOLESALE SOCIETIES.

"We had only forty wholesale societies last year. Now there are over 400. In 1911 there were but eleven credit unions in all Russia, whereas at present there are over sixty, and through which about 10,000 separate Co-operative Credit Societies are working. Our Moscow, or Mother Committee alone is co-ordinating the work of more than 2,000 groups, each group composed of several societies.

"We have organised a Central Co-operative Credit Bank in Moscow run like a stock concern, other co-operative credit banks holding the stock. Though only four years old and despite the war, we did a $140,000,000 business in 1915. This bank has its own office in London executing our foreign orders, buying and selling. To show the extent of our business, this office bought reaper twine in the United States to the value of $1500 last year.

"The Siberian societies have their own bank in London, buy and sell for themselves.

"We are branching out in every direction, building our own flour mills, starch works, oil plants, machine shops and so forth. We are going to start paper and sugar mills. At Staro-Bardinsky in Siberia, we have our own light plants, giving the inhabitants electricity for a dollar a year. Over 40 papers in Russia are devoted exclusively to our work.

BEST FOR ALL THE PEOPLE.

"Our goods are all good goods — everything the best and all for the people. That is our motto.

"In conjunction with the Zemstvo Union we are helping Russia and the Allies. Since the beginning of the war Siberia alone has furnished the army with 31,000,000 pounds of butter, with thousands of tons of hay, with lard, oats and other supplies—in all about seven million dollars' worth.

"Our best work for Russia, however, has been to make for a prosperous peasantry, advise it and generally aid it in looking after its interests. This has undoubtedly contributed to the nation's fighting strength, therefore during recent months we have left strictly war work to the Zemstvo, while we have given greater attention to local or peasant needs.

"The total investment in our Co-operatives is now $800,000,000, or equal to the Anglo-French war loan floated in America. We shall continue to increase."

I left the 65 year old worker smiling contentedly. His whole life has been devoted to his people. To-day his cup of joy is well nigh full.

TRAMWAY OPENED

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Aug. 9.—By the breaking of a bottle of champagne over one of the gates, Mrs. Thompson, wife of Mr. J. Enoch Thompson, Spanish Consul at Toronto, opened the aerial tramway over the Whirlpool, constructed by the Niagara Spanish Aerocar Co. The event took place yesterday afternoon shortly after 3 o'clock. Enthusiastic cheering followed the breaking of the bottle. When the car had been christened, Mr. Antonio Balsola, a member of the company, presented Mrs. Thompson with a beautiful bouquet of roses. Throughout the afternoon hundreds of guests of the company were taken for a ride over the Whirlpool.

VERNON CASTLE MIXES FLYING AND DANCING.

Writes to Mr. Dillingham He Wants Star Part If the War Lasts Much Longer.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Charles B. Dillingham yesterday received a letter from Vernon Castle from "somewhere in France."

"It's not at all bad here," wrote the dancer and comedian, "except we have to fly over the German lines every day and get shot at by their guns. Up to now I am perfectly safe and well, but some day they may not know who I am and accidently hit me. I'm flying a monoplane that looks something like a Fokker.

"In the evening I give dancing lessons to the officers, so that after the war if you want a perfectly good male chorus I've got one ready for you. I don't know how long this war will last, but I hope I don't have to play this part for more than a season unless they star me.

"Please send me some music from your latest productions. The latest they have here is 'The Robert E. Lee.'"

DISCUSS DAYLIGHT SAVING.

A conflict of interests over the question of making the "daylight saving" scheme—established on May 1st, by an order setting all the clocks in Germany one hour ahead—a permanent institution during the six "Summer" months has arisen in the empire, and is occupying considerable space in the German press.

The general organization of German craft and industrial bodies has sent out queries on the advisability of continuing the new "Summer time" next year and every year in the future, and a great many of the answers are in the affirmative, including one from the Berlin organization.

On the other hand the association of merchants and manufacturers interested in the illuminating industry," has petitioned the German government to abolish daylight saving as soon as possible as the new order of things is playing havoc with the income of the thousands dependent on the old time lavish consumption of paraffin, gas and electricity.

RUSSIAN FORCES ARE NEARING STANISLAU

FRENCH TROOPS ADVANCE ON THE WESTERN FRONT

The Italian Troops Continue The Pursuit Of Austrian Forces

Austrian Aviation Station Six Miles East of Goritz Has Been Captured by Italian Troops—Large Body of Austrian Troops Cut Off From the Main Force—French Official Statement Records Success For the French Troops in the Somme Offensive—One Hundred Prisoners Captured.

GERMAN ATTACKS REPULSED

ROME, Aug. 10.—The Austrian aviation station of Aisovizza, six miles east of Goritz, has been captured by Italian troops, who are continuing the pursuit of the Austrian force that retreated from Goritz, according to reports received here to-day.

Cavalry detachments and Bersaglieri cyclist detachments entered Aisovizza, after putting to flight the Austrian rearguard which attempted to make a stand in the eastern suburbs of Goritz. In this action a body of Austrian troops is reported to have been cut off from the main force. The pursuit of the Austrian army has been somewhat hampered by the necessity of repairing damaged bridges and roadways destroyed by the enemy before the retreat from Goritz. Large numbers of heavy guns, some of which the enemy had made ineffectual attempts to destroy, fell into the hands of the Italian forces at Goritz. King Victor Emmanuel is understood to have been at the Isonzo front when Goritz fell, though he has not yet entered the Austrian stronghold.

FRENCH FORCES ADVANCE

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PARIS, Aug. 10.—(French Official Communique).—Despite the fog and rain, the French troops made further progress in the Allies' Somme offensive last night, advancing in the region north of the Hem Woods, taking one hundred prisoners and six machine guns, it was officially announced to-day. South of the Somme a German reconnaissance was dispersed.

On the Verdun front no important infantry fighting occurred during the night. There was intermittent bombardment in the region of Fleury and the Vaux Chapitre woods. In the Vosges a German attack on the French positions north-east of Altkirch failed utterly. Many air raids were carried out last night. On the Somme front three German aeoplanes were beaten.

Russians Are Nearing Stanislau

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, Aug. 10.—The Russians are nearing Stanislau. The Italians are advancing towards Trieste. The British and French are holding all ground recently gained.

Special to The Examiner:

PARIS, Aug. 10.—Allies have decided to retaliate by raiding German towns when German Zeppelins kill women and children.

Huge Quantities of War Material Were Captured

The Italians Displayed Skill in Accomplishing the Fall of Goritz —Trenches Filled With Austrian Dead—The Drive Began Shortly After Daybreak Sunday Morning and Yesterday Resulted in the Capture of Goritz—A Cascade of Fire.

ONLY THE BEGINNING

ROME, Aug. 10.—The Italian official statement follows:

"Yesterday morning our troops entered the town of Goritz.

"On Tuesday morning, in the Goritz area, after intense artillery preparation, our infantry completed occupation of the heights west of the town, driving out the last remaining hostile detachments. Trenches and dugouts were found full of the bodies of Austrian soldiers. The enemy, completely routed, had left large quantities of arms, ammunition, and material.

"At nightfall detachments of the Casale and Pavia brigades crossed the Isonzo and consolidated themselves on the left bank. A column of cavalry and Bersaglieri cyclists promptly launched a pursuit of the enemy beyond the river. In the meantime our engineers were throwing new bridges across the river and repairing those damaged by the enemy.

"On Carso Plateau our troops repulsed several counter attacks on the summit of Monte San Michele, and captured more trenches in the neighbourhood of San Martino.

"Up to the present time we have taken about 10,000 prisoners. More are coming in. The exact quantity of material taken by us has not yet been ascertained, but it is very considerable."

Enthusiasm in Rome.

Rome was swept with a tremendous wave of enthusiasm yesterday as fresh despatches from the front brought fragmentary details of the fighting around Goritz. The whole city instantly beflagged when the announcement of the capture of Goritz was made. A huge crowd gathered in Piazzi Colona and cheered the army, King Victor Emmanuel and General Cadorna. Similar demonstrations occurred in the threatres and cafes.

In other Italian cities, Milan, Bologna, Leghorn, and Florence, great crowds gathered in patriotic demonstrations that lasted all night. The general conviction is that the War Office statement was most conservative, and that Italy is on the brink of a great and decisive victory that will send Italian armies marching on Trieste.

Only the Beginning.

"This is only the beginning of operations promising great developments," said the newspaper Corriere D'Italia. "Indisputably, the enemy's front has been broken."

The censor is now permitting publication of some despatches relating to the beginning of the Isonzo offensive. The drive began shortly after daybreak Sunday morning with a steady hail of Italian shells for a period of nine hours along a 20-mile front extending down the Isonzo to the Adriatic. Italian warships in the upper Adriatic supported the land artillery with a bombardment of the Austrian left wing.

A Cascade of Fire.

"No such awe-inspiring cascade of fire ever before has been witnessed on the Italian front," wired one Italian correspondent. "So violent were the incessant earthquake-like phenomena produced by the big shells that houses in the Goritz Plain were shattered or collapsed solely through force of the seismic waves. The mouths of vast caverns on the Carso Plateau, in which thousands of Austrian troops had sought refuge, were choked by tons of debris and converted into living tombs.

"At 4 o'clock in the afternoon the order was given for the infantry to leave the trenches. The spectacle of these hardy warriors as they bounded forth to the fray recalled the heroes of legendary lore. Thousands of their front ranks wore around their helmets a floral garland specially woven by the women of Thiene, Schio, Vorastica and Vicenza.

"To the stirring war cry of 'Great Italy forever,' they bounded across the dales at the bridgehead and further down scaled the lines of Carso plateau, engaging in hand-to-hand struggles. Ahead of the main forces ran men bearing aloft big white discs mounted on slender grey green poles so as to guide the gunners in lifting their range as the infantry advanced."

Will Confiscate German Property

British Government Contemplates This Form of Retaliation For the Execution of Capt. Fryatts

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, Aug. 10.—The British Government contemplates confiscation of all German-owned property in England, for the execution of Capt. Fryatt, it was announced in the House of Lords yesterday. The properties are worth hundreds of millions of dollars.

Pendulum Swings To The Allies

LONDON, Aug. 10.—"The Allies have been having a jolly good time since I saw you last," said the Earl of Derby, Under-Secretary of War, in meeting the newspaper correspondents. Lord Derby discussed the present military situation frankly, but declined to make any prophecies beyond the assertion that he was convinced there was no possibility of the initiative again falling into the hands of the Germans.

RUSSIANS HELPED.

"It is not a bit of use comparing the casualties on our front with the ground gained," continued Lord Derby. "As a whole the problem must be considered from the standpoint of the effect on other fronts, in the first place, and in the number of Germans we are able to kill. We have prevented the sending of vast German forces to the eastern front, where the Russians are making such impressive progress, while it is indisputable that the latest offensive on the western front has relieved the pressure upon Verdun.

NO TRANSFER NOW.

"You will recall that last year the Germans, using their railways to the best advantage, sent reinforcements from one front to the other with the utmost facility. They are not doing this now, and will never be able to do it again.

END BY KILLING GERMANS.

"Every Austrian killed or captured must be replaced with a German. This process cannot go on forever. The pendulum, now stopped, will not again swing for the Germans. We are killing many Germans, and this work will eventually end the war.

"It is foolish to belittle our own troops by belittling the Germans. Although they are no longer the 'top tiger' they are still fighting like tigers. For concentrated fury nothing in the war exceeded the fight our troops had with the Brandenburgs on the Somme front.

PRESSURE TO BE CONSTANT.

"While I have no more information concerning the Russian victories than you read in the press, I am convinced that the operation is tremendously important, for you will notice that 2,000 Germans, not Austrians, have been taken with some of their big guns. Such a thing does not happen every day.

"We are applying pressure on all sides, and will continue to apply it until the successful conclusion of the war."

8 BOXES CURED PSORIASIS

Mrs. Nettie Massey, Cameron, Ont., writes: "Three doctors described my trouble as psoriasis, and one said could never be cured. The disease spread all over me, even on my face and head, and the itching and burning was hard to bear. I used eight boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment and am entirely cured—not a sore to be seen. I can hardly praise this Ointment enough."

Fruit Jelly.

Dissolve a box of gelatine in half a pint of cold water. Add a cup of sugar, the juice of two lemons, and a pint and a half of boiling water. Stir till dissolved, then let stand until the jelly begins to thicken. Peel some ripe peaches and cut into slices. Pour a little of the jelly into a mould, and place on it a layer of peaches, alone or combined with slices of oranges, bananas, halved strawberries, or any fruits preferred. Put in more jelly and fruit in alternate layers, allowing each layer to set before putting in another. The jelly in reserve can be kept fluid over warm water. Place the mould on ice to harden, turn out, and serve with whipped cream.

"With lots of houses there come backyards," said the physician, "and I can't understand why every man oess't make use of his yard. A little garden properly cared for will feed his family, and will sometimes net him enough to make a payment on his house rent. With the exception of lard and sugar and a few other necessaries, I never buy anything at the grocery stores."

TRAGIC DEATH OF A WELL KNOWN HAVELOCK MAN

Was Drowned in Sight of His Mother and Three Sisters Who Stood on the Shore and Could Do Nothing to Save Him—Was Employed on the C.P.R.

HAVELOCK, Aug. 9.—A very sad drowning accident occurred at Healy Falls, when Ivan Crowe, one of Havelock's most popular young men lost his life.

Mrs. Crowe and family of four of Havelock, Mr. and Mrs. Howard and Mr. Garnet Barlow of Trenton and Mr. Whitefield had planned for a short outing at Healy Falls, a very pretty summer resort, and shortly after their arrival, the boys though: they would enjoy a swim, which, they decided to do. They were all fairly good swimmers with the exception of Ivan Crowe, who attempted to dive off into the water, following the example of the other. He only came up the once and grabbed Garnet Barlow by the foot almost causing another death. Mr. Whitefield's attempts to save Crowe, were useless, she left him and went to the rescue of Barlow, who would have been gone, in a very short time. He was brought to shore and Dr. Holcroft was sent for he worked hard to bring him to. The other two boys succeeded in finding the body of Crowe and bringing it to shore.

His mother and three sisters stood on the shore and could do nothing to save him.

The accident has cast a gloom over Havelock and vicinity and the sympathy of all goes to the family who are left to mourn his loss. He was only 20 years of age and a brakeman on the C.P.R., having only been on a short time.

He was a boy of Excellent character and made many friends by his cheerful and happy disposition.

The remains were brought to his home in Havelock, the funeral taking place Sunday, services being held at 2 p.m., conducted by Rev. Jas. Skene of the Presbyterian church, thence to the Maple Grove cemetery for burial.

The funeral was very largely attended and the floral tributes, many which testify the high esteem in which he was held.

PERSONALS.

SAYS WAR AIDS RUSSIA.

Olof Aschberg Predicts Many Openings for American Capital.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—Alof Aschberg, a prominent Swedish banker, now in New York on business connected with the recent $50,000,0000 loan to the Russian Government, as the direct representative of Pierre Bark, Russian Minister of Finance, is keenly interested in the future of Russia. He said last week:

"In spite of the disasters occasioned by the war, Russia has reaped and will reap immeasurable benefit from some phases of it. It has meant a regeneration — the education of the people from top to bottom. It has brought new forces to bear on high Government officials and this has greatly increased the efficiency of the Government departments.

"The openings for American capital and American instiative, with the awakening brought by the war, will be country-wide when the struggle is over. There are now many Americans in Petrograd, representatives of business firms, keeping in touch with the situation, and as soon as the chance comes a huge American trade with Russia should spring up."

Mr. Aschberg said that unlike other European capitals, the streets of Petrograd were filled with young men, showing what a tremendous reserve Russia still had to call upon.

"In spite of this," he said, "the city is very quiet, with little show of theatres or other gayety. The total cessation of the liquor traffic has closed the cafes. This regulation has the Government 800,000,000 rubles, but the money has been saved by increased national efficiency, and the restriction will continue after the war."

A beautiful face is a silent recommendation and an index to your state of happiness and health. Even the most peach-like skin grows to be a pleasing background for a dainty brown mole or "beauty-spot." But there are blemishes and blemishes.

What is usually spoken of as freckles are spots of yellowish-brown colour. Especially after the skin has been exposed to the sun for a long while do freckles make their unhappy appearance. In most instances, however, freckles are the result of the action of the sun on certain cells of the skin, which causes these cells to produce colouring matter or pigment; which remains there for a long time.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Moorish Marriage

It Took Place In Constantinople

By F. A. MITCHEL

If Constantinople is not the most interesting city in the world its situation is certainly the most beautiful. The Roman emperor Constantine built it some fourteen centuries ago and made it the capital of what was called the Eastern Roman Empire. A thousand years later it was conquered by the Turks, who have remained in possession ever since. It remains to be seen whether during the next ten or twenty years the banner of the cross will not displace the crescent, floating again after five centuries on the cathedral of St. Sophia.

In woman's struggle for a proper place in the world there is a vast difference between what she has accomplished in the western and eastern nations. Turkish women, while they have gained much, are still far behind their western sisters. Among certain Mohammedan sects they are still loaded with the customs of antiquity. This is noticeable in the union of the sexes by marriage. The Turk is not supposed to see his bride's face till he lifts her veil immediately after the wedding ceremony. But the most curious bridal among any Mohammedan people is that of the Moors.

A marriage between a Moorish girl and man having been arranged by the parents the bride is carried to her husband at night. The street through which she will pass is lined with people waiting to see the wedding procession. The bride is at home with her parents and the nurse who has had the care of her from the time of her birth. She steps into a box and it is carried out of the house to a mule standing at the door. Then to the sounds of weird music the animal with its burden is led down the street by the nurse between the lines of those looking on. On arriving at her husband's home she leaves the box and enters the house. When in the room where her husband, alone, is waiting for her she throws herself at his feet. He raises her and lifts her veil. There is no formal ceremony, no mutual pledges. The fact of their being brought together and the door shut behind them constitutes a marriage.

In Constantinople there are Mohammedans from many quarters of the globe. There is a Moorish quarter where the denizens practice such ceremonies as are practiced on the northern coast of Africa.

There is a little stream flowing into the Bosporus called the sweet waters of Asia. Turkish ladies in summer time make excursions to its banks in rowboats. Leaving the boats, they scatter themselves on the land, and it is a pretty sight to see them, clad as they are in their brightly colored mantles. They carry rugs and cushions with them, which they place on the ground, often at the base of trees, which furnish a convenient support. There they chatter and eat candy. Turkish men are near, but do not mingle with the women.

One afternoon a party of Moors were thus enjoying the cool breezes from the Bosporus. There were women and children, but no men. One of the children, a little boy of four years, took it into his head to toddle away. He was followed by a young girl and found being petted by a young man sitting on the ground against a tree with a book. The girl drew back, but the young man, seeing that she had come for the child, arose, doffed his fez and led the boy to her.

Why the souls of this man and this girl should have rushed together upon this meeting which lasted but a few minutes is one of the many mysteries that pertain to the universe. The young man read his book no more that day. He arose from his seat and went where he could peer upon the girl through an opening in the foliage. He was not noticeable, and any one told that he was near would have had difficulty in finding him. Not so the girl. His face was as plain to her as the sun in heaven. On first seeing him she dropped her eyes, but in a few minutes she raised them, dropped them again, raising and dropping them till at last a responsive look of love darted from them.

When the party to which the girl belonged returned to their home in the Moorish quarter the young man followed them to see where they lived.

It was not long after this that the mother of this girl—Ahesha was her name—received a proposition for her daughter's hand. The family to which the young man belonged was an excellent one, and he would have double the amount of property that would be settled upon the girl. A contract was signed, and the young persons were betrothed.

Had this betrothal taken place before the meeting by the sweet waters of Asia Ahesha would likely have received it with indifference. All Mohammedan maidens expect to be married, and they are aware of the fact that they have nothing to say in the choice of a husband. But the announcement made her by her mother, since love had stolen unbidden into her heart, had a crushing effect. She received it without comment, but its blighting effect showed itself in the pallor that overspread her countenance. Her mother saw it and wondered. She had no idea that her daughter had ever met any young man to whom she had given her heart and could only attribute her daughter's emotion to the fact of changing her state from maidenhood to wifehood.

But from the day of the announcement Ahesha grew thin and lost the lovely color in her cheeks for which she had been distinguished. In vain her mother tried to discover what was the matter with her. Doctors were called upon to diagnose her case, but could not find any organic disease. And still the girl pined, and as her wedding day approached there was a blighted look upon her that greatly troubled those who loved her.

Shortly before her wedding something happened which threw a gloom over the Moors of Constantinople. A young bride who had gone to her husband in the box used for the purpose was found on its being opened before the door of the groom's house dead with a dagger in her heart. She had committed suicide. The cause was unknown, but it was assumed that she had loved and preferred death to being married to one not the man who possessed her heart.

Ahesha's parents endeavored to keep this tragedy from her, but it was impossible. From the time she heard it she was changed. Her gloom settled into a look of resolve. Only her mother feared the cause. She dreaded lest her daughter had some intention by which to escape the marriage arranged for her. Indeed, so great was the woman's solicitude that she begged her daughter to tell her if there was any reason why marriage was repulsive to her and if so what it was. Then Ahesha confessed her love for the young man she had met by the sweet waters of Asia.

The mother at once went to her husband and told him the secret, proposing to abrogate the marriage contract for their daughter.

"What!" said the infuriated Moor. "Go back on the word of a follower of Mohammed! Allah forbid!"

The poor woman, realizing that it would be impossible to move her bigoted husband, gave up the struggle and prepared her daughter for her bridal.

At last the wedding day arrived. Ahesha stood like a statue while her mother and her nurse arrayed her for the bridal. The box stood ready, and she stepped into it. Her mother kissed her, then closed the door of her cramped conveyance. The nurse took up her load, carried it to the street and, placing it on the back of the mule, fastened it with thongs. Then the concealed bride, the beast bearing her led by her nurse, passed down the street between the lines of spectators convened to see a wedding procession. Those who had an acquaintance with the bride waved to her and shouted messages. Slowly the hidden burden moved from maidenhood to wifehood—or to death? The few who feared a repetition of the recent tragedy held their breaths till the box should be opened.

But there was one who knew. The nurse, who loved Ahesha as well as if she had been her own daughter, could have told them whether the box contained a living being or a corpse. But Asiatics have great self control. The features of the bronzed face were rigid and inexpressive. No one could read them.

Perhaps it was because this was the first wedding since the tragedy; perhaps a rumor had been circulated that the bride in the box had a lover other than her betrothed. Whatever the cause, as the little procession approached the groom's house a hush came over the spectators standing near. The waving ceased, the congratulatory shouts died down. The mule was led up before the house, the nurse opened the door. For a moment no descending bride was visible. A chill came over the onlookers.

Then the bride appeared, moving slowly as if scarcely able to drag herself from her hiding place. Her features were concealed by her veil. Supported by her nurse, she entered the house, the door was closed behind her and a sigh of relief came from the spectators.

Ahesha found a wedding party within. They rose as she entered, but spoke no word. Passing through the room she came to a door, which was opened, and in another moment she was alone with her husband. Advancing, he raised her veil, she looked into the face of the young man she had met on the bank of the sweet waters of Asia.

Abdul Aekbar, the groom, having learned the home of the girl he had met, and being his own master, made an application for her hand. He said nothing of having seen her, fearing that the custom of a man not being permitted to meet his bride before marriage might stand in his way of possessing her. He knew nothing of her pining at being intended for another. If he had been aware of her condition he might have surreptitiously conveyed to her a message revealing the fact that they were to be united.

One day Ahesha's nurse had seen her charge engaged upon her wedding costume. The woman watched her and saw that she was making a pocket in her vest. When it was finished she slipped a knife into it. The nurse said nothing, but when she arrayed the bride for her wedding she took out the knife without Ahesha's knowledge.

Great was the rejoicing among those nearest the bride when the great change in her on her reappearance was observed. Meanwhile the nurse had told the mother of the knife that she had removed. The mother told the father. When the old Moor heard it he was silent for a moment, then said:

"Allah be praised!"

That was his only comment.

Constant Headaches

When the nervous system gets run down one of the most persistent symptoms is headache. Nervous headache has been described as the cry of the starved brain for more blood. Because of its remarkable blood-forming and blood-enriching qualities, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food ranks first as a means of overcoming nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, headache, indigestion, sleeplessness, irritability and all the annoying symptoms of nervous breakdown. It is not a mere relief, but thorough cure; for it rebuilds and reconstructs the wasted and depleted nerve cells. 50 cts. a box, 6 for $2.50.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

Ques.: "What does your pay-roll amount to?"

Ans.: "Oh, say $10,000 a month."

Ques.: "Quite a wad. Of course you insure it?"

Ans.: "Insure it? What's the idea Frank?"

Ques.: "Well—you see, you're paying out $120,000 a year. Now you insure your building, equipment, stock, etc., why not insure your pay-roll, against loss—to you."

Ans.: "Ask me something easy. What's the point and what's the cost?"

Ques.: "The point is that your pay-roll represents your purchase of the greatest of all raw materials—WORKING TIME. Its subject to loss every day—four times a day—or every time your employees come in and go out of your plant."

Ans.: "Yes, but I employ a time-keeper."

Ques.: "Of course you do. But he's human. Who checks your time-keeper? And who checks the man who checks him? You need a cold-blooded machine for that job—so there will be no favorites or no mistakes."

Ans.: "There isn't any such machine."

Ques.: "Isn't there? Probably your keenest competitor to-day is using it and is just that much ahead of you And it will cost you perhaps $3 a month to use it. I mean the International Time Recorder. It's the cheapest and best pay-roll insurance you can buy. Gives you printed, unchangeable, records, made under lock and key, that become your weekly pay-sheets. If you want real, inside facts and figures on the system exactly suited to your business write International Time Recording Co., corner McGill and Notre Dame streets, Montreal, or to their Head Office, Anderson Street, Toronto, for latest folders and prices."

FLIES, HEAT AND DUST.

Plagues in Mesopotamia That Have Stopped the Fighting.

British Headquarters in Mesopotamia, July 27.—Flies, heat and dust, the three principal plagues of Mesopotamia, are what have stopped the fighting for the past several months in this theatre of the great war.

Flies are so thick that soldiers say it is impossible to keep them out of their food. A squadron of cavalry coming down a road looked as if they were wearing chain armour. When they came close enough it was found that what looked like mail was the steely blue metallic mesh of flies.

At night the flies disappear and the mosquitoes and sand flies relieve them. Many species bite or sting.

The thermometer runs up to 130 degrees in a tent. All the men wear a sunguard over their helmet and a spine pad, for a person can get sunstroke here through the small of the back.

The persistent hot wind is better than a complete stillness, though it flings sand and dust in the faces of the men, who eat sand, breathe sand, lie in sand, have sand in their ears, eyes and clothes.

"THEY COME TO FIGHT."

Canadian Objects to Being Called on in Britain.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—A man who said he came all the way from Canada, where he had been five years, in order to carry on the business of his father-in-law here, now old and feeble, appealed yesterday at Fulham Tribunal thinking it hard that he should be called to join the army as soon as he arrived. The Chairman remarked that many others had also come from Canada, but they had come to fight.

Get the Habit of Drinking Hot Water Before Breakfast

Says we can't look or feel right with the system full of poisons.

Millions of folks bathe internally now instead of loading their system with drugs. "What's an inside bath?" you say. Well, it is guaranteed to perform miracles if you could believe these hot water enthusiasts.

There are vast numbers of men and women who, immediately upon arising in the morning, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This is a very excellent health measure. It is intended to flush the stomach, liver, kidneys and the thirty feet of intestines of the previous day's waste, sour bile and indigestible material left over in the body which if not eliminated every day, becomes food for the millions of bacteria which infest the bowels, the quick result is poisonous and toxins which are then absorbed into the blood causing headache, bilious attacks, foul breath bad taste, colds, stomach trauble, kidney misery, sleeplessness, impure blood and all sorts of ailments.

People who feel good one day and badly the next, but who simply can not get feeling right are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store. This will cost very little but is sufficient to make anyone a real crank on the subject of internal sanitation.

Just as soap and hot water act on the skin, cleansing, sweetening and freshening, so limestone phosphate and hot water act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. It is vastly more important to bathe on the inside than on the outside, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do.

To be really cured, use only Catarrhozone and beware of dangerous substitutes Catarrhozone which is sold everywhere, large size contains two months meant to deceive you from genuine treatment, costs $1.00; small size 50c; sample size 25c.

KITCHENER AS PROPHET

Foretold Early Use of Battle Formation For Aeroplanes

A story told in London relates that at the very beginning of the war the late Lord Kitchener was visiting a certain flying ground in England, watching men fly and listening to what the Officer Commanding had to say. "You ought," said the Secretary for War suddenly, "to learn to fly in regular formation." The officer replied that that was impossible because machines could neither travel far enough nor stay long enough in the air.

"You will have to do it, all the same," Lord Kitchener said, "before this war is over." In the opinion of airmen the suggestion was absurd at that time, but it has come true. Both by the British and the French reconnaissances and observation work is now carried out in regular battle formation. Aerial warfare is, in fact, going through all the stages which warfare by sea went through, the development of three months being about equivalent to that of a century in the older service.

Summer Complaint Was So Bad He Could Not Work

DR. FOWLER'S Extract of Wild Strawberry Cured Him

Mr. Stephen H. Shaw, Fairmount, Sask., writes: "I have used Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, and must say it is a fine medicine for Summer complaint. We have so much alkali water here in the west that last harvest time I had summer complaint, and became so weak I could not work. I was advised to try "Dr. Fowler's," so got a bottle, and in a few days I was as well as ever.'

"Dr Fowler's" is the original "Wild Strawberry." It has been on the market for the past 70 years.

There are a number of preparations on the market to-day, claiming the same curative powers, called similar names, and trying to trade on the reputation of this wonderful bowel remedy.

There is nothing can take the place of

"DR. FOWLER'S"

There is nothing "Just as Good."

Insist on getting it when you ask for it.

The price at all dealers is 35c. per bottle. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The Women's Missionary Society of the Methodist Church held their regular monthly meeting on Wednesday afternoon, on Mrs. W. E. McMillan's lawn, King street. A very interesting programme was given, Miss Kirkness of Toronto singing a much appreciated solo.

He Was Experienced.— Mrs. Aytoun wanted some new shoes, so she went into a shop, when an obliging assistant brought out a selection for her to try on. "That's strange, madam," said he, after many vain attempts to fit her. "One of your feet is larger than the other." Bristling with rage, the lady left that shop and sought another. Here, again, the assistant failed to find a pair which would do. "How curious, madam!" he said. "One of your feet is smaller than the other." And with a beaming smile, Mrs. Aytoun bought two pair.

Cocoanut Oil Makes A Splendid Shampoo

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoons will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

BRITISH EAST AFRICA

The name British East Africa is a geographical, not an administrative, term, applied to that portion of Eastern Africa included within the sphere of British influence. It extends from German East Africa to Abyssinia and from the Juba River and the Indian Ocean to the Belgian Congo. It includes Zanzibar, Uganda, and the East Africa Protectorate. The latter, extends from German East Africa to Italian Somaliland and Abyssinia, and from the Indian Ocean inland to Uganda. For a brief period the protectorate was, with Uganda, administered by the Imperial British East Africa Company, the original grantee, but in 1895 it was transferred to a commission and Commander-in-Chief under the British Foreign Office. In 1905 it was transferred again from the Foreign Office to the Colonial Office, and in 1906 an Order-in-Council constituted the administrator a Governor and provided for legislative and executive councils.

German Burned Grain

A special military court convened in Cologne, sentenced Rudolf Koenig, a baker and grain dealer of Balkhausen, to seven years in state prison for wanton destruction of foodstuffs. When the Federal council fixed a minimum price for grain and prohibited all speculation, the defendant, who had been hoarding large stocks in the hope of making an enormous profit, became so enraged that he set fire to two of his barns. The buildings contained the harvest from 120 acres of land and much other grain. The judge stated that a man who destroyed foodstuffs in time of war was an enemy of the country and deserved to be shot as a traitor.

A Single Application Will Banish Objectionable Hairs

Aids to Beauty.

Here is a home treatment for removing hairs that is quick, painless and inexpensive: With some powdered delatone and water make enough past to thickly cover the objectionable hairs, apply and after 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and it will be left soft, clear and hairless. This treatment will not mar the skin, but to avoid disappointment, be careful to get real delatone.

Interesting News For Working Men

An Article Well Worth Your While To Read

This is a nerve-racking age — not a man in an office or behind the counter, striving hard to get on in the world, that does not feel the strain.

If nerves are in order, a man is strong, eats and sleeps well. Unstrung nerves means weakness, worry, sleeplessness and a general decay of bodily strength.

Most men are careless of their health. They trust to luck and that kind of thing, instead of taking Ferrozone for a few weeks when they feel dull in the morning, or when they sleep poorly or lose appetite.

Ferrozone quickly brightens up the mind. It creates an appetite and improves digestion. Ferrozone makes blood, quiets the nerves, makes muscle like steel and induces refreshing sleep.

Ferrozone is a body builder, thousands have proved it. If you are sick or out of sorts, use Ferrozone and enjoy the splendid health it so surely brings.

Permanent in its results, the greatest health-giver in the world is Ferrozone. Because nourishing and perfectly harmless, all can use it, even children. Get Ferrozone to-day. 50c. per box, at all dealers or by mail from The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

IT'S COMING!

EXAMINER and MERCHANTS'

Great DOLLAR DAY
MONEY SAVING EVENT
Will soon be here

GRATIFIED by the enthusiasm of the people over the previous Dollar Days in Peterboro, and urged by the people from outside who were unable to attend the last one owing to bad roads, the Examiner is again co-operating with the Merchants in featuring a Midsummer Dollar Day—

WEDNESDAY AUGUST 23rd

The date selected should be the most suitable of all the summer season, for a record crowd to attend from outside points. There's everything to come for, and only regrets if you don't. There's a company of hustling merchants preparing a feast unequalled in the history of the city. In any line of goods you want, you will find your Dollar has a buying power you would have thought impossible. As Dollar Day selling is just for one day, the merchants, in order to add zest to the excitment, make their offerings look reckless, bnt it is because they have entered into the spirit of the thing, and they are bound to do their part at considerable loss.

The list of merchants will be published in later issues, and it will be well to get the participating stores fixed in your mind to save delay when the great day comes. In addition to the splendid values offered the merchants are giving away

$150.00 in Treasure Box Bonuses

This money will be given away in this way:—With every dollar purchase on that day, an estimating blank will be given to the purchaser. You will fill in your name and address, and a number representing your estimate on the following question:

Estimate the Number of these Blanks that will be filled in and Dropped into the Ballot Box at The Examiner Office by 10.15 p. m. on Dollar Day.

The nearest correct estimate will be awarded the first bonus of $20.00; the second $15.00; the third $10.00, and so on.

As a guide in estimasting the probable number of blanks that will be used the two previous Dollar Day results may be studied. On the first one, Mar. 12, 1914 with good weather and roads, there were 16,000 blanks dropped into the box at the Examiner office. On the next Dollar Day in 1915, with bad weather and impassable roads, the result showed only 10,807 estimate blanks but in the box. With these figures as a guide, an intelligent estimate can be made, if weather and season are taken into consideration.

The Dollar Day crowd is the happiest gathering that meets in Peterboro in the year.

You can recognize all the stores where Dollar Specials are being given by the Red Lettered Pennants in the windows.

RAILWAY RATES Parties of Ten coming from any one point to Peterborough on Wednesday, August 23rd, Dollar Day, can secure a rate of fare and one-third by making application to their local station agent.

RUSSIANS ARE ADVANCING ON CITY OF STANISLAU

Further Progress Made By Australians At Pozieres

THE RUSSIAN FORCES ARE WITHIN STRIKING DISTANCE OF STANISLAU

Slav Troops Capture a Railway Station Three Miles East of Important Enemy Position--Austro-German Forces Are Preparing to Make a Stand on the Left Bank of the River---Further Progress Reported Northest of Pozieres

NEWS FROM THE VARIOUS FRONTS

PETROGRAD, Aug. 10.—The right wing of General Litchisky's army has reached the Monasterzyska-Nisniof railway, twelve miles north-east of Stanislau, at the mouth of the Zlota Lipa River, it was officially announced to-day.

A Later Despatch.

PETROGRAD, Aug. 10.—The railway station at Ryplin, only sian army, it was officially announced to-day. The Austro-Germans, sian army, it was o cially announced to-day. The Austro-Germans, in falling back upon Stanislau, blew up railway bridges over the Bistritza River, and are preparing for a stand on the left bank of the river. Further south, in the region of Worokty and the rivers Bialy, Czeremosz and Sutchay, the Russians advanced several miles.

Over Twenty-one Thousand Austrians Taken Prisoners

Special to The Examiner:

ROME, Aug. 10.—A total of 21,750 prisoners have been taken on the Goritz front, according to despatches from army headquarters to-day. The guns and other booty have not yet been counted. A remarkable scene greeted the Italian troops when they entered the city of Goritz. Several thousand Italian residents, who for weeks had lived underground, rushed out, bringing flowers and Italian flags from concealed places, and cheered the conquerors. In other underground caverns several thousand Austrian soldiers were found and made prisoners.

Further Progress Recorded On the Western Front

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, Aug. 10.—Further progress north-west of Pozieres, where the Australians yesterday penetrated the German trenches two hundred yards on a six hundred yard front, was reported by General Haig this afternoon. The Australians have gained all local objectives, which are rapidly being consolidated. The night was generally quiet, except for a bombardment of the British positions south-east of the Trones Wood by German artillery, General Haig reported.

Will Exchange Prisoners Over 45 Years of Age

Examiner Special:

LONDON, Aug. 10.—Great Britain has reached an agreement with Germany for an exchange of all prisoners over forty-five years of age, regardless of numbers, Lord Robert Cecil announced in the Commons this afternoon.

CAPTURED AUSTRIAN POSITION.

ROME, Aug. 10.—The strong Austrian position of Boschini, south of Goritz, has been occupied by the Italian forces, it was officially announced this afternoon.

From a Former Peterboro' Boy

Family of Pte. Sorgat Had a Trying Time During Recent Fires in the North Country

Mr. J. John, the well-known local tea merchant, has received the following interesting letter from Private A. Sorgat, a member of the 238th Battalion, Northern Fusiliers, Camp Borden. Private Sorgat is an old Peterborough boy, having been employed here in the printing trades. As will be seen by the letter his family had a narrow escape during the recent fire in the North Country. The letter follows:

Box 402, Cochrane, Ont.

Dear Mr. Johns,—Many thanks for kind inquiries as to how we are, and I can appreciate same. I am soldiering now, and was at Camp Borden, but we were sent up here as soon as possible. I found my wife, family and house O.K., with the exception of the youngest child, who is in a bad way, through dysentry and an overdose of smoke. I manage to get permission to stay a few days and help my wife along, but have to report back to-morrow.

The sights up here in this country are awful, and the settlers here, abouts are up against it—crops scorched up, etc. A bush country has many drawbacks, and Cochrane knows them to its cost. It was a terrible time for the women placed as my wife was, and they certainly had to fight for their lives. They won out, many of them, but the shock remains. Everything will be clear up here now, and had we been able to get doctors and brandy easier perhaps the young lad would by now have been all right. The hospital is full to overflowing, nurses prostrated and the three doctors the same. It isn't one town, but hundreds of square miles that's suffering to-day, and it is a lucky family that has no one sick.

Well, I will close, with hoping you and yours in the best of health, and once again thanking you for your remembrance, I remain.

Yours sincerely,
ALEX. SORGAT.

NEW RECRUITING SYSTEM MAY BE ADOPTED HERE

Civil Authorities Will Be Asked to Assist in the Work—Recruiting Offices Will Be Established in Every Village in Canada

MILITARY NEWS

The great revision of the recruiting system for Canada is gradually becoming known and there seems to be more and more the feeling that in spite of political opposition there will be at least national registration.

For some time back the Militia Department has been in a quandry as to which way to best secure the required number of recruits for the Canadian Expeditionary Force. The men are in Canada and especially in Quebec province and only need the necessary persuasion to make them see their duty to enlist. To make this necessary returned soldiers will be looked to for the required amount of personal appeal and the remainder of the system is to be carried out by civil authorities under the direction of the central recruiting office at Ottawa, which is in charge of Lieut.-Col. C. G. Williams, formerly chaplain of the 109th Battalion.

With the season of harvest coming on, the men who are wanted for Canada's fighting force will be very busily engaged with work in the fields. This work will prove so attractive that if they are to be recruited the work must be done where they work.

It is planned to establish recruiting officers in every village in Canada. The plan to be followed will be the selection of the country storekeeper or magistrate or other responsible person who will without emuneration fil l out the blank forms that are necessary when a person enlists. The medical examination will be conducted under the present system of having the village practitioneer do the work at the current fee.

These men who sign up in this way will be granted immediately six weeks of farm furlough or two weeks more than is at present being granted. At the end of that time they will report for duty and receive pay for the six weeks in which they were engaged in farm work.

TO HELP RECRUITING.

The returned soldiers will be used to stimulate the movement to the colors. In every county at a non-political meeting a selection of two things will be made. One of these will be a location of the Headquarters of the "County Company" to be raised in that district and the other will be the name of some returned soldier who would be eligible to take a commissioned rank.

The returned soldier will be appointed as a provisional lieutenant and will then organize the campaign for that county. Other returned soldiers will be put on the regular pay and "turned loose". They will act under orders not to press the men too hard but to frankly and truthfully tell the story of their experiences while in uniform. The returned soldiers and every recruit will then become a recruiting agent. The plan seems to be a good one in view of the fact that the expense in connection with it will be practically nothing. It will answer the question of an organized system that is lacking at the present and will move the responsibility of recruiting away from the militia authorities to the shoulders of the civilian population.

The national registration idea will be worked out with an appointed officer for each municipality to register the names and other information of every citizen between the ages of eighteen and forty-five.

A CALL FOR RELIEF FROM NORTHERN ONTARIO

Mr. Basil Hall, President of the Peterborough Board of Trade, has received the appended telegram from Mr. Arthur Hewitt, President of the Toronto Board of Trade. Local subscriptions to this fund will be received by Mr. Hall, or can be left at the Examiner Office, and they will be forwarded to the proper authorities.

The Need is Urgent.

The telegram from Mr. Hewitt follows:

Toronto, Ont., Aug. 9, 1916.

President of Board of Trade, Peterborough,

The Northern Ontario Fire Relief Committee, consisting of representatives of the Dominion and Ontario Governments, the city of Toronto, Ontario Associated Boards of Trade, the Toronto Board of Trade, and Canadian Manufacturers, has been formed at the request of the Ontario Government to solicit and administer funds for the immediate relief of fire sufferers. The Ontario Government has subscribed one hundred thousand dollars and the city of Toronto fifty thousand. It is estimated that at least four hundred thousand dollars is needed to effectively relieve the situation, which is very serious. In view of the urgency of the need, the committee will appreciate the earliest possible information of the amount your Board will subscribe. Subscriptions payable to T. Bradshaw, Commissioner of Finance, Toronto, and Treasurer of the fund.

Arthur Hewitt,
President Toronto Board of Trade, Chairman.

Peterboro' Members of the 93rd Battalion Describe The Trip To England

"Empress of Britain" Carrying the Peterboro' County Battalion Was Convoyed by Warships--Weather Was Fine and the Trip Was Thoroughly Enjoyed By the Boys---Three German Prisoners Taken Over---Fire Drill on Board.

A GRAND RECEPTION

A number of communications have been received from members of the 93rd Battalion, C.E.F., describing the trip to England, and subsequent activities. The first one, which is from Private P. Walton to his family, reads as follows:

Empress of Britain.

Dear Wife and Children,—Well I will try and tell you what we are doing these days. We left Barriefield on the 12th of July at 6 o'clock in the evening and got on the train at Kingston at 8 o'clock and off we started on our long journey. Our first stop that night was about 10 o'clock at Brockville, where the station was crowded and they gave us a grand send off. On Thursday we got out of the train and had a march about 2 miles to stretch our legs, at a place called Revire de Loop, a French town, and then we went off again. On Friday we had another march through a town called Moncton, in New Brunswick, which is a very nice, clean place, then back on the train again, reaching Halifax about 10 o'clock on Friday night. On Saturday we had a march through Halifax, then back on the train till 2 o'clock, that was from 8 o'clock Wednesday night till 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon on the train. Then at 2 o'clock we marched to the boat and straight on board. You could not tell what boat it was till you were on it. Then we found it was the Empress of Britain. There are over 4,500 soldiers on board. There are the 93rd, 105th, 106th battalions, the 67th field battery, a squad of Canadian Dragoons from Toronto, 50 Army Service Corps and 50 Army Medical Corps. Then in front of us about a mile is the steamer Lapland. She has over 3,000 on board, but I do not know what regiments they are, and in front of her is a British man-o'-war. There is one at each side of us and one at the back, so I guess we are guarded alright. This is Tuesday and we set sail at six o'clock Sunday.

Well, to-day is Saturday and all's well. We are in the danger zone now and the lifeboats are all swung in case anything happens. We have all been wearing life-belts this last three days. We sleep in hammocks and they are comfortable to sleep in. You cannot feel the rocking of the boat like you can in bunks, but we are very crowded. We have four German prisoners on board taking them to England. They say they are German sailors off the Emden, the boat that did such a lot of damage at the beginning of the war. They were taken prisoners round the West Indies and have been prisoners in Canada for a year ad a half. Well, to-morrow is a second Sunday on here, so I guess we shall soon land now. We have our breakfast at 6.30, dinner 11.30, supper 4.30, and lights out 9 o'clock. Second Sunday on board and it is raining. We have been met by the submarine destroyers to-day to guard us into Liverpool. We are along the north of Ireland to-night.

Monday, we have reached Liverpool and are laying in the Mersey. We got some welcome, too. All the whistles on the steamers were blowing and thousands of women and girls on the shore, but very few men.

Tuesday, we came off the boat this morning and are on our way to camp. We arrived here in camp at 8 o'clock. There are lots of aeroplanes here flying all over the camp. We are all quarantined here till after the medical examination. We are not staying at this camp long. Our battalion is going to be all split up. The 56th band is only 3 miles away from here. We are only about 15 miles from Folkestone.

From Private P. Walton, 93rd Battalion.

Private James Shadgett.

Wed., 12th July, left Kingston 7:30 p.m. Arrived at Halifax Friday, 14th. March out at Moncton, N.B. Well received, long trip, plenty of noise and excitement; was guard on train. Blinds drawn on reaching Halifax. All mail stopped and censured. Good meals on train. Not allowed off train. Saw cruisers and battleships in harbour. Train divided, A and B Co. first, C and D following. People wanted souvenirs at station. Time arranged, 1 hour from Ontario time. Well received everywhere.

Saturday morn, 15th inst., route march round Halifax, 93rd and 105th. Dry town; am strictly temperate now. Fell in and boarded Empress of Britain 3 o'clock Saturday. Left Sunday morning 7 o'clock. Tuesday, 17th, afternoon, pay day. Very calm since leaving Halifax. Life boats down all the way. Sleep in Hammocks. 18th inst., guard on engine room; fire drill; men selected for guards with machine guns. We have for escort Battleship Drake. Guard on ship 4 hours on, 8 hours off. Two parades daily and fire drill. We have on board 105th, 106th, 93rd Battalions, reinforcements of the R.C.H.A., Royal Can. Dragoons and Can. Field Artillery units. About 250 sailors from H.M.S. Newcastle returning to England after two or three years on Pacific coast. They have a few days' furlough, then go to British navy in England. July 20th saw large whale. The ship has two large guns, one on bow and other on stern. 4 machine guns and soldiers with rifles on guard at night. Weather fine and clear till Wednesday. Thursday showery. Submarines, nothing doing. Darkness at night, no matches lit after dark. Slept on deck last night, too warm below decks. Machine guns practising to-day at target. We have four German prisoners on board, taking them to England. Saturday, 22nd, fatigue for B Co., lugging beef to butcher shop, filling refigerator with eggs, margarine, etc; no butter. Ladders are placed on side of ship ready for any sub. attack. Beautiful weather; calm every day till now. Sunday, 24th, sighted three torpedo destroyers. Monday morning land sighted, Ireland coast. Heavy fogs. Our patrol cruiser Drake supposed to have sunk a German sub. near Liverpool. Arrived at Liverpool 8.30 p.m. 24th.

Extensions To The Quaker Oats Co.

Surveyors Have Been at Work For Some Time Past — A New Office Building is Among the Contemplated Extensions—Labour Situation is a Handicap

A GROWING INDUSTRY

The Quaker Oats Company is still showing manifestations of growing pains. For the past week or two, surveyors have been at work on the site of the present plant. According to a communication received by the City Council some time ago, it is the evident intention of the company to make several additions to their present plant. The proposed extensions include a new office building, which in all probability will find a resting place on what constitutes a lawn at the south-west corner of the Company's property. This will give the company an office building befitting the present ever-growing industry.

Present Work.

For some months past the company have had in hand the construction of two additional storeys on the warehouse, which is situated on the west side of the present office building. This work has been in the care of the Leonard Construction Company, with headquarters in Chicago. About another month will be required to complete the work. The labour situation may halt further extensions until after the war.

CHARGE AGAINST JACOB M. BROOKS WAS DISMISSED

Sale of Liquor Did Not Produce Any Profit For the Middleman—This Morning's Police Court

The charge against I. M. Brooks, of selling liquor without a license, which was heard yesterday morning, before Magistrate Dumble, was this morning discharged by His Worship on the grounds that Mr. Brooks' part in the transaction was simply that of an agent. The gin had been received by Mr. Brooks from a liquor merchant in Napanee, who was disposing of his stock. The order had been called for by a North Monaghan farmer, but no profit had accrued to Mr. Brooks from the transaction and the charge was accordingly dismissed.

ANOTHER HASTINGS SOLDIER IS DEAD

Brother of Rev. John Power of St. Peter's Cathedral Captured With C. M. R. Men

Mr. P. Power of Hastings, has received official word that his son, Pte W. J. Power of the 8th C. M. R., is dead, having died of wounds in a German prison camp. Pte. Power was reported missing some weeks ago after the big engagement, in which so many local C.M.R. men were reported missing.

The young soldier enlisted in Hastings last August with a C.M.R. unit and went overseas in November. He had seen over six months of active service, word having been received from him last on June 22nd.

Pte. Power was well known in this city and lived here for a few years at his trade of cheese-making. At the time of his enlistment he had been residing at his home near Hastings. The family is rather widely known in this district. Rev. John Power of St Peter's Cathedral, is a brother.

He was in the employ of the Quaker Oats Co. here at one time.

Lieut. Kennedy Now a Captain

Lieutenant M. P. Kennedy of Lakefield, who went overseas in the veterinary service, has been promoted to captain. Previous to his enlistment he followed his profession in Lakefield.

PROPERTY DAMAGE FIVE MILLIONS AS RESULT OF CLOUDBURST

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

CHARLESTON, Va., Aug. 10.—Scores of persons are reported missing as a result of a cloudburst in the Cabin Creek district, but are accounted for in later despatches. Conservative estimates to-day were that fourteen persons lost their lives. The property damage is estimated at five million dollars.

CANADA AT WAR.

Canadians at war, win honours be- praise all round. About in same time the British war mini from was telling a group of Canadian the ficers, after the review of Canad ably troops by our own Minister of W the of his high opinion of the Can ency as soldiers. But we do not need ght, opinion of two great men of differ by races to be informed of the qua s of of Canadian soldiers. They th onth selves have written with their bay nch. et points, a record of gallant and ince fective deeds. At Ypres and ken- Julien they "saved the situatio test- paved the British army from disas ter And in doing this the Canadian nor- diers did not lay themselves out ker- spectacular employment of t re- exceptional gallantry and tenacity at was considered by them a part of elve day's work, simply doing what t been enlisted to do—their duty. They h given us new reason to be proud the name Canadian, which sad to has been somewhat discredited some of the stay-at-homes, who h either done nothing to help in r of a fight or have done things that te h a ded to weaken the fighting capabi the of our soldiers. This war h bor- brought Canada into fine pro with ence, not only by the exhibition oth- in the rare fighting quality and resour heat fulness of her soldiers, but has the tracted world wide attention to t reso- resources of the country, the ext av- of its soil and industrial productions and the enterprise of its people. United States journals of the calibre of the New York Sun, have warm words of praise for Canada. Our share in this war, both on the field and at home, has constituted a splendid but costly advertisement; but if we take advantage of it we shall be the gainers in the long run. We went into the war from the higher motives, freely and uncompelled, and if merit of motive, conjoined to effective action constitute ground for reward, we have well earned the advantages from Canada at war.

QUITE PARTIZAN.

The Toronto News, with the expected loyalty to party, lauds the Ontario Government for its interest in the sufferers by the recent big North-Ontario forest blaze. It "hands a bouquet" to Hon. Howard Ferguson, who "as the News says, "shown himself a man of vigor and effective action." The News, continuing, says:

"No sooner did news of the disaster reach the city than he made arrangements for the despatch of special trains to take food and clothing to the stricken, and bring out the injured and homeless. That immediate task accomplished, the Minister announces that the Government will assist the afflicted settlers financially, and help rebuild the towns and villages. The money for restoring the settlers to their farms is available, and the machinery will be in operation before the smouldering ruins cease to smoke.

Could the most envenomed critic ask for more? Is the Government not moving with remarkable speed? Is it not especially alert to the settlers' needs? Has it not accomplished a great deal in the North country, and will it not accomplish much more, despite the efforts of partisan writers to exasperate a suffering population? The interests of the North country are particularly close to the Premier's heart and in Mr. Ferguson he has a colleague who goes direct to his objective and secures results."

This is, no doubt, very largely true, and, in itself, very creditable to the government and the minister. But the chief fault of it is that it is unnecessary—locking the stable after the horse is stolen. It is no partizanship to point out that if the government had done its duty in providing preventive measures of legislation to reduce forest fire menace to a minimum, there would have probably been no forest blazes so serious as those of a few days ago. The Canadian Forestry Association is not partizan, but solicitous only for forest preservation. It issues, and has issued, almost daily, bulletins, showing how forest fires could be largely prevented, and containing, in proof, the action in this direction of Quebec, under a Liberal government, and of British Columbia, under a Conservative Government. The Forestry Commission points out that the Ontario Government has heretofore resisted all advice, and urging to pass legislation requiring settlers to have "permits" to set out clearing fires, and then only under the supervision of government forest rangers. The time for ministers to show themselves "men of vigour and effective action," is before forest fires happen—to apply these qualities to prevention, which experience has shown to be possible and practicable.

What the government of Ontario is now doing, with somewhat panicky activity and promptitude, is to be approved and applauded, but the merit of the action taken is considerably deprived of merit since it becomes an act of reparation of the derstorms on a few occasions brought almost entire absence of rain. mean temperature of 76 degrees Toronto, makes it the warmest on record since the inception of its Observatory in 1840, while the rainfall of 0.36 of an inch gives the the driest July experienced in same period. Owing to the weather prevailing in May and a very large hay crop has been gathered. The wheat crop is also big, but the province is now suffering greatly from drought. Pastures have dried up and fruit is scarce, and the root crop and garden truck is also endangered. London.—Rainfall, inches, all of which fell on the 25th July. Fifteen days with temperature of 90 degrees or over; highest 10 the 30th of July. The hottest month in the history of the London observatory.

Quebec.—The weather in all tions of the province was much warmer than is usual in July, but it was not as warm as it was in Ontario. Rainfall was everywhere deficient, however, the general crop outlook at the close of the month was very satisfactory. Our Quebec city agent reports as follows: One of the warmest months of July for the last 50 years. The weather has been fine and warm with occasional thunderstorms.

New Brunswick.—The weather for the most part fine and at intervals decidely warm except near the Bay of Fundy coast were fogs were quite persistent, particularly during the last half of the month. Severe thunderstorms on the 25th were the cause of much damage in Carleton, Victoria and Madawaska Counties. Bridges, culverts, and roads were washed out and the crops in some localities were destroyed by hail. On the 30th a peculiarly overcast yellow sky was the cause of much speculation. Artiifcial lighting was necessary for the greater part of the day. This startling appearance (probably caused by smoke) was fairly general throughout the Provinces.

drowned; good walkers too, lose their lives by walking into danger, or not walking out of it fast enough. Most of the victims of drowning accidents, however, come to death because they can't swim. The chances for safety, as between the swimmer and the non-swimmer, are at least, ten to one. We see this plentifully illustrated every summer. In the one case of exposure to drowning danger, we have a useful member of society still holding his useful place in the world; in the other, we have an equally useful member the sad central interest of a funeral procession. If knowledge of swimming, as we know it does, saves human life, valuable in the abstract and relatively, it is the duty of society, the state, and civic authorities to provide facilities for learning the art of swimming. Not only a wholesome and refreshing recreation in hot weather, but a life-saving accomplishment. It is not to be regarded as a mere optional recreation in hot weather, but a life-saving accomplishment. It is not to be regarded as a mere optional recreation, for any of us or many of us, when we frequent the waters so much in summer, may, at any moment, be faced with the, literally, vital importance of a knowledge of swimming, when ability to swim, even a few strokes, may make all the difference between a festival and a funeral. "The folly of the common neglect to learn to swim is heightened by the fact that it is an art as easily acquired as learning to walk." Swimming is an indispensable part of the equipment of personal preparedness for the dangers of summer. We have a noble river of pure water, rolling deeply through the city. If this were made available for swimming and bathing purposes, an inestimable benefit would be conferred upon our people. It is now too late for the authorities to do anything this season towards providing supervised bathing places, where swimming can be learned safely and conveniently; but it is not too late to take up the matter and provide for next season. The city authorities are so hard up for money that they are inclined to avoid expenditure that does not come under routine, no matter how beneficial it may be to the public. It then becomes the duty of the public to be benefitted to do a little stimulating and bring to bear the pressure of public opinion.

WHAT ABOUT THE NEXT FOREST FIRE?

Efforts are already under way to persuade the Northern Ontario settlers, driven out by fire, to return to their homes and start life anew. Temporary aid has already been given them by the Ontario Government, and help will be forthcoming to reinstate them on their land.

The point will at once occur to most readers that the first concern of the settler is the safety of his life. What guarantee will be given by the Ontario Government that 1917, or 1918, or any future year of great drought will not repeat the unspeakable horrors which have recently been enacted in the North? The Porcupine fire tragedy seemed to be a sufficient testimony to the general lack of forest fire protection in Northern Ontario, and yet no action was taken to increase the safety of settlers after that terrible lesson. The recent fires outstripped the Porcupine horror in every detail. What safeguard will be provided against a forest conflagration of far worse proportions when the next dry summer arrives? Above and beyond every other question, that one must be answered before the confidence of settlers in the Clay-belt can be restored.

Forest fires are not visitations of Providence. Such a view is a confession of old-fashioned impotence. Forest fires in the Claybelt region, the scene of the recent devastation, were the product of numbers of settlers' "slash" burnings controlled and unheeded for weeks, gradually spreading until they united into a hopeless swirl of flame which nothing could stop. Had Northern Ontario been provided with a real forest guarding system, such as is in operation throughout sections of Quebec, the whole of British Columbia and Nova Scotia, and nearly every other forested country on earth, the settlers would not have been allowed to start or continue their burning operations during the intensely dry July weather. No settler should be allowed to start a clearing fire between April and November without a permit from a qualified ranger. This ranger would govern the manner of piling the brush on the clearing or the cutting of fire lines about the edge and insist on the utmost vigilance while the cleaning-up process is going on. In the Clayhell, however, any settler can set as he pleases, can select the hottest and most perilous spell of the summer to do his burning. There is no law to hold him back in this scheme of "personal freedom" even though it result in the destruction of four hundred precious lives, and an untold fortune in property.

In British Columbia, during the year 1914, a time of great fire danger, over 11,000 settlers took out "permits" to start their clearing fires. Following the instructions of rangers, and keeping their burning operations closely in hand, only one out of every hundred fires escaped from the clearings and these did little damage because the rangers were prepared to cope with them. In a single parish of Quebec Province, the number of fires escaping into the forest from settlers' clearing fell in one year from 104 to 4 as a direct result of the enforcement of a "Permit Law" by which the ranger was given supervision of the settler during the period of burning. "Ninety to ninety-five per cent. of settlers in British Columbia," says the Acting Chief Forester, "support the Permit Law and would resist its elimination." Surely, it is only fair to assume that the Ontario settler is as wide awake to his personal safety as those of Quebec and British Columbia and Nova Scotia. Surely it is common sense to predict that 90 to 95 per cent. of the Claybelt farming will back the Provincial Government in rebuilding and improving an inefficient forest service so as to put an insurance policy on lives and property in the dangerous years ahead.—Canadian Forestry Association.

CANADA'S BIG TELESCOPE.

The recent announcement of the setting up of "the largest telescope in the world" in the Dominion Observatory, Victoria, B.C., has brought to light the fact that this is not the only telescope in existence which has a mirror of 72 inches in diameter. The third Earl of Rosse completed one of exactly the same size in 1840, and erected it at the observatory at Birr Castle, Ireland, in that year. A detailed description of this telescope appears in the Transactions of the Royal Society for that year. Recently the Earl of Rosse presented to the authorities of the Science Museum, South Kensington, one of the mirrors of that great telescope, together with the tools used in grinding and polishing the reflecting surface. They were conveyed from the observatory at Birr Castle to the Science Museum, and they are exhibited there, together with a model of the telescope complete, as it was then erected. This mirror with the truck on which it rests, weighs approximately five tons, and as the metal of which it is constructed is extremely brittle very special precautions were required against fracture during transit. It is interesting to note that, although 76 years have now elapsed, and in the interval many attempts have from time to time been made to produce larger telescopes than this, it is only now that one of even equal size has been constructed.—Montreal Herald.

THE LESSON.

The lesson as to the vital necessity of retaining her steel and chemical plants as a measure of national defence has been learned by Great Britain. Is Canada to ignore it? The Dominion, the producer of eighty per cent. of all the nickel ore mined in the world, could not supply to Great Britain a pound of the refined metal vital in gun making, when war broke out, nor could she effectively guarantee that nickel obtained from the refining of her ores in the United States would not be supplied to the enemy. That condition of affairs must end. The refining of nickel in Canada and the control by the Canadian people of the destination of the refined metal is not a matter of free trade or protection. The fate of the empire and the peace of the world may be bound up in the adoption by all the British peoples of a wise policy for controlling and building up their metallurgical and chemical industries. The Ottawa Journal may see something "funny" in all this, but the average man fails to appreciate its humor. Above all questions of trade and tariffs is the tremendous problem of national de-ent needs be carried into effect. Otherwise, the cause of public swimming places will be without support when it is most needed. Hence, those who have manifested their concern of late in this matter should not postpone their action until an indefinite time in the new year. Interim consideration of the problem would not only strengthen and assure the success of the efforts of these citizens, but they could be of real assistance to the Council, and it may be that they would share in the supervision of the places they might be instrumental in securing.

EQUALITY OF PENSIONS

Equality of pensions for disabled soldiers strikes the democratic instinct Canadians have inherited from the mother country. The war has necessitated expediency in this problem which has been met with a commendable generosity compared with not only former standards but with those of the present day. And however, sound may be the argument in favour of the memorial fathered by Ald. Stephens of Niagara Falls, there is one class of officers to whom they do not seem to apply with exact justice and fairness. These are the graduates of the Military Schools. For the objection to the scale of pensions appears to be raised against officers who have attained their rank during the war. Previous to August 1914 they were civilians, but for example the Royal Military College men had expresly chosen the army as their sphere of activity for life, had given four or more of their best years preparing themselves and the thoroughness of their preparation has been amply demonstrated in action. Without amplifying the self-evidence of the proposition, surely the exception should be made of these men if pensions to the disabled were equalized.

PLEA FOR THE MANY.

Sunday may be a day of rest for Peterborough's street cars., but for automobiles it is one of the busiest days in the week. The operation of the former would be a breach of the Lord's Day Act, and would facilitate the dissipation of a day on the river or at Jackson Park, but the automobile knows no Sunday law that doesn't prevail on Monday or Tuesday. Car owners usually have wide, airy verandahs, and rooms cooled by electric fans. Frequently, too, they have cottages on the upper lakes or on the river. But there is a large number of citizens whose homes offer little or no comfort in the sweltering days of summer. They are accustomed to this condition hence they endure it. And the inactivity of Sunday apparently accentuates the discomfort. Most of them have families of small children, and it was not a pleasant sight—many of these little groups trudging the dusty roads on a recent July Sunday seeking the river bank, or the inviting shade of Jackson Park. Have you ever heard a man who has toiled all week declare that the heat drove him and his family to the park on a Sunday? If you had, and if there was any consideration within you for men in that position, you would demand at least a sixty minute service for the street cars, even on the Lord's Day. Particularly when you realize that this man's pleasures are so few, his hopes so humble, and his labour and his children so necessary to the state.—One of the Staff.

ANTHRAX, NOT POISON.

Chief Rogers Issues Warning to Farmers—Guard Against Disease.

Chief Joseph Rogers, of the Ontario Provincial Police, reports that numerous cases of cattle poisoning reported from various parts of the province are nothing more than deaths from anthrax. The Chief claims that cattle are being killed off by the score by this disease. Anthrax signs are the bleeding of cattle from the nostrils, and the swelling of the body after death. While the malady is found chiefly among cattle it can be communicated to human beings as well. Cattle should not be buried when they have died from anthrax, because the disease can be caught from the weeds growing over the grave five years after the death of the beast.

Farmers are warned to burn the carcasses of cattle dying from anthrax, and to thoroughly disinfect the stables and the ground over which the animal has tramped or has been dragged.

Pertinent Observations

Another summer passes and the problem of providing adequate swimming places remains unsolved. The Council's supply of spending money is exhausted and so is the public's patience. This year's fatalities on the river have apparently developed a determination that the existing conditions must be tolerated no longer. The demand for immediate action has already lost its impatience, and there is a danger of losing its entire force unless the spirit that has been generated is embodied in some organization that will be ready and prepared to follow up this question until proper swimming facilities have been provided.

In January the new Council will strike its estimates. In the meantime a body of organized citizens could out line tentative plans, offer them to the Council and demand that these or some other form of relief of the pres-

Extracts From Government Report On The Weather For The Month of July

Some Official Data Regarding a Very Warm Month as Well as a Very Dry One—July Was Remarkable For Record-Breaking Heat

As the weather as a subject of discussion is perennial in its character the following extracts from a monthly report issued by the government, will prove interesting.

The following places in the Dominion had temperatures of 100 degrees in the shade: Toronto, Arkona Pembroke, Norwood, Orillia (101). and Haliburton. The lowest temperature was at White River, 34 degrees.

The mean temperature was above the average in all parts of Canada, exclusive of British Columbia and Northwestern Alberta, and Eastern Nova Scotia. The strongest contract lay between Western Ontario, where the positive departure ranged between 5 and 9 degrees, and the interior of British Columbia, where the negative departure was equally large. The large positive departure in Ontario diminished gradually eastward, until in Southern New Brunswick and Eastern Nova Scotia, the monthly mean was either just normal or slightly below.

Along the Upper Pacific Coast, in the Yukon, Western Alberta and from the Georgian Bay to the Gulf, the rainfall was in amount considerably less than the July average. In the Peninsula of Ontario and in the lower Ottawa Valley, the deficiency reached the proportions of a drought, relieved in scattered localities by thunderstorms. In many districts of Ontario the total fall for the month amounted to less than half an inch. In Southern New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, the District of Kenora, Western Manitoba, Southwestern Saskatchewan and the greater part of the Fraser Valley, the normal rainfall was exceeded. Barkerville, Swift Current and Kenora reported unusually large amounts, at the latter place no less than twelve days with thunderstorms having been recorded.

Western Provinces.—The weather of the month was as a rule warm with a fair rainfall and as a consequence the crops have made great growth and at present the outlook is very promising for a bountiful harvest. Some small damage has been caused locally by hail. Calgary.—Crops all heading out but need warm weather. Crop is a week behind that of last year. Alberta crop reports are very good; northwesterly winds prevailing; river normal. Month closed very warm with continued bright sunshine. Lethbridge.—The general conditions in Southern Alberta are good. Wheat harvest will probably begin about the 20th. No rust reported. From present outlook believe that crop will average 25 bushels or better. Indications point to an acute labor situation. Battleford.—Crops of all kinds could not look any better; wheat is beginning to turn yellow; weather is most favourable. Swift Current.—Electric storms accompanied by very heavy rains frequent all this month. Winds in general moderate. Crops a little late and just heading out but looking well as a whole. Damage from hail is reported from some parts of the district. Hay and grass in abundance. 26th inst., terrific electric storm. Moose Jaw.—Bright sunshine, 357 hours. All grain is doing well; wheat in some places coloring; damage from hail reported in some districts. Eight thunderstorms during the month. Medicine Hat.—The weather during the month was ideal for crops; barley and fall wheat has been started. Maximum temperature did not reach as high as customary for July. Crops promise well. Thunderstorms were more common than usual but little or no damage to crops by hail.

Ontario.—July was remarkable for record breaking heat, continuous bright sunshine, and except for thunderstorms in a few localities by an almost entire absence of rain. The mean temperature of 76 degrees at Toronto, makes it the warmest July on record since the inception of the Observatory in 1840, while the total rainfall of 0.36 of an inch gives it the driest July experienced in the same period. Owing to the wet weather prevailing in May and June a very large hay crop has been garnered. The wheat crop is also good, but the province is now suffering greatly from drought. Pastures have dried up and fruit is scarce, and the root crop and garden truck is much endangered. London.—Rainfall, 2.46 inches, all of which fell on the 25th of July. Fifteen days with temperature of 90 degrees or over; highest 100 on the 30th of July. The hottest month in the history of the London observatory.

Quebec.—The weather in all portions of the province was much warmer than is usual in July, but it was not as warm as it was in Ontario. The rainfall was everywhere deficient; however, the general crop outlook at the close of the month was very satisfactory. Our Quebec city agent reports as follows: One of the warmest months of July for the last 50 years. The weather has been fine and very warm with occasional thunderstorms.

New Brunswick.—The weather was for the most part fine and at intervals decidely warm except near the Bay of Fundy coast were fogs were most persistent, particularly during the last half of the month. Severe thunderstorms on the 25th were the cause of much damage in Carleton, Victoria and Madawaska Counties. Briges, culverts and roads were washed out, and the crops in some localities destroyed by hail. On the 30th a darkened overcast yellow sky was the cause of much speculation. Artiifeial lighting was necessary for the greater part of the day. This startling appearance (probably caused by smoke) was fairly general throughout the province. The crops on the whole promise a good yield. Hay especially abundant; small fruit seldom better.

Nova Scotia.—A warm, cloudy and seasonable month throughout. Rain was registered on 14 days but the total fall was light.

Prince Edward Island.—The weather the first and second weeks was wet, comparatively cold and autumnlike; other portions were seasonable and pleasant with a few very warm days.

A TRAGIC DEATH.

CAMP BORDEN, Aug. 10.—Pte. Morneau, 118th Battalion died in the camp hospital from acute Bright's disease. A court of inquiry has been ordered by Assistant Judge Advocate Gen. J. A. MacDonald to investigate the cause of the death which brought death. Morneau was married and 33 years of age. His wife is at present in Detroit.

Pte. Morneau was arrested in Barrie on Sunday night by a picket of the 135th Battalion and brought to camp. He was charged with drunkenness, and placed in the guardhouse. This morning he was removed to the hospital. He answered all questions put to him on admission, but forty minutes later died.

A search was later made of his tent. Bottles which once contained wood alcohol and bay rum were found beneath his blankets, and it is said these will produce Bright's disease. Pte. Morneau was returning from leave when he was taken into custody.

ABSENTEES NOW 1,794

The parade state of Borden camp shows that there are 1,794 illegal absentees. Four hundred and ninety-eight men so classed belong to units in the 8th and 9th Brigades. The day previous there were only 217 men away from these units without permission. The commanding officers of the battalions from Western Ontario believe that the increase in absentees is simply a case of men overstaying their leave.

Qualified as Airman.

PONTYPOOL, Aug. 10.—Flight Lieut. Percy W. Chambers, a Pontypool boy, has qualified as air pilot since going overseas. In the early part of the war he was fighting in the trenches, and was wounded in the hand. While waiting for his wounds to heal he qualified as Flight Lieutenant.

THANKS THE LADIES.

Mrs. Bessie Coons, 559 Rogers street, has received the following written on active service post card:

July 21, 1916.

Dear Mrs. Coons,—Just a card of thanks for the cigarettes and tobacco which I received in the trenches. I can assure you they were appreciated very much by all the boys. They join in thanking you and the ladies one and all for the cigarettes and tobacco sent to the front and wish you all success.

JOHN ROSS,
'C' Co., 25th Batt.

Mrs. Coons has also received a card from her son, Douglas, assuring her of his continued safety.

Permission has been given to all the men at Barriefield to milk any cow caught on the camp grounds. The boys have commenced to take advantage of the order, and many a "bossie" will go home dry to her owner, between this and the end of camp, if not kept off the camp grounds.

Towns On Coast Again Visited By German Raiders

LONDON, Aug. 10.—An official statement yesterday afternoon reports:

The Eastern coast of the United Kingdom was raided by hostile airships ths morning between 12.30 and 2.30 o'clock. The East and Northeast coast districts were visited by raiders at widely distant points more or less simultaneously. The attack was carried out by the enemy by single ships or by pairs of ships. Independent observers of the raiders estimate their numbers variouly at between 7 and 16.

"None of the airships ventured more than a few miles inland, except in the extreme north. The attack seems to have been solely directed against towns situated on the coast. Indiscriminate destuction of property seems to have been the main objective of the raid. Anti-aircraft guns came into action at four places."

Hotels Not Exempt From Business Tax

JUDGE DROMGOLE RULES THEY CAN PROPERLY BE ASSESSED.

Windsor, Aug. 10.—Hotels which have their bar licenses revoked before September 16, when Ontario goes dry, will not be exempted from payment of the business tax, according to a judgment delivered by County Judge Dromogole at Sandwich. The ruling was made as a result of an appeal by the proprietor of a Leamington hostelry against a business assessment made by the Town Assessor of Leamington where local option has been in force since 1911.

The hotel proprietor relied upon judgments given by the County Judge of Huron, who held that hotels which lost their licenses through local option becoming effective should not be compelled to pay a business tax.

Judge Dromgole does not concur in these decisions, declaring that hotels without licenses can be assessed properly for business tax if any kind of business is carried on therein.

Cod Liver Oil Loss Big in Newfoundland

CHANGED CONDITIONS OF THE MARKET CAUSE FAILURES OF ABOUT $1,000,000.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Aug. 10.—Newfoundland dealers in cod liver oil estimate that they must face a loss of about a million dollars as a result of changed conditions in the market this year. When Germany last year purchased the Norwegian output of this product the price of Newfoundland oil ran up from 50 cents to $3.50 a gallon. Expecting big profits this season, a large number of persons entered the business in this colony.

Their hopes were dashed when the British and French Governments succeded in obtaining this year's Norwegian output, forcing a fifty per cent. cut in market prices. As the dealers bought the raw material at high cost, they must stand a heavy loss.

Business interests of the colony also will suffer from the fact that the cod fisheries along the Labrador coast and the northeast seaboard of Newfoundland this year have yielded one of the smallest catches on record.

Mr. Binney's Bills Bewilder Widow

PRINCE PAUL TROUBETZKOY AMONG CREDITORS WHOSE CLAIMS GO TO REFEREE.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—Cafes, garages, tailoring establishments and Prince Paul Troubetzkoy have been having a hard time trying to collect claims against the estate of Harold Osgood Binney, lawyer, according to objections filed to the accounting rendered by the widow, Mrs. Elsie Martin Binney, of No. 2,160 Fifth Avenue. Six objections, filed with Surrogate Fowler, have been sent to Egerton L. Winthrop, Jr., as referee.

Mr. Binney, who died about a year ago, was well known in police circles for his inclination to speed his automobile. It was after many fines that he was sent for a while to Blackwell's Island and there he made the will which was accepted for probate.

By the accounting given by Mrs. Binney, it appears that of the claims of $17,635, she has allowed a few amounting to $344, rejecting the rest. Among those which she refused to recognize is one filed by Prince Troubetzkoy for $600 for a statuette which he says Mr. Binney bought from him. Among the claims allowed was one for $3 to the head waiter of the Holland hotel, both claims for the redemption of Mr. Binney's personal effects.

The claims rejected included one from Churchill's for $62, Mumm Champagne and Importation Company, $22; the Plaza, $33; Peck and Peck, for hosiery, $50, and William J. Burns, Detective Agency, $9; Mr. Binney's yacht, the Nepenthe, has been seised by hoders of liens for wharfage and repairs.

EXPERTS WRESTLE WITH PARALYSIS

Germs Well Developed in Little Animals From Philippines.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.— Backed by the millions of John D. Rockefeller, Dr. Hidyo Noguchi, "the strategist of bacteriology," has set out to find a cure for infantile paralysis.

The disease to-day killed and attacked more than 200 more babies, bringing the total of deaths to 1,068 out of 4,842 reported cases. Deputy Health Commissioner Billings and the city could expect 10,000 cases before the epidemic is controlled.

Dr. Noguchi and the country's leading pathologists and bacteriologists are working day and night to evolve a specific. Scientists place their greatest hopes in the Japanese, whose brilliant laboratory conquests in the fifteen years of his association with Dr. Simon Flexner have been notable.

Dr. Noguchi is spending practically all of his waking hours in his laboratory at the Rockefeller Institute. His assignment, it is said, was the personal direction of John D. Rockefeller. Mr. Rockefeller, one of his advisers, to-day told the International News Service, is willing to spend any amount in the search for a specific.

The informant said the institute received a shipment of monkeys from South America this week. These are being used by Noguchi and his assistants.

Another shipment is due shortly from the Philippines. Using these little animals as media, Dr. Noguchi hopes to work out the life cycle of the dread poliomyelitis germ just as was done with the malarial germ in the mosquito and the bubonic plague germ in the flea.

Two of the eminent scientists assembled in New York Thursday and Friday expressed the opinion that the chief hope for New York's crippled children lies in exhaustive but speedy laboratory work. They did not place much faith in the blood serum which was tested with varying results in the Willard Parker Hospital. This treatment has been abandoned, it was learned yesterday. There was an insufficient supply of the serum and results were negative it was stated semi-officially.

Surgeons of the New York Throat, Nose and Lung Hospital, on East 50th street, cling to their faith in the adrenalin treatment, recommended by Dr. Samuel James Meltzer. Dr. E. J. Bermingham, chief executive surgeon at the hospital, to-day issued an invitation to medical men to come to the institution.

A conference of charity, social service and health workers met in Commissioner Emerson's office to-day. It was decided to enlist the services of as many agencies as possible in a house-to-house canvass to begin Monday. The purpose of the missionaries will be to give advice to householders to locate new cases quickly and isolate promptly those infected.

Men Lacking Eye Now Are Eligible

Volunteers With Defects Will be Utilized for Home Guard Duty.

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 10.—In order to release more men for active service there has been a relaxation of the regulations for recruits for service in Canada.

The latest orders set forth that any man who has lost one eye or sight thereof, but whose vision without a glass, in the remaining eye is normal, providing the normal eye is the "shooting" eye, may be accepted.

They also state that the loss of one foot or leg by invalided soldiers who can wear or use an artificial limb will not constitute unfitness for home service in special work, nor will the loss of any toe or toes, except the great toe, prevent any man from being accepted. These men, however, will be used for clerical positions or other suitable duty. The loss of one or two fingers on either hand, excepting the thumb or forefinger, providing such does not interfere with his ability to do such work as required of him, will not debar any man fro mhaving his services accepted.

A "squint" or any morbid condition of the eyes or of the lid of either eye liable to the risk of aggravation or recurrence will cause the rejection of any candidate but any man from having his services brought up to normal in both eyes by the aid of glasses, will be accepted and glasses provided free at the expense of the Government.

Between ten and twelve thousand men are doing duty on guard work in Canada along the canals, public works and at the internment camps. This will permit many of these to be released for overseas service. In addition if any of these men finally become physically fit they will be permitted to go overseas.

TO OUR SOLDIERS AT THE FRONT

With Apologies to Bryant's "The Prairie."

These are the sons of Canada; these our defence and hope, dauntless and wonderful, for whom the voice of England has no blame. Our soldiers!

I behold them with delight, and my heart leaps, while the music of the band tells plain the path of duty.

Lo, they come, with eager hearts to help, from far away. As if the Motherland ere looked for help in vain! With all her children true and staunch forever! Yes! they are all in arms for her!

As o'er the world I cast my wartired gaze, I think of those now gone forever. Are they dead? The pride of other days? And did they die in vain that we might live?

Let the rejoicing free who throng our earth in gladness, and that gaze upon our peaceful land, unspoiled by tyrant's plundering, answer—"O, not in vain, O, no! Their deeds shall live forever!

A disciplined and a reverenced men saved us! Died for the cause of right, the cause of God! While yet the Hun was fleeing from their steel and sending to the skies their craven song of fear.

The Germans vanished. The cruel and barbarous foe. Beaten at last.

Haply, some solitary home, from which the loved one's taken, and the sense of desolation and of grief becomes bitterer than death—is near.

The price we paid! We yield ourselves to God.

Kind words welcome our breaking hearts.

So let us praise our glorious dead, who did their duty, undismayed by fear,

Let us be brave, as they would have us be—waiting till wars, and dreams of war, are o'er!

'ROUND THE STORES

August is a great month for the live advertiser, as well as for the live buyers. The man or woman who plans to purchase wearing apparel, staple goods, etc., during August, is rewarded by opportunites that seldom come at any other time of the year and makes a dollar buy much more than on regular shopping days. This is because it is clearance time with the stores. Merchants know they must clean the deck for next season's merchandise and plan that this month, summer goods must get ther walking ticket. In this way a real harvest of bargains is let loose for economical buyers.

"Dollar Day" is to be repeated this year in Peterborough. The last one occurred in the month of February; and the merchants have decided that a second "Dollar Day" this year is one of the best methods for selling off summer stocks. Merchants who have stores full of mid-summer bargains will make an extra sacrifice on Dollar Day to clear their shelves and contents. The success of last February's "Dollar Day" will doubtless encourage such a harvest of bargains on August 23rd that crowds of buyers will be attracted to the city.

White passepartout picture binding is very useful in labelling fruit or jellies of the store closet.

An Italian inventor has brought out an automobile street sweeper that sprays the pavement in front of its brush to prevent the dust from rising and gathers the sweepings into a receiver.

DOLLAR DAY

Merchants Please Notice

The Examiner has been asked to promote a Dollar Day in August—A large number of stores have signified their willingness to participate but it is too big a job to see everyone in the time remaining. Every store is welcome to be in the list of those giving the prizes, and have their firm's name and business published in the big advertising done free for Dollar Day by the Examiner. All who have not been seen are asked to call up Mr. Callender at the Examiner who is looking after the treasury box for the merchants, or 'phone a message for him to call and full particulars will be given them. The Examiner is anxious to give every store an equal amount of publicity which can only be done if all names are in when the first big announcement is made.

Policeman Now Patrols Rockaway Widow's Heart

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—So well did Policeman William J. Dowling, patrol his post in front of the home of Mrs. Ida Lower, widow of the wealthy brewer, Valentine Lower, at Rockaway Park, L. I., that he won her heart and they slipped away a few days ago and were married.

Not until yesterday was it known along the Rockaways that the fascinating widow with a fascinating fortune had chosen a policeman for her second husband and with the news came the interesting announcement that another wealthy woman of the Rockaways had selected a policeman for a husband. She was Miss Nellie Johnston, daughter of the late J. J. Johnston, wholesale dealer in hats and caps in Manhattan, and her choice was Detective Charles Sylvester Bryan of the Seventh Branch Bureau. It was said both those marriages were rather like elopments.

Valentine Lower died two years ago, and Policeman Dowling at recognized the fact that his widow would require much more protection and he was assiduous in patrolling her property and perhaps her heart.

The friends of Dowling suspected Cupid was at work some time ago, when he began to wear a gold watch, which he said had belonged to Valentine Lower, was worth $1,500 and contained a set of chimes and an alarm which always warned him when it was time to "ring in the box", and report to the desk lieutenant.

A few days ago Dowling notified the Rockaway Beach police station of a change in his address, but nothing was thought of that until a sergeant was sent to his new address yesterday to summon him to strike reserve duty. Imagine the sergeant's surprise when he found himself entering the big Valentine Lower seaside estate, in Ocean Boardwalk, Rockaway Park. Then he recalled rumors that had been afloat, and at the door congratulations were in order.

Policeman Dowling and his bride would give no details to the public. Dowling was on reserve duty at the station last night and refused to discuss the matter except to say that he and Mrs. Lower had been married and were living happily.

Part of the fortune inherited by Mrs. Lower was a substantial interest in the Lower Brewing Company and Dowling's friends are trying to learn from him if he is going to 'quit the cops' and be a brewer. He is uncommunicative.

Dowling is a strapping big fellow and very powerful. He was assigned first to beach duty last summer and was one of the only policemen who did not ask to be transferred back to the city for the winter duty. That was considered strange at the time, as few policemen desire patrol duty at a beach in winter. But, it seems that Dowling already had met Mrs. Lower and he decided to remain right there and give her property the protection it merited.

The bride of Detective Bryan also possesses a large fortune. Her father left to her valuable property in Manhattan and Brooklyn, and in recent years she has invested heavily in Neponsit property, below Rockaway Park, and has improved it so that it is income producing. Although it had been a secret she was quite willing to speak of her romance last night in her Neponsit home.

With Detective Bryan, Miss Johnston went to Clinton, N.J., by automobile, last Tuesday, accompanied by Detective Walter G. Siems and Mrs. Siems. There they were married by the Rev. Francis X Dale, of the Church of the Immaculate Conception.

Detective Bryan said she and her husband had known each other for twelve years and that they had been close friends for nine years. In fact, she said, she had kept company with no one else in nine years. Their friends long had expected they would be married and had been waiting for the invitations, but the bride said last night she and Detective Bryan desired to avoid a "large wedding" and therefore "quietly stole away and had the knot tied."

OLD VILLA CHIEF DESERTS CARRANZA $50,000 MISSING

General Gonzales Asks American Authorities to Watch for Fleeing Band.

EL PASO, Texas, Aug. 10.—Colonel Mariano Tames, a Villista who accepted amnesty from the Carranza government four months ago, left Juarez with a hundred of his men, and is now being closely pursued by government troops. Tames had been acting as paymaster for the Juarez garrison and the charge is made by General Francisco Gonzales that he took with him $50,000 in gold that was to have been used to pay off the troops.

The men who deserted with Tames are all volunteers, who crossed from this city to Juarez and enlisted, when war with the United States seemed imminent. With the passing of the crisis between the two countries these men have repeatedly asked to be discharged, but their requests had been refused.

The Juarez officials made heavy collections in customs duties in El Paso yesterday, the fourth of the month being the usual day for merchants doing business in Mexico to settle with the government. Fifty thousand dollars of the money collected was turned over to Tames to pay off the troops. Late last night General Gonzales ordered all of the men of the Tames command out for inspection, and when they appeared on the parade ground started to disarm them. Tames, scenting trouble, gathered what men he could around him and disappeared. It is charged that he took the payroll money with him.

American authorities have been asked to watch for the deserting officer in this city, but so far as can be learned he has not crossed the border. Seven soldiers who have seen service under Tames, but who did not desert with him, were placed under arrest to-day in Juarez.

Reports received here from the south are to the effect that everything is quiet throughout Northern Mexico. There has been no fighting anywhere so far as is known. Border conditions are satisfactory, according to reports received by General Bell.

Fewer Double Chins Among Germans

London, August 9.—The Daily Mail quotes the Cologne Gazette of Aug. 4th, as saying that the food restrictions in Germany have brought many benefits in their train; that double chins and "corporations" have disappeared from Germany, and it has been noticed that the public health is rapidly improving.

A well known surgeon, Prof. Kuttner, writes in the German Review, that appendicitis is disappearing as a result of the severe plainness of Germany's war diet, and other ailments and ills are also decreasing as a result of abstinence from rich food.

AVIATOR LATEST NATIONAL HERO

IMMELMAN'S DEATH AROUSES WHOLE OF GERMANY TO PAY TRIBETE TO HIM.

Germany has for the time being ceased paying tributes to Field Marshall von Hindenburg as a national hero, and everywhere throughout the empire the name of Immelmann, daring aviator, who was killed recently in a battle with allied aviators, is being revered in many ways.

General von Boehm, who commanded the army corps with which Lieut. Immelmann was connected, has sent an autograph letter to his mother in Dresden, expressing the admiration of his men for her dead son, and their sorrow at his untimely death.

Newly born chilren are christened with the name of Immelmann, and in Schoneberg a street has been named after him. Songs exploiting the deeds of the aviator are sung in the cafes and concert halls, and German playwrights are writing plays in which he figures as an important character.

In Dresden there is a war exhibition in which the first aeroplane that Lieutenant Immelmann operated is shown as well as his uniform, cap, and other articles that belonged to him. His mother has been deluged with telegrams and letters, and honours galore are showered upon her. A movement is on on foot to erect a monument to him in Dresden.

GERMAN PROFESSORS ARE LOST IN BATTLE

In the German casualty lists the percentage of German university professors who have been killed or wounded is very high. Many of the universities, especially those in Berlin, Frankfort, Mains and Konigsberg, have lost the majority of their faculty, and in some cases women have taken their places—something not even dreamed of a few years ago, when the feeling against women in place of men in universities caused a stir throughout the Empire.

The Kolnische Zeitung announces the death on the battlefield of two more professors who were famous throughout Germany. They are Max Luhe, professor of zoology at the University of Konigsberg, and Dr. Oskar Piloty, well known professor of the University of Munich.

FRIGHTFUL FATALITY AT HIGHLAND INN

MISS IRENE BOYD OF LACHUTE KILLED BY A FREIGHT TRAIN.

Algonquin Park, August 9.—Miss Irene Boyd, aged 18, of Lachute, Que. was killed here on Saturday night by a freight train, under which she fell. She was an employee of the Highland Inn, and was playing with a girl friend in a freight car standing on the siding in front of the hotel. The car was pulled out before they expected, and her girl chum succeeded in jumping to safely before the train has developed much speed. Miss Boyd hesitated and finally when the train had gone about two hundred yards and was travelling at a pretty fast rate she made a frantic effort to jump, missed her footing, and fell under the wheels, being cut to pieces. Her legs were found near each other, and the body about a hundred yards away, but her head was carried about three miles.

GOWGANDA BURNED BY FOREST FIRES

RAIN HAS NOW PRACTICALLY EXTINGUISHED FIRES IN THE NORTH

North Bay, Ont., August 9.—The Timiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway officials report that the very heavy downfall of rain during the past 24 hours has practically extinguished the fires in the north.

Word was received last night that a good portion of the town of Gowganda had been wiped out by fire.

APPEAL TO BE MADE IN BANBURY CASE

ACTION WAS OVER LOSS OF INVESTMENT MADE ON MANAGER'S ADVICE.

London, August 9.—The Bank of Montreal has given notice of appeal in the Banbury case. On July 21st last judgment was given by Mr. Justice Darling for 25,000 pounds against the Bank of Montreal in favor of Captain Cecil Banbury, on the verdict of a jury holding the bank liable for the advice its bank manager had given to the claimant in British Columbia relative to the investment of 25,000 pounds in the Westholme Lumber Company of British Columbia. The investment has been a losing one.

The bank's defence was that Captain Banbury was not a customer of the bank and the bank was not under any duty to advise him. If manager Galletly of Vancouver, did advise him the manager acted outside the scope of his authority. The jury however held that a branch manager had the authority to give advice concerning investments and that in this instance the advice given to Captain Banbury was negligently given. At a previous trial the jury had disagreed.

Germans Make Paper From Cotton Stalks

Berlin, August 9.—The Royal material testing office at Grosslichterfelde, a suburb of Berlin, announces that paper can be manufactured from cotton stalks.

The discovery was made it is stated by a German institution while carrying on a commission from an Egyptian firm given before the war. A shipment of stalks which had arrived from Egypt before the opening of hostilities was used for the experiment.

The stalks were cut and ground, boiled and bleached, and the paper making then proceeded after the usual methods. The results moved the testing office to arrive at the decision that cotton stalks are a good material for making paper.

When packing a trunk, waists will be less mussed if they are put into a flat paste board box.

Horwood Admits Salt Kept Away To Save Everyone

WINNIPEG, Aug. 10.—The suggestion that it is V. W. Horwood who was principally benefitted by the absence of William Salt from the jurisdiction of Manitoba tribunals, was made by defense counsel, continuing cross-examination in the ex-minister's trial.

Horwood admitted to A. J. Andrews, K.C., that he was guilty of eight crimes—perjury, subornation of perjury, false pretences, theft, falsifying public documents and conspiracy to defraud—as he had admitted in the preliminary hearing.

"I want to see really whose interests were being most served by sending and keeping Salt away", said Mr. Andrews. "If Salt came back and told the truth what would be the effect?"

MAKES FRANK ADMISSION

"It would give the whole thing away."

"And you would have gone to jail?"

"I suppose so," said the witness, who agreed that he had been greatly interested in keeping Salt away and that he had spent the first money for that purpose. Horwood said that at that time he and his wife had about $3,500 in the bank and he owned some property.

Horwood said the ministers were always kind to him. He said that when he was before the Public Accounts Committee he wished to make a statement, but he was dissuaded. He went to Rochester, Minn., to "protect his friends" after telling his story to his solicitors. At Rochester he underwent an operation, and later arranged to give evidence before the Royal Commission.

DRAWS $4 PER DAY.

"And since then," said Mr. Andrews, "you have been in the pay of the Government as a professional witness at $4 a day and expenses?"

"I had no money. I did not get a cent until after the preliminary, and then they advanced me $4 per day from the time I gave evidence in Minneapolis." Horwood added that the money came from the attorney-general's department, to which he sent his accounts and no cheque had been signed by ex-Chief McRae, or by R. A. Bonnar, chief Crown counsel. He did not remember if any had been signed by the attorney-General. Mr Andrews asked the Crown to produce the cheques.

Most of the afternoon session was taken up with the reading of documents and the cross-examination was not concluded. Horwood swore that Contractor Kelly on one occasion offered him an electric motor car which he refused.

Mr. Willis (at the ball game at the pitcher and catcher hold a conference)—"What are they talking about?" Mr. Wilson—"About what to throw to the next batter." Mrs. Willis—"But they aren't allowed to throw anything to him except the ball, are they?"—Puck.

Proud To Fight Beside French

The dogged characteristics of the British are vividly portrayed in a letter from a British officer dated June 23 last, and which has just been received in New York. This officer is attached to one of the Headquarters Divisions in France, and the interest attached to what he writes lies in the fact that it reflects unquestionably the atmosphere of thought and sentiment along the firing line. The officer is a man of wide experience in European affairs, and one thoroughly acquainted with German methods. He writes in part:

"As you can imagine, I rejoined the army immediately war was declared, and have been at the front since the early days of 1914. I was about sixteen months with the artillery, but latterly have been attached to headquarters of my division. It has seemed strange in some instances where I have entered towns here in France as a soldier that the last time I was there on business for you. But what a change. Nothing but battered ruins remain of what previously were flourishing towns.

The machine shops of course have been shelled to bits and it is painful to see the scrap heaps of what once were fine machine tools. But such is war in these days, and it certainly pays no respect to property. Anyway we shall see this stunt through right up to he jaz end and you can take it from me that someone will pay, and pay dearly, before we are through with it. The thought of poor little Belgium and the atrocities committed there, are quite sufficient for us, and we shall wipe it out in our own good time. All peace blubber is idiotic until that has been done, and most decidedly the British army will not have any of it, and I know I can say the same of our Allies.

"The French army has fought magnificently under prodigious disadvantages, and it is a pleasure to fight along side it. As regards the Russians, you know as much about them as I do, for I have read only the newspaper reports."

"I saw American ambulances, a whole convoy of them, sometime ago and they were doing great work with the stars and stripes flying in front. Sure it did gladden our hearts to see them. I remember them also at the battle of Neuve Chapelle last year and the bravery of their men in coming up to the line during heavy bombardments, was superb. They didn't waver one instant and were as cool as cucumbers. I should like to have shaken their hands.

Magistrate Langley Would Have Acquitted Willis Bigham Had He Elected To Be Tried Summarily

Willis Bigham, charged with the abduction of Lily Martin from the home of James Sampson, in Dummer, was committed for trial by County Magistrate Langley yesterday afternoon.

The accused had declined to plead, preferring a preliminary hearing only. Hence, His Worship found that the evidence against Bigham was sufficient to send him on for trial, but, he said, had he been trying the case himself, it was not strong enough to warrant a conviction by him. Magistrate Langley smiled with something of that "it hurts me more than it does you" spirit when he told Bigham and his counsel, Mr. H. R. Armstrong, of Gordon and Widdifield's office, that while the evidence was largely based on suspicion, yet when a prisoner does not plead or elect for trial it requires less conclusive evidence for committal than it does for dismissal at a preliminary hearing. Crown Attorney Hatton, in summing up the evidence, admitted its circumstantial character, and did not take a strong stand for committal of the prisoner.

About a year ago Bigham, who has been working in the Trent Valley Woollen Mills, Campbellford, had a horse in pasture at Sampsons. He sold it at that time and his buggy remained there. More recently, it was stated, he had met Lily Martin in Campbellford in the week previous to July 9th. Quite recently he had purchased a new horse, which offered an excuse to go to Sampson's for the buggy he had left in the previous year. Accordingly, on July 9th he made the trip up from Campbellford, and left about two o'clock in the afternoon with the two buggies in tandem.

Bigham declared that the Martin girl, who is not yet sixteen, with regular and rather pretty features, was at the house when he set out, and yet when he had driven a concession or more along the road he caught up to her. He could offer no explanation for what appeared an impossibility, unless the girl had crossed the fields. Even at that she would have had to hurry.

When he had caught up with her, Bigham asked her if she would have a ride, and she readily accepted his invitation. Further along the road, she said she was going to Campbellford. Then arrived that night, and Bigham drove her to her destination, and stated that he had only seen her once or twice since that night, and only at a distance.

Mr. Hatton pointed out that it was strange that the accused suddenly quit his work in the mill two weeks ago to go into the back country picking huckleberries at a time when he was being sought by the county police.

James Sampson had driven after the couple that Sunday afternoon, but they had taken a longer road, he said, and thus he missed them.

Lily Martin made a partial admission that Bigham had got her to go down the Campbellford road and wait for him.

Davis Hill, a neighbour of Sampson's, saw Bigham driving past alone in his buggy. Witness didn't blame any adopted child trying to run away from Sampson's. They were raggedy and dirty, he said, and were not properly cared for. He admitted that he hadn't been on the Sampson place in over a year, and that the children who were in court gave every appearance of being well fed and clothed.

All Saints' Choir Excursion

Choir of All Saints' Church Journeyed to Gore's Landing Yesterday --An Enjoyable Trip

A most delightful day was spent yesterday by the members of All Saints' Anglican Church choir, and their friends, the occasion being the annual excursion. The party left by the S. S. "Geneva" for a trip to Gore's Landing, Rice Lake. Upon arrival, baskets were quickly opened, and plain tables were soon changed to veritable festive boards. After the good things had been disposed of to the comfort of all, and probably discomfort, for several belts were noticed to have been let out another notch, the party wandered to the precincts of the pretty little church, where a short service was held. Races were then the order of the hour, and several records were broken, but otherwise no damage was done. The time on shore passed all too quickly, and the "all aboard" whistle was soon sounding. During the beautiful sail home a splendid supper was served on board, and the wharf was reached at 7.30 p.m., all having enjoyed themselves.

An enjoyable feature was the presence of Sergt. W. Phillips of the 255th Battalion, who was up on a short furlough from Bowmanville. He is the eighth member of the choir to join the colours. Sergt. Phillips, who was the late secretary of the choir, was on Sunday evening last, presented with a handsome Briar in case, by the members, with their wishes for a speedy and safe return. Sergt. Phillips very suitably replied. The fact that the Rev. Grobb is on his vacation caused him to be regretfully absent.

Capt. Harris and his crew did all in their power to add to the comfort of all aboard.—Com.

A DISTINCTIVE COMEDY DRAMA AT THE EMPIRE

Dazel Dawn at the Empire—Also a Good Comedy—A High-Class Entertainment

CAST OF CHARACTERS.

Nell Carroll ..... Hasel Dawn
Teddy De Veaux .. Robert Cain
Rene Lidal .... George Majeroni
Mrs. De Veaux, Dora Mills Adams
Chief of Police, Franklyn Hanna
Bull Rice ..... Frank Wunderlee

"My Lady Incog," which presents Hasel Dawn for the first time in her screen career as a girl detective, is a rare combination of laughs and thrills. "My Lady Incog," privately known as Nell Carroll, is a sympathetic and compelling character, especially appealing because of her self reliance and courage in facing extreme perils unflinchingly. The story contains a powerful union of intense dramatic situations and amusing episodes, with always the suspense of uncertainty and the excitement which comes from the battling of keen intellects for supremacy when the stakes are big. "My Lady Incog" has all the interest of a mystery story, plus a delicate touch of romance and a dash of comedy that insures the success of this unusual Paramount Picture.

PTE. ARNOLD PARRINGTON, who has written home to say that he is a prisoner in Germany and has been wounded.

THIS MORNING'S POLICE COURT

A GOOD TONIC.

Alex Ross, who lives on Bonacord street has been sick with rheumatism for some time and on Monday evening several "comforts" called to see how he was. The friends apparently found "Alex" an excellent host, despite his illness and remained for the evening. Next day the police got a hurry call to visit Alex's residence as sounds of revelry had been heard by night.

At this mornings court, the Bonacord street entertainer was charged with selling liquor without a license, and with supplying liquor to men who were on the black list. Through his counsel, Mr. Howard Armstrong, of Gordon and Widdifield, he entered a plea of not guilty and the case was proceeded with.

Thos. Flannery, one of the friends and a blacklister told of calling on Alex. Ross to see him. He admitted drinking at the house but had not gone there with the intention of imbibing anything. He had not been coaxed to drink nor nor had he contributed anything to the purchasing of the two kegs of ale and three bottles of whisky which were produced in court. William Stewart another blacklister was also at the house, the same time as the witness.

Alex. Ross against whom the charge was laid was called upon and denied charging his friends anything for the liquor they consumed at his house. "I never got a five cent piece for a glass of liquor in all my life," declared Alex.

His Worship in reviewing the evidence thought Ross the full penalty of the law and imposed a fine of twenty-five dollars with the option of thirty days in jail. "I don't see why he shouldn't be responsible for his generosity," remarked Magistrate Dumble.

Wm. Lavery was charged with being found drunk on Charlotte St. He pleaded guilty to the charge and was fined two dollars with the option of ten days in jail.

Joseph Brewer pleaded guilty to the same charge and was fined the same amount.

Spokesman—"We have pleasure in informing you, Rev. Mr. Jones, that we have decided to increase your stipend from $700 to $800 a year." Mr. Jones—"I refuse to accept it. I've enough trouble already trying to collect the $700."

Matriculation Examinations

Names of Successful Students From Peterborough City and County

The results of the examination for honour junior matriculation are given below. The standing obtained in each subject is indicated after a candidate's name—I, indicating first-class honours, II. second-class honours, and III. third-class honours, respectively.

The statement of standing of all candidates will be mailed in the course of a few days to the principals or inspectors. In the case of those who wrote at the University of Toronto their statements will be sent to the Registrar of that institution. Candidates should apply to these parties and not to the Department of Education for further information. The marks obtained by scholarship candidates have been reported direct to the universities concerned. Scholarship candidates will be informed of their standing by the Registrars of these universities.

May Wear the "Mrs." With Engagement

Curious Piece of War Legislation is Reported from Baden.

BERLIN, Aug. 10.—One curious piece of war legislation is reported from Baden, where the reigning Grand Duke has authorized the Ministry of Justice to permit unmarried women to assume and legally wear the prefix "Mrs." if they can prove a bona fide engagement to marry a participant in the war, and if the prospective bridegroom has been killed or has disappeared as a result of the war. Baden is considered to have done original pioneer work in solving the difficult problem of the world war's near widows.

WILL TAKE A FOOD CENSUS.

New Step Ordered by Batocki to Conserve German Resources.

BERLIN, Aug. 10.—Another important move in Herr von Batocki's campaign to conserve Germany's food resources has been taken. A general food census throughout the empire is announced to be completed by Sept. 2.

This will extend even to private households. When the latter contain fewer than thirty members the food census will extend only to stocks of canned and smoked preserved meats and eggs. For the larger households, boarding houses, hotels, restaurants, public and private institutions, stores and factories there is a list of thirty-three food items.

Takers of the food census are empowered to search all premises where they may suspect foodstuffs are stored. They further have the right to investigate the books of business firms and households. Heavy penalties are fixed for failure to report stocks of food, which are thereupon subject to confiscation.

The public is informed, however, that the purpose of the census is not to serve as a basis for future confiscation, and that consequently it is useless to conceal stores for fear of their being taken away.

The new ordinance is regarded as one of the most important links in the chain of new measures to insure a food supply to the empire.

WHAT'S WRONG WITH HAMLET?

(From London Opinion.)

"We have no great writers any more," said the man of letters, "because great writing is frowned down on by 'publishers and critics alike.

"The publisher and the critic, when confronted with a piece of great writing, act exactly like the Californian editor when he came to criticize a performance of Hamlet.

"'In this piece,' the editor began, 'there is too much chinning. The author is behind the times, and forgets that what the people want nowadays is thrilling situations, brilliant detective work, and pretty girls. If th hands of an up-to-date playwright, a sleuth would have been on the trail of Ham's uncle, and the old man would have been hunted down in a way to lift the gallery gods right out of their boots. The moral of the piece is not good. The scene where Hamlet sasses his old mother sets a very bad example to the rising generation. Our advice to the author is a little more action, a lot more sentiment, and a spice of variety business in his next piece. In the play scene there was a chance for barefoot and art dances that was entirely overlooked. Try again, Bill!"

"Globe" of 30 Years Ago Found at The South Central School

G. H. Clarke, 509 Bethune Street, uncovered an old copy of the Toronto Globe yesterday while cutting through a partition at the South Central School. It was of the issue of December 22nd, 1886, thirty years ago, and on the front page is a list of the candidates nominated on the previous day for the Ontario House of Assembly. East Peterborough Liberals returned Mr. T. Blezard, the Conservatives Messrs. McLeod and Stephenson. In the West Riding Mr. Carnegie was nominated by the Tories, and Mr. J. R. Stratton made his political debut as the Liberal standard bearer.

A despatch from Dublin mentions the serious illness of Chas. Stewart Parnell, of Mr. John Dillon's activities in behalf of the Irish people, and of an address by Labouchere. It also says "three farms belonging to Mr. Parnell's brother John were sold at auction to-day in Armagh for 50 per cent. less than the sum at which they were valued three months ago.

The cablegrams told of the increased armament output in France; of the increased number of German troops in Alsace-Lorraine, and of stronger German influence in Japan. Russian arms factories were busy, and Spain began the establishment of a settlement on the west coast of Africa.

From the New York Herald is the following: "If she New Yorks expect to continue in public favour next season they will have to play better ball than they played last summer."

Some of the market prices were as follows: Beef, 12 to 14 cents; sirloin steak, 18 cents; lamb, 7 to 13 cents; pork chops, 10c; butter, 10c to 28c, according to quality; eggs, 21c; chickens, per pair, 35c; lard, 11c; potatoes, per bag, 75c; turkeys, 75c to $1.50; apples, per barrel, $1.50.

Folded with the paper was a white silk badge, bearing a red pennant, with a white strip through the centre, bearing the letters A.C.A., Stoney Lake, 1883.

FIRE CHIEFS MEET; NEW CANADIAN BODY

Fire Prevention Rather Than Fire-Fighting, is Purpose of Body--Chief Howard, of Peterboro' Replies to Address of Welcome

WINDSOR, Aug. 10.—Fire chiefs from all over Canada, nearly 150 of them, were formally welcomed to Windsor Tuesday morning by Mayor A. W. Jackson for the first convention of Dominion Association of Fire Chiefs, a newly-formed organization.

The convention formally opened at the Elk's Temple shortly after 10 o'clock, when about 100 delegates representing as many cities and towns in the Dominion, were present.

Chief John W. Graham of Ottawa, president of the association, opened the convention with a short address, in which he outlined the purpose of the meeting here.

"Fire prevention more than fire-fighting" was the keynote of his brief address, in which he declared the duty of the modern fire department chief was not so much in the direction of fighting fire after they once started, but in taking precautions to prevent fires.

Following the invocation by Rev. Percy N. Harding of All Saints', Mayor Jackson formally welcomed the visitors to Windsor.

On behalf of the Windsor Council and the fire committee, which has worked unceasingly to arrange for the entertainment of the visitors, Ald. T. J. Eansor, chairman of the committee, followed the Mayor.

The reply to the address of welcome was made by Chief W. A. Howard of Peterborough.

Franklin H. Wentworth of Boston, Mass., secretary of the National Fire Prevention Association, addressed the delegates at luncheon tendered by the Windsor Board of Trade in the Knights of Columbus Hall, Victoria Block, shortly after noon. His topic was "Fire Prevention."

After lunch several parties of the visitors went to Detroit, where they were entertained on a sightseeing tour of the city.

The wives and families of the delegates were entertained at a theatre party in Detroit.

BELIEVE MISSING GOLFER IS BLIND

Father and Friends of Severn Ker, of Pittsburg, Think That Heat Attack Caused Them to Wander Away.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Aug. 10.— More than one hundred boy scouts joined to-day in a search for Severn Ker, nineteen years old, the young Sharon golfer, who disappeared soon after leaving the Stanton Heights Golf Club between noon and one o'clock Thursday.

Colonel H. P. Rope, of the Carnegie Steel Company, assured the missing youth's father, Severn P. Ker, this morning that he would have between 100 and 200 boy scouts at the Stanton Heights Gold Club at two o'clock this afternoon to scour the vicinity.

Mr. Ker, who is president of the Sharon Steel Hoop Company, said he is positive his son is suffering from temporary blindness, superinduced by an attack of heat while playing golf Thursday morning.

"I believe," Mr. Ker said, "that he is coming around in a half dazed condition, unable to make known his condition or tell where he wants to go."

Other relatives and friends of the missing youth believe he is a victim of an attack of heat similiar to one which made him blind for four days after participating in a golf tournament at the New Castle Club about a year ago.

The first census of the kind ever taken in Denmark, which has about one-third the area of Wisconsin, credited the country with more than 5,400,000 fruit trees.

Peterborough Boy At Dulmen, Ger. In Need of Food

In another column of this issue is the official report of the death in Germany of a Hastings boy who was well known in this city. The following letter is from Alfred Huffman, 82 Duchess street, Toronto: I write you to ask if you would kindly place Private Harold Lawrence's "ad" in your paper as he received some nice boxes from friends in Peterborough, as that is his home. He is now a prisoner of war and I have received a card from him. He says if he does not receive some real food from his home town to help feed him he will surely die. There are many in Peterboorugh who would gladly send him help if they only knew his address, which is:

Private Harold Lawrence, 113352,
4th C.M.R., Co'y 11; Barrack 25B

G.T.R. FIREMAN KILLED.

Chatham, August 9.—C. Rennie, of Windsor, a fireman on the Grand Trunk yard engine here, was almost instantly killed about noon yesterday when he was run over by his engine. He had crawled underneath to make some adjustment when the engine was moved. Those who were near the scene refuse to say just what caused the engine to move. Coroner Dr. Bray was called and an inquest will be held. Rennie has been in Chatham but a short time but has been with the Grand Trunk for more than three years as a fireman on the main line.

Mr. Spence Took Children From Sampson Home

Mr. C. A. G. Spence, agent for the Children's Aid Society, provided a rather unexpected sequel to the County Police Court hearing of the charge of abduction against Willis Bigham. Magistrate Langley said he could not allow to pass the opportunity and necessity of referring to the danger of unsupervised adoption of children. Lily Martin, the girl whom it was alleged Bigham had abducted, her brother Roy, and a still younger sister had been adopted by James Sampson of Dummer from their parents in Campbellford.

This case, His Worship stated, illustrated the need of supervision by some official. Parents should not be allowed to give their children for adoption to others, unless as endorsement of the character and home surroundings of the foster parents has been given. In other words, Magistrate Langley, felt that the authorities should have knowledge and control of every case of adoption.

Mr. and Mrs. Sampson, with the two younger Martin children, were in the court room, as was Mr. Spence who quietly left the room and secured papers to take the children from the Sampsons. His first step was to make them wards of the Children's Aid Society and they may be returned to their foster parents if Mr. Spence is satisfied that the home is a suitable one. Mr. Spence and Mr. Henry are in the country to-day probably in the east, and the children are at the Shelter.

Man Who Cheated Belgium Goes Back

John Wesley Dekay Ordered Extradited to France.

LONDON, Aug. 10.—John Wesley Dekay, of New York, was again arraigned in Bow Street Police Court for a hearing on the demand of the French Government for his extradition on charges of fraud. The magistrate ruled that the evidence showed that there was proper cause for trial, and he accordingly committed the prisoner for extradition.

Dekay was accused by the French Government of having participated with a Frenchman in obtaining 315,000 francs from Belgium on false pretences in connection with the sale of rifles and ammunition.

MR. CYRIL MAUDE'S SON-IN-LAW KILLED.

New York, August 9.—Friends of Cyril Maude, the English actor, have received word from his country place in Sussex, England, of the death of his son-in-law, Major William La Touche Congreve, D. S. O., of the British army, who was killed in action in France on July 20.

Major Congreve, who had been named for promotion to a colonelcy, married Miss Pamela Maude, the actor's youngest daughter, last June in London, when home on furlough, and was a bridegroom of but little more than a month when he met his death. His service in the army had been one of marked distinction. He had been awarded the Military Cross, and the decoration of the Legion of Honor and had been recommended for the Victoria Cross. He was twenty-four years old.

ITALIANS WAGING A FIERCE BATTLE ON A WIDE FRONT

Fierce Battle Raging On A Wide Front

Italians are Preparing For a Drive on Trieste—Fall of Gorizia Seems Likely to Assure Capture of Tolmino, as Austrian Reinforcements Can Only be Brought Up Through Very Narrow Valley—Three Attempts Made at Long Intervals Before Guardian Mountain Heights Were Taken.

THE ITALIAN CAMPAIGN

ROME, August 11.—The Italians are now waging a fierce battle on a thirty-mile front mounting a plateau for a drive on Trieste.

The campaign against Goritz almost tells the history of Italy in the great war. All her other operations, except those in Cadore and Carnia, have been primarily of a defensive nature, while every ounce of the national strength was exerted against the Isonzo barrier to Trieste and the Estrian peninsula. The first move when hostilities began was directed east across the frontier toward Goritz. The Austrians made no defence of the frontier, but fell back under a rearguard screen to the heights which overlook the river on the west. Here their permanent fortifications had been constructed during many years at great cost, and here they believed they could hold indefinitely with a minimum number of men against any blow of which Italy was capable.

The Italian Second army, intrusted with the operations along the Adriatic sea-board and the lower Isonzo, came up with the outlying defences in the first week of fighting and for several days threw itself against the mountain wall. More or less activity followed all the summer of 1915, with two distinctive efforts to break the Austrian line. The most that was accomplished was the establishing of the Italian front along the slopes of Monte Podgora and Monte Cabotina, the capture of Plava and the occupation of some of the lower reaches of the Carso plateau.

During the early autumn of 1915 General Cadorna, the commander-in-chief, rested the Italian organization and prepared for another great effort against Goritz. This came in the early days of November, and the fighting, of a most furious nature, continued through the first week in December. The lines were drawn a little tighter around the city, but to the ordinary observer it seemed the offensive had gained little to pay for the heavy cost of life and material expended in the month it was in progress. Its most important result was the capture of Monte Sei Busi, south of Goritz.

TRENTINO DRIVE DELAYED PROJECT.

In the 1916 plans of the Italian General Staff a new effort to reach Goritz was intended for the early spring when the floods should subside, but the Austrian offensive in the Trentino prevented General Cordona from moving in the east. With the early smothering of the Austrian threat the work of concentrating for the Isonzo campaign began, even while the First army was engaged in recovering lost territory between the Sette Communi and the Adige Valley. The big blow fell on Sunday when an attack launched against Monte San Michele carried that strategically important height and put the Goritz bridgehead under the control of the Italian artillery.

The Austrian command realized that with the fall of Monte San Michele their tenure of the city was broken and prepared for a hurried evacuation. There was none of the street fighting which has become such ordinary news from the western war theatre. The garrison withdrew entirely from the city and took up its stand in the hills which overlook the town from from the northeast, east and southeast.

The occupation of Goritz is regarded in Rome simply as the beginning of an ambitious campaign which will be directed against the entire Austrian left wing and will synchronize with the steady pressure the Allies are exerting against the Teutonic armies on all the fronts. Some observers even believe the operations may prove a serious menace to Vienna, for while the offensive is being pushed home on the lower Isonzo it is believed General Cadorna has in mind a drive through Cadore and Carnia along the path used by Napoleon in his advance on the Austrian capital.

THE KEY TO TRIESTE

Gortiz has been termed the key to Trieste and the entire Istrian Peninsula, and the seriousness of the fighting which has lasted for more than a year has been emphasized by the knowledge that the capture of Goritz was essential to any permanent control of the crownland of the same name.

The Austrian engineers had prepared the Gortiz defence long before the present war, for it was recognized that no adequate resistance could be offered to an invading Italian army short of the mountain slopes leading up to Podgora and Sabatino ranges. So long as the Austrians were able to maintain the full quota of troops necessary for the defence of Goritz the efforts of the Italians were apparently abortive and the success of the Italians in the present offensive is attributed largely to the necessity which the Austrians have encountered in shifting troops from the west to the Galician theatre of war.

The direct result of the Italian capture of Goritz is to isolate the Goritz crownland from the territory lying north of the Lemmerling range. This isolation is accentuated by the knowledge that the Italian troops are in possession of the principal passes leading into the Isonzo Valley.

With the fall of Goritz the capture of Tolmino seems assured, unless the Austrians can empty their large reinforcements into the Isonzo Valley, a feat which seems improbable by reason of the Italian occupancy of important passes in the northwest.

The value of Tolmino lies in its strategic relation to the railways converging on Trieste and also making an Austrian base of operations. Above Tolmino stretches the Isonzo Valley, which for a distance of more than eight miles is not more than a quarter of a mile in width. It is through this narrow passageway that Austrian reinforcements must come if the lower Isonzo is to be held.

From Goritz to Trieste is a little more than a day's march perhaps with light equipment, but tremendous difficulties still lie in the path of the port.

Goritz is A Railway Centre

Four Important Austrian Lines Converge at Beleaguered City

The Goritz bridgehead on the Isonzo commanded by Monte Sabotino, San Michele, and San Martino has long been the key that the Italians have been in vain trying to turn to unlock, not only the door to the path to the Austrian stronghold of Klagenfurt, but also to the railways which run south into Istria, to Trieste, Pola and Fiume.

Goritz itself, 22 miles north-west of Trieste, has thus gradually assumed the character of a fortress because of the defending heights which prevented the Italians from occupying it. It sits among its hills like a Greek theatre facing south—its stage, the fields of the Isonzo across which the Italians could not advance until they had captured at least some of the seats in the gallery, which they have now done.

Goritz is a town of 31,000 inhabitants, by far the largest place in the district between the Italian frontier and Trieste. Four railways meet there, leading (1) north-west to Udine in the Italian region of Venetia, (2) north-east to Villach and Vienna, (3) south to Montalcone, captured by the Italians on June 5, 1915, and (4) south-east and then south to Trieste.

The fact that, in assaulting the heights around it, various detachments of Italians have passed through the suburbs gave rise from time to time to the announcement that the place had fallen. It is at the northern angle of a quadrilateral formed by highways; the three other angles are Gradisca, Nabresina, and Scherbina, including an area of about 100 square miles. Within have been a series of fortified heights ranging from 100 to 400 feet in altitude — Tersteli, Temizza, Brestovizza, Castagnasizza, Rubbia—which the Italians were obliged to occupy. The city has also been defended from a similar group of fortifications in the north and east—Monte Santo, Salcano, Ternova, Cairn, and Belpasso.

"Of course you put your faith in the wisdom of the people." "Yes," replied Miss Cayenne. "But when I read some of the best sellers, I'm tempted not to."—Washington Star.

Russian Forces Menace The Teutonic Armies On The Eastern Front

General Von Bothmer's Forces Before Tarnopol Under Pressure From Two Sides. Stanislau and Halicz Likely to Fall Soon—Victory in Galicia Gives Tsar's Armies Advantageous Line from Pruth to Dniester—Russian Guns Can Now Hit Stanislau—The Evacuation of Lemberg is Not Far Distant.

CZAR'S ARMIES ARE ADVANCING

PETROGRAD, August 11.—General Letchitzky's capture of Tysmienica, Galicia, seems to make almost certain the early fall of Stanislau and Halicz and to bring nearer the recapture of Lemberg. The Russian guns can now hit Stanislau, and the evacuation of Lemberg is not for distant. General Count von Bothmer, who for a long time has stood firmly intrenched along the Upper Strypa before Tarnapol, will hardly be able longer to withstand the squeezing process to which he is being subjected by General Letchitzky on the south and by General Sakharoff on the north of his position in the view of the military observers, who regard as inevitable a falling back along the whole of the Tarnopol front.

The fresh victory in Galicia gives the Russians an exceedingly advantageous front, with headquarters on the Pruth west of Kolomea, through Delatyn to the west and northward to the Dniester, with all necessary railway facilities to the rear through Kolomea.

General Count von Bothmer still has two railways over which he can make good his retreat, but one of these is seriously threatened by General Sakharoff's push southward from Clochoff, which lies to the south of Brody and forty-five miles east of Lemberg. General Letchitzky's advance appears to have been as unexpected as it is impetuous and irresistible. The capture of more than seven thousand prisoners, of whom nearly half are Germans, is referred to by the military observers as an indication of the disorganization of the Austro-Germans.

CANADIAN NORTHERN ALL THE WAY

CHURCHES IN FRANCE

Will State Allow Hun-ruined Art to be Replaced?

The destruction by fire and shell of more than 250 churches along the French battle front brings up an interesting question in connection with the ante-bellum promulgation of the law separating the Church from the State in France. When the war is ended and the problem of the restoration of these edifices is confronted there must be a decision whether this reconstruction is to come within the principle accepted by the Government of indemnities for war damages. Since the promulgation became effective the Government has taken no part in the maintenance of churches. On the other hand, it has regarded ancient churches with historic or artistic value as belonging to the patrimony of the State. Two thousand old churches have thus been formally classed among the State treasures to prevent the sale of artistic features of the buildings or to keep intact buildings of historic importance. Of these "classed" churches, as they are called, about 30 are among those which have been demolished.

Church people contend that the State should unquestionably take upon itself the restoration of the 30 "classed" churches and any others of sufficient artistic value to warrant restoration, and inasmuch as private individuals are entitled to indemnities for damages to their property, it is suggested that the other churches should likewise be indemnified. Church-goers have on this question the support of all admirers of the old architecture, of which the best specimens are becoming rare. There is a strong element in France that still resists the idea that decorative art may be preserved independently of architecture. This element is alarmed at the prospect of the demolished edifices of the 14th, 15th and 16th centuries being replaced by modern construction.

Groups of architects and builders have been formed, and even syndicates organized to prepare a programme for the restoration of churches and other buildings in the war zone. Most of the plans proposed are inspired by the purest modernism, in which the practical and the technical predominate over the artistic and the sentimental. This tendency is what the church-goers and the art-lovers are trying to overcome, proposing where the question of economy enters into consideration the construction of cheap provisional chapels to serve until the time when the churches may be restored in the full sense of the term.

CANNOT REACH ENGLAND HUN NAVY INCAPABLE

French Admiral Reveals Sad Facts of Germany's Plight—The Hun Plan Known

"A German invasion of England must now be looked upon as an absolute impossibility," says the French Admiral Degouy in Le Petit Journal. "Even if we do not yet know the final plans of a German naval offensive," the Admiral says, "we have now sufficient, reliable information about the preparations which are going on in the retrenched naval camp, the centre of which is Cuxhaven, to enable us to draw intelligent conclusions.

"Admiral Tirpitz, we are told, did not want to risk in open battle his precious High Sea Fleet, the four squadrons of first class battleships which must not come out except at a moment of extreme danger, and then preferably only in German waters. He was satisfied to let those squadrons paralyze the English home fleets at a safe distance, but he is ready to risk that fleet of battle cruisers which was defeated by Admiral Beatty on January 25, 1915, when the Blucher went down, but which has now been reinforced by two, perhaps three, powerful units of the Luetzow type, armed with eight 305-mm. (12-in.) guns. These six or seven battle cruisers, assisted by half a score of lighter cruisers of the Graudens, Rostock and Stralsund type and a large number of destroyers, are to constitute Germany's active naval force. They may perhaps be strengthened by some of the large submarines of about 3,000 tons of which Danish telegrams have told us. Then the gigantic liners will be held in readiness to embark about 70,000 troops, with which Germany hopes to invade England.

Short of Men and Ships

"The great question now is whether Germany is really strong enough in human material to permit herself to send two entire army corps across the sea at a very great risk and that at a moment when she seems determined to force an issue on the western front without withdrawing any troops from the Russian front. For the sake of argument let us suppose that Germany has the necessary troops to spare, and let us also for the same reason suppose that in spite of the losses she has suffered on the sea and in spite of the great number of her liners which are interned in neutral ports, she still has sufficient ships to transport a small army, with all its saddle horses, its wagons, its artillery, and other accessories. Even if this be so Germany is faced by the great difficulty which lies in the fact that the convoy thus formed must have an average speed great enough to give it some chance of avoiding being intercepted by the British fleet and either destroyed or dispersed, in spite of the efforts of the faster squadron accompanying it, which is thus deprived of one of its principal advantages, that of mobility.

The Fast Liners Gone

"It must be remembered that it happens to be that the great, fast German liners which have been destroyed or interned. The two great steamship companies still have at their disposal the gigantic new liners like the Amerika, the George Washington, the Kaiserin Augusta Victoria and the Cincinnati, boats of 35,000 to 45,000 tons, but these are, after all, only huge cargo boats, the average speed of which is not above sixteen knots. What will happen then if she has to make use of smaller boats, the average speed of which is twelve knots? How could she ever hope to be able to get near the British Isles, the coasts of which are so carefully guarded, with a transport of very slow boats?

"It is evident that even if Germany might be able to spare the 70,000 troops, the idea of an invasion of England is hopeless. She might be able to send out an expedition of this kind in the Baltic, where the German navy has more elbow room and to which the access is barred even to small British naval vessels by the German mines at the southern end of the Danish Sound."

Italy Has Efficient, Reserved Premier —Thought a Stop-gap

"It is a pleasure for me to express to your Excellency my fervent wishes for the glory and prosperity of Great Britain." When, at the dinner given in Rome in honor of the visit of Mr. Asquith, Signor Salandra, the Italian Prime Minister, thus expressed himself in his felicitous speech, there was double sincerity in his words. No man in Italy has a greater admiration for British Parliamentary and constitutional system in general and for Mr. Asquith in particular than Signor Salandra, and men of all shades of opinion in the "land of sunny skies" admit that Italy is fortunate in having had such a man at the head of the Government during the war.

Nevertheless, when Signor Salandra became the Italian Premier in March, 1914, there were many who doubted his strength of will, character, and skill in statesmanship. "Salandra," they said, "has merely been made Prime Minister as a stop-gap until somebody better is found." It has since been discovered, however, that there is no better man for the job in Italy than the man who, some thirty years ago, abandoned science for politics. Although he has had over thirty years of Parliamentary experience, until a couple of years ago few people, even in Italy, knew much about Signor Salandra, who entered the Cabinet as Minister of Agriculture in 1899, and two years later was Under-Secretary of State for Finance.

Born in 1853 at Troia, near Foggia, the hottest town in Italy, Signor Salandra is the first south Italian to occupy the Premiership for eighteen years. There is a rule in Italy that no one can enter the Chamber until he is thirty years old. Salandra entered shortly after he had attained that age, and soon made his mark at finance. Of his private life very little is known, for he is a man who shuns publicity. His wife, however, Donna Maria Salandra, is well known in connection with philanthropic work in Italy, and her extensive charities have endeared her to the hearts of thousands of her countrymen and country-women.

Discipline Repressive.—The discipline of the platoon was not all that it might have been, and when the officer who was taking the company parade uttered his first command in a curious throaty voice the battalion giggled. "Stop laughing," said the sergeant; "it's not the first time you've heard a funny voice."

In the Opposite Direction—Sir Douglas Haig has a keen sense of humour and a gift of repartee. A big, blustering sergeant was cursing two men for being careless with ammunition, and shouted, "You'll send us all up to Heaven like a rocket." Sir Doug has chipped in, "Unless you improve your language, Sergeant, I'm afraid you may go in an opposite direction."

Definition Most Correct.—A clergyman in an American tour had occasion to catechise some young women in a Bible class upon the parable of the unjust steward. "What is a steward?" he asked. After some hesitation one of the young women, who had been abroad a number of times replied, with a reminiscent expression, "He is the man who brings you a basin."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

"Breaking In" Miss Willy

Story of a Girl on a Ranch

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Miss Wilhelmina Moore was tired out. She had been hard worked for many months and had made money. How she made it her friends in the quiet town where she lived did not know and she did not enlighten them. When she was at work she was absent from Mertonville and returned at long intervals, usually tired as she was at the present time.

Just why Miss Moore kept her profession or her business a secret was also a mystery. Some said that it was because she was ashamed of it; some that she did not care to tell others how she made so much money lest they all go into the same line and thus subject her to competition. Whatever was the cause, one thing was certain—her reticence excited the curiosity of every woman in Mertonville.

However these things were, Wilhelmina had come back home from one of her trips, longer than usual, looking as if she had been keelhauled. Her doctor gave her a tonic, but it did not seem to suffice. He recommended horseback riding, but she said she did not see how such exhausting exercise could rest her. Then he suggested going into the country, where she could live an out of door life and breathe the fresh air.

Wilhelmina's uncle owned a big ranch in the west, and the moment her doctor suggested an out of door life she thought that she would like to visit him, sit on the veranda and do nothing. So she wrote her uncle asking if he would permit her to go to him and received a reply extending an invitation, but at the same time warning her that she would find few associates such as she had been accustomed to, most of them being cowboys, who were a very rough lot. She might come any time she liked and remain till she had got well rested. As soon as she received this letter she packed such articles as would be appropriate for ranch life and in due time arrived at her destination.

The moment Miss Wilhelmina Moore appeared in Scraggy Creek every man on the Big Y outfit declared that of all the tenderfoot maidens out of the east none had ever been so green, so timid, so exasperatingly afraid of a horse as the girl they dubbed Miss Willy.

"I'm plumb disappointed," muttered Dade Holcomb after dinner the next day. "I thought maybe she'd be the kind of girl a feller could enjoy teaching a few lessons in broncho bustin' or something of that sort."

Bob Linton grinned.

"You might suggest it to Miss Willy," he said. "Perhaps she really would enjoy broncho busting."

"Oh, shut up!" snapped Dade. "I'm not taking any chances with those slim, pale, scary eyed females who shudder at sight of a gun and faint dead away if one goes off promiscuous like."

"You might feel the same sensation if you were introduced to a crowded subway station at the rush hour in New York," retorted Bob. "I understood from Mrs. Besse that her niece had been ill and was here for a rest."

"Too much society!" sniffed Dade. "Miss Willy can't throw a rope around me now. I'm not in the market when these society fluffs are around."

"Sour grapes," laughed Bob as they parted company, he to ride on to Scraggy Creek postoffice for the mail and the newspapers and Dade to go over to the south range to relieve one of the line riders.

"This here Miss Willy girl ought to be broken in to western ways," remarked Hannibal at supper that night. "I was cleaning my gun this afternoon, and she come upon me sudden around the corner of the barn. When she saw the gun she jumped like a rabbit and beat it for the house. Scared to death she was."

"I suppose if we shot up the ranch she might get used to it," remarked Dade thoughtfully. "No use talking, boys; Miss Willy's got to be broken in or there won't be no loving on the Big Y."

"Bob here was holding her knitting wool this afternoon while she was winding it on a ball. Our little Bobby will soon be house broke," sneered Fenton.

Bob flushed hotly and lighted his pipe in grim silence. All through the meal he had been thinking of Willy Moore's tired smile, her wonderful black lashed gray eyes, the soft contour of her colorless cheek. She was a slim, graceful girl, with quantities of fair hair, which she wore in a thick braid down her back.

"She dresses like a cowboy and acts like a timid New England schoolmarm," went on Dade. "I've a good mind to lend her Black Satan and tell Miss Willy that he's the gentlest pony west of New Hampshire."

"Don't," warned Bob Linton as he went out into the night.

The men around the table stared after him.

Suddenly Dade laughed.

"Plumb locoed," he declared.

But his remark was followed by an uncomfortable silence.

The next day Dade did offer Black Satan to Willy Moore.

"Sure he won't harm you," protested Dade as Willy laid a slim white hand on Black Satan's velvet muzzle. "He'll carry you over the ground like a bird. You'll think you've been flying."

"Perhaps I will try him some time," said Willy dreamily as she wandered toward the house.

"She's wise to your homicidal schemes, Dade," chaffed his companions.

If Miss Willy was suspicious she gave no further sign, and one morning when Dade Holcomb especially needed his black horse it was discovered that Miss Willy had dashed away on Satan's back to the evident consternation of the Besse family.

"I hope Willy knows what she's about," murmured Mrs. Besse doubtfully.

"Trust her, Anne," reassured the boss good naturedly.

Bob Linton, overhearing the conversation, wondered at Boss Besse's calm attitude, and, it being his own afternoon off, he rode off down the trail in the wake of Black Satan.

Dade Holcomb was limping along the trail in his high heeled boots confident every moment that he would overtake horse and rider or else—here he felt wretchedly guilty—find Black Satan riderless and a limp heap of girlhood, for Black Satan did not belie his name.

As he passed Dade, Bob cast a look of loathing at the practical joker.

"I'm going to look for Miss Willy, Dade," he remarked drily. "If you have really broken her in—I'll kill you!"

"I hope you will!" muttered Dade miserably. "I sure deserve it, Bob."

And just then Miss Willy flashed into view with the plunging Satan at mercy of her quirt and spurs.

She glanced mischievously down at the astounded Dade.

"Rather a riotous little lamb, this Satan of yours, Mr. Holcomb," she threw over her shoulder.

"Great cats!" yelled Dade, as they vanished around the trail toward home.

Bob Linton was staring after them with a queer look in his eyes. "I wondered—I wondered," he muttered over and over.

That night, as they sat around the supper table in the mess house, the boss came down to them.

"Boys," he said, "I've twenty tickets here for a moving picture show over at the creek. Just say who wants to go and I'll pass 'em out. After the show we'll have supper at the Palace hotel—my treat."

Fifteen hands reached out for the tickets, for they were mere boys in their love of amusement, and the motion picture theater at Scraggy Creek was closed half the time, being subject to alternate periods of affluence and bankruptcy and constantly changing ownership.

At 6:30 they set out from the Big Y in the boss' big red automobile, escorted by all the cowpunchers on horseback.

In the motorcar was Mr. Besse and his wife and Miss Willy. Rod Linton rode beside Miss Willy.

Dade Holcomb and Hannibal dragged along in the rear, as became culprits. They were still gasping over Miss Willy's miraculous escape from death. Inwardly they were thankful.

Inside the Family theater the boss guided them to a block of reserved seats, while he and his wife and Willy were escorted to a lower box.

When the theater was filled the lights were lowered, and on the magic white screen appeared the scenes of a rollicking comedy.

When that was over the manager appeared to announce the special picture of the evening, the favorite film actress, Miss Billie Moore, in "A Lover of the Plains." And he further announced that at the end of the picture Miss Moore would appear in person and greet her audience.

Wide eyed, staring silently, as the love story of the west was unfolded before their eyes, sat the fifteen cowboys from the Big Y ranch.

There was an indrawn breath of surprise when the charmingly familiar face of their Miss Wilhelmina Moore flashed forth as the heroine of the play. Dumbly they watched her perform such deeds of daring on horse and afoot as they never dreamed a mortal girl could survive.

She could break a bucking broncho, she could throw a lariat and bring a "critter" to its knees; she could ride like mad on an unsaddled horse; she hung over a precipice and dragged her imperiled lover from certain death, and in the end she was restored to his arms.

Not a man in the Big Y outfit but was furiously jealous of that screen lover!

And when the lights flashed up there was such a thunder of applause that the flimsy building threatened to collapse under the strain.

Then the manager was introducing the heroine, a slender, pale girl with smiling lips and friendly gray eyes, who, he explained, was "resting after a long illness and spending the time with our well known citizen, Benjamin Besse of the Big Y."

The Big Y outfit arose to a man and yelled themselves hoarse, and Miss Willy stood there dimpling and smiling and full of mischief at having turned the tables on the cowboys. Boss Besse and his wife finally carried her off to the Palace hotel, followed by the cowboys, who were to be Miss Willy's guests that night.

"You've broken them all in, honey," grinned the boss, as he lifted Miss Willy out of the car when they reached home. "There's one of 'em"— but his niece's hand gently closed his lips, and her face went red.

"There's one whose name you mustn't mention just yet," she whispered.

And they were both thinking of Bob Linton—and Bob, he was thinking only of Miss Willy and how soon he might ask her to marry him.

GILDED LIMES.

A Feature of Native Festivals and Feasts in South India.

Instead of exchanging cards the well to do natives of southern India show their esteem on New Year's day by presenting to their friends limes covered with brass leaf, or in some cases with gold leaf. As the natives have several New Year's days of their own in addition to the special ones of the English, the Mohammedans and the Tamil and Telugu branches of the Hindus, the gilded limes are passed around rather frequently. The custom is a purely local one, and it had its origin so far back that no one remembers when or why it was started.

In addition to the New Year's festivals gilded limes are sometimes presented to the host at the ordinary "tamash" or social gathering. If a native is too poor to afford gilded limes, not to mention gold covered ones, he gives plain, undecorated ones.

It is said that a great quantity of brass leaf is used for decorating limes for these special occasions, and the bazaar trade in this kind of gilt is very large throughout the southern part of India. Brass leaf is sold also for the decoration of gilded caps, or "topi," worn by the Mohammedans in that part of India, as well as for ornamenting the dress of the Mohammedan women.

THE BURDEN OF AGE.

The kidneys seem to be about the first organs to wear out and fail to properly perform their work. The result is weak, lame, aching back, rheumatic pains and failing eyesight. Many people of advanced years have recovered health and comfort by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. They ensure the healthful action of liver, kidneys and bowels.

Alaric the Goth.

Alaric, the first of the barbarian kings who entered and sacked the Eternal City and the first enemy who had appeared before its walls since the time of Hannibal, is said to have received as the price of his departure from the city (during the first siege, in A. D. 408) 5,000 pounds weight of gold, 3,000 pounds weight of silver, 3,000 silken robes, 3,000 pieces of scarlet cloth and 4,000 pounds of pepper. In order to furnish a portion of the ransom demanded by the invader it became necessary to melt down some of the statues of the ancient gods.

Paid For the Advice.

Old Hunks (meeting a physician at the club)—Doc, what ought a man to do when he has an all overish feeling as if he were going to have an attack of the grip? Crusty, M. D.—He ought to consult a good physician about it. Old Hunks—Well, that advice ought to be worth a dollar anyhow. Here it is. I'll go and hunt him up.

Really Antique.

An excellent plaster of paris cast may be seen in one of the Egyptian galleries of the British museum of the famous sycamore statuette known as the "Sheikh-el-Beled," or "Village Sheikh." The original dates from 3900 B. C. and is still in perfect condition, although it is the oldest known specimen of woodcarving. It represents an overseer of the workmen engaged in building the pyramids close to Sakkarao, where it was discovered.—London News.

No Pure Water.

Owing to the extremely solvent powers, pure water is never found in nature, the nearest approach being found in rainwater, which, as it is formed in the upper regions of the atmosphere, is the purest that nature supplies, but in descending it brings with it whatever impurities are floating near the surface, which in the neighborhood of cities are always numerous; hence perfectly pure water is hardly to be found, even the artificially distilled being only approximately so.

Fishing That Is Not Sport.

One way of catching herring is by driving nails into a board so that they stick out several inches. The boards are then dragged through the shoals, and the fish catch between the nails and are pulled by the boardful into the boats. In one year more than a million pounds of herring were caught at Prince Rupert and frozen by the cold storage plants to be sold for bait. Something like 125,000 pounds of codfish are annually taken for the same purpose.—Christian Herald.

No Match For Him.

Freshie—What was the professor trying to explain to you?

Senior—He has a new theory about gasoline.

Freshie—Yes, and I'll bet it will blow up, like all his other theories.

Disagreeable.

Aunt—I can tell at a glance what other people are thinking of me. Niece (absentmindedly)—How very disagreeable for you, auntie!

He who feedeth the hungry refresheth his own soul; thus saith wisdom.—Nietzsche.

BLOOD-POISONING IS FATAL.

Young Man Bitten by Fighting Dog; Wound Carefully Treated.

Kingston, Aug. 10. —As a result of blood-poisoning from the bite of a dog which he received last Friday night while endeavouring to separate two fighting dogs, Allan Robinson, King street, twenty-eight years of age, chief wireman for the Bell Telephone Company here, died suddenly at noon. The wound in his right arm had been carefully treated, and the young man was around till Tuesday night, when the surgeons discovered his danger. An operation was performed in an endeavour to save his life, but it was unavailing. He is survived by his wife and five children. His parents, two brothers and one sister reside in Toronto. Captain R. J. Robinson of the 146th Battalion, Valcartier Camp, is a brother.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON QUESTIONS

August 13, 1916.

The Grace of Giving, II Cor. 9.

Golden Text, In all things I give you an example that so laboring ye ought to help the weak, and to remember the words of the Lord Jesus that he himself said, It is more blessed to give than to receive.—Acts 20 35.

1. Verses 1 and 2. To what extent would you say the Christian Church is doing its duty in caring for poor people?

2. If a faithful member of a Christian church fails in business, how much financial help may he expect from the church to put him on his feet again, or failing that, to care for him and his family?

3. If a man is a Free Mason, an Oddfellow, and a Forester, as well as being a member of a Christian church and is in financial trouble, from which of these organizations will he be likely to get the most financial help, and why?

4. Verses 4, 5. What kind of machinery or organization has the average Christian church for caring for those who are in financial need?

5. What reasons are there for or against the proposition that the church is as much responsible for the physical as for the spiritual needs of the people?

6. To what extent, if any, should the members of a Christian church "be ashamed" when they allow one of their faithful brothers to go to the poor house?

7. Verse 5. Why ought not every local church have a department with a substantial fund to help those in the church or congregation who may be needy?

8. Verse 6. Wherein does giving to God's poor resemble the sowing of seed?

9. If Paul is right in comparing giving to sowing, saying in effect, that the more a man sows the greater his crop, and the more a man gives the more money he gets, why is it that people believe the sowing part but do not believe the giving part of the statement?

10. Verse 6. Call to mind the liberal givers you have known and compare their financial positions now with say, ten or twenty years ago, and say whether they are richer or poorer?

11. Verse 7. What does Jesus command concerning giving?

12. Should a man give according to his feeling or by rule, and if the latter, what should be the rule and why?

13. Verses 8, 9. God is able to make all necessary money to come to us, but what absolute assurance is there, that he will do so?

14. Verse 10. As God keeps the planets in their orbits and gives the power to animal and vegetable life to reproduce itself what is our degree of risk that he is both able and willing to "minister" to all our material needs? (This is one of the questions that may be answered in writing by members of the club.)

15. What are some of the fruits of righteousness, and particularly of taking care of the poor, and doing good generally?

16. Verse 11. What are the limits of inward, or soul "enrichments", for those who love God with all their hearts and their neighbors as they love themselves?

17. Verses 12-13. When a good man helps one who is in need, which of the two gets the more benefit, and why is it?

18. In what way does a liberal free-hearted Christian "glorify God"?

19. Verse 14. What is the benefit to the giver, of the prayers of those who have received his gifts?

20. What is God's "unspeakable Gift," and to what extent is it our privilege to imitate God's method of giving?

Lesson for Sunday, Aug. 20, 1916 The Riot at Epheaus. Acts 19: 23-41

SIR JAMES WATSON'S OPINIONE CONSIDERED MOST VALUABLE

You catch a little cold to-day, and by to-morrow it has reached the throat, next day the lungs are affected and you wish you had used "Catarrhozone" which kills colds in five minutes. In the first place Catarrhozone soothes the irritated membranes and relieves congestion,—then it cuts out the phlegm and destroys the germs. It enables the blood to retain a natural supply of oxygen, lung-food, and vitality. In any cough bronchitis or Catarrh, it's guaranteed to positively cure. Beware of dangerous substitutes offered under misleading names for genuine Catarrhozone which is sold everywhere, large size containing two months treatment costs $1.00, small size 50c; trial size 25c.

A woman should never go out walking in a driving rain.

GIVES UP HIS LEG.

One of the Most Remarkable Surgical Operations on Record.

One of the most remarkable surgical operations on record is now being performed at the Grand Palais, Paris, the massive building usually used for the annual salon but now transformed into a vast hospital. Here two soldiers lie side by side, bound together like Siamese twins, while a large portion of the leg of one of them is being slowly transferred into the leg of the other one. Noted surgeons are gathered about, watching the slow development, which they regard as marvelous both from the surgical standpoint as well as from the sentimental, in which one soldier is calmly giving day by day part of his body to a fellow soldier.

The two men lie on their backs on a large operating table in one of the halls of the hospital. They lie in opposite directions, the head of one near the feet of the other, like the figures on playing cards. They are among the most seriously wounded of the younger class of soldiers, one 24 and the other 23 years old. The younger, Rousselot, was wounded in the leg at the battle of Morhange in the early days of the war. He was taken prisoner to Germany, where the surgeons say he did not receive intelligent attention. Brought back here it was necessary to perform a second operation to lengthen his leg 14 centimetres (about 5½ inches). But after the operation was performed, there was still a lack of bony matter between the two portions of the broken femur.

The other soldier, Tillette, an artilleryman, was seriously wounded in the leg in the desperate fighting over Fort Douamont. In a field operation his leg was amputated above the knee. Later it was found that a second operation was necessary in order to shorten the leg by some centimetres.

It was at this point that the surgeons concluded that the soldier who needed the shortened leg could give up this portion to the soldier who needed the longer leg. Tillette was consulted by the chief surgeon, the operation of grafting was fully explained to him and it was made known also that he was rendering a service to a soldier comrade and to science. He did not hesitate, but gave his full assent.

Thereupon the operation began, and now, after some weeks, the two soldiers lie there on their backs, the right thigh of Rousselot against the left thigh of Tillette, bound together with the same surgical bandage so as to prevent the slightest shifting of the operated parts until the phenomena of transferring one leg to the other is accomplished.

Scotsmen Are French Citizens.

Every Scotsman in France is a French citizen, with all the rights and privileges of such, if he chooses to claim them! In other words, every Scotsman born in Scotland is also a Frenchman, and is thus possessed of two nationalities. Surely a unique position.

Rheims has been very prominent during the present war, and it was there, after his coronation in 1429, that Charles VII. promulgated a decree that, in return for the assistance rendered by the Scottish soldiers to Joan of Arc, who defeated the English and made his coronation possible, Scotsmen were for all time to be considered free citizens of France.

Now the whirligig of time has once more brought the Scots to the neighborhood of Rheims to assist their fellow French citizens, not against the English, but, in conjunction with them, against the would-be destroyers of civilization.

Why He Joined.

Early last year a patriotic grocer in a small Scottish village decided that either he or his assistant must go. And as he himself was single, his mother and sisters being well provided for from their shares in the shop, he thought he was the more suited. Mackay, the assistant, agreed promptly, and presently found himself in command of the business. But a few months later the master was dumbfounded to meet his late assistant, attired in khaki, "somewhere in France." "Hie, mon," he said angrily, "did I no' tell ye tae stay at hame in chairge o' ma shop?" "So I thocht at the time, maister," replied Mackay, "but I sune fun' oot it wiana only the shop I was in chairge o', but a 'yer womenfolk. 'Man,' sez I tae maeself, 'gin ye've got to fecht, gang an' fecht someone ye can hit.' So I joined."

Heated Gloves for Aviators.

A British firm has recently introduced electrically-heated gloves for aviators. Cold hands and feet are among the prime discomforts experienced by airmen flying at great altitudes, and it is obvious that numbed hands in particular may lead to disaster. Ordinary gloves, irrespective of their thickness, are of little use. The electrically-heated gloves, on the other hand, maintain the hands at a comfortable temperature. As in the instance of the electrically-heated gloves for automobile drivers, electrical connection is made between small brass discs on the gloves and metal plates on the steering wheel of aircraft.

Didn't Mind Hun Clock Lying.

In a baker's shop near Oldham they have a grandfathers' clock in one corner and a small clock on the mantelshelf, and the grandfather's clock has not been altered according to the Daylight Saving Bill.

"How is it," asked a customer, "you've altered the small clock and not the grandfather's clock?"

"Well," replied the old shopkeeper, "the grandfather's clock's been telling the truth for over forty years, and I can't find it in my heart to make a liar of it now. But the small clock was made in Germany, so it be all right, as right as can be for that!"

For use in French colonial waters where the rank vegetation would foul submerged wheels, shallow draft boats have been built that are driven by aeroplane propellers and motors.

I OWE MY HEALTH

To Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Washington Park, Ill.—"I am the mother of four children and have suffered with female trouble, backache, nervous spells and the blues. My children's loud talking and romping would make me so nervous I could just tear everything to pieces and I would ache all over and feel so sick that I would not want anyone to talk to me at times. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills restored me to health and I want to thank you for the good they have done me. I have had quite a bit of trouble and worry but it does not affect my youthful looks. My friends say 'Why do you look so young and well?' I owe it all to the Lydia E. Pinkham remedies."—Mrs. Robt. Stoffel, Moore Avenue, Washington Park, Illinois.

We wish every woman who suffers from female troubles, nervousness, backache or the blues could see the letters written by women made well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

CHANGED HIS MIND.

Andrew Lang Didn't Like Stevenson When They First Met.

Andrew Lang was the unyielding enemy of everything that savored of decadence. He particularly disliked the affected young aesthetics of the 1890's. And, although he came, as the world knows, to be the devoted friend of Robert Louis Stevenson, his first impressions of him were most unfavorable, for he mistook him for an aesthete of the aesthetes.

In his book "On the Trail of Stevenson" Clayton Hamilton gives a record of Andrew Lang's account of his first glimpse of Stevenson. Andrew Lang, it seems, practiced the conversational economy associated chiefly with the name of the late Alfred Jingle, Esq. Mr. Lang said—and Mr. Hamilton jotted it down immediately after in the London Underground—these things:

"Mentone promenade. Saw him coming. Didn't like him. Long cape. Long hair. Queer hat. —— queer. Hands—white, bony, beautiful. Didn't like the cape. Didn't like the hair. Looked like a —— aesthete. Never liked aesthetes. Can't stand them. Talked well. Saw that. Still seemed another aesthete Colvin had discovered. Didn't like him. Didn't like him at all. * * * Later—oh, yes—but I needn't tell you that. Didn't like him at first. Took time."

Origin of Dollar.

The dollar was originally a Jochimsthaler-gulden-groschen. But that name was too long for general use, and it was cut down to thaler, which was transliterated into the present form. It could not be either a gulden or a groschen, because the gulden had always been minted of gold. It was not a groschen, because that coin was of small value, so the two were combined. The essential part of the name was Jochimsthal, or Joachimsthal, as it is now spelled, the Joachim valley, in Austria, from which the silver was derived for the minting of this large coin. As that great silver mine is located in Bohemia, the original thaler was the Bohemian dollar. Those silver mines have since attained world-wide fame, because they are the source of radium, but the dollar comes closer home to most of us.

It Wouldn't Work.

Some time since a learned doctor was giving a friend a bit of good advice with regard to mastication.

"No matter what you eat," said the physician, "you should chew each mouthful thirty times. It"—

"That's all right, doctor," smilingly interjected the friend, "but that would not work in my case."

"It wouldn't work?" responded the doctor wonderingly. "Why not?"

"I live in a boarding house," answered the friend, "and my voracious fellow feeders would have the table cleaned while I was eating one mouthful."

Getting Around It.

"When I was your age I worked fourteen hours a day," said the worried father.

"Well, what of it?" replied the young man who squanders.

"Nothing much; only when you get to be my age that is probably what you will have to do."

Bathed in Blood.

Not always was a bottle of wine used in christening a ship. In the days of sacrifice to the gods, it is said, it was customary to sacrifice a human being when a boat was being launched and to cut his throat over the prow so that his blood baptized it.

Relief.

"Is your daughter improving in her music?"

"No; but the next best thing is happening. She's getting tired of it and won't practice."

A 11

The Sword of State.—One of the minor incidents of Mr. Birrell's reign as Irish Secretary was the mysterious disappearance of the Crown Jewels from Dublin Castle. It happened that the visit of King Edward was about to take place, when it would be part of the Secretary's duty to walk backwards as the King advanced, and to carry the big Sword of State. This unaccustomed mode of procedure was not, however, anticipated by Mr. Birrell with any great composure. When, therefore, the horror-stricken officials announced the disappearance of the regalia, the Chief Secretary exclaimed —"Good Heavens! I hope they remember the Sword!"

HAMBURG CREAM.

Put the beaten yolks of six eggs into the juice and rind of two lemons and one cup of sugar. Place in the top part of a double boiler. Stir constantly over the fire until it thickens like custard. Into this hot mixture fold the well-beaten whites of the eggs. Stir all together and immediately put into sherbet glasses. Serve with crackers and cheese.

PARALYZED LIMBS.

To-day it is sleeplessness, headaches, digestive trouble, and irritability. Next thing you know some form of paralysis has developed. Mr. Alex. Hershenger, 19 Moore Street, St. Catharines, Ont., writes: "Nervous trouble developed into paralysis of the limbs so that I became helpless. Doctors failed me, but after using ten boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I resumed work and now feel better than I did for twenty years."

IT'S COMING!

EXAMINER and MERCHANTS'

Great DOLLAR DAY MONEY SAVING EVENT Will soon be here

GRATIFIED by the enthusiasm of the people over the previous Dollar Days in Peterboro, and urged by the people from outside who were unable to attend the last one owing to bad roads, the Examiner is again co-operating with the Merchants in featuring a Midsummer Dollar Day—

WEDNESDAY AUGUST 23rd

The date selected should be the most suitable of all the summer season, for a record crowd to attend from outside points. There's everything to come for, and only regrets if you don't. There's a company of hustling merchants preparing a feast unequalled in the history of the city. In any line of goods you want, you will find your Dollar has a buying power you would have thought impossible. As Dollar Day selling is just for one day, the merchants, in order to add zest to the excitment, make their offerings look reckless, but it is because they have entered into the spirit of the thing, and they are bound to do their part at considerable loss.

The list of merchants will be published in later issues, and it will be well to get the participating stores fixed in your mind to save delay when the great day comes. In addition to the splendid values offered the merchants are giving away

$150.00 in Treasure Box Bonuses

This money will be given away in this way:—With every dollar purchase on that day, an estimating blank will be given to the purchaser. You will fill in your name and address, and a number representing your estimate on the following question:

Estimate the Number of these Blanks that will be filled in and Dropped into the Ballot Box at The Examiner Office by 10.15 p. m. on Dollar Day.

The nearest correct estimate will be awarded the first bonus of $20.00; the second $15.00; the third $10.00, and so on.

As a guide in estimasting the probable number of blanks that will be used the two previous Dollar Day results may be studied. On the first one, Mar. 12, 1914 with good weather and roads, there were 16,000 blanks dropped into the box at the Examiner office. On the next Dollar Day in 1915, with bad weather and impassable roads, the result showed only 10,807 estimate blanks but in the box. With these figures as a guide, an intelligent estimate can be made, if weather and season are taken into consideration.

The Dollar Day crowd is the happiest gathering that meets in Peterboro in the year.

You can recognize all the stores where Dollar Specials are being given by the Red Lettered Pennants in the windows.

RAILWAY RATES Parties of Ten coming from any one point to Peterborough on Wednesday, August 23rd, Dollar Day, can secure a rate of fare and one-third by making application to their local station agent.

French Troops Are On The Offensive At Verdun

Stanislau Believed To Be In The Hands Of Russians

FRENCH TROOPS CAPTURE AN ENEMY TRENCH WEST OF THE MEUSE

Number of Prisoners Were Taken on The North Western Front of Verdun Where Fierce Fighting Continues---Foe's Resistance Stiffens ---Stanislau Believed to be in the Hands of the Russian Forces---Austrians Prepare to Evacuate Lemberg.

ON THE BRITISH FRONT

Special to The Examiner:

PARIS, August 11. — (French Official Communique) — The French troops broke the long lull on the northwestern front of Verdun west of the Meuse last night by attacking and cleaning up a German trench east of Hill 304, it was officially announced to-day. Several prisoners were taken. North of the Somme the French artillery bombarded German organizations effectively throughout the night.

FOE'S RESISTANCE STIFFENS.

The German resistance to the French attacks is noticeably stiffening. Eight separate assaults were repulsed last night on the Maurepas-Somme sector, of which the Hem Wood is a part, according to an official statement received from Berlin. The statement adds that British attacks near Bazentin-le-Petit failed before the German fire.

During the last twenty-four hours there has been intense aerial activity at many points of the front, despite the unfavourable atmospheric conditions.

More than eight aeroplanes have been shot to earth. Five of these were either French or British. Three German machines are known to have fallen, while others are reported to have been destroyed.

Important Galician Town Believed to Have Fallen

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PARIS, August 11.—The French military critics declared to-day that they have every reason to believe that the important Galician City of Stanislau has been captured by the Russians, though they disclaimed the possession of any information from official sources.

PREPARING TO EVACUATE LEMBERG.

LONDON, August 11.—A Budapest despatch to The Morning Post says that in order to calm the population in Galicia General Bardoloff, who is General Count von Bothmer's Chief of Staff, has issued a statement, through the newspaper correspondents attached to the Austro-German Headquarters, that Lemberg "is not immediately menaced" by the Russians, and that whenever Lemberg is menaced the army authorities will take proper steps to care for the civilians.

The General conveyed the impression to the correspondents, according to this despatch, that the evacuation of Lemberg was not very distant.

War Office Announces A New Russian Victory

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PETROGRAD, August 11. — Russian troops are throwing bridges across the River Bistritza three miles east of Stanislau preparatory to an advance on the city it was officially announced to-day. The War Office also announced a new Russian victory near the Sereth River, where the Austro-Germans were ejected from several villages and woods.

RUSSIANS APPROACHING LEMBERG.

PETROGRAD, August 11.—Striking westward with amazing rapidity the right wing of General Letchitsky's army has reached the Dniester River southeast of Mariampol, which is only ten miles from the important fortified town of Halits that commands railways to Lemberg, it was officially announced to-day.

The Allies Commence Long Expected Drive in Balkans

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, August 11.—Indications that the long expected offensive of the Allies in the Balkans may have begun were contained in despatches received here this afternoon. By a sudden blow on the Doiran front thirty-eight miles north of Saloniki, French troops have captured the railway station at Loiran evacuated by the Allies when they retreated from Serbia last fall. An official statement from the French War Office carried this announcement this afternoon.

An Athens despatch to the Central News at about the same hour reported a great battle raging on the Balkan front. The Allies have occupied not only the Doiran station, but high ground adjacent, the despatch said.

SUCCESS FOR BRITISH TROOPS.

LONDON, August 11.—The British troops continued their gains northwest of Pozieres, advancing slightly at certain places in the fighting last night, General Haig reported to the War Office this afternoon.

REGROUPING IS NECESSARY.

BERLIN, August 11.—Repulse of "sham attacks" by "weak enemy detachments" in the Balkans south of Doiran was claimed by the War Office this morning. On the Russian front "German troops are being regrouped to conform to altered Russian positions," it was announced.

MORE RUSSIANS REACH FRANCE

BREST, Aug. 11. — Another contingent of Russian troops has been landed here. The soldiers weer given an enthusiastic welcome.

The first Russian troops to land in France arrived at Marseilles on April 20, having sailed half way round the world from Vladivostok. They were followed by three other contingents, and after a short rest were sent into the trenches in Champagne. Nothing has been made public officially as to the numbers of this Russian expeditionary force, but unofficial estimates have placed the strength of the first contingents at not less than 20,000 men.

THE MARCH TO CAMP

Private Martin Neary of the 93rd Overseas Battalion, son of Mr. Martin Neary, 27 Aylmer street, in a letter to his father, gives the following descriptive account of the trip from Barriefield Camp to Otterpool Camp, England. The letter follows:

Atlantic Ocean, July 19, '16.

Dear Father,—Am writing this letter in the middle of the Atlantic and will finish it in England. I hope you are all well, as I am in the best of health at present. There are very few of the fellows sick, as the sea is as calm as Little Lake. You could hardly imagine that there was so much water in the world, as we are sailing three days now and see nothing but water. Tell all the people around that I am well and will write them soon. Well I think I will give you a little account of our journey since we left camp, so here goes:

July 12—Left camp at 6 p.m. and marched to the siding, as we did not go to the station. We entrained at 7.30 p.m. and started about fifteen minutes later. Passed through a lot of French towns and also passed over a bridge 1 3-4 miles long this side of Montreal. Spent all night on the train.

July 13— Still speeding along through Quebec and nothing much doing, but the weather is fine.

July 14.—Still on the train and in New Brunswick. The scenery is great, fine mountains all wooded and between three and four miles long. Passed St. Anis and also about 50 wounded soldiers at Barnabay river. Passed a detention camp with about 200 prisoners in it. Stopped at Moncton and paraded around town for half an hour and we did some fine yelling. We also met the battery there. When we came to Windsor Junction we had to pull down our blinds and keep quiet until we reached Halifax. Stayed in the cars all night.

July 15—Marched around Halifax for about an hour and then returned to the train and had dinner. Left for the docks at 2.30 and embarked at 3.30. The boat we went on was the Empress of Britain. It was 650 feet long, 80 feet wide and about 80 or 100 feet high. Some tub, eh? She is just about the same as the Empress of Ireland. There are 4,500 of us on board and there isn't much room to spare. There are the 106th, 108th, 87th battery and a few drafts from other places. Slept on the boat all night.

July 16th—Left dock at 7 p.m. The Lapland left just ahead of us loaded with troops and the light cruisor, the Drake, is with us for our escort. The sea has not effected me yet as it is pretty calm now and we are about 200 miles out to sea. The grub is not much, but I guess we will live on it anyway. We signed the payroll this morning and got $5 each this afternoon. Sea still calm.

July 17th—Slept on the deck in a hammock all night; pretty cool, too. Sighted two ships last night, but did not get close to them. Also said a few whales. Weather still fine.

NO PAVEMENTS ON BROWNTON STREETS UNTIL NEXT YEAR

Council and Ratepayers Agreed That the Cost of Material and Labour Was Too High for the Present—May be Lower Next Year, Perhaps.

WANTED ON THREE STREETS

Brownton residents on Cottesmore, Frank and Brown Streets decided last night, at the meeting of North Monaghan Council, in May's School, not to press their demand for concrete sidewalks this year.

Messrs. Thos. Henry, Joseph Drummond, Albert Cummings and William Houston were the principal speakers of a rather numerous deputation that waited on the Council. They had previously petitioned for a walk on Brown street, north and south sides of Frank street, and on a short section of the north side of Cottesmore Avenue.

The Council would not undertake the work by day labour because of the increased cost of men and material. Reeve McIntosh stated that work would cost $2.00 now that could have been done for $1.00 a year ago. If the ratepayers insisted the Council would call for tenders and have the work done in that way, but the feeling was averse to going on just now. The deputation finally took this view. It was agreed to defer the work until next year.

DESERTER FROM 155TH IS HELD

John S. Hughes, a deserter from His Majesty's service, is being held by the local police pending the arrival of the proper military escort from the Barriefield Camp. Hughes is a deserter from the 155th Battalion and at this morning's police court pleaded guilty to the charge of desertion.

DYNAMITE AND POISION ALLEGED IN DUMMER FEUD

County Authorities Investigating Reports of Serious Differences Between Sampson and Hill Families.

THEY ARE "NEIGHBOURS"

All the excitement of war except bloodshed are reported in an alleged feud in Dummer between the Hill and Samson families, according to information that the county officials are investigating.

Davis Hill, a neighbour of James Samson, both of whom gave evidence in the Bigham abduction case a few days ago, is said to have told the story that not long ago he was driving home at night when he went full tilt into twenty-six fence rails that had been paid across the road with three sticks of dynamite, one of which exploded at the time. It is also stated that he claimed that he could scarcely go out to work in the field without bullets whistling past his head. If such be the case any gun shyness he may have had must have passed under that experience. The story of the dynamite may be true, but it sounds overdrawn to the officers of the law.

On the other hand there are tales from the Samson home of a poisoned brood sow and a flock of turkeys that will never see Thanksgiving. To what extent either party blames the other is unknown, but they are, to all appearances, neighbours only to the extent that their farms are contiguous. Davis Hill, in the County Court the other day, said he hadn't been at Sampson's in over a year, a mere repetition of the words he expressed fail to convey the meaning their inflection conveyed.

A prominent county official to-day expressed the opinion, after admitting that the reports of factional differences were under investigation, that some constructive efforts should be put forth to remedy conditions which are said to be far from satisfactory, economically, morally and otherwise.

ARTHUR HENDERSON TO REMAIN IN THE CABINET

This May Mean Creation of Ministry of Labour in Britain.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—Arthur Henderson's new position as labour adviser to the Government will be made regular by legislation, says the Press Association. Mr. Henderson resigned as president of the board of education in the British cabinet, but it was announced that he would be retained in the cabinet as labour adviser, for which there is no specific portfolio at present.

In labour circles it is understood that the retention of Mr. Henderson in the cabinets will mean the creation of a ministry of labour, the problems of labour and trade after the war rendering such a step desirable.

FRANCE WILL EDUCATE HER MAIMED SOLDIERS

Schools For Armless or Legless Men Formally Opened at Neuilly-sur-Marne.

PARIS, Aug. 11.—Justin Godard, under-secretary of state for sanitary service formally inaugurated an extensive work for the re-education of mutilated French soldiers—men who have lost legs or arms in the war. The schools in which the men are to be taught are located at Neuilly-sur-Marne as a part of the Maison Blanche hospital, where the government has set aside a number of separate buildings for the training of armless and legless soldiers in new lines of usefulness. The representatives of many countries assisted in the organization of the schools.

A feature of the ceremony was the presence of 500 maimed soldiers who are receiving instructions as carpenters, tailors, electricians, stenographers and typists.

And Three Temperance Hotels Have also Made Application for the New Standard Hotel License —Tuesday Next is Last Day for Applications.

WHAT LICENSE PERMITS

TORONTO, August 11.—Vice-Chairman Dingman of the Ontario License Board, stated to-day that one thousand existing hotels throughout the Province had asked for new standard temperance hotel licences, indicating they propose carrying on hotel after September the sixteenth. There are now twelve hundred hotel licenses in Ontario.

Five of Peterborough's eleven licensed hotels have already applied for the new standard hotel license that goes into effect on September 16th. In addition to these, there are three non-licensed houses that have also applied, the Oriental, the Maple Leaf on Hunter street east, and the Montreal House. Mr. William McFarlane of Young's Point, Smith and Mrs. Eastwood of Buckhorn, have also made application through Inspector Jos. Stewart for the new "dry" license.

All the hotel men desiring to take out the standard hotel license are reminded that their applications must be received on or before Tuesday, August 15th.

The future action of the remaining six hotels is known only to their proprietors who may simply have been postponing the forwarding of their applications. One or two may not continue in business, and the others may not take out the new form of license, which by the way is issued for the nominal fee of one dollar. The present liquor license whose days are growing fewer cost the hotelkeeper $500.

Under the new conditions it is felt that there are certain decided advantages for those who take out the standard hotel license. Cigars, cigarettes and other tobacco may be sold without any municipal license. It also offers restaurant and ice cream parlour privilages, and all non-intoxicating drinks may be sold both day and night.

Since the first of May when the old licenses expired, the hotels have paid only a fivedollar license as an interim renewal, and bartenders formerly licensed have received an extension to the 16th of September without any charge.

LOCAL PEOPLE ATTENDED BAPTISM

Son of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Munro of This City Was Chief Participant in Ceremony

A very happy event took place at the home of Mr. T. A. Kelly and sisters, Cavan township, on Thursday, August 3, 1916, being the fifth anniversary of the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Munro, of Peterborough.

The sacrament of baptism was administered to their youngest child, Joseph Alexander.

The Rev. Mr. Johnston, of Ashburn, having performed the marriage ceremony and baptised their eldest born, officiated. Quite a large number of invited guests were present to witness the pleasing ceremony. Among those from a distance were: Capt. J. D. Devell, from the firing line in France accompanied by Mrs. Devell and their daughter, Kathleen of Millbrook; Rev. Mr. Johnston of Ashburn, Miss Ruby Howse and Mrs. Thompson of Necola, B. C., Dr. and Mrs. King, Mr. and Mrs. Dewey, Mr and Mrs. Fisher, Miss Hardwick, Miss Gaseulas, Mr. C. Dewey, Mr. and Mrs. Nurse and children of Peterborough, Mr. J. C. Taylor of Goderich.

After the ceremony a dainty supper was served on the lawn. After partaking of the tempting delicacies provided, a number of toasts were proposed and ably responded to. A delightful time was enjoyed by all present, and all joined in wishing Joseph Alexander Munro a long, useful and happy life.

A WORTHY APPEAL.

In another part of this issue is printed the appeal of the "Northern Ontario Fire Relief Committee" for immediate relief and aid for the sore-stricken sufferers from the recent disastrous forest fires. It is estimated at the least, four hundred thousand dollars will be required to meet a most serious situation. The Relief committee to administer the funds is of a character to give confidence in the funds contributed being judiciously expended and if, as requested, funds contributed are invariably sent to the Central committee in Toronto, there will be a guarantee of better organized and more economical expenditure as well as of avoidance of duplication and waste.

The appeal should come to open and responsive hearts and pockets. Imagination cannot conceive nor fancy picture the widespread and poignant suffering and destitution that attended and resulted from, the disaster. Homes and household goods destroyed, crops of all kinds consumed by fire, a wide area made a desolation, and thousands homeless and shelterless, naked and, if not helped speedily, starving, in a land of plenty—all this constitutes a strong appeal to practical sympathy.

The governments of the Dominion and Ontario have subscribed a total of $200,000, though each might have well, especially Ontario, duplicated its giving. Toronto has voted $50,000, and thereby set a good example. It seems under the circumstances, the right thing for governments and municipalities to give liberally in the people's name. For the past two years multitudes of demands for money contributions of private individuals, have been made and met. The number of these in every community has been comparatively few, and generally always the same. Under new appeals the heart is as willing as ever, but in reality the capacity for contribution is prettily well exhausted. By a municipal corporation contributing with liberality, the amount is distributed over the whole people and the individual payments deferred for a year, to be included in next year's taxes. We are sure, that in addition to what individuals are urged to do, and will continue to do, popular approval will meet the action of the City Council in making a liberal subscription. The County Council, with its constituency of farmers, should, by a liberal grant, voice their practical sympathy with their fellow farmers of Northern Ontario, who are suffering from a most disastrous and crushing blow.

IS PROHIBITION IN DANGER?

Prohibition in Ontario, though contingently the law of the land, becoming operative the 16th of September, has its permanancy threatened, and is in danger of having its character discredited in advance of experience of its operation. It was supposed that both parties in the House voting for prohibition with unanimity, either of conviction or action, the question of prohibition had been removed from party politics. But it is being made the plaything of politicians. In North Perth it was charged that prohibition was defeated because the candidate of the government which brought in the prohibition measure was defeated. It was argued that the successful candidate was hostile to prohibition because he defeated the government candidate. This reasoning represents the introduction, in the most insidious form of party politics. In South-West Toronto by-election the Government candidate is opposed to prohibition; openly declares his opposition; and, what is the most puzzling thing, is that Premier Hearst, who is held to be, and no doubt personally is, favourable to prohibition, endorses the candidature of the friend of the liquor interests and will, necessarily, welcome him as a supporter. If the Premier's candidate is elected his return will be no victory for prohibition, but for the liquor interests. If, in a general election, Premier Hearst endorses every candidate of his party who may be opposed to prohibition, thereby making it a political issue, and if the election of such cadidates is in sufficient numbers to give the Government a majority, then, naturally, one would say prohibition will be wiped out before the people can pronounce upon it on the basis of three years of trial. The friends of prohiibtion need to be on the alert if they desire to see it succeed, or even get a fair test. It is evident that popular opinion is overwhelmingly in favour of it, but it is complicated with political or party fortunes; if it is made the plaything of partizans, prohibition opinion may easily be swamped, and its voice lost in the hubub of the clash of partizan interests. We have for long had proof that in the heat of political warfare partizanship can have, and has bad, the whip hand of principle. The only way to insure the safety of the prohibition measure they now have is for the friends of a great moral movement to stand shoulder to shoulder regardless of the attempts of politicians to wreck it. It is properly no legitimate issue in politics, and should not be brought into question by any party till it has had a fair test in preparation for the final judgment of the electors in the plebiscite to which it is to be subjected three years hence.

SECRECY BREEDS SUSPICION.

Partizanship in Canada should be "interned" with other enemies of the cause of this country and the Empire. The worst thing partizanship can do is to exercise and condone wrong doing in any enterprise that involves the financial or other interests of the country. We have to have our national business done by governments, and governments exist by virtue of superiority of party support. If governments could do no wrong one could understand party support to the utterfmost limit. But governments are not infallible, and some times do wrong and high-handed things. The burning of the parliament buildings, at Ottawa, was a national disaster, but not so great a disasetr as will be wrong doing in the matter of their reconstruction. There seems to be something wrong at Ottawa. When it was decided to reconstruct the buildings it was, as a measure of safety, also decided to appoint a joint committee, representing both political parties to consult with the Minister of Public Works in regard to the plans and details of construction. It was reported to that committee that walls, to the value of two million dollars, were left standing sound and substantial—more solid, perhaps, than any new walls could, or would, under modern conditions, be built. Plans adapted to the utilization of these walls were prepared and adopted. However, to the amazement of both the committee and the public, the walls have been demolished, and the joint committee appointed to watch the public interests, were not notified that the Department was spending hundreds of thousands of dollars to destroy walls worth two millions, contrary to the understanding with the Joint ommission. There is something evidently hugely wrong in this matter. The committee cannot escape blame either; though it may not have been officially notified of the intention to "scrap" walls worth two million dollars, the members must have had a knowledge of what was going on. The concealment of what was being done, the secrecy of action as far as official consultation was concerned, gives the matter a dark look4 This high-handed contempt of the commission, this secret and unwarrantable action, coupled with a contract for rebuilding that gives the contractor a commission of 8 per cent. on the cost of the restored building, including, of course, the cost of taking down 2 million dollars' worth of walls, may be satisfactory to Hon. Robert Rogers, of Manitoba, Minister of Public Works. Is it surprising if the public see the danger of the sinister shadow of the tremendous venality connected with the erection of the Manitoba parliament buildings, falling darkly over the work at Ottawa. The public, who are paying through the nose, in the form of extra war taxes, can have little patience with public extravagance; and have reason to dread the cost of the completed parliament buildings at Ottawa, when a secret action, concealed from the Joint Committee, results in the expenditure of 2 million dollars to destroy perfectly good walls before a stone of the new buildings is laid. It does not need critical partisanship to see something sinister in the circumstances, and friendly partisanship should not excuse something, that it seems on the face of it, will stand much more satisfactory explanation than has already been vouchsafed.

The people of Peterborough and elsewhere are called to put their hands perpetually into their pockets in the interest of some worthy appeal; and to-day a new and compelling claim is made upon public generosity to help the sore-stricken sufferers from the North Ontario forest fires. It is not, at least, an incentive to free, popular giving when one sees two million dollars wasted at Ottawa, as has been done in the last few weeks. But the people will give, for the hearts of the people are right, even if somebody in authority is off his head.

The Greatest Blunder Germany Has Made in Her Campaign of Blunders

If there is any German in the United States who is not seizing every chance to pass the word home that the war is already over and that no choice remains but for Germany to sacrifice the Kaiser or all that remains of her male population—if he is not sending such word as that home he is concealing from the German people news they cannot get at home, and for lack of which they will perish. They need from their relatives in the United States good advice more than they need nickel, cotton, oil, rubber, or anything else. And they have lacked and needed good advice from their relatives abroad, all through the war, and have not received it.

There is nothing that will be considered more surprising after the war than the utter collapse, throughout it, of the German intelligence system abroad. It failed entirely. The trouble with it was that it was a spy system wholly, and from its character was incapable of being an intelligence system. Those engaged in the work were allowed to know nothing outside of what each was doing himself. Those engaged in the work were awed by the secrecy and mystry of it, and when the world-war threw everything into confusion, no spy or foresworn traitor of them all in the countries they lived in and fouled knew what information his country needed most. Each supposed that there was somebody higher up doing wonderful things.

Germany failed to get news of what American opinion and that of the world at large was in regard to the unspeakable atrocities practiced in Belgium and Northern France, and Berlin was misled by false reports to the effect that the sinking of the Lusitania was good business, and, because America was not going to fight about it, nothing else mattered. Advice of this kind was, of curse, utterly misleading to Germany. It is true that the United States meant to persevere to the last length in avoiding war, and has done so, but nobody to-day is unaware that the German crime of sinking the Lusitania led to all kinds of activity on the part of American people in producing munitions for the Allies and in financing these purchases, while at the same time blocking many leaks through which Germany had been getting pro-German aid, financial and material. The crime of sinking that ship was a blunder as well, yet Germany's American advisers urged it before it was done, and excused it afterwards. They seem to have reasoned that the United States could do nothing against Germany without joining the war, and as they felt sure that America would not enter the war, they advised Germany not to hesitate in putting on America any affront possible. They claim there were munitions on the Lusitania. The statement is denied. But the sinking of that ship led to the shipping of a thousand cargoes that might never have sailed. Not only now but in years to come a phantom Lusitania will carry to and fro across the sea cargoes unfriendly to Germany — counsels, memories, and promptings hard for Germany to offset during the next generation or two.

It is about time that Germans abroad abandoned the hope that all the power, cunning, uncivilized resource and organized treachery, through the medium of seemingly respectable persons resident in other countries, could avail Germany anything. It is about time that Germany abroad began to see what everybody else abroad sees—that Germany must revolt against the Hohenzollerns and save Germany, or stick to the Hohenzollerns for another year and condemn the country to destruction along with the Kaiser.—Star.

PROPOSED SCALE OF MAINTENACE FOR INJURED MEN

The adoption by the Government, by an Order-in-Council, of the report of the Hospitals Commission regarding the scale of maintenance for men undergoing vocational training and their dependents, signals the putting into effect, very shortly, of the comprehensive plan which the Military Hospitals and Convalescent Homes Commission has mapped out.

The commission has received assurance of active co-operation of the various cities and municipalities in carrying out its policy of training the men who are disabled, so that they may earn something in addition to the pension which is awarded them by the Federal Government. The Provincial Governments have also given the plan their hearty support; and technical schools, agricultural colleges and other public, or semi-public, institutions have agreed to train disabled soldiers, so that their families may live comfortably, despite the disablement caused their husbands and sons in the war.

The following scale, which has been prepared by the commission, provides for a small sum for personal expenses granted to the men while undergoing training, and provision on a sliding scale for married men and their dependents, and for these unmarried men who have persons dependent on them. In places where the maximum age is referred to for children, it means sixteen years for a boy and seventeen years for a girl.

THE SCALE.

1. An unmarried man, with pension, living in, receives free maintenance; that is, board, lodging and washing.

2. An unmarried man, with pension, living out, 60c a day.

3. A married man, with pension, living in, free maintenance and $8 a month, with the following additions:

For wife having no children, $35 a month, less her husband's pension.

For wife and one child, if child is under five, $38; from five to ten years, $39.50; from ten to maximum age, $52.50; less, in every case, the amount of husband's pension, and children's allowances under the pension regulations.

For wife and two children from $41 to $47 a month (less pension and allowances) according to age of children.

For wife and three children—$44 to $50 (less pension and allowances) according to ages.

For wife and four children—$47 to $53 (less pension and allowances) according to ages.

For wife and five children—$50 to $55 (less pension and allowances) according to ages.

For wife and six children—$53 to $55 (less pension and allowances) according to ages.

A wife with seven or more children under maximum age may be given the maximum allowance of $55, less pension and allowances.

All these allowances for wife and children will be paid direct to the wife, unless otherwise thought fit by the commission.

4. A married man living at home will receive 60c. a day. (This, of course, is in addition to the allowances for wife and children.)

5. A widowed mother, if dependent entirely upon the unmarried son who is receiving training, and if the son made an assignment of his pay to his mother and also arranged for her to receive separation allowance while he was on service, may be paid at the same rate as the wife of a married man with no children.

6. The parents of a man undergoing training, if both are old and past work, and entirely or partially dependent upon him, may also be paid at that rate.

7. The guardian of a widower's children (under the maximum age) will be paid monthly for one child, $10; for two, $17.50; for three, $22; and $3 for each child in excess of three, with maximum of $35.

Payments under these regulations will be continued for one month after the completion of vocational training, whether the man has secured employment or not.

SCOTS SOLDIERS IN FRANCE EVER THINK OF HOME

The Rev. Lauchlan MacLean Watt, the well-known post-preacher of Edinburgh, sends to the Scotsman a singularly interesting letter concerning some of his experiences at the front.

"Just a week ago, Mr. Watt writes, in a tent where the wounded lay, I was beside the bed of a fine young Scottish soldier, stricken down in the prime of his manhood, yet full of hope. The thought of the faces far away was always with him upholdingly. In fact, the whole tent seemed vibrant with the expectation of the journey across the narrow strip of blue which sunders us from home. This Scottish youth had been talking, and it was all about what tomorrow held for him. His mother, and the girl that was to share life with him —these were foremost in his thought. His face shone as he whispered, "I'm going home soon." Everything would be all right then. What a welcome would be his, what stories would be told by the fireside in the summer evenings! But he made the greater journey that very night.

"We buried him two days later," adds Mr. Watt. "We got the pipe-major of a famous Highland regiment to come over; and when the brave dust was lowered, while a little group of bronzed and kilted men stood around the grave, he played the old wail of the sorrow of our people, 'Lochaber No More.'"

"Mary O' Argyle."

One day those who were able were outside the hospital, and a gramophone was throatily grinding the melody out of familiar tunes, with a peculiarly mesmeric effect. Suddenly the record was changed to "Mary o' Argyle." The Scotsman by whose bed Mr. Watt was standing said, "Wheesht! D'ye hear that? Man is it no' fine?" And the tears ran down his cheeks as he listened. It was a poor enough record. In ordinary time he would have shouted his condemnation of it. But he was now in a foreign land —a stricken, suffering man. And it made him think of some woman far away beside the Forth, where he came from. And his heart asked no further question.

"Always Home."

At the head of the bed of some of them, Mr. Watt goes on to say, you will see a blue paper:

"You're looking grand t-day," said I to a young fellow. And he replied, "Is there ony wonder, sir, wi' that scrap o' paper there?" For it was the order for home on the first available opportunity. "Sure, won't the auld mother be glad to see me?" he continued. "The gunshine here is beautiful, but sunshine in the ould country is worth the world." "Good-bye, sir," they sometimes cry. "I'll be away when you come round again." But perhaps next time a sad face looks up at you, for the day so eagerly anticipated has been again postponed.

It is always home, and what the dear ones there are like, and what they will be thinking yonder, that fills up the quiet hours towards restoration, as it strengthened the heart and arm of the brave in the hour of terrible conflict.

The endurance, patience and courage of the men are beyond praise — as marvellous as their sufferings.

LIGHTNING CUTS CAPERS IN MONTANA.

Lightning is seen and thunder is heard in other states but here in Montana, says the Anaconda Standard, unique and freakish stunts are performed by the lightning. There have been more electrical storms in Montana this year than last, according to a campiliation of stories originated in all parts of the State.

A farmer in the northern part went home the other day to find the front of the house torn away exposing the interior which had not been molested. No one was in the house at the time that it was struck.

About the same time a young man riding a horse in Fallon county was started when the horse fell a victim of lightning, the rider not even being dazed.

A child sitting on a high chair in a cabin on a homestead in the eastern part of the state was thrown into its mother's lap; two legs of the cook stove were knocked from under and the hot coals were dumped on to the floor; no one was hurt.

A mighty crash startled the natives in the vicinity of Main and Third streets, Anaconda, the other afternoon. Thunder followed instantly the flash of the lightning. A ball of fire was seen cavorting around a telephone pole, and the wires in the buildings near by snapped but no one was hurt and no damage done.

There have been few fatalities from the lightning.

For administering medicine to a horse an inventor has patented a hollow, perforated bit with a funnel at one end.

GERMANY IS PREPARING FOR PEACE CRISIS

BERLIN, Aug. 10.—The German Government has just completed its plans to meet the economic and financial crisis which every one admits will follow the conclusion of peace.

These plans have been worked out during the last two months under the direction of parl Helfferich., at present Vice-Chancellor and Minister of the Interior. His programme has two objects: "(1) The automatic elimination of the war debt, and (2) the prevention of a too sudden renewal of Germany's trade relations with the outer world."

Since his transfer from the Treasury Department to the Interior Department, a few months ago, Helfferich has been working with the heads of the large banks and importing and exporting houses.

The programme for Germany's "peace mobilization" which he has drawn up, is said to be as complete and efficient as Germany's military mobilization at the outbreak of the war. It is declared it will astound the world no less.

PROCESS WILL TAKE YEARS

The measures agreed upon for restricting trade with the outside world are the most drastic and elaborate restrictions of any nation's commerce which the world has yet known. They will be lessened little by little as conditions are readjusted. The whole process, as foreseen by the Germans, will require several years.

A prominent German financier who has expressed his approval of the scheme says:

"It will be like changing from low to high gear in running an automobile. I can be done with safety only by moving upward through the intermediate gears. Or, to use another figure, our ship of commerce will pass through a series of locks, until it reaches sea level.

There seems to be no fear of the Allies' "economic war" against Germany. But they admit their fear of the chaos which would result from the too sudden resumption of trade with the outside world.

It is for this reason that they have fallen in with the plans of Helfferich. And it is said Helfferich, who has no long political career behind him, was appointed Vice-Chancellor because of the confidence which the German business world has in him as a financier.

DETAILS ARE KEPT SECRETS

The details of the plan have not been announced except to those concerned in carrying them out. But it is admitted that they include measures to prevent the choking up of Hamburg, Bremen, Trieste, and the other German and Austrian ports which would result in high prices and a serious financial crisis.

As to credit and exchange, a prominent German has declared.

The whole international money market will resemble the sea in a storm. Many a business which is still able to keep afloat during the war would then be divided as a wreck across the waters.

"We have been considering the problems of finance after the war ever since the war began. That is one of the reasons for the mobilization of our good supply—to establish, if necessary, credits in neutral countries. The dangers of currency inflation immediately after the war have also been foreseen. And ways of contracting the currency have been decided upon. There is also possible a peace loan, to provide for the expenses of reconstruction."

One way in which Germany intends to stabilize industrial conditions is by continuing the production of war materials for some time after peace is declared. This will help to avoid a great unemployment crisis.

PAYING OFF WAR LOAN

By the time peace is declared, a considerable part of Germany's colossal war loan will have already been paid off. This is taking place automatically through the provisions for the payment of the tax on war profits in war bonds. The war profit tax averages 45 per cent.

To fix the amount to be taxed, the profits for the five years preceding the war are considered. The lowest and the highest year are eliminated an average of the other three years taken. All profits which exceeds the average thus attained is taxed.

Friedrich Naumann, prominent member of the Reichstag an done of Germany's greatest authorities on economics, has issued an appeal to the German people to submit to the limitations which the government will impose on trade and industry immediately after peace is declared.

He points out that on the one hand the demand for credit, for the rebuilding of crippled industries and the building up of new ones will be on a scale unhear of in the history of the world and that, on the other hand the foundation for such private credit will be lacking, since most of the gold in Germany is now in the possession of the Government, and much of it will have to be used to make purchases abroad.

PRICES TO BE REGULATED

He tries to reconcile tradesmen to an extension of the present system of government limitation of prices to the period after the war.

"The social struggle for existence" he says, "which is now shoved into the background by common consent and by martial law, will have to wait a little longer before it can walk the streets with its former license. This is most unwelcome news to impatient citizens of certain groups that have already gathered material together against the day when they will be allowed to fly at each other in the old way."

He believes this training in economic self-restraint and co-operation will give Germany a great advantage in competing for the world's trade in the year that follows.

"Foreign countries will talk more than ever about Germany's economic militarism," he says. "But we are convinced that the changes which the war has forced on us are not at all bad for us.

"The most completely organized industrial state will be the strongest—provided always that it can keeps its inner life. And the war has proved in the case of Germany, that it can."

Thin People Can Increase Weight

Thin men and women who would like to increase their weight with 10 or 15 pounds of healthy "stay there" fat should try eating a little Sargol with their meals for a while and note results. Here is a good test, worth trying. First weigh yourself and measure yourself. Then take Sargol—one tablet with every meal—for two weeks. Then weigh and measure again. It isn't a question of how you look or feel or what your friends say and think. The scales and the tape measure will tell their own story, and many thin men and women we believe can easily add from five to eight pounds in the first fourteen days by following this simple direction. And best of all, the new flesh stays put.

Sargol does not of itself make fat, but mixing with your food, it aims to turn the fats, sugars and starches of what you have eaten into rich, ripe fat producing nourishment for the tissues and blood-prepare it in an easily assimilated form which the blood can readily accept. Much of this nourishment now passes from your body as waste. But Sargol works to stop the waste and do it quickly and to make the fat producing contents of the very same meals you are eating now develop pounds and pounds of healthy flesh between your skin and bones. Sargol is safe, pleasant, efficient and inexpensive, all leading druggists in this vicinity sell it in large boxes—forty tablets to a package—on a guarantee of weight increase or money back as found in each large box.

If you find a druggist who is unable to supply you with Sargol send $1.00 money order or registered letter to the National Laboratories, 74 Antoine St., Montreal and a complete ten days treatment will be sent you postpaid in plain wrapper.

Women Have Been Noted Inventors

It is a favorite statement of mere man when he wants to bolster up the contention that he is lord of creation, that women have inferior minds. To hear this out he cites the fact that women are not inventors.

While they may not boast and brag much about it, women have for years been taking out patents for all kinds of things.

Barbara Ultman invented lace, a Scottish woman. Christian Shaw invented the process of making linen thread. All in their line of work, no doubt, but important inventions.

In 1720 Christian Shaw drew out the first linen thread which since that time has made the fortunes of so many men. Silk weaving was another bit of woman's work, and it was the wife of an Emperor of China who first produced the material that has has made her country famous.

Mary Kees was the first American woman to take out a patent in 1798, for weaving straw with silk or thread, says the Baltimore "Sun". But with the spread of education the number of feminine inventions have increased, until between 1881 and 1910 the sum total of 7,942 patents was granted them. These varied from a baby jumper to a deep-sea telescope, and from a fountain pen to the first cooking stove.

A woman who used her wits was determined, if possible, to save the time and labor of her husband, who was a postmaster in California, and she brought out a permutation lock with 3,000 combinations.

A woman shop assistant patented a satchel bottom paper bag and pocketed $24,000 for her brainy idea. Several wives who assist their husbands in farm management have patented improvements on agricultural implements. Others have reduced labor in factories and shops by their practical solutions and not a few nurses have been responsible for improved hospital appliances.

Last year 250 patents were applied for by women, and the following analysis demonstrates the scope and variety of their interests.

Dress 54; nursing and medical, 34; household requisites, 20; cooking, 9; mechanical, 24; motorcars and cycling, 7; gardening, and needlework, 6; babies' requisites, 6; and aeroplanes, 1.

An old piano stool will be found useful in the kitchen as it can be adjusted to the height of the table.

Shot in Burglar Chase On Estate Of Vincent Astor

DEPUTIES AND DETECTIVES WERE LOOKING FOR BAND THAT HAS ROBBED THE HOMES OF WEALTHY.

Poughkeepsie, N.Y., August 11.—A man suspected of being one of the masked burglars who have been robbing the country homes of wealthy New York families near Rhinecliff was shot and wounded, probably fatally on the Vincent Astor estate, at Rhinebeck, in a fight with detectives and deputy sheriffs, who have been watching every road. The fact that the man was caught on the Astor estate leads the police to believe that a burglary of Rhinebeck was attempted or contemplated.

The man shot this morning carried a mask and a flash lamp in his pockets and in a bag he had a 'jimmy,' a lot of sandwiches, candles and many keys. The mask was similar to the one worn by the burglar who awakened Mrs. Thomas I. Howard in her bedroom on Saturday night by playing his flashlight in her face while he raked her jewels from a dressing case into his pocket.

So many country homes had been robbed by burglars that all available deputy sheriffs have been co-operating with detectives employed by the wealthy families, and this morning several of these were on a road leading from Rhinebeck down to the river, it being supposed that the band of burglars had a rendezvous along the river and employed a motor boat.

BROUGHT DOWN BY BULLETS

When a dark figure came down the road carrying a travelling bag, he was called upon to halt. He did so, and the deputies were opening his bag when he started to run. Deputy Sheriff Bambusch and Detective Downing pursued him and opened fire. He returned the fire as he ran. The fugitive was wounded several times, and dropped with one wound which it is believed will end his life.

In Vassar Hospital, where he was sent, the prisoner said he was Fred Cramer, 36 years of age, of New York, and Under Sheriff Biggs said he admitted that he had two accomplices, but refused to give any more information.

When Cramer fell it was believed he had escaped into a thick clump of woods. The shots attracted other officers and the woods were surrounded and he was found wounded under a bush. A search of the woods revealed another mask.

Twenty or more houses in the Rhinecliff section have been robbed by burglars this summer and conditions became such that nearly every wealthy family employed special detectives to guard their homes. In the last two or three weeks the burglars have been particularly bold and the Sheriff became convinced that they were members of a band recently out of prison who had a rendezvous across the river. It is estimated that they have obtained at least $100,000 worth of valuables, mostly jewels, in addition to the destruction of much property, like the cutting of paintings.

Mrs. Howard, who is a niece of Mrs. Frederick W. Vanderbilt, and whose place adjoins the Vanderbilt estate, pretended to be asleep when she saw the burglar in her bedroom.

When he had left the house she gave the alarm but her valuable jewels not recovered.

VALUABLE PAINTINGS STOLEN.

That same night the burglars entered the home of William Starr Miller, whose family is in Newport, but the servants did not know that they had been there until the morning. It was said they obtained but little there.

In the home of H. E. Montgomery on Wednesday night the burglars carried away all the family silver, cut several paintings from their frames and took $30 from the trousers' pocket of a sleeping guest and two gold watches from under his pillow. The paintings were family portraits, had valued as heirlooms.

Also on that night the burglars penetrated the line of watchmen about Ellerslie, the country home of Levi P. Morton, and tried to enter by forcing open a window. But a powerful burglar alarm was set off by the window being raised and the burglars were pursued until they were lost in the darkness.

Efforts were made to enter the home of Mrs. Richard Aldrich and William Delano on Friday night, but in each case a burglar alarm apprised the guards of their presence and they fled.

Procession of Mangled Men Through German Hospital On Verdun Front

A German correspondent with the army of the Crown Prince near Verdun, sends a graphic description to his newspaper of scenes in a little French village where the wounded are brought in and cared for.

"The songs of the German soldiers who are on leave in this village," he writes, "become softer as the gray hospital wagon appears in the dusty street. Two men are severely wounded and are unable to sit up. They are lying on their narrow stretchers. Some are ill and others are only but slightly wounded. The wounded now and then look sadly at the bindings of their wounds. They tell of their sufferings. One of them was wounded by shrapnel during an attack by the enemy. He was able to crawl to the rear, and while a wound was being dressed a shell exploded nearby, and he was wounded a second time. But now we are all moving to the rear—to Germany.

"It is getting quite dark. The croaking of frogs comes from a pond near by. The roar of the guns is no longer deafening. The hospital wagon slowly moves up the street, and stops before the barracks. Those who are able at once alight. One who received a rifle ball in the leg jumps to the ground with his good leg and hobbles off. Another takes an ill soldier on his back and carries him to the barracks. The physician meets us, glances at our papers and asks us to sit on the nearest bench while the severely wounded are at once taken care of by the other physicians. All around the room are beds occupied by wounded soldiers who are in no condition to be sent back to Germany for the present. In one bed lies a man who head is all tied up; another has had his arm amputated, another his leg. All are asleep, and some are smiling, laughing and talking in their dreams—what sweet dreams they must be!—golden dreams. The man with his head all bound up is talking softly. The physician says that he had the worst wounds that he has yet seen during the war. It was a question whether he could live, but the physicians brought him around all right, and to-day when the wounded man asked for something to eat they were so delighted that they treated everybody with cigars.

"We are waiting for the automobile which is to take us to the nearest field hospital. No one says a word. The guns are again roaring. Looking out of the window we see the clear starlight blue sky now and then vividly illuminated by the fierce glare from the exploding shells. Here and there is seen the searchlight on the watch for hostile aviators. One of the wounded remarks:

"It would just be my luck to have some aviator drop a bomb on me now after all I have gone through."

"The door is opened suddenly and a soldier stumbles in. He is holding his head with both hands and the blood is streaming down his face. He quietly tells the physicians that he would like to have his wounds dressed. He adds that he was driving an ammunition wagon when he was hit. As the attendant examines his wound the soldier remarks that he has not much time to spare, as the ammunition wagon is awaiting outside and it is his duty to deliver the ammunition promptly. He tells the physician simply to wash his hands and let him be off. The physician tells him quietly and firmly that that is impossible. He must remain. His wounds are more serious than he imagines.

"Everything is quiet again and nothing is heard except the deep breathing of the sleeping wounded. Near me one man awakens and sits up in his bed. He looks at me with two staring, feverish eyes:

"How is it with the French?" he asks me. I notice that his wounds are in the chest.

"What a question to ask, I said to myself. Here is a man seriously wounded, and from a deep sleep he suddenly awakens and all he asks is about the enemy. Not a word about his mother or his home, not a word of complaint about his sufferings.

"'The French are worse off than we are,' I answered him.

"That seemed to satisfy him, and then he asked for a drink of water.

"Just then the automobile stops in front of the door and those of us not severely wounded are escorted outside and placed in the machine.

"Adieu! you wounded. You have our best wishes. And the automobile starts on its journey to that beloved place where clean beds and loving hands await to nurse us."

Killed Their Camels To Drink The Blood

TURKS DEFEATED NEAR SUEZ SUFFERED TERRIBLE HARDSHIPS WHILE CROSSING THE DESERT.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—The Turkish army which was routed by the British at Romani, east of the Suez Canal, suffered terrible hardships in their march across the desert, according to a Reuter's Cairo despatch quoting stories of Turkish prisoners. The despatch says that batches of prisoners continue to arrive in Cairo.

Lack of water was one of the principal causes of the suffering of the Turkish troops. In some cases they suffered so frightfully from thirst that they killed their camels and drank the blood The prisoners say the Turkish losses were exceedingly heavy as they attached in mass formation in ignorance of the strong defenses of the British. The devastating machine gun fire with which the [illegible] met was the first indication that the privates had of the ask that confronted them. According to one of the troopers, a Turkish detachment which surrendered first killed their German officers.

MANGLES HIS CHILD IN MOVING MACHINE

Farmer's Two-year-old Daughter Loses Both Legs.

Milford, N. J., Aug. 11. — While Charles Barrow a farmer, was mowing near his home he heard a cry behind him, and turning discovered that the blades of his mowing machine had caught his two-year-old daughter, Clara, and cut both legs from her body.

Evidently the child, unknown to her father, had wandered into the grass, which was over three feet high, and had been caught in the path of the machine. Barrow rushed the child home. His wife fainted when she caught sight of his burden. A doctor from the Stroudsburg, Pa., hospital attended the child, but no hope is entertained that its life can be saved.

COMMUNION SERVICES AT CHEMONG PARK

Special Service Will be Conducted by Rev. Canon Cornish and Rev. Robt. Gay

For the communicants of the Anglican church, residents of Chemong Park and Bridgenorth, the Rev. Canon Cornish has arranged with the Reverend Robert Gay for a celebration of Holy Communion at the residence of Mr. Hopwood at the island, commencing at Sunday next until further notice at 8:30 a.m. We hope that the communicants of the church of England, now summering at Chemong and of the village will show their appreciation of this opportunity offered by the church. The Rev. Robert Gay will be glad if those intending to communicate will notify him at his residence, Chemong Park.

$100,000 Suit to Decide if Political Killing is Murder

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—An action for $100,000 damages for libel has been filed by Miroslav Sichinsky, who on April 12, 1908, shot and killed Count Andreas Potocki, Governor of Galicia, in Lemberg, against George Raffalovich, who writes under the name of "Bedwin Sands." The charge is based on a circular which Raffalovich admits having published, in which Sichinsky is referred to as a "murderer."

Simon O. Pollock, attorney for Sichinsky, said the case would for the first time place before a jury the question of whether a political killing could be classified under American laws as murder, in the moral sense of the word.

BOLT OF LIGHTENING STARTS GAS WELL

Non-Producer Now Flowing $50 Worth Every Day.

PITTSBURG, Aug. 11. — An oil well belonging to the Harbison & Walker Company, in Hays, and long classed as a non-producer, is flowing gas enough every 24 hours to add $50 to the wealth of the owners, and a bolt of lightning turned the trick.

The well was brought in last winter, but the flow of oil lasted only a short time. During a big electrical storm a bolt struck the derrick and set it on fire.

When the fire department attempted to extinguish the flames it was found that a heavy flow of gas was coming from the well. After much difficulty this was diverted into a feed pipe, and is now going through the meter at a rate of nearly 1,500,000 feet every 24 hours.

FAMILY CAMPS OUT TILL FED BY COUNTY

Evicted, With Father in Jail, Mother Forces Action.

Lewiston, Pa., Aug. 11. —Mrs. J. B. Archey created consternation among the county officials here, when she camped on the courthouse steps with her eight children, ranging from eight months to 14 years, until her demands for sustenance was complied with.

The Archey family was evicted from a house in Yeagertown a week ago for non-payment of rent, and the husband was locked up for taking a potshot through the door at Constable Ed. Merta. Since then the mother and children have camped in the open.

Sheriff Van Zandt took the woman and her brood to the almshouse, where th. will be taken care of.

HAUNTED RECTORY ELKHART, INDIANA SOON TO BE RAISED

The haunted rectory of Elkhart is to be razed. This building, the property of St. John's Episcopal church, is in good condition, but has been unused for years. The strange stories told by many persons who have stayed all night in it have frightened all occupants away. Now, although they do not admit it is haunted, the vestry men have decided to tear it down.

The last occupant was the Rev. W. W. Daup and wife. Mrs. Daup was driven almost to nervous prostration by the stalking of the alleged ghost. So severely shaken was her nervous system that the belief that a ghost really haunted the house became general and no one would occupy it.

Many persons have entered the rectory to remain all night within its bare walls and prove to the populace that the ghost theory was foolish. Some have remained all night and said they heard nothing—others have come out of the house shaken with fright, declaring they heard strange noises, that electric lights were turned off and on and that bed clothes mysteriously disappeared.

A spiritualist medium was once prevailed upon to enter the rectory. The next morning she announced that the ghost was the spirit of a young girl who had committed suicide in the house while her father was rector. Many old residents recalled the suicide and the belief in the ghost grew stronger. — Schenectady Gazette.

BATTLE THUNDER IN AN ENGLISH VILLAGE

A. C. Benson, in the Church Family News.

"I walked to-day, near my Sussex home, in what I often think must be among the quietest and sweetest of English countrysides,' writes A. C. Benson in the Church Family Newspaper. "It is all sequestered and still, though full of gentle woodland life, the passer-by smile or nod a silent greeting; it is a haunt of ancient peace.

"Yet to-day as I walked I was aware of a vague undercurrent of sound, hardly heard as sound at all, but a murmur shed abroad, a tremor, a crowding of the air; sometimes it came like an echo of remote thunder, and a pheasant crowed sharply in the fern. But it was there all the time—a faint trembling of the heavens. The wind, blowing softly from the south-east, was laden with the ghostly sound and seemed shaken with it, indistinct and formless as it was. The least nearer sound overcame it instantly, the cart-wheels in the lane below, the wind rustling in the wood; but when the aielnoe returned the murmur returned, and I said suddenly to myself: "That is the sound of our English guns in France!"

"I made inquiries later about it, and I was told it was undoubtedly so. The sea is only some fifteen miles away to the south, and I was informed that whenever the wind was in that quarter, and when the papers spoke of our artillery being active, that strange tremor of the air could be heard all day passing across the heaving waters of the Channel and waking this faint echo of their fierce roaring over our quiet fields and woods. It seemed hardly credible that it should indeed be so.

"I thought of our young soldiers serving, loading, pointing and firing the sinister grey tubes of metal, the scream and crash of the shells, the harsh whizzing of shrapnel, the fierce shock of high explosives, the wounds, the hurrying figures, the rolling wheels —all the apparatus of death; that fierce scene with all its tragic adventure and tense emotion making itself felt here in these faint movements of sound, mingling with the fresh scents and peaceful rustling of the woodland, and hardly louder than the falling of summer waves upon a sunny shore.

"Strange and sad and eloquent was the voice of the wind burdened with these low rumours of battle; eloquent of courage and endurance and high passions, of death proudly faced and sufferings nobly borne; sad because a world so apt for happiness and peace is yet so audibly deluged with death and strife; strange in the harp contrast between the calm that seems possible and the struggle that is not only inevitable but infinitely great and hopeful; because only thus in anguish and dread can the new life of the world be born. I could not discern the secret of it—here a peaceful land, slowly subdued and tilled to serve the use of men to give them happy friendly lives, daily work and interests, the home, the community, the nation all learning to live truthfully under tranquil and equal laws; out there, in the battle-thunder, hatred and death and loss and waste and pain, foaming and roaring together.

Riley Says Police Mandate to "Stay Away" is Final

Man Liberated From Pen by Mistake Has Naive Excuse—Last Chapter of Case

Refusal to Return and Serve Out Sentence is Latest Development.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—What is likely to be the last chapter in the history of Thomas Riley, convicted of the slaying of George Blackburn in the bar of the Cecil Hotel in this city, and now enjoying freedom in the United States through mistakes made by the department of justice, seems to have been written.

Riley was released after serving but a short "bit" of the fifteen years' sentence imposed for manslaughter when the original murder charge against him was reduced to that by a jury that heard the evidence submitted at an assize court here. Through a mistake the department officials liberated the wrong Riley for another Thomas Riley, convicted of the slaying of his wife in Hamilton, who was the object of the department's mercy.

Taken Across Border.

The other Thomas Riley had served a considerable portion of his sentence and an order was issued for his parole. As a result of confusion in the identity the wrong Thomas Riley was led across the border, and there released a free man.

When the mistake was discovered extradition proceedings were commenced, but there was considerable difficulty in locating Riley, as he seemed to have the general sympathy of his new neighbours. However, Riley late wrote to W. P. Archibald, Dominion parole officer, asking what he was to do. The reply was that he had better give himself up and trust to the mercy of the Canadian authorities.

Accepts Police Mandate.

The latest development is a naive answer from Riley to the effect that as he was led across the border by the Dominion police when released, and told to stay there, he regards it as an inexcusable violation of this mandate to come back.

As the justice department has been unable to think of anything to say in answer to this argument, nothing has been said.

Declined Personal Invitation.

Rev. H. H. Bingham and others of the city who took a keen interest in the Riley case, and who declared that Riley had decided to live a new life, went to Riley's home in Kansas after his release to interview the accused man and try to bring him back to throw himself on the justice of Canada. Riley declined the invitation, and his answer to the department, as now announced, seems to be the "finish" in the history of Riley, so far as this country is concerned.

HAVELOCK COUNCIL OBJECTS TO LETTER OF REEVE FENNEL

Won't Accept the Reeve's Resignation Until Missive is Couched in Different Form

HAVELOCK, Aug. 11.—The regular August meeting of the Town Council was held on Monday night, with only Councillors Howe, Roche and Jones present.

On motion of Howe and Roche Coun. Jones was given the honour of the chair, which he accepted after demurring modestly.

Reeve Fennell's letter of resignation which appeared some weeks ago, was read, and the members present were unanimous in declaring it misleading, inaccurate and unjust to them, their indignation culminating in the following resolution:

"That whereas theis Council, having only carried out the resolutions of the Council and have not exceeded the amounts voted for steet work, and have always been ready to consult with the Reeve on all questions, therefore the Council cannot accept the resignation of the Reeve in the form tendered."

The Bank of Toronto was authorised by motion to accept cheques drawn by the Treasurer, but up to date, the Bank refuses to cash any cheques without the signature of Reeve Fennell, who refuses to sign any.

A special meeting of the Council will be held to-night, when some of the tangles may be unravelled or a worse situation created.

The Western Fair Sept. 8th to 16th

The platform attraction at the Exhibition this year will be of a very high class. The very best acts obtainable have been secured. There will be acts of skill and comedy and plenty of them. Dio's Dog and Pony Circus will be worth the whole price. Some two or three bands each day will provide the best of music, while The International Fireworks Co., of London will put on a special programme of fireworks each and every night. If space is required application should be made as early as possible. Information of all kinds from the Secretary, A. M. Hunt, London, Ontario.

Opening of The Connaught Tunnel

Tunnel Under the Selkirk Mountains Was Completed in Less Than Three Years

MONTREAL, Aug. 11.—His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught, Governor-General of Canada, has at the request of Lord Shaughnessy, graciously allowed the tunnel which the Canadian Pacific Railway bored under the Selkirk mountains to be named after him. The "Connaught tunnel," which is five miles long, double tracked, gives the C.P.R. the lowest grade of any transcontinental line through the Selkirks. His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught went through this tunnel in July last, when the bore had been completed. The tunnel was bored in less than three years and therefore holds the world's record for tunnelling.

Permanent tracks are now being laid in the tunnel and trains will be running through it very shortly.

Progressive Club Receives Official Acknowledgement

The Secretary of the Peterborough Progressive Club has received the following letter, dated, July 11, 1916:—

Dear Madam,—I beg to acknowledge with many thanks having received on July 4th, one package containing 110 pairs of socks. Also 4 bales which were forwarded to the Moore Barracks Hospital. Again thanking you for the socks which are always most acceptable.

I remain,
Yours truly,
MARY PLUMMER.
Lieut. Canadian Field Comforts Commission.

The Progressive Club has also received a letter of thanks from the Canadian Serbian Relief Committee, of Toronto, for surgical supplies sent them a short time ago. On the 10th of this month the Club again sent a bale of 168 pairs of socks to Miss Plummer for the men in the trenches. Also the same day a large package of magazines to England for Capt. R E. Layfield, 80th Canadian Infantry, for our soldiers.

Will any who would like to send reading matter to our men, kindly leave at it the Barrie Building to be forwarded?

Lindsay Girls Have Disappeared

Fair Maidens of Lindsay Show a Preference for the White Lights of Peterboro

LINDSAY, Aug. 11.—The disappearance of two East Ward girls is causing considerable concern to their parents. They are sisters and left the shelter of the family roof almost a week and a half ago. Their whereabouts was unknown until a few days ago, when a message was received from Peterborough to the effect that they had been working at night in Auburn Woollen Mills in the north part of the city. Last Friday, however, they treked it from Electric City. Their whereabouts is at present unknown.

"ROUND THE STORES"

Warne's handsome 'Diamond Hall' show windows have been treated to a pretty white lace inside draping, which hangs down gracefully from the top of each plate glass for about two feet. It produces a real dressy effect, harmonising with the rich jewellery displays and, at the same time, fills the blank space at the top of the plate glass, helping to concentrate the vision more intensely on the window display.

"Good morning, Mr. Douro; has the dry weather affected the supply of fruit," asked a customer at the Douro's fruit store. "Some fruits seem scarce, and dearer and seem to be hard to get.

"No, sir, not at this store. We have always a good supply of seasonable fruits and vegetables, and our prices, we know, are never high. We have trouble in getting enough fish to keep our customers going, some weeks, but if there is fish or fruit to be got we are sure to get fresh supplies."

"Not much drop in the prices since last Saturday," remarked one shopper. "Ain't corn dear, 25c a dozen? but I suppose it's scarce yet."

"Your Lawton berries do look nice. "I'll take a box of them to make a pie with. I do like berrie pie; and some of young cherries too, please."

New Potatoes 50c a peck; celery 10c a large bunch; vegetable marrow 5c and 10c; beets 5c; cucumbers 5c each; tomatoes 10c and 15c a pound; apples coming in.

"How nice and clean you keep your store, Peter. It's really a pleasure to buy."

Turkey Siezes Money Sent To Missionaries

LONDON, Aug. 11.— The British Government has decided to hold up any further remittance from Turkish emigrants in America to American missionaries in Turkey, to whom remittances have been sent hitherto for the purpose of distribution. Until recently these remittances were allowed to be sent through the mails without hindrance, but a letter came into the hands of the French Government from a Lebanon Bank, explaining that the money was deposited in the Imperial Ottoman Bank in the name of the payee by order of the Turkish government.

The bank thereafter received orders from the Turkish authorities to pay out the money in weekly installments only after a lapse of one year.

Thus money received in August, 1915, would not be distributed until August, 1916. Even then payment will be made only in paper currency at the rate of 80 plastres for a pound sterling, instead of at the ordinary exchange of 136 plastres.

Many a man's wonderful self-control is due to the fact that he has a wife able to advise him.

What Sitting in A Hotel Did For Lindsay

It Was There That Mayor McLean Decided to Relinquish His Duties as Burgomaster of The Northern Metropolis

LINDSAY, Aug. 11.—At a meeting of the Town Council the resignation of His Worship Mayor McLean was officially received, and on motion of Ald. Chambers and Ald. Duck, was accepted, the Clerk being authorised to prepare the necessary by-law for the selection or election of a new Mayor. Mayor McLean wrote the following letter to the council:

To the Reeve, Council and Citizens of the Town of Lindsay.

Gentlemen,—While sitting in my hotel to-night, thinking of Lindsay and the good Lindsay folk, I decided to resign my position as Mayor of the Town of Lindsay.

Therefore, I hereby tender my resignation, the same to take effect at once.

I wish to thank the Council and town officials for the courtesies extended to me during my term of office as Mayor. I also wish to thank the citizens all, and to express my sincere appreciation of the honour conferred on me during my sojourn among you.

I regret very much that I find it necessary to sever my connections with the present council, and also with my many other good friends in Lindsay. However, I am glad to say that the nine years I spent in the town were among the most pleasant years of my life.

Wishing you, one and all, the very best success and prosperity, I remain,

Yours sincerely,
D. J. McLEAN.

CIVIC EMPLOYEES GET SALARY BOOST

Brandon Council Settles Contentious Issue

BRANDON, Man., Aug. 11.—The council met and after disposing of the routine business, none of which was of any great importance, they went into committee of the whole to discuss the matter of raising the salaries of city employees, for which the majority of civic employees have been agitating for some time. After much discussion, it was finally decided to give an increase of 7 per cent. to every civic employee drawing not more than $100 per month.

Previous to this a little interest was added to the session by a motion which was brought to remove the mayor's vote on the automobile for the city health officer, but on the mover of the motion seeing that there were not sufficient supporters present to carry it, he withdrew. The mayor having asked one of the chief supporters of the proposed care for the health officer to take the chair, which he declined to do, asked for a ruling on the matter. The clerk said the ruling was that if every member refused to take the chair the council was automatically adjourned. Ald. Curran informed the mayor that he might as well be decent and withdraw his veto gracefully, as they intended to go over his head in the matter if they had to wait until next Christmas to do so.

As no members of the council would take the chair, the motion was withdrawn.

Street Dancing Is Prohibited

Police Interfere With the Terpsichorean Activities of Several Local Youths

A galaxy of youthful tramgressors who are on most intimate terms with the local police, decorated the prisoner's box at this morning's Police Court and were charged with being disorderly on Water street last evening.

Two young local "kids", O'Hara and O'Brien, not as famous in police court annals as their associates appeared on notification. O'Brien was assessed five dollars, but no evidence could be had to show that O'Hara had taken any part in the frolics.

Messrs. Alex. Downey and Gordon Holland pleaded guilty to acting in a disorderly manner and were each assessed five dollars and costs. Percy Holland entered a plea of not guilty to the same charge and evidence was then called to show his part in the affair.

A resident of Water street then told of seeing the gang coming down from the park. Music happened to be emerging from a window somewhere and the musical instincts of the happy boys immediately got the better of their good sense and their respect for the law, and they began to pull off some of the "Vernon Castle" stunts along the street. The police were then called and three of the party had spent the evening as the guests of Chief Thompson and his associates.

The War Has Brought Out Many Inventions

Every department of the enormous armies and their auxiliaries to this great war has called forth inventions which, only a few months ago we would hardly consider possible. Some departments, of course, have more varied demands and, therefore, produce many more inventions. The aerial service, the transport service, and the artillery, for instance, each cover a very wide field. Artillery, in this war, is proving to be the one big factor. It stands to reason that in the ceaseless and terrible competition and struggle for mastery many great developments result.

A LARGE SHELL.

One great aim of the artillery experts is to produce a large calibre shell which will stand the shock of firing but will burst into the greatest possible number of fragments when exploded. Early in the war the Germans used a glass shell. It had been compounded with special chemicals to toughen it sufficiently to stand the shock of firing, but, when exploded it was completely powdered and the force of explosion was wanted on such finely powdered stuff. The glass powder has no forces. After long and careful experimentation the French have produced a large calibre high explosive shell which, on exploding will burst into 2,000 or more fragments each driven like a bullet with force enough to pass clear through a man. One of these was put in a heavy armored-plated pit which was tightly closed and sealed. It was exploded by electricity. Afterwards, the pieces were collected and counted. It had been burst into 2,000 pieces A famous physician says that a single piece of shell the size of a pin head driven into a man's liver will put him completely out of action. The Huns had better duck their heads when they hear it on the way—it carries 2,000 good chances of sudden death with it.

Brown Streets Didn't Gets a Water Main

Mr. Tom Henry and other residents of Brown street suggested at the North Monaghan Council meeting last night that a two-inch water main be laid on that street, and that negotiations be entered into with the Peterborough Utilities Commission for the suplying of water. No action was taken for the present.

Residents out in Monaghan near the city want a street opened immediatly north of the old Sandstone Brick factory. The Brown estate is willing to give half the property for it, but ther has been no word from the Brick Company, owing to the difficulty of assembling the directors.

RAIN WELCOMED BY THE FARMER

It would be difficult to estimate the value of to-day's rain to the County of Peterborough. Sufficient to say the majority of farmers in this particular section would be satisfied to see it rain for about three days. The late crops have suffered irreparable damage as a result of the prolonged drought and a good rain will do much toward reviving the remnants of the harvest. For the past month, harvesting gope rations have continued without interruption and to-day finds much of the harvest under cover.

Ink may be removed from books with a solution of oxalic acid.

Second Day of The Fire Chiefs' Convention

Short Business Session Held During Morning—Inspection of Fire Trucks

WINDSOR, Aug. 11.—Social functions and sight-seeing tours took up the greater part of the delegates to the Dominion Association of Fire Chief's Convention.

A number of delegates who were unable to be present at the opening session, arrived Wednesday morning but the registration of the fire chiefs and associate members has not yet been completed. Among the delegates present is Fire Chief Howard of Peterborough.

More are expected to arrive during the day, as main business sessions will take place on the closing two days of the convention.

A short business session of the executives was held in the Elks' Temple Auditorium, starting at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning. Following the meeting, the exhibits of manufacturers of fire apparatus and signal systems, at the armories, were inspected.

While this inspection was in progress, the delegates received a real thrill when a crash which could be heard several blocks caused them to rush to the corner of London street and Ouellette avenue, where two street cars met in head-on collision. They commented favourably on the manner in which the police handled the situation which arose following the accident.

HAD PISTURES TAKEN.

Souvenir pictures of the chiefs in session were taken at the armories with the fire department heads lined up in front of the big trucks which the American La France Co., of Toronto, have on exhibition.

These trucks, equipped with a powerful motor, were shipped to Windsor at great expense to give the chiefs in session an opportunity to inspect them. The American La France Co., is the only company in Canada manufacturing fire apparatus exclusively.

At 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon a demonstration of the sprinkler system and the Ontario May-Oatway Automatic Fire Alarm attracted a large crowd on Ouellette avenue.

A frame building, with the sprinkler system installed, had been erected on the square.

When this building was set on fire the heat melted the soft-metal sprinkler connections, at the same time giving an alarm, and th fire was deluged with water. This quickly extinguished the blaze.

DEMONSTRATIONS GIVEN

Demonstration of other apparatus and equipment were also given and the Windsor fire department gave an exhibition run.

Ladies of the party were entertained Wednesday morning on a sightseeing tour of both Detroit and Windsor. The big downtown stores were visited, the party being escorted by Mrs. DeFields, wife of Chief Clarence DeFields, of Windsor.

Mrs. DeFields, as wife of the entertaining fire chief, is the official hostess of wives and daughters of visiting delegates. She is being ably assisted by wives of the members of the fire committee of the city council and Mrs. George Murray, wife of former Chief Murray, of this city.

CLEANING CARPETS.

Carpets can be both cleaned and freshened by going over them once a week with a broom dipped in water that has a little turpentine in it.

Moths in carpet can be kept away by using strong alum water. Take up carpet, wash over the floor with the alum solution and sprinkle salt at edges of carpet and all over the carpet before sweeping.

NEW FRENGH SHELL BURST ON IMPACT INTO 2,000 PIECES

PARIS, Aug. 10.—A new shell just put in service, is expected to give the French, already the champion artillerymen of the world, a leadership that will probably not be overtaken in this war. Whether the new explosives are being used in the Somme offensive is not known.

"Fragmentation" is the big word in France to-day in artillery cirles. With the greatest and most effective gun in the world they sought also a shell that would be as far above other shells as their artillery was above the average. To get a shell of high fragmentation was their object; a shell that would stand firing but that would break in the greatest possible number of pieces when it exploded at the end of its flight.

If you can get a piece of shell as big as the point of a pin head into the liver of an enemy soldier, you've put him out, said a great French artilleryman.

To get such a shell has involved an intricate study of hardening, ductility and all the other aspects of the treatment of metal.

Not long ago on a testing ground in France, the new shell was tried. It was placed on a heavy steel barrel, buried in the earth. After a massive steel cover had been placed on the barrel the shell was discharged by electricity. The fragments that were found in the barrel were counted. They numbered 2,000.

Early in the war the Germans, seeking high fragmentation, are believed to have tried glass shell. Powdered glass was found after explosion of German shells, on both the French and British lines. The Germans, however, discovered that glass was so brittle that it was minutely powdered by the high explosives and rendered harmless as a missle.

MADE MANAGER OF THE DUNDAS BRANCH

Mr. W. J. Devins, who has acted as clothing salesman for Grafton and Co., since the year 1902, has been appointed manager of the Dundas retail store, and has left to take up his new duties. His many friends will be glad to hear of his advancement, and to know that the Grafton Company appreciate his fourteen years of faithful service in the Peterborough Branch.

PTE. NEARY GIVES AN ACCOUNT OF THE TRIP OVERSEAS

July 18—On guard all day and night, also had life belt drill. Saw a few ships and whales. Still fine weather.

July 19—Came off guard at 8 p.m. and had no time off after it either. Also had life belt drill. We are about half way across the ocean now and in a warm current. The weather is still fine and we have four machine guns mounted night and day. I forgot to tell you that we have one 6-inch gun on board and always ready and also about 6 or 8 machine guns.

July 20th—Calm sea running and the weather still fine, but a little cool. Passed the Lapland at 11 p.m. She has been leading since we left Canada. Our machine guns are having practice at a red flag drawn behind the cruiser. We also had life belt drill this afternoon.

July 21— Sea still calm, weather fine and warm. Am still in the best of health and not a bit downhearted. Saw quite a bunch of porpoises this morning and they certainly are a funny looking thing. We had no drill this afternoon, for the officers are holding some sports on our deck, but all the better for us anyway. We are now two thousand miles from Canada and soon expect our escorts as we will soon be in the danger zone.

July 22—Fine weather and the sea is still calm. I am feeling fine. All the life boats and ladders were put out ready to-day. Did not see a boat all day, only a few porpoises. That is the skin that you get in a pair of porpoise shoe laces.

July 23—Run about full speed all night and this morning we are in a heavy fog in the danger zone. We had mass this morning and I never saw a mass like it before. The chaplain of the 39th said it and there were about 200 of us heard it. We all had the ship was struck. The altar was all made out of a suitcase. The priest carried all his vestments in it and opened it up and made a nice little altar. One of the officers served mass and the priest read the Gospel and gave us a short sermon after. Our escorts are not out yet, but we expect them soon. The afternoon passed quietly until 5.15, when we sighted a ship out on the horizon. Immediately the gunner onour ship turned his gun on her, but she turned out to be one of our escorts, a British destroyer. Not 15 minutes after another came in sight and shortly after another. Well you would never think that anything could go so fast to see them dodging around you would think that you were watching a motorcycle race. We expect to land in about a day, and believe me we will not mind it a bit.

July 24 —Left the Lapland behind last night and started out full speed. This morning when we woke up we were in sight of Ireland, and such beautiful scenery, you could not beat it. The large rocks on the sides of the cliffs were covered with moss and grass and on top were fields of hay and oats. The fields were all divided off with hedges, and the houses and roads looked great. There are quite a few fishing vessels around and also some more destroyers. We have just finished taking out kits out of the hold and are to get them this afternoon. The sea is still calm and we expect to land to-morrow. Picked up our pilot at 7.30 and are now about as good as safe. We sailed then for about an hour and when we came in sight of Liverpool we were welcomed by hundreds of boat and factory whistles. The streets and shore were crowded with people, cheering as we passed along. We stopped at 9 o'clock and tugs and ferries full of people came up to have a look at us. Liverpool is any straighter and all the houses are in a row and are brick.

July 25—Got up at 4.30 and got ready to get off the boat until ten o'clock. When it is ten o'clock here it is only about 4.30 at home. We then entrained on cars about the size of our street cars and are divided into sections where 8 men sit. We passed through London and had a bit of a look at it, for we were going about 50 miles an hour. We had nothing all day but two hard-tack biscuits and some corn beef. I could hardly get my teeth through the biscuits but managed all right. Arrived at the station about 4 p.m. and marched about three miles with our full pack, and believe me it was pretty hot work. Saw a large bunch of aeroplanes and a few dirigibles, all British. We are not at the front yet, but are only 50 miles from it. This is our journey, so will close. Good-bye, answer soon. CAMP BORDEN COST TO DATE ESTIMATED AT FULLY $1,00,000

Contractors Leaving Within Next Two Weeks

GREAT AREA OF NO USE

Little Brigade Training Done on the Notorious Review Grounds.

CAMP BORDEN, Aug. 10.—It has been stated that Col. Robert Low of the Bate-McMahon Company, will go to France in the near future to work upon camps there. Officers who have been well informed in the past assert that the next contracts for this firm will be the construction of camps in British Columbia.

Col. Low has made frequent visits to Ottawa within the past few days. He has discharged over one thousand men within the past week. All of which is in keeping with the statement from reliable sources that the Government is considering a policy of retrenchment as far as the construction work on the camp is concerned.

CONTRACTORS LEAVING.

The contractor firm expects to leave the camp within the next two weeks. Practically all of the work has been done. Until the discharge of the men last week its pay roll amounted to $75,000 every fortnight. About five miles of cement roads about twenty feet in width have been laid this past four weeks at a cost of about $15,000 a mile. The camp has cost to date, according to a conservative estimate, $1,000,000.

Within the next six weeks it is stated that at least ten battalions will be away from the camp completing their training elsewhere. This and on the construction of the camp.

BIG AIR RAID NO USE.

Very little use has been made of the extensive areas away from camp for training purposes. Few brigadiers give their brigades any schemes which involve the whole brigade. Practically all of the training here consists of the development of the special branches of musketry, bombing, trench warfare, bayonet fighting and physical training. There has been very little need to date for the use of the grounds, upon which the notorious review occurred.

The training of the troops is being interfered with to a serious extent, according to the assistant adjutant general, through leaves of various description. Over the past week-end only 5,200 obtained passes extending from Friday at noon until late Sunday night. There are at present over eight thousand men away from the camp on harvest furlough. Including those illegally absent the camp strength was affected this week-end by the absence of almost 14,000 men.

EQUIPMENT WASTED.

Officers who have reached the camp this past week from the front assert that British warehouses are filled with thousands of dollars' worth of equipment taken over to England by Canadian battalions, which were shattered into fragments when they reached different ports and distributed among camps for further training. Gifts from patriotic citizens and Government property are now of no use.

Another claims that the men when enlisted should be informed that there is little chance of going to the front with their battalion as a unit.

Also scores of men classed as medically fit in Canada, are discharged in England as unfit for active service. There is some difference, he says, between men physically fit and men who can stand active warfare.

An Irish vicar was called "eccentric" because when he preached in Belfast he called his congregation "dear Belfast souls," and in Dublin, "dear Dublin souls," in Cork, "dear Cork souls."

Daring Deeds On The Yser Front Told By American Despatch Rider

London, August 10.—The Daily Express publishes the following:

William J. Robinson was born and lived the first six years of his life at sea. You will have realised that he was an American. He landed in England on September 10, 1914. He had been here before. He was still a young man.

A year after he landed he found himself without a job. A few days later he was a trooper in the Fifth Dragoon Guards. He had done no soldiering before. He could not ride a horse. He spent a few days at a riding school at Aldershot and by way of stopping chaff at his expense in barracks he went up to a "big chap" (who, he found out afterwards, had been the heavy weight champion of the army) and began a fight by hitting him in the face. That made them friends.

On October 8 he landed at Ostend, and on the afternoon of the third day came under fire at Roulers. He had been in the army just over a month. He spent fourteen months at the front as a motor car driver, motorcycle despatch rider and motor machine gun driver, and has written the story of his adventures and escapes in a very readable volume, ("My Fourteen Months at the Front," by William J. Robinson. Hodder and Stroughton, 3s. 6d. net.)

"HELLFIRE CORNER"

Soon after he reached the front, Private Robinson became temporary driver to Lieutenant-General Sir Julian Byng, and he was in Ypres when the first shelling began. From that he was switched off to armor cars and then to motor machine guns, with which he fought in ditches at "Hellfire Corner," on the Menin Road. It was while he was on this job that he saw a motorcyclist win the Victoria Cross. He scribes the incident as follows:

"Volunteer despatch riders for dangerous work" were called for. About eighteen of our chaps offered themselves, and of course all were accepted. A despatch had to be carried about two miles along the road which follows the bank of the Yser Canal. The road was constantly being swept by German machine gun and rifle fire. The despatch was to be handed to a French commander who was waiting for it.

"The first man started and was soon out of sight. They waited in vain for a certain length of time and then called 'Number Two.' These signals are made by heliograph, but while they are good for this kind of work the Germans can see the signals as well as we can. 'Number Two' started out but we saw him go down before he had gone a hundred yards.

"Then 'Number Three' started. It was pitiful to watch those poor chaps. When a man knew that it was his turn next I could see the poor fellow nervously working on his machine. He'd prime the engine, then he would open and close the throttle quickly several times—anything, in fact, to keep himself busy.

"Six of these fellows went down in less than half an hour. 'Number Seven' was a young fellow whose name I don't know. I wish I did for he was certainly the nerviest fellow I ever saw. 'Number Seven' was hardly out of the officer's mouth before he had his despatch and was on his way.

"About five minutes later the signal came that the despatch had been delivered.

"My officer told me afterward that the French general to whom he had handed the despatch had taken the Medaille Militaire off his own breast and pinned it on that of the young despatch rider. He was also later awarded the Victoria Cross and given a commission. It is things like this that make one proud to belong to such an army."

SNIPING A SNIPER.

After spending Christmas, 1914, in the Ypres trenches, Robinson helped a second lieutenant in the Royal Engineers to snipe a German sniper on the Dickebusch-Hollebeke road. As they rode over a wooden bridge a bullet whistled. Neither spoke but on the way back, three hours later, the officer said: "That blasted sniper has potted at me once too often. We will leave the road here and sneak down opposite the hedge under cover of the trees."

Tethering their horses they crept near the bridge, waited until a waggon passed, and heard the sniper's shot from behind. They crawled a hundred yards and waited. Soon they heard the rifle crack again, not far away. Creeping a little further they waited again, watching the trees. They came so close to the sniper without seeing him, that the next time he fired they heard the ejector fly back and the bolt snap. Then they spotted him. He was well up a tree, with his rifle fitted on a tripod, so that whenever he heard anyone on the wooden bridge he had only to pull the trigger. But he had ended his sniping. The lieutenant and Mr. Robinson fired together, and "Mr. Sniper came down like a thousand of bricks."

The "British Tommy" of those days according to William J., was a great "gambler as well as a great fighter One of his forms of gambling was a kind of tontine, known as a "trench pool."

"About ten fellows got together and each put ten francs in a pool just before they went into action. They left this money with some one behind the lines, for they would be in action anywhere from six days to three weeks. The idea of the pool was this: Those who lived to get back would take the money and split it evenly among themselves. If only one lived he would have the whole lot.

DAREDEVIL OFFICER.

The Tommies kept canaries, rats, mice, dogs, cats, goats and even pigs, as pets, and would go hungry before the pet hungered.

The "biggest daredevil" that Robinson heard of was known as the "Mad Major"—an artillery officer who kept his own aeroplane for range finding purposes. When he ing purposes. When the aofw yop wanted to correct a range he just flew over and dropped smoke bombs on the particular spot he wanted his guns to hit. Then he went back and set the guns to work. One day being annoyed with a German 17-inch howitzer, he flew over with a 100-pound bomb, nose dived to within 400 feet, dropped the bomb and blew the howitzer to atoms. He returned with his planes riddled with bullets.

Mr. Robinson indicates in a few words what happened to two men, a woman and two children when a Taube dropped a bomb in the square at Poperinghe. It is enough here to say that they were killed, and that the bicycle one of the men was riding was found twisted and bent on a lamppost about fifty yards away. He also describes briefly the killing of two officers in a motor car by a German 15-inch shell on the road leading into Ypres. The driver escaped, but was sent nearly mad by the shock. His nerve was gone and he had to be discharged.

This was during the second battle of Ypres when the city was being destroyed by shell fire and the houses were burning.

THE BALMY BEACH BOWLING TOURNAMENT

The Dominion Bowling Tournament which ends August 19th does not finish the Tournament bowling for the season, next in importance and last of the season, comes the Balmy Beach Bowling Club's tournament on Sept. 2nd and 4th. This tournament always has an entry list of well over 100 rinks and will likely be much larger this year.

It is expected that London, Hamilton, Buffalo, Welland, Berlin, Bridgeburg and several other Western Clubs will be strongly represented, and as the tournament is held on Saturday September 2nd and Labor Day, Sept. 4th it does not interfere with business, and also has the advantage of excursion rates on the railroads.

The Ellis Trophy, which becomes the permanent property of any Club winning it twice (not necessarily in successive years) has been won 8 times, but no Club has been successful as yet in winning it twice. It will likely go this year unless some of the Western Clubs send strong representatives.

The tournament will be played on several of the larger lawns in Toronto. Entries will be received from now until Wednesday, August 29th at 8 o'clock by Wm. E. Orr, tournament Secretary, care of Balmy Beach Bowling Club, Toronto.

There are two competitions for the Ellis Trophy with individual prizes for the winners and runners up and the consolation series with individual prizes for the finalists as above.

ONLY HALF A CROP.

Yield in Brandon District is of Inferior Grade.

Brandon, Man., Aug. 11.— A party of eighteen bankers and business men left Brandon Wednesday and made a tour of about one hundred miles to investigate the crop prospects in the Brandon district. One member of the party states the yield will be about half a crop and of inferior grade. Rust is very bad, but the high winds of last night and today will held. A few farmers were cutting, but it will not be general for about a week. About fifteen bushels of wheat to the acre is the estimate of another member of the party. Oats and barley, the party report, look splendid.

DOLLAR DAY

Merchants Please Notice

The Examiner has been asked to promote a Dollar Day in August—A large number of stores have signified their willingness to participate but it is too big a job to see everyone in the time remaining. Every store is welcome to be in the list of those giving the prizes, and have their firm's name and business published in the big advertising done free for Dollar Day by the Examiner. All who have not been seen are asked to call up Mr. Callender at the Examiner who is looking after the treasury box for the merchants, or 'phone a message for him to call and full particulars will be given them. The Examiner is anxious to give every store an equal amount of publicity which can only be done if all names are in when the first big announcement is made.

GERMAN BIG GUNS BEING WITHDRAWN

Many Damaged by British Howitzers and Others are Being Retired Out of Their Reach

MEN PROUD OF WORK

OPENED WAY FOR LAST ATTACK NEAR THIEPVAL AND THEN CHASED THE GERMANS FROM TRENCHES.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, Aug. 11.—All last night there was great hammering of guns and this morning when I went out in the direction of Thiepval the artillery on both sides was hard at work. The Germans were dropping heavy stuff in the neighborhood of Posieres, with occasional shots at long range into the fields found about The quiet villages behind the lines are gradually being reduced in numbers.

The German batteries are, I believe drawing back as far from the reach of the British heavies as possible, because many of them have been badly knocked about by the British guns and they are concentrating their fire upon positions nearer to their own lines. From all I see and hear it seems certain that the British artillery has the mastery along the line of attack.

It was in the midst of the tumult of guns and below the long resonant journeying of great shells on their way to the German territory that I sat to-day with some of the officers who had just chased the Germans out of their trenches to the north of Posieres.

They were all men at Kent. The Captain is a merry soul, who laughs heartily over hairbreadth escapes and still more loudly when he describes little exploits which would make most men shudder at the mere remembrance. The Colonel of his battalion who sat opposite, is of a different type, quiet and thoughtful but with a sense of humor also that lights his eyes.

There were other officers who had fought in this show to the north of Posieres, all proud of the men who had done the job, and all wanting to say how splendid they were.

Late one evening last week a patrol was sent out to examine the situation. On the following day the British artillery began a long and steady bombardment of the German line, and a number of Germans ran out of a portion of a trench and took shelter in the shell holes in No Man's Land There was retaliation from the German artillery, and they used a number of gas shells, so that the men of Kent had to put on gas masks before the time of their attack. The Germans were sending up distress signals to their guns, and in anticipation of the attack were flinging colored lights over to the British lines, so as to illuminate any British infantry who might be advancing. At the same time the German machine guns played upon the figures so revealed, so that it was almost certain death to be in those glaring lights.

At great risk several men sprang forward into the illumination and kicked out the burning canisters. Then in the momentary darkness the leading companies advanced in waves toward the German trenches, south of Monquet, or, as the soldiers call it, Moscow farm.

The Colonel of the battalion went with his men, and as he drew near to the German line, he saw two figures silhouetted against the German lights. He called out to them, thinking that they might be his own men working forward on his right, but he saw they were Germans when one man threw up his hands as a sign of surrender, and the other dropped to one knee to fire a rifle shot. The Colonel sprang forward, covering them with his revolver, and took both of them prisoners.

GREAT HEROISM.

Without any casualties in spite of the machine-gun fire, the British troops reached the German trenches.

Great heroism was shown by a young Lieutenant and a party of bombers who went first over No Man's Land so quickly behind the British barrage that they risked death by the British shells and came against the first defense. It was their quick advance which scared the Germans and helped to demoralize them. The men who followed ran along the German parapets, bombing down the trenches, while others leaped in and fought their way down.

Large numbers of Germans were down in the usual dugouts and sentries were posted at the entrance of each of these underground places Many refused to surrender of come out. Then a bomb was thrown into the entrance way, and after its explosion there was heard in every case a great scrambling and scurrying.

"It was the funniest thing you ever saw," said the jovial Captain. "Out of the entrances the beggars tumbled up just for all the world like rabbits."

The men of Kent were pleased and excited at taking so many prisoners, about eighty of them, in one batch, and an escort party fixed their bayonets with snap as if on parade and then marched off with pride, leaving the prisoners to follow on.

One of the prisoners, taken later was a forward, observing officer, a Prussian giant, well over six feet high and enormously stout. He was put in charge of a little Kentish man, standing five feet one in his socks. The German giant was frightened at the machine-gun fire of his own men, and he went back, crouching in a bearlike way, prodded from behind by the wee man in khaki. This sight, illuminated by the flares, was seen by the men left behind in the British trenches and they stood up on the parapets, laughing and cheering.

The amount of comedy this British battalion extracts from all this grim business is astounding. One of their number was once a member of Fred Karno's troupe and has not lost his old instincts for a knockabout turn. When he took a prisoner he caught him by the hand and danced a pas de quatre with him.

These things are worth, telling because they show how the English character keeps its individuality, its humor, and its extraordinary refusal to surrender to the gloom and tragedy of war, even in the hours like this which are truly frightful, and when death is at the elbow of every man.

These Kentish lads laughed and shouted in the glare of red and green lights, in the midst of machine-gun fire, in the tumult of guns, and when they came back from the farthest trench, sixty men were wearing sixty German helmets and grinning beneath them.

Entries For The Ottawa Fair

Entries for the Central Canada Exhibition—or the Ottawa Fair, as it is more popularly known — are coming in rapidly. The closing date for receipt is September 4th, but from the already large number received the fair this year will be one of the largest in the thirty years it has been conducted. From September 9th to 16th the spacious grounds at Ottawa will be the Mecca of the exhibitors from all parts of the Dominion.

The Federal Department of Agriculture has again lent its aid to the management, and the famous wool and egg exhibit will be on view, as well as the famous stallion Amner, sent to Canada by His Majesty the King for breeding purposes. This is the horse that was prevented from winning the historic Derby by Miss Davison, the suffragist, who threw herself on the course as the animal was well on the way to winning the race. The government wool and egg exhibit is well worth seeing, and competent assistants will be in charge to give full explanations.

In the way of special attractions, the directors of the fair have this year put forward special efforts. In addition to the splendid programme in front of the grandstand afternoons and evenings, there will be aeroplane and balloon ascensions daily, and thrilling manoeuvres will be executed in the air.

The formal opening of the big fair will take place on Monday, September 11th, and with the splendid exhibits in the live stock, agriculture, pure food and other departments already assured, together with the programmes arranged, a week of unprecedented educational value and amusement is assured.

DOUBT BREMEN REPORT.

LONDON, Aug. 11. — The report published widely on Tuesday that the German submarine Bremen had been sunk while on her way to an American port did not appear in The Berliner Tageblatt, as the despatch in question stated, but in the Bernd (Swizerland) Tageblatt. This newspaper merely stated it was "probable" the Bremen had been sunk, owing to an accident to her machinery. Nothing is known of this report in London, Amsterdam or The Hague.

He Had Demanded Fish.—A hungry Irishman went into a restaurant on a Friday and said to the waiter—"Have you any whale?" "No." "Have you any shark?" "No." "Have you any swordfish?" "No." "Have you any jellyfish?" "No." "All right," said the Irishman. "Then bring me ham and eggs and a beefstake smothered wid onions. The Lord knows I asked for fish."

Military News

EMPLOYMENT OF BOMBERS.
The nature of operations in the present fight with the Germans has developed the employment of rifle hand and catapult grenades, both in attack and defence to such an extent that the grenade has become one of the principal weapons in trench warfare. Every infantry soldier must, therefore, receive instruction in grenade throwing, and must at least know how to use the Mills grenade, and have thrown a live one in practice. It is not every man, however, who possesses the temperament or the qualifications necessary to make a really efficient bomber. Canadians, particularly those who are baseball players, make good grenade throwers and have succeeded in doing some very effective bombing in the trenches.

The bombing party operates as a unit, chiefly in the trench itself, its action being both offensive and defensive. Men selected for this work must be courageous, and at the front wear a distinctive badge. Bombing is being taught at Barrisfield camp under Captain Sharp and Lieut. Macnee, and dummy grenades have been furnished the school for the purpose of making men familiar with the knack of accurate throwing. Men take to the bombing instruction very readily, and like the work of the school.

A PARODY.
The boys from Camp Borden have written a parody that goes with the chorus music of the favorite sheet of music "Mother." It is making a big hit here and is rapidly finding place among the civilian population. The words are as follows:
"B" is for the beans we have for breakfast.
"O" for the oatmeal we never see
"R" is for the rind that's on the bacon
"D" is for the dust we have for tea.
"E" is for the eggs they feed the sergeants.
"N" is for the night we had the row.
Put them all together you have Borden,
The place they're stowing soldiers now.

Mr. David Speirs and his nephew Master Harry Huston, have returned to their home at Cold Springs, after spending a pleasant vacation at Healey Falls.

VACATION IS A HABIT THAT IS POPULAR

Warm Weather Hurts Railroads Business but Makes Steamship Owners Smile With Glee.

"Everybody has the vacation habit," said a well-known traffic man of the city. "People have come to expect a vacation as much as they expect to work. Time was when only the man with the roll top desk, a rug on the floor and who saw callers by appointment, took a vacation. Now everybody is included, beginning with the man that runs the elevator straight up to the mogul that occupies the inner office. Except that urgent business may spoil the latter's well laid vacation plans, the elevator man goes anyway now days. If there is no substitute, why the elevator itself takes a vacation. Every building is equipped with stair cases by law. A lot of people may have forgotten their existence through long disuse. But they are there just the same in readiness for such emergencies as the elevator man's vacation and fires.

"But putting aside any humor in the situation, the vacation habit is nearly all-embracing. Just what shape it takes depends largely on the weather. If it is cool the summer through, with little or no hot weather, the land trips are the favourites. In fact you can hardly give a water trip away in cool weather. But in such weather as has swept the country for the past month sends everyone looking for cool clothes, cool drinks, and a cool vacatin, and they take to the water as naturally as they do to the shade.

Destination Does Not Matter.

"Our sale of water trips in July jumped up 14 per cent. over similar sales in July, 1915, all because of the hot weather. It does not seem to make much difference what the destination, provided you get there by water. The various points on the Upper Lakes, Duluth, Georgian Bay, Detroit, Toronto, Kawartha Lakes, Alexandria Bay, the St. Lawrence river, Montreal, Quebec, are all favourites. Even the Bermudas are coming in for a big share of vacation traffic.

"A lot of water trips that are being taken this hot summer seem to lead nowhere. The objective seems to be to get off the land and stay off as long as the vacation lasts and get onto the water and stay there until the vacation is over.

"I suppose it is a wise habit, this custom of taking a vacation. We are all under Adam's curse to toil unremittingly, except that in a few instances the family fortune may intervene to satisfy the labour debt. So if we quit work a fortnight a year and imagine with more or less success that we still have a grip on Eden, I guess it helps a lot and whether we take a water trip, a land trip, or sit on a cool verandah and let the world wag, makes little real dierence."

IT BREAKS OUT ONCE IN A WHILE

Man's Primitive Instincts Manifested on Water Street Last Night.

Traces of man's primitive barbarity and rude animal instincts break out from beneath his superficial modern make-up occasionally and have to be quieted by the strong arm of the law.

Last evening several young fellows of rather loose tendencies were saunttring down Water Street in a "nothing-to-do" fashion, and suddenly started waltzing along the street to the strains of a little music coming from a near-by house. Respectable residents along Water Street immediately complained and the dancing pairs fell into the loving embraces of P. C. Blade and Sergeant Brown, who made the rest of the trip down Water Street with them to the Station.

LINDSAY AFTER NICKEL PLANT

LINDSAY, Aug. 11.— Ald. W. E. Baker, at a session of the council, referred to an article published recently re the establishment of the Provincial nickel plant in Lindsay. Ald. Baker thought it was important that the council should take prompt action in the matter. He moved that a committee consisting of Reeve Kylie, Deputy-Reeve Babcock and Ald. Matthie cooperate with the Board of Trade in taking immediate steps to press Lindsay's advantages on the Provincial Government with a view to having the plant located here.

A recruit, not remarkable for his intelligence was enlisted recently at a certain South Country depot in England. He got on remarkably well in his own estimation, and soon thought it was time he had an increase in pay. So one day he waited upon the orderly offices to request a rise. The officer intimated kindly that he was afraid he could not recommend him for a commission and he was scarcely proficient yet for the rank of regimental sergeant-major, so a rise was hardly possible. "Then," replied the soldier, with considerable dignity, "you'll please to take a week's notice, for I shan't stop."

STANISLAU HAS BEEN CAPTURED BY THE RUSSIANS

The Italians Continue To Make Rapid Progress

September Was The Date Set For The Big Drive In The Balkan War Zone

Possibility That Yesterday's Reported Fighting is Not the Chief Balkan Move, But is the First Since December—Intense Heat During the Summer Months Makes Daylight Operations Inadvisable.

A PRELIMINERY STEP

NEW YORK, August 12.—Advices from a reliable source in a European capital, received here, said that the Allies probably would not begin their Balkan offensive before September 15. The intense heat during the summer months makes daylight operations in the Balkans inadvisable, it was stated, but the most important reason for the delay was the fact that Roumania will have finished harvesting her crops by that time, and her farmer soldiers will be ready to take the field with the Allies. The Allies' plans call for an offensive that will keep Bulgaria busy while Roumania invades Hungary, co-operating with the Russians, these advices said.

In view of these despatches, it is considered possible that the capture of the Doiran railway station, officially announced yesterday, does not mark the actual beginning of the Allied offensive, but is a preliminary step, putting in the hands of the Allies another important position from which the great offensive can be started.

GAINS AROUND GORITZ.

The western front has been comparatively quiet for the past twenty-four hours, though the British War Office announced slight gains northwest of Poziores, and near Bazentin-Le-Petit. Rome despatches also announced further progress in the fighting around Goritz.

No important fighting has occurred on the Balkan front since last December, when the Anglo-French expeditionary forces under General Sarrail, retired from Southern Serbia under heavy pressure by superior forces of Austro-Germans and Bulgars. Artillery engagements have taken place at several points, and the Bulgars on one occasion crossed the Greek border and occupied small forts north of Demirhissar.

FIGHTING IS IMPORTANT, ANYWAY.

The fighting at Doiran, officially announced yesterday, is the most important Balkan engagement since the Allied retreat. Whether it marks the actual beginning of the offensive by the British, French and the re-equipped Serbian army, is not yet definitely known.

Recent reports from Athens stated that a very large part of the Austro-German troops that defended the Balkan line had been withdrawn because of the pressure of Allied troops on other fronts. The Bulgars, it was reported, had taken over the defence of Serbia from an Allied invasion. It was reported from Berlin two weeks ago that Field Marshal Von Mackensen, who directed the Austro-German Balkan campaign, had returned to the Russian front.

The exact number of Anglo-French and Serbian troops concentrated on the Balkan front is not known here. Some advices stated the Allies had 500,000 soldiers in Greece.

It has been rumoured for some time, however, that the Allies would strike the Balkans before winter.

Russians Capture City Of Stanislau

Notable Victory Won by Czars' Army—Main Defences Under Bombardment Several Days—Was an Important Teuton Base in Galicia—Russians Swept on and Took the Town Despite Stubborn Resistance.

OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT

PETROGRAD, August 12.—Stanislau, the Austro-Hungarian base in Galicia, has been captured by the Russians, it was officially announced by the War Office. The captured town lies on the Bystrzyca river and on the railway that runs all the way across from Galicia from Bukowina in the south to Lemberg in the north. It is about thirty miles north of Kolomea and sixty-six miles south of Lemberg.

The main defences of the city had been under heavy bombardment by the Russians and despite strong Teutonic resistance the Russians swept on and took the town.

STANISLAU BLOCKS THE ENTRANCE.

Stanislau blocks the entrance to two important places which may justly be considered the southern gateways to Lemberg. The more important of these places is Halics, on the Dneister, some twelve miles northwest of Stanislau, the second one being Jesupol, a small village covering the crossing of the Dneister by the railroad from Stanislau to Lemberg. With these two points in Russia's hands, not even the Zlota Lipa is available as a defensive position to which the Austrian line now on the Stripa can fall back.

TO CHECK A COLD.

It is easy to check a cold if you begin in time. Frequent doses of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine keep the cough loose, allay the inflammation, and so prevent it spreading to the bronchial tubes and lungs. Mrs. S. M. Moore, Shorwood, B.C., writes: "I wish to state my gratitude for Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, for it cured old which a friend said would soon put to in the grave."

Be sure the gun is loaded before attempting to teach the young idea how to shoot.

Lieut. Colingwood, Pioneers, has returned to Shorncliffe from France, and the following have left for France: Major Musgrove and Capt. Todd, Medicals, to No. 3 Casualty Clearing Station; Capt. Latta, Kingston, Medicals, to the Fourth Field Ambulance; Capts. Davis, B. C. Pratt, Stauffer, Traynor and Walsh, Ontario, and Lieut. C. B. Hill, Artillery, to the First Ammunition Column. Hon. Captain and Chaplain Earp, Regina, reports for duty with the base depot at Havre.

ANOTHER WAIL FROM THE U.S.A.

U.S. Writers Protest Against Censorship—Those in Germany Object to Britain Tampering with their Despatches.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—The State Department has forwarded to the American Embassy at London without common protest by several American newspaper correspondents ship of their despatches by the British of their despatches b ythe British officials.

The correspondents complained that much of their correspondence sent by way of Britain had been completely suppressed, and that many despatches permitted to go through had had passages and words deleted so as to convey an erroneous meaning, frequently exactly the reserve of was originally was interned.

State Department officials pointed out that the department had not committed itself in transmitting the protest and was bound to proceed cautiously in dealing with the subject. It has been informed that the German Government is freely exercising the same right of censorship over news originated in America and despatched to Germany. At present the disposition is to refrain from challenging the right of any belligerent Government to censor news despatches wherever such censorship is regarded as a military or political necessity.

FIVE ARE MISSING FOLLOWING STORM

Upturned Launch on the Shore Points to Tragedy.

ALL FROM EDMONTON

No Trace Discovered of the Occupants of the Boat.

EDMONTON, Aug. 11.—Word of a drowning accident on Wednesday at Lac La Biche, 126 miles northeast of Edmonton, in which five well-known Edmonton people are believed to have lost their lives, reached the city last night. The victims were: Harry Flowers, manager of the Sommerville Hardware Company here, and formerly of Regina; Mrs. Flowers, Mrs. Williams, wife of E. B. Williams, barrister; Mrs. Soper, wife of H. E. Soper, chief clerg of the Provincial Treasury Department, and their daughter, Elaine, aged 14.

They were all guests at the new J. D. McArthur Hotel, one the Fort McMurray at Lac la Biche. On Wednesday afternoon they were out on the lake in Mr. Flower's gasoline launch when a sever storm came up suddenly. Since that time no trace has been found of the party, and the upturned boat drifted ashore yesterday day afternoon.

Deutschland Seen Off Grand Banks

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Aug. 11.—The German submarine Deutschland, which sailed from Baltimore for Bremen, was sighted on Sunday night last off the Grand Banks by the Norwegian steamship Meteor, which arrived here. Capt. Johnston of the Meteor on his last trip out from Baltimore bound for England encountered the Deutschland going into Baltimore. What he saw of the vessel at that time makes his positive of his identification of the submarine which he sighted off the Grand Banks. The Meteor was in the regular steamship lanes, making for Philadelphia, when she sighted the undersea boat. It was getting dark at the time the submersible was encountered. The submarine circled around the Norwegian steamship and then resumed her eastward course.

100 HOGS MET DEATH ON WAY TO TORONTO

TORONTO, Aug. 11.—A sequel of what happened to a shipment of hogs which were brought by the C.N.R. from Winnipeg to Toronto on July 31 last was partly unfolded in the Toronto Police Court when the railway company was charged with "wantonly, cruelly, and unnecessarily ill-treating hogs by over-crowding them in cars, and not watering them, feeding them, or cleaning out the cars."

Staff-Sergt. McKinney of the Morality Department, who happened to be returning from his holidays at the time, boarded the one passenger car which was attached to the train of eleven hog cars, travelling as far as Sparrow Lake. At that point he and several other passengers, finding it impossible to endure the smell from the cars ahead, got off the train and demanded their tickets back. It is alleged that, upon investigation about 100 hogs were found dead and many had been partly devoured by the living animals. The Sergeant stated that the cars were a ghastly sight, with legs and pieces of dead pigs trailing out of the sides and that the intense heat made the condition horrible.

The case was adjourned for a week at the request of the company's solicitor.

Pontiff Desires Peaceful Ireland

LONDON, Aug. 11.—The Irish situation is being followed by the Pope with the keenest interest, according to the Liverpool Post, which states that the Pontiff is most anxious for the "pacification of Ireland". In an article in to-day's issue, the paper says:

"The Pope and the statesmen of the Vatican are most anxious for what is described as 'the pacification of Ireland'. The anxiety has been made known to the Irish Catholic hierarchy through the most direct sources, and of course, it has not escaped attention. The rector of the Irish College in Rome has been in close attention of late with the diplomats and statesmen of the Vatican and has conferred with divines who enjoy the Pope's confidence, including Cardinal Gasquet, who has recently been in England."

No Word of Raising Separation Allowance

Dependents of Canal Guard Get About $14 Instead of $20 as Others.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Aug. 11.—When headquarters of the Welland Canal Force at St. Catharines was communicated with regarding the rumour that the separation allowance for the wives and dependents of the members of the guard would be increased to about $20 a month there was no confirmation forthcoming; word had not been received of any increase, it was stated. At the present time the allowance is 45 cents a day, which amounts to about $14 a month. If the increase were granted the dependents of the members of the guard would be receiving the same separation allowance as dependents of overseas men are receiving. The military authorities have had the matter under consideration for some time, and several attempts have been made to have the allowance increased.

Hindenburg's Control Has Been Curtailed

German Field Marshal No Longer Controls All Teuton Forces.

Berne, Aug. 11. — After being in supreme command of all the armies on the Russian front for a short time, the power of Field Marshal von Hindenburg was curtailed, according to a despatch received here, setting forth hidden passages of the Central powers' military history.

Emperor Franz Josef, of Austria, was persuaded to give over the control of the Austro-Hungarian armies in the eastern theatre to von Hindenburg, and on July 30 the German field marshal assumed absolute command. After a few days the armies in the southern half of Galicia were taken out of the control of the German general and placed under Archduke Karl Franz Josef.

The field under Von Hindenburg now includes, in addition to the armies he formerly commanded, those of Prince Leopold, of Bavaria, Gen. von Linsingen, and Gen. Boehm-Ermolli, and extends to Tarnopol.

INCOME EQUALS BRITISH BURDEN

CHANCELLOR OF EXCHEQUER McKENNA REVEALS FINANCIAL STRENGTH OF EMPIRE.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—Reginald McKenna, Chancellor of the Exchequer, was subjected to criticism in the House of Commons on the ground of over-reliance upon Treasury bills, his critics arguing that the large amount of such bills outstanding constituted a danger, and that the Government ought to have issued another war loan.

In the course of his reply the Chancellor claimed that Great Britain was able to borrow abroad at much lower terms than any other belligerent power. He estimated the nation's total indebtedness at the end of the present financial year to be £3,440,000,000.

From that amount, said the Chancellor, the nation was entitled to deduct £800,000,000 loaned to the Allies and Dominions of the Empire, the sum left being a burden it could well sustain, as it was practically balanced by the national income. He declared Great Britain was in the position of a man whose income was £5,000 and whose debts amounted to £5,000, which was not an alarming position.

Dishonest Officer Was Sent to Jail

LONDON, Aug. 11—We are informed that the charge against Lieut. J. E. Armstrong, Artillery, who was cashiered and sentenced to twelve months last week, was one of dishonesty in connection with the messroom. The court took a lenient view for the sake of accused's wife and children.

Capt. Dowd, Medicals, has been attached to the Canadian Records Office in London, and Lieut. Stanford, paymaster of the 34th Reserves, is transferred to the 39th Ontarios, the remnants of the former battalion having been absorbed by the latter. Stanford was in charge of the Canadian Government emigration office at Antwerp when war was declared. Capt. Muirhead, Canadian Scottish, has been granted special leave until October 31. Capt. Wilson, C.M.R. who has just arrived from Canada, has been taken on the strength at the Canadian Training Division, Shorncliffe.

AMERICAN YACHTS SAIL FOR KING GEORGE'S CUP

MORTON F. PLANT'S ELENA WINS THE COVETED TROPHY AT NEWPORT REGATTA.

NEWPORT, R.I., Aug. 11.—Elena's series of victories in the cruising and racing week of the New York Yacht Club culminated this afternoon when Morton F. Plant's speedy yacht won the King George V. Cup, the most highly prised trophy of a series of races which has been rich in trophies.

This race is unusual as yacht races go nowadays, in that both sloops and schooners of stipulated measurements may compete on equal terms, the handicap allowances giving the single stickers a fair chance, as is shown by the fact that in the series of races, covering several seasons, for the King George V. Cup and for the King Edward Cup, which preceded the present trophy, seven sloops, as against three schooners, have won.

The three schooners are Enchantress, Queen and Elena, and the victorious sloops are Effort, Avenger, Aurora, Istalina (now converted into the schooner Irolita), Winsome, Spartan, Ventura, the latter the winner last year. The cup was not sailed for in 1914.

DOLLAR DAY

Merchants Please Notice

The Examiner has been asked to promote a Dollar Day in August—A large number of stores have signified their willingness to participate but it is too big a job to see everyone in the time remaining. Every store is welcome to be in the list of those giving the prizes, and have their firm's name and business published in the big advertising done free for Dollar Day by the Examiner. All who have not been seen are asked to call up Mr. Callender at the Examiner who is looking after the treasury box for the merchants, or 'phone a message for him to call and full particulars will be given them. The Examiner is anxious to give every store an equal amount of publicity which can only be done if all names are in when the first big announcement is made.

Take Iron For Your Blood

Makes You 100% Stronger in 10 Days

Phosphorous For Your Nerves

Doctors are now finding thousands of people who are going through life in misery with kidney trouble, liver complaint, nervous prostration, headaches, nervous indigestion, rheumatism, constipation and numerous other complaints, all due to lack of Iron in the blood and Phosphorus in the nerves.

Just as soon as the blood becomes thin, and nerves weakened you are unable to digest the little food you eat and at once your system becomes (poisoned, causing liver trouble, kidney pains, headaches, rheumatism, indigestion, heart trouble, and you soon are a living thin, run-down, nervous wreck, and life to you then is a burden. The first thing you should do is to go and get weighed; then go to the nearest drug store, and get some Bonised phosphorus with Iron tablets and take one or two after each good meal and you will find that in ten days you are 100 per cent. stronger. The Iron will give you good rich think blood and the phosphorus will strengthen your nerves and the food you eat will give you 100 per cent. more nourishment than before; you will begin to get fat, your nerves will be stronger, and you will feel like you used to when you were 16 years old. You know as well as ever, doctor, that there is nothing like good old iron to give you strength and build you up, while phosphorus acts wonders on the nervous system.

The iron recommended here is an entirely new form of iron which will not blacken the teeth or upset your stomach.

Life is short but you can lengthen it by 25 years if you take Bonised Phosphorus with Iron, which gives you digestive strength, and the food you eat will be nourishment to you instead of poisoning your system, causing so many complaints, which you know bring you to an early grave. Bonised Phosphorus with Iron does not contain an atom of arsenic, strychnine or any poison which has been proved so harmful is almost every tonic. It is easy to take and is taken up by the system almost immediately, making you feel 100 per cent. stronger in 10 days. It is dispensed in this city by F. C. Webber stores at 50c a box.

TURKS LIKELY TO PAY HEAVY COST

MUST ACCOUNT FOR WHOLESALE MURDER OF CHRISTIAN PEOPLES WHEN WAR IS SETTLED.

"Cedared Lebanon," one the most prosperous and highly civilized district in the East," says the Rochester Democrat and Chronicle, has been the scene of incredible suffering during the war. A correspondent of a Cairo newspaper says that up to May 10 more than 80,000 Christians in Lebanon had been massacred by the Turks. The terrible fate which befell the inhabitants of the venerable mountain region is said to be a striking illustration of Ottoman hypocrisy.

The government of Turkey had established a conciliatory policy toward Lebanon. She had allowed the citizens to retain administrative privileges, removed the soldiers of occupation, built schools for boys and girls and repatriated hostages. It appears, however, that a secret plot for murdering Christians on a vast scale was already under way. When the war reached a stage where the allies were fully occupied a pretext was found for taking vengeance on Lebanon's peaceable population.

The sufferings of Christians here and in other places under Ottoman domination are going to count very heavily against Turkey when a peace settlement is made. The Germans, whatever they may have left, have been forced to wink at the murderous doings of their "brave comrades in arms." But as it becomes increasingly probable that the Teutons will not be able to dictate peace terms the outlook for Turkey darkens.

It has been stated, apparently on reliable authority, that Russia has been promised both sides of the Dardanelles strait—which includes Constantinople. The Grand Duke Nicholas is conquering vast areas that are likely to remain in Russian possession. If the allies win they will probably contend that the Christian massacre was an arch crime to be avenged by a complete dismemberment of the Turkish Empire.

ALLIES USE REJECTED TEA.

Buy It for Their Soldiers After Entry Has Been Denied Here.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—The heavy rejections of tea made in the New York Customs district in the fiscal year ended June 30 did not result in total loss to the importers, as had been the case heretofore, for when the tea was denied entry because of its lack of quality, it was promptly bought up by the allied Governments for use by their military forces.

This port led all others in the entry of tea in the period specified above, according to a report issued yesterday by George F. Mitchell, Supervising Tea Examiner, and it also was first in the amount rejected as being below the quality established by the official standards.

Counting the so-called "tea districts" of the country, which include Boston, Chicago, Honolulu, New York, Puget Sound, St. Paul, and San Francisco, the total amount examined by the customs men for the year aggregated 109,536,526 pounds, of which the inspectors passed 107,767,953 pounds. Of the amount rejected only 2,163 pounds came under the ban on account of containing colouring or facing matter.

This district's entries of tea during the 12 months covered by the report totalled 38,026,715 pounds, of which the inspectors passed 36,947,365 pounds. Of the rejected tea only 378 pounds were turned down as having colouring or facing matter, and 1,078,974 pounds as being below quality. The Puget Sound district followed New York with 28,768,505 pounds examined, the rejections for quality being only 282,226 pounds.

In view of the campaign carried on for several years by the Government to discourage the importation of teas having colouring or facing material, the Supervising Examiner's report indicates success in this direction. Out of the entire 109,536,526 pounds presented for examination at Customs Houses, only 2,163 pounds were rejected as coloured.

According to the report, the most popular variety of tea consumed in the United States in the fiscal year in question was India-Ceylon, the total importations of which reached 35,287,420 pounds. Japan tea imports total 31,520,156 pounds, and Formosa Oolong, 18,068,373 pounds. Capers imports stood at the foot of the column with a record of 16,405 pounds.

AUTOINTOXICATION OR SELF-POISONING

The Dangerous Condition Which Produces Many Well Known Diseases.

HOW TO GUARD AGAINST THIS TROUBLE

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" — The Wonderful Fruit Medicine — will Protect You

Autointoxication means self-poisoning, caused by continuous or partial constipation, or insufficient action of the bowels.

Instead of the refuse matter passing daily from the body, it is absorbed by the blood. As a result, the Kidneys and Skin are overworked, in their efforts to rid the blood of this poisoning.

Poisoning of the blood in this way often causes Indigestion, Loss of Appetite and Disturbed Stomach. It may produce Headaches and Sleeplessness. It may irritate the Kidneys and bring on Pain in the Back, Rheumatism, Gout, and Rheumatic Pains. It is the chief cause of Eczema—and keeps the whole system unhealthy by the constant absorption into the blood of this refuse matter.

"Fruit-a-tives" will always cure Autointoxication or self-poisoning—as "Fruit-a-tives" acts gently on bowels, kidneys and skin, strengthens the bowels and tones up the nervous system.

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At all dealers or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

RUSSIANS ARE EAGER FOR NEWS OF BATTLES

Landowner Becomes Village Scribe—Villagers Take Newspapers and Throng Inadequate Libraries

Interest in the world war and a desire to learn what the hosts of the "Little Father" are doing and who the Allies, who are battling with them against the Teutonic armies, are, have caused a grand rush by the Russian peasants upon the popular libraries and reading rooms established several years ago by the Government. Unfortunately, according to the Rusky Wjedomosty of Moscow, these institutions are in no condition to supply the information wanted, as most of the books they contain treat of the training of dogs and similar subjects, pronounced harmless by the so-called Commission of Scholars appointed some time ago.

The Library System

The libraries in Russia, which really are adapted to the enlightenment of the people, are closely watched by the police, and are closed a great part of the time. The Society for the Promotion of Popular Education of Kursk, which was dissolved by Government order, alone maintained more than seventy libraries and reading rooms. It was directed by Dr. W. Dolschenko, a member of the first and second Duma.

Nevertheless the Russians are making the best of their limited opportunities, and the number of subscribers to the libraries and reading rooms still open has increased more than 60 per cent. in many parts of the country, despite the fact that so many of the peasants are at the front. A landowner in Central Russia sends in the following account of the eagerness for news shown by the people of his neighborhood. "I am now literally 'the village scribe,' as all of the educated men here are at the front. Every day crowds of women come to me to have letters written to their loved ones in the field. Something that gives me particular satisfaction is the interest taken by the villagers in the newspapers. Formerly I received only one paper for our four villages. Now that is by no means enough. The peasants have taken up a collection, and they subscribe for four metropolitan newspapers for each village."

New Papers Free

In other parts of Russia, where the people themselves fail to show much interest in the war and other world affairs, the news is being spread by the efforts of the radical educated element. The Russky Slowo of Moscow announces, for example, the founding of a newspaper called the Nevelsky Listok in the chief city of the Nevel district, which will be distributed free among the inhabitants of the villages in that section.

Mistaking a thunderclap for the bursting of a bomb, Mrs. Eliza Jane Thurley, sixty-five, dropped into a chair and died, it was stated at the inquest at Hackney.

Forty-three Dublin ammunition box makers were fined half a crown each for striking without notice for a penny an hour increase.

Watercolors by Sapper Moore-Jones, New Zealand Engineers, were shown to the King at Buckingham Palace.

Kitchener's Critics

When, after three awful disasters to British arms in South Africa under the command of Gen. Buller, The Daily Mail came out with the placard, "The Government's Christmas present, to the nation; Lord Roberts and Lord Kitchener to leave for the front," the whole British people gave a great sigh of relief; now the errors would be repaired. Roberts for tactics, Kitchener for organization. "He lived for his life work; his passion was for efficiency. He served no other god but the god of battles," said one of Kitchener's critics, but in two years he gave South Africa and the Empire peace.

FRANCE HELPS BELGIUM

War Work of Allied Women For Belgian Fighters

A fashion writer, turned war correspondent, writes from Paris as follows: I visited the Belgian section at the Louvre. Many hundreds of Parisiennes were sitting there working ceaselessly. All wore black. There was not a single one among them all who had not lost one or more of her dear ones, but they were working for the soldiers of Belgium and the parcels they made up lay all around them in piles reaching half way to the ceiling. The young girl who acted as manager showed me about. "You must remember," she said, "that the French and English prisoners of war in Germany as a rule get parcels from their homes, but the Belgian soldier does not even know if his home is still left standing. More often than not his family is scattered in three or four countries. Therefore it is our duty to see that he is not forgotten."

Once every week every man in the Belgian army receives a blank to fill out. He must say what he wants the most. A book, a shirt, a pair of boots, or a razor. All he has to do is to put it down and put his letter into the nearest military letter box, and the next week he receives a parcel containing just what he asked for, sent by the women of France, who endeavor to pay this off their debt of gratitude. The young girl showed me a letter she had received from a Belgian soldier. "I am told," he wrote, "that my wife is among the Belgian refugees who have come to Paris. I thank God that she is alive, but dare I ask you to let me know what she is doing, for I have heard things about her which no husband likes to hear?"

"And have you actually undertaken this delicate task?" I asked. The young girl blushes. "We have looked into the matter," she replies. "And now we are trying to console the husband as well as we may." I look at the enormous stacks of clothing of all kinds which these young girls have got together, and she says: "Of course, we do not get all these things as gifts. It costs 20,000 francs weekly to keep my little section going, and if you ask me where the money comes from I am glad to be able to say that it does not all come from the rich. No, the chief source of our revenue is the home savings bank of the French woman. In all France it would be difficult to find a single housewife, rich or poor, who has not her home savings bank into which she puts whatever money she is able to save out of her allowance for household expenses, servants or pin money. This is a kind of mobilization, too, you see."

Nobility in War

Millicent Duchess of Sutherland was in London on a brief visit from France, where since the beginning of the war she was nursing the wounded. She is the widow of the late Duke of Sutherland. Her second marriage took place in the early days of the war to Lieutenant-Colonel Percy Desmond Fitz-Gerald, D.S.O. Their wedding was a very interesting one. They had two or three days' leave, were married by special license, had a meal of honor at one of the fashionable hotels in their war kit, and left on the same day for the front.

Tirpitz and England

Grand Admiral Alfred Von Tirpitz, strangely enough, married a lady who was educated in England, and he sent his two daughters to the same school in that country. His only son, who is now a prisoner of war in British hands, was for a term of years at Oxford.

Jock's Wit and Thirst

In a certain hospital "somewhere in France" one of the nurses, before going out shopping, was inquiring of the wounded soldiers whether they required anything brought in, and, if so, what; when one poor chap asked her to bring him a bottle of "Scotch." She told him that was impossible, as he had been forbidden to drink anything. Whereupon he promptly replied: "Well, have it frozen, and I'll bite it."

Hair with Life and Lustre

Nothing responds so readily to a little care as the hair. We all—men and women—are irritated when our hair becomes brittle, dry and colorless.

ADONIS HED-RUB

is an invigorating hair tonic which keeps the hair in excellent condition and is cooling and refreshing to the scalp. Barbers have been using it for years. They find it makes the hair thicker, softer and brighter in color. Adonis Hed-Rub contains no sediment or grease.

GETS LOTS OF FRESH AIR

Every woman should keep in mind the importance of giving the lungs a plenty of air. To do this the slouching carriage must be replaced with an upright one. The head must be held up and the pressure on the lungs from the stooping position relieved. In this way the upper portions of the lungs can open and receive some share of the air taken in.

Consumption usually starts in that portion of the lungs so easily closed by a cramped, stooping posture, and there is no better way to ward off the "white plague" than to give the lungs all the air they can take without overdoing it. There is a natural limit to everything, and so of deep breathing.

To breathe deeply and hold each breath for a few moments and do it for a considerable length of time would result in a feeling of faintness, as the action acts as a pump and would draw the blood down from the brain to too great an extent.

Hence a person must use reason, watch the feelings, the sensation enjoyed, and be satisfied with a full meal, but be sure to get a full meal of the good fresh air.

GREASE ON THE STOVE.

If you spill grease upon a hot stove cover the spot at once with a thick layer of ashes; this will absorb the grease, so you will not be offended by its odour while burning, and a little later you can brush away the ashes, and none of the grease will remain.

Guard Baby's Health

Especially During Summer Months

The health, growth and even the life of the bottle-fed Baby depend on his food. If it cannot actually be mother's milk, it should duplicate it in composition and in germ-free purity.

Cow's milk, particularly in hot weather, is seldom free from dirt and harmful germs and so is usually dangerous to Baby's delicate constitution.

In happy contrast, the 'Allenburys' Foods provide a progressive dietary that is absolutely safe. The Milk Foods, Nos. 1 and 2, are prepared from clean, fresh cow's milk, modified to the composition of mother's milk, and entirely free from germs. The 'Allenburys' Malted Food No. 3, is equally pure and safe, and suited to babies from 6 months old upward. With People always speak wel lof a boy who minds his own business and who seems to be disposed to be somebody in time. This is a queer world; many people are watching us, and help often comes when and from whom we least expect. Confidence is the safe in which men often deposit rich treasures and as you prove worthy so will your reward of success be. There is a reward in success, which none but those who strive can enjoy. Deserve success and it will come.

A woman who fails in her home fails in all. Home is woman's realm, given into her hands to regulate, govern and beautify. If she fails here she may look in vain for another kingdom; for she has failed in the only spot where she could have ultimately succeeded. She has laid down the jewels which God gave her to brighten and polish, and in their place finds nothing but dust and ashes.

The home should be a place where man is always on his good behaviour; our kindest words, our pleasantest smiles, and our most particular favours, should be kept to exchange with our own household.

THE HOME CIRCLE COLUMN

Pleasant Evening Reveries—A Column Dedicated to Tired Mothers as They Join the Home Circle at Evening Tide

CRUDE THOUGHTS FROM THE EDITORIAL PEN

The first word a child utters is apt to be "Mother" and the old man in his dying dream calls "Mother" mother!" It matters not whether she was brought up in the surroundings of a city and in affluent home, and was dressed appropriately with reference to the demands of modern life, or whether she wore the old time cap and great round spectacles and apron of her own make, and knit your socks with her own needles, seated by the broad fireplace, with great black logs ablaze on a winter night. It matters not how many wrinkles crossed and recrossed her face, or how much her shoulders stooped with the burdens of a long life, if you painted a madonna hers would be the face. What a gentle hand she had when we were sick, and what a voice to soothe pain, fill up a room with peace and purity and light? And what sad a day that was when we came home and she could greet us not, for her lips were forever still.

To make your home happy, see that you make your wife feel that your affection and tenderness for her are in no degree diminished from the day you first sought her. Do not let her, when you can avoid it, to sit alone and go out walking alone. You would not have done so "once upon a time." Do not reserve all your blandness and fragrance for strangers or casual acquaintances. There are some men, judging from whose out-of-doors manners, it would seem that nothing was left to be desired, who are, nevertheless, of the urso-major tribe at home; men who keep their pleasant ways and genial smiles and cheerful words for company, and who can only be silent or peevish and exacting with their wives. Have such men any just reason to complain that their homes are not happy.

If your grown son or daughter have accomplished some difficult piece of work, rendering you essential assistance; or have climbed some step in the daily drill of study, or have acquired some new accomplishment, or added grace; or better than all have gained the victory over some bad habit or besetting sin—acknowledge it, see it, praise them for it. Let them see by your added tenderness, the deep joy and comfort it gives you. Thus you will create a great incentive to right conduct, and lay a broad foundation for a character which shall be redolent with a succulent fruit and fragrant blossoms.

It is natural and right that a mother should wish to see her daughter well educated and even highly accomplished; and it is a mistake that good and careful education should unfit a girl for the homely duties of cooking, dusting and general housework. On the contrary, those duties would be better performed if mothers would at the same time that they seek talented instructors for their daughers, impar to them some of their own culinary talent; there would be more good wives and marriages.

A man who has made a happy home for his wife and children, no matter what he has not done in the way of achieving wealth and honour; if he has done that he is a grand success. If he has not done that, and it is his own fault, thought he be the highest in the land, he is a most pitiable failure. We wonder how many men in a mad pursuit of gold, which characterizes the age, realize that there is no fortune which can be left to their families as great as the memory of a happy home.

No heart is insensible to words of praise or the kindly smile of approbation; and none are utterly above being affected by censure or blame; Children are patricularly sensitive in this respect. Nothing can discourage a child more than a spirit of incessant fault-finding, and perhaps nothing can exert a more painful influence upon both parent and child. If your little one, throuh the day, has been pleasant and obedient, and you say to him, "My son, you have been good to-day, and it makes me very happy," and if, with more than a usually affectionate embrace, you say "Good-night, my dear child," a throb of suppressed feelings fills his breast, and he resolves on always earning such approval.

Luncheon Hour at The Smart Hotels

Many Odd, Unual Costumes Worn by Out-of-Town Visitors

New York, Aug. 10.

The luncheon hour at the smart hotels, even in these mid-summer days is usually gay with pretty frocks. The dainty cotton frock, varied by taffetas and a few gabardines and serges, predominates, and as many of the pretty costumes are worn by out of town visitors, one glimpses, now and then, something delightfully new and original. At the Ritz-Carlton, the other day for instance, a young miss wore a dark blue serge frock with a pin stripe of scarlet and yellow, arranged about an inch apart. Her hat and shoes, which had high French heels, were bright scarlet The effect was striking but not unbecoming to one of her age.

Russian Blouse Costume.

An elderly woman with a quantity of soft white hair, sitting near by, wore a soft gray faillie gown, with a large sailor-shaped hat of black hatters' plush. Hatters' plush it is predicted, will be one of the popular materials for fall and winter hats Net, in black and white, composed many of the dresses and there were also a goodly number of delicately colored organdies.

Sports suits, too, are often worn the luncheon hour; that is, the soft, glove silk coats in the favored bright colors, combined with skirts of pongee in the natural shade. or with white or the popular stripes in vivid combination. The daintiest of the blouses are worn under these coats, of a pastel colored Georgette, batiste or a handkerchief linen.

POPULARITY OF GEORGETTE FROCKS.

The white Russian frock of Georgette, with perhaps a touch of contrasting color on the cuffs or collar is one of the favored designs for afternoon and evening wear in the city. Georgette is delightfully cool and graceful and lends itself particularly well to the season's styles, both for daytime and for evening wear. It is one of the sheer materials which really washes and wears very well making it practical for the modish transparent sleeve, the costume blouse and dance dress.

For dance dresses the printed Georgettes are youthful and pretty, some of these have printed borders, and plain white or colored grounds, and then again the softly tinted rose or conventionalized design is scattered over the material. on a ground of white or stripes. It is most effective and satisfactory for many purposes.

HOME-MADE SHAMPOO

Shampoo powders are usually very strong. You may make an excellent shampoo by melting ordinary white soap, cooling, addihg a little alcohol —say half a cupful to a pint of melted soap—and beating in an egg or two. Rinse the hair first with running warm water. Apply some of your shampoo mixture, rinse again, use more soap and egg and give a final rinsing. If any white substance shows on the brush and comb, you may know that your shampoo has not been a success.

Do not use salts of tartar on dark hair. Its use will brighten light hair and make it fluffy. Where light hair is very oily lemon juice may be added to the shampoo water. The daily use of the curling iron will often cause the hair to become harsh and broken. This is caused by heat taking away the natural oil. See that the iron is only moderately hot, or abandon its use completely.

Lemon juice is said to be very good for the face—for freckles. Apply it to the face with a bit of absorbent cotton. If your skin is not oversensitive, or with an equal part of peroxide. Otherwise it should be mixed with an equal part of water.

HINTS TO HOUSEKEEPERS

If you cannot inspire a woman with love for you, fill her with love for herself and all that runs over will be yours.

Be calm! Little minds are vexed with little trifles.

If your wife scolds or talks too much, don't talk back; sing to her: "I love you still."

To borrow is next door to begging.

Butter spoils no meat, or modern tion any cause.

There are two bores in society—the woman who knows too much and the woman who knows too little.

Don't fall in love with a woman for her pretty face; beauty and folly are often companions.

When angry with your child, always count 10, and if very angry count 100 before speaking.

A little boy was paying a visit with his father and when his hostess showed him a picture of herself and asked him if he would like one, he replied; "Yes, my mother don't care how much junk I bring home." Pity father!

The discreet man will not forget, when ladies are absent, that gentlemen may be present.

A widow is one who has buried her husband; a grass widow is one who has simply mislaid him.

Have the courage to laugh, since to weep brings sorrow to others.

"Pa, is a vessel a boat?" "Yes." "Well, what kind of a boat is a blood vessel?"

A laundry sign in the West reads: "We wash everything but the Baby."

The person who is perfectly satisfied with himself is unilkely to be satisfied with anybody else.

Because a woman's clothes fit her it does not follow that she can't work as well and as hard as the slouchily dressed individual.

Indian Economy

MANY careful people have found that Red Rose Tea is very economical—that it yields more cups to the pound. That is because it consists largely of Assam-Indian teas, which are famous for their full-bodied richness and strength. They make Red Rose Tea go farther.

Try the Indian Economy of this distinctive tea.

"We are going to start another lodge in the village, the Improved Order of Red Men, and want you to help."

Second Wife—"No help from me! What we need in this village is an Improved Order of White Men."

Remember that language was given to us that we might say pleasant things to one another.

TO PREVENT FADING.

When washing and rinsing colored materials add a tablespoonful of Epsom salts to each gallon of water and even the most delicate fabrics will neither fade nor run. Serge and such like materials which have been dyed black can be safely washed in this way without the risk of the dye running.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

GIRL'S ONE PIECE APRON.

By, Anabel Worthington.

Aprons on artistic lines for growing girls are being revived again and with some strength. This is a seemly time for you to make one for your daughter, if you appreciate the value of advance information on fashions for the younger generation.

The designer responsible for the design, No. 7817, surely loves little girls, to give such a treat in an apron—perhaps when she was a school girl she longed for one like this. It is modish and easily made because of being in one piece. The cut out side section gives a very distinctive style; the treatment that gives the epaulet shoulder tabs that the cape effect is fashionable in aprons as well as in dresses. Edging and insertion effectively trim the square neck and the sides front and back. A belt of the material gives a fitted back to the model, the front being unbelted and semi-fitted.

Dotted swiss, lawn, linen, crossbar and the like will be suitable for developing unless you prefer galatea, madras, figured percale or fancy gingham. The pattern, No. 7,817, is cut in sizes 6 to 14 years. To make in size 10 will require 1⅞ yards of 36 inch material, 2⅝ yards insertion and 3⅛ yards edging.

You may obtain this pattern by sending [illegible] to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

A PARTING OF THE WAYS.—AT THE ENTRANCE TO A "BOYAU OBLIGATOIRE" ON THE WESTERN FRONT.

Behind the French firing lines extends a network of "boyaux" or communicating trenches. The parallel firing trenches are, of course, known as "les tranchees," the various zigzag ways which connect the front lines with the rear as "boyaux." Here we see the rear entry to a "boyau" guarded by its sentry, who sits for hours in his little shelter, pipe and paper to keep him company. The figures seen coming toward the spectator along the quiet pastoral road are making for the entrance to the "boyau." They will not be able to enter unless they have the proper pass or password. It is by courtesy of the French government that our readers are enabled to view this entrance at close hand. This network of "boyaux" extends for some five hundred miles across France.

TWO MEN OF THE FIRST ROYAL MUNSTER FUSILIERS BRINGING TWO UNINJURED HORSES BACK TO THE BRITISH LINES DURING A SEVERE TURKISH BOMBARDMENT.

"This incident," writes an officer who witnessed the scene, "deserves to be recorded. We were in trenches just on this side of the foreground; a four-horsed wagon containing poles for telegraphic purposes was coming over the hill, and just as it got to the crest a shell dropped near the wagon, badly damaging it and killing two of the horses. There were, however, still two horses left, and as the shaft pole was now sticking up at an angle the Turks evidently took it to be a gun and began dropping shells at the rate of four a minute. The horses seemed to possess a charmed life. Shell after shell dropped. It seemed impossible that they could live. Then through my glasses I could see two men trying to cut the animals loose. When they heard a shell coming I saw one man take cover behind a tree and the other get behind the wagon. A few minutes later they galloped the horses bareback past our trenches amid cheers from their friends. They were two men of the First Royal Munster Fusiliers. They both received promotion that evening."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Strip of Seaweed

It Was Given as a Token at the Time of a Betrothal.

By F. A. MITCHEL

In the olden time Newport, R. I., was an important shipping port. Indeed, until the period of the Revolution a number of points on the Atlantic coast were about equally prominent in this respect. As the years rolled on all except New York, Boston and Philadelphia dropped out, the latter finally leaving the first the supremacy.

In that early day on the beach where now in the summer season hundreds, at times thousands, of fashionable persons drive and lounge and bathe, one moonlight night a young man and a girl sat looking out upon the gilded water. They were Edmond Roscoe and Evalina Blair, the young man a son of a prominent shipowner, the girl the daughter of a merchant. There were no sounds of revelry in the little town back of them, as there are now at that season, and, as for the beach, not a sound was to be heard except the plash of the sluggish waves as they broke and rolled in on the sand.

There could be no more fitting place for a young man to tell his story to a maiden, and Edmond Roscoe was telling Evalina Blair his love for her. Then and there their troth was plighted under the yellow light of the moon, the lovers' voices accompanied by the effervescing sound of the waves as they slid up in foam on the smooth sands.

There were both happiness and sadness for these two young creatures whose lives seemed so much to them. In a few days they were to part for several years. Evalina was to go to England that her education might be finished under the supervision of an aunt, for she was of the Blairs of Devonshire, a family of country gentlemen and ladies of blue blood, and must needs be given accomplishments suitable to her rank. Edmond was to enter Brown university, which was then in its babyhood and soon to give up its as yet only dormitory to quarter soldiers of the Revolution.

Two transports of betrothal were scarcely over when Edmond said:

"You are going to a land where you will meet many persons of rank and fashion. I know that you will be a belle among them. Some man, possibly a noble, will fall in love with you. You will dread to return to this uncultivated land. You will remain in England, and I shall never see you again."

Looking at him through her earnest eyes, she replied:

"Give me some token by which I shall remember these words of yours. If I am tempted by fortune to remain in England I promise you I will look at it and am sure it will bring up before me the happiness of this evening, and I shall choose you and the life of a simple Rhode Island woman in preference to that of a lady of rank."

"Alas, I have nothing suitable. I should give you a ring or"—

"I wish no bauble," replied Evalina. "Give me something to remind me of these sands, the ocean, the plash of the waves."

Looking about him, Edmond saw a seaweed lying within his reach. Taking it up, he handed it to Evalina. She took it and, spreading it out on her lap, said:

"I, Evalina, promise you, Edmond, that in case I am tempted to place rank and fortune before my love for you I will think of you with this plant of the sea before me. And I assure you that when I have finished my education I will bring the token to you as evidence that I have been true to you and my heart has been always yours."

After this assurance there was a long embrace. Then they arose and, taking a path which is now a broad avenue, returned to the town.

Every day, or, rather, every evening, till Evalina's departure the lovers went to the beach. They were not troubled even in the daytime with persons to disturb their meetings. There were no bathers in fantastic suits, no carriages, no loungers. The last evening before Evalina's departure they passed there. The moon rose, as it were, out of the ocean, the first spark appearing like a far distant bonfire, then gliding the shore over the crests of the waves, and finally the great round disk rested on the horizon of water.

"Heaven grant," said Edmond, "that we will again see this beautiful sight and that we shall then be one."

"If I live you will have your wish," replied Evalina.

The next day the ship that was to carry her to England sailed from the little town on Narragansett bay, the lovers, waving until they could distinguish each other's forms no longer.

During the first year of their separation Evalina wrote regularly to her lover. The second year abroad was for an education in social life. As her lover had predicted, she became a belle. She wrote Edmond of the fine people she met, of the amusements common among persons of quality. But her letters showed no diminution of love for him and indicated that she looked forward to their reunion with as much hope and pleasure as when she had left him.

Yet there was a great deal that she did not write him. She did not write of the offers of marriage that followed one another in rapid succession.

When these offers of marriage were showered upon Evalina she declined them without giving as a reason a previous attachment. Later, possibly no one might hide behind gauze, she frequently wore as a decoration the seaweed that her American lover had given her. Sometimes it was tacked to her skirt, sometimes she wore it in her corsage, and again it would be intertwined with her hair. In time she came to be called the Seaweed Lady.

Meanwhile Roscoe was studying as a collegian, though his mind was with his heart, and that was across the ocean. He read with avidity Evalina's letters and shuddered as he thought of the differences between himself, an undergraduate of a college but a few years old, without fortune, compared with some coroneted man with vast estates. Evalina's letters were reassuring, but she was growing from maidenhood to womanhood, and would she not give way at last?

However, the period allotted for her sojourn abroad was drawing to a close. She did not write her lover that she was coming home for the reason that she did not know if she would be permitted to return. Her parents were much chagrined at hearing that she had refused an earl and the second son of a duke and were debating whether to send the funds for her passage back to America or insist that she remain longer.

It was two years from the time of Evalina's departure that a storm such as Newport had not experienced in many years broke upon the coast. For three days the giant waves struck wildly upon the cliffs and rolled far up into Narragansett bay. Then, on the evening of the third day, the clouds broke away in the west, and the sun set in golden splendor.

That night the moon was at the full. As the sun went down the queen of night rose. Edmond, desiring to view the effect of the storm on the waves, when night had fallen and the moon was lighting the land and the water, started for the beach. The path was lonely, and there was terror in the tumbling of the great waves on the sands. The only likeness to the night of Edmond and Evalina's betrothal was the full moon.

He had passed midway from the town to the water when he saw before him a figure that he knew to be a woman by her garments fluttering in the wind, which was still strong. She seemed to be coming toward him, but as he advanced drew no nearer to him. He went on until he came to the edge of the beach and saw her still distant from him, sometimes flitting nearer, sometimes further, and always seeming to rock like a bird resting on the crest of a wave.

Whether it was the night, still disturbed by the storm that had passed, or something bewildering in this unsteady figure, Roscoe could never tell, but an appalling premonition stretched a pall over him like the wings of some huge black bird. Something within him seemed to say: "A great misfortune has fallen upon you. The wind and the waves are a dirge. Be strong or you will be crushed."

And now, having reached a point overlooking the water, the sands being soaked, progress was slower. Scattered ragged clouds were flying above, now and again dashing across the face of the moon and shutting off its light. At these dark periods the flitting figure was lost, but reappeared when the cloud had passed and the full light of the moon was released.

Edmond had spent many an hour when home from college on the spot where he and Evalina had spoken their betrothal, and he saw that the figure was slowly moving toward it. Yet it was the movement of a floating object, driven by alternate advancing and receding waters, yet borne by an invisible tide toward a given point. But notwithstanding this apparently slow movement he gained but little on the figure. At last it reached the very spot where he and Evalina had plighted their troth. There it paused. Hastening his steps so far as he could—the moon at the moment was overcast—he advanced to join the figure. When he was a few yards from it a bright light burst from the moon and revealed—Evalina, looking at him with pale and melancholy visage.

He sprang toward her with outstretched arms, but at the moment another black cloud swept across the face of the only available light and hid his from her. When it had passed she had vanished.

At his feet was a strip of seaweed.

When morning came a boatman stalking along over the soft sands saw a man lying so still that he thought it might be one cast in from a wreck by the storm. He found Edmond Roscoe. There was life in him, and the boatman after rousing him helped him home.

A ship came in and with it news that Evalina had departed for America. But the vessel on which she sailed never reached port. Pieces of wreck came ashore on the coast, denoting that a ship had foundered, but no fragment bore its name.

Edmond Roscoe never went back to college. He had lost all ambition, all desire for life. It was claimed that he had received some physical stroke which impaired his mental faculties. Whether this were so or whether the loss of his betrothal and his ailment were a coincidence was never settled. He was often seen on the beach at Newport wandering about aimlessly or sitting on one spot looking out on the water. This continued till he was an old man, and in the town in which he lived a few residents of other places began to build cottages for summer residences.

Just Oatmeal.

A Scottish farmer was being questioned by a lawyer in a local court. "You affirm that when this happened you were going home to a meal?" said the lawyer. "Let us be quite certain on this point, because it is a very important one. Be good enough to tell me what meal it was you were going home to." "You would like to know what meal it was?" said the Scotsman. "Yes, sir, I should like to know," replied the lawyer impressively. "Weel, then, it was just oatmeal!"

Too Sympathetic—One morning the teacher found little Harry sitting on a public seat in the park, wearing an exceedingly pained countenance. "What is the matter?" asked the teacher. "Are you hurt?" "No," answered Harry. "Have you lost anything?" "No" "Well, Harry", insisted teacher "what is the matter with you?" "I'm sitting on a wasp". "A wasp!", exclaimed teacher. "Why in the world don't you get up?" "I'm thinking," said the boy, "that maybe I'm hurting the wasp as much as he's hurting me."

A Case of Identification.

"Is that the officer who arrested you?" his honor inquired of Mose Hanibel, an old negro whitewash artist, arrested for assault.

"I can't reckerlect," answered the prisoner.

"Sure, I arrested him, judge," put in the policeman, with indignation. "He knows it too."

"Take a good look at him, Moses," insisted the judge. "Ain't that face familiar?"

The darky squinted long and scowlingly at his accuser.

"Now dat I 'spect mo' keer, judge," he said, "'peers like dey is somethin' familyus erbout dat face, but dis yere worl' is so full ob nacherally ugly folks jes' an ordinary man kain't always tell de diffunce between 'em. Construction of Big Guns.

The making of a big gun involves as much intricate work as the putting together of a locomotive or a giant crane. A twelve inch gun on board a battleship is fifty feet in length and has an extreme range of twenty-five miles and an effective range of twelve miles. There is a vast amount of intricate and delicate, trained workmanship wanted in the finish of a giant cannon. For example, says a writer in the Millgate Monthly, the breech block has to undergo eighteen or twenty machinings. And all the medley of mechanism necessary to enable the ponderous mass of ordnance to move to the right or left or up or down at a touch from the naval gunners is being built up together at the same time as the work proceeds on the gun itself. For some of the smaller guns no fewer than 550 machinings on 280 parts are necessary before the weapon is ready for use.

A MODERN EL DORADO.

The Coeur d'Alenes are the El Dorado of Idaho. What they do for Shoshone county, says the Spokane Spokesman-Review, transcends the wildest dreams of the most covetous Spaniard in Mexico, Pern or the golden Indies during the sixteenth century.

The valuation of that county for 1916, will show an increase approximately of $5,000,000 above its valuation for 1915. The greatest gain will appear in the net profits from its mines. Last year these appeared on the assessor's account as equalling $6,042,752 This year the same profits total $9,794,632. The growth amounts to $3,751,880. The percentage of gain in a single twelve month is between 62 and 63 per cent. This is stupendous and staggering.

It appears very doubtful in the extreme whether any other community in the Pacific Northwest can show the same percentage of gain in valuation as Shoshone county. Possibly none can show the same amount of increase in absolute valuation. Moreover there seems to be every reason for expecting this marvellous exhibit to continue. The mines form the treasure house of Idaho and one of those throughout the world.

Not to be overlooked is the fact that this wealth was extracted from the mines by men paid wages, nor the further fact that their wages are as high as any miners in the world receive in silver-lead workings, if indeed they are not higher. Applied 4 1-2

HOME HEALTH CLUB

By DR. DAVID H. REEDER

HEADACHE: Not long ago I had occasion to visit a lumber yard. It was a very hot day and the proprietor usually a bright and cheerful man, was glum and sour looking. Presently he apologized for his manner, saying that he had been suffering with a terrific headache for three days and found it very difficult to attend to his business. He did not ask for medical advice and I did not volunteer any, but I kept watching him for ten minutes or more and I became satisfied as to the cause of his suffering. I then asked him casually what he had taken for the trouble and he shook his head in disgust, "Everything I could think of or get, but it does no good."

I walked over to him and placed my fingers on the third cervical vertebrae and at the same time said, "Your trouble is here and that is the reason medicine won't help you." I then grasped his head firmly and turned it quickly and sharply to the right while holding my long finger against the bone. There was a sharp snaping noise, the same as is produced by cracking the knuckles or finger joints, followed at first by a frightened look, then a look of astonishment and he turned to me with an exultant smile and said, "I have no more headache than a rabbit."

The cause of his suffering was a slight sub-luxation of the third cervical vertebrae. Most doctors would have given him drugs, which do not remove the cause but simply aggravate the trouble through injury to the stomach. I like the following sensible article from Vol. 3, No. 11, of the little magazine, "Our Tubercular Children."

"A headache is a popular disorder. Nearly everybody now and then disgraces himself with one. A headache is not a disease in itself. It is just a danger signal. It is nature's fog horn, announcing shoals near by. It is usually a sign of some functional disorder, something gone wrong. Right then is the latest date for filing an inquiry with yourself to find out the cause of the disturbance in the "upper story." Most headaches are easily preventable. The cause will usually be found if we will sit down and analyze our acts for the last 24 or 36 hours. It will frequently be found to be due to something we have eaten or drunk, causing slight digestive disturbance or constipation. Working in close, poorly ventilated rooms, worry, anxiety, and too close mental application are also frequent causes of headache.

If every one would play fair with himself and refuse to treat his headache until he had first made an earnest, honest effort to locate the real seat of trouble, and then remove that cause and resolve to sin no more, we would have fewer drug habitues, dope fiends, coffee topers, and cocoa-cola drinkers.

To cure a headache, don't try the drug route. Beware of the get-well-quick schemes. They are dangerous, particularly for weak hearts. After you locate the cause, endeavour to apply the remedy in the opposite direction. If it is indigestion give your stomach a rest for a meal or two. If it is constipation, relieve the situation and then don't stop up your plumbing system again with such foods. Eat more fruits and vegetables and drink more water. If it is lack of exercise and ventilation, take a walk in the open air. Walk slowly at first and increase your speed a little as the pain subsides.

If the headache is still rebellious, take a hot foot bath and apply a cloth wrung from cold water to the head, neck and face. If it is very severe, apply an ice bag to the base of the brain. Mustard plasters applied to the forehead and back of the neck constitute counter irritants and drive away the excess blood. Care should be taken that they do not blister. Nervous headaches yield readily to the soothing effects of rubbing. If possible, get some one to rub from the middle of the forehead backward across the temples gently for a few minutes.

Don't be satisfied with relieving a headache. Go one step further and remove the cause. Remember a headache is a disgrace. It is a punishment for violating Nature's laws.

Club Notes.

I will gladly answer all inquiries for information on health subjects from readers of this publication if same are addressed to Home Health Club, 5039 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago, Ill. Send full name and address with 4 cents postage.

Dear Doctor,—I have had a severe cold for the past seven weeks, everything smelled and tasted bad. I am somewhat better but I cough a great deal, especially in the mornings, and my left lung feels sore about the middle of left breast, also in the back. I seem to catch cold very easily and my throat is sore all the time, especially in the evening.

My little girl of four has some skin disease. It is not hereditary. I first noticed it a year ago and showed it to the doctor, but in plain words he did not know what it was. The trouble comes like chapped skin and gets as large as an American quarter, perhaps 3 or 4 of them. Then they go away for some time to appear again. They are worse in summer but are not itchy. They smart if I apply Zam-buck or eczema salve. Would you kindly advise me?

Mrs. O. D.

Answer: The catarrhal condition that has set up from the severe cold can no doubt be entirely relieved by the practice of the exercise in the Home Health Club book, Vol. 2, under the heading of Catarrh, and in order to keep the difficulty from going down into the lungs you would be wise to put into practice the instructions given in the same book on Consumption and Its Prevention. You will find many other excellent directions for preventing colds and building yourself up into strong, healthy condition in the various books.

In regard to the difficulty in the case of your little girl I am inclined to think it is what is called Salt Rheum, and the simple home treatment described in the Club books would overcome it. However, for the benefit of others I might suggest that it can as a rule be readily cured by the local application of hot vinegar. Take ordinary vinegar and heat it and apply to the affected parts for several minutes at a time, afterward rubbing on warm olive oil.

EXILED ARMENIANS STARVE IN THE DESERT.

Turks Drive Them Like Slaves, American Committee Hears—Treatment Raises Death Rate.

BOSTON, Aug. 9.—The desperate condition of deported Armenians in the deserts of Northern Arabia and the Lower Euphrates Valley is described in a cable despatch made public by the American Committee which, says the despatch, was received through "high diplomatic authority in Turkey, not American, reporting the testimony of trustworthy witnesses over wide areas, in the regions mentioned."

According to the despatch, witnesses have seen famished Armenians "eating grass, herbs, and locusts, and in desperate cases dead animals and human bodies are reported to have been eaten," The despatch continues:

"The witnesses have seen thousands of deported Armenians under tents in the open, in caravans on the march, descending the river in boats and in all phases of their miserable life. Only in a few places does the Government issue any rations, and those are quite insufficient. The people, therefore, themselves are forced to satisfy their hunger with food begged in that scanty land or found in the parched fields.

"Naturally, the death rate from starvation and sickness is very high and is increased by the brutal treatment of the authorities, whose bearing toward the exiles as they are being driven back and forth over the desert is not unlike that of slave drivers. With few exceptions no shelter of any kind is provided and the people coming from a cold climate are left under the scorching desert sun without food and water. Temporary relief can only be obtained by the few able to pay officials."

The misery and hopelessness of the situation are such that many are reported to resort to suicide.

6 Months Old Baby CURED OF DIARRHOEA

During the hot weather young children are very much subject to diarrhoea, in fact, more so than adults, on account of the more delicate construction of their constitution. It behoves every mother to look after her children on the first sign of any looseness of the bowels, for if they do not some serious bowel trouble such as diarrhoea, dysentery, cholera infantum, cholera morbus, Summer complaint, etc., is liable to follow, and they will, perhaps, loose their little one by not taking the precaution to check this looseness of the bowels by using Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry.

Mrs. Chas. Monck, Marlbank, Ont., writes: "When my little girl was about six months old she took a severe attack of diarrhoea. I tried castor oil, daudanum and other treatments, but they were of no use. A neighbour told me about Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. I tried it, and after giving my baby two doses I could see a great change for the better. I have always proised "Dr. Fowler's" since then."

Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry is the original. See you get it when you ask for it.

IT'S COMING!
EXAMINER and MERCHANTS'

Great DOLLAR DAY
MONEY SAVING EVENT
Will soon be here

GRATIFIED by the enthusiasm of the people over the previous Dollar Days in Peterboro, and urged by the people from outside who were unable to attend the last one owing to bad roads, the Examiner is again co-operating with the Merchants in featuring a Midsummer Dollar Day—

WEDNESDAY AUGUST 23rd

The date selected should be the most suitable of all the summer season, for a record crowd to attend from outside points. There's everything to come for, and only regrets if you don't. There's a company of hustling merchants preparing a feast unequalled in the history of the city. In any line of goods you want, you will find your Dollar has a buying power you would have thought impossible. As Dollar Day selling is just for one day, the merchants, in order to add zest to the excitment, make their offerings look reckless, but it is because they have entered into the spirit of the thing, and they are bound to do their part at considerable loss.

The list of merchants will be published in later issues, and it will be well to get the participating stores fixed in your mind to save delay when the great day comes. In addition to the splendid values offered the merchants are giving away,

$150.00 in Treasure Box Bonuses

This money will be given away in this way:—With every dollar purchase on that day, an estimating blank will be given to the purchaser. You will fill in your name and address, and a number representing your estimate on the following question:

Estimate the Number of these Blanks that will be filled in and Dropped into the Ballot Box at The Examiner Office by 10.15 p. m. on Dollar Day.

The nearest correct estimate will be awarded the first bonus of $20.00; the second $15.00; the third $10.00, and so on.

As a guide in estimasting the probable number of blanks that will be used the two previous Dollar Day results may be studied. On the first one, Mar. 12, 1914 with good weather and roads, there were 16,000 blanks dropped into the box at the Examiner office. On the next Dollar Day in 1915, with bad weather and impassable roads, the result showed only 10,807 estimate blanks but in the box. With these figures as a guide, an intelligent estimate can be made, if weather and season are taken into consideration.

The Dollar Day crowd is the happiest gathering that meets in Peterboro in the year.

You can recognize all the stores where Dollar Specials are being given by the Red Lettered Pennants in the windows.

RAILWAY RATES Parties of Ten coming from any one point to Peterborough on Wednesday, August 23rd, Dollar Day, can secure a rate of fare and one-third by making application to their local station agent.

Enemy Made Futile Attempts to Recapture Lost Ground

Russians Continue Rapid Advance Towards Lemberg

The Germans Fail in Attempts to Recapture Ground At Pozieres

Enemy Was Driven Back With Heavy Losses---French Troops Made Further Progress on the Front Northeast of Verdun---Russian Forces Have Advanced Twenty Miles in Four Days---The News From Both Petrograd and Rome Suggests That the Demoralization of the Austrian Armies May be More Complete Than Earlier Advices Indicate.

RUSSIANS HAVE CROSSED RIVER

LONDON, Aug. 12.—The Germans last night made futile attempts to recapture the trenches and high ground north of Pozieres recently captured by the Australians, General Haig reported this afternoon. The Teutons suffered heavy losses.

PARIS, Aug. 12.—(French Official Communique).—The French repulsed heavy German attacks on both sides of the Somme last night, it was officially announced to-day, and made further progress on the front north-east of Verdun. At 9 o'clock last night the Germans launched an attack against the Hem Quarry north of the Somme, losing heavily. This attack broke down under the French fire. The French meanwhile continued to organize their new front in this region where progress was made yesterday. French reconnoitering parties entering a wood east of Hem found heaps of enemy dead. South of the Somme the Germans delivered an attack against La Maisonette. This attempt was checked by the French screen fire before the enemy could debouch. On the Verdun front, French detachments made progress south of the Thiamont Work, and repulsed two German attacks at Fleury. Artillery combats occurred on the sectors of Vaux Chapitre and Chenois.

Two Separate Russian Forces Now Converging on Halitz

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, Aug. 12.—The advance guard of the Russian force that occupied Stanislau is now close to Halitz, according to Petrograd despatches to-day. Two separate Russian forces are now converging on Halitz, the immediate objective of General Letchitsky in his drive against Lemberg. There is no indication in despatches from either Petrograd, Berlin, or Vienna that the Russian advance, the most rapid made by any army since the Austro-German Balkan campaign, has been even slowed up. In four days the Slavs have progressed twenty miles, advancing over poorly built highways and crossing three rivers. In the fighting about Stanislau alone they have taken nearly twenty villages and towns. Battling over much more difficult country, the Italians have scored successes of equal importance in their southward swing toward Trieste. The news from both Petrograd and Rome suggests that the demoralization of the Austrian armies may be more complete than earlier advices indicate.

PETROGRAD, Aug. 12.—The Russians troops in Galicia have crossed the river Koropice and captured two villages.

LONDON, Aug. 12.—General Letchitsky's forces have crossed the Zlota Bistritz River, near Stanislau, in their pursuit of the retreating Austrians, and the Czarna Bistritza River, in the region of Nadvorna, twenty-two miles south-east of Stanislau, it was officially announced to-day.

THE BATTLE IS SPREADING.

ROME, Aug. 12.—The battle of the Izonzo front has spread northward to the region of Plava, north of Goritz, while the third army continues to sweep the Austrians from the river bend south of the captured city. Infantry fighting has broken out on the plata front, following a terrific bombardment.

HOSTILE AEROPLANES DROPPED BOMBS.

LONDON, Aug. 12.—Two German aeroplanes dropped four bombs on the English coast town of Dover at 10.25 this afternoon. No material damage was done.

TWELVE ALLIED SHIPS SUNK

Examiner Special:

LONDON, Aug. 12. —Twelve allied merchant ships mostly small vessels, were sunk by German submarines and mines in various seas in last two days. Four lives lost.

WANTED—Men, good pay, steady work, Apply The Quaker Oats Company.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

Subscribers who are in arrears to the Patriotic Fund are pleading upon the Committee the necessity of taking harsh measures to effect collection. Notices have been mailed to all such, and the response must be immediate in order that the Fund will meet the needs of those dependent upon it.

The patriotic spirit evidenced at the canvass appears to have died out in many of those who promised to contribute, but obligations were assumed by the Committee on the basis of the promises made and these must be met. The books are with Mr. Crane at the Dominion Bank, to whom payments may be made, or to Mr. Dunsford of the Bank of Commerce.

Munition Makers Receive $9 a Day

This is One of the Maximum Wages Reported and While it May Seem Conspicuous It is Not an Isolated Case in Local Factories.

A HEAVY DAY'S WORK

Munition makers are receiving wages as high as nine dollars per ten hour day in some of the local factories. They are paid on a piece work scale, a day's earnings depending on their own industry and the smooth running of their machines. A year of such wages would put the workman in the class of "profiteers," or those who were lucky enough to pick up a war bride on the market, for the total would run to something like $2,592. That's fair going for men who knew no more about the making of munitions before they went into the plant than did the boys at the front know of firing them before they were introduced to the big guns.

Of course the man who handles one hundred big shells in a day has been at no pink tea affair. If they are 90 pound shells, one of the heaviest that is made in Peterboro, he has by lifting them on to and off his machines moved an aggregate of nine tons during the day. Regarded from the derrick angle he has been paid at the rate of one dollar a ton.

It is not known whether nine dollars is the possible maximum for the machine men or not but it should be sufficiently alluring to tempt others to emulate the industry that earned it. Others may be satisfied with modest little wages of seven, six or five dollars a day, or possibly four, but in these days the reports of big wages have lost their novelty.

A gentleman who had lost one son and has another at the front recently stated that a woman had remarked to him that if the war lasted another two years her family would be independent. Comment upon his feelings and her attitude is unnecessary.

HUGE STRIKE IS THREATENED

Mediation Fails to Settle Controversy Between New York Railway Employees and Managers

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—The 400,000 railway employees seemed farther away than ever from peaceful settlement of their differences with the railroad managers to-day, as the employees' representatives went into session with the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Board.

A Later Despatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—Shortly before noon Judge Martin Knapp of the United States' Board of Conciliation and Mediation announced that the mediation had failed in the controversy between four hundred thousand railway employees and the managers of two hundred and twenty-five railroads are affected.

Remained at Home.

WSHINGTON, Aug. 12.—In view of the threatening railway strike situation, President Wilson remained at his desk to-day and did not take his customary week-end jaunt away from Washington.

Stefansson Safe; New "Shelf" Found

NOME, Alaska, Aug. 12.—Officers on the schooner Gladiator, one of Vilhjalmur Stefansson's fleet in the far north, who reached here to-day, reported that a new continental "shelf" has been discovered in latitude 82 north and longitude 145 west, north of Prince Patrick Land.

The Gladiator left Herschel Island on July 27, and brought here Ole Anderson, one of the discoverers of the new land.

Anderson said he had not heard from Stefansson for a year, but believed him safe.

TWO INJURED IN AN AUTO ACCIDENT ON GEORGE STREET

William Brioux' Car Swerved Into Tree After He Made a Sharp Turn From Street Car Rails.

SON CUT ABOUT THE HEAD

William Brioux, 22 Norfolk Street, Parkdale, Toronto, son of Mr. Thos. Brioux, Park Street South, Peterborough, was seriously injured, and his son Wilfred received minor wounds in an automobile accident on George Street, opposite the McDonald Lumber Mill, between Rink and Perry Streets, about half-past eleven o'clock this morning. Both were removed to St. Joseph's Hospital, where they were attended by Dr. Morgan and Dr. Gallivan.

Mr. Brioux was driving south at a fairly rapid speed, and street car No. 33, with Mr. John Spargo, motorman, was coming north. The automobile's wheels were inside the car tracks, and when the driver turned out sharply to pass the street car, apparently his tires momentarily caught against the rails, skidded the car, and before the driver could recover control it dashed into a tree on the west side of the street.

The impact made a mess of the entire front of the automobile. The wind shield was broken into small pieces, the radiator was caved in, the front axle and the front of the top were bent and twisted.

Mr. Brioux's principal injury was a deep cut below the knee cap of the left leg, which, it was stated, would confine him to his home for a considerable time. The right leg was also gashed. The boy showed several gashes about his forehead and mouth. He was taken home at first, but soon after followed his father to the hospital.

Going Home To-day.

Mr. Brioux, with his wife and five young sons, had intended to leave at noon to-day, returning to Toronto, after a pleasant holiday spent with Mr. and Mrs. Gibson, the latter his sister-in-law. Their two weeks were over to-day, and the father had driven up town to fill his gasoline tank. With him were three of his boys, and it was fortunate that they escaped with only slight injuries. A basket of eggs that was carried on the rear seat was badly scrambled by the collision.

Pte Belleghem Is in The City

Former Peterboro Boy is the City Renewing Acquaintances

Pte. E. Belleghem of the 128th Battalion, Moose Jaw's Own, is in the city for a few days visiting his wife and children before leaving for the front.

Pte. Belleghem, or better known in Peterborough as "Mike," is an old Peterborough sport, having been in the city's baseball, football and hockey teams before leaving for Moose Jaw five years ago, where he has been superintendent of the Moose Jaw Water Supply until a year ago, when he enlisted in the Moose Jaw's Own. He is just here a few days, and is leaving for Halifax to rejoin his regiment prior to leaving for France.

Pte. Belleghem has been training in Camp Hughes and expects to be but a short time in England, as they have had their entire training at Camp Hughes. "Mike" is around town to-day seeing the friends. A great many have gone overseas, but he hopes to be in at the finish.

PTE. FRED STOREY, of the 93rd Battalion, now stationed at Otterpool Camp, England.

Fair Directors May Buy Grounds

They Feel They Should Not Part With the Exhibition Park But They Haven't Decided to Keep Them Yet.

RACES WILL BE GOOD

The Fair directors have not abandoned the idea of purchasing the Exhibition grounds this year if a fruitless discussion last night is an earnest of their intentions. They talked around the subject for about an hour, and although they reached no decision, they strengthened their opinion that the present grounds are the most desirable in the whole district for Fair purposes. But they have evolved no plan of action. They will have to provide the money themselves, if they make the purchase, for the city has already refused to purchase these grounds.

At the Directors' meeting last night it was decided to make the horse races a feature this year. The prize money will be as large as last year's purses, and the events will be in good hands.

A special red, white and blue badge will be given to the winners of special prizes. This will give prominence to exhibits in all classes that pick off the feature prizes.

Progress is being made in the arranging of attractions, and if this year's exhibition is the directors' swan song it's ging to be no dirge.

Some of the members were in favor of going out of town for a big band this year, the Highlanders of Toronto or something of that class, but the others insisted that local talent should be given first call. Hence, the 57th band and the Salvation Army band will be engaged.

AN ANALYSIS OF THE COALITION MINISTRY

A Curious and Instructive Episode in Parliamentary Government—The Irish Situation Continues to be a Thorn in The Side of The British Parliament.

DISCONTENTED ELEMENTS

(Copyright, 1916, Central News By T. P. O'Connor.)

LONDON, August 12.—The curious experiment of a Coalition Government is worthy a little analysis as a curious and instructive episode in Parliamentary Government. Though the documents have not yet been published, it is pretty generally known how it came into existence. The causes, I believe, were two. First, it was known to all the people behind the scenes that there were damaging revelations as to the conduct of the war and especially as to the defective supply of munitions. The existing Ministry appreciated at once that they could not face a debate in the House and that such a debate was certain to end in their downfall. There was only one way of avoiding such a catastrophe and that was to invite the leaders of the Opposition to enter the Government and take their share of the guidance and the responsibility for the war.

A SECOND PURPOSE.

There was, I believe, though I have no proof, a second purpose. Some members of the existing Liberal Ministry were convinced that unless certain changes were made, especially in the Administration of the War Office, it was very difficult to believe we could win the war. It was further believed that unless the Ministry consisted of all the elements of politicel life there would not be the strength to make the changes. Mr. Asquith was regarded as too good-natured and too compromising by temper to push such changes; and even if he were, the state of public opinion—ill-informed both as to the personalities of the Cabinet and the inner facts of the situation, would not back up the Ministry in making these changes. In short, what was expected from the Coalition Ministry was to get a better one, and not merely to include but to exclude. These projects broke down in the revulsion of feeling produced by intemperate and tactless attacks on the War Office, and thus the Coalition Ministry on the morrow of its creation, found itself unable to realize one of the projects for which it came into existence.

DISCONTENTED ELEMENTS.

This was its first misfortune; a second and greater followed. Mr. Redmond and Sir Edward Carson were both, as is known, invited to join in the Cabinet. For some reasons, which were criticised and misunderstood at the time, Mr. Redmond and Sir Edward refused. With the discontented elements of Irish life which were then carefully hidden from the general public, but were partially known to those on the inside, it is evident that Mr. Redmond's power for good either in England or in Ireland would have disappeared if he could be charged with putting on the British uniform as a Minister. It might have precipitated the subsequent rebellion; and anybody can realize what would have been the impossible position of the Irish Nationalist leader if he were engaged with others in putting down an Irish rebellion—especially by the harsh methods that were afterwards adopted. Besides Mr. Redmond knew enough of the tendencies of the Cabinet—especially with this new Tory element introduced into it—to realize that before he had been in office for two weeks, he would have come up against some stupid blunder, as, for instance, the attempt to replace Mr. O'Brien, the Catholic and Nationalist Lord Chancellor, by a Protestant Orange Tory champion like Mr. James Campbell.

HAD NO DESIRE.

Unfortunately Mr. Asquith, when he received the refusal of one Irish leader to enter the Cabinet, allowed himself to be bullied into taking in Sir Edward Carson. To do Sir Edward justice, he had no desire to enter the Cabinet; he has never cared for office; and he appreciated the Irish situation better than his Eng-

SOLDIERS' PENSIONS

Local Branch of the Patriotic Fund Will Undertake the Work of Looking After all Details in Connection With Soldiers' Pensions—Many Complaints Regarding Delay.

THE PROCEDURE

There is no doubt that many complaints have been made with regard to the delay in the awarding of pensions, or in dealing with cases in which a pension is expected and believed to be due. Enquiry has shown that in a majority of cases the delay is occasioned my negligence or carelessness of the applicant.

The Patriotic Fund Office, in Peterborough has undertaken the work of looking after such details, in addition to the work of the Soldiers' Aid Commission, in fact any work so long as it tends to the assistance of the soldier or his family, if he have one. Now, or in the future, if claims for pensions or allowances are brought to the attention of the office they will have prompt and sympathetic as well as careful attention. All this is a part of public service that must not in any particular be slighted or neglected. An immense amount, from day to day has already been done and help and satisfaction the result. There is no necessity to go to a lawyer, though any legal man in the city will and would cheerfully do anything free of cost to the applicant. But the necessary form are at hand at the office, and the case will have every attention. It is just as well to say that a good deal of misconception exists as to conditions and amounts that may accrue from pensions. The facts have to be very carefully ascertained and noted. On these the pension is based. If application is made, individually, delay generally results. Certain particulars are omitted from the official application form, essential documents are not furnished, and, in some cases, the reverse side of the application form is let entirely blank. As a result the application has to be referred back to the applicant and there arises a delay which results in the Patriotic Fund being called upon to continue a dependent's allowance sometimes or two or three months longer than should be necessary.

Evidence Required.

As will be expected the Department requires certain documentary evidence, in addition to the ascertained fact of the soldier's death or disability. These include in the case of a widow of a soldier, the documents required are (1) Marriage Certificate; (22) Birth Certificates of children, if any. A widowed mother, whose son, being her sole support, has been killed, must furnish (1) Marriage Certificate; (2) Certificate of Death of husband; (3) two affidavits respecting dependency. If the mother is not widowed, but the husband is totally incapacitated, a physician's certificate to that effect should be secured.

Applications will facilitate the passing through of the claim if they will provide themselves with the certificates as noted above. Many women, after the lapse of years, have lost their marriage certificates. In such cases a copy can be had from the Registration Office, in Toronto; if the date is not too remote.

ENGLAND ACCUSED OF TRADE STEALING

SPECIAL WIRE:

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12. — Great Britain "indignantly denies" that she has diverted to her own use any sabled Russian business orders intended for United States' firms. The State Department revealed to-day that this has been the upshot thus far of the investigation into complaints that England was engaged in a trade stealing process, whereby orders were turned to English houses.

INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION.

We are reminded of the waning summer and the oncoming autumn by the issuance of the prize list of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition. Though the people last January did not take a very aggressive interest in permanently providing grounds for the exhibition, the enterprising directors are not discouraged; and though the exhibition of September 14th—16th, 1916, may be the last that will be held on the present grounds, the directors are determined at least to "die game," and to conduct the exhibition with becoming red fire effects of a last possible appearance. The prize list in the second year of the war is as full and complete as ever; in fact, with some important new features. In deference to the petticoat pre-eminence achieved by woman's activity in war work, the department sacred to the ladies has been re-arranged. In fact everything that can conduce to a successful exhibition, outside of the interest and support of the public has been provided for. The prize lists are, of course, limited in number and will be chiefly placed in the hands of applicants, who may obtain copies at the store of Mr. Roland Denne, 338 George street, or at the Examiner Office. In order to give the public an idea of the contents and character of the prize list of the fourteenth Industrial Exhibition, it will be reproduced complete in the Examiner—necessarily, in instalments.

The public is appealed to to stand by the Exhibition. The energetic directors have set the example and have shown that even, and especially in this time of war it is our duty to "keep the home fires burning" to practically conjoin patriotism and production.

REMEMBER THE RED CROSS.

It is said that a criminal "broken on the wheel" feels only the first few blows; he becomes so benumbed, so accustomed to the cruel impact of succeeding blows that he doesn't particularly suffer from them. In the beginning of the war we were excited and alert in conducting the many activities the needs of the cause demanded. But we have become accustomed to the unusual conditions so greatly that such demands do not quicken the blood and stimulate our activities as at the beginning. While this applies to the mass of the people, especially those not actively engaged in war work, it does not apply to thousands who are working quietly and unremittingly in war work. It does not apply to the Red Cross, whose work goes on, as far as the workers are concerned, steadily and ceaselessly, a work that would go on better if the workers had more material means. We don't want to forget the Red Cross whose work and its needs grow with the growing number of Canadian soldiers on the battle line; as the sick and wounded increase in numbers, as they are likely to do. Canadian soldiers do not keep in the back ground when duty calls, even if dangers confront; and they are therefore liable to be knocked about a bit and find their way to the hospitals and be in sore need of the dressings and comforts the Red Cross supplies. Therefore in helping the Red Cross with our sympathy, practical and otherwise strengthening its hands and actively countenancing its work, we are very effectively helping our gallant lads who are putting up so splendid a fight, and helping so much to achieve the triumph that is coming.

"PRISONERS AND CAPTIVES."

One would think that the near relatives of prisoners of war would be as anxious at least as the Red Cross authorities for the welfare of their friends in prison. Yet The Examiner is requested by the Red Cross ladies it again urge relatives of prisoners to forward to them, either directly or through The Examiner, the exact addresses of Canadian soldiers who are unfortunate enough, or, in one sense, fortunate enough, to be prisoners of war. Though it is no special pleasure to be a war prisoner in Germany, yet the heart of many a mother, wife and relative of a Canadian soldier, described in the casualty lists as "missing," will beat wih gladness if she gets a postal card from a loved one dated at some German or other prison camp. Among the activities of the Red Cross none is more interesting, admirable and comforting than that of supplying Canadian prisoners of war—with clothing and comforts of various kinds, and it can be greatly helped by the relatives and friends of prisoners supplying to the local authorities the names and addresses of soldier prisoners in which they are interested. Let this be done and the Red Cross "will do the rest."—they will in one sehse answer the touching prayer of the Litany—"show....pity upon all prisoners and captives." Relatives who take this trouble will confer double happiness—upon the Red Cross for the privilege of helping bring comfort to some lonely and needy prisoner; and unspeakable joy to the prisoner, as much over the fact of being remembered as over receiving much needed comforts—from home.

CIVIC HOLIDAY.

One of the best reasons for Peterborough having a civic holiday consists in the fact that Peterborough cannot afford it. This seeming paradox can be reconciled by remembering that our factories are busy to the hilt, thronged with orders, and many of them behind in their orders, and in the ordinary run cannot afford to suspend operations even for an hour. Some of them have, as they have been compelled to do for months, to work overtime. Besides labour is so scarce that there is positive inconvenience for persons requiring "odd jobs' to be done, building or repairs to build-ing done. Every hour when one is fortunate enough to get a workman, is so precious that it semes wrong to have a workman idle for a moment. Employment is great demand, repeating the Scriptural condition — "the harvest is truly great, but the labourers are few."

The only interest that can afford to take a day off is that of our merchants. August is the summer month when trade dullness normally reaches its apogee, as February is the corresponding winter month. Therefore the merchants won't suffer much from one dies non, at a time when a large proportion of our population is absent from the city holidaying. If civic holiday eats into the business of our merchants a little, there is compensation in the activity of "dollar day," August 23rd, when the merchants can lump their bargains and tempt the public to large purchases, which will not only be a benefit to themselves—especially the bargain-hunting ladies—but, in spite of the reduced prices, give our merchants greater aggregate profits that will compensate for the trade missed by having a civic holiday or many of them.

Though in one sense we as a city, we cannot afford to take a civic holiday, we may think that we have earned one. We have had a busy year. We have done our bit splendidly in the production of munitions of war and other things that help the progress of the war. And, what is more important, we have raised and sent overseas one of the finest regiments, ever recruited in the Dominion, or for the matter of that, in any part of the Empire or any country. We have the biggest half of our taxes paid, and we have in many other ways, also, earned the right to stop long enough to take breath, and enjoy the pleasures of a civic holiday. The Examiner wishes the city a happy and pleasant holiday, and that its joy may be full, urges pleasure seekers to observe the "safety first" motto, especially those who go upon the water for pleasure. The day need not be marred by any accidents if everybody is careful; if people who can't swim, or people who don't thoroughly understand the management of a canoe, don't take risks; if people who can't swim don't get beyond their depth—if we are all sane and careful.

THE OLD NESTS.

These are anxious days in the fields and along the country lanes. There are young wings to be hardened to long flights, uncertain feet to be trained to easy and graceful alighting on pendulous branches, young heads to be guided in the ways of the feathery world.

Two blue birds that joyously mated in the full flush of spring, and built their summer home in a roadside post have three promising fledglings which they follow with parental attentions and pathetic solicitude for their safety. Restless swallows have gathered their numerous brood on telephone wires to which they clung with awkward poise while the sure-flying adults flit over neighbouring fields in search of food. A pair of noisy "high-holers" have tumbled a clumsy progeny of seven out of the roomy nest in the trunk of an old beech and, with a lack of humour characteristic of parents, find no amusement — while strangers are around, at any rate—in the gauche attempts of their offspring to alight securely even on the broadest branches. Across the sun-baked fields a flock of coal black crows are in the midst of a community squabble perched along a straggling snake fence. Apparently the elders are reading the riot act to their lusty youths — the time has come for them to get out and provide for themselves. But with the first approach of a stranger the whole noisy group take wing, and lose themselves in a clump of distant pines, where the rancous dispute is resumed.

Dainty finches—wild canaries—with their contrasting colours of yellow and black are swaying on the bulging thistle tops picking the seed from the down, that awaits the first strong breeze to scatter it over the roadside. Their young are already advanced in the experience of self-help for they are scarcely distinguishable in the busy group that pays little heed to one's passing.

The bobolink's obscured summer dwelling in the marshy meadow is empty and deserted, and the rollicking song of the male as it carolled to its brooding mate is but a memory of the long days of June. Far out on the drooping branch of a tough old elm the oriole's nest sways vacantly, but the spreading tree still seems alive with the brilliant presence of the happy couple that made it their home.

The birds have fulfilled their purpose and are preparing to leave us, and to leave with those of us who have observed them and enjoyed their brief stay, a vivid reminder of our own destiny. Their's was a happy residence protected and provided by Nature. And yet not without heart-breaking visitations. The long rains washed out the muddy substructure of many a nest, dropping the pregnant eggs to the ground, forever lost. Winds lashed the branches and cast out the young in their immaturity. Not with complete serenity did the summer pass. Some of the birds face the long southward journey with blasted hopes. Man is not alone in his suffering and in his loss of dear ones, though he may be the more conscious of it. His fate and that of the birds are closely paralleled. And it is the realization that the home he builds and into which he breathes new life, that he must inevitably forsake that is so perturbing.

Your snug and comfortable home is as transient as was the happy bluebirds' in the old post by the side of the road.

REPORTS OF VARIOUS PHASES OF CANADIAN RED CROSS ACTIVITY

What Noble Work is Being Done for the Welfare of Our Soldier Boys in Field, Hospital and Prisons — Gratitude of the Prisoners

REPORT OF VARIOUS EP. 2 COL

The chief Canadian Red Cross warehouse is located in London, but a depot is also located at Shorncliffe, in a strategic position in the midst of a great hospital area. From Shorncliffe thirty hospitals in Kent have received Canadian Red Cross supplies according to their needs. Almost all of them have wounded Canadians among their patients, and are under the jurisdiction of Col. Rennie A.D.M.S. at Shorncliffe.

In addition to furnishing medical supplies the Shorncliffe depot, under the direction of Mr. Harcourt Vernon has made many arrangements for the comfort of Canadian patients. A new recreation room is being erected at Moore Barracks Hospital, and the wards are supplied with flowering plants and ferns.

With the consent of the War Office a Rest Home has been erected for outside patients who wait at Shorncliffe for transfer from one hospital to another. The Canadian Red Cross issues comforts to them, and visits them to break the monotony of their waiting, and to show them that Canada has not forgotten them.

THE CANADIAN RED CROSS IN FRANCE.

Capt. Bryan the Assistant Canadian Red Cross Commissioner reports that the activity of the society in France is steadily increasing. Periodically he makes the round of the Casualty Clearing stations and Field Hospitals and ascertains where supplies are needed. Supplies are sent to units at the front direct from the Boulogne warehouse, by means of a lorry service. In this way the Canadian Red Cross has direct and immediate contact with the wounded at the front.

Supplies are also being issued from a large Canadian Depot at Paris, and thousands of cases of Canadian materials have been accepted by the French Government for distribution to French Hospitals. In connection with this Red Cross reciprocity between France and Canada, it is interesting to note a recent visit by M. Poincare the President of the Republic to No. 4 Canadian Stationary Hospital at St. Cloud.

RED CROSS IN CANADIAN WEST

The Canadia nWest in spite of its scattered population and consequent difficulty is centralization and coordination of work has shown great vigour in its Red Cross activities. The total cash receipts of the Alberta Society in the last financial year were $46,103. Of this, $7,000 was spent for the endowment of hospital beds; $6,667 for medical and surgical supplies and $16,477 for motor ambulances. In addition, a generous contribution was made to the Ogden Home for convalescent soldiers. The total number of articles handled by the supply department was 33,320 of which the most and nearly 12,000 socks and 15,000 shirts. Since the first of the year 14 new branches have been formed.

The last financial report of the Manitoba branch shows 56 branches a number which has been largely added to since the first of the year. Total contributions were $120,116 of which $73,850 was sent to Dominion Headquarters in Toronto. The total shipments from the Winnipeg shipping station in the first three months of its existence amounted to 678 cases of a value of $19,772. This will furnish an estimate of the annual turnover.

In Saskatchewan 37 new branches have been formed since January. The last annual statement of receipts shows contributions of $50,006 of which $33,800 was placed to the credit of the general account of the Red Cross Society. The Provincial branch supports 47 beds in Cliveden hospital and 112 in the Saskatchewan base hospital. Shipments totalled over 210,000 items.

PRISONERS RED CROSS PARCELS

One of the admirable features of Canadian Red Cross Work is the provision made for supplying Canadian Prisoners of War with clothes and other comforts, and weekly parcels of food. For this purpose a special fund has been created, and in addition, by arrangement with Government Authorities, any Canadian prisoner has the privilege of assigning part of his pay to the Red Cross, which in return will send him such goods as he desires and the German authorities permit.

Some people profess to doubt whether the prisoners actually receive these parcels. The Canadian Red Cross has had, however, many letters from Canadian prisoners in Germany. Many of them are published from month to month in the Red Cross Bulletin.

A prisoner in Giessen stated, "I received my first parcel of food through the Canadian Red Cross on November 25th, and since then they have been coming regularly. Have also had shirts, underwear, socks, gloves, muffler, blanket, overcoat, sweater and a pair of slippers. All here join in thanking the Red Cross for its kindness.

No. 27561, a sergeant in the 48th Highlanders of Toronto, writes from the prison camp at Alten Grabow, "We have been looked after most splendidly by the Red Cross Society, and I can assure you that we all have received ample underclothing and outer-clothing and boots. We are also receiving bread from Berne."

Another sergeant who is imprisoned in Giessen acknowledges the receipt of a gramaphone, boxing gloves and a football, in addition to special parcels from Montreal.

There are innumerable other letters of a similar nature, and there is not the least doubt that the Canadian Red Cross, owing to the special priviliges conferred on Red Cross Societies, by the Hague Convention, is the best medium through which to communicate with Canadian prisoners in Germany.

Our Industrial Preparedness For Peace Time

Canada, like other parts of the Empire, has had its trade very sorely dislocated by the war. The fact that we are far removed from the actual scene of hostilities does not remove the fact that the withdrawal of both men and money from their normal employment has had and will continue to have a far-reaching effect on the general industry and commerce of the Dominion.

Finding ourselves engaged in this war in a very real sense, it behoves us as a people to be ever on the lookout and prepare ourselves for the time when peace shall arrive.

This war has, without doubt, awakened Canadians to a fuller realization of the natural resoures of their country. It has thrown us back upon ourselves in a way which perhaps no other one thing could possibly have done.

It is true some industries have been hard hit, many have been interrupted—some have been lost. At the same time it can be said truthfully that as Canadians we are standing the strain remarkably well.

If, however, we are to retain our place industrially we must learn to do for ourselves what others have been doing for us—we must be less wasteful in the use of our resources and devote more attention to their more adequate development. The natural products of the Dominion have been sent abroad only to be worked into finished articles and reshipped to us. Why not learn to manufacture more of them here?

The time has surely arrived when we should work out our industrial independence more fully than we have in the past.

The time to prepare for the industrial struggle that must follow the war is now. If we do not attend to it now it is more than likely we will lapse into our old helpless dependence and may never realize the destiny of becoming a really great industrial nation.—Canadian Engineer

LIGHT FROSTS IN WEST.

Black Rust Checked and Grain Not Damaged.

Winnipeg, Aug. 12.— Light frosts touched a number of points in the Canadian western spring wheat area yesterday, the lowest temperature registered being 28 at Red Deer, in Central Alberta, and 30 at Lloydminster, on the boundary between that province and Saskatchewan. At several other points the thermometer dropped to 32.

These light frosts, however, do little damage, as the crop is generally advanced, and only where it is very backward will any harmful effects develop.

HOW I CURED . MY CATARRH

TOLD IN A SIMPLE WAY

Without Apparatus, Inhalers, Salves, Lotions, Harmful Drugs, Smoke or Electricity.

Heals Day and Night

It is a new way. It is something absolutely different. No lotions, sprays or sickly smelling salves or creams. No atomizer, or any apparatus of any kind. Nothing to smoke or inhale. No [illegible] or [illegible] or injections. No electricity or vibration or massage. No powders or plasters: no keeping in the house. Nothing of that kind at all.

It. Something new and different, something delightful and healthful, something instantly successful. You do not have to wait, and linger and pay out a lot of money. You can stop it over night—and I will gladly tell you how—FREE. I am not a doctor and this is not a so-called doctor's prescription—but I am cured and my friends are cured, and you can be cured. Your suffering will stop at once like magic.

I Am Free—You Can Be Free

My catarrh was filthy and loathsome. It made me ill. It dulled my mind. It undermined my health and was weakening my will. The hawking, coughing, spitting made me obnoxious to all, and my foul breath and digesting habits made even my loved ones avoid me secretly. My dejects in life was dulled and my faculties impaired. I knew that in time it would bring me to an untimely grave, because every moment of the day and night it was slowly yet surely sapping my vitality.

But I found a cure, and I am ready to tell you about it FREE. Write me promptly.

RISK JUST ONE CENT

Send no money. Just your name and address on a postal card, say: "Dear Sam Katz: Please tell me how you cure your catarrh and how I can cure mine." That's all you need to say. I will understand. You will write to you with complete information, FREE, at once. Do not delay. Send postal card or write me a letter today. Don't think of turning this page until you have asked for this wonderful treatment that can do for you what it has done for me.

THE PETERBOROUGH RED CROSS SOCIETY COLUMN

We want to say so much to our readers this week that it is difficult to make a start, but we think that we will begin with a matter which lies very near our hearts, and should also appeal to all the wives and mothers in Peterborough whose men folk are prisoners in Germany.

We saw in the Examiner recently a table enumerating those belonging to Peterborough who had made the supreme sacrifice, those who had been wounded, those dischared from further service, those serving and those who were prisoners of war. The latter was given as numbering 57. Mrs. Matthews and Mrs. Allan have done their best to get a complete list for the society and have interviewed several gentlemen and have also made several appeals through the Examiner to the relatives of the men who send in full particulars so that they can get parcels regularly and with the exception of a few names obtained from Ald. Dobbin and a few left at the Examiner office, they had had to follow up clues they discovered and gain information for ourselves.

We acknowledge receipt of a letter from Mrs. Casson giving full particulars where Pte. Banks Frederick Casson is confined, and his name is now on our list and parcels will be sent to him.

In order that the work may be made a little easier for those in charge, we give a list of prisoners known to us and whose address we have: Pte. Drummond, Pte. Fred Lebar, Cornelius Orford, Harold Martin, A. Bartley, Hunter Godfrey, George Hutchison, Harold Devins, George Butcher, B. F. Casson, E. H. Profit, Harold Lawrence, Lieut. T. D. Johnson, Lieut. Hubbs, Lieut. Rodgers, Lieut. Massey-Cooke.

Other prisoners known to us, but whose addresses we have not yet received are: Pte. Ernest H. Crofts, Pte. Arnold Parrington, Gunner Harold Gilpin, Pte. John G. Hadden, Pte. Alex. Benzie, Pte. Arthur Pritchard, Pte. Wm. Footitt.

We ask their relatives to send in the particulars at once to the Examiner office or to Mrs. Allan, 207 Brock street, if they desire the society to send the parcels which they need greatly. When we do get these addresses we are still a long way off attaining the number of 57. The society is willing and anxious that all Peterborough boys should get these parcels, but unless the relatives send in the names with particulars, many of the boys will suffer greatly through lack of food.

It was a matter of thankfulness to the executive to receive so many contributions to this fund last month, and we hope the citizens will continue to support us in this good and very needful branch of our work.

The Red Cross Society has never asked for any aid or grant from the City Council, though a great many municipalities have given grants. Only on Thursday of this week Toronto Council gave a grant of $5,000 for parcels for Toronto boys who are prisoners of war. Thanks to our Advisory Board we are at present able along with supplementary subscriptions, to undertake this work, Harold Lawrence, one of our boys, says if he does not receive help from his home town, he will surely die. Lord Robert Cecil says "the prisoners will die without parcels from home, that the distress amongst them is very real and that many are on the very verge of starvation."

Conditions at Ruhleben seem as bad as possible, and the "Cologne Gazette" says that if Germans have to starve because of the British blockade, then most assuredly British prisoners will starve along with them."

A very dark report of conditions at Ruhleben camp are given in a report by Dr. Alonzo Taylor, attache of the American Embassy at Berlin and which was forwarded to Viscount Grey by the American Ambassador, James W. Gerard..

To James W. Gerard, for all the efforts he has made for the better treatment of prisoners by Germany, for his urgent and heart-whole efforts on behalf of Nurse Cavelle and Captain Fryatt, we are under everlasting obligation. What the effect of his efforts may be for himself personally, he cares nothing. He is more concerned for these poor sufferers than with placating the friendship of the nation to which he is accredited. Dr. Taylor in his report says:

"The barracks at Ruhleben, are overcrowded. It is intolerable that people of education should be herded six together in a horse's stall and in some lofts. The bunks touch one another, the light for reading is bad and reading is a necessity if these poor prisoners are to be detained during another winter. In the hay-lofts above stables the conditions are even worse.

Dr. Taylor cites as an example one loft, 10 by 13 meters in width, with the ceiling ten feet high in the centre and four and a half feet high at the sides, where 6 men live.

"The light from the little window," says Dr. Taylor, "is so faint that the prisoners' eyes will be seriously injured, if their sight is not permanently lost. And this semi-darkness will undoubtedly cause depression and mental trouble."

The report complains of inadequate heating of prisoners' quarters and the lack of facilities for drying the clothes of the men, who often have to answer the roll call in the heavy rains outside. Many of them like soap, which is usually given prisoners, even in jails. Dr. Taylor says, is not given the prisoners at Ruhleben.

There landed at Gravesend, England, recently, 17 British men who had been interned at Ruhleben for many months. The returned prisoners said "everything Dr. Taylor had said was absolutely true, and if something was not done quickly large numbers would soon be beyond human aid. Those who did not receive parcels were in a pitiable plight." To-morrow, most of us, will sit down to a good and nourishing dinner; do you not think we would enjoy it more if we do our part towards feeding the boys who have fought for us, and have made it possible for us to enjoy the comforts and cheer of our homes. We know in our hearts that is so, so send in your donation to Miss E. Morrow, care Toronto Loan and Savings Co., right away.

Our Boy Helpers.

Eighteen boys have handed in the sum of $15.63, the result of their anxiety to aid the Red Cross. They had a splendidly decorated waggon at the corner of Park and Bonaccord street with apt appeals which evidently the passers by found it hard to ignore, and eager collectors all anxious to "do their bit."

Some of us dearly love a circus, and it was too hot to go to the last one which visited our city, and so we were wandering if some other boys who understand what the Red Cross stands for, would not like to get up a circus and help us.

The Red Cross executive is just crazy about a circus, and we feel sure the whole crowd of them would take reserved seat tickets, and applaud the performers to the echo, so come on boys and see what you can do. In the meantime, we say "Thank you ever so much" to—

George Dormer, Harold Dormer, Carl Butcher, Teddy Dormer, Roy Powell, Gordon Powell, Rupert Woods, Keith Woods, George Woods, Harold Kennedy, Roland Kennedy, Eddy Blade, Walter Robson, Robert Goodfellow, Victor Bedford, Willie Read, Harold Peace, Wilmot Mahood.

Lady Drummond's Work.

In a recent letter from London to the Globe, the following tribute was paid to Lady Drummond, who is the head of the Canadian Information Bureau:

Lady Drummond's method of fulfilling tasks undertaken attracts not cold admiration, but warm, devoted love. Canada should know that from her has come one who, amongst the women gathered here from diverse countries for the work of the war, is recognized as a leader of large-minded sympathies. No soldier in the field, no sister at the outposts, has given himself or herself more wholly at the call of country than has Lady Drummond.

When many organizations in London are approached, Secretary or Under-Secretary must satisfy the applicant, and only matters of importance will secure a personal interview with the head. Not so with Lady Drummond. Whoever waits has her sympathy, interest and help. The door is pen wide, and he is received with a smile of genuine welcome. From early morning till gathering dusk Lady Drummond is ready to give her whole mind to him who asks for it, and he leaves her presence strong in the knowledge that hers is an interest which will not fail, and that her belief in his powers must be justified.

To leave London—to rest a while in the reawakening English country—for this Lady Drummond finds no spare time. Nevertheless, I found a lad of nineteen from a humble home in Toronto, who had been lying in a corner bed of a ward in a military hospital, paralyzed since last May, happy and proud because of a personal visit from her. The boy's mother, his only living relation, was in Toronto, and Lady Drummond desired to bring mother and son together. He had given the strength of his youth in exchange for a bed in a hospital, three thousand miles from home, and so Lady Drummond took time in her leisureless life to go to the lad and show him her gracious appreciation.

"Her ways are ways of pleasantness." Who knows how far down the years her work will extend?

We are indebted to the Aberdeen Free Press for the following touching article:

"Home to Blighty, War-Stained Heroes at Southampton."

One speaks of the decoration of the bandage, and indeed all are agreed that wounds earned in one's country defence bring honour with them. But we must remember, too, that many thousands of true heroes go cheerily on from week to week, month to month, and now year to year, in the grim world of "estrafe" across the

Find Woman's Body Which May be That of Olive Vansickle

SARNIA, Aug. 11.—The body of a woman, thought to be the remains of Mrs. Olive Vansickle of Petrolea, who jumped from a ferry on the night of April 10, was found in the river seventeen miles below here at Lambton Gardens.

Mrs. Vansickle was the wife of a soldier in an overseas battalion, and was on her way to Flint, Michigan, in company with a Petrolea man, who, it is stated she had asked to escort her past the immigration officers and assist her with her luggage. At Port Huron the couple was turned back and were crossing to Sarnia on the last ferry when the woman suddenly jumped overboard and was not seen again.

Owing to decomposition the features of the woman are now not recognizable, but a description of her clothing is as follows:

Heavy blue winter coat; blue underskirt; high button shoes; black stockings; black silk sash and belt.

Coroner Dr. Calder of Petrolea, has been notified. An inquest may be held.

SIR GEO. FOSTER SAILS FOR HOME.

LONDON, Aug. 12.—Sir Geo. Foster has sailed for Canada after delivering a farewell address to representatives of the commerce, industry and agriculture of Liverpool and districts. It is not expected that Sir George Perley will leave England before Sir George Foster's arrival.

Ques.: "What is the biggest raw product you use?"

Ans.: "Hard to say without looking it up."

Ques.: "You can't tell? I know, now."

Ans.: "You do? Well! What is it?"

Ques.: "Working Time, my boy, working time—the time every workman sells you every day. How do you check it?"

Ans.: "Check it? Oh, I guess my timekeepers do that."

Ques.: "They're human beings? Of course, Yes—well, now, who checks the timekeeper? And who checks the man who checks the timekeeper? Why not cut out all the guess-work and let a cold-blooded machine do the work? Print unchangeable figures under lock and key in and out shifts, four or six times a day, if necessary, giving Records that form an original PRINTED wage sheet."

Ans.: "Sounds good—what's the answer?"

Ques.: "Well the answer is an International Time Recorder. Your competitors are using it. Thousands of the World's greatest manufacturers are doing likewise. Time is the greatest raw material in the world and if you don't check it's purchase you'll lose, and lose four times a day every day in the year. Tremendous Losses Are Suffered by Austrians and Germans in Recent Fighting

PETROGRAD, Aug. 12.—An official statement says that in the River Serelli region the gallant troops of Gen. Ekk took in battles between Aug. 4 and Aug. 10 a total of 268 officers and 13,000 men. In addition, over 1,000 wounded Austrians and Germans were captured. This number includes two staff officers, 104 lieutenants, and 4,872 men who were taken in one day's battle on Aug 10. The losses of the enemy in killed or wounded, according to the statements of prisoners, were enormous.

REGIMENT ANNIHILATED

LONDON, Aug. 12.—The 11th Hungarian Regiment was completely annihilated at Gorisia, says a Central News despatch from Rome. It stated that the Italian flag was hoisted over the citadel at Gorisia by two young women who had embroidered it for the occasion.

BAVARIANS LOST 85,500

GENEVA, Aug. 12.—A despatch from Munich says that the Bavarians' losses on the Somme front during July were 85,500 men, of which 14,500 were killed, 67,000 were wounded, including two generals, and 4,000 are missing.

Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Mr. Editor,—We wish to bring to the notice of the City Council that the people of the West ward would like to have the artificial lake at Jackson Park be turned into a swimming place. For many years it was used by the people and why not now? As they are constructing three, and why shouldn't this not be one of the three during the summer months. Many picnics are held at Jackson Park, it would be convenient to every one if swimming facilities were provided. Hoping the city fathers will consider the matter seriously.

Yours truly,

NOXIOUS WEEDS.

Mr. Editor,—Can you inform me whose duty i tis to see that the noxious weeds by-law is carried out?

There are enough burdocks within two blocks of the city buildings, the seeds of which are about ripe, to sow a ten acre field.

There are three lawyers' offices in this area whose back yards are a forest of ripening burdocks. One of them, near St. John's church, has a beautiful mixture of holyhocks interspersed.

There are many people who make an honest effort to carry out this by-law but their efforts are futile when so many ignore it and are permitted to do as they please, allowing their weeds to go to seed, to be carried back to the properties of those observing the law.

I think the authorities for the carrying out of this law should at once get busy and see that all the burdocks within the city limits are not only cut, but that they should be also burned, to prevent the spreading of the seed. CITIZEN.

CITY IS FREE FROM CONTAGIOUS DISEASES REPORTS DR. AMYS

Isolation Hospital Has Been Closed Since the First of the Month—Medical Officer of Health Admonishes the City to be on the City to be on the Alert.

WEED NUISANCE

At last night's meeting of the Property Committee, Dr. C. H. Amys, the M. H. O. was present and gave a verbal report on the health conditions of the city. The health officer stated that the city was fortunate enough to be entirely free from the grip of the contagious disease. There was a marked absence of diphtheria, scarlet fever or infantile paralysis, and as a result the Isolation hospital had been closed since the first of the month, in order to allow the hospital employees to enjoy a few holidays during the quiet season and thus save the city the expense of hiring help to take their places.

On the Alert

Dr. Amys spoke of the terrible ravages made in different cities by that scourge, infantile paralysis, and that the city should be on the alert to avoid it.

The M. H. O. also mentioned the prevelance of weedy areas around the city. "If a dog, cat or even a man wants to die, there was these tempting spots to crawl into out of the public gaze and do so," declared Dr. Amys.

BILLY SUNDAY AT VANCOUVER.

Vancouver, August 12.—Billy Sunday addressed a prohibition rally attended by 9,000 people here. Because after he had talked for about fifteen minutes some of the people at the rear of the rink started to leave, Sunday threatened to quit, and only after a quarter of an hour was he induced to resume the address.

Night Beacons For Airships

One difficulty in airship navigation is to secure safe landing. No amount of skill on the part of the aviator can make a safe landing where the character of the country is perfectly barren of fair sized open or clear spaces. Even with an abundance of such spaces, it takes considerable skill to make a safe landing in broad daylight. But, what about landing safely in the black of night? Here, again, this war has proved necessity the mother of invention, and a way has been devised for making a safe landing from any height in the blackest night.

The aviators all know the exact locations of the various large open stretches or "parks" where the aeroplanes are kept. For night landing, each of these fields is provided with a great number of powerful lights placed in holes in the ground and having strong reflectors to direct the light straight into the air. These lights are all arranged according to a given chart and all aviators are provided with the charts. So, when an aviator comes above one of these fields at night he can simply steer his course by the lights to a safe landing, just as the navigating officer of a ship steers his boat by the buoys and lighthouses.

This is another valuable invention resulting from the war and of great use in time of peace.

CONFLICTING REPORTS ON CROP SITUATION

CHICAGO, Aug. 12.—Conflicting reports regarding the crop situation in Canada especially in the provinces of Saskatchewan brought about rapid price changes yesterday in the wheat market here, with no decided advantage to either side. Liverpool despatches said the Canadian outlook was most reassuring. Leading experts reporting direct to Chicago houses said the principal wheat area in Saskatchewa was infected with black rust, and that, if frost, as predicted came 75 per cent. of the crop would be damaged. Opening prices, which ranged from 3-4c off to 1c up, with September at 144 1-4c to 145, and December at 147 to 148 1-2 were followed by a sharp general setback, then a rally around to well above Thursday's finish, and then another sag.

PASS JUNIOR MATRICULATION EXAMINATIONS

Names of Successful Peterboro County Students---Groups One, Two and Three

The following list contains the names of the candidates who were successful in whole or in part on the pass junior matriculation examination. Normal entrance candidates who were also candidates for matriculation have been considered in the results.

In Group I. are given the names of all candidates who have obtained complete matriculation by passing on the twelve reqquired examination papers, which are as follows:—English literature, English composition, British and Canadian history, ancient history, algebra, geometry, Latin authors, Latin composition, together with the four papers in any two of the following subjects: Experimental science (physics and chemistry), French (authors and composition), German (authors and composition), Greek (authors and composition).

In Group II., are given the names of those who have passed in at least nine of the papers required for complete matriculation and have obtained the minimum required on the whole examination. They have, therefore, failed in not more than three papers. These papers are indicated in brackets after the candidates' name. Full particulars will be shown on their certificates in order to complete this matriculation they must pass in all the papers indicated, at one examination, the standard for pass being 40 per cent. of the marks assigned to each paper.

In Group III. are given the names of all those candidates who have failed to obtain the minimum required on the whole examination, but who have obtained 40 per cent. on each of at least eight papers with an average of 50 per cent. on the same. Such candidates have been awarded partial matriculation must obtain at one examination 40 per cent. on each of the remaining papers with an average of 50 per cent. on the same. The papers required for complete arts matriculation are indicates in brackets after the names of the candidates. Candidates for matriculation into the Faculty of Applied Science who have obtained pass-standing on at least eight pass papers with an average of 50 per cent. on the same are reported in this list. The honour standing of such candidates in mathematics will be found in the honour matriculation results.

OTHER CANDIDATES

The result of the examination in the cases of candidates writing on fewer than eight papers are not reported in the list below. This statement includes those candidates who have written only on the papers required for matriculation into the College of Pharmacy. All such applicants must wait for the receipt of their certificates in order to ascertain the results of the examination.

The statements of standing of all candidates will be sent to the Principals or to the Public School Inspectors in a few days. In the case of those who wrote at the University of Toronto their statements will be sent to the Registrar of that institution. Candidates will apply to those officials and not to this department for the reports in detail.

SUPPLEMENTAL MATRICULATION

All candidates who have failed on the June matriculation examination in whole or in part are eligible to become candidates at the supplemental matriculation examination beginning on Tuesday, September 5. All such are informed that application forms, time-tables and full information may be obtained from the Secretary, University Matriculation Board, Parliament Buildings and that applications are due by September 1st.

HOW FAT FOLKS MAY BECOME THIN

By Elizabeth Thomas.

Perhaps you are suddenly becoming stout, or it may be that you have been putting on weight for years. In either case the cause is the same—lack of oxygen carrying power in the blood. This trouble occurs in adults of both sexes and all ages, but it may be overcome very easily and without any of the privations that most people imagine necessary to reduce their weight.

Simply go to your druggist and get some oil of orilene capsules. Take one after each meal and one before going to bed. Weigh yourself so as to know just how fast you are losing weight. Wonderful results have been accomplished by this inexpensive recipe, but be sure to get the genuine oil of orilene in capsul form. It is sold only in original sealed packages, or a large size box will be sent on receipt of $1.00. Postal note or money order. Address D. J. Little Drug Co., Box 1240, Montreal, Canada.

Many a man who is apparently a deep thinker merely has a new kind of pain and is wondering what caused it.

AN ANALYSIS OF THE COALITION MINISTRY

lish comrades. But Mr. Bonar Law, I understand, pressed Sir Edward on Mr. Asquith—not, for party reasons, but because he honestly believed that the fine brain of Carson and the resolute will would make him a useful and essential element of the new combination. These considerations prevailed; and Sir Edward Carson became a member of the Coalition Government.

At once there began that transformation of Irish opinion which facilitated the campaign of the Sinn Feiners and their American and German manipulators. Sir Edward was regarded as the embodiment of everything that was hostile to Irish national aspirations; every act and every appointment in Ireland was regarded—not always correctly—as the result of his predominace in the Cabinet; and there was presented in Ireland the paradox of an appeal to Irish loyalty and for Irish recruits from the Nationalist ranks, just at the moment when the government of Ireland seemed to have been given over to the arch-enemy of all Irish aspirations.

TENSE SITUATION.

Sir Edward Carson relieved this very tense situation by resigning; mainly, as he has not taken any pains to conceal, because he thought any Ministry was impossible which did not show more vigour, more unity and more promptitude. But still the evil situation had been created in Ireland, and the real strength of the Sinn Fein movement began with the entrance of Sir Edward Carson into the Cabinet and the evil was never entirely undone. Indeed there were constant reminders to Ireland, if she were inclined to forget, that while her soldiers were adding new glories to the annals of Irish valour and when the recruiting sergeants were still in every Irish village, her own views were being steadily either ignored or defied. Orangemen were preferred to appointments, even in strongly Irish and Nationalist parts of the country; and every mistake that human folly could suggest was made in the recruiting methods.

In the House of Commons, meantime, there followed a series of incidents which showed what a Coalition Ministry meant. In the first place, everybody felt that one of the chief purposes for which the Coalition had been brought into existence had not come off; though some relief was found in the fact that the supply of munitions had been given into the capable hands of Mr. Lloyd George; and munition factories soon began to appear in all parts of the country. But the House of Commons suddenly found itself without any of the vitality which had been such a strong characteristic of its century-old life. The removal of the chief figures of the Opposition left the Ministry without any effective control. Their places were taken by a number of clever but irresponsible critics who could speak only for themselves, who had no prestige from previous experience in official life; and who often made criticisms that suggested spite and nagging rather than ordered and well-informed knowledge.

LIKE A CORPSE.

ly it seemed the same thing, had lost soul and heart and reality; it was almost like a corpse making the pretence to be alive. This state of things reacted on the Ministry. Free from effective criticism, they began to show a faith in their own infallibility; they did not show the same care in avoiding risks and errors; they seemed, indeed, to regard themselves as immune. But, meantime, For some months accordingly the House of Commons, though outwardthe war did not go well; there were no big attacks, or if there were, they were not as successful as had been hoped; and the Ministry in short, experienced, the fate of every Executive which carries on a war without great and quick victories. Gradually the ranks of the Opposition recruited new and more important figures than those who had hitherto carried on the work of criticism. The front Opposition bench found a home for the grim figure of Sir Edward Carson. After a few months in the trenches Mr. Churchill returned to his parliamentary duties, and recently has shown his determination to force himself back into the Ministry. The relations between him and Mr. Asquith—which formerly were almost affectionate in their intimacy—have palpably grown strained; and, in short, the Coalition Ministry, for the first time, had to show fight for its life.

WAS REPROACHED.

Criticism, meantime, also directed itself as was natural, against the head of the Ministry, whose responsibility is, of course, primary; and in the newspaper press, especially in that controlled by Lord Northcliffe—there were daily girdings at him which tended of course to encourage the criticism of him in the House of Commons. Several times Mr. Asquith was able to overthrow all this powerful combination against him. His success was due to various causes. First, there was his undoubted intellectual supremacy. Mr. Bonar Law was reproached, it is said, at a recent Tory meeting with being subservient to Mr. Asquith and was asked to explain. His explanation was that Mr. Asquith was head and shoulders above any member of the Cabinet. A quick and penetrating mind that gets right to the heart of any question promptly is Mr. Asquith's chief gift. Then the temper is self-controlled—with more than the usual amount of Yorkshire phlegm. It is also amiable; and perhaps because he has reached so high, Mr. Asquith is quite free from any of the mean jealousies that so often disfigure the characters of public men. Finally, his tremendous gift of reducing differences to their realities and of demonstrating how small they are has given him the power of finding the formula. To find a formula, has been set up against him, as his chief gift, and his chief weakness as a War Minister.

Thus there has arisen that feeling in the country that Mr. Asquith will sacrifice everything to keep men together; that he accordingly procrastinates, vacillates and, finally, comes down on the side of a weak compromise which satisfies nobody. And this criticism of the Premier has now extended to the whole Ministry, and to the whole system of Coalition Governments. The judgment at the present moment of many people inside the House of Commons is that the Coalition has justified the old English prejudice against it; it is held that it ensures unity at the expense of promptitude and vigour; and in war time these are the qualities that are most required.

PEEL OFF YOUR FRECKLES

To remove freckles, blotches of any complexion difficulty, the best thing to do is to remove the skin itself. This is easily and harmlessly done by the application of ordinary mercolised wax. The wax peels off the defective outer skin, a little each day, gradually bringing the second layer of skin to view. The new skin is beautifully soft, clear, white and young looking. Just procure an ounce of mercolised wax at any drug store and use like cold cream.

GAVE UP HIS LIFE ON FIELD OF HONOUR

TORONTO, Aug. 12.—Second Lieutenant Colin Simpson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Simpson, of 436 Walmer Road, was killed in action on August 8 while serving with A Battery, 179th Brigade, R.F.A. News of his death was received by his parents in a cable message from the London War Office late last night. The circumstances attending his death have not been learned.

In the death of Colin Simpson, Toronto loses one of its most promising young citizens—he was but in his 21st year—and a popular figure is lost from athletic circles. No follower of sport will readily forget the sensationally brilliant showing made by Lieut. Simpson in the rugby season of 1914, when he was one of the main factors in the Argonauts' capture of the Dominion Championship. A mere boy, 19 years of age, he was one of the outstanding men in a brilliant organization of players, and his tackling and clever line plays made him a hero in the eyes of all followers of the game. In that season he achieved more fame and popularity than comes to the average athlete in a lifetime.

The late Lieut. Simpson graduated from the Jarvis Collegiate. He enlisted last October in the 33rd Battery with the rank of sergeant. On arrival in England he was chosen for a commission in the Imperial Army. He had been at the front but a short time when he was killed.

The late Colin Simpson was a companion sergeant with Ormonde Cavanah. Both went overseas as sergeants under Lieut. Huycke. Deceased was well known in Peterborough, having played here several times.

Chief Howard of Peterboro Causes the Arrest of the Chairman of Fire Committee

Interesting Episode Occurs During the Course of the Fire Chiefs' Convention Which Closed in Windsor Last Evening—Ald. Thomas Eansor of The Windsor Fire Committee Was the Victim of a Practical Joke.

IMPERSONATED MAYOR DUFFUS

WINDSOR, Aug. 12.—When Ald. Thomas Eansor, chairman of the Windsor fire committee, and, as such, one of the leaders in the entertainment of visiting delegates to the Dominion Association of Fire Chiefs' convention, was tendered the honour of setting fire to the building on Ouellette square, he did not know what was in store for him.

At conventions in the past few years, Ald. Eansor was usually regarded as the live wire by the fire chiefs, and when there was any mischief afoot, or when a practical joke was being planned, he was sure to be at the bottom of it.

Coming into the alderman's home town, the fire chiefs decided to turn the tables on their tormentor of the past and make him the victim of a joke, which they did Wednesday afternoon.

A tremendous crowd had gathered on the square to see the frame structure fired and then extinguished by a modern sprinkler system. Chief John W. Graham, of the Ottawa fire department, and president of the Dominion Association of Fire Chiefs, made the announcement, and while he was still speaking Ald. Eansor was urged to go forward and do the incendiary act.

Applied Lighted Match.

The alderman did as his friends requested. He gingerly opened the door of the building, dropped a match on a pile of kerosine saturated shavings and when the interior of the building burst into flames, closed the door and started to retreat. Then it happened.

Chief W. A. Howard, of Peterborough, ordered a new policeman of the Windsor force, who was standing nearby to place Ald. Eansor under arrest.

"He had no right to start the fire," exclaimed Chief Howard, addressing the policeman. "That honour was reserved for the mayor and that person, 'indicating Eansor,' has butted in on this show. Pinch him and take him to jail."

The policeman, who was not acquainted with the Windsor alderman hesitated for a moment, undecided what to do in the face of a command coming from a man who evidently had some authority.

Peterborough Mayor Speaks.

"I am Mayor Joseph Duffus, of Peterborough," spoke up another man. "I have something to say about these ceremonies here, and I want that man arrested.

This second direct command was considered sufficient justification for action by the bewildered policeman, who approached Ald. Eansor and tapped him on the shoulder.

"You'll have to come over to the station," he informed the alderman. "These men say you had no business to start that fire. Don't start making any trouble."

"Take him along," ordered Mayor Duffus and Chief Howard, in chorus, with serious expressions on their faces.

Although the building was now burning furiously, it did not come in for the undivided attention of the great crowd. The policeman and his prisoner were surrounded by one little group, many of whom knew the alderman, and were unable to make head or tail of the affair.

"What kind of a joke is this?" demanded the alderman.

Just Obeying Orders.

"I am just obeying orders," replied the policeman, hustling his captive through the crowd. "If you don't come quietly I will put the handcuffs on you."

Ald. Eansor looked appealingly at the crowd, but the fire chiefs wore serious expressions on their faces, some even venturing words of sympathy before turning their backs on him to look at the fire.

All the time endeavouring to explain, Eansor was started to the police station, when the practical jokers thought the affair had been carried far enough. They had a difficult time in explaining to the policeman, however, that it was all a joke.

"I never thought for a moment that this crowd of highbinders could come into my own town and have me arrested in the manner they did," was the fire committee chairman's only comment.

Turned Laugh on Visitors.

He got back at the visitors a little later, however. Nearly 30 delegates were seeing Windsor from the big fire department service truck. They were hanging to the ladders, the fenders, the back step, and everywhere it was possible to obtain a foothold. Ald. William Walker was the official guide of the party, and was showing off points of interest from his seat on the radiator cap.

"Let us have a fast ride now," he said to the driver, as the truck turned on to Sandwich street from Ouellette avenue. The driver proceeded to obey orders, and was going along at a terrific pace when Ald. Eansor rushed out from the sidewalk, near Ferry avenue, and waved his arms as a signal for the driver to stop. The machine skidded up to where he was standing.

"Do you fire chiefs stop your machines while on the way to a fire every time someone orders you to?" asked Eleanor. "If you were real firemen you would be two blocks farther down the street. Go on now," and he turned back to the crowd while the fire chiefs realized that the laugh was on them.

The convention came to a close Friday evening, although many of the fire chiefs present are so taken up with Windsor and Detroit that they have announced their intention of staying for a few more days before leaving for their homes.

HOW PNEUMONIA STARTS AND HOW OFTEN PREVENTED

You catch a little cold to-day, and by to-morrow it has reached the throat, next day the lungs are affected and you wish you had used "Catarrhozone" which kills colds in five minutes. In the first place Catarrhozone soothes the irritated membranes and relieves congestion,—then it cuts out the phlegm and destroys the germs. It enables the blood to retain a natural supply of oxygen, lung food, and vitality. In any cough bronchitis or catarrh, it's guaranteed to positively cure. Beware of dangerous substitutes offered under misleading names for genuine Catarrhozone, which is sold everywhere; large size, containing two months' treatment, costs $1.00, small size, 50c.; trial size 25c.

ITALIANS OCCUPY WHOLE OF THE DOFEIDO PLATEAU

Have Occupied Rubbi and San Martino Del Carso

ROME, Aug. 12.—Italian troops have occupied the whole Dofeido Plateau, it was officially announced.

The Italians have occupied Rubbi and San Martino del Carso and have reached the line of the Vallone River. The Austrians have retired to the east of the towns of Vallone.

By their new victories the Italians appear to have taken an important steps towards clearing the salient formed by the bend of the Isonzo below Gorisia. The Sofeido Plateau was the scene of heavy fighting earlier in the war, but the Austrians obstinately withstood efforts of the Italians to win this important position. The fighting took place on a front some distance below Gorisia(the capture of which enabled the Italians to push forward in the direction of Triest in this region. San Marino del Carso is six miles southwest of Gorisia. It is about 20 miles from Triest.

COMMUNION SERVICES AT CHEMONG PARK

Special Service Will be Conducted by Rev. Canon Cornish and Rev. Robt. Gay

For the communicants of the Anglican church, residents of Chemong Park and Bridgenorth, the Rev. Canon Cornish has arranged with the Reverend Robert Gay for a celebration of Holy Communion at the residence of Mr. Hopwood at the island, commencing at Sunday next until further notice at 8:30 a.m. We hope that the communicants of the church of England, now summering at Chemong and of the village will show their appreciation of this opportunity offered by the church. The Rev. Robert Gay will be glad if those intending to communicate will notify him at his residence, Chemong Park.

BLAZING WOMAN FLUNG FROM BOAT'S WINDOW

New York, August 21.—A woman with her clothing ablaze, flung by by her husband through the window of a houseboat, furnished a tragic spectacle at Two Hundred and Tenth St. and the Harlem River last night.

Patrick Callahan, a carpenter, and his wife, Anna, are spending the summer on the boat. Mr. Callahan was cooking the supper when the oil stove exploded. When her husband threw her through the window she landed on the dock. He was severely burned beating out the flames. The doctors at the Washington Heights Hospital fear the woman will die.

A WONDER WORKER.

"It beats Miss magic!" is a favorite expression when Dr. Chase's Ointment is used. It works quick! stops all itching at once, often heals in a single night. For eczema, salt rheum, barber's itch skin irritations or eruptions, it is a most satisfactory treatment. Being antiseptic it prevents blood poisoning.

WHEN YOU GO AWAY FOR THE SUMMER A GOOD TIMEPIECE IS MOST IMPORTANT

It will also be found handy to take along a CHEAP second Watch, for camping or rough usage.

We have both the GOOD and the CHEAPER Watches, which you can buy at $1.00, $1.50, $2.00 and $3.00 up.

MACHINE FOR DRIVING TIN CANS INTO THE GROUND IS WANTED BY THE PROPERTY COMMITTEE

Ground in the Vicinty of the Incinerator is Burdened With an Accumulation of Tin Cans—Nightsoil By-law Disposed of—Market Scales Are Out of Order.

MISCELLANEOUS BUSINESS

A meeting of the Property committee was held last evening and the usual order of business despatched with. There were present, Mayor Duffus, Alds. Saunders, Duncan and Edgar.

By-law No. 1974, providing for the collection of night soil was discussed at full length by the committee. It was moved by Mayor Duffus and seconded by Ald. Duncan, that sections 1 to 5 and also section 17 be published for three consecutive issues in the three papers so as to give the public a full knowledge of what is required of them in order to properly enforce the by-law.

Inspector Cooper.

Sanitary Inspector Cooper was also present and his duties in regard to the collection of the city's night soil when the by-law came into force were briefly outlined to him by the committee. The charge for the monthly collection and the duties of the licensed scavengers were also settled.

A Taxpayer.

A letter was received from Mr. Jas. Bogue, stating that his property near the corner of Townsend and George was being used as a dumping ground by the city. He was paying taxes for the same and left it to the city to either clean it up for him or for himself to do it at the city's cost. The matter was left in abeyance.

Tin Can Nuisance.

Moved by Ald. Duncan, seconded by the Mayor, that the chairman of the committee get an estimate on the cost of an apparatus for driving tin cans into the ground. The property in the vicinity of the incinerator being pretty well stocked with cans, Ald. Saunders thought a spile driving affair or something of the kind would do the job properly.

Scales Out of Order.

Ald. Saunders informed the committee that Mr. G. W. Howson, Inspector of Weights and Measures, had notified him that the market square scales and also the C.G.E. scales were out of order. Mayor Duffus moved that the adjustment of the scales be looked int at once and that Ald. Saunders take up the matter at once with Mr. Patterson of the C.G.E.

The Inspector recommanded that a competent man be sent down from Hamilton and that the city bear one-half of the expense for same.

Waste Paper Boxes.

The question of placing boxes for waste paper at different points along George street was the last object of discussion, but as the committee could not agree on the suitability of boxes, the matter was let stand over. Ald. Duncan was of the opinion that a wire basket was the proper thing, and mentioned the case of Toronto, which had discarded the use of boxes around the streets.

SEPARATION ALLOWANCES

The following separation allowances have been received and acknowledged:

A WONDERFUL TRANSITION HAS TAKEN PLACE IN THE WEST END OF THE CITY

What Was Once Known as Boswell's Field is Now One of the Best Residential Sections in the City—Field Was the Scene of Many a Strenuous Game—Even the Old Spring is Blotted Out by the March of Civilization.

Speeding up Charlotte Street west to the boundary and gazing upon Peterborough's fine west end speedway, intersected by its fine rows of short streets running down to King, one cannot but fail to be amazed at the transition and change of this part of the city within the last eight or nine years.

In speaking of changes in a city's aspect we generally run back scores of years into the dim misty old past, and look pretty deep down into the sea of memories. In the present case, viz., as regards that part of the west end between Charlotte and King streets, and stretching from Park street to the Monaghan Road, less than a decade of years suffices to reveal to us that now animated residential section of this city as nothing else than a green rolling expanse of pasture with not a single habitation marking its pastoral brow.

A SHORT DECADE.

That part of our fair city between Charlotte and King and now made up of Boswell, Pearl, Maitland, Elias and Margaret Ave., was a short decade ago but a wide expanse of green known as Boswell's field, and was Peterborough's favorite west end baseball resort. For many years the old field resounded to the click of the bat and ball and the shouts of the players. Many a hotly contested game of ball was pulled off on the old diamond situated near where Margaret avenue now stands. A big spreading oak tree, long since swept away by the advance of the west end residential section stood at the back of the old home plate, and its stout limbs formed an excellent bleachers for the small boy.

THE COOL SPRING.

Last but not least, amidst the glories of the old green, was the cool spring of water which lay near where Pearl Ave. now stands, and which was the inviting Mecca towards which all steps were bent after the game was over, and the tired athletes began to wend their way homeward.

NEW TRACK FOR MONTREAL.

Belleville Team Wants Game Here

Belleville Artists Claim to Have Trimmed a Number of Eastern Towns

The Belleville Ontarios have communicated with Dan McCabe and are anxious to arrange a game for Saturday, August 19th. They claim to have a great outfit and have already put it over Trenton, Napanee, Picton and Brockville and would like to have a try with the baseball talent which is still left in Peterboro.

Mr. Austin O'Brien, the fast short stop of last year's Empire's outfit, is holding down short for the Ontarios.

It is likely that an attempt will be made to arrange a ball game although so far this season the game has been an unknown entity in this city.

POLICE ON LOOKOUT FOR JOHN NOLON

The local police are on the lookout for John E. Nolon, a young soldier, who has escaped from the Guelph Prison Farm. Nolon was arrested for theft in Brockville last winter and given a term in the Prison Farm, but managed to make his escape. He is about twenty years of age and of good parentage.

To make her a partaker, as far as your different ages will permit, in all your pleasures and recreations.

MEETING OF THE SOLDIERS WIVES AND MOTHERS CLUB

A very successful meeting of the soldiers Wives' and Mothers' Club was held yesterday afternoon at the Salvation Army Temple. It was moved and carried that the club send to every Peterborough boy who is a Prisoner of War in Germany, a parcel of food. A visitor has been appointed to call on each member for a donation of home made fruit cake, cocoa or anything that can be put into parcels but no canned goods. If any member should in any way be overlooked will they kindly send donation to Mrs. Downey, 158 Edinburgh street or the Salvation Army Temple, Friday afternoon not later than the 25th August. A number of the members gathered at the home of Mrs. Downey, 158 Edinburgh street, August 8th and spent a very enjoyable time in packing 6 dozen pair of socks, inside of each pair was put gum, pencil, writing paper and envelopes. This is to be sent to one unit of the 93th Battalion.

A letter was read from Mr. Drummond as follows:

To the Wives' and Mother's Club:

I received a letter this morning from my son, Arnold saying my son Charlton is all right.

Thanking you for remembering me in the hour of my sorrow.

Yours truly,
MRS. DRUMMOND.

On Friday 25th inst. the tea will take the form of a farewell meeting to Mrs. Richards Rutledge who is going to England shortly. It is earnestly hoped that members will please keep this date open and come early, 3 p.m.

MERCHANTS PLAN THE ABOLITION OF ALL PRICE CUTTING

WINNIPEG, Aug. 1.—Commercial preparedness was the keynote of the deliberations of the Dominion Board of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada, which closed its annual convention here yesterday.

A large number of resolutions of great import to the retail trade throughout the Dominion were adopted, but what is held by the executive officers as being the outstanding feature of the day's activities was "get together" meeting of the retailers, credit men, wholesalers and manufactures. Representatives of the various organizations all expressed their determination to co-operate in the matter of distribution of merchandise and the barrier which had previously divided the retailers from the wholesalers and manufacturers was broken down by the unanimous adoption of a resolution which included the clauses "We believe the interests of retailers and wholesalers are largely in common and that co-operation is solving many of the problems affecting both is sure to be mutually benficial."

A joint committee of the three bodies was appointed, to which all matters pertaining to legislation affecting all parties concerned will be referred.

During the day the Dominion Board adopted a contract selling plan which marks a new era in the retail trade of Canada. If the plan proves successful it will be carried out on a broad scale, and by this all "price cutting" will be eliminated.

WANTED—Men, good pay, steady work. Apply The Quaker Oats Company.

RESORTED TO FORGERY TO AID FATHER

LYONS, Aug. 10.—Mrs. Emma Boyczuk, 28 years of age, kept Sheriff Valentine, Deputy Sheriff Jerry Collins and business men at Lyons, Savannah and Newark rather busy Friday and Saturday. She uttered forged cheques, according to her own story, the early part of last week. They were clumsy forgeries, too. Boehmler Brothers, dealers in rugs and house furnishing goods, was the firm whose name was forged. She confessed to stealing a few pages out of their printed cheque book and then did the rest.

Emma is the wife of John Boyczuk, employed as a piece worker at the New York Central car shops here. He earns from $75 to $85 per month. The couple have been married more than two years, have no children and live in part of 62 Franklin street. Emma was born and raised in this country and has a common school education. They lived economically and saved up at least $50 every month. The woman's father is said to be Joseph Smolenski, living on the Youngs farm south of Palmyra in the town of Manchester. When he started farming he is alleged to have borrowed money of his son-in-law to start with, but had bad luck. He struck wet weather and dry weather and everything but growing weather. When the son-in-law found the father-in-law could not pay, it is said, shut down on letting him have more money.

John entrusted the bank roll to his wife. He worked all day and told his wife to bank the roll. Instead, she listened to her father, so she says, and let him have it. A short time ago John saw a chance to buy a house and lot at a bargain. He could invest the bank roll in it, give a mortgage for the balance, take in laborers working on the new Central-Hudson bridge as roomers and clear the place in a hurry. He called his wife to go get the money. She made excuses but did not produce the coin. Finally the scituation became acute.

Next morning Mrs. Boyczuk hied herself over to L. S. Lake & Co's office and tried to get Luther S. Lake to loan her $300. She explained the situation and said she simply wanted the money to show her husband that night and would return it in the morning. Pressed for more particulars, she said she would go to Palmyra and get the money from her fahter, who was keeping her money for her. Asked why she did not go there right off, she said he lived in the country and she could not make the trip that day. She was much afraid, she said, her husband would beat her if she did not have the currency. Mr. Lake did not let her have the money.

HELPED SELF TO BANK CHEQUES.

Mrs. Boyczuk happened into Boehmler's store and seeing the firm's printed book of cheques on the Lyons National Bank, she tore out a few pages, then went home, clumsily signed "Boehmler Bros" name, making each cheque payable to "Prokine Surrinck" whose name she indorsed on the back. She filled out five of these cheques.

Peter DeMatteis, a shoe dealer in Canal street, got one for $7, giving up a pair of shoes at $4.50 and $2.50 cash. Across the street Daniel P. Morgan gave up $12 cash and $15 worth of silk shirts, silk hose and other wear for the husband. Then she hired a man with an automobile to take her to Savannah where she passed off a $90 cheque on Delos J. Cotton for $15 cash and clothing. On Jeweler Munger she passed a $27 cheque for a gold band ring and $15 cash. In Newark she purchased $20 worth of finery and got $13 in cash from a drygoods dealer.

Thursday the bad cheques began to course, or turned down oif yolfways come in. They were protested, of course, or turned down Boehmler Brothers were mystified. Mr. Moran descibed the woman. She was found and brought to the Lyons National bank. She insisted that a strange man with the index finger of his right hand missing had given her the cheques and she had used them. She stuck to that story until Saturday Then Deputy Sheriff Jerry Collins was summoned.

Mrs. Boyczuk was again taken to the Lyons National bank and cross-questioned. She broke down and told about stealing the cheques. Then her husband was interviewed. He was dumfounded. Mrs. Boyczuk took Deputy Collins down cellar and showed him where she had hidden all of the stuff, excepting what she had on. Her husband put up $30, all the money he had, and promised to make good the rest and will kee pthe plunder. What became of the excess money received on the cheques is not known unless it went for automobile hire and soft drinks.

Saturday afternoon Mr. Lake called at the Wayne jail, Meeting Mr. Cotton and Mr. Munger from Savannah. He told about the attempt to borrow $300 at his office, which cleared up the situation somewhat. The long and short of the matter is that the daugher was financing her father without the knowledge of her husband. It is thought the woman is mildly demented, possible through nervousness over the financial troubles.

SUBSTITUTE FOR SPRUCE TO MAKE WOOD PULP

U. S. SECRETARY FOR AGRICULTURE SAYS PRESENT PAPER SCARCITY IS ABNORMAL.

Washington, August 12.—The White House has made public a letter to the President from Secretary of Agriculture Houston regarding the print paper situaton. He stated that the supply of spruce from which a large percentage of ground wood pulp is made, is becoming limited, but experiments have shown that 22 species of wood, of which large quantities are available, give immediate promise as substitutes for spruce.

He said a detailed study of the sulphite pulp manufacturing proces is now well advanced. The forest service also, he said, has offered for sale large amounts of timber in the national forests available for pulp operations.

In conclusion Mr. Houston said:

"Our experts are inclined to believe that the present conditions may be temporary. I am informed that before the war eastern markets, which are the principal paper markets of the country, were fully supplied by American mills and the imports from several foreign countries. Prices as a result were so low as to offer little inducement to new mills in the west, where our great timber reserves are located.

"It is probable that conditions after the war may be very similar to those which existed before."

"Every Berry A Bullet"

Every Two Hundred Boy Scouts in Toronto are Taking the Place of Men Who Have Gone to The Front

"Every berry a bullet" is the slogan adopted by over two hundred Boy Scouts in the vicinity of Toronto, who have volunteered to go into the berry fields and take the places of the men who have gone to the front. By doing this they have solved a serious problem. Every Scout who has offered his services in this campaign has sacrificed his summer holidays on behalf of the Empire. Long tedious hours of berry picking could not exactly be classed as sport but the Scouts who have undertaken this work have shown that they are ready and willing.

The Scouts have organized their force for this work. Four Scout camp have been established in the vicinity of Clarkson, and Oakville. They have adopted the following names: Camp Connaught, Camp Kitchener, Camp Baden-Powell and Camp Jellicoe. About sixty Scouts are in each camp. The usual Scout camp discipline is in force. At one of the camps the following is carried out daily:

5:15—Reveille and wash.
5:30—Clean up tents.
5:45—Flag raising and Prayers.
6:00—Breakfast.
6:30—Rations.
6:45—Leave for work.
12:15—Wash.
12:30—Luncheon.
1:30—Leave for work.
6:15—Wash.
6:30—Roll Call.
6:30—Dinner.
9:30—Roll Call.
9:30—Lights out.

The Scouts have won the admiration of every farmer and fruit grower in the neighborhood. Previous to the evolving of the scheme the proprietors of the berry fields were up against it to secure labor. Many berry patches would have gone to rot and many farmers would have lost a lot of money as a result.

ADDITIONAL TRAINING.

Boy Scouts in Canada are to be given additional training in forestry. To meet Canadian conditions the Dominion Council of the Boy Scouts Association has authorized a forestry badge in lieu of the Woodman badge. The conditions under which this badge may be secured by the boys are very comprehensive and will do much to interest Canadian Boys in the Canadian forests and the wild life found therein. Before receiving this badge the Scout must pass a number of tests. For instance he must identify the principle native tree species in his own locality, and explain their principle distinguishing characteristics. He must identify five kinds of shrubs; he must describe the principle uses of ten species of Canadian woods. He must explain the aim of forestry and compare it with agricultural and unregulated lumbering. Another important requirement is that the Scout must describe the general features of a lumbering or pulpwood operation; how the cutting is done in the wood; method of transportation to the mill and of manufacture there; he also has to describe how the forest lands are protected and administered in his own province.

Off For France To Treat Jaw Wounds

SHRAPNEL GREATEST CAUSE OF DAMAGE TO HEADS OF FRENCH SOLDIERS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—Dr. Herbert L. Wheeler, Chairman of the American National Committee for the Foundation of a Special American Hospital in Paris for Wounds of the Face and Jaw, in response to a cable grom from Paris, is sailing for France His trip is for two purposes, first to assist in completing the organization of the hospital which was opened by the committee in Paris July 3, second to see how many American dentists will be needed to carry out the broader plans which the needs of the hour in France demand.

American philanthropy and American skill have combined to make the hospital a possibility, and reports of the work already done are full of encouragement. No wounds of the European war have been quite so shocking as those to the human face. Shrapnel is the worst devastator. Noses are blown off, cheek bones crushed, upper jaws caved in, and lower jaws shot away. It is to restore faces like these that the American committee is pledged.

WORK GROWS BROADER.

Every week the scope of the work is broadening. The skill of American dentistry is particularly highly esteemed in France, where Dr Thomas W. Evans and other American pioneers made reputations years ago. Dr. Evans was a friend of the family of Napoleon III. and accompanied the Empress Eugenie as a protector in her flight from Paris. To the American dentist of to-day therefore the medical profession in Paris has looked for assistance in rebuilding the faces of wounded French soldiers.

An important part of the work must be done by dentists—the replacing of the shattered jaw and the lost dental parts. Each piece of this rebuilding is a special problem, requiring the highest skill. American dentists have rallied strongly to the call; at recent dentists' conventions the movement was indorsed, and there are more than enough volunteers to fill the places now open in Paris.

Dr. Wheeler, who has charge of the dental department at Bellevue, and allied hospitals, will give part of his time to practice in the hospital, and part to consultation work in different cases. The French War Office has donated a suitable building for the hospital in the Arc de Triomphe district of Paris, and $60,000 has already been contributed for the work by Americans. For each additional $20,000 collected the committee plans to add 100 beds to the hospital.

The American Red Cross is supplying gauze, disinfectants and other hospital necessities. American dental supply houses have contributed more than $3,000 in equipment, and the French Line is carrying all shipments free of charge.

DAMES IN PARLIAMENT DEBATE INLAND'S SALE

Measure Is Likely to Pass Lower House of the Rigsdag.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 11. — The first reading of the bill providing for the sale of the Danish West Indies to the United States was taken up in the Folkething, the lower House of the Rigsdag, yesterday, and will be continued to-day. It is believed that the Folkething will adopt the measure, owing to the fact that the Radical and Socialistic parties, which have a majority, favour the sale.

On the other hand, the Landsthing, of upper House, it is thought, is opposed to the measure, the Left party having joined the Conservatives, who desire to postpone consideration of the matter.

During the discussion yesterday there was much excitement in the House, and some women among the spectators shouted: "We will not sell!"

water, and never earn the rest that a "Blighty" brings.

"They ought to have a medal for sticking it," said a happy young officer among the wounded landed at Southampton from down Albert way. "Distinction is sticking it, and it ought to rank with the V.C."

Six hospital ships cleared in one day at Southampton. It is not a record, but it is a notable achievement; a striking tribute to the perfection of the organization of work here; when one actually sees the whole process from first to last and so knows not of hearsay, but of personal experience —that it is done without a single hitch, in a period of less than ten hours. Without a hitch! It is done without a voice being raised above conversational pitch, without a moment's flurry; without a single blanket going astray, or one single patient being bumped or jostled. The long hospital trains glide smoothly in and out, as one big white ship with its green lights and water-line, and its neat red crosses, take the place of another. And full record is preserved of every case. The last patient receives precisely the same thoughtful, kindly and truly human conside ration that was given to the first, early in the morning; here is never one vestige of the foolish thing called "hustle," and never a moment of time wasted. The the finely trained stretcher-bearers trot back to the ship with empty stretchers; but walking from it, with stretchers occupied, they go warily like Anzac, handling their war-stained burdens with a courage and delicacy most entirely admirable, as who should say—"These King's soldiers are our comrades, who have fought and suffered. The best we can give is their due." And the wounded get the best.

It was a moving and impressive spectacle to see the comparatively lightly injured, the walking cases, move off in file from the beautifully ordered ship—so more than spotless: so surgically clean — and set foot again on the sacred soil of the island home in defence of which they have offered their lives and shed their blood; that kindly English blood which would seem to be composed of pigment stuff far different from that which feeds the official Prussian brain.

Forty-eight hours from that literally blood-soaked, roaring hell and here they are—God bless their brave honest hearts and weary bodies!—in England; England, quietly basking in summer sunshine. For the sun greeted them royally at Southampton. Their wounds had been tended with the utmost care, as the snowy bandages covering them showed, but 48 hours is not a long time; much was to be done in that time, and war waits for no man. So their clothes were—as the Hun saw them ,on the first day of the advance. One man came, bore with five separate bullet and shell splinter rents through his jacket, and one wound in his neck. Many had a trouser leg hastily ripped by a trench stretcher-bearer, from ankle to thigh. All were caked, thickly caked, as to their clothing, in the familiar yellow mud of the Somme and Ancre country trenches. Some had their uniform caps still; mud-caked, holed, and tattered; but more had cap comforters.

All were weary, very weary; one saw it even where they in their excitement knew it not, in the eyes, eyes that had been looking death in the face—but, and you should mark this, every single man of them was glad, and proud; sure of himself and the cause he had fought for; proud, modestly proud, of both, satisfied that he had "done his bit," and lived yet to strike again for the good cause; and cheery, cheery to a point which can never quite be attained by the man who selfishly hugs his ease; cheery as only he can be who knows discipline, and, with single-minded sincerity, has done his duty.

Discipline, duty and the brave and steadfast endurance which is their offspring; there you have the key to as moving a spectacle, as proud a sight as any Briton may ever hope to see.

Then they get to Aberdeen, the "Silver City by the Sea." The children there only go to school for half a day, as many of the schools are utilized as hospitals, so one lot attends in the morning and another in the afternoon. How would that suit the Peterborough boys and girls?

As the tide of war ebbs and flows among the trenches on the British front, so the stream of wounded rises and falls in Aberdeen, the farthest north receiving station for wounded direct from the field of battle. From Southampton, the great clearing-house for the British Army, three Red Cross trains have arrived in the city during the last 24 hours, bearing a freight, all told, of 442 men who have fallen wounded in the great advance. This is a record, which has brought with it many sad, dramatic sights to those who have been privileged to witness the removing of these broken soldiers from the trains to the waiting fleets of ambulance cars. Very impressive it has been to see these long Red Cross trains come steaming slowly in with their burdens of war's victims and, it may be, heroes. Their scars of battle form irresistible passports to the sympathy and respect of all who behold them, or may merely guess at them from the sight of a prostrate, pain-wrecked man being carried carefully on a stretcher, bestowing upon his helpers a faint flicker of a grateful smile. It is comforting to know that at the hands of the local ambulance corps and stretcher bearers every wounded man receives individual care and attention. There is no hurry, no confusion and no hint of any kind of neglect as the "cot cases" are borne from the train coaches to the ambulance waggons. One is led to wonder at and admire the marvellous organization of the British Red Cross and Royal Army Medical Corps which makes it possible for these soldiers, who were rushing across "No Man's Land" upon the German trenches a matter of 48 hours ago, to have had their wounds dressed and now to lie in a comfortable hospital bed in far-north Aberdeen.

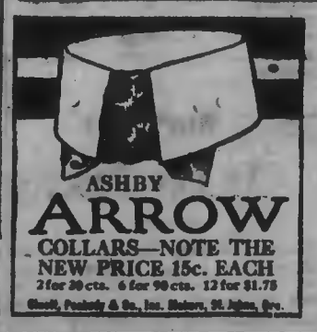
"Ian Hay," who is known in the army by his proper name of Captain John Hay Beith, lecturing in London on human nature at the front, said a Scotch joke is to prepare for a surprise attack in full view of the enemy. There are barbaric yells, pipes skirl and then sandbags with Scotch caps go over the parapet, while the Germans line up to meet the offensive. Nothing further happens. The methodical Boche now regards this joke as a frivolous abuse of the sacred culture of frightfulness.

We have plenty of material for garments and wool for socks. These are really needed, though surgical dressings are not.

SERVICE.

DEAN STARR AS CHAPLAIN.

Kingston, August 12—Dean Starr who holds the militia rank of major, left this afternoon for Halifax, acting upon instructions from the Militia Department, which has acceded to his request to permit him to go to the front as a chaplain. He offered his services free. Dean Starr was with the British forces for a short time during the early stages of the war. His place at St. George's Cathedral will be taken by Prof. H. T. F. Duckworth, of Trinity College, Toronto.



PATRIOTISM

Patriotism, like Charity, should begin at home. The man who is willing at any time to protect his country against foreign foes should be willing AT ALL TIMES to protect his Family against such common foes as Poverty, Privation and Suffering.

A Life Insurance Company cannot take the place of a Husband.

BUT---

It can preserve the family from want.
It can lighten their load of care.
It can build a barrier against adversity.
It can strengthen the foundation of the home.
It can certify to a man's affectionate regard for his family.
It can place his widow beyond the need of carrying for support.
It can add to a man's years by freeing him from anxiety.
It can enhance the respect and esteem of the public and of his wife and children for him.

Complete and absolute Family protection may be had by your taking a policy in THE SUN LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY OF CANADA—The LEADING CANADIAN LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY.

WEDDING BELLS

McGILL—WALKER.

A very pretty but quiet wedding took place on Thursday, Aug. 10th, 1916, in St. Paul's church, Lindsay, by Rev. Maconachie, when Mr. Herbert McGill, second eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert McGill, town, was united in marriage to Miss Maud Walker, of Lindsay.

The bride looked charming in a cream silk voile trimmed with Irish lace and carrying a bouquet of carnations. The bridesmaid, Miss Beatrice McGill, sister of the groom, looked pretty in a suit of midnight blue silk with hat to match. Mr. George Goodfellow of Peterboro, acted as best man.

After the ceremony all took part in a tasty dejeuner. The happy couple received many costly presents, which showed the high esteem in which they were held. The young couple left on the 4 o'clock train for Toronto and other points, and on their return will reside in Lindsay.

OBITUARY

On Monday morning, August 7th, there passed away at the family residence, 45 Reid street, one of the eldest and most esteemed residents of Peterborough, Mrs William Hamilton, widow of the late William Hamilton, Esq.

Mrs. Hamilton was in her eighty-eighth year, having been born in Falkirk, Scotland, on October 3rd, 1828, and most of her long life had been spent in Peterborough. Mrs. Hamilton's last illness was a very short duration, for it was only on Sunday morning that bronchial-pneumon in developed, and on Monday morning she passed peacefully away. She was one of the oldest and most devoted members of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, which she had attended for many years.

Her husband predeceased her, fourteen years ago, and she leaves to hourn her loss four daughters: Mrs. George Munro, and Miss Jessie Hamilton of Peterborough, Mrs. A. E. Lesh, of Windsor, Mrs. B A. Tudgate of Beaver, Pa., one son, William Hamilton, of Minneapolis, and eight grandchildren.

The funeral, which was private, took place on Wednesday morning to the Little Lake cemetery, and in the absence of the Rev. Mr. Pogue, Rev. Mr. Earchman officiated.

WM. H. RUNNALLS.

The death occurred in Hope Township on Thursday of Mr. William H. Runnalls, at the age of 82 years. The late Mr. Runnalls was one of the oldest and best known residents of that county. He leaves, behind a widow and one son, George, of Hope Township.

MRS. ALEXANDER MORRISON.

The death occurred last evening after an illness of several weeks of Mrs. Alexander Morrison, at her home in Bridgenorth. Deceased, who was seventy-two years of age, was born in Hamilton. She has resided in Bridgenorth for upwards of five years, during which time she earned for herself the respect of a large circle of friends. Deceased is survived by her husband and two daughters, namely, Mrs. Wiles of Hamilton and Mrs. Wiles of Chicago.

The funeral will take place at one-thirty on Monday from the late residence of the deceased in Bridgenorth to Little Lake cemetery.

HOG CHOLERA IN SIMCOE TOWNSHIP

BARRIE, Aug. 12.—Over $500 worth of hogs belonging to Wm. Freek were destroyed by Government Inspectors Anderson and Richards on Saturday, owing to an outbreak of cholera in his herd. Several of his hogs taking sick, Mr. Freek called in Dr. Brother, who diagnosed the disease as cholera. Notice was sent to the inspectors in Toronto, and their visit followed. Four of the diseased animals had died before the arrival of the officials, and they killed thirty-two, including a number ready for market and several brood sows. The Government pays two-third of the total loss, which is over $500. It is eight years since cholera appeared in this section, there being several cases near Dalston at that time.

GERMANS OPEN USURY BUREAU

The Hague, Saturday, via London, —German officialdom. under the new economic and social schemes, has been vastly increased. One of the latest additions is the Sthamer's Commission, whose officials have been given power to compel tradesmen to produce their books, business records, correspondence, etc., while stores and warehouses must open instantly for inspection. Refusal to comply entails severe punishment. On the other hand the officials are bound to secrecy.

Then there is the "war usury bureau," a new department under the jurisdiction of the head of the Berlin police force. The bureau has a large staff of experts to reach and meet out punishment to food fakers, food adulterers and swindlers of all sorts, including the so-called chain traders, and those who charge more than the maximum prices for food, clothing and household necessaries. The authorities already have closed the big drapery stores of Gustav Cords in Berlin and Cologne because they charged a profit of 200 per. cent. on their goods. The firm is one of the largest in Germany.

Bread card No. 170,000,000 was issued in Berlin last week.

A pamphlet defending the policy of the Imporial Chancellor, Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, recently has been reprinted by three Germans who prefer to remain anonymous, and spread broadcast throughout the country in thousands.

Italian Murderer To Pay Penalty

Ottawa, August 12.—The case of Ferranto, an Italian murderer, from Vancouver, who was sentenced to be hung this month, and for whom the usual application for clemency was made to the Justice Department, has been decided by the Cabinet. It is understood that the decision was to let the law take its course.

The case was a particularly revolting one. Ferranto's crime was the decapitation of a comrade with whom he was sleeping. He stated that he had done this act because his victim awakening in the night, had "looked ugly" at him.

Abundance of Huckleberries On Market

To-day's Market Was Light—Large Quantity of Butter and Eggs Offered

This morning's dairy market was a heavy one and a large quantity of butter and eggs made their appearance to be grabed up by local shoppers. The price of butter ranged from thirty-three to thirty-five cents, the later being the prevelant price. Eggs sold for twenty-eight and thirty cents a dozen.

This morning's outside market was a light one however, a few vegetables, including beets, onions, etc, being all that was on hand.

Mr. Ted Crough of Warsaw brought in a heavy consignment. of huckelberries, one hundred pails in all, which were quickly raffled off at one dollar a pail, or fifteen cents a quart.

GEORGE DAVIDSON DIES AT CALGARY

Mr. Charles Noyes, G.T.R. gateman at Charlotte street, has received word from Calgary, Alta., of the death of Mr. George Davidson, a former resident of this city and for many years gateman at the corner of Charlotte and Bethune street.

The late Mr. Davidson was born in Scotland sixty-nine years ago, but had spent many years of life as a resident of this city and of Lindsay, where he was also employed by the Grand Trunk Railway. The deceased gentleman was in early life a blacksmith by trade. He is survived by three sons and four daughters. One son, Andrew, is a resident of this city. The other sons are Messrs. Alex., William and Frank J., at whose residence he died. Mr. Davidson moved from this city some six years ago. Two years ago he was here on a visit.

Special to The Examiner:

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Aug. 12.— Ten or fifteen persons are reported killed and thirty or forty injured in a head-on collision in Southern Cambrai Traction in the mountains near here to-day.

Airedales Are Too Playful

His Worship, Magistrate Dumble was in a reminescent mood this morning as he fined Gerald Dunsford two dollars for harboring a dog which had malaiciously attacked a small girl. The dog in question was an Airedale and had chased after a little girl. The child's leg had been scratched by the playful pup and no serious hurt done to the dog. "All Airedales are devils," was his Worship's pithy remark. "I once owned one myself, but the police kindly relieved me of it."

Michael Ryan, an elderly gentleman pleaded guilty to a charge of drunkenness and was fined two dollars.

A livery man and owner of a number of cars was charged with driving a car around minus a license for the same. As the car was a new one and had only run around one day without its civic tag, the owner was let off without a fine and was assessed the charges of the case.

A Blacklister

William Hetherington, a blacklister failed to answer his name when he was called to answer a charge of drunkeness.

Two ladies, eyewitnesses of his "tear" gave evidence in the case and the absent offender was fined ten dollars.

CLOSING DOMINION WHEEL WORKS IS A BIG LOSS TO LINDSAY

LINDSAY, Aug. 12.—The closing of the Dominion Wheel Works and the removal of the plant to Galt, is a loss to the town of Lindsay. Already considerable of the machinery has been shipped and the balance will go forward in a few days, Mr. D. J. McLean, ex-Mayor and manager of the plant, having become manager of the Victoria Wheel Works in Galt.

The local plant has been in operation in Lindsay for nine years, and during that period have paid out in the neighbourhood of $100,000 in wages. The firm received no assistance from the municipality, being satisfied to stand on its own bottom.

Its removal to Galt will result also in Lindsay losing nine families. The following have already left for Galt: Messrs. A. Horeslin, W. Smith, L. Star, W. Cross, Donald McLean, Messrs. R. H. Clark, Archie McLean, C. McIlhargey and Percy Kellywill leave next week. The families of the men will follow later. They have all been good citizens, and the town regrets to lose them.

It is expected that ex-Mayor McLean will move his family to Galt early in September.

OLD CLOTHES FOR NEW LANDS GIRLS IN POLICE HANDS

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—Nothing under the sun? Wait till you hear of this talented young woman's contribution to the ever-expanding science of how to get something for nothing.

Her name is Miss Evelyn Sears. The address she gave the police is No. 174 West One Hundred and Seventh street. In the Jefferson Market Court yesterday she pleaded guilty, with many pretty signs of distress, to the swindling of a Fifth avenue store.

Her first step, according to the evidence, was to take an option on a vacant flat at No. 250 West Eighteenth street. That was on Tuesday morning.

Then she went straight to the Fifth avenue store, selected a $15 hat, a $7 pair of pumps and a $5.75 sweater and ordered them sent to her C. O. D. special delivery, at the Eighteenth street address.

Back to the flat she flitted. From the window she called to the delivery boy when he arrived to bring the goods to the second floor.

She had $21 in her hand, but the bill was $27.50. With an embarrassed glance in the direction of her stocking she retired with the packages into another room, to find more cash. When she returned she was deeply concerned over having lost a $10 bill. It was most unfortunate, but the boy would have to return with the goods in the afternoon.

He was taking them away when it occurred to him to peep into the packages. In one of them was an old hat, in another an old pair of shoes. He called a policeman. Magistrate Barlow held the tearful Miss Sears for Special Session.

DOLLAR DAY

The Examiner finds such cheerful co-operation among the merchants, while engaged in organizing the Dollar Day event, that it is safe to predict that their efforts to make it a record shopping day, will be just as enthusiastic. The public who avail themselves of this first summer Dollar Day in Peterborough, are going to be treated to a lot of value surprises and a big season end holiday.

Since the date has been announced for Wednesday, Aug. 23nd, every store has settled down to the job of getting the biggest line of bargains ready that they possibly can. People from a distance are being notified as fully as possible of the date, and the reputation of Peterborough's Dollar Day is all that is required to bring them in if it is at all possible for them to come. After two trials of the estimating contest, the people now understand it thoroughly and can participate in it more intelligently. It is simply a mathematical estimate, leased on the results of former Dollar Days, and weather conditions, always allowing for the present prosperous season.

In the meantime the stores are going right on with their usual good business, giving the best goods they can buy at the least money they can afford to sel lthem, even though strenuous times has advanced cost prices very largely over normal times

It is more and more being brought home to the people of the city and district that the place to do their shopping is at home. No distant store will do as much for customers here as the local merchants are glad to do. Money spent at home surely comes back to the spender, because it is kept in circulation in the district. It build up the business, makes more employment, increases the population, and so, in the circle of its influence, makes a better market for produce.

Dollar Day is only an incident in the year's business, but it shows the desire of the merchants to get closer in touch with the people of the community.
